SEC. 8. All applicants for certificates as registered pharmacists, whether by examination, or diploma of graduation from college or school of pharmacy or on the license or certificate issued by other state or territorial board of pharmacy, shall, before a certificate be granted, pay to the secretary of the board the sum of ten ($10) dollars. If an applicant for certificate of registration as a registered pharmacist by examination fail to pass such an examination, he shall not be eligible to reexamination within six months from the date of such previous examination. After the said six months shall have expired the applicant shall be entitled to reexamination upon the payment of a fee of five ($5) dollars. Upon failing to pass the second examination the applicant may be reexamined upon the payment of a fee of three ($3) dollars at any regular meeting of the board of pharmacy; provided, however, that no temporary certificate shall be issued to an applicant who has failed to pass the second examination.

Applicants for certificates—Fee.

SEC. 9. Applicants for registration as registered assistant pharmacists shall pay to the secretary of the board of pharmacy a fee of five ($5) dollars before they shall be entitled to take the examination. The certificate of registered assistant pharmacist does not entitle its holder to engage in the practice of pharmacy on his own account, nor to conduct or operate any pharmacy or drug store except under the supervision of a registered pharmacist.

Annual fee for renewal.

SEC. 10. Every registered pharmacist and every assistant registered pharmacist who desires to keep his certificate in force shall annually thereafter beginning on the first Monday of May, 1913, pay to the secretary of the board of pharmacy, a registry fee, to be fixed by the board, but which in no case shall exceed two ($2) dollars per annum, for which he shall receive a renewal of said certificate. All persons in possession of certificates, issued by the state board of pharmacy, and which are in force at the time of the adoption of this act, shall, beginning on the first Monday in May, 1913, and annually thereafter, pay to the secretary of the board of pharmacy a like sum for which they shall receive a renewal of said certificate. All certificates issued during the year expire on the first Monday of May next following.

Certificate must be posted.

SEC. 11. Every certificate of registration granted under this act and the current renewal thereof shall be conspicuously exposed in the pharmacy or drug store in which the owner thereof is employed or is conducting.

Failure to renew—Additional fee.

SEC. 12. Any registered pharmacist or any assistant registered pharmacist who shall fail to procure a renewal of his certificate at the time above stated shall not receive a renewal thereof except upon the payment of the renewal fee for each year or fraction thereof that may have elapsed between the expiration of said certificate and the application for renewal thereof, and in addition thereto a penalty of one dollar for each year or fraction thereof so elapsing between the date of expiration of such certificate and application for a renewal, before new certificate shall be issued; provided, however, that no certificate shall be renewed after a lapse of registration for a period of five (5) years, excepting upon passing a satisfactory examination before the board of pharmacy.

Certificate recorded—Record evidence.

SEC. 13. Every registered pharmacist and every assistant registered pharmacist upon receiving a certificate of registration under this act shall, before he engage in business as a pharmacist or assistant registered pharmacist, in any county of this state in which he or she shall locate, or into which he or she shall afterward remove, have such certificate recorded in the office of the county clerk of such county, and it is hereby made the duty of the county clerk to record such certificate in a book to be provided and kept for that purpose, and the county clerk is hereby authorized to charge a fee of one dollar for the recording of such certificate for record. Each person holding a certificate entitling him to practice pharmacy in this state and being engaged in business as a pharmacist at the time of the passage and adoption of this act, shall have such certificate recorded, as in this section provided, within thirty days after the taking effect of this act. The record of the certificate required by this section, or a certified copy of the same, shall be evidence in all courts that the person holding it was registered as evidenced by said certificate on the date of same. Upon the certificate being recorded as herein provided, it shall be the duty of the county clerk so recording to notify the secretary of the board of pharmacy of the name of the party and the date of such record.

Secretary to be notified of change.

SEC. 14. From and after the passage and adoption of this act, every registered pharmacist and every assistant registered pharmacist, shall within thirty days after changing his place of business as designated on the books of the secretary of the board of pharmacy, notify the secretary of the board of pharmacy of such change and of his new place of business, and upon receipt of such notification the secretary shall make the necessary change in his register.

Failure to notify, misdemeanor.

SEC. 15. Any registered pharmacist or any assistant registered pharmacist failing to comply with any of the foregoing provisions shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than five dollars nor more than twenty-five dollars.

Lost certificate, how replaced—Fee—License revoked, how.

SEC. 16. In the event any person having registered shall have lost his or her certificate, or the same has been destroyed, or if he or she desires the renewal of the same, a new certificate may be issued by said board upon the applicant paying therefor the sum of three dollars; provided, however, that where the original certificate is not lost or destroyed, then the certificate shall be surrendered before a renewal of same shall be issued; and provided further, that the board shall have power to require satisfactory evidence from the applicant of the loss or destruction of the certificate; and provided further, that where the applicant is delinquent for the annual dues required by this act then he or she shall be required to pay to said board sufficient fees to cover his delinquency in that behalf before he or she shall be entitled to a reissue of the certificate in this subdivision provided for. The board shall have power to provide by proper rules and regulations for the revocation by said board of licenses issued under the provisions of this act, whenever the holder of such license shall be guilty of habitual intemperance or addicted to the use of narcotic drugs, or shall have been convicted of a felony.

Proprietor must employ registered pharmacist.

SEC. 17. Any proprietor of a pharmacy who shall fail or neglect to place in charge of such pharmacy a registered pharmacist, or any proprietor who shall, by himself or any other person, permit the compounding of prescriptions, or the vending of drugs, medicines, or poisons, in his or her store, or place of business, except by or in the presence and under the direct, immediate and personal supervision of a registered pharmacist, or any person, not being a registered pharmacist, who shall take charge of or act as manager of any pharmacy, or store, or who, not being a registered pharmacist, retails, compounds or dispenses drugs, medicines, or poisons shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be liable to a fine of not less than twenty ($20) dollars and not more than one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for a term of not exceeding fifty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Permit to rural dealers—Fee.

SEC. 18. The board of pharmacy shall issue a permit to general dealers in rural districts in which the conditions, in their judgment, do not justify the employment of a registered pharmacist, and where the store of such general dealer is not less than three miles distant from the store of a registered pharmacist; which said permit shall authorize the persons or firm named therein to sell in such locality, but not elsewhere, and under such restrictions and regulations as said board may from time to time adopt, the following simple household remedies and drugs, and no other, in such manner and form as may be hereafter authorized by said board, as follows, to wit:

Tincture of arnica, spirits of camphor, almond oil, distilled extract, witch-hazel, paregoric, syrup of ipecac, syrup of rhubarb, hive syrup, sweet spirits of nitre, tincture of iron, epsom salts, rochelle salts, senna leaves, carbonate of magnesia, seidlitz powders, quinine, cathartic pills, chamomile flowers, caraway seeds, chlorate of potash, moth balls, plasters, salves, peroxide of hydrogen, copperas, gum camphor, blue ointment, asafetida, saffron, anise seed, saltpeter.

The board shall charge an annual fee of eight dollars in advance for such permit, and it shall be unlawful for any dealer to sell any drugs or ordinary household remedies without complying with the requirements of this section. Whenever a registered pharmacist shall establish a pharmacy within three miles by the shortest road from the place of business of such general dealer, no further license shall be granted, and the license already issued shall be void; provided, that the following drugs, medicines and chemicals may be sold by grocers and dealers generally without restriction, viz:

Glauber salts, vaseline, turpentine, condition powders, cream of tartar, carbonate of soda, bay rum, essence of Jamaica ginger, essence of peppermint, ammonia, alum, castor oil, bicarbonate of soda, chloride of lime, glycerine, witch-hazel, sheep dip, borax, sulphur, bluestone, flax seed, insect powder, fly paper, any rat poison, squirrel poison, and gopher poison, and arsenical poison used for orchard spraying, when prepared and sold in original and unbroken packages and labeled with the official poison labels.

Board to furnish certain lists.

SEC. 19. It shall be the duty of the board of pharmacy by resolution, at least annually, to request of the chief of police, marshal or constable of every city, town or township in this state, to furnish a list of all drug stores, together with the names of the owners, managers, and all employees in said store, and a brief statement of the capacity in which said persons are employed in said store, and also the firm name of all stores retailing drugs, medicines or poisons. Upon such request in writing it shall be the duty of the chief of police, marshal or constable of said city, town or township to require the patrolmen or deputies under their command, upon their respective beats, to obtain such lists as are in this section specified, and deliver the same to the board of pharmacy. It shall be the duty of the owner of any drug store or other store retailing drugs, medicines or poisons, when called upon by an officer, as above set forth, or by a member of the board of pharmacy, or a duly authorized inspector, to furnish said officer, member of the board of pharmacy, or duly authorized inspector with the information required. Any person refusing to furnish the information, or wilfully furnishing information that is false or untrue, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty dollars nor more than fifty dollars, or by imprisonment for not less than ten days and not more than thirty-five days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Food and drugs control officials to cooperate.

SEC. 20. The officials in charge of the food and drug act of this state are hereby designated and constituted agents for the enforcement of this act, and shall cooperate with the state board of pharmacy, herein provided for, in carrying out the provisions of this act, and for this purpose, they shall have free access at all times during business hours to all places where drugs, medicines or poisons are offered for sale.

Penalties collected by civil or criminal process.

SEC. 21. The several penalties prescribed in this act may be recovered in any court having jurisdiction, by a civil action instituted by the board of pharmacy, in the name of the State of Nevada, or by criminal prosecution upon complaint being made; and it shall be the duty of the district attorney of the county wherein violations of the provisions of this act occur to conduct all such actions and prosecutions at the request of the board.

Fees go to state treasury.

SEC. 22. All fees collected under the provisions of this act shall be paid into the state treasury at the end of every fiscal year.

Druggists exempt from jury duty.

SEC. 23. All persons registered under this act shall be exempt and free from jury duty.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

4515-4548. Under this act relator was employed as an expert engineer at $3,600 per annum and traveling expenses. But after the enactment of Stats. 1913, 404, the state controller refused to draw his warrant in relator's favor at the rate of $3,600 a year, but only at the rate of $2,500 a year. Relator sought mandamus, contending that the act of 1913, as an act amending the public service act, violated Const. art. 4, sec. 17. Held, that the act of 1913 was valid, it not purporting to be an amendatory act, but clearly an independent act complete in itself, which was not embraced in the constitutional requirement, and might alter the prior statute without referring to it. State ex rel. Freudenberger v. Cole, 38 Nev. 488-491 (151 P. 944).

4515-58. Repealed, Stats. 1919, 216, and the following act (Stats. 1919, 198) substituted:

4530. See State ex rel. Freudenberger v. Cole, 38 Nev. 488, under sections 4515-4548.

An Act defining public utilities, providing for the regulation thereof, creating a public service commission, defining its duties and powers, and other matters relating thereto.

Approved March 28, 1919, 198

Commission created.

SECTION 1. The public service commission is hereby created whose duty it shall be to supervise and regulate the operation and maintenance of public utilities, as hereinafter named and defined, in conformity with the provisions of this act.

Composition of commission—Qualifications.

SEC. 2. The public service commission shall consist of three commissioners, one of whom shall be the state engineer who shall be ex officio commissioner of said commission; the other two commissioners shall be appointed by the public service board which is hereby created, to consist of the governor, lieutenant-governor and attorney-general; the terms of the appointive commissioners shall commence on the first Monday in April, 1919; the term of one appointee shall expire on the first Monday in April, 1922, and the term of the second appointee shall expire on the first Monday in April, 1923. Upon the expiration of the terms of said appointive commissioners, their respective successors shall be appointed to hold office for a term of four years after the date of the appointment and until their respective successors are appointed. One of said commissioners shall be generally familiar with the operation of railroads; the third commissioner shall have a general knowledge of fares and freights and tolls and charges levied and collected by public utilities as defined in this act. The commissioners appointed under this act shall, within twenty (20) days after their appointment and qualification, meet at the state capitol and organize and elect one of their number chairman, who shall serve until the second Monday in April, 1921. On the second Monday in April of each odd-numbered year thereafter, the commissioners shall meet at the office of the commission and elect a chairman, who shall serve for two years and until his successor is elected.

The majority of said commissioners shall have full power to act in all matters within their jurisdiction. In the event that two commissioners are disqualified or in the event of two vacancies within the commission, the remaining commissioner shall exercise all the power of the commission. Not more than a majority of all the commissioners shall be members of the same political party.

Removal of commissioners.

SEC. 3. The public service board shall have the power to remove any commissioner for inefficiency, neglect of duty, or malfeasance in office. Such removal shall be upon public hearing after ten days notice and the service upon the commissioner of a copy of the charges. The record of any such proceedings shall be filed with the secretary of state if such a commissioner be removed.

No commissioner shall be pecuniarily interested in any public utility in this state or elsewhere.

One member to give entire time—Oath.

SEC. 4. One of the appointive members of the commission shall give his entire time to the business of the commission and shall not pursue any other business or vocation or hold any other office of profit, and no commissioner shall be a member of any political convention or a member of any committee of any political party.

Before the entering upon the duties of his office, each commissioner shall subscribe to the constitutional oath of office, and shall in addition swear that he is not pecuniarily interested in any public utility in this state as defined herein; said oath of office shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state.

Salaries.

SEC. 5. The appointive commissioner who shall devote his entire time to the business of the commission shall receive a salary of four thousand ($4,000) dollars per annum; the other appointive commissioner shall receive a salary of twenty-five hundred ($2,500) dollars per annum, and the ex officio member of the commission shall receive a salary of one thousand ($1,000) dollars per annum; all of said salaries shall be paid as other state officers are paid. Said commission shall appoint a secretary who shall be an expert rate man and who shall receive a salary of three thousand ($3,000) dollars per annum; the commission may employ such other clerks, experts or engineers as may be necessary, and shall fix their compensation; provided, that such appointments and employments and the compensation therefor shall first be approved by the state board of examiners.

Name—Seal—Office—Rules.

SEC. 6. The commission shall be known as "Public Service Commission of Nevada," and in that name may sue and be sued.

Said commission shall have a seal upon which shall be the words "Public Service Commission of Nevada," by which it shall authenticate its proceedings and orders, and all papers made under such seal shall be admitted in evidence without further authenticity or proof.

The commission shall keep its office at Carson City, Nevada, in rooms provided by the state board of capitol commissioners. The commission may hold sessions or hearings at its office or at such other place or places as the convenience of the commission, or of the parties, require.

The commission shall have the power to adopt and publish rules for the orderly conduct of proceedings before it.

"Public utility" defined.

SEC. 7. The term "Public Utility," as used herein, shall mean and embrace all corporations, companies, individuals, associations of individuals, their lessees, trustees or receivers (appointed by any court whatsoever) that now, or may hereafter, own, operate, manage, or control any railroad or part of a railroad as a common carrier in this state, or cars or other equipment used thereon, or bridges, terminals, or sidetracks, or any docks or wharves or storage elevators used in connection therewith, whether owned by such railroads or otherwise; also any company or individual or association of individuals owning or operating automobiles, auto trucks, or other self-propelled vehicles, engaged in transporting persons or property for hire over and along the highways of this state as common carriers; also express companies, telegraph and telephone companies, and all companies which may own cars of any kind or character, used and operated as a part of railroad trains, in or through this state, and all duties required of and penalties imposed upon any railroad or any officer or agent thereof shall, in so far as the same are applicable, be required of and imposed upon the owner or operator of said automobiles, auto trucks, or other self-propelled vehicles, transporting persons or property for hire over and along the highways of this state as common carriers, express companies, telegraph and telephone companies, and companies which may own cars of any kind or character, used and operated as a part of railroad trains in or through this state, and their officers and agents, and the commission shall have the power of supervision and control of all such companies and individuals to the same extent as of railroads; provided, however, that automobiles used exclusively as hearses or ambulances operated within the limits of cities and towns, and other automobiles which have no specified routes of travel and which are not operated as common carriers, shall not be construed as being under the jurisdiction of the commission within the meaning hereof. "Public Utility" shall also embrace every corporation, company, individual, association of individuals, their lessees, trustees or receivers appointed by any court whatsoever, that now or hereafter may own, operate or control any plant or equipment, or any part of a plant or equipment within the state for the production, delivery or furnishing for or to other persons, firms, associations, or corporations, private or municipal, heat, light, power in any form or by any agency, water for business, manufacturing, agricultural or household use, or sewerage service whether within the limits of municipalities, towns, or villages, or elsewhere; and the public service commission is hereby invested with full power of supervision, regulation and control of all such utilities, subject to the provisions of this act and to the exclusion of the jurisdiction, regulation and control of such utilities by any municipality, town or village, unless otherwise provided by law.

(a) The provisions of this act and the term "Public Utility" shall apply to the transportation of passengers and property and the transmission of messages between points within the state, and to the receiving, switching, delivering, storing and hauling of such property, and receiving and delivering messages, and to all charges connected therewith, including icing charges and mileage charges, and shall apply to all railroads, corporations, automobiles, auto trucks, or other self-propelled vehicles, express companies, car companies, freight and freight-line companies, and to all associations of persons, whether incorporated or otherwise, that shall do any business as common carriers upon or over any line of railroad or any public highway within this state, and to any common carrier engaged in the transportation of passengers and property, wholly by rail, or partly by rail and partly by water.

Commission may investigate values.

SEC. 8. The commission may, in its discretion, investigate and ascertain the value of all property of every public utility as defined in this act, actually used and useful for the convenience of the public. In making such investigation the commission may avail themselves of all information contained in the assessment rolls of the various counties and the public records and files of all state departments, offices and commissions and any other information obtainable.

Charges for public service regulated.

SEC. 9. Every public utility, as herein defined, is hereby required to furnish reasonably adequate service and facilities, and the charges made for any service rendered or to be rendered, or for any service in connection therewith, or incidental thereto, shall be just and reasonable, and every unjust and unreasonable charge for service of public utilities is prohibited and declared to be unlawful.

Public utilities to report.

SEC. 10. Every public utility, as defined in this act, shall keep and render to the commission, in the manner, form and detail prescribed by the commission, uniform and detailed accounts of all business transacted and shall furnish such commission with an annual report in such form and detail as shall be prescribed by the commission; the accounts of every public utility as herein defined shall be closed annually on the first day of January and the reports herein required shall be filed not later than March 15, following; the commission may at any time call for desired information omitted from such reports or not provided for therein, when in the judgment of the commission such information is necessary.

Any commissioner or any person or persons authorized by the commission shall have the right to examine the books, accounts, records, minutes, and papers of any public utility for the purpose of determining their correctness and whether they are being kept in accordance with the rules and regulations and form prescribed by the commission; provided, where any such public utility is required by the United States government to keep accounts in a specified manner, such system shall be followed, also the fiscal years as fixed by the government.

Penalty for refusal to permit examination.

SEC. 11. Any agent or person in charge of the books, accounts, records, minutes or papers of any public utility who shall refuse or fail for a period of thirty days to furnish the commission with any report required by it or who shall fail or refuse to permit any commissioner or other person authorized by the commission to inspect such books, accounts, records, minutes, or papers on behalf of the commission shall be liable to a penalty in a sum of not less than three hundred ($300) dollars nor more than five hundred ($500) dollars, such penalty to be recovered in a civil action upon the complaint of the commission in any court of competent jurisdiction; and each day's refusal or failure shall be deemed a separate offense, and be subject to the penalty herein prescribed.

Biennial report.

SEC. 12. The commission shall make and publish biennial reports showing its proceedings. All such reports and all records, proceedings, papers and files of said commission shall be open at all reasonable times to the public; provided, however, that the commission, when it is necessary to the public interest, may withhold any facts or information in its possession for a period not to exceed ninety days.

To prescribe standards.

SEC. 13. The commission may, when necessary, ascertain and prescribe for each kind of public utility adequate, convenient and serviceable standards for the measurement of quality, pressure, voltage or other conditions pertaining to the supply of the product or service rendered by any public utility, and prescribe reasonable regulations for the examination and testing of such products or service and for the measurement thereof. Any consumer, user or party served may have the quality or quantity of the product or the character of any service rendered by any public utility tested upon the payment of fees fixed by the commission, which fees, however, shall be paid by the public utility and repaid to the complaining party if the quality or quantity of the product or the character of the service be found by the commission defective or insufficient in a degree to justify the demand for testing; or the commission may apportion the fees between the parties as justice may require; provided, that in cities of more than ten thousand population nothing contained in this act shall direct or permit the installation or the use of mechanical water meters or similar mechanical devices to measure the quantity of water served or delivered to water users.

The commission may, in its discretion, purchase such materials, apparatus, and standard measuring instruments for such examination and tests as it may deem necessary. The commission shall have the right and power to enter upon any premises occupied by any public utility for the purpose of making the examination and tests provided for in this act and set up and use on such premises any necessary apparatus and appliances and occupy reasonable space therefor. Any public utility refusing to allow such examination to be made as herein provided shall be subject to the penalties prescribed in section 11 of this act.

The public service commission of Nevada is authorized and directed to prescribe the standards for the maintenance, use and operation of electric poles, wires, cables and appliances of all public utilities within the state engaged in the business of furnishing electric power, light and energy.

Schedule of rates and charges to be filed.

SEC. 14. Every public utility shall file with the commission within a time to be fixed by the commission, schedules which shall be open to public inspection, showing all rates, tolls and charges which it has established and which are in force at the time for any service performed or product furnished in connection therewith by any public utility controlled and operated by it. In connection with such schedule, and as a part of it, shall also be filed all rules and regulations that in any manner affect the rates charged or to be charged for any service or product. A copy, or so much of said schedule as the commission shall deem necessary for the use of the public, shall be printed in plain type and posted in every station or office of such public utility where payments are made by the consumers or users, open to the public, in such form and place as to be readily accessible to the public and conveniently inspected. When a schedule of joint rates or charges is or may be in force between two or more public utilities, such schedule shall, in like manner, be printed and filed with the commission, and so much thereof as the commission may deem necessary for the use of the public shall be posted conspicuously in every station or office as in this section above provided. No changes shall thereafter be made in any schedule, including schedules of joint rates or in the rules and regulations affecting any and all rates or charges except upon thirty days' notice to the commission and all such changes shall be plainly indicated, or by filing new schedules in lieu thereof thirty days prior to the time the same are to take effect; provided, that the commission, upon application of any public utility, may prescribe a less time within which a reduction may be made. Copies of all new or amended schedules shall be filed, and posted in the stations and offices of public utilities as in the case of original schedules; provided, whenever there shall be filed with the commission any schedule stating a new individual or joint rate, fare, or charge, or any new individual or joint regulation or practice affecting any rate, fare, or charge, the commission shall have, and it is hereby given, authority, either upon complaint or upon its own initiative without complaint, at once, and if it so orders, without answer or formal pleading by the interested utility or utilities, but upon reasonable notice, to enter upon hearing concerning the propriety of such rate, fare, charge, classification, regulation, or practice; and pending such hearing and the decision thereon, the commission, upon delivering to the utility or utilities affected thereby a statement in writing of its reasons for such suspension, may suspend the operation of such schedule and defer the use of such rate, fare, charge, classification, regulation, or practice, but not for a longer period than thirty days beyond the time when such rate, fare, charge, classification, regulation, or practice would otherwise go into effect; and after full hearing, whether completed before or after the date upon which the rate, fare, charge, classification, regulation, or practice is to go into effect, the commission may make such order in reference to such rate, fare, charge, classification, regulation or practice as would be proper in a proceeding initiated after the rate, fare, charge, classification, regulation or practice has become effective; provided, that if any such hearing cannot be concluded within the period of suspension as above stated, the commission may, in its discretion, extend the time of suspension a further period of not to exceed thirty days. In all cases where such order of suspension shall have been made, the commission shall give to the hearing and decision of the question involved preference over all other questions pending before it, and decide the same as speedily as possible.

Printed schedules to govern.

SEC. 15. It shall be unlawful for any public utility to charge, demand, collect or receive a greater or less compensation for any service performed by it within the state or for any service in connection therewith than is specified in such printed schedules, including schedule of joint rates, as may at the time be in force, or to demand, collect or receive any rate, toll, or charge not specified in such schedules. The rates, tolls, and charges named therein shall be the lawful rates, tolls, and charges until the same are changed as provided in this act. It shall likewise be unlawful for any public utility to grant any rebate, concession, or special privilege to any consumer or user, which directly or indirectly shall or may have the effect of changing the rates, tolls, charges, or payments, and any violation of the provisions of this section shall subject the violator to the penalty prescribed in section 11 of this act. This, however, shall not have the effect of suspending, rescinding, invalidating, or in any way affecting contracts existing on March 23, 1911.

Special contract rates legal, when.

SEC. 16. Nothing in this act shall be construed to prevent concentration, commodity, transit and other special contract rates, but all such rates shall be open to all shippers of a like kind of traffic under similar circumstances and conditions, and shall be subject to the provisions of this act as to the treasurer shall each give a satisfactory bond running to the State of Nevada in the sum of not less than two thousand dollars, and such greater sum as the board may from time to time require for the faithful discharge of their respective duties.

Secretary to keep records—Salary.

SEC. 6. The secretary of the board shall keep a complete record of all proceedings of the board and of all certificates issued and shall perform such other duties as the board may from time to time require, for which services he shall receive the sum of twenty-five ($25) dollars per month. Each member of the board and the secretary shall receive his necessary hotel and traveling expenses in attending formal meetings of the board, the same to be audited and allowed as other claims against the state out of the moneys appropriated by law.

Quorum—Meetings—Powers and duties of board.

SEC. 7. Three members of the board shall constitute a quorum. They shall hold a meeting at least once in every six months.

POWERS AND DUTIES OF THE BOARD

Subdivision 1. The state board of pharmacy shall have power:

(a) To make such by-laws and regulations, not inconsistent with the laws of this state, as may be necessary for the protection of the public, appertaining to the practice of pharmacy and the lawful performance of its duties;

(b) To regulate the practice of pharmacy;

(c) To regulate the sale of poisons;

(d) To examine and register as pharmacists and assistant pharmacists all applications whom it shall deem qualified to be such;

(e) The board shall report annually to the governor upon the condition of pharmacy in the state, which said report shall contain a full and complete record of the proceedings of the board for the year, a complete statement of all fees received, and also the names of all pharmacists registered under this act. It shall be the duty of the state printer to print said report.

Applicants for certificates—Fee.

SEC. 8. All applicants for certificates as registered pharmacists, whether by examination, or diploma of graduation from college or school of pharmacy or on the license or certificate issued by other state or territorial board of pharmacy, shall, before a certificate be granted, pay to the secretary of the board the sum of ten ($10) dollars. If an applicant for certificate of registration as a registered pharmacist by examination fail to pass such an examination, he shall not be eligible to reexamination within six months from the date of such previous examination. After the said six months shall have expired the applicant shall be entitled to reexamination upon the payment of a fee of five ($5) dollars. Upon failing to pass the second examination the applicant may be reexamined upon the payment of a fee of three ($3) dollars at any regular meeting of the board of pharmacy; provided, however, that no temporary certificate shall be issued to an applicant who has failed to pass the second examination.

Applicants for certificates—Fee.

SEC. 9. Applicants for registration as registered assistant pharmacists shall pay to the secretary of the board of pharmacy a fee of five ($5) dollars before they shall be entitled to take the examination. The certificate of registered assistant pharmacist does not entitle its holder to engage in the practice of pharmacy on his own account, nor to conduct or operate any pharmacy or drug store except under the supervision of a registered pharmacist.

Annual fee for renewal.

SEC. 10. Every registered pharmacist and every assistant registered pharmacist who desires to keep his certificate in force shall annually thereafter beginning on the first Monday of May, 1913, pay to the secretary of the board of pharmacy, a registry fee, to be fixed by the board, but which in no case shall exceed two ($2) dollars per annum, for which he shall receive a renewal of said certificate. All persons in possession of certificates, issued by the state board of pharmacy, and which are in force at the time of the adoption of this act, shall, beginning on the first Monday in May, 1913, and annually thereafter, pay to the secretary of the board of pharmacy a like sum for which they shall receive a renewal of said certificate. All certificates issued during the year expire on the first Monday of May next following.

Certificate must be posted.

SEC. 11. Every certificate of registration granted under this act and the current renewal thereof shall be conspicuously exposed in the pharmacy or drug store in which the owner thereof is employed or is conducting.

Failure to renew—Additional fee.

SEC. 12. Any registered pharmacist or any assistant registered pharmacist who shall fail to procure a renewal of his certificate at the time above stated shall not receive a renewal thereof except upon the payment of the renewal fee for each year or fraction thereof that may have elapsed between the expiration of said certificate and the application for renewal thereof, and in addition thereto a penalty of one dollar for each year or fraction thereof so elapsing between the date of expiration of such certificate and application for a renewal, before new certificate shall be issued; provided, however, that no certificate shall be renewed after a lapse of registration for a period of five (5) years, excepting upon passing a satisfactory examination before the board of pharmacy.

Certificate recorded—Record evidence.

SEC. 13. Every registered pharmacist and every assistant registered pharmacist upon receiving a certificate of registration under this act shall, before he engage in business as a pharmacist or assistant registered pharmacist, in any county of this state in which he or she shall locate, or into which he or she shall afterward remove, have such certificate recorded in the office of the county clerk of such county, and it is hereby made the duty of the county clerk to record such certificate in a book to be provided and kept for that purpose, and the county clerk is hereby authorized to charge a fee of one dollar for the recording of such certificate for record. Each person holding a certificate entitling him to practice pharmacy in this state and being engaged in business as a pharmacist at the time of the passage and adoption of this act, shall have such certificate recorded, as in this section provided, within thirty days after the taking effect of this act. The record of the certificate required by this section, or a certified copy of the same, shall be evidence in all courts that the person holding it was registered as evidenced by said certificate on the date of same. Upon the certificate being recorded as herein provided, it shall be the duty of the county clerk so recording to notify the secretary of the board of pharmacy of the name of the party and the date of such record.

Secretary to be notified of change.

SEC. 14. From and after the passage and adoption of this act, every apply therefor, for the transportation of any and all kinds of freight in carload lots. In case of insufficiency of cars at any time to meet all requirements, such cars as are available shall be distributed among the several applicants therefor in proportion to their respective immediate requirements without discrimination between shippers or competitive or noncompetitive places; provided, preference may be given to shipments of live stock and perishable property.

(a) The commission shall have the power to enforce reasonable regulations for furnishing cars to shippers, and switching the same, and for the loading and unloading thereof, and the weighing of the cars and freight offered for shipment over any line of railroad.

May subpoena and swear witnesses.

SEC. 24. Any commissioner, or the secretary thereof, may administer oaths to any witness called to testify in any hearing or proceeding before the commission. The commission may require, by order to be served on any public utility in the same manner as a subpoena in a civil action, the production at such time and place as the commission may designate of any books, accounts, papers, or records kept by such public utility in any office or place without the State of Nevada, or verified copies in lieu thereof, if the commission shall so direct, in order that an examination may be made by the commission or under its direction, or for use as testimony. If any public utility shall refuse or fail to comply with such order, the said utility shall be subject to the penalty named in section 11.

Hearings of complaints.

SEC. 25. Upon a complaint made against any public utility by any mercantile, agricultural or manufacturing society or club, or by any body politic or municipal organization or by any person or persons, firm or firms, corporation or corporations, or association or associations the same being interested, that any of the rates, tolls, charges, or schedules, or any joint rate or rates are in any respect unreasonable or unjustly discriminatory, or that any regulation, measurements, practice, or act whatsoever affecting or relating to the transportation of persons or property, or any service in connection therewith, or the production, transmission or delivery or furnishing of heat, light, water, or power, or any service in connection therewith is, in any respect, unreasonable, insufficient, or unjustly discriminatory, or that any service is inadequate, the commission shall proceed, with or without notice, to make such investigation as it may deem necessary. But no order affecting said rates, tolls, charges, schedules, regulations, measurements, practice, or act complained of shall be entered without a formal hearing.

(a) The commission shall, prior to such formal hearing, notify the public utility complained of that complaint has been made, stating the substance thereof, or, if deemed necessary, accompanying the notice with a copy of the complaint, and ten days after such notice has been given, the commission may set a time for hearing.

(b) The commission shall give the public utility and the complainant or complainants at least ten days' notice of the time when and place where such hearing will be held, at which hearing both the complainant and the public utility shall have the right to appear by counsel or otherwise, and be fully heard. Either party shall be entitled to an order by the commission for the appearance of witnesses or the production of books, papers and documents containing material testimony. Witnesses appearing upon the order of the commission shall be entitled to the same fees and mileage as witnesses in civil actions in the courts of the state, and the same shall be paid out of the state treasury in the same manner as other claims against the state are paid; but no fees or mileage shall be allowed unless the chairman of the commission shall certify to the correctness of the claim.

Witnesses in contempt, when.

SEC. 26. If any party ordered to appear before the commission as a witness shall fail to obey such order, the commission, or any member, or the secretary thereof, may apply to the clerk of the nearest district court for a subpoena commanding the attendance of said witness before the commission. It shall be the duty of such clerk to issue such subpoena, and of any peace officer to serve the same. Disobedience to such subpoena shall be deemed a contempt of court and punished accordingly.

Commission may change rates, how.

SEC. 27. If, upon any hearing and after due investigation, the rates, tolls, charges, schedules or joint rates shall be found to be unjust, unreasonable, or unjustly discriminatory, or to be preferential, or otherwise in violation of any of the provisions of this act, the commission shall have the power to fix and order substituted therefor such rate or rates, tolls, charges, or schedules, as shall be just and reasonable. If it shall in like manner be found that any regulation, measurement, practice, act, or service complained of is unjust, unreasonable, insufficient, preferential, unjustly discriminatory, or otherwise in violation of the provisions of this act, or if it be found that the service is inadequate, or that any reasonable service cannot be obtained, the commission shall have the power to substitute therefor such other regulations, measurements, practices, service, or acts, and make such order relating thereto as may be just and reasonable.

(b) When complaint is made of more than one rate, charge or practice, the commission may, in its discretion, order separate hearings upon the several matters complained of and at such times and places as it may prescribe. No complaint shall at any time be dismissed because of the absence of direct damage to the complainant. The commission may at any time, upon its own motion, investigate any of the rates, tolls, charges, rules, regulations, practices, and service, and, after a full hearing as above provided, by order, make such changes as may be just and reasonable, the same as if a formal complaint had been made.

Depositions of witnesses.

SEC. 28. The commission, or any party to any proceeding before it, may cause the depositions of witnesses to be taken in the manner prescribed by law for like depositions in civil actions.

Record to be kept.

SEC. 29. A full and complete record shall be kept of all proceedings before the commission or its representative on any formal investigation, and all testimony shall be taken down by the stenographer appointed by the commission. Whenever any complaint is served upon the commission as hereinafter provided for the bringing of actions against the commission, before the action is reached for trial, the commission shall cause a certified copy of all proceedings held and testimony taken upon such investigation to be filed with the clerk of the court in which the action is pending. A copy of such proceedings and testimony shall be furnished to any party, on payment of a reasonable amount therefor, to be fixed by the commission, which amount shall be uniform per folio to all parties. The amount so charged and collected shall be turned over by the commission to the state treasurer, and by him carried into the fund appropriated for the general expenses of the commission.

Punishment for perjury.

SEC. 30. No person shall be excused from testifying, or from producing books and papers in any proceeding based upon or growing out of any alleged violation of the provisions of this act, on the ground of or for the reason that the testimony or evidence, documentary or otherwise, required of him may tend to incriminate or subject him to penalty or forfeiture; but no person having so testified shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for, or on account, of any transaction, matter or thing concerning which he may have testified or produced any documentary evidence; provided, that no person so testifying shall be exempted from prosecution or punishment for perjury in so testifying.

Punishment for failure or neglect to make reports.

SEC. 31. Any officer, agent, or employee of any public utility who shall wilfully fail or refuse to fill out and return any blanks as required by this act, or shall wilfully fail or refuse to answer any questions therein propounded, or shall knowingly or wilfully give a false answer to any such questions, or shall evade the answer to any such question where the fact inquired of is within his knowledge, or who shall, upon proper demand, wilfully fail or refuse to exhibit to any commission or any commissioners, or any person also authorized to examine the same, any book, paper or account of such public utility which is in his possession or under his control, shall be subject to the penalty prescribed in section 11 of this act.

Rates in force, when.

SEC. 32. All rates, fares, charges, classifications, and joint rates fixed by the commission shall be in force, and shall be prima facie lawful from the date of the order until changed or modified by the commission, or in pursuance of section 33 of this act. All regulations, practices, and service prescribed by the commission shall be enforced and shall be prima facie reasonable unless suspended or found otherwise in an action brought for the purpose, pursuant to the provisions of section 33 of this act, or until changed or modified by the commission itself upon satisfactory showing made.

Action in district court.

SEC. 33. Any party in interest being dissatisfied with an order of the commission fixing any rate or rates, fares, charges, classifications, joint rate or rates, or any order fixing any regulations, practices or services, may within ninety (90) days commence an action in the district court of the proper county against the commission and other interested parties as defendants to vacate and set aside any such order on the ground that the rate fixed in such order is unlawful or unreasonable, or that any such regulation, practice, or service, fixed in such order is unreasonable. The commission and other parties defendant shall file their answers to said complaint within thirty (30) days after the service thereof, whereupon such action shall be at issue and stand ready for trial upon twenty (20) days' notice to either party.

All actions brought under this section shall have precedence over any civil cause of a different nature pending in such court; and the court shall always be deemed open for the trial thereof, and the same shall be tried and determined as other civil actions; any party to such action may introduce evidence in addition to the transcript of the evidence offered to said commission.

(a) No injunction shall issue suspending or staying any order of the commission except upon application to the court or judge thereof, notice to the commission having been first given and hearing having been had thereon; provided, that all rates fixed by the commission shall be deemed reasonable and just, and shall remain in full force and effect until final determination by the courts having jurisdiction.

(b) If, upon the trial of such action, evidence shall be introduced by the plaintiff which is found by the court to be different from that offered upon the hearing before the commission, or additional thereto, the court, before proceeding to render judgment, unless the parties to such action stipulate in writing to the contrary, shall transmit a copy of such evidence to the commission, and shall stay further proceedings in said action for fifteen (15) days from the date of such transmission. Upon receipt of such evidence the commission shall consider the same, and may alter, modify, amend, or rescind its orders relating to such rate or rates, fares, charges, classifications, joint rate or rates, regulation, practice, or service complained of in said action, and shall report its action thereon to said court within ten days from the receipt of such evidence.

(c) If the commission shall rescind its order complained of, the action shall be dismissed; if it shall alter, modify or amend the same, such altered, modified, or amended order shall take the place of the original order complained of, and judgment shall be rendered thereon, as though made by the commission in the first instance. If the original order shall not be rescinded or changed by the commission, judgment shall be rendered upon such original order.

(d) Either party to said action, within sixty (60) days after the service of a copy of the order or judgment of the court, may appeal or take the case up on error as in other civil actions. Where an appeal is taken to the supreme court of Nevada, the cause shall, on the return of the papers to the higher court, be immediately placed on the calendar of the then pending term, and shall be assigned and brought to a hearing in the same manner as other causes on the calendar.

(e) In all actions under this section the burden of proof shall be upon the party attacking or resisting the order of the commission to show by clear and satisfactory evidence that the order is unlawful, or unreasonable, as the case may be.

Fatal accidents must be reported.

SEC. 34. Every public utility shall, whenever an accident occurs in the conduct of its operation causing death, give prompt notice thereof to the commission. If in its judgment the public interest requires it, the commission shall cause an investigation to be made forthwith, at such place and in such manner as the commission shall deem it best.

Penalties for culpable public utilities.

SEC. 35. If any public utility shall violate any provision of this act or shall do any act prohibited, or shall fail or refuse to perform any duty enjoined upon it, or upon failure of any public utility to place in operation any rate or joint rate, or do any act herein prohibited, for which a penalty has not been provided, or shall fail, neglect, or refuse to obey any lawful requirement or order made by the commission or any court, for every such violation, failure, or refusal, such public utility shall be subject to the penalty prescribed in section 11 of this act.

Reports and statements.

SEC. 36. Every annual report, record, or statement required by this act to be made to the commission shall be sworn to by the proper officer, agent or person in charge of such public utility. Any intentionally false oath as to the correctness of such report, record, or statement, shall be deemed perjury, and the person making such false oath shall, upon conviction, be punished as in the case of other perjuries.

Certificate must be procured.

SEC. 36½. Every public utility owning, controlling, operating or maintaining or having any contemplation of owning, controlling, or operating any public utility shall before beginning such operation or continuing of operations, or construction of any line, plant or system or any extension of a line, plant or system within this state, obtain from the public service commission a certificate that the present or future public convenience or necessity requires or will require such continued operation or commencement of operations or construction; provided, that nothing herein shall be construed as requiring a public utility to secure such certificate for any extension within any town or city within which it shall theretofore have lawfully commenced operations or for an extension into territory either within or without the city or town contiguous to its railroad, line, plant or system and not then served by a public utility of like character. Upon the granting of any certificate of public convenience, the commission may make such order and prescribe such terms and conditions for the location of lines, plants, or systems to be constructed, extended or affected as may be just and reasonable.

Every applicant for a certificate of public convenience shall furnish such evidence of its corporate character and of its franchise or permits as may be required by the commission. The commission shall have the power, after hearing, to issue or refuse such certificate of public convenience or to issue it for the construction of a portion only of the contemplated line, plant or system or extension thereof, and may attach thereto such terms and conditions as, in its judgment, the public convenience and necessity may require.

No public utility beginning, prosecuting or completing any new construction in violation of this act shall be permitted to levy any tolls or charges for services rendered and all such tolls and charges shall be void.

It shall be unlawful for any public utility to discontinue, modify or restrict service to any city, town, municipality, community or territory theretofore served by it, except upon twenty (20) days' notice filed with the commission, specifying in detail the character and nature of the discontinuance, or restriction of the service intended, and upon order of the commission, made after hearing, permitting such discontinuance, modification or restriction of service.

All hearings and investigations under this section shall be conducted substantially as is provided for hearings and investigations of tolls, charges, and service. Every order refusing or granting any certificates of public convenience, or granting or refusing permission to discontinue, modify or restrict service, as provided in this section, shall be prima facie lawful from the date of the order until changed or modified by the order of the commission or in pursuance of section 33 of this act; provided, however, that a municipality constructing, leasing, operating or maintaining any public utility shall not be required to obtain a certificate of convenience.

Disposition of surplus product.

SEC. 37. Whenever any person, company, corporation or association which is not engaged in business as a public utility as defined by this act, and which does not furnish, sell, produce or deliver to others, light, heat, power or water, under a franchise received from the state or from any county or municipality within the state, shall be able from any surplus beyond the needs or requirements of its own business, and shall desire to sell, produce, furnish and deliver to any other person, company, association or corporation, any light, heat, power or water, such person, company, association or corporation, shall apply to the public service commission for authority to sell, produce, furnish or deliver any such surplus light, heat, power or water, and shall submit to the commission the proposed contract by which such light, heat, power or water is to be sold, furnished, produced or delivered.

The commission shall thereupon ascertain whether it is advisable in the public interest that such contract be executed and, if the commission shall approve such contract, then such person, company, corporation or association shall have the right to furnish, sell, produce and deliver such light, heat, power or water in accordance with the terms of such contract, and shall not thereby become a public utility within the meaning of this act, nor shall it be subject to the jurisdiction of the commission.

Commission may invoke remedies.

SEC. 38. In addition to all the other remedies provided by this act for the prevention and punishment of any and all violations of the provisions thereof, and all orders of the commission, the commission may compel compliance with the provisions of this act and of the orders of the commission by proceedings in mandamus, injunction, or by other civil remedies.

Printing at state printing office.

SEC. 39. Except in cases of emergency, all the necessary printing of the commission shall be done at the state printing office, and it is made the duty of the state printer to have such printing done as expeditiously as possible.

Attorney-general legal counsel—District attorneys to aid.

SEC. 40. The attorney-general of Nevada shall be counsel and attorney for the commission in all actions, proceedings and hearings, and shall prosecute in the name of the State of Nevada all actions for the enforcement of this act and for the recovery of any penalty or forfeiture provided for herein, and shall prosecute all violations of the laws of this state by public utilities, their officers, agents and employees, and shall generally aid the commission in the performance of its duties and the enforcement of this act. The district attorney of the proper county, in the aid of any investigation, prosecution, hearing or trial had under the provisions of this act, shall upon the request of the attorney-general or the commission, act as counsel for the commission.

Penalties for violation.

SEC. 41. Any violation of the provisions of this act, where no penalty or punishment is prescribed therefor, shall be punished by a fine of not less than five hundred ($500) dollars or more than one thousand ($1,000) dollars.

Expenses of employees.

SEC. 42. The commission and secretary, and such clerks and experts as may be employed, shall be entitled to receive from the state their necessary expenses while traveling on the business of the commission, including the cost of lodging and subsistence. Such expenditure shall be sworn to by the person who incurred the expense and shall be approved by the chairman of the commission.

Commission may attend certain hearings.

SEC. 43. The commission may confer, by correspondence, with the railroad commissioners of other states, and with the interstate commerce commission on any matters relating to railroads and may attend hearings involving Nevada rates before the interstate commerce commission outside the state after securing written approval of the state board of examiners. All necessary expenses incurred in attending such hearings shall be a charge against the state, and be audited and paid as other state claims are paid; provided, that all such claims shall be sworn to by the commissioner incurring the expense, and be approved by the chairman.

Supersedes railroad and public service commissions.

SEC. 44. The public service commission created hereby shall be considered the successor of the railroad commission of Nevada and the public service commission of Nevada as now constituted by law, and all hearings and proceedings of every kind and character now pending before said commissions or against said commissions, or either of them, shall be continued in the name of and before the commission created by this act, nor shall the repeal of any law by this act affect any act done, right established, or prosecution or proceeding commenced under and by virtue of the acts entitled "An act to regulate railroads, telegraph and telephone companies and other common carriers in this state, creating a railroad commission, constituting the governor, the lieutenant-governor, and the attorney-general a railroad board for the appointment and the removal of the railroad commissioners, prevent the imposition of unreasonable rates, prevent unjust discrimination, insure an adequate railway service, and fixing maximum freight charges," approved March 5, 1907, and amended March 20, 1909, March 27, 1911, March 22, 1915, March 29, 1915, March 12, 14, 27, 1917, and "An act making the railroad commission of Nevada ex officio a public service commission for the regulation and control of certain public utilities, prescribing the manner in which such public utilities shall be regulated and controlled, requiring such public utilities to furnish reasonably adequate service and facilities, prohibiting unjust and unreasonable charges for services rendered by such public utilities, providing penalties for violation of the provisions of this act, authorizing such public service commission to appoint an expert engineer and to employ clerks and assistants, and making an appropriation for carrying out the provisions of this act," approved March 23, 1911, and amended March 25, 1915, March 29, 1915, and March 12, 1915.

Certain acts repealed.

SEC. 45. The act entitled "An act to regulate railroads, telegraph and telephone companies and other common carriers in this state, creating a railroad commission, constituting the governor, the lieutenant-governor, and the attorney-general a railroad board for the appointment and the removal of the railroad commissioners, prevent the imposition of unreasonable rates, prevent unjust discrimination, insure an adequate railway service, and fixing maximum freight charges," approved March 5, 1907, and all acts amendatory or supplemental thereto, and the act entitled "An act making the railroad commission of Nevada ex officio a public service commission for the regulation and control of certain public utilities, prescribing the manner in which such public utilities shall be regulated and controlled, requiring such public utilities to furnish reasonably adequate service and facilities, prohibiting unjust and unreasonable charges for services rendered by such public utilities, providing penalties for violation of the provisions of this act, authorizing such public service commission to appoint an expert engineer and to employ clerks and assistants, and making an appropriation for carrying out the provisions of this act," approved March 23, 1911, and all acts amendatory and supplemental thereto are hereby repealed.

SEC. 46. [Carrying appropriation; omitted.]

An Act regulating the placing, erection, use and maintenance of electric poles, wires, cables and appliances, conferring jurisdiction of this act upon the public service commission of the State of Nevada, authorizing said commission to make and enforce rules and regulations in addition to this act, and providing the punishment for the violation of the provisions of this act.

Approved March 26, 1913, 440

Regulating placing of electric wires.

SECTION 1. No commission, officer, agent or employee of the State of Nevada, or of any city and county or city or county or other political subdivision thereof, and no other person, firm or corporation shall

(a) Run, place, erect, or maintain any wire, cable, or other conductor used to conduct or carry electricity on any pole or on any cross-arm, bracket, or other appliance attached to such pole within a distance of sixteen (16) inches from the center line of said pole; provided, that the foregoing provisions of this paragraph (a) shall be held not to apply to one or two telephone or telegraph cables attached directly to one side of the pole and which are at least six (6) feet, at point of attachment, from any wire, cable or other conductor carrying at any one time more than six hundred (600) volts of electricity; and further provided, that the foregoing provisions shall be held not to apply to telephone, telegraph or other "signal" wires or cables, which are attached to a pole to which is attached no wires or cables other than telephone, telegraph or other "signal" wires; nor shall the foregoing provisions be held to apply to such wires or cables in cases where the same are run from underground and placed vertically on poles, nor to "bridle" or "jumper" wires on any pole which are attached to telephone, telegraph or other "signal" wires on the same pole; nor to any "aerial" cable as between such cable and any pole on which it originates or terminates; nor to transformers placed upon poles, nor to any wire or cable where the same is attached to the top of the pole as between it and the said pole, nor to any "aerial" cable containing telephone, telegraph or other "signal" wires where the same is attached to a pole on which no other wires or cables and wires continuing from said cable are maintained; provided, that electric light or power wires or cables are in no case maintained on the same side of the street or highway on which said "aerial" cable is placed.

(b) Run, place, erect or maintain in the vicinity of any pole (and unattached thereto) within the distance of sixteen (16) inches from the center line of said pole, any wire, cable or other conductor used to conduct or carry electricity, or place, erect or maintain any pole (to which is attached any wire, cable or other conductor used to conduct or carry electricity) within the distance of sixteen (16) inches (measured from the center of such pole) from any wire, cable or other conductor used to conduct or carry electricity; provided, that as between any wire, cable or other conductor and any pole, as in this paragraph (b) named, only the wire, cable or other conductor or pole last in point of time run, placed or erected, shall be held to be run, placed, erected or maintained in violation of the provisions of this paragraph; and further provided, that the provisions of this paragraph (b) shall not be held to apply to telephone, telegraph or other "signal" wires or cables.

distance of four (4) feet from any wire, cable or other conductor which shall conduct or carry at any one time more than six hundred volts of electricity, any wire, cable or other conductor conducting or carrying less than six hundred volts of electricity; and further provided, that wires, cables or other conductors carrying more than six hundred volts of electricity may be placed on the same cross-arm with wires, cables or other conductors carrying less than six hundred volts of electricity, if the space between any wire, cable or other conductor carrying or conducting at one time more than six hundred volts of electricity and any wire, cable or other conductor carrying less than said voltage shall be at least thirty-two (32) inches clear measurement in a horizontal line, and four (4) feet in a vertical direction; provided, that the foregoing provisions of this paragraph (c) shall be held not to apply to any wires, cables or other conductors attached to a transformer, arc or incandescent lamp within a distance of four (4) feet (measured along the line of said wire, cable or other conductor) from the point where such wire, cable or other conductor is attached to such transformer, arc or incandescent lamp, nor to wires, cables or other conductors within buildings or other structures nor to wires, cables or other conductors where the same are run from underground and placed vertically on poles, nor to any "lead" wires or cables between the point where the same are made to leave any pole for the purpose of entering any building or other structure, and the point at which they are made to enter such building or structure, nor to any circuit installed for the purpose of leading off or "bucking" from a circuit where it is impracticable to maintain wires otherwise than in a level position; provided, however, that at all times a clearance of not less than two (2) feet in a vertical direction at point of crossing is maintained between wires, cables or other conductors carrying at any time more than six hundred volts of electricity and wires, cables or other conductors carrying less than six hundred volts of electricity; and provided further, that as between any two wires, cables or other conductors, or any wire, cable or other conductor run, placed, erected or maintained in violation of the provisions of this paragraph (c), only the wire, cable or other conductor last in point of time run, placed, erected or maintained shall be held to be run, placed, erected or maintained thus in violation of said provision.

(d) Run, place, erect or maintain, any wire, cable or other conductor which shall conduct or carry at any one time more than six hundred volts of electricity, without causing each cross-arm, or such other appliance as may be used in lieu thereof, to which such wire, cable or other conductor is attached to be kept at all times painted a bright-yellow color; or, on such cross-arm, or other appliance used in lieu thereof, shall be placed enameled iron signs, providing, in white letters on a green background, the words "High Voltage," and these letters shall not be less than three (3) inches in height, and said signs shall be securely fastened on the face and back of each cross-arm. The provisions of this paragraph (d) shall not be held to apply to cross-arms to which are attached wires, cables or other conductors carrying or conducting more than fifteen thousand (15,000) volts of electricity.

(e) Run, erect, place or maintain any "guy" wire or "guy" cable attached to any pole or appliance to which is attached any wire cable or other conductor used to conduct or carry electricity without causing said "guy" wire or "guy" cable to be effectively insulated at all time at a distance of not less than four (4) feet nor more than eight (8) feet (measured along the line of said wire, cable or other conductor) from the upper end thereof, and at a point not less than eight (8) feet vertically above the ground from the lower end thereof; and provided further, that whenever two or more "guy" wires or "guy" cables are attached to same pole and same anchorage, there shall be at least one (1) foot vertical space between the points of attachment; and further provided, that no insulation shall be required at the lower end of a "guy" wire or "guy" cable where the same is attached to a grounded anchor; and provided further, that where "guy" is attached to a pole or structure of steel or other conducting material, which is thoroughly grounded, no insulation shall be required at any point in said guy; none of the provisions of this paragraph (e) shall be held to apply to "guy" wires or "guy" cables attached to poles carrying no wire, cable or other conductor other than telephone, telegraph or other "signal" wire or cable.

(f) Run, place, or erect, or maintain, vertically on any pole, any wire, cable or other conductor used to conduct or carry electricity, without causing such wire, cable or other conductor to be at all times wholly encased in casing equal in durability and insulating efficiency to a wooden casing not less than one and one-half (1½) inches thick. The provisions of this paragraph (f) shall not be held to apply to vertical telephone, telegraph or other "signal" wires or cables on poles where no other than such wires or cable are maintained.

(g) Place, erect or maintain on any pole, or on any cross-arm or other appliance on said pole, which carries or upon which is placed an electric arc lamp, any transformer for transforming electric currents.

Exceptions to application of act.

SEC. 2. None of the provisions of the preceding section shall be held to apply to "direct-current" electric wires, cables or other conductors having the same polarity, nor to "signal" wires when no more than two (2) of such "signal" wires are attached to any one pole; provided, that none of such "direct-current" or "signal" wires shall in any case be run, placed, erected or maintained within the distance of sixteen (16) inches from the center line of any pole (other than the pole or poles on which said wires, cables or other conductors are carried) carrying electric wires, cables or other conductors; and provided further, that as between any two wires, cables or other conductors, or any wire, cable or other conductor run, placed, erected or maintained in violation of the provisions of this section (2) only the wire, cable or other conductor last in point of time run, placed, erected or maintained shall be held to be run, placed, erected or maintained thus in violation of said provisions.

Further specific regulations.

SEC. 3. No commission, officer, agent or employee of the State of Nevada, or of any city and county or city or county or other political subdivision thereof, and no other person, firm or corporation shall run, place, erect or maintain any "span" wire attached to any wire, cable or other conductor used to conduct or carry electricity, without causing said "span" wire to be at all times effectively insulated between the outer point at which it is in any case fastened to the pole or other structure by which it is hung or supported, and at the point at which it is in any case thus attached; provided, that such insulation shall not in any case be placed less than two (2) feet or more than four (4) feet from said point at which said "span" wire is so attached.

Public service commission to facilitate enforcement.

SEC. 4. The public service commission of the State of Nevada shall do all things necessary and convenient for the enforcement of the provisions of this act, and shall make and prescribe such rules, regulations and course of procedure for the enforcement of the provisions of this act as such commission shall deem necessary and proper, and upon application by any person or persons either in writing or in person, they shall make such further rules and regulations regarding the construction, maintenance and operation of the plants and devices used to generate and distribute electricity in this state, as may appear necessary and reasonable to them, which procedure, rules and regulations shall have the same force and effect as this act; provided, that nothing in this act shall be construed as vesting judicial powers in said commission or as denying to any person, firm, association, municipality, county, town or village the right to test in a court of competent jurisdiction the legality or reasonableness of any final orders made by the commission in the exercise of its duties and powers.

Penalty for violation.

SEC. 5. Any violation of any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed a misdemeanor and shall be punishable upon conviction by a fine of not exceeding five hundred dollars ($500), or by imprisonment in a county jail not exceeding six (6) months, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Each section declared independent.

SEC. 6. Each section of this act and every part of each section are hereby declared to be independent sections and parts of sections, and the holding of any section or part of section to be void or inoperative for any cause shall not be deemed to affect any other section thereof.

Repeal.

SEC. 7. All acts or parts of acts which are in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

In effect, when.

SEC. 8. This act shall take effect six (6) months from the date of its passage in so far as it relates to new work, and a period of five (5) years shall be allowed in which to reconstruct all existing work and construction to comply with the provisions of this act.

An Act prescribing the duties of public service water companies in the matter of furnishing water for fire protection.

Approved March 26, 1913, 387

Must furnish sufficient water.

SECTION 1. Any person, firm, association or corporation, who or which, as a public utility, is now, or may hereafter be, engaged in the business of furnishing for compensation, any city, town, village or hamlet within this state with water for domestic purposes, shall be lawfully bound to furnish said city, town, village or hamlet a reasonably adequate supply of water at reasonable pressure for fire protection and at reasonable rates, all to be fixed and determined by the public service commission of this state.

Must lay and maintain fire mains.

SEC. 2. The duty to furnish a reasonably adequate supply of water provided for in section 1 shall be deemed to include the laying of mains with all necessary connections for the proper delivery of the water for fire protection and also the installing of such appliances as will assure a reasonably sufficient pressure for such purpose.

Public service commission.

SEC. 3. The public service commission of this state shall have full power and authority to fix and determine reasonable rates for the service herein provided for, and to prescribe all installations and appliances fairly adequate for the proper utilization and delivery of water for the purpose named. The said commission shall also have authority to prescribe rules, regulations and practices to be followed by any of the parties mentioned in section 1, in furnishing water for fire protection and shall have complete jurisdiction of all questions arising under the provisions of this act.

Proceedings to conform to provisions of public service act.

SEC. 4. All proceedings under this act shall be in conformity with the provisions of that certain act entitled, "An act making the railroad commission of Nevada ex officio a public service commission for the regulation and control of certain public utilities, prescribing the manner in which such public utilities shall be regulated and controlled, requiring such public utilities to furnish reasonably adequate service and facilities, prohibiting unjust and unreasonable charges for services rendered by such public utilities, providing penalties for violation of the provisions of this act, authorizing such public service commission to appoint an expert engineer and to appoint clerks and assistants, and making an appropriation for carrying out the provisions of this act," approved March 23, 1911. All violations of any order made by the said public service commission under the provisions of this act shall be subject to the penalties for like violations of the provisions of the act, full title of which is in this section above set forth.

Applies to all water companies.

SEC. 5. This act shall be deemed to apply to and govern all public utilities now furnishing water for domestic use unless otherwise expressly provided in the charters, franchises, or permits under which such utilities are acting, and it is specifically provided that all persons, firms, associations or corporations hereafter engaging in the business of a public utility to supply any city, town, village or hamlet with water for domestic uses shall be subject to the provisions of this act, regardless of any conditions to the contrary in any charter, franchise or permit of whatsoever character granted by any county, city, town, village or hamlet within this state, or of any charter, franchise or permit granted by any authority outside the State of Nevada.

RABIES COMMISSION

An Act creating the state rabies commission, prescribing its membership and duties, and making an appropriation for the control and eradication of rabies and noxious animals within the State of Nevada, in cooperation with the biological survey of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Approved March 8, 1917, 54

Commission created—How composed.

SECTION 1. That for the purpose of cooperating with the biological survey of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, for the control and eradication of rabies and noxious animals within the State of Nevada, there is hereby created the state rabies commission, consisting of the governor and four members to be appointed by the governor, one of whom shall be the director of the state veterinary control service, who shall act as secretary of the commission without extra compensation as such, and one each to be appointed from the state board of sheep commissioners, the state board of stock commissioners, and the state board of health. The governor shall be ex officio chairman of said commission. The members of said commission shall serve without salary, but shall be allowed their traveling and living expenses while attending meetings, or otherwise directly engaged in such control or extermination work.

Appropriation.

SEC. 2. For the cooperative support of the work of control and eradication of rabies and noxious animals as aforesaid there is hereby appropriated thirty-five thousand ($35,000) dollars annually for each of the fiscal years 1917 and 1918, from any moneys in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated. For said fiscal years 1917 and 1918 an ad valorem tax of two cents on each one hundred dollars of taxable property in the State of Nevada is hereby levied and directed to be collected upon all such taxable property in the state, including net proceeds of mines, the proceeds of which shall be placed in a special fund in the state treasury for the purpose of meeting the appropriation heretofore provided for in this section. All claims against said fund and appropriation shall be approved by the chairman and secretary of said commission and by said board of examiners.

Duties.

SEC. 3. It shall be the duty of said commission to enter into a definite agreement with said biological survey, prescribing the manner, terms, and conditions of such cooperation, and the amounts which the state and federal government will respectively contribute thereto, for each of said fiscal years, and said commission in its work under the provisions of this act shall be governed by said agreement.

RACING COMMISSION

An Act to regulate the racing of horses in the State of Nevada, and to establish a state racing commission, and to define its powers and duties, and prescribing a penalty for violation thereof.

Approved February 20, 1915, 23

Races permitted under restrictions.

SECTION 1. Any association or corporation formed for the purpose of racing and breeding or improving the breed of horses and conducting races and contests of speed between horses shall have the right and power, subject to the provisions of this act, to hold one or more race meetings in each year and to hold, maintain and conduct horse-races at such meetings. At such meetings the corporation or association or the owners of the horses engaged in such races, or others who are not participants in the racing, may contribute purses, prizes, premiums, or stakes to be contested for, but no person or persons other than the owners of a horse or horses contesting in a race shall have any pecuniary interest in a purse, prize, premium, or stakes contested for in such races or be entitled to or receive any portion thereof after such races shall have been finished; and the whole of such purse, prize, premium, or stakes shall be allotted in accordance with the terms and conditions of such race.

Term of meetings limited.

SEC. 2. Such race meetings shall not exceed thirty days racing, nor shall any meeting be given where bookmaking is allowed, nor shall any person, association, or corporation furnish to poolrooms or their agents any information whatever in regard to racing, or permit to be furnished from any course or premises any such information. Any person, association, or corporation who shall conduct any race meeting contrary to the provisions of this act, or engage in bookmaking on horse-races, or furnish or allow to be furnished any information whatever to poolrooms contrary to this act, are hereby declared to be guilty of a misdemeanor; and any person, association, or corporation acting or aiding them shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail for a period of not less than thirty days nor more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

No Sunday racing.

SEC. 3. No horse-races are authorized or shall be permitted between sunset and sunrise or on Sundays.

Racing commission established; personnel.

SEC. 4. A state racing commission is hereby established to consist of three persons to be appointed by the governor, within twenty days after this law shall be in force. The members of said commission shall hold their offices for a term of four years; provided, that the commissioners first appointed shall determine, by lot, one of themselves to go out of office at the end of each two years. The successor of each commissioner so going out of office shall hold office for the full term of four years.

To appoint secretary—Salary—Biennial report.

SEC. 5. Such commission shall appoint a secretary who shall serve during its pleasure, whose duty it shall be to keep a full and faithful record of its proceedings, and preserve at its general office all books, maps, documents, and papers entrusted to its care, and perform such other duties as the commission shall prescribe. He shall be paid a salary to be fixed by the commission at a rate not exceeding eighteen hundred dollars per annum, which, together with other expenses of the commission, shall be paid by the racing corporations or associations who shall obtain licenses from said commission. The commission shall biennially make a full report to the governor of its proceedings for the two-year period ending with the first day of January preceding the meeting of the legislature, and shall embody therein such suggestions and recommendations as it shall deem desirable.

To prescribe rules—License revoked, when.

SEC. 6. Such commission shall have the power to prescribe the rules, regulations, and conditions under which horse-races shall be conducted in this state, and no races shall be conducted except by an association or corporation duly licensed by said commission as herein provided. Any association or corporation desiring to conduct such racing may apply to the state racing commission for a license so to do. The commission may, in its discretion, grant the same for not to exceed one year, and every such license shall contain a condition that all races or race meetings conducted thereunder shall be subjected to the rules, regulations, and conditions from time to time prescribed by the commission, and shall be revocable by the commission for any violation thereof, or whenever the continuance of such license shall be deemed by the commission not conducive to the interests of legitimate racing. But if said license is refused or revoked said commission shall cause its reasons for so doing to be written in full in the minute-books of said commission, which books shall at all times be open to inspection by any one. The refusal of the commission to grant to any racing association or corporation a license, or to assign a racing association or corporation at least sixty days in each year, if desired, for racing at such place as such association or corporation may desire and the decision of such commission revoking any license of any association or corporation shall be subject to review of the courts of this state.

Unauthorized race meetings prohibited.

SEC. 7. Every race meeting held or conducted, except as allowed by this act, is hereby declared to be a public nuisance, and every person acting or aiding therein shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and punished by a fine of not less than five hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars for each day of such meeting and racing; and a restraining order may issue against any proposed unauthorized race meeting at the suit of the state racing commission.

Certain provisions not to apply.

SEC. 8. The provisions of this act relative to the payment to the said state racing commission of proportionate moneys to pay the expenses of conducting said commission shall not apply to race meetings conducted by any state fair association, agricultural society, county fair, or any other association to which state or county aid is given; and no such state fair association shall hold a race meeting for a period of more than twelve days in any one year; and no such agricultural society, county fair, or other association to which state or county aid is given shall hold a race meeting for a period of more than six days in any one year.

Commission from pari-mutuel betting, how disposed of.

SEC. 9. Any association or corporation conducting horse-racing in the State of Nevada where pari-mutuels may be permitted shall take out such commission from all moneys received from the sale of pari-mutuels as may be prescribed by the state racing commission, not to exceed eight per cent; one-sixth of which shall be paid by said association or corporation daily to the said state racing commission, and shall be paid by said state racing commission to the state treasurer, which money shall be paid said state treasurer and placed in the state highway fund as defined by law, to be used by the department of highways in the building, improvement, and care of the state highways. It is hereby made the duty of the state racing commission, and they are hereby granted the power, to inspect the books of any such association or corporation and to revoke their licenses unless the said books are fully, accurately, and fairly kept. As amended, Stats. 1917, 324.

Unlawful to bribe or influence jockeys—Penalty.

SEC. 10. It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to bribe, influence, or have any understanding or connivance with any jockey, owner, groom, or any one connected with any of the stables, horses, racing, or races at any race meeting, and any one violating this provision shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction shall be imprisoned in the state prison for a period of not less than three years or more than ten years.

RAILROAD COMMISSION

4552. Change in tariff schedule takes effect upon compliance with this section, notwithstanding failure to post notice whenever a change is made as required by subdivision (b); the only effect of such failure being liability by railroad for damages resulting therefrom under Rev. Laws, 4574. Crumley v. Southern Pacific Company, 42 Nev. 337, 340 (117 P. 17, 18).

4549-85. Repealed, Stats. 1919, 215, and the public service commission act, Stats. 1919, 198, ante, substituted.

SCHOOL OF INDUSTRY

An Act establishing a state institution for delinquent boys, providing for the purchase of a site, erection of buildings, organizing the government of said school, and providing for the maintenance thereof, and creating a tax levy to raise funds for such purposes.

Approved March 26, 1913, 384

Establishing school.

SECTION 1. There shall be established in the manner hereinafter provided a state institution to be known as "The Nevada School of Industry."

For delinquent boys—Proviso regarding girls.

SEC. 2. Said school shall be designed and calculated to provide a suitable home for boys committed thereto under the laws of Nevada relating to the care of children who have been adjudged delinquent, and for the moral, industrial and general education of such boys; provided, that the permanent board of government hereinafter created shall be authorized to provide for the care of delinquent children of either sex properly committed thereto, either at this school, or by sending female delinquents to other institutions of a like kind for females, and are authorized to pay the expense of transportation and maintenance of children sent to such other institution out of the fund hereinafter created by this act.

Governor to appoint commission—School in Elko.

SEC. 3. It shall be the duty of the governor of Nevada, on or before the 31st day of March, 1913, to appoint two persons who, together with the governor, shall constitute a commission for the establishment of a school of industry at the town of Elko, Elko County, Nevada, upon a ten-acre site to be deeded to the state without charge; conditioned upon the payment to the commission by the citizens of Elko of the sum of five thousand dollars to assist in the construction of suitable buildings for such home.

Secs. 4, 5, and 6, relating to erection of building, omitted.

Clerk to be appointed.

SEC. 7. Said commission shall have authority to employ a clerk to keep its records and accounts, and to incur such expense as may be necessary for architectural advice, stenographic service, and any other incidental expense as shall be approved as necessary by the commission.

All expenditures published.

SEC. 8. All expenditures made by said commission in the performance of the duties in this act imposed, shall be audited by the state controller, and once every month said auditor shall publish in some newspaper of general circulation in Nevada, an abstract of expenditures to date, up to the time of the completion of said building or buildings.

Who constitute permanent board—Superintendent; salary.

SEC. 9. The permanent board of government of said institution shall consist of the governor of Nevada and four persons to be appointed by him, and removable by a majority vote of the members of the board. The terms of office of such members, other than the governor, shall expire one each year, beginning January 1, 1915, and in the appointments the times of expiration of the first appointees shall be designated in the respective appointments, and thereafter their terms of office shall be four years each. The members of said board shall serve without compensation, but necessary and reasonable expenses incurred by them in the performance of their duties as members of said board shall be paid out of the appropriations made for the maintenance of said school, when approved by the board. They shall appoint a superintendent of the school, whose salary shall be not more than $2,400 per year, payable monthly, and who shall hold office during the pleasure of the board. The board of government is hereby authorized to accept gifts, and in order that the home herein provided for may be prepared as soon as possible, to borrow money at a rate not to exceed 6 per cent, to be repaid from the fund created by this act.

Bond of superintendent.

SEC. 10. The superintendent shall give such bond for the faithful performance of his duties as shall be prescribed from time to time by the board, and shall, subject to the regulations prescribed by the board, be invested with the custody of the lands, buildings and other property belonging to the institution. He shall appoint, subject to the approval of the board, all teachers, officers and employees who shall hold office during his pleasure.

Education and training of inmates.

SEC. 11. The board shall cause to be organized and maintained a department of instruction for the inmates of said school, with a course of study corresponding, so far as practicable, with the course of study in the state public schools and not higher than the high-school courses. They shall adopt a system of government embracing such rules and regulations as are necessary for the guidance of the teachers, officers and employees, for the regulation of the hours of labor and study, for the preservation of order, for the enforcement of discipline, and for the industrial training of the inmates. The ultimate purpose of all such instruction, training, discipline and industries shall be to qualify inmates for profitable and honorable employment and to enable them to lead useful lives after their release from the institution rather than to make said institution self-supporting.

School regulations and rules.

SEC. 12. The rules and regulations of said school and the conduct thereof by said board and said superintendent shall be in strict harmony with and obedience to the laws of the State of Nevada, and the judgments and orders of the district courts of the several judicial districts rendered and made in accordance with the laws of Nevada.

Construction of act—Inmates may receive moderate pay.

SEC. 13. This act shall be construed in conformity with the intent as well as the expressed provisions thereof, and shall confer upon the board authority to do all those lawful acts which it deems necessary to promote the prosperity of the school, and the well-being and education of its inmates, including the organization of trade schools, purchase of materials for use therein, and the doing of all other things, not prohibited, which are required to carry out the purposes of this act. The board is further authorized to pay those committed to said school small weekly or monthly sums in lieu of clothing and other necessary articles, if, in its judgment, such a course would better promote discipline and training; and for this purpose and also to meet small current and incidental expenses the said board is hereby authorized to place in the hands of the superintendent of this industrial school, through requisitions approved by the state board of examiners and issued and paid by warrants as provided herein, sums of money, not to exceed five hundred dollars at any one time; provided, that the superintendent shall make a complete financial report each month to the board of trustees of all moneys handled by him.

Method of commitment.

SEC. 14. When the premises are ready for occupancy, the governor shall make due proclamation thereof. Thereafter it shall be lawful for the courts to commit to said institution those boys whom they have found to be delinquents as provided by law, and when any commitment is thus issued under the provisions of this act the child thus committed, together with the warrant of the judge and the order of commitment, shall be delivered to the sheriff of the county and by him to the superintendent of the Nevada school of industry, who shall convey or cause to be conveyed under his order said child to the Nevada school of industry. As amended, Stats. 1919, 52.

SEC. 15. [Imposing tax for 1913 and 1914; omitted.]

SHEEP COMMISSION

4586-4602. Repealed, Stats. 1919, 145, and the following act (Stats. 1919, 134) substituted:

Stats. 1915, 294, 371, repealed, Stats. 1919, 145.

BOARD OF SHEEP COMMISSIONERS

An Act regulating the sheep industry in the State of Nevada, creating a state board of sheep commissioners, defining their powers and duties, prescribing their compensation, and providing penalties for the violation hereof.

Approved March 25, 1919, 134

Board created.

SECTION 1. That a state board of sheep commissioners be and the same is hereby created.

Number of members—Bonds—Salaries—Meetings.

SEC. 2. The state board of sheep commissioners, hereinafter called the board, shall consist of three (3) members, all of whom shall be experienced wool-growers, and no two of whom shall be from the same county, said members to be appointed by the governor, and to hold their office for four years, and until their successors are duly appointed and qualified. Each of said commissioners, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall take and subscribe to the constitutional oath of office and enter into a bond with sufficient surety or sureties in the penal sum of twenty-five hundred dollars ($2,500), payable to the State of Nevada, and conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, which bond shall be approved by the governor, and filed in the office of secretary of state. The members of the board shall each receive for their services five hundred dollars ($500) per annum and actual transportation expenses while in discharge of their duties. Said salaries and compensation shall be paid from the state treasury in the same manner as the salary of state officers. Each member of said board shall be a qualified elector of the county from which he is chosen, and must reside during his term of office within the state. Said board must hold their meetings annually, and oftener if so requested by any member of the board.

Duties of board.

SEC. 3. The board shall elect one of its members president. The said board is empowered to make rules and regulations for governing itself, and such rules and regulations as it may deem necessary for the enforcement of the provisions of this act, and shall have exclusive control of all matters pertaining to the sheep industry. It shall be empowered to make and enforce rules and regulations for the quarantining, dipping, or any other treatment of sheep which may be infected, affected, or infested with scabies, ticks, lice, or any other parasites detrimental or injurious to sheep, or any infectious or contagious disease of sheep, and for the speedy and effective suppression and extirpation of infectious or contagious diseases, scabies, ticks, lice, or other parasites detrimental to sheep, as are not in conflict with the provisions of this act.

The board is authorized to appoint an inspector in charge, whose duties and powers shall be defined and prescribed by said board, which said officer, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall execute and file a bond in the sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000), payable to the State of Nevada, for the faithful performance of his duties, with and to be approved by the board. The inspector in charge shall receive such compensation as may be allowed by said board and actual and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of his duties. The inspector in charge shall be at all times subject to the authority of the board and shall have the same powers hereinafter provided for all other inspectors appointed by the board under this act.

The board shall appoint a secretary, prescribe his duties, and fix his salary, which shall not exceed seven hundred and fifty dollars ($750) per annum. The board shall maintain an office at some point within this state to be determined by the board. The maintenance of such office and the secretary's salary shall be paid from the state treasury in the same manner as the salary and expenses of state officers. The board shall fix the rate of tax to be levied, as provided for in section four of this act, and shall send notice of the same to the county commissioners of the several counties of the state on or before the first day of August of each year. The board shall audit all bills of salaries and expenses incurred in the enforcement of this act that may be payable from the sheep inspection fund, which shall be audited, allowed and paid as other claims against the state. The board shall make an annual report in writing to the governor on or before the thirtieth (30th) day of November in each year, giving a statement of the transactions of the board, and facts relating to the condition of the sheep industry in this state.

The board shall have power to order an inspection or quarantine of any sheep in the State of Nevada, compel dipping or other treatment of sheep at such times and as often as it deems necessary to insure the suppression or eradication of scabies, ticks, lice or other parasites detrimental to sheep, or any infectious or contagious disease of sheep, and divide the state into such districts as may be necessary for the enforcement of this act, which said districts shall be under the supervision of one of the commissioners.

The board shall have the power to quarantine and compel the cleaning and disinfecting of any shearing or dipping corrals or places where sheep are handled, and when owners or persons in charge of such corrals or places fail or refuse to clean or disinfect such corrals or places the board shall have power to order the inspector to take charge of such corral or place and clean and disinfect it, the expense of which shall be paid by the owner or person in charge, and shall be a lien on such corral or place until the expense is paid.

All orders, rules or regulations made by the board must be published at least twice in some newspaper having general circulation in the state, which shall constitute legal notice upon all owners of sheep and other persons of the order made.

Annual tax.

SEC. 4. The board of county commissioners, at the time of the annual levy of taxes, must, at the request of the board, levy the rate of tax recommended by the board, not to exceed six (6) mills on the dollar, on all sheep assessed in their respective counties, according to the assessed valuation of the same, the said tax to be collected as other taxes and paid to the state treasurer, who must keep the same in a separate fund to be known as the sheep inspection fund.

Duties of county officers.

SEC. 5. The county assessor must, on or before the first Monday in September of each year, prepare from the assessment book of such year, as corrected by the board of county commissioners, a statement showing the total number of all sheep assessed and the value of the same. And the county treasurer must notify the state board of sheep commissioners of all moneys forwarded to the state treasury belonging to the state sheep inspection fund at the time said moneys are forwarded to the state treasury. Also make final report to said board at the time he makes settlement with the state controller.

Duties of board.

SEC. 6. The board shall have charge of the enforcement of the provisions of this act, and of all rules and regulations made and adopted by it. The board shall appoint such inspectors as may be necessary, and said inspectors, before entering upon the duties of their office, shall file a bond in the sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000), payable to the state, for the faithful performance of their duties, with and to be approved by the board. Such inspectors shall receive five dollars ($5) per diem, and actual and necessary transportation expenses incurred in the performance of their duty, to be paid from the sheep inspection fund. The board and each inspector must keep a book, to be known as the inspection record, in which they must enter their official acts. Such record must show the name of the owner of every flock of sheep inspected, and the time when and the place where the same was inspected. Inspectors shall have the right at all times to enter any premises, farms, fields, pens, slaughter-houses, buildings, cars, or railroad cars, where any sheep are quartered, for the purpose of examining them, for the purpose of determining whether they are infected with any infectious or contagious disease. All inspectors and their deputies shall have the same powers and authority of peace officers. The board shall have the power to order an inspector to quarantine any corral, pens, slaughter-house, buildings, cars, and railroad cars where sheep may have been handled, and compel the cleaning and disinfecting of the same, when deemed necessary for the purposes of this act. Where owners or persons in charge of such places, corrals, pens, slaughter-houses, buildings, cars, and railroad cars refuse to clean and disinfect them, the inspector shall have the right to take charge of such places, corrals, pens, slaughter-houses, buildings, cars, and railroad cars, and cause the same to be cleaned and disinfected, the expense of which must be paid by the owner or person in charge, and shall be a lien upon such premises, corrals, pens, slaughter-houses, buildings, cars, etc., until such expense is paid.

Inspectors to report.

SEC. 7. Inspectors shall report to the board in writing as often and at such times as may be requested by the board.

Duties of inspectors.

SEC. 8. Each inspector must inspect all the sheep within the district assigned to him, when so ordered by the board, and must make and issue certificate or bill of health for all sheep whose owners have complied with the law and the orders, rules and regulations made and adopted by the board, describing the sheep with the marks and brands thereon, which shall entitle the owner or agent in charge to pass with such sheep from one district to another in the state. The inspector shall immediately file with the board a duplicate of all certificates issued by him. The term "sheep" shall include goats, lambs, and kids.

Diseased sheep destroyed, when—Proviso.

SEC. 9. When sheep become infected with foot-and-mouth disease, or any incurable, infectious, or malignant disease, said board has the authority, if necessary, to order such diseased sheep destroyed; provided, in case said board orders sheep killed, it shall pay to the owner thereof, out of any funds it has on hand, one-half the market price of said sheep; provided, further, said board shall not at any time pay more than four ($4) dollars the head for any one such sheep so killed or destroyed.

Bounties for killing noxious animals.

SEC. 10. The board is authorized and empowered to offer and pay bounties out of its funds for the killing and destruction of the following-named animals, killed in the State of Nevada, to wit: For each coyote or coyote pup, seventy-five (75c) cents; for each wildcat or lynx, seventy-five (75c) cents; and for each mountain lion, five ($5) dollars. Any person killing any of the aforesaid animals in order to obtain the bounty provided for herein shall, within ninety (90) days of the date of the killing, present or cause to be presented by his duly authorized agent, to the county clerk of the county in which said animal or animals have been killed, the entire skin of each of said animal or animals, which skin includes and must have attached thereto all four of the paws, or feet, the tail, and the skin of the head, eye-holes, and the skin to tip of nose; and shall at the same time make and file with the said county clerk an affidavit, which said affidavit shall state: first, the kind of animal or animals from which said skin or skins were taken and the number of skins presented; second, that the county in which said animal or animals were killed is the county in which their skins are presented for payment of a bounty; third, that said animal or animals from which said skins were taken were not bought or received, dead or alive, from any other county or state; fourth, that said animals were killed within ninety (90) days from the date of making such affidavit; fifth, that said animal or animals were killed in such county, and in the State of Nevada; and, sixth, that the same were not fostered or whelped in captivity prior to the killing thereof. The said county clerk may, if he deems it advisable, require of such applicant for bounty such other corroborative testimony as to him seems proper concerning the truth set forth in such affidavit; provided, that when in doubt as to the kind of skin or skins presented, the order shall be issued for the lesser bounty. The county clerk shall cut off the four (4) paws or feet at the knee, and also cut off the ears and scalp and destroy them. The said clerk shall then certify to the said board that he received the said hides, that the required affidavit or affidavits have been made, and that he has destroyed the four feet, scalp, and ears in conformity with law, and also certify the name of the animals killed, the number, where killed, and by whom, and the bounty due. The board shall forthwith remit the bounty due to the party presented.

Inspector to act, when.

SEC. 11. Whenever upon examination by a sheep inspector any flock of sheep kept or herded in the State of Nevada shall be found to be infected with scabies, or any infectious or contagious disease, or to have been exposed in any manner to such scabies or disease, the inspector shall at once establish regulations for their quarantine, which shall define the place and limits within which such sheep may be grazed, herded, or driven. Said inspector shall forthwith notify the owner or person in charge of said sheep, in writing, of the fact that the said sheep are affected or diseased, and shall thereupon take charge of and treat said sheep for dipping or other treatment as the case may require. That in case of scabies, within a period of not less than ten days nor more than fourteen days immediately succeeding said first dipping or treatment, the inspector shall again dip said sheep. The said inspector shall also keep such flock of sheep so infected or diseased with scabies or any infectious or contagious disease from contact with other sheep by such means as he may specify, and until such time as the inspector is satisfied of the complete eradication of such scabies or infectious or contagious disease, at which time said inspector shall issue, in writing, a permit or certificate to the owner or person in charge of said sheep, releasing said sheep from quarantine. Said inspector shall have the power to give such notice, as in his judgment the conditions in each case may require, that said sheep are quarantined within certain limits to be by him fixed and specified, and that such other sheep owners or persons in charge shall not enter within the limits prescribed as quarantined with their flocks of sheep until further notice. Should any flock of sheep free of scabies or any infectious or contagious disease enter or intrude upon any lands and corrals or places embraced within the limits set apart for such quarantine, or upon any land, corral, or place where infected, diseased, or exposed sheep have been, then such sheep or flock of sheep shall be subject to the same regulations and treatment as sheep infected with scabies, or infectious or contagious diseases detrimental to sheep; provided, however, that the board shall establish rules and regulations for the quarantining of sheep which, so far as is practicable and reasonable, shall be of general application; and provided further, that all regulations established or specified by said inspector, as aforesaid, shall be subject to change or modification by the board.

Where sheep must be dipped in the immediate vicinity of said quarantine and no preparations have been made upon the part of the owner or owners thereof, or the person in charge, to provide suitable dipping works, within fourteen days after the owner or person in charge of said sheep has been notified that said sheep are infected or diseased, the inspector is authorized to prepare such dipping works as may be necessary, at the expense of the owner of said sheep. If the said sheep cannot subsist upon range forage until they have been treated, the inspector shall then provide feed at the owner's expense. All expenses for so doing, including the expenses for treating sheep, shall become and be a lien upon the said sheep until the same is paid; provided, however, that no person, company or corporation shall be required to dip a flock of ewes thirty days before lambing, or ewes with lambs under ten days old, but all such ewes or ewes with lambs infected with scabies or any infectious or contagious disease, or that have in any manner been exposed to any such infection or diseases, must be held in quarantine and kept separate from sheep that are free from scabies or any infectious or contagious disease.

It shall be the duty of the inspector to require the owner or owners, or person in charge of such ewes while held in quarantine during the above period of exemption, to spot and hand-dress all sheep in the flock that show scabies or any infectious or contagious disease, with some of the dips or treatment recognized or specified by the board; and the inspector shall have power to enforce spotting or hand-dressing during the periods of exemption above referred to, the same as he has power to enforce dipping at any other period of the year. All sheep which are kept or herded within the limits of the State of Nevada shall, between the fifteenth day of April and the first day of November of each year, be dipped under the supervision of an authorized sheep inspector in one of the dips which have been recommended by the board; the said dip to be specified by the board and to be of a strength sufficient to eradicate scabies, ticks or lice.

The board is hereby authorized and empowered to take charge of and dip, as soon as possible after the first day of November of each year, all sheep kept or herded within the limits of the State of Nevada not previously dipped within the period required by this section and the expenses for so doing shall be paid by the owner of said sheep and the same shall become and be a lien upon such sheep until paid.

The board is hereby authorized and empowered to make such rules and regulations as they deem necessary relative to the administration of this section.

Any person, firm, or corporation, or any servant, agent, or employee thereof, who is the owner or in charge or control of any sheep, who shall wilfully violate any provisions of this section, or disregard any order or direction made by the board or inspector, in accordance therewith, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished as provided in section 26 of this act.

Proclamation by governor, when.

SEC. 12. Whenever the governor of the state shall have good reason to believe that any disease covered by this enactment has become epidemic in a certain locality in any other state or territory, or that conditions exist that render sheep liable to convey disease, or whenever the board shall certify to the governor that conditions exist that render sheep likely to convey disease, the governor shall forthwith, by proclamation, schedule such locality or localities and prohibit the importation from them of any sheep into this state until such time as the said proclamation shall be raised or modified by the governor. Any person, company, or corporation, or any agent, servant, or employee thereof, who after the publication of such proclamation shall knowingly receive in charge any sheep from any of the prohibited districts, or transport, convey, or drive the same within the boundaries of any county of this state, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished as provided in section 26 of this act; provided, that nothing herein contained shall prohibit the transportation of sheep from such district through the state by railroad, provided such sheep are not unloaded within the state.

Unlawful to import diseased sheep.

SEC. 13. It shall be unlawful for any person, company, or corporation, or any agent, servant or employee thereof, to bring into this state any sheep infected with scabies or any infectious or contagious disease, or that have in any manner been exposed to such disease. Any person, company or corporation, or any agent, servant, or employee thereof, violating the provisions of this section, shall be punished as provided in section 26 of this act.

Importer of sheep must notify board.

SEC. 14. Any person, company or corporation, or any agent, servant or employee thereof, intending to bring or cause to be brought from any other state or territory, the District of Columbia, or any foreign country, any sheep or bucks into the State of Nevada in any manner, except by shipping the same through the state by railroad shall, ten days before crossing the state line, notify the board at its office of such proposed action, which notice shall set forth the place and date of entry into the state, the number of sheep or bucks, the brands or marks thereon, the name of the owner or owners thereof, the locality from which said sheep came and through which they have been driven; provided, however, that sheep or bucks trailing into the state from adjoining states for immediate interstate shipments, and sheep and bucks grazing along and across the state lines, and sheep shipped from any part of this state to feed-yards in any other part of the state, when shipment is made by interstate route, shall be governed by the rules and regulations of the board. If any person, company or corporation, or any agent, servant or employee thereof, shall be guilty of a violation of the provisions of this section, the said person, company or corporation, or any agent, servant or employee thereof, shall upon conviction thereof be punished as provided in section 26 of this act.

Imported sheep to be dipped twice.

SEC. 15. All sheep or bucks imported to Nevada from any state, territory, or District of Columbia, or from any foreign country, shall, upon entering the state, irrespective of the time of such entry, be dipped twice under the supervision of an inspector of the board, the first dipping to be performed within ten days after the said sheep or bucks arrive in the state, and within a period of not less than ten days or more than fourteen days after the said first dipping the said sheep or bucks shall again be dipped; and after the said second dipping, if the said sheep or bucks are free of disease, they shall be released and shall thereupon become subject to the laws, rules, and regulations governing other sheep in the state; provided, however, that the board may make reasonable rules and regulations, under which sheep and bucks free from disease may enter the state without dipping, or by being dipped only once. The board is hereby authorized to take charge of and dip as soon as possible any sheep and bucks imported into the State of Nevada not previously dipped within the period required by this section, and the expenses for so doing shall be paid by the owner of said sheep or bucks and the same shall become a lien upon such sheep or bucks until paid. Any person, firm, or corporation, or any servant, agent, or employee thereof, who is the owner or in charge or control of any sheep or bucks imported into the State of Nevada, violating the provisions of this section, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished as provided for in section 26 of this act.

Inspector to file vouchers.

SEC. 16. Whenever any inspector files in the office of the state controller proper vouchers, duly approved by the board, setting forth:

1. The name of such inspector;
2. The kind and nature of service rendered;
3. The particular locality where the work was done;
4. The length of time employed;
5. The number of sheep inspected and the name of the owner or person in charge of such sheep;
6. The disease or diseases treated, and the length of time of such treatment;
7. The amount claimed for such services;

then and in such case, the state controller must draw a warrant in favor of such inspector, payable out of the moneys in the sheep inspection fund.

Sheep in transit not to be unloaded—Exception.

SEC. 17. Any sheep in transit through this state upon any railroad train shall not be unloaded from such train for any purpose except for feeding or water, and shall be held in the feed-yards or in grazing grounds that may be provided by the railroad company carrying the said sheep, and shall not be allowed to leave the same. All expenses of enforcing the provisions of this section shall be paid by the owner or owners of said sheep, and the same shall become a lien upon such sheep until paid. Any person, company, or corporation, or any agent, servant, or employee of such, who shall be guilty of a violation of the provisions of this section, shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished as provided by section 26 of this act.

Diseased sheep moved for treatment, how.

SEC. 18. Any person, company, corporation, or association, or any agent, servant, or employee of such, desiring to move his or their sheep which are not sound, or which are infected with scabies or any infectious or contagious disease, or which have been exposed in any manner to any such infection or disease, shall obtain from the commissioner of the district a traveling permit, but such permit shall only be granted for the purpose of moving said sheep to the nearest practicable place where they may be treated for said infection or disease, and by such routes as such commissioner shall designate. No such sheep shall be moved until such permit shall have been obtained. Any person, company, corporation, or association, or agent, servant, or employee of such, who shall violate the provisions of this section, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof be punished as provided in section 26 of this act; provided, that the board may, by regulations, authorize the inspector to issue said traveling permits.

Infection must be reported promptly.

SEC. 19. It shall be the duty of every person, company, corporation, or any agent, servant, or employee thereof, owning or having under their control any sheep or flocks of sheep in the State of Nevada which have become infected with scabies, or any infectious or contagious disease, or which have been exposed in any manner to such infection or diseases, to forthwith report such facts, in writing, to the sheep inspector of the district in which the sheep are located, or to the board, and if any person, company, or corporation, or any agent, servant, or employee thereof, shall fail, neglect, omit, or refuse to so report such facts for a period of fifteen days said person shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof be punished as provided in section 26 of this act.

Who deemed owners.

SEC. 20. In any action or proceedings, civil or criminal, arising under this enactment, all persons having an interest in sheep and controlling the same, concerning which such an action or proceeding is had, shall be deemed the owners of such sheep, and shall be liable severally and jointly for a violation of this enactment. Any herder or other person in charge of sheep who shall wilfully refuse to give an inspector information as to the condition of sheep in his charge, or shall wilfully give false information as to the condition of said sheep, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished as provided in section 26 of this act.

Special legal aid, when.

SEC. 21. Whenever the board shall deem it necessary they may employ special attorneys to assist in the prosecution of violations or violators of any of the foregoing sections, and also may employ attorneys for such other purposes as the board may deem necessary, such services to be paid out of any moneys in the sheep inspection fund in the state treasury.

U. S. regulations accepted.

SEC. 22. The board is hereby authorized to accept, on behalf of the state, the rules and regulations prepared by the secretary of agriculture of the United States under and in pursuance of section numbered 3 of an act of Congress, approved May 29, 1884, "An act for the establishment of the bureau of animal industry, to prevent the exportation of diseased cattle, and to provide means for the suppression and extirpation of pleuropneumonia and other contagious diseases among domestic animals," and to cooperate with the authorities of the United States in the enforcement of the provisions of said act; provided, however, that all action taken by the employees of the United States while acting under the provisions of this chapter as state inspectors of sheep and bucks shall be exercised under the joint supervision of the board and the chief of the bureau of animal industry.

U. S. employees recognized.

SEC. 23. The board is authorized to give its consent that the bureau of animal industry of the United States and its employees shall come within the State of Nevada for the purposes connected with the exportation of diseased sheep, and for the suppression and extirpation of pleuropneumonia and other contagious and infectious diseases among sheep.

Federal authorities may call peace officers.

SEC. 24. All federal authorities authorized as aforesaid, and the various inspectors of this state, shall, subject to the approval of the board, have the power to call upon any constable, sheriff, or other peace officer in any county in this state to assist them in the discharge of their duties in carrying out the provisions of this act, and the act of Congress aforesaid, and it is hereby made the duty of said officers to assist them when so requested, and the said federal inspectors shall have the same power to enforce the laws of this state as the various inspectors of the state when authorized as aforesaid and engaged in the discharge of their official duties; provided, that any person, company, or corporation refusing to comply with the orders of such officer or federal inspector shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished as provided in section 26 of this act.

Salaries, expenses and maintenance, how paid.

SEC. 25. The salaries, expenses, and maintenance of the Nevada state sheep commission, not heretofore provided for in this act, shall be paid out of the sheep inspection fund.

Penalties and punishment.

SEC. 26. Any person, company, corporation or association, or any agent, servant or employee of such, who shall violate or disregard any quarantine provision of this act, or any sanitary or quarantine rule, regulation or order of the board, or inspector thereof, or any of the foregoing provisions, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof be punished by imprisonment in a county jail for a term of not to exceed more than one year, or by fine of not more than one thousand dollars, or both. For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act each member of the board, and the secretary of said board, is authorized to subpoena and examine witnesses and to administer oaths for the purpose of soliciting information to be used in enforcing the provisions hereof, and in the furtherance of the quarantine, sanitary and other regulations.

Liens, how foreclosed.

SEC. 27. All liens provided for in this act shall be foreclosed in the manner provided by chapter 60 of the civil practice act; provided, that the judgment therein shall also allow reasonable attorneys' fees, to be fixed by the court.

Premises seized, when.

SEC. 28. Whenever it shall be necessary in the enforcement of the provisions of this act for the board, or any of its inspectors, to take charge of any sheep, corral, building or other place, demand therefor shall be made upon the owners or person in charge thereof; in event of refusal of said owner or person in charge of said sheep, corral, building, or place, said board or any inspector may have said sheep, corral, building or place seized and held by writ of attachment to issue in the same manner provided by the general laws of the State of Nevada; provided, that the action shall be brought in the name of the State of Nevada, and no bond on attachment shall be required.

Breaking quarantine defined.

SEC. 29. Breaking quarantine shall mean the taking of any sheep or allowing any sheep quarantined by the board or inspector to go within or without any building, corral, premises or range quarantined by the board or inspector, or the taking any free sheep within any building, corral, premises or range quarantined by the board or inspector.

Repeal of former act.

SEC. 30. An act entitled "An act regulating the sheep industry in the State of Nevada, creating a state board of sheep commissioners, defining their duties, and prescribing their compensation," approved March 26, 1907; all acts amendatory thereof; and all acts or parts of acts in conflict with the provisions of this act, are hereby repealed.

SEC. 31. The sheep inspection fund, created and existing under and by virtue of an act entitled "An act regulating the sheep industry in the State of Nevada, creating a state board of sheep commissioners, defining their duties and prescribing their compensation, approved March 26, 1907," shall be transferred to the sheep inspection fund, created under and by virtue of the provisions of this act. The state board of sheep commissioners, created under and by virtue of the said act, shall hold office under the provisions of this act until their successors are appointed as herein provided.

BOARD OF STOCK COMMISSIONERS

An Act relating to cattle, horses, and hogs, and regulating such stock, creating a state board of stock commissioners, defining their duties, and matters properly relating thereto.

Approved March 26, 1915, 396

Board created.

SECTION 1. The state board of stock commissioners is hereby created.

How composed—Oath—Bond—Salary—Meetings—Terms.

SEC. 2. The state board of stock commissioners, hereinafter called the board, shall consist of three (3) members, all of whom shall be experienced stockmen, no two of whom shall be from the same county, said members to be appointed by the governor, and to hold office for four years, and until their successors are duly appointed and qualified, except as herein provided. Each of said commissioners, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall take and subscribe to the constitutional oath of office and enter into a bond with at least two sureties in the penal sum of twenty-five hundred dollars ($2,500), payable to the State of Nevada, and conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, which bond shall be approved by the governor, and filed in the office of secretary of state. The members of the board shall each receive for their services three hundred dollars ($300) per annum and actual transportation expenses while in discharge of their duties. Said salary and expenses shall be paid from the state treasury. Each member of said board shall be a qualified elector of the county from which he is chosen, and must reside during his term of office within the state. Said board must hold meetings quarterly, and oftener if requested by any member of the board; provided, that upon the termination of the term of office of the persons now constituting said board, that the governor shall appoint three persons as members of said board, the terms of such appointments and the appointees to serve on said board for the period of two, three, and four years, respectively, as indicated in the appointments; that thereafter the members shall be appointed and serve for a term of four years as herein provided. As amended, Stats. 1919, 41.

Officers—Powers and duties.

SEC. 3. Subdivision A. The board shall elect one of its members president, and is empowered to make rules and regulations for governing itself, and for the enforcement of the provisions of this act, and shall have control of all matters pertaining to the cattle, horse, and hog industry. It may, in conjunction with the state quarantine officer, adopt on behalf of the state rules and regulations of the United States bureau of animal industry relating to the control and suppression of disease in said stock, and to cooperate with the officers of said bureau in the enforcement of such rules and regulations. The board is granted and has full authority and power for the inspection, quarantine, and condemnation of cattle, horses and hogs affected with any infectious or contagious diseases, and is authorized and empowered to enter upon any ground or premises of this state for the purpose of enforcing the inspection, quarantine and condemnation laws of this state. The board is authorized to give the state quarantine officer, or his representatives or his agents, duly approved by the board, or any other person or persons, full authority and power for the inspection, quarantine, and condemnation of cattle, horses, or hogs affected with any infectious or contagious disease, and is authorized and empowered to enter upon any ground or premises of this state for the purpose of enforcing the inspection, quarantine and condemnation laws and all the rules, regulations, and orders of this board.

Subdivision B. The board may make, execute, and enforce such rules, regulations, and other measures as it considers necessary for the control and eradication of infectious or contagious diseases of the animals under its jurisdiction which constitute a menace to the health of live stock or human beings within the state; provided, said rules, regulations, and other measures shall be approved by the state quarantine officer before becoming effective. Upon recommendation of the state quarantine officer the board may order and have destroyed any animals or animal under its jurisdiction infected with or exposed to any infectious or contagious disease a menace to other stock or human beings.

The board shall, out of the funds at its disposal, compensate the owner or owners of any stock so destroyed either separately or jointly with any county or municipality of the state or the bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture, the amount of such compensation to be determined by appraisal before the affected stock is destroyed, this appraisal to be made by the state quarantine officer or a properly qualified agent designated by him and the owner or owners or their authorized representative. In the event of their failure to arrive at an agreement, the two so selected shall designate some disinterested party, who by reason of experience in such matters is a qualified judge of livestock values, to act with them. The judgment of any two of these appraisers shall be binding and final upon all parties; provided, that the total amount received by the owner or owners of stock so destroyed, including compensation paid by the board, any county or municipality or the bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture, or any livestock insurance company, the salvage received from the sale of hides or carcasses or any other source, combined, shall not exceed 75 per cent of the actual appraised value of the destroyed stock, due allowance being made in such appraisement for their reduced value, owing to disease; provided further, that any individual or corporation purchasing any live stock which was at the time of purchase under quarantine by any state, county or municipal authorities or the bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture legally empowered to lay such quarantine, or who purchases any which due diligence and caution would have shown to be diseased or which have been shipped or transported in violation of the rules and regulations of the bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture, or the State of Nevada, shall not be entitled to compensation and the board may order their destruction without making any compensation to the owner; and provided further, no payment shall be made hereunder as compensation for or on account of any such animal destroyed if at the time of inspection or test of such animal or at the time of the ordered destruction thereof, it shall belong to or be upon the premises of any person, firm, or corporation to which it has been sold, shipped, or delivered for the purpose of being slaughtered; and provided further, that in no case shall any payment hereunder be more than $75 for any grade animal or more than $200 for any pure-bred animal, and no payment shall be made unless the owner has complied with all quarantine rules and regulations of the board.

Subdivision C. The board shall have power to order the state quarantine officer to have inspected or quarantined any stock in the state infected with, suspected of being or which have been exposed to a contagious or infectious disease a menace to human beings or other live stock, compel treatment at such times and as often as he deems necessary to insure the suppression of disease. The board may divide the state into such districts as may be necessary for the enforcement of this act. The state quarantine officer shall, upon direction of the board, quarantine and compel the cleaning and disinfection of any corrals or place where stock is handled, and when owners or persons in charge of such corrals fail or refuse to clean and disinfect such places or corrals the board shall have the power to clean and disinfect them, the expense of which shall be paid by the owner or person in charge, and shall be a lien on such place or corral until the expense is paid. All general orders, rules, or regulations made as herein provided and applying to the entire state, a county or a district, must be published at least twice in some newspaper having general circulation in the county or district affected by the order, which shall constitute a legal notice of the order made upon all stockmen owning or having in charge cattle, horses, or hogs.

Subdivision D. The board shall maintain an office at some point within this state to be determined by the board. The cost of maintenance of such office shall be paid from the state treasury in the same manner as the salaries and expenses of state officers are paid.

Subdivision E. The board may appoint an executive officer to exercise and enforce all rules and regulations of the board and the provisions of this act when the board is not in session; provided, said executive officer, when an emergency demands and the board is not in session, may exercise all the powers and functions of the board. Such executive officer shall be one of the members of the board or the state quarantine officer.

Subdivision F. The board shall fix the rate of tax to be levied, as provided for in section four of this act, at any regular or special meeting of the board, and shall send notice of the same to the county commissioners of the several counties of the state on or before the first day of March of each year. The board shall audit all bills of salaries and expenses incurred in the enforcement of this act that may be payable from the stock inspection fund, and, if found correct, shall certify the same to the state controller, who shall draw a warrant on the state treasury in favor of the parties entitled thereto. The board shall make a report in writing to the governor on or before the 15th day of January, biennially, giving a statement of the transactions of the board, the facts relating to the condition of the stock industry of this state, and the state printer shall print said report for distribution by the board the same as similar reports, and without charge. As amended, Stats. 1919, 42.

Tax for stock inspection fund.

SEC. 4. The board of county commissioners, at the time of the annual levy of taxes, must, at the request of the board, levy the rate of tax recommended by the board, not to exceed six (6) mills on the dollar per annum, on all cattle, horses, and hogs assessed in their respective counties, according to the assessed valuation of the same, the said tax to be collected as other taxes, and paid to the state treasurer, who must keep the same in a separate fund to be known as the stock inspection fund.

The board may invest any surplus or reserve money in said fund in United States, state, or county bonds of Nevada, such bonds to bear interest at a rate of not less than four per cent (4%) per annum; the state treasurer may, with the approval of the state board of examiners, deposit all reserve funds not so invested with banking corporations of the State of Nevada, upon the filing of approved securities, at a rate of interest of not less than three per cent (3%) per annum. All revenue derived from interest on such funds and bonds to be collected by the state treasurer and deposited in the stock inspection fund account. As amended, Stats. 1919, 45.

Duties of county officers.

SEC. 5. The county assessor must, on or before the first Monday in September of each year, prepare from the assessment book of such year, as corrected by the board of county commissioners, a statement showing the total number of all said stock assessed, and the value of same. And the county treasurer must notify the state board of stock commissioners of all moneys forwarded to the state treasury belonging to the state stock inspection fund at the time said moneys are forwarded to the state treasury. Also make final report to said board at the time he makes settlement with the state controller.

Board to enforce act—Stock inspectors—Inspection record.

SEC. 6. The board shall have charge of the enforcement of the provisions of this act, and of the rules and regulations made as herein provided. The board shall appoint such inspectors as may be necessary, and said inspectors, before entering upon the duties of their office, shall file a bond in the sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000), payable to the state, for the faithful performance of their duties, with and to be approved by the board. Such inspectors shall be paid from the stock inspection fund. The board and each inspector must keep a book, to be known as the inspection record, in which they must enter their official acts. Such record must show the name of the owner of all horses, cattle, and hogs inspected, and the time when and place where the same were inspected. Inspectors shall have the right at all times to enter any premises, farms, fields, pens, slaughter-houses, buildings, or cars, where any of said stock are quartered, for the purpose of examining them, in order to determine whether they are affected with any infectious or contagious disease. All inspectors and their deputies shall have the same powers and authority of peace officers. The board shall have the power to order an inspector to quarantine any corral, pens, slaughter-houses, buildings and cars where stock may have been handled, and compel the cleaning and disinfecting of the same when deemed necessary for the purposes of this act. Where owners or persons in charge of such places refuse to clean and disinfect them, the inspector shall have the right to take charge of such places, and cause the same to be cleaned and disinfected, the expense of which must be paid by the owner or person in charge, and shall be a lien upon such premises, corrals, pens, slaughter-houses, buildings, cars, etc., until such expense is paid.

Bounties for killing certain animals.

SEC. 6A. The board is authorized and empowered to offer and pay bounties out of its funds for the killing and destruction of the following-named animals, killed in the State of Nevada, to wit: For each coyote or coyote pup, seventy-five (75c) cents, for each wildcat or lynx, seventy-five (75c) cents, and for each mountain lion, five ($5) dollars. Any person killing any of the aforesaid animals in order to obtain the bounty provided for herein, shall within ninety (90) days of the date of the killing, present or cause to be presented by his duly authorized agent, to the county clerk of the county in which said animal or animals have been killed, the entire skin of each of said animal or animals, which skin includes and must have attached thereto all four of the paws, or feet, the tail and the skin of the head, eye-holes and skin to tip of nose; and shall at the same time make and file with the said county clerk an affidavit, which said affidavit shall state: First, the kind of animal or animals from which said skin or skins were taken and the number of skins presented; second, that the county in which said animal or animals were killed is the county in which their skins are presented for payment of a bounty; third, that said animal or animals from which said skins were taken were not bought or received dead or alive, from any other county or state; fourth, that said animals were killed within ninety (90) days from the date of making of said affidavit; fifth, that said animal or animals were killed in such county and in the State of Nevada; and, sixth, that the same were not fostered or whelped in captivity prior to the killing thereof. The said county clerk may, if he deems it advisable, require of such applicant for bounty such other corroborative testimony as to him seems proper concerning the truth set forth in such affidavit; provided, that when in doubt as to the kind of skin or skins presented, the order shall be issued for the lesser bounty. The county clerk shall cut off the four (4) paws or feet at the knee and destroy them. The said county clerk shall then certify to the said board that he received the said hides, that the required affidavit or affidavits have been made, and that he has destroyed the fore feet, in conformity with law, and also certify the name of the animals killed, the number, where killed and by whom and the bounty due. The board shall forthwith remit the bounty due to the party presenting the same and at the same time notify the said county clerk of the forwarding of said bounty so paid.

Inspectors must report.

SEC. 7. Inspectors shall report to the board in writing as often and at such times as may be requested by said board.

Bill of health by inspector, when—"Stock" defined.

SEC. 8. Each inspector must inspect all the horses, cattle, and hogs, within the district assigned to him, when so ordered by the board, and must make and issue certificate or bill of health for all of said stock whose owners have complied with the law and the orders, rules, and regulations made and adopted by the board describing the stock with the marks and brands thereon, which shall entitle the owner or agent in charge to pass with such stock from one district to another in the state. The inspector shall immediately file with the board a duplicate of all certificates issued by him. The term "stock" shall include horses, cattle, and hogs.

Board must be notified of disease.

SEC. 9. Whenever any stock shall become infected with any infectious or contagious disease, the owner or agent in charge, the inspector appointed as herein provided, or any practicing veterinary, must immediately notify the board and the state quarantine officer.

Quarantine regulations.

SEC. 10. When stock is found diseased, regulation for their quarantine must be made at once by the state quarantine officer, upon notification by the inspector of the district where such stock is found, who must define the place and limits within which such stock may be grazed, herded, or driven, and such stock must be held in quarantine until pronounced cured from disease by the state quarantine officer. The expense of treating, feeding, and taking care of all stock quarantined under the provisions of this act must be paid for by the owner or agent in charge of such stock; and such expense shall be a lien upon such stock until paid.

Stock vaccinated on order of board.

SEC. 11. All stock must be vaccinated when necessary at such time as may be ordered by the board. Any person, firm, company or corporation refusing to comply with and observe the provisions of this act or the orders, rules and regulations of said stock board shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and liable to the fines and punishment hereinafter provided.

Entry of foreign stock—Board must be notified.

SEC. 12. When any owner or person in charge of stock shall bring such stock into this state, before entering from an adjoining state or territory, for the purpose of grazing, or feeding, they shall notify the board and state quarantine officer, in writing, of such fact immediately before entering the state, stating the time when and the place where such stock shall enter; provided, however, that stock in transit on the cars shall not be required to give notice unless they shall remain in the state, or are unloading to feed and rest for a longer period than forty-eight hours.

Infected stock not to be moved.

SEC. 13. In no case shall any stock suffering from contagious or infectious diseases be removed from one point to another within any district, or from one district to another without a written permit from the board and state quarantine officer.

Secretary of board.

SEC. 14. The said board shall appoint a secretary, prescribe his duties, and fix his salary at a sum not to exceed eight hundred ($800) dollars the year, payable as the salaries of other state officers are paid. Said secretary to hold his position during the pleasure of the board.

SEC. 15. [Stats. 1915, 401, repealed, Stats. 1919, 45.]

Appropriation to be repaid.

SEC. 16. That the sum of ten thousand dollars is hereby appropriated, out of any moneys not otherwise appropriated, from the general fund, for the purpose of carrying this act into effect. All moneys so appropriated to be returned into the general fund from such taxes as may be levied upon the stock as herein provided.

Penalty for violation.

SEC. 17. Any person who violates any provision of this act, or who disregards any order or direction made by the board or inspectors in accordance therewith, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding three hundred dollars ($300), or by imprisonment not exceeding six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Board to cooperate.

SEC. 18. The state board of stock commissioners shall act in conjunction with the state veterinary control service of the University of Nevada in the general enforcement of rules and regulations looking to the diagnosis, control, eradication, and prevention of infectious, contagious or communicable diseases of domesticated animals, as included in this act. In so far as the duty imposed by the board of stock commissioners requires a regulation of interstate and intrastate movement of domesticated animals infected with, or which have been exposed to, infectious, contagious, or communicable diseases, the board shall act in conjunction with the state veterinary control service department of the University of Nevada; and the laboratory of the said state veterinary control service department of the University of Nevada shall be at the service of the said state board of stock commissioners, to render such scientific assistance as it can, in order to accomplish the purposes contemplated in this act. Whenever any of the employees in the department of the state veterinary control service of the University of Nevada are employed upon duty required of them by the said state board of stock commissioners, they shall be paid, from the stock inspection fund, for their services, pro rata as to the time which has been spent in this service, and at a rate which shall compensate them on the same basis of salary or wages paid to them regularly by the board of regents of the University of Nevada.

May prosecute thieves and offer rewards.

SEC. 19. The board may take all necessary and lawful steps, procure all necessary and lawful process for the attendance of witnesses, and employ counsel to assist in the prosecution of any person charged with stealing cattle, horses, or hogs for violating the laws of the state for the protection of the rights and interests of owners of live stock, under the jurisdiction of this board, and also to advise and assist in the administration of this act, the cost and compensation thereof to be paid out of the funds of the commission. The board may also offer a standing reward or a reward for each class of stock included under this act, of not to exceed $500, for information leading to the arrest and conviction of each person engaged in stealing cattle, horses, or hogs, the reward to be paid to the person or persons giving the information leading to the arrest and conviction of such person or persons immediately upon the conviction of and imprisonment in the state prison of the person or persons so arrested. The board shall make such further conditions and rules in connection with offering said rewards and the payments thereof as it may deem proper. As amended, Stats. 1919, 45.

"Horse" defined.

SEC. 19½. The word "horse" or "horses," wherever used or employed in this act, shall mean and be construed to mean and include mules, jackasses, jennets, and what are usually called horses. Added, Stats. 1919, 45.

Board to appoint inspectors and detectives.

SEC. 20. The state board of stock commissioners may appoint such stock inspectors and detectives as are necessary for the protection of the live-stock interests of the state, and the inspectors and detectives have the same power as sheriffs to summon a posse when necessary, and to make arrests. The stock inspectors and detectives may, when deputized by the sheriff, exercise the powers of deputy sheriff, but must not receive any fee or emolument therefor from the state or any county.

Duties of inspectors and detectives.

SEC. 21. It is the duty of the stock inspectors and detectives to arrest all persons who in their presence violate the stock laws of the state, and every stock inspector and detective, upon information that any person has committed any offense against the laws of the state in feloniously branding or stealing any stock or any offense against the laws of the state, for the protection of the rights and interests of stock owners, must make the necessary affidavit for the arrest and examination of such person, and, upon warrant issued therefor, immediately arrest such person, and bring him before the proper officer, and notify the board of his acts. Said inspectors shall also inspect all stock or cattle about to be shipped from the state, and the consignor, upon demand, shall establish fully his title to such stock.

Each section of act independent.

SEC. 22. Each section of this act and every part of each section is hereby declared to be independent sections and parts of sections, and the holding of any section or part thereof to be void or ineffective for any cause shall not be deemed to affect nor shall it affect any other section or any part thereof. Added, Stats. 1919, 46.

TAX COMMISSION

An Act in relation to public revenues, creating the Nevada tax commission and the state board of equalization, defining their powers and duties, and matters relating thereto, and repealing all acts and parts of acts in conflict herewith.

Approved March 23, 1917, 328

Commission created—How composed—Secretary.

SECTION 1. There is hereby created a commission to be designated and known as the Nevada tax commission. Said Nevada tax commission shall consist of a chairman and six commissioners. The chairman shall be the governor of the State of Nevada. One of the commissioners shall be the appointive member of the public service commission who devotes all his time to the business of the State of Nevada; one of the said commissioners shall be versed in and possess a practical knowledge and experience in the classification of land and the value thereof; one of the said commissioners shall be versed in and possess a practical knowledge and experience in live stock and the value thereof; one of said commissioners shall be versed in and possess a practical knowledge and experience in the mining industry; one of the said commissioners shall be versed in and possess a practical knowledge and experience in business; one of said commissioners shall be versed in and possess a practical knowledge and experience in banking; each of said commissioners at the time of his appointment shall be actively engaged in the business of the department which he is chosen to represent on the commission. Said appointments shall be made by the governor, and not more than one of said commissioners shall be appointed from any one county in this state, and not more than a majority of the said commission shall be of the same political party. Three of said commissioners shall be appointed for a term of four years, and two of said commissioners for a term of two years, and upon the expiration of the terms for which the appointments are made all commissioners shall be appointed for terms of four years. The chairman and each of said commissioners shall have a vote upon all matters which shall come before said commission. Before entering upon his duties each of said commissioners, except the governor and the public service commissioner, shall enter into a bond payable to the State of Nevada, to be approved by the board of examiners, in the sum of ten thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties, and shall subscribe to the official oath. The commission shall appoint a secretary who shall give his entire time and attention to the duties of the office of secretary of the commission, and who shall be in charge of the office of the commission.

Powers.

SEC. 2. The members of said commission shall have power to prescribe rules and regulations for its own government and governing the procedure and order of business of all regular and special sessions, and five members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. The secretary shall keep full and correct records of all transactions and proceedings of said commission, and perform such other duties as may be required, and, with the approval and consent of the commission and of the state board of examiners, may employ such clerical or expert assistance as may be required.

Powers specified.

SEC. 3. Said Nevada tax commission, hereinafter and heretofore referred to as "said commission," is hereby empowered:

First—To confer with, advise and direct assessors, sheriffs, as ex officio collectors of licenses, county boards of equalization, and all other county officers having to do with the preparation of the assessment roll or collection of taxes or other revenues as to their duties; to direct what proceeding, actions or prosecutions shall be instituted to support the law. Said commission may call upon the district attorney of any county or the attorney-general to institute and conduct such civil or criminal proceedings as may be demanded.

Second—To have the original power of appraisement or assessment of all property mentioned in section 5 of this act.

Third—To establish and prescribe the general and uniform rules and regulations governing the assessment of property by the assessors of the various counties, not in conflict with law; to prescribe the form and manner in which assessment rolls or tax lists shall be kept by assessors (and county commissioners shall supply books and blanks for the use of the assessors in such form), and also to prescribe the form of the statements of property owners in making returns of their property; and it is hereby made the duty of all county assessors to adopt and put in practice such rules and regulations and to use and adopt such form and manner of keeping such assessment rolls or tax lists, and to use and require such property owners to use, and the county commissioners shall furnish, the blank statements required by said commission in making their property returns.

Fourth—To require assessors, sheriffs, as ex officio collectors of licenses, and the clerks of the county boards of equalization, and all other county officers having to do with the preparation of the assessment roll or collection of taxes or other revenues, to furnish such information in relation to assessments, licenses, or the equalization of property valuations, and in such form as said commission may demand.

Fifth—To summon witnesses to appear and testify on any subject material to the determination of property valuations, licenses, or the net proceeds of mines, but no property owner and no officer, director, superintendent, manager, or agent of any company or corporation, whose property is wholly in one county, shall be required to appear, without his consent, at a place other than the county-seat or at the nearest town to his place of residence, or the principal place of business of such company or corporation. Such summons may be served by personal service by any member of said commission, or by the sheriff of the county, and who shall certify to such service without compensation therefor. Any member of said commission may administer oaths to witnesses.

Sixth—To make diligent investigation with reference to any class or kind of property believed to be escaping just taxation; and in pursuance whereof, said commission, or any commissioner thereof, may examine the books and accounts of any person, copartnership, or corporation doing business in the state, when such examination is deemed necessary to a proper determination of the valuation of any property subject to taxation, or the determination of any licenses for the conduct of any business, or the determination of the net proceeds of any mine.

Seventh—To require boards of county commissioners to submit a budget estimate of the county expenses for the current year in such detail and form as may be required by the commission; to require boards of county commissioners to increase or decrease the county tax rate of their respective counties to produce the net revenue estimated as necessary for the conduct of such county government, as appears from such budget; to require county boards of education and district school trustees and all school officers having control over any school expenditures in any district in which a special tax is to be levied during the current year, to submit a budget estimate of the expenses for which such tax is levied in such detail and form as may be required by the commission. To require cities, municipalities and towns and the governing boards thereof to submit budget estimates of the expenses for the government of such city, municipality or town for the current year, in such form and detail as may be required by the commission, and to require the governing boards of any municipality, city or town to increase or decrease the tax rate therein to produce the net revenue estimates for the conduct of such municipality, city or town in said budget.

Eighth—The commission shall have, in addition to the specific powers enumerated, the power to exercise general supervision and control over the entire revenue system of the state.

Ninth—The commission shall have the power to require county assessors, county boards of equalization, any county auditor or county treasurer to place upon the roll any property found to be escaping taxation.

Tenth—The commission shall have the power to authorize the secretary to hold hearings or make investigations, and upon any such hearing the secretary shall have the authority to examine books, compel the attendance of witnesses, administer oaths and conduct investigations.

The enumeration of the foregoing powers shall not be considered as excluding the exercise of any needful and proper power and authority of said commission.

Office at Carson City—Sessions—What legal notice.

SEC. 4. Said commission shall keep its office at Carson City, and shall be in general session and open for the transaction of business the usual hours and days in which public offices are kept open. There shall annually be held at Carson City two regular sessions of said commission, namely, one beginning on the second Monday in January of each year at 9 o'clock a. m., and continuing from day to day until the business is completed, at which valuations shall be established by said commission on the several kinds and classes of property mentioned in section 5 of this act; and one regular session shall be held annually beginning on the first day of October, or the first legal day thereafter, at the same hour, and continuing from day to day until the business is completed, at which said commission shall equalize property valuations in the state as provided in section 7 of this act, exclusive of live stock. The publication in the statutes of the foregoing time, place, and purposes of such regular session shall be deemed sufficient notice thereof to all concerned, but said commission, if it so elects, may cause published notices of such regular sessions to be made in the press, or may notify parties in interest by letter or otherwise. All sessions shall be public and all parties shall have the right to appear, to be heard in person or by their agents or attorneys, or to submit evidence in documentary form. The publication once a week, for two consecutive weeks, of notice of a special session, in some newspaper of general circulation in the county in which such special session is to be held, five days' personal service on, or registered mailed notice to, the person, firm, or corporation affected, stating the time, place, objects and purposes of such special session, shall be deemed sufficient notice thereof to all concerned. Special sessions may be held at such times and places and for such purposes as said commission may declare.

Assess live stock, railroads, franchises, etc.

SEC. 5. At the regular session of said commission held on the second Monday of January of each year, said commission shall assess all live stock throughout the state, accepting the valuation per head for the year 1917, using the valuation theretofore established by the state board of equalization at its regular session held in August, 1916, and thereafter using the valuation per head established by the preceding session of the state board of equalization for the then current year, as provided for in section 6 of this act, and shall establish the valuation on any property of an interstate or intercounty nature, and which shall in any event include: The property of all interstate or intercounty railroads, sleeping-car, private car line, street railway, traction, telegraph, water, telephone, and electric light and power companies, together with the franchises, and the property and franchises of all express companies operating on any common carrier in this state, and which foregoing, exclusive of live stock, shall be assessed as follows: Said commission shall establish and fix the valuation of the franchise, and all physical property used directly in the operation of any such business of any such company in this state, as a collective unit; and if operating in more than one county, on establishing such unit valuation for the collective property, said commission shall then proceed to determine the total aggregate mileage operated within the state and within the several counties thereof, and so apportion the same upon a mile-unit valuation basis, and the number of miles so apportioned to any county shall be subject to assessment in that county according to the mile-unit valuation so established by said commission. The word "company" shall be construed to mean and include any person or persons, company, corporation, or association engaged in the business described. In case of the omission by said commission to establish a valuation for assessment purposes upon any property mentioned in this section, it shall be the duty of the assessors of any counties wherein such property is situated to assess the same. All other property shall be assessed by the county assessors. On or before the first Monday in June it shall be the duty of the said commission to transmit to the several assessors the assessed valuation found by it on such classes of property as are enumerated in this section, together with the apportionment of each county of such assessment. The several county assessors shall enter on the roll all such assessments transmitted to them by the Nevada tax commission.

State board of equalization.

SEC. 6. Beginning on the third Monday of August the said commission shall, together with the county assessors of the several counties of this state, sit in Carson City as a state board of equalization. The chairman of the said commission shall be the chairman of the said board of equalization, and each member of said commission and each of the county assessors shall have a vote upon said board. The secretary of the Nevada tax commission shall act as the secretary of the state board of equalization. The actual necessary expenses of the county assessors in attending the meeting of the said board of equalization shall be paid by the respective counties. At such meeting it shall be the duty of the state board of equalization to review the tax rolls of the various counties as corrected by county boards of equalization, and to raise or lower for the purpose of state equalization the valuations therein established by county assessors and county boards of equalization, on any class or piece of property in whole or in part in any county save and except those classes of property enumerated in section 5 of this act, exclusive of live stock, which shall be equalized by the said state board; and in equalizing the assessment of said property it shall be the duty of said state board of equalization to so raise or lower such valuation as to produce an aggregate assessment of all property within the state (including the property enumerated in section 5 of this act) sufficient when the state tax levy is applied thereto to produce the revenues required from taxation as shown in the budget of estimated state expenses provided for in section 8 of this act; provided, however, that if said state board of equalization shall fail to perform the duties enumerated in this section, the Nevada tax commission may make such equalization as will be necessary. Said board of equalization shall complete their labors on or before the thirtieth day of September, and any person whose assessment valuation has been raised by said state board of equalization may complain to the Nevada tax commission on or before the third Monday in October in said year, and said tax commission may correct or remedy any inequality or error so complained of. Showing on complaint may be made by letter or in person, and said commission may, in its discretion, require affidavits in support thereof. If any county assessor shall be unable to attend the meeting of the state board of equalization, the board of county commissioners may appoint a qualified person to act in his stead. At the meeting of the state board of equalization, as provided for in this section, in the year 1917, and annually thereafter, said state board of equalization shall fix the valuation for assessment purposes per head of all live stock in the state; and such valuation, however, shall be subject to equalization.

May regulate valuations, except live stock.

SEC. 7. At the regular session commencing on the first day of October, the Nevada tax commission for the purpose of state equalization may raise or lower any valuations theretofore established by it upon any class or piece of property, exclusive of live stock, enumerated in section 5 of this act, to conform with the equalization of assessments effected by the state board of equalization.

Plaintiff's assessment was so raised in 1914 that payment of the December installment would result in payment of a sum in excess of the taxes payable under the prior valuation; the taxes being payable in two equal installments. Held, that this section would not afford plaintiff an adequate remedy at law, and so plaintiff might, being a foreign corporation, sue in the federal courts to enjoin the collection of the illegal assessments. Nevada-California Power Co. v. Hamilton, 235 F. 319, 335-337.

State budget required.

SEC. 8. It shall be the duty of the state board of examiners, on or before the first Monday in May of each year, to prepare and file with the Nevada tax commission a detailed budget estimate of the aggregate amount of money necessary to be raised by taxation, and from other sources of revenue, to maintain the government of the state upon a cash basis.

Secretary to certify charges.

SEC. 9. The secretary of the Nevada tax commission shall certify any change in the assessed valuation of any piece or class of property in whole or in part made by the tax commission or the state board of equalization to the auditor of the county wherein such property is assessed and said auditor shall make such changes in the assessment roll prior to the delivery of his completed tax roll to the ex officio tax receiver.

Taxpayers not deprived of legal redress.

SEC. 10. No taxpayer shall be deprived of any remedy or redress in a court of law relating to the payment of taxes, but all actions at law shall be for redress from the findings of said commission or the state board of equalization, and may not be instituted upon the act of an assessor, or of a county board of equalization or the state board of equalization until said commission has denied the complainant redress. Said Nevada tax commission, in that name, may sue and be sued, and shall be so named as defendant in any action at law brought under the provisions of this section, and the attorney-general shall defend the same, but the burden of proof shall be upon the complainant to show by clear and satisfactory evidence that any valuation established or equalized by said commission or the state board of equalization is unjust and inequitable.

Method of paying taxes if proceedings instituted.

SEC. 11. (a) Any property owner whose taxes exceed the sum of $300, who has instituted a court proceeding for redress from any increased valuation of his property for assessment purposes, and who shall have paid his December installment of taxes thereon in full, may, on filing with the treasurer of the county a certificate of the clerk of any court that such issue is pending, pay his June installment in two separate payments, to wit: One payment in a sum which, when added to the December installment, shall represent the amount of taxes payable if computed on the valuation of the preceding tax year plus the taxes on any improvements added since such preceding levy; and the other for the balance required to make up the full June installment; and said county treasurer shall receipt for the latter as a special deposit to be held by such treasurer undisbursed until the court, by its finding, shall award it; and said property in such case shall not be liable for any penalty under the delinquent tax act; and if the court, by its findings, reduces the assessment of such property, said county treasurer, on order of the court, shall refund from such special deposit an amount corresponding to such reduction; and if the court shall not reduce the valuation of said property, then said county treasurer shall transfer the entire special deposit to the public revenues.

(b) Any property owner whose taxes are less than $300, and who has paid his December installment of taxes in full, may, on filing with the treasurer of the county a certificate of the secretary of the Nevada tax commission that he has made complaint or applied to said commission for redress from any increased valuation of his property, pay his June installment in two separate payments, one payment in the sum which, when added to the December installment, shall represent the amount of taxes payable if computed on the valuation of the preceding tax year plus the taxes on any improvements added since such preceding levy, and the other for the balance required to make up the full June installment; and the county treasurer shall receipt for the latter as a special deposit, to be held by such treasurer undisbursed until the Nevada tax commission shall, by its findings, grant or refuse redress from such increased valuation, and said property owner, in such case, shall not be liable for any penalty under the delinquent tax act; and if the Nevada tax commission, by its findings, reduces the assessment valuation of such property, said county treasurer, on order of said commission, shall refund from such special deposit an amount corresponding to such reduction, and shall transfer the remainder to the public revenues; and if said commission shall not reduce the valuation of said property, then said county treasurer shall transfer the entire special deposit to the public revenues. Nothing in this section shall be deemed to deprive any taxpayer of any right or remedy he may now have or be entitled to under the laws of Nevada.

(c) Any property owner, whose taxes exceed the sum of $300, and the first installment of which is in excess of the amount which he claims to be justly due for taxes, may pay his installment of taxes as they become due under protest, and may commence a suit against the state and county in which the same was paid for the difference between the amount of the taxes paid and the amount which he claims to be due. In an action by or against the person assessed he may complain or defend upon the following grounds:

(1) That the taxes have been paid before the suit; or

(2) That the property is exempt from taxation under the provisions of the revenue or tax laws of the state, specifying in detail the claim of exemption; or

(3) That the person assessed was not the owner and had no right, title or interest in the property assessed at the time of assessment;

(4) That the property is situate in and has been duly assessed in another county and the taxes thereon paid; or

(5) Fraud in the assessment or that the assessment is out of proportion to and above the actual cash value of the property assessed; or the assessment is out of proportion to and above the percentage of valuation fixed by the Nevada tax commission for the year in which the taxes were levied and the property assessed; provided, however, that in all cases mentioned in this paragraph where the complaint is based upon any grounds mentioned herein, the entire assessment shall not be declared void, but shall only be void as to the excess in valuation; provided further, that in every action brought under the provisions of this section the burden of proof shall be upon the plaintiff to show by clear and satisfactory evidence that any valuation established or equalized by the Nevada tax commission, or the state board of equalization, or the county assessor, or the county board of equalization, is unjust and inequitable.

Every action commenced under and by virtue of the provisions of this section shall be commenced within three months from the date of the payment of the last installment of taxes, and if not so commenced shall be forever barred.

Nothing in this section or in any remedy granted hereby shall prevent the distribution or apportionment of the taxes so paid into the various funds of the state and county, but in the event of judgment in favor of the plaintiff the amount of said judgment shall be paid out of the general funds of the state and county by defendants as their liability may appear. The county treasurer or tax receiver in making settlement with the state shall notify the state controller of the amount of state tax moneys which were paid under protest, and an amount equivalent thereto shall be thereby deemed to be and is hereby appropriated for the purpose of paying any judgment recovered against the state in an action under the provisions of this section.

Assessment at full cash value.

SEC. 12. All property subject to taxation shall be assessed at its full cash value.

Proceeds of mines assessed.

SEC. 13. In pursuance of the general supervision and control over the revenue system of the state, said commission is hereby empowered to investigate and determine the net proceeds of all operating mines. In pursuance whereof, said commission, in each instance, shall investigate and determine from all obtainable data, evidence, and reports, the gross value of the bullion actually extracted from the reduction of the ores and the proceeds from the sale of the ores of any mine, mining claim, or patented mine, and to deduct therefrom only such actual costs of extraction, transportation, reduction, or sale of ores, as shall be deemed by said commission to be just, proper, and reasonable, and not introduced to deprive or defraud the state of any portion of its just revenue; and in any suit at law arising under the provisions of this section, the burden of proof shall be upon the owner of such mine, mining claim, or patented mine, to establish that any item of cost disallowed by said commission is, nevertheless, just, proper, and reasonable, and not entered to defraud the state.

Provisions of act mandatory—Penalty for refusal.

SEC. 14. All the provisions of this act with respect to county assessors, sheriffs, as ex officio collectors of licenses, county commissioners, county auditors, and all other county officers having to do with the preparation of the assessment roll or collection of taxes or other revenues, and persons summoned as witnesses, the requirement of witnesses to testify, the examination of the books and accounts of persons, copartnerships, and corporations doing business in this state, are mandatory; and any such county officer, or witness summoned, or witness required to testify, or person, copartner, or officer, director, superintendent, or manager, or agent of any corporation, who neglects, fails or refuses to comply with such mandates shall, for the first offense, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and subject to the penalty prescribed in section 6285, Revised Laws of Nevada; and for persistence therein, constituting a second offense, shall be deemed guilty of a gross misdemeanor, and subject to the penalty prescribed in section 6284 of said Revised Laws. Any person who shall testify falsely shall be guilty of and punished for perjury.

Informalities not to invalidate.

SEC. 15. All acts herein required between the assessment and the collection of the taxes or commencement of suit shall be directory merely; and no assessment, or act relating to assessment, or collection of taxes shall be illegal on account of informality, nor because the same was not completed within the time required by law.

Salaries.

SEC. 16. The governor and the members of the public service commission shall receive no compensation for their services as members of the Nevada tax commission. The secretary shall receive a salary of three thousand dollars per annum, payable in equal monthly installments as other state officers are paid. Each of the other five commissioners mentioned in section 1 of this act shall receive a salary of six hundred dollars ($600) per annum, payable in equal monthly installments as other state officers are paid.

Actual expenses allowed.

SEC. 17. The members of the said commission, and such expert assistants as may be employed, shall be entitled to receive from the state their actual and necessary expenses while traveling on the business of said commission.

SEC. 18. [Carrying appropriation; omitted.]

Annual report.

SEC. 19. The commission shall make and publish an annual report for each calendar year, showing its transactions and proceedings for the year.

Printing at state printing office.

SEC. 20. All forms, blanks, envelopes, letterheads, circulars, and reports required to be printed by said commission shall be printed at the state printing office under the general provisions of the act entitled "An act to designate and authorize the work to be done in the state printing office," approved March 5, 1909.

Meetings continuations of old commission.

SEC. 21. All meetings of the commission of the Nevada tax commission created under and by virtue of this act shall be deemed and shall be continuations of such meetings as are now being held or authorized by the Nevada tax commission created under and by virtue of "An act in relation to the public revenues, creating the Nevada tax commission and the state board of equalization, defining their powers and duties, and matters relating thereto, and repealing all acts and parts of acts in conflict therewith," approved March 17, 1915.

COMMISSIONERS ON UNIFORM LEGISLATION

An Act to establish a board of commissioners for the promotion of uniformity of legislation in the United States, and other matters relating thereto.

Approved February 27, 1915, 61

Commission created.

SECTION 1. That within thirty days after the approval of this act, the governor shall appoint three suitable persons, and they and their successors are hereby constituted a board of commissioners for the promotion of uniformity of legislation in the United States. Said commissioners shall hold their office for a term of three years, and until their successors are appointed. Any vacancy in said board shall be filled by appointment by the governor.

Duty.

SEC. 2. That it shall be the duty of said board to examine the subjects upon which uniformity of legislation in the various states of the union is desirable, but which are outside the jurisdiction of the Congress of the United States; to confer upon these matters with the commissioners appointed by the other states for the same purpose; to consider and draft uniform laws to be submitted for approval and adoption by the several states, and to generally devise and recommend such other or further course of action as shall accomplish the purposes of this act.

To keep record and report.

SEC. 3. That the said board of commissioners shall keep a record of all its transactions, and shall at each session of the legislature, and may at any other time, make a report of its doings and of its recommendations to the legislature.

No compensation.

SEC. 4. That no member of said board shall receive any compensation for his services.

BOARD OF VETERINARY MEDICAL EXAMINERS

An Act regulating the practice of veterinary medicine, surgery, and dentistry in the State of Nevada; creating the state board of veterinary medical examiners, and defining their duties; providing for the issuing of licenses to practice veterinary medicine, surgery, and dentistry; defining the practice of veterinary medicine, surgery, and dentistry; defining certain misdemeanors; and certain other matters relating thereto.

Approved February 21, 1919, 25

Must procure license.

SECTION 1. It shall be unlawful for any person to practice veterinary medicine, surgery or dentistry at any place within the State of Nevada after July 1, 1919, without first obtaining a license so to do, as hereinafter provided.

Governor to appoint board.

SEC. 2. Within thirty days after the passage and approval of this act it shall be the duty of the governor to appoint a state board consisting of three members, which shall be known as the state board of veterinary medical examiners, hereinafter called the board. The members of the board first appointed shall hold office, one for two years, one for three years, and one for four years, as designated by the governor, after the date of their appointment; thereafter one member shall be appointed annually for the term of three years. In the event of a vacancy occurring in said board, or the absence of any member from the state for a period of six months without permission from the governor, the governor may appoint a person duly qualified under this act to fill the unexpired term.

Members to take oath.

SEC. 3. Each member of said board shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, take the constitutional oath of office, and shall, in addition, make oath that he is a graduate in veterinary medicine, and legally qualified, under the provisions of this act, to practice veterinary medicine, surgery and dentistry in the State of Nevada.

Meetings of board—Officers.

SEC. 4. The said board shall meet at Carson City at the call of the governor on the first Monday in May, 1919, and organize by electing from its members a president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer to serve at the pleasure of the board and designating some convenient place within the state as the office of the board. The board shall hold regular meetings at their established office on the first Monday of May and November of each year. Special meetings of the board may be held at the call of the president whenever there is sufficient business to come before the board to warrant such action, at any place most convenient to the board. Two members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

Board to adopt rules—Licenses—Fee for license—License revoked, when.

SEC. 5. The board may, from time to time, adopt such rules as it deems necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this act. Said board may examine candidates for license to practice, either in writing or orally, or both, in order to determine their qualifications; and issue licenses based upon the results of such examination; or may license candidates upon the presentation of sufficient proof that they have been licensed elsewhere; provided, that the requirements where such license was issued are at least equal to those herein provided.

Any person who desires to secure the license above referred to shall make application in writing to the secretary of the board, accompanied by satisfactory proof that he is more than 21 years of age, of good moral character, has received a diploma conferring the degree of doctor of veterinary medicine, or its equivalent, from a veterinary school or college authorized by law to confer such degree, and is possessed of professional and educational qualifications at least equal to those required for a permanent appointment as a veterinary inspector in the bureau of animal industry, United States department of agriculture, before he may be considered as a candidate for such license. Applicants for license shall pay to the secretary the sum of ten dollars ($10). If an applicant is denied a license, the fee shall not be returned to him. All persons who have engaged in the practice of veterinary surgery and medicine in the State of Nevada for a period of four years or more immediately prior to the passage of this act shall be exempt from taking the above examination and upon proof of such practice of veterinary surgery and medicine in the State of Nevada for a period of four years or more shall be granted a license for the practice of veterinary surgery and medicine within the State of Nevada, upon the payment to the secretary of such board of the sum of ten ($10) dollars.

Any member of said board may administer oaths in all matters pertaining to the duties of said board, and the board shall have authority to take evidence as to any matter cognizable by it.

Any license issued by the board may be revoked by them upon satisfactory proof that the holder of said license is guilty of unprofessional conduct; gross immorality; habitual drunkenness; or is addicted to the use of habit-forming drugs after full and fair investigation of the charges preferred against the accused.

Practitioners must register.

SEC. 6. Every person who may be licensed to practice veterinary medicine, surgery, or dentistry within the State of Nevada shall, before beginning said practice, register his license with the clerk of the county in which he resides.

Treasurer to hold money—No compensation.

SEC. 7. All money received for licenses shall be held by the treasurer of the board subject to its order. Said money shall be used to meet the expenses of the board for stationery, books of record, blanks and other supplies and actual expenses of members of the board in attendance upon meetings. Members of the board shall serve without compensation, but shall receive their actual expenses in attendance upon meetings or in the transaction of other business of the board, in so far as the money received from licenses is sufficient therefor, but not otherwise. The payment of money from the funds of the board shall be made upon the written order of the president, countersigned by the secretary.

Practice of veterinary medicine defined.

SEC. 8. For the purposes of this act the practice of veterinary medicine, surgery or dentistry is defined as follows:

To open or maintain an office or hospital for consultation or the treatment or prevention of disease of domesticated animals by means of drugs, medicines, surgical or dental operations, the administration of sera, vaccines or other biological preparations for the treatment, or prevention, or diagnosis of disease, or otherwise; or to announce to the public or any individual in any way a desire or readiness or willingness to perform any of the above-mentioned acts or to perform any of the aforesaid acts for the doing of which he receives or expects to receive any money, fee, salary or any consideration of value. The illegal use, in connection with his name, by any person giving veterinary advice or performing veterinary services without charge or the expectancy of compensation, directly or indirectly, therefor, of the words doctor, veterinarian, veterinary surgeon, veterinary dentist, or the letters Dr., D.V.M., V.D.M., M.D.C., V.S., or any other letters, symbol or title, indicating that such person is graduated from some school or college which is authorized by law to confer such degree, shall be construed as constituting the practice of veterinary medicine, surgery or dentistry, within the meaning of this act. Nothing in this act shall be construed to apply to castrating, dehorning or vaccinating domesticated animals nor to the gratuitous treatment of diseased animals by friends or neighbors of the owner thereof, nor to any person treating diseased animals who does not in any way assume to practice as a veterinary surgeon; or to debar any veterinarian in the employ of the United States government or the State of Nevada from performing official duties necessary for the conduct of the business of the United States government or the State of Nevada upon which he is assigned; or any veterinarian who shall be called into the state for consultation by a person licensed to practice under this act; or any veterinarian resident in an adjoining state, near the boundaries of this state, whose field for practice properly extends to points within this state, so long as the greater portion of his practice is in the state of his residence and he does not open or maintain an office or branch office within this state, and provided that he is licensed to practice veterinary medicine, surgery and dentistry in the state wherein he resides.

Penalty for violation.

SEC. 9. Any violation of the provisions of this act shall constitute a misdemeanor. It shall be the duty of the attorney-general of this state and of the district attorneys of the respective counties of this state to prosecute violators of this act when requested by the board so to do.

TELEPHONE

An Act in relation to the installation of instruments by telephone companies doing business in this state, and providing a penalty for the violation thereof.

Approved March 26, 1913, 447

Companies must install instrument.

SECTION 1. Upon the application in writing of the owner or occupant of any building or premises located within a telephone exchange district distant not more than two hundred feet from any wire or supply except ones used in interstate service of any telephone company or corporation, and payment by the applicant of all money due from him, the company or corporation must install and place in proper position, all necessary instruments and appliances, and furnish and supply necessary electric energy and power for use in operating said telephone instruments in such building or premises, and cannot refuse on the ground of any indebtedness of any former owner or occupant thereof, unless the applicant has undertaken to pay the same, nor require any deposit or payment in advance; provided, however, any such corporation may at its option require such applicant to execute a bond to such corporation in a sum not to exceed five dollars with one surety thereon who is a freeholder of the county within which said premises are located conditioned for the payment of any indebtedness due or to become due such corporation by reason of any such service, which bond shall be prepared by such corporation requiring the same.

If for the space of thirty days after such application, the company or corporation refuses or neglects to provide and install such instruments and furnish services required, it must pay to the applicant the sum of fifty dollars as liquidated damages, and five dollars per day as liquidated damages for every day such refusal or neglect continues thereafter.

UNIVERSITY OF NEVADA

4640. Number of regents and how elected—Governor to fill vacancies.

SEC. 2. The board of regents of the state university shall consist of five members. At the general election held in 1918 there shall be elected three regents, one of whom shall hold office for the term of ten years, another for term of eight years, and the third for the term of six years. At the general election held in 1920 there shall be elected two regents, one of whom shall hold office for the term of ten years and the other for the term of two years. Thereafter, at each general election, there shall be elected one regent, who shall hold office for the term of ten years. The persons elected as regents under the provisions of this act, before entering upon the discharge of the duties of the office of regent, shall take and subscribe the official oath and file the same in the office of the secretary of state. In case of a vacancy in the board of regents the governor shall fill the same by the appointment of a qualified person to serve until the expiration of the term for which the regent, whose death, resignation, removal, or as the case may be, shall have caused the vacancy, was originally elected. The term of office of each regent shall begin on the first Monday in January next succeeding the date of his election. As amended, Stats. 1917, 352.

4641. Powers and duties of regents.

SEC. 3. The powers and duties of the board of regents are as follows:

First—To prescribe rules for their own government, and for the government of the university.

Second—To prescribe rules for the reports of officers and teachers of the university.

Third—To prescribe the course of study, the time and standard of graduation and the commencement and duration of the terms, and the length of the vacations of the university.

Fourth—To prescribe the text-books, and provide apparatus and furniture for the use of pupils.

Fifth—To appoint a president of the University of Nevada, who shall have a degree from a college or university recognized as equal in rank to those having membership in the Association of American Universities, who has had at least five years of practical experience as an educator in a college or university of good standing, three years of which must have been during the five years immediately preceding the date of his appointment, who is familiar with the modern methods of imparting instruction in the United States, and who shall be endorsed as to moral character and qualifications as an educator by the president and faculty of three institutions of learning authorized by law to confer degrees. The word "faculty," as used in this section, shall be construed to mean any academic body of any college or university which shall include all department heads. A resolution adopted by any such faculty and signed by the president shall constitute a valid endorsement in the meaning of this act.

Sixth—To prescribe the duties of the president, and fix his salary, and the salaries of all other teachers in the university.

Seventh—To require the president, under their direction, to establish and maintain training or model schools, and require the pupils of the university to teach and instruct classes therein.

Eighth—To control the expenditures of all moneys appropriated for the support and maintenance of the university, and all moneys received from any source whatsoever.

Ninth—To keep open to public inspection an account of receipts and expenditures.

Tenth—To annually report to the governor a statement of all their transactions, and of all other matters pertaining to the university.

Eleventh—To transmit with such report a copy of the president's annual report.

Twelfth—To revoke any diploma by them granted, on receiving satisfactory evidence that the holder thereof is addicted to drunkenness, is guilty of gross immorality, or is reputably dishonest in his or her dealings; provided, that such person shall have at least thirty days' previous notice of such contemplated action, and shall, if he or she asks it, be heard in his or her own defense. As amended, Stats. 1917, 52.

4666. Board created.

SECTION 1. There is hereby created a board to be known as the honorary board of visitors of the Nevada state university. Said board shall consist of one member from each county, and, in addition thereto, the chief justice of the supreme court shall be ex officio a member and chairman of said board. In the absence of the said chief justice the members of the board may elect one of their own number as temporary chairman. The term of office of the members of said board shall be two years from the date of their appointment, and until their successors are appointed. As amended, Stats. 1918, 158.

Stats. 1915, 114, repealed, Stats. 1917, 71.

An Act setting aside and appropriating certain moneys for the maintenance and support of the University of Nevada, and defining the powers and duties of the board of regents, and of the state controller in relation thereto.

Approved March 26, 1913, '402

Certain public moneys dedicated.

SECTION 1. The interest derived from the investment of all moneys arising from the sale of the 90,000 acres of land granted to the State of Nevada by act of Congress approved July 2, 1862; the interest derived from the investment of all moneys arising from the sale of the seventy-two sections of land granted to the State of Nevada by act of Congress approved July 4, 1866, for the establishment and maintenance of a university; all money paid as interest on deferred installments on purchase of lands named in this act which may be sold under contract as provided in section 9 of an act entitled "An act to provide for the selection and sale of lands," etc., approved March 4, 1871; and all money arising from the ad valorem tax on taxable property in the State of Nevada, including net proceeds of mines and mining claims, for university purposes, is hereby set aside and inviolably appropriated for the support and maintenance of the University of Nevada, and shall be paid out for the purposes designated in the acts creating the several funds without further appropriation.

Board of regents sole trustees.

SEC. 2. The board of regents of said university and agricultural and mechanical college, as provided in section 4 of article 11 of the constitution of Nevada, are the sole trustees to receive and disburse all funds of said university and agricultural and mechanical college for the purposes provided in section 1 of this act; provided, that all claims, before payment, of every name and nature involving the payment of money by or under the direction of the board of regents from the funds so set aside and appropriated, shall be passed upon by the board of examiners.

State controller to report.

SEC. 3. It shall be the duty of the state controller to report to the board of regents of said university and agricultural and mechanical college, on or before the last day of each and every month, the detail of all income received for university purposes from whatsoever source.

An Act authorizing and empowering the regents of the University of Nevada to receive grants of money appropriated under that certain act of the Congress of the United States of America, entitled "An act to provide for cooperative agricultural extension work between the agricultural colleges in the several states receiving the benefits of the act of Congress approved July 2, 1862, and of acts supplementary thereto, and the United States Department of Agriculture"; and to organize and conduct agricultural extension work in connection with the college of agriculture of the University of Nevada, in accordance with the terms and conditions expressed in said act of Congress.

Approved February 10, 1915, 10

WHEREAS, The Congress of the United States has passed an act approved by the president May 8, 1914, entitled "An act to provide for cooperative agricultural extension work between the agricultural colleges, in the several states receiving the benefits of the act of Congress approved July 2, 1862, and of acts supplementary thereto, and the United States Department of Agriculture"; and

WHEREAS, It is provided in section 3 of the act aforesaid that the grants of money authorized by this act shall be paid annually to "each state which shall by action of its legislature assent to the provisions of this act"; now, therefore:

University authorized to receive.

SECTION 1. That the assent of the State of Nevada, by its legislature, be, and it is, hereby given to the provisions and requirements of said act, and that the regents of the University of Nevada be, and they are, hereby authorized and empowered to receive the grants of money appropriated under said act, and to organize and conduct agricultural extension work which shall be carried on in connection with the college of agriculture of the University of Nevada, in accordance with the terms and conditions expressed in the act of Congress aforesaid.

An Act providing for the consolidation of the various public-service departments of the University of Nevada under the heading "Public Service Division of the University of Nevada," and providing for a uniform method of administration and control, and for the making of rules and regulations whereby the work of these departments may be most effective, and stating the departments comprehended herein.

Public-service departments consolidated.

SECTION 1. It is hereby provided that the several public-service departments of the University of Nevada be consolidated into a "Public Service Division" of the University of Nevada.

Departments included.

SEC. 2. The public service division of the University of Nevada shall consist of the following public-service departments, which have been conducted heretofore by authority of statutes of the State of Nevada, enumerated as follows:

1. State analytical laboratory, provided for in sections 4660-4663, inclusive, of the Revised Laws of the State of Nevada, 1912;
2. State hygienic laboratory, provided for in sections 3941-3945, inclusive, of the Revised Laws of the State of Nevada, 1912;
3. Food and drug control, provided for in chapter 226, Session Laws of the State of Nevada, Twenty-sixth session, 1913;
4. Weights and measures, provided for in sections 4792-4823, inclusive, of the Revised Laws of the State of Nevada, 1912, as amended by chapter 228, Session Laws of the State of Nevada, Twenty-sixth session, 1913;
5. Agricultural extension, as provided for in the Session Laws of the State of Nevada, Twenty-seventh session, 1915;
6. State veterinary control service, as provided for in the Session Laws of the State of Nevada, Twenty-seventh session, 1915;
7. Agricultural experiment station, as provided for in sections 456-464, inclusive, of the Revised Laws of the State of Nevada, 1912;
8. Engineering experimentation, as provided for in the Session Laws of the State of Nevada, Twenty-seventh session, 1915.

Regents to appoint heads of departments.

SEC. 3. The board of regents of the University of Nevada, upon recommendation of the president, shall designate and appoint a qualified individual to conduct each of these various departments of the public service division, and shall grant him such assistants as they deem necessary, and the powers and duties of these individuals appointed as herein provided shall be as stated in the statutes establishing each of these several departments of the public service division; provided, however, that in those instances wherein the statutes concerned impose upon the individual appointed as herein provided any police power, the appointment shall receive the approval of the governor of the state.

Rules and regulations.

SEC. 4. All rules and regulations necessary for the proper administration and enforcement of the statutes establishing the departments comprehended in this public service division of the University of Nevada shall be made by the president and board of regents of the University of Nevada.

Words substituted.

SEC. 5. Wherever in any of these statutes establishing the departments comprehended in the public service division of the University of Nevada any individual, official, or department of the university is mentioned, there shall be substituted the words "President and Board of Regents of the University."

An Act to create a fund to be known as the "University Revolving Fund," and appropriating money therefor.

Approved March 18, 1915, 225

Fund created.

SECTION 1. There is hereby appropriated from the money coming into the treasury of the State of Nevada, which by force of statute, tax, or otherwise, is intended for the support of the University of Nevada or any of its departments, the sum of $20,000, to be known as the "University Revolving Fund." Upon the written request of the board of regents of the University of Nevada, the controller of the State of Nevada is hereby directed and authorized to draw his warrant in favor of the board of regents of the University of Nevada for said sum of $20,000, and upon presentation of the same to the treasurer of the State of Nevada the said treasurer of the State of Nevada is hereby directed and authorized to pay said sum of $20,000 to said board of regents.

Purpose of fund.

SEC. 2. Said "University Revolving Fund" shall be used by said board of regents for the purpose of paying the current expenses of maintaining and conducting the said university, and for no other purpose; and all bills or demands paid by said board of regents from said fund shall, after payment thereof, be passed upon by the state board of examiners in the same manner as other claims against the State of Nevada, and when approved by said board of examiners the controller shall draw his warrant for the amount of such claim or claims, in favor of the university revolving fund, to be paid to the order of the board of regents.

An Act to empower the board of regents of the University of Nevada to establish emeritus positions, establishing the conditions and qualifications of those who shall benefit thereunder.

Emeritus positions authorized.

SECTION 1. The board of regents of the University of Nevada are hereby empowered to establish emeritus positions. When it shall be found that an employee of the university, who has served the university for at least fifteen years continuously, has, because of physical or mental disability, become unfit for further service, or such an employee has left a widow with insufficient support, the board of regents may, upon recommendation of the president of the university and the approval of the governor of the state, place such individual or his widow upon the pay-roll of the university at a salary which shall not be more than one-half of the average salary received by the employee for the period of five years previous to the date of retirement. The regents of the university shall include in the estimates for maintenance a sum necessary to meet this expenditure.

An Act to establish at the University of Nevada a state veterinary control service, defining its duties, and providing for the conduct of the same, and stating its relation to the state quarantine laws.

Approved March 11, 1915, 113

Control service established.

SECTION 1. The president and board of regents of the University of Nevada are hereby instructed to establish at the University of Nevada a laboratory, to be known as the state veterinary control service, for the diagnosis of infectious diseases among animals and the conduct of research into the nature, cause, and control of such diseases.

Equipment to be provided.

SEC. 2. The regents of the university shall, from any moneys appropriated therefor, purchase suitable equipment, apparatus, chemicals, and supplies for the maintenance of such veterinary control service at the university.

Veterinarian must be bacteriologist.

SEC. 3. The regents of the university shall, upon the recommendation of the president, appoint a qualified veterinarian, a bacteriologist, to conduct and direct said control service and shall grant him such assistants as they deem necessary. The individual thus appointed shall be known as the state quarantine officer.

Must enforce certain laws.

SEC. 4. In addition to his duties comprehended under the terms of this act, he shall be the official adviser and executive officer for the enforcement of the provisions contained in chapters 279 and 280 of the Session Laws of the State of Nevada, Twenty-sixth session, 1913; provided, however, that wherever in these acts the duties imposed upon such officer require the exercise of the police power of the state, he shall make his recommendation to the governor who shall take such action thereunder as he may deem wise.

Rules for conduct of service.

SEC. 5. The president and board of regents of the University of Nevada may make such rules and regulations for the conduct of the said veterinary control service and for the guidance of the state quarantine officer as they may deem wise for the proper conduct of the office of state quarantine officer, as herein provided. All moneys appropriated by the state provided for the expense of the enforcement of chapters 279 and 280 of the Session Laws of the State of Nevada, Twenty-sixth session, 1913, shall be expended with the approval of the president and board of regents of the University of Nevada.

VIRGINIA CITY SCHOOL OF MINES

VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION

An Act to accept the benefits of any act that may be passed by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, to provide for the promotion of vocational rehabilitation of persons disabled in industry, approved 1919.

Approved March 28, 1919, 329

Benefits of act accepted.

SECTION 1. That the State of Nevada does hereby accept the benefits of any act that may be passed by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, to provide for the promotion of vocational rehabilitation of persons disabled in industry or otherwise, and their return to safe employment, and will observe and comply with all of the requirements of said act.

State board of education authorized to act.

SEC. 2. That the state board of education is hereby designated as the state board for the purposes of the said act, and is hereby given all the necessary power to cooperate with the federal board for vocational education in the administration of the provisions of the act.

Joint action of said board.

SEC. 3. It shall be the duty of the state board of education to act jointly with the industrial commission in the administration, supervision, designation and support of the courses in vocational rehabilitation to be provided in carrying out the provisions of this act.

Powers of joint board.

SEC. 4. Said joint board shall have the power to provide courses in this state or other states, in their discretion, for vocational rehabilitation of injured persons; provided, however, that such arrangements shall be approved by the governor in writing.

State treasurer custodian of funds.

SEC. 5. That the state treasurer is hereby designated and appointed as custodian of the funds for vocational rehabilitation, and shall receive and provide for the proper custody and disbursement of moneys paid to the state from the appropriations made by said act, and of moneys hereinafter appropriated by the state for this purpose.

SEC. 6. [Carrying appropriation; omitted.]

WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS

HISTORICAL INTRODUCTION TO THE UNIFORM WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS ACT

In 1914 the Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws undertook the drafting of an Act to make uniform the laws of Warehouse Receipts, and engaged Professor Samuel Williston, of the Harvard Law School, and Mr. Barry Mohum, of the Washington Bar, to make the proposed draft. The preliminary work of the draftsmen was submitted to the Conference at its meeting at Narragansett Pier on August 18, 1905. A number of changes were made and the matter recommitted to the draftsmen to prepare a new draft.

During the ensuing winter and spring the Act was carefully considered at meetings of the American Warehousemen's Association and of a committee of the American Bankers Association. The draftsmen were present at these meetings and explained the provisions of the Act. Valuable suggestions as to the best usage in the business and as to the necessities of commerce were made by the warehousemen and bankers. With the added light furnished by suggestions and criticisms, a new draft was prepared and submitted to the Conference at St. Paul in August, 1906. This draft was considered section by section, both by the Committee on Commercial Law and by the Conference as a whole, and, with some changes embodied in its final form, was adopted and recommended to the Legislatures of the several States for passage. Forty-four States had enacted the Uniform Warehouse Receipts Act up to August 1, 1919.

An Act providing a general law on the subject of warehouse receipts, to be known as "The Warehouse Receipts Law."

Approved March 26, 1913, 424

Warehouse receipts.

SECTION 1. Warehouse receipts may be issued by any warehouseman.

What receipts shall embody—Warehouseman liable, when.

SEC. 2. Warehouse receipts need not be in any particular form, but every such receipt must embody within its written or printed terms—

- (a) The location of the warehouse where the goods are stored.
- (b) The date of issue of the receipt.
- (c) The consecutive number of the receipt.

(d) A statement whether the goods received will be delivered to the bearer, to a specified person, or to a specified person or his order.

(e) The rate of storage charges.

(f) A description of the goods or of the packages containing them.

(g) The signature of the warehouseman, which may be made by his authorized agent.

(h) The receipt is issued for goods of which the warehouseman is owner, either solely or jointly or in common with others, the fact of such ownership; and

(i) A statement of the amount of advances made and of liabilities incurred for which the warehouseman claims a lien. If the precise amount of such advances made or of such liabilities incurred is, at the time of the issue of the receipt, unknown to the warehouseman or to his agent who issues it, a statement of the fact that advances have been made or liabilities incurred and the purpose thereof is sufficient.

A warehouseman shall be liable to any person injured thereby for all damage caused by the omission from a negotiable receipt of any of the terms herein required.

Terms and conditions in receipt.

SEC. 3. A warehouseman may insert in a receipt, issued by him, any other terms and conditions, provided that such terms and conditions shall not—

(a) Be contrary to the provisions of this act.

(b) In any wise impair his obligation to exercise that degree of care in the safe-keeping of the goods entrusted to him which a reasonably careful man would exercise in regard to similar goods of his own.

Non-negotiable receipt.

SEC. 4. A receipt in which it is stated that the goods received will be delivered to the depositor, or to any other specified person, is a non-negotiable receipt.

Negotiable receipt.

SEC. 5. A receipt in which it is stated that the goods received will be delivered to the bearer, or to the order of any person named in such receipt, is a negotiable receipt. No provision shall be inserted in a negotiable receipt that it is non-negotiable. Such provision, if inserted, shall be void.

Duplicate, when.

SEC. 6. When more than one negotiable receipt is issued for the same goods, the word "duplicate" shall be plainly placed upon the face of every such receipt, except the one first issued. A warehouseman shall be liable for all damage caused by his failure so to do to any one who purchased the subsequent receipt for value supposing it to be an original, even though the purchase be after the delivery of the goods by the warehouseman to the holder of the original receipt.

Must bear words "non-negotiable" or "not negotiable."

SEC. 7. A non-negotiable receipt shall have plainly placed upon its face by the warehouseman issuing it "non-negotiable," or "not negotiable." In case of the warehouseman's failure so to do, a holder of the receipt who purchased it for value supposing it to be negotiable, may, at his option, treat such receipt as imposing upon the warehouseman the same liabilities he would have incurred had the receipt been negotiable. This section shall not apply, however, to letters, memoranda, or written acknowledgments of an informal character.

Warehouseman must deliver goods, when.

SEC. 8. A warehouseman, in the absence of some lawful excuse provided by this act, is bound to deliver the goods upon a demand made either by the holder of a receipt for the goods or by the depositor, if such demand is accompanied with—

- (a) An offer to satisfy the warehouseman's lien;
- (b) An offer to surrender the receipt if negotiable, with such indorsements as would be necessary for the negotiation of the receipt; and
- (c) A readiness and willingness to sign, when the goods are delivered, an acknowledgment that they have been delivered, if such signature is requested by the warehouseman.

In case the warehouseman refuses or fails to deliver the goods in compliance with a demand by the holder or depositor so accompanied, the burden shall be upon the warehouseman to establish the existence of a lawful excuse for such refusal.

To whom goods delivered.

SEC. 9. A warehouseman is justified in delivering the goods, subject to the provisions of the three following sections, to one who is—

- (a) The person lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods, or his agent,
- (b) A person who is either himself entitled to delivery by the terms of a non-negotiable receipt issued for the goods, or who has written authority from the person so entitled either indorsed upon the receipt or written upon another paper, or
- (c) A person in possession of a negotiable receipt by the terms of which the goods are deliverable to him or order or to bearer, or which has been endorsed to him or in blank by the person to whom delivery was promised by the terms of the receipt or by his mediate or immediate indorsee.

When warehouseman liable for illegal delivery.

SEC. 10. Where a warehouseman delivers the goods to one who is not in fact lawfully entitled to the possession of them, the warehouseman shall be liable as for conversion to all having a right of property or possession in the goods if he delivered the goods otherwise than as authorized by subdivisions (b) and (c) of the preceding section and though he delivered the goods as authorized by said subdivisions he shall be so liable, if prior to such delivery he had either

- (a) Been requested, by or on behalf of the person lawfully entitled to a right of property or possession in the goods, not to make such delivery; or
- (b) Had information that the delivery about to be made was to one not lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods.

Warehouseman liable, to whom.

SEC. 11. Except as provided in section 36, where a warehouseman delivers goods for which he had issued a negotiable receipt, the negotiation of which would transfer the right to the possession of the goods, and fails to take up and cancel the receipt, he shall be liable to any one who purchases for value in good faith such receipt, for failure to deliver the goods to him, whether such purchaser acquired title to the receipt before or after the delivery of the goods by the warehouseman.

Further liabilities.

SEC. 12. Except as provided in section 36, where a warehouseman delivers part of the goods for which he had issued a negotiable receipt and fails either to take up and cancel such receipt, or to place plainly upon it a statement of what goods or packages have been delivered he shall be liable, to any one who purchases for value in good faith such receipt, for failure to deliver all the goods specified in the receipt, whether such purchaser acquired title to the receipt before or after the delivery of any portion of the goods by the warehouseman.

Altered receipt no excuse.

SEC. 13. The alteration of a receipt shall not excuse the warehouseman who issued it from any liability if such alteration was—

- (a) Immaterial,
- (b) Authorized, or
- (c) Made without fraudulent intent.

If the alteration was authorized, the warehouseman shall be liable according to the terms of the receipt as altered. If the alteration was unauthorized, but made without fraudulent intent, the warehouseman shall be liable according to the terms of the receipt, as they were before alteration.

Material and fraudulent alteration of a receipt shall not excuse the warehouseman who issued it from liability to deliver, according to the terms of the receipt as originally issued, the goods for which it was issued, but shall excuse him from any other liability to the person who made the alteration and to any person who took with notice of the alteration. Any purchaser of the receipt for value without notice of the alteration shall acquire the same rights against the warehouseman which such purchaser would have acquired if the receipt had not been altered at the time of the purchase.

SEC. 14. Where a negotiable receipt has been lost or destroyed, a court of competent jurisdiction may order the delivery of the goods upon satisfactory proof of such loss or destruction and upon the giving of a bond with sufficient sureties to be approved by the court to protect the warehouseman from any liability or expense, which he or any person injured by such delivery may incur by reason of the original receipt remaining outstanding. The court may also in its discretion order the payment of the warehouseman's reasonable costs and counsel fees. The delivery of the goods under an order of the court, as provided in this section, shall not relieve the warehouseman from liability to a person to whom the negotiable receipt has been or shall be negotiated for value without notice of the proceedings or of the delivery of the goods.

Duplicate receipt.

SEC. 15. A receipt upon the face of which the word "duplicate" is plainly placed is a representation and warranty by the warehouseman that such receipt is an accurate copy of an original receipt properly issued and uncanceled at the date of the issue of the duplicate, but shall impose upon him no other liability.

Concerning transfers of title to goods.

SEC. 16. No title or right to the possession of the goods, on the part of the warehouseman, unless such title or right is derived directly or indirectly from a transfer made by the depositor at the time of or subsequent to the deposit for storage, or from the warehouseman's lien, shall excuse the warehouseman from liability for refusing to deliver the goods according to the terms of the receipt.

When title to goods is disputed.

SEC. 17. If more than one person claims the title or possession of the goods, the warehouseman may, either as a defense to an action brought against him for nondelivery of the goods, or as an original suit, whichever is appropriate, require all known claimants to interplead.

Warehouseman excused, when.

SEC. 18. If some one other than the depositor or person claiming under him has a claim to the title or possession of the goods, and the warehouseman has information of such claim, the warehouseman shall be excused from liability for refusing to deliver the goods, either to the depositor or person claiming under him or to the adverse claimant, until the warehouseman has had a reasonable time to ascertain the validity of the adverse claim or to bring legal proceedings to compel all claimants to interplead.

Third person's title no defense.

SEC. 19. Except as provided in the two preceding sections and in sections 9 and 36, no right or title of a third person shall be a defense to an action brought by the depositor or person claiming under him against the warehouseman for failure to deliver the goods according to the terms of the receipt.

Warehouseman liable for damages, when.

SEC. 20. A warehouseman shall be liable to the holder of a receipt for damages caused by the nonexistence of the goods or by the failure of the goods to correspond with the description thereof in the receipt at the time of its issue. If, however, the goods are described in a receipt merely by a statement of marks or labels upon them, or upon packages containing them, or by a statement that the goods are said to be goods of a certain kind, or that the packages containing the goods are said to contain goods of a certain kind, or by words of like purport, such statements, if true, shall not make liable the warehouseman issuing the receipt, although the goods are not of the kind which the marks or labels upon them indicate, or of the kind they were said to be by the depositor.

Liable for injury to goods.

SEC. 21. A warehouseman shall be liable for any loss or injury to the goods caused by his failure to exercise such care in regard to them as a reasonably careful owner of similar goods would exercise, but he shall not be liable, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, for any loss or injury to the goods which could not have been avoided by the exercise of such care.

To keep goods separate.

SEC. 22. Except as provided in the following section, a warehouseman shall keep the goods so far separate from goods of other depositors, and from other goods of the same depositor for which a separate receipt has been issued, as to permit at all times the identification and redelivery of the goods deposited.

Concerning fungible goods.

SEC. 23. If authorized by agreement or by custom, a warehouseman may mingle fungible goods with other goods of the same kind and grade. In such case the various depositors of the mingled goods shall own the entire mass in common and each depositor shall be entitled to such portion thereof as the amount deposited by him bears to the whole.

Liable to each depositor.

SEC. 24. The warehouseman shall be severally liable to each depositor for the care and redelivery of his share of such mass to the same extent and under the same circumstances as if the goods had been kept separate.

When goods exempt from garnishment.

SEC. 25. If goods are delivered to a warehouseman by the owner or by a person whose act in conveying the title to them to a purchaser in good faith for value would bind the owner, and a negotiable receipt is issued for them, they cannot thereafter, while in the possession of the warehouseman, be attached by garnishment or otherwise, or be levied upon under an execution, unless the receipt be first surrendered to the warehouseman, or its negotiation enjoined. The warehouseman shall in no case be compelled to deliver up the actual possession of the goods until the receipt is surrendered to him or impounded by the court.

Creditor's rights.

SEC. 26. A creditor whose debtor is the owner of a negotiable receipt shall be entitled to such aid from courts of appropriate jurisdiction, by injunction and otherwise, in attaching such receipt or in satisfying the claim by means thereof as is allowed at law or in equity, in regard to property which cannot readily be attached or levied upon by ordinary legal process.

When warehouseman has lien on goods.

SEC. 27. Subject to the provisions of section 30, a warehouseman shall have a lien on goods deposited or on the proceeds thereof in his hands, for all lawful charges for storage and preservation of the goods; also for all lawful claims for money advanced, interest, insurance, transportation, labor, weighing, coopering and other charges and expenses in relation to such goods; also for all reasonable charges and expenses for notice, and advertisements of sale, and for sale of the goods where default has been made in satisfying the warehouseman's lien.

SEC. 28. Subject to the provisions of section 30 a warehouseman's lien may be enforced—

(a) Against all goods, whenever deposited, belonging to the person who is liable as debtor for the claims in regard to which the lien is asserted, and

(b) Against all goods belonging to others which have been deposited at any time by the person who is liable as debtor for the claims in regard to which the lien is asserted if such person has been so entrusted with the possession of the goods that a pledge of the same by him at the time of the deposit to one who took the goods in good faith for value would have been valid.

Lien lost, how.

SEC. 29. A warehouseman loses his lien upon goods—

(a) By surrendering possession thereof; or

(b) By refusing to deliver the goods when a demand is made with which he is bound to comply under the provisions of this act.

No lien, when.

SEC. 30. If a negotiable receipt is issued for goods, the warehouseman shall have no lien thereon, except for charges for storage of those goods subsequent to the date of the receipt, unless the receipt expressly enumerates other charges for which a lien is claimed. In such case there shall be a lien for the charges enumerated so far as they are within the terms of section 27, although the amount of the charges so enumerated is not stated in the receipt.

Valid lien authorizes refusal to deliver.

SEC. 31. A warehouseman having a lien valid against the person demanding the goods may refuse to deliver the goods to him until the lien is satisfied.

Warehouseman entitled to all legal remedies.

SEC. 32. Whether a warehouseman has or has not a lien upon the goods, he is entitled to all remedies allowed by law to a creditor against his debtor, for the collection from the depositor of all charges and advances which the depositor has expressly or impliedly contracted with the warehouseman to pay.

Lien due, how satisfied.

SEC. 33. A warehouseman's lien for a claim which has become due may be satisfied as follows:

The warehouseman shall give a written notice to the person on whose account the goods are held, and to any other person known by the warehouseman to claim an interest in the goods. Such notice shall be given by delivery in person or by registered letter addressed to the last known place of business or abode of the person to be notified. The notice shall contain—

(a) An itemized statement of the warehouseman's claim, showing the sum due at the time of the notice and the date or dates when it became due.

(b) A brief description of the goods against which the lien exists.

(c) A demand that the amount of the claim as stated in the notice, and of such further claim as shall accrue, shall be paid on or before a day mentioned, not less than ten days from the delivery of the notice if it is personally delivered, or from the time when the notice should reach its destination, according to the due course of post, if the notice is sent by mail; and

(d) A statement that unless the claim is paid within the time specified the goods will be advertised for sale and sold by auction at a specified time and place.

In accordance with the terms of a notice so given, a sale of the goods by auction may be had to satisfy any valid claim of the warehouseman for which he has a lien on the goods. The sale shall be had in the place where the lien was acquired, or, if such place is manifestly unsuitable for the purpose, at the nearest suitable place. After the time for the payment of the claim specified in the notice to the depositor has elapsed, an advertisement of the sale, describing the goods to be sold, and stating the name of the owner or person on whose account the goods are held, and the time and place of the sale, shall be published once a week for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper published in the place where such sale is to be held. The sale shall not be held less than fifteen days from the time of the first publication. If there is no newspaper published in such place, the advertisement shall be posted at least ten days before such sale in not less than six conspicuous places therein.

From the proceeds of such sale the warehouseman shall satisfy his lien, including the reasonable charges of notice, advertisement, and sale. The balance, if any, of such proceeds shall be held by the warehouseman, and delivered on demand to the person to whom he would have been bound to deliver or justified in delivering the goods.

At any time before the goods are so sold any person claiming a right of property or possession therein may pay the warehouseman the amount necessary to satisfy his lien and to pay the reasonable expenses and liabilities incurred in serving notices and advertising and preparing for the sale up to the time of such payment. The warehouseman shall deliver the goods to the person making such payment if he is a person entitled, under the provisions of this act, to the possession of the goods on payment of charges thereon. Otherwise the warehouseman shall retain possession of the goods according to the terms of the original contract of deposit.

SEC. 34. If goods are of a perishable nature, or by keeping will deteriorate greatly in value, or by their odor, leakage, inflammability, or explosive nature, will be liable to injure other property, the warehouseman may give such notice to the owner, or to the person in whose name the goods are stored, as is reasonable and possible under the circumstances, to satisfy the lien upon such goods, and to remove them from the warehouse, and in the event of the failure of such person to satisfy the lien and to remove the goods within the time so specified, the warehouseman may sell the goods at public or private sale without advertising. If the warehouseman after a reasonable effort is unable to sell such goods, he may dispose of them in any lawful manner, and shall incur no liability by reason thereof. The proceeds of any sale made under the terms of this section shall be disposed of in the same way as the proceeds of sales made under the terms of the preceding section.

Remedy not exclusive.

SEC. 35. The remedy for enforcing a lien herein provided does not preclude any other remedies allowed by law for the enforcement of a lien against personal property nor bar the right to recover so much of the warehouseman's claim as shall not be paid by the proceeds of the sale of the property.

When warehouseman not liable.

SEC. 36. After goods have been lawfully sold to satisfy a warehouseman's lien, or have been lawfully sold or disposed of because of their perishable or hazardous nature, the warehouseman shall not thereafter be liable for failure to deliver the goods to the depositor, or owner of the goods, or to a holder of the receipt given for the goods when they were deposited, even if such receipt be negotiable.

Receipts, how negotiated—By delivery—By endorsement.

SEC. 37. A negotiable receipt may be negotiated by delivery—

(a) Where, by the terms of the receipt, the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the bearer, or

(b) Where, by the terms of the receipt, the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of a specified person, and such person or a subsequent indorsee of the receipt has indorsed it in blank or to bearer.

Where, by the terms of a negotiable receipt, the goods are deliverable to bearer or where a negotiable receipt has been indorsed in blank or to bearer, any holder may indorse the same to himself or to any other specified person, and in such case the receipt shall thereafter be negotiated only by the indorsement of such indorsee.

Transfer of receipt.

SEC. 38. A negotiable receipt may be negotiated by the indorsement of the person to whose order the goods are, by the terms of the receipt, deliverable. Such indorsement may be in blank, to bearer or to a specified person. If indorsed to a specified person, it may be again negotiated by the indorsement of such person in blank, to bearer or to another specified person. Subsequent negotiation may be made in like manner.

Non-negotiable receipt, how transferred.

SEC. 39. A receipt which is not in such form that it can be negotiated by delivery may be transferred by the holder by delivery to a purchaser or donee. A non-negotiable receipt cannot be negotiated, and the indorsement of such a receipt gives the transferee no additional right.

Negotiable receipt, how negotiated.

SEC. 40. A negotiable receipt may be negotiated—

(a) By the owner thereof; or

(b) By any person to whom the possession or custody of the receipt has been entrusted by the owner, if, by the terms of the receipt, the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of the person to whom the possession or custody of the receipt has been entrusted, or if at the time of such entrusting the receipt is in such form that it may be negotiated by delivery.

What negotiable receipt transfers.

SEC. 41. A person to whom a negotiable receipt has been duly negotiated acquires thereby—

(a) Such title to the goods as the person negotiating the receipt to him had or had ability to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value, and also such title to the goods as the depositor or person to whose order the goods were to be delivered by the terms of the receipt had or had ability to convey to a purchaser in good faith for value, and

(b) The direct obligation of the warehouseman to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the receipt as fully as if the warehouseman had contracted directly with him.

What transferred receipt includes.

SEC. 42. A person to whom a receipt has been transferred but not negotiated, acquires thereby, as against the transferor, the title of the goods, subject to the terms of any agreement with the transferor.

If the receipt is non-negotiable such person also acquires the right to notify the warehouseman of the transfer to him of such receipt, and thereby to acquire the direct obligation of the warehouseman to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the receipt.

Prior to the notification of the warehouseman by the transferor or transferee of a non-negotiable receipt, the title of the transferee to the goods and the right to acquire the obligation of the warehouseman may be defeated by the levy of an attachment or execution upon the goods by a creditor of the transferor, or by a notification to the warehouseman by the transferor or a subsequent purchaser from the transferor of a subsequent sale of the goods by the transferor.

SEC. 43. Where a negotiable receipt is transferred for value by delivery, and the indorsement of the transferor is essential for negotiation, the transferee acquires a right against the transferor to compel him to indorse the receipt, unless a contrary intention appears. The negotiation shall take effect as of the time when the indorsement is actually made.

What transfer of receipt warrants.

SEC. 44. A person who for value negotiates or transfers a receipt by indorsement or delivery, including one who assigns for value a claim secured by a receipt, unless a contrary intention appears, warrants—

(a) That the receipt is genuine,

(b) That he has a legal right to negotiate or transfer it,

(c) That he has knowledge of no fact which would impair the validity or worth of the receipt, and

(d) That he has a right to transfer the title to the goods and that the goods are merchantable or fit for a particular purpose whenever such warranties would have been implied, if the contract of the parties had been to transfer without a receipt the goods represented thereby.

Indorser not liable, when.

SEC. 45. The indorsement of a receipt shall not make the indorser liable for any failure on the part of the warehouseman or previous indorsers of the receipt to fulfil their respective obligations.

Pledgee does not warrant genuineness.

SEC. 46. A mortgagee, pledgee, or holder for security of a receipt who in good faith demands or receives payment of the debt for which such receipt is security, whether from a party to a draft drawn for such debt or from any other person, shall not by so doing be deemed to represent or to warrant the genuineness of such receipt or the quantity or quality of the goods therein described.

Validity not impaired, when.

SEC. 47. The validity of the negotiation of a receipt is not impaired by the fact that such negotiation was a breach of duty on the part of the person making the negotiation, or by the fact that the owner of the receipt was induced by fraud, mistake, or duress to entrust the possession or custody of the receipt to such person, if the person to whom the receipt was negotiated, or a person to whom the receipt was subsequently negotiated, paid value therefor, without notice of the breach of duty, or fraud, mistake or duress.

Effect of sale or mortgage of goods.

SEC. 48. Where a person having sold, mortgaged, or pledged goods which are in a warehouse and for which a negotiable receipt has been issued, or having sold, mortgaged, or pledged the negotiable receipt representing such goods, continues in possession of the negotiable receipt, the subsequent negotiation thereof by that person under any sale, or other disposition thereof to any person receiving the same in good faith, for value and without notice of the previous sale, mortgage or pledge, shall have the same effect as if the first purchaser of the goods or receipt had expressly authorized the subsequent negotiation.

Rights of purchaser in good faith not defeated, when.

SEC. 49. Where a negotiable receipt has been issued for goods, no seller's lien or right of stoppage in transitu shall defeat the rights of any purchaser for value in good faith to whom such receipt has been negotiated, whether such negotiations be prior or subsequent to the notification to the warehouseman who issued such receipt of the seller's claim to a lien or right of stoppage in transitu. Nor shall the warehouseman be obliged to deliver or justified in delivering the goods to an unpaid seller unless the receipt is first surrendered for cancelation.

False receipt, when issue of, is crime.

SEC. 50. A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman, who issues or aids in issuing a receipt knowing that the goods for which such receipt is issued have not been actually received by such warehouseman, or are not under his actual control at the time of issuing such receipt, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding five years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by both.

False statement in receipt punished.

SEC. 51. A warehouseman, or any officer, agent or servant of a warehouseman, who fraudulently issues or aids in fraudulently issuing a receipt for goods knowing that it contains any false statement, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both.

Fraudulent receipts, issue of, how punished.

SEC. 52. A warehouseman, or any officer, agent or servant of a warehouseman, who issues or aids in issuing a duplicate or additional negotiable receipt for goods knowing that a former negotiable receipt for the same goods or any part of them is outstanding and uncanceled, without plainly placing upon the face thereof the word "Duplicate," except in the case of a lost or destroyed receipt after proceedings as provided for in section 14, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding five years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars or by both.

Other fraudulent acts, crimes.

SEC. 53. Where there are deposited with or held by a warehouseman goods of which he is owner, either solely or jointly or in common with others, such warehouseman, or any of his officers, agents, or servants who, knowing this ownership, issues or aids in issuing a negotiable receipt for such goods which does not state such ownership, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both.

Unlawful delivery of goods a crime.

SEC. 54. A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman who delivers goods out of the possession of such warehouseman, knowing that a negotiable receipt the negotiation of which would transfer the right to the possession of such goods is outstanding and uncanceled, without obtaining the possession of such receipt at or before the time of such delivery, shall, except in the cases provided for in sections 14 and 36, be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both.

Deposit of goods by one who has no title a crime.

SEC. 55. Any person who deposits goods to which he has not title, or upon which there is a lien or mortgage, and who takes for such goods a negotiable receipt which he afterwards negotiates for value with intent to deceive and without disclosing his want of title or the existence of the lien or mortgage, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both.

Rules of law and equity to govern.

SEC. 56. In any case not provided for in this act, the rules of law and equity, including the law merchant, and in particular the rules relating to the law of principal and agent and to the effect of fraud, misrepresentation, duress or coercion, mistake, bankruptcy, or other invalidating cause, shall govern.

Law, how interpreted.

SEC. 57. This act shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it.

Definition of terms.

SEC. 58. (1) In this act, unless the context or subject-matter otherwise requires—

"Action" includes counter-claim, set-off, and suit in equity.

"Delivery" means voluntary transfer of possession from one person to another.

"Fungible goods" means goods of which any unit is, from its nature or by mercantile custom, treated as the equivalent of any other unit.

"Goods" means chattels or merchandise in storage, or which has been or is about to be stored.

"Holder" of a receipt means a person who has both actual possession of such receipt and a right of property therein.

"Order" means an order by indorsement on the receipt.

"Owner" does not include mortgagee or pledgee.

"Person" includes a corporation or partnership or two or more persons having a joint common interest.

To "purchase" includes to take as mortgagee or as pledgee.

"Purchaser" includes mortgagee and pledgee.

"Receipt" means a warehouse receipt.

"Value" is any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract. An antecedent or preexisting obligation, whether for money or not, constitutes value where a receipt is taken either in satisfaction thereof or as security therefor.

"Warehousman" means a person lawfully engaged in the business of storing goods for profit.

(2) A thing is done "in good faith" within the meaning of this act, when it is in fact done honestly, whether it be done negligently or not.

Not retroactive.

SEC. 59. The provisions of this act do not apply to receipts made and delivered prior to the taking effect of this act.

Repeal.

SEC. 60. All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

Title of act.

SEC. 61. This act shall be known as the "Warehouse Receipts Law."

4677. This section and the Water Law (Stats. 1913, 192) provide that in all measurements of water a cubic foot of water per second of time shall be the standard of measurement. Plaintiff sued defendant to have adjudged that he was the owner of three-eighths of the water of a creek, and the court so decreed and enjoined defendant from diverting such three-eighths of the water or any part thereof from the stream. Held, that the decree was too uncertain as to the quantity of water to which plaintiff was entitled, but should use the standard of measurement described by the statutes or by some measurement readily translatable therein. Ramelli v. Sorgi, 38 Nev. 552, 558 (149 P. 71).

An Act to provide a water law for the State of Nevada; providing a system of state control; creating the office of the state engineer and other offices connected with the appropriation, distribution and use of water, prescribing the duties and powers of the state engineer and other officers and fixing their compensation; prescribing the duties of water users and providing penalties for failure to perform such duties; providing for the appointment of water commissioners, defining their duties and fixing their compensation; providing for a fee system, for the certification of records, and an official seal for the state engineer's office; providing for an appropriation to carry out the provisions of this act; and other matters properly connected therewith, and to repeal all acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act, repealing an act to provide for the appropriation, distribution and use of water, and to define and preserve existing water rights, to provide for the appointment of a state engineer, an assistant state engineer, and fixing their compensation, duties and powers, defining the duties of the state board of irrigation, providing for the appointment of water commissioners and defining their duties, approved February 26, 1907; also repealing an act amendatory of a certain act entitled "An act to provide for the appropriation, distribution and use of water, and to define and preserve existing water rights, to provide for the appointment of a state engineer and assistant state engineer, and fixing their compensation, duties and powers, defining the duties of the state board of irrigation, providing for the appointment of water commissioners and defining their duties, approved February 26, 1907, and to provide a fee system for the certification of the records of, and an official seal for the state engineer's office and other matters relating thereto," approved February 20, 1909.

Approved March 22, 1913, 192

GENERAL PROVISIONS

All water public property.

SECTION 1. The water of all sources of water supply within the boundaries of the state, whether above or beneath the surface of the ground, belongs to the public.

Cited, Bergman v. Kearney, 241 F. 892, 896.

Beneficial use.

SEC. 2. Subject to existing rights, all such water may be appropriated for beneficial use as provided in this act and not otherwise.

Cited, Bergman v. Kearney, 241 F. 892, 896.

Basis.

SEC. 3. Beneficial use shall be the basis, the measure and the limit of the right to the use of water.

Provisions for use.

SEC. 4. All water used in this state for beneficial purposes shall remain appurtenant to the place of use; provided, that if for any reason it should at any time become impracticable to beneficially or economically use water at the place to which it is appurtenant, said right may be severed from such place of use and simultaneously transferred and become appurtenant to other place or places of use, in the manner provided in this act, and not otherwise, without losing priority of right heretofore established; and provided, that the provisions of this section shall not apply in cases of ditch or canal companies which have appropriated water for diversion and transmission to the lands of private persons at an annual charge.

Right to divert ceases, when.

SEC. 5. When the necessity for the use of water does not exist, the right to divert it ceases, and no person shall be permitted to divert or use the waters of this state except at such times as the water is required for a beneficial purpose.

Right of eminent domain.

SEC. 6. The beneficial use of water is hereby declared a public use, and any person may exercise the right of eminent domain to condemn all lands and other property or rights required for the construction, use and maintenance of any works for the lawful diversion, conveyance and storage of waters.

Relative to storage.

SEC. 7. Water may be stored for a beneficial purpose. Water turned into any natural channel or watercourse by any person entitled to the use thereof, whether stored in Nevada or in an adjoining state, may be claimed for beneficial use below, and diverted from said channel or watercourse by such person, subject to existing rights, due allowance for losses to be made, as determined by the state engineer.

Regulations as to use and appropriation.

SEC. 8. Rights to the use of water shall be limited and restricted to so much thereof as may be necessary, when reasonably and economically used for irrigation and other beneficial purposes, irrespective of the carrying capacity of the ditch; and all the balance of the water not so appropriated shall be allowed to flow in the natural stream from which such ditch draws its supply of water, and shall not be considered as having been appropriated thereby; and in case the owner or owners of any such ditch, canal or reservoir shall fail to use the water therefrom for beneficial purposes for which right exists during any five successive years, the right to use shall be considered as having been abandoned, and they shall forfeit all water rights, easements and privileges appurtenant thereto, and the water formerly appropriated by them may be again appropriated for beneficial use, the same as if such ditch, canal or reservoir had never been constructed. As amended, Stats. 1917, 353.

Standards of measurement.

SEC. 9. A cubic foot of water per second of time shall be the legal standard for the measurement of water in this state. The unit of volume shall be an acre-foot defined as 43,560 cubic feet. Where necessary to transpose miners inches to cubic feet per second, one cubic foot per second shall be considered equal to forty miners inches; but the term "miners inch" shall not be used henceforth in any permit or adjudicated right issuing from the office of the state engineer without first naming the amount in cubic feet per second or in acre-feet.

Stats. 1913, 197, sec. 10, repealed, Stats. 1919, 197. Section 1, Stats. 1919, 197, is a substitute therefor.

Maximum amount allowed.

SEC. 11. The maximum quantity of water which may hereafter be appropriated in this state for irrigation purposes shall be as follows:

Where the water is diverted for direct irrigation, not to exceed one one-hundredth of one cubic foot per second for each acre of land irrigated; the measurement to be taken where the main ditch enters or becomes adjacent to the land to be irrigated; due allowance for losses to be made by the state engineer in permitting additional water to be diverted into said ditch.

Where water is stored, not to exceed four acre-feet for each acre of land to be supplied; that is, four acre-feet per acre stored in the reservoir, the losses of evaporation and transmission to be borne by the appropriator.

Oath and bond of state engineer.

SEC. 12. Before entering upon the duties of his office, the state engineer shall take and subscribe to an official oath, such as is provided by law for state officers, before some officer authorized by the law of the state to administer oaths, and shall file with the secretary of state said oath and his official bond in the penal sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000) with not less than two sureties to be approved by the governor, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties and for the delivery to his successor or other person to be appointed by the governor to receive the same, all maps, papers, books, instruments and other property belonging to the state then in his hands and under his control, or with which he may be chargeable, to such officer.

Stats. 1913, 194, sec. 13, repealed, Stats. 1919, 197. Sec. 2, Stats. 1919, 197, is a substitute therefor.

Biennial report.

SEC. 14. The state engineer shall prepare and deliver to the governor, as soon as possible after December 31 of the year preceding the regular session of the legislature, and at such other times as may be required by the governor, a full report of the work of his office, including a detailed statement of the expenditures thereof, with such recommendations as he may deem advisable.

Records of office open.

SEC. 15. The records of the office of the state engineer are public records and shall remain on file in his office and be open to the inspection of the public at all times during business hours. Such records shall show in full all maps, profiles, and engineering data relating to the use of water, and certified copies thereof shall be admissible as evidence in all cases where the original would be admissible as evidence.

May administer oaths.

SEC. 16. The state engineer and his authorized assistants may administer such oaths as may be necessary in the performance of their official duties.

Office hours.

SEC. 17. The state engineer shall keep his office open to the public from the hours of 9 o'clock a. m. to 12 o'clock m., and from 1 o'clock p. m. to 4:30 o'clock p. m. each day, Sundays and holidays excepted.

Determination of rights, how effected.

SEC. 18. Upon a petition to the state engineer, signed by one or more water users of any stream or stream system, requesting the determination of the relative rights of the various claimants to the waters thereof, it shall be the duty of the state engineer, if upon investigation he finds the facts and conditions justify it, to enter an order granting said petition and to make proper arrangements to proceed with such determination; provided, however, that it shall be the duty of the state engineer, in the absence of such a petition requesting a determination of relative rights, to enter an order for the determination of the relative rights to the use of water, of any stream selected by him; commencing on the streams in the order of their importance for irrigation. As soon as practicable after said order is made and entered, it shall be the duty of the state engineer to proceed with such determination as hereinafter provided. A water user upon or from any stream or body of water shall be held and deemed to be a water user upon the stream system of which said stream or body of water is a part or tributary.

Publication of orders.

SEC. 19. As soon as practicable after the state engineer shall make and enter the order granting the said petition or selecting the streams upon which the determination of rights is to begin, he shall prepare a notice setting forth the fact of the entry of the said order and of the pendency of the said proceedings, which notice shall name a date when the state engineer or his assistants shall begin said examination, and shall set forth that all claimants to rights in the waters of said stream system are required, as in this act provided, to make proof of their claims, which notice shall be published for a period of four consecutive weeks in one or more newspapers of general circulation within the boundaries of said stream system.

Investigation of flow of streams and ditches.

SEC. 20. At the time set in said notice, the state engineer shall begin an investigation of the flow of the stream and of the ditches diverting water, and of the lands irrigated therefrom, and shall gather such other data and information as may be essential to the proper determination of the water rights in the stream. He shall reduce his observations and measurements to writing, and execute or cause to be executed, surveys, and shall prepare, or cause to be prepared, maps from the observations of such surveys in accordance with such uniform rules and regulations as he may adopt, which surveys and maps shall show with substantial accuracy the course of the said stream, the location of each ditch or canal diverting water therefrom, together with the point of diversion thereof, the area and outline of each parcel of land upon which the water of the stream has been employed for the irrigation of crops or pasture, and indicating the kind of culture upon each of the said parcels of land, which map shall be prepared as the surveys and observations progress, and which, when completed, shall be filed and made of record in the office of the state engineer; provided, however, that such map for original filing in his office shall be on tracing linen on a scale of not less than one thousand feet to the inch.

Data of U. S. geological survey may be used—Provision regarding maps.

SEC. 21. In the event that satisfactory data are available from the measurements and areas compiled by the United States geological survey, or other persons, the state engineer may dispense with the execution of such surveys and the preparation of such maps and stream measurements, except in so far as is necessary to prepare them to conform with the rules and regulations, as above provided. In the further event that said surveys are executed and maps are prepared and filed with the state engineer at the instance of the person claiming a right to the use of water, the proportionate cost thereof, as determined by the state engineer to be assessed and collected for the adjudication of the relative rights, as hereinafter provided, shall be remitted to said claimant after the completion of the determination; provided, however, that the map must conform with the rules and regulations of the state engineer and shall be accepted only after the state engineer is satisfied that the data shown thereon are substantially correct. Such measurements, maps and determinations shall be exhibited for inspection at the time of taking proofs and during the period during which such proofs and evidence are kept open for inspection in accordance with the provisions of this act.

Proofs, procedure regarding—Publication of notice.

SEC. 22. Upon the filing of such measurements, maps and determinations, the state engineer shall prepare a notice setting forth the date when the said state engineer is to commence the taking of said proofs, as to the rights in and to the waters of said stream system, and the date prior to which the same must be filed; provided, however, that the date set prior to which said proofs must be filed shall not be less than sixty days from the date set for the commencement of the taking of said proofs, which notice shall be deemed to be an order of the state engineer as to its contents, and which notice the state engineer shall cause to be published for a period of four consecutive weeks in one or more newspapers of general circulation within the boundaries of the said stream system, the date of the last publication of the said notice to be not less than fifteen (15) days prior to the date fixed for the commencement of the taking of proofs by the said state engineer. At or near the time of the first publication of said notice it shall be the duty of the said state engineer to send by registered mail to each person, or deliver to each person, in person, hereinafter designated as claimant, claiming rights in or to the waters of said stream system, in so far as such claimants can be reasonably ascertained, a notice equivalent in terms to the said published notice setting forth the date when the said state engineer will commence the said taking of proofs, and the date prior to which said proofs must be filed with the state engineer. Said notice must be mailed at least thirty (30) days prior to the date fixed for the commencement of the taking of said proofs.

Statement regarding rights.

SEC. 23. The state engineer shall, in addition, enclose with the notice to be mailed as aforesaid, blank forms upon which said claimant shall present in writing all particulars necessary for the determination of his right in or to the waters of said stream system, the said statement to include the following:

- (a) The name and postoffice address of the claimant.
- (b) The nature of the right or use on which the claim for appropriation is based.
- (c) The time of the initiation of such right and a description of works of diversion and distribution.
- (d) The date of beginning of construction.
- (e) The date when completed.
- (f) The dates of beginning and completion of enlargements.
- (g) The dimensions of the ditch as originally constructed and as enlarged.
- (h) The date when water was first used for irrigation or other beneficial purposes, and if used for irrigation, the amount of land reclaimed the first year, the amount in subsequent years, with the dates of reclamation, and the area and location of the lands which are intended to be irrigated.
- (i) The character of the soil and the kind of crops cultivated, the number of acre-feet of water per annum required to irrigate the land, and such other facts as will show the extent and nature of the right and a compliance with the law in acquiring the same, as may be required by the state engineer.

interested, and to issue subpoenas and compel the attendance of witnesses to testify at such hearings, which shall be served in the same manner as subpoenas issued out of the district courts of the state. He shall have the power to administer oaths to witnesses. In the case of neglect or refusal on the part of any person to comply with any order of the state engineer or any subpoena, or on the refusal of any witness to testify to any matter regarding which he may be lawfully interrogated, it shall be the duty of the district court of any county, or any judge thereof, on application of the state engineer, to issue attachment proceedings for contempt, as in the case of disobedience of a subpoena issued from such court, or a refusal to testify therein. Said witnesses shall receive fees as in civil cases, the costs to be taxed in the same manner as in civil actions in this state. The evidence in such proceedings shall be confined to the subjects enumerated in the notice of contest and answer and reply, when the same are permitted to be filed. All testimony taken at such hearings shall be reported and transcribed in its entirety. As amended, Stats. 1915, 379.

Engineer to make rules governing contests.

SEC. 31. The state engineer shall have power to make rules, not in conflict herewith, governing the practice and procedure in all contests before his office, to insure the proper and orderly exercise of the powers herein granted, and the speedy accomplishment of the purposes of this act. Such rules of practice and procedure shall be furnished to any person upon application therefor.

Contestants to pay expenses.

SEC. 32. The state engineer shall require a deposit of five dollars ($5) from each party for each day he shall be so engaged in taking evidence of such contest. Upon the final determination of the matters in the contest the money so deposited shall be refunded to the person in whose favor such contest shall be determined, and all moneys deposited by other parties therein shall be turned into the general fund of the state treasury upon the next monthly transmission of fees to said state treasurer.

Engineer to make and record order determining rights.

SEC. 33. As soon as practicable after the hearing of contests, it shall be the duty of the state engineer to make, and cause to be entered of record in his office, an order determining and establishing the several rights to the waters of said stream; provided, however, that within sixty days after the entry of an order establishing water rights, the state engineer may, for good cause shown, reopen the proceedings and grant a rehearing. Such order of determination shall be certified to by the state engineer, and as many copies as required printed in the state printing office. A copy of said order of determination shall be sent by registered mail, or delivered in person, to each person who has filed proof of claim, and to each person who has become interested through intervention or as a contestant under the provisions of section 26 or section 29 of this act. As amended, Stats. 1915, 379.

Regulations concerning order.

SEC. 34. As soon as practicable thereafter a certified copy of the order of determination, together with the original evidence and transcript of testimony filed with, or taken before, the state engineer, as aforesaid, duly certified by him, shall be filed with the clerk of the county, as ex officio clerk of the district court, in which said stream system is situated, or if in more than one county but all within one judicial district, then with the said clerk of the county wherein reside the largest number of parties in interest. But if such stream system shall be in two or more judicial districts, then the state engineer shall notify the district judge of each of such judicial districts of his intent to file such order of determination, whereupon, within ten days after receipt of such notice, such judges shall confer and agree where the court proceedings under this act shall be held and upon the judge who shall preside, and on notification thereof the state engineer shall file said order of determination, evidence, and transcripts with the clerk of the court so designated; provided, that if such district judges fail to notify the state engineer of their agreement, as aforesaid, within five days after the expiration of such ten days, then, and in that event, the state engineer may file such order of determination, evidence, and transcript with the clerk of any county he may elect, and the district judge of such county shall have jurisdiction over the proceedings in relation thereto. In all instances a certified copy of the order of determination shall be filed with the county clerk of each county in which such stream system, or any part thereof, is situated. Upon the filing of the certified copy of said order, evidence, and transcript with the clerk of the court in which the proceedings are to be had, the state engineer shall procure an order from said court setting the time for hearing. The clerk of such court shall immediately furnish the state engineer with a certified copy thereof. It shall be the duty of the state engineer immediately thereupon to mail a copy of such certified order of the court, by registered mail, addressed to each such party in interest at his last known place of residence, and to cause the same to be published at least once a week for four consecutive weeks in some newspaper of general circulation published in each county in which such stream system or any part thereof is located, and the state engineer shall file with the clerk of the court proof of such service by registered mail and by publication. And such service by registered mail and by publication shall be deemed full and sufficient notice to all parties in interest of the date and purpose of such hearing. As amended, Stats. 1915, 380.

Exceptions to order, how made—Decree of court, when.

SEC. 35. At least five days prior to the day set for hearing all parties in interest who are aggrieved or dissatisfied with the order of determination of the state engineer shall file with the clerk of said court notice of exceptions to the order of determination of the state engineer, which notice shall state briefly the exceptions taken, and the prayer for relief, and a copy thereof shall be served upon or transmitted to the state engineer by registered mail. The order of determination by the state engineer and the statements or claims of claimants and exceptions made to the order of determination shall constitute the pleadings and there shall be no other pleadings in the cause. If no exceptions shall have been filed with the clerk of the court as aforesaid, then on the day set for the hearing, on motion of the state engineer, or his attorney, the court shall enter a decree affirming said order of determination. On the day set for hearing all parties in interest who have filed notices of exceptions as aforesaid shall appear in person or by counsel, and it shall be the duty of the court to hear the same or set the time for hearing, until such exceptions are disposed of, and all proceedings thereunder shall be as nearly as may be in accordance with the rules governing civil actions. As amended, Stats. 1915, 381.

Experts may be called—Costs, how assessed.

SEC. 36. For further information on any subject in controversy the court may employ one or more qualified persons to investigate and report thereon under oath, subject to examination by any party in interest as to his competency to give expert testimony thereon. The court, may, if necessary, refer the case or any part thereof for such further evidence to be taken by the state engineer as it may direct, and may require a further determination by him, subject to the court's instructions. After the hearing, the court shall enter a decree affirming or modifying the order of the state engineer. Upon the hearing the court may assess and adjudge against any party such costs as it may deem just and equitable, or may assess the costs in proportion to the amount of water right allotted. Appeals from such decree may be taken to the supreme court by the state engineer or any party in interest, in the same manner and with the same effect as in civil cases. As amended, Stats. 1915, 381.

Operation of order stayed, how—Bond.

SEC. 39. At any time after the order of determination, evidence and transcript has been filed with the clerk of the court, as aforesaid, the operation of said order of determination may be stayed in whole or in part by any party upon filing a bond in the court wherein such determination is pending in such amount as the judge thereof may prescribe, conditioned that such party will pay all damage that may accrue by reason of such determination not being enforced, pending decree by said court. Immediately upon the filing and approval of such bond, the clerk of the court shall transmit to the state engineer a certified copy of such bond, which shall be recorded in the records of his office, and he shall act in accordance with such stay. As amended, Stats. 1915, 382.

Joint defendants, who are—Suits may be transferred.

SEC. 45. In any suit which may be brought in any district court in the state for the determination of a right or rights to the use of water of any stream, all persons who claim the right to use the waters of such stream and the stream system of which it is a part shall be made parties. When any such suit has been filed, the court shall, by its order duly entered, direct the state engineer to furnish a complete hydrographic survey of such stream system, which survey shall be made as provided in section 20 of this act, in order to obtain all physical data necessary to the determination of the rights involved. The cost of such suit, including the costs on behalf of the state and of such surveys, shall be charged against each of the private parties thereto in proportion to the amount of water right allotted. In the case of any such suit now pending or hereafter commenced the same may at any time after its inception, in the discretion of the court, be transferred to the state engineer for determination as in this act provided.

Appropriation for hydrographic fund.

SEC. 46. For the purpose of advancing the money required for any surveys so ordered by the court, there is hereby appropriated and set apart, from any moneys in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000) to be known as the hydrographic fund, which shall be a continuous fund. Such fund shall be used only for the payment of claims for services rendered, expenses incurred, or materials and supplies furnished under the direction of the state engineer in the prosecution of said work, which claims shall be paid by the state treasurer on warrants drawn by the state controller upon certificates of the state engineer. The amounts paid by the parties to said suit, on account of said surveys, shall be paid into said hydrographic fund.

"Stream system" defined.

SEC. 47. The words "stream system," as used in this act, shall be interpreted as including any stream, together with its tributaries and all streams or bodies of water to which the same may be tributary.

"Person" defined.

SEC. 48. The word "person," where used in this act, includes a corporation, an association, the United States, the state, as well as a natural person.

"State engineer" defined.

SEC. 49. Wherever the words "state engineer" are used in this act it shall be deemed to mean the state engineer or any duly authorized assistant.

Claimants must furnish blue-prints.

SEC. 50. The state engineer shall have power to make and enforce such reasonable rules and regulations for the furnishing of claimants of blue-prints of particular parcels of land shown on the map prepared by the state engineer, and for such supplementary surveys and examinations or such inspection by the state engineer, as may be required, to the end that observations and surveys of the state engineer may be made, in so far as practicable, available to the claimants for attachment to the proofs to be filed by them.

Engineer to issue certificates, when.

SEC. 51. Upon the final determination of the relative rights in and to the waters of any stream system, it shall be the duty of the state engineer to issue to each person represented in such determination a certificate to be signed by such state engineer, and bearing the seal of his office, setting forth the name and postoffice address of the owner of the right, the date of priority, extent and purpose of such right; and if such water be for irrigation purposes, a description of the land, by legal subdivisions when possible, to which said water is appurtenant. Such certificate shall be transmitted by the state engineer in person or by registered mail to the county recorder of the county in which said right is located, and it shall be the duty of the county recorder upon the receipt of a recording fee of one dollar, collected as hereinbefore provided, to record the same in a book especially prepared and kept for that purpose, and thereupon immediately transmit the certificate to the respective owners.

Water commissioners, how appointed—Duties—Charges, how based.

*Amended by Chap 106
Stats 1924*

SEC. 52. There shall be appointed by the governor one or more water commissioners for each water district, who shall receive a salary, including all expenses, of not more than five dollars ($5) per day for each day actually employed on the duties herein mentioned. Such water commissioner shall execute the laws prescribed in sections 53 to 88, inclusive, of this act under the general direction of the state engineer. The salary of such water commissioner shall be paid by the water users in the district in which they shall serve. The charge against each water user shall be based upon the proportion which his water right bears to the aggregate water rights in such district as determined by the state engineer or the court; provided, however, that the minimum charge to each water user shall be one dollar. The state engineer shall prepare and certify a list of the owners and areas of land served by such water commissioners, together with the addresses taken from the tax-roll of said county, and transmit the same to the board of county commissioners of the county in which such water commissioners serve, and upon receipt thereof the said board shall transmit to each and every such owner a statement showing the amount due for the services so rendered. Should such property owner fail to make payment to the county treasurer within thirty days from the receipt of such statement, then such amount shall constitute a lien upon the property served by such water commissioner, and be collectible in the same manner as taxes levied against said property. Such board of county commissioners may establish a special fund for each water district within such county which shall be known as ".....Water District Salary Fund," and all moneys collected from the water users in any such district shall be placed in such fund so established for such district. Upon a receipt of a certified statement from the state engineer showing the number of days such commissioners were actually employed, and the amount due, the board of county commissioners shall approve such statement and authorize the auditor of such county to draw his warrant therefor against such special water district salary fund; provided, however, that no such statement shall be so approved by the board of county commissioners unless there shall be sufficient money in such fund to meet the amount thereof. As amended, Stats. 1915, 382; 1919, 384.

State divided into districts, when.

SEC. 53. The state engineer shall divide the state into water districts to be so constituted as to insure the best protection for the water user, and the most economical supervision on the part of the state. Said water districts shall not be created until a necessity therefor shall arise and shall be created from time to time as the priorities and claims to the streams of the state shall be determined.

Engineer to insure proper distribution of water—Mode of procedure.

SEC. 54. It shall be the duty of the state engineer to divide or cause to be divided the waters of the natural streams or other sources of supply in the state, among the several ditches and reservoirs taking water therefrom, according to the rights of each respectively, in whole or in part, and to shut or fasten, or cause to be shut or fastened, the headgates or ditches, and to regulate or cause to be regulated, the controlling works of reservoirs, as may be necessary to insure a proper distribution of the waters thereof. Such state engineer shall have authority to regulate the distribution of water among the various users under any partnership ditch or reservoir where rights have been adjudicated in accordance with existing decrees. Whenever, in pursuance of his duties, the water commissioner regulates a head-gate to a ditch or the controlling works of reservoirs, it shall be his duty to attach to such head-gate or controlling works a written notice properly dated and signed, setting forth the fact that such head-gate or controlling works has been properly regulated and is wholly under his control and such notice shall be a legal notice to all parties interested in the diversion and distribution of the water of such ditch or reservoir. It shall be the duty of the district attorney to appear for or in behalf of the state engineer or his duly authorized assistants in any case which may arise in the pursuance of the official duties of any such officer within the jurisdiction of said district attorney.

Misdemeanor to interfere with water officers—Prima facie evidence.

SEC. 55. Any person who shall wilfully open, close, change or interfere with any lawfully established head-gate or water-box without authority, or who shall wilfully use water or conduct water into or through his ditch which has been lawfully denied him by the state engineer, his assistants or water commissioners, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

The possession or use of water when the same shall have been lawfully denied by the state engineer or other competent authority shall be prima facie evidence of the guilt of the person using it.

Head-gates to be maintained—Measuring device.

SEC. 56. The owner or owners of any ditch or canal shall maintain to the satisfaction of the state engineer of the division in which the irrigation works are located, a substantial head-gate at or near the point where the water is diverted, which shall be of such construction that it can be locked and kept closed by the water commissioner; and such owners shall construct and maintain, when required by the state engineer, suitable measuring devices at such points along such ditch as may be necessary for the purpose of assisting the water commissioner in determining the amount of water that is to be diverted into said ditch from the stream, or taken from it by the various users. Any and every owner or manager of a reservoir located across or upon the bed of a natural stream or of a reservoir which requires the use of a natural stream channel, shall be required to construct and maintain, when required by the state engineer, a measuring device of a plan to be approved by the state engineer, below such reservoir, and a measuring device above such reservoir, on each or every stream or source of supply discharging into such reservoir, for the purpose of assisting the state engineer or water commissioners in determining the amount of water to which appropriators are entitled and thereafter diverting it for such appropriators' use. When it may be necessary for the protection of other water users, the state engineer may require flumes to be installed along the line of any ditch. If any such owner or owners of irrigation works shall refuse or neglect to construct and put in such head-gates, flumes, or measuring devices after ten (10) days' notice, the state engineer may close such ditch, and the same shall not be opened or any water diverted from the source of supply, under the penalties prescribed by law for the opening of head-gates lawfully closed until the requirements of the state engineer as to such head-gate, flume, or measuring device have been complied with, and if any owner or manager of a reservoir located across the bed of a natural stream, or of a reservoir which requires the use of a natural stream channel, shall neglect or refuse to put in such measuring device after ten (10) days' notice by the state engineer, such state engineer may open the sluice-gate or outlet of such reservoir and the same shall not be closed under the penalties of the law for changing or interfering with head-gates, until the requirements of the state engineer as to such measuring devices are complied with.

Engineer or assistants may arrest violators.

SEC. 57. The state engineer or his assistants shall have power to arrest any person violating any of the provisions of this act, and to turn them over to the sheriff, or other competent police officer within the county, and immediately on delivering any such person so arrested into the custody of the sheriff, it shall be the duty of said state engineer, or his assistant making such arrest to immediately, in writing, and upon oath, make complaint before the justice of the peace against the person so arrested.

Penalties for violation.

SEC. 58. Any person violating any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in a sum not less than twenty-five dollars ($25), nor more than two hundred and fifty dollars ($250), together with the costs, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding six months, and not less than ten (10) days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Method of appropriation.

SEC. 59. Any corporation authorized to do business in this state, or any citizen of the United States, or any person who has legally declared his intention to become such, over the age of twenty-one years, desiring to appropriate any of the public waters, or to change the place of diversion, manner of use or place of use of water already appropriated, shall, before performing any work in connection with such appropriation, change in place of diversion or change in manner or place of use, make an application to the state engineer for a permit to make the same; provided, that any person under the age of twenty-one years who has served or shall hereafter serve in the army of the United States during the present emergency shall be entitled to the same rights hereunder as others over twenty-one years of age possess; provided further, that no assignment of any water permit or application shall be valid for any purpose unless made to one authorized hereunder to acquire the same in the first instance.

No application shall be for the water of more than one source to be used for more than one purpose; provided, however, that individual domestic use may be included in any application with the other use named. Each application for a permit to appropriate water shall contain the following information:

(a) The name and postoffice address of the applicant, and if the applicant be a corporation, the date and place of incorporation.

(b) The name of the source from which the appropriation is to be made.

(c) The amount of water which it is desired to appropriate, expressed in terms of cubic feet per second, except in application for permit to store water, where the amount shall be expressed in acre-feet.

(d) The purpose for which the application is to be made.

(e) A substantially accurate description of the location of the place at which the water is to be diverted from its source, and if any of such water is to be returned to the source, a description of the location of the place of return.

(f) A description of the proposed works.

(g) The estimated cost of such works.

(h) The estimated time required to construct said works, and the estimated time required to complete the application of the water to beneficial use.

(j) The signature of the applicant or his properly authorized agent.

In addition to the foregoing, the application shall contain, if for irrigation purposes, except in case of application for permit to store water, the number of acres to be irrigated and a description by legal subdivisions, where possible, of the lands to be irrigated; if for power purposes, the vertical head under which the water will be applied, the location of the proposed power-house, and, as near as may be, the use to which the said power is to be applied; if for municipal supply, or for domestic use, the approximate number of persons to be served, and the approximate future requirements; if for mining purposes, the proposed method of applying and utilizing the water; if for stock-watering purposes, the approximate number and character of animals to be watered; if for any purpose contemplating the storage of waters, in addition to the information required in applications naming the said purpose, it shall give the dimensions and location of the proposed dam, the capacity of the proposed reservoir and a description of the land to be submerged by the impounded waters. Every application for permit to change the place of diversion, manner of use or place of use of water already appropriated, shall contain such information as may be necessary to a full understanding of the proposed change as may be required by the state engineer. All applications for permit shall be accompanied or followed by such maps and drawings and such other data as may hereafter be prescribed by the state engineer, and such accompanying data shall be considered as part of the application. As amended, Stats. 1919, 71.

Duties of engineer.

SEC. 60. Upon receipt of an application, which shall be upon a blank form to be prescribed by the state engineer, and supplied the applicant without charge, it shall be the duty of the state engineer to make an endorsement thereon of the date of its receipt, and to keep a record of the same. If upon examination the application is found to be defective, it shall be returned for correction or completion with advice of the reasons therefor, and the date of the return thereof shall be endorsed upon the application and made a record of his office. No application shall lose its priority of filing on account of such defects; provided, the application, properly corrected and accompanied by such maps and drawings as may be required, is filed in the office of the state engineer within sixty (60) days from the date of said return to applicant. Any application returned for correction, or completion, not refiled in proper form within the said sixty days shall be canceled. All applications which shall comply with the provisions of the act shall be recorded in a suitable book kept for that purpose.

Publication of notice of application.

SEC. 61. When any application is filed in compliance with this act the state engineer shall, within thirty (30) days, at the expense of the applicant, to be paid in advance as herein provided, publish or cause to be published, in some newspaper having a general circulation, and printed and published in the county where such water is sought to be appropriated, a notice of the application, which shall set forth that said application has been filed, the date of said filing, the name and address of the applicant, the name of the source from which the appropriation is to be made, the location of the place of diversion, and the purpose for which said water is to be appropriated, to which shall be added by the publisher the date of first publication and the date of last publication. Upon proof of such publication, which must be filed within thirty (30) days from the date of the last publication, the state engineer shall pay for the same from the moneys deposited by the applicant for such purpose; provided, however, that if the application is canceled for any reason before it is published, the fee of ten dollars ($10) collected for said publication, shall be returned by the state engineer to said applicant.

Protests, how conducted.

SEC. 62. Any person interested may, within thirty (30) days from the date of last publication of the said notice of application, file with the state engineer a written protest against the granting of said application, setting forth with reasonable certainty the grounds of such protest, which shall be verified by the affidavit of the protestant, his agent or attorney. On receipt of a protest, as hereinbefore provided, it shall be the duty of the state engineer to advise the applicant whose application has been protested of the fact that said protest has been filed with him, which advice shall be sent by registered mail. The state engineer shall duly consider the said protest, and may, in his discretion, hold hearings and require the filing of such evidence as he may deem necessary to a full understanding of the rights involved; provided, however, that no hearing thereon shall be had except after due notice by registered mail to both the applicant and protestant, which notice shall give the time and place at which the said hearing is to be held, which notice shall be mailed at least fifteen days prior to the date set for said hearing. Said hearings shall be conducted under such rules and regulations as the state engineer may make, which he is hereby empowered to make for the proper and orderly exercise of the powers conferred herein.

To approve applications, when—Fees returned, when—Proviso—Record of action.

SEC. 63. It shall be the duty of the state engineer to approve all applications made in proper form where all fees, as in this act provided, have been paid, which contemplate the application of water to beneficial use, and where the proposed use or change does not tend to impair the value of existing rights, or be otherwise detrimental to the public welfare. But where there is no unappropriated water in the proposed source of supply, or where its proposed use or change conflicts with existing rights, or threatens to prove detrimental to the public interests, it shall be the duty of the state engineer to reject said application and refuse to issue the permit asked for. Should the state engineer refuse to issue said permit, or should the permit be issued for a less amount of water than named in the application, the state engineer shall return to the applicant the amount of the deposit for such water rights, or the balance of the amount of the deposit for which the permit was denied; provided, however, the fee of fifteen dollars ($15) for examining, filing and publishing said application shall not be included in the amount returned, except as herein provided.

The refusal or approval of an application shall be endorsed on a copy of the original application, and a record made of such endorsement in the records of the office of the state engineer; said copy of the application so endorsed shall be returned to the applicant. If approved, the applicant shall be authorized, on receipt thereof, to proceed with the construction of the necessary works and to take all steps required to apply the water to beneficial use and to perfect the proposed appropriation. If the application is refused, the applicant shall take no steps toward the prosecution of the proposed work or the diversion and use of the public water so long as such refusal shall continue in force.

What state engineer may require.

SEC. 64. Before either approving or rejecting the application, the state engineer may require such additional information as will enable him to properly guard the public interest, and may in case of application proposing to divert more than ten cubic feet per second of water require a statement of the following facts: In case of incorporated companies he may require the submission of the articles of incorporation, and names and the places of residence of directors and officers, and the amount of its authorized and of its paid-up capital. If the applicant is not an incorporated company, he may require a statement as to the name or names of the party or parties proposing to construct the work, and a showing of facts necessary to enable him to determine whether or not they have the financial ability to carry out the proposed work, and whether or not the said application has been made in good faith.

To fix time of beginning construction—Extension, when—Proviso.

SEC. 65. In his endorsement of approval upon any application the state engineer shall set a time prior to which actual construction work shall begin, which shall not be more than one year from the date of such approval; and that work shall be prosecuted diligently and uninterruptedly to completion unless temporarily interrupted by the elements; a time prior to which the construction of the said works must be completed, which shall be within five years of the date of such approval, and a time prior to which the complete application of water to a beneficial use must be made, which time shall not exceed ten years from the date of the said approval. He may limit the applicant to a less amount of water than that applied for, to a less period of time for the completion of work, and a less period of time for the perfecting of the application than named in the application. The state engineer shall have authority, for good cause shown, to extend the time within which construction work shall begin, within which construction work shall be completed, or water applied to a beneficial use, under any permit therefor issued by said state engineer; provided, however, that application for such extension must in all cases be made prior to the time set in the application limiting the period which it is desired to extend.

Applications may be assigned—Restrictions.

SEC. 66. Any application for permit, or any permit to appropriate water, may be assigned subject to the conditions of the permit, but no such assignment shall be binding except between the parties thereto, unless filed for record in the office of the state engineer.

Statements of progress to be filed—Failure to file statements, penalties for.

SEC. 67. It shall be the duty of any person holding a permit from the state engineer, on or before thirty (30) days after the date set for the commencement of work as endorsed thereon, and at other times required by the state engineer, to file with the state engineer the statement setting forth the time when, the place where, and the amount of such work as may have been performed by him thereunder in connection with such appropriation, and it shall be the further duty of the applicant within thirty (30) days after the date set for the completion of such work to file, in detail, a description of said works as actually constructed, which statement shall be verified by the affidavit of the applicant, his agent, or his attorney.

Should any applicant fail, prior to the date set for such filing in his permit, to file with the state engineer proof of commencement of work, or should the said applicant fail to file within thirty (30) days of the date set prior to which proof of completion of the work must be made, said proof of completion of work, as hereinbefore provided, the state engineer shall, in either case, advise the holder of said permit, by registered mail, that the same is held for cancelation, and should the said holder within thirty (30) days after the mailing of such advice fail to file the required affidavit with the state engineer, the said permit shall be canceled and no further proceedings shall be had thereunder; provided, however, that for good cause shown, upon application made prior to the expiration of the period for filing said instrument, the state engineer may, in his discretion, grant a further extension of time in which to file said instruments.

May require proofs of good faith.

SEC. 68. If, in the judgment of the state engineer, the holder of any permit to appropriate the public water is not proceeding in good faith and with reasonable diligence to perfect said appropriation, the state engineer may require at any time the submission of such proof and evidence as may be necessary to show a compliance with the law, and the state engineer shall, after duly considering said matter, if, in his judgment, the said holder of a permit is not proceeding in good faith and with reasonable diligence to perfect the said appropriation, cancel the said permit, and advise the holder of said permit of said cancelation.

Statement on application—Form and procedure.

SEC. 69. On or before the date set in the endorsement of a permit for the application of water to beneficial use, or on the date set by the state engineer under a proper application for extension therefor, it shall be the duty of any person holding a permit from the state engineer to appropriate the public waters of the State of Nevada, to change the place of diversion, or the manner or place of use, to file with the state engineer a statement under oath, on a form prescribed by the state engineer, which statement shall include:

- (1) The name and postoffice address of the person making such proof.
- (2) The number and date of the permit for which proof is made.
- (3) The source of water supply.
- (4) The name of the canal or other works by which the water is conducted to the place of use.
- (5) The name of the original person to whom the permit was issued.
- (6) The purpose for which the water is used.
- (7) If for irrigation, the actual number of acres of land upon which the water granted in the permit has been beneficially used; giving the same by forty (40) acre legal subdivisions when possible.
- (8) An actual measurement (taken by some competent person, giving the name of said person) of the water diverted for such use.
- (9) The capacity of the works of diversion.
- (10) If for power, the dimensions and capacity of the flume, pipe, ditch or other conduit.
- (11) The average grade and the difference in elevation between the termini of such conduit.
- (12) The number of months, naming them, in which water has been beneficially used.

(13) The amount of water beneficially used, taken from actual measurements by some competent person, naming said person, together with such other data as the state engineer may require to acquaint himself with the amount of the appropriation for which said proof is filed. Accompanying said statement, there shall be filed with the state engineer a map on tracing linen on a scale of not less than one thousand feet to the inch, which shall show with substantial accuracy the following:

(1) The point of diversion by legal subdivisions or by metes and bounds from some corner, when possible, from the source of supply.

(2) The traverse of the ditch or other conduit, together with cross-sections of same.

(3) The legal subdivisions of the land embraced in the application for permit and the outline by metes and bounds of the irrigated area, with the amount thereof.

(4) The average grade and the difference in elevation of the termini of the conduit, and the carrying capacity of same.

(5) The actual quantity of water flowing in the canal or conduit during the time said survey was being made.

Said map must bear the affidavit of the surveyor or engineer making such survey and map. In the event the survey and map are made by different persons the affidavit of each must be on the map, showing that the map as compiled agrees with said survey. Said map shall conform with such rules and regulations as the state engineer shall make, which rules shall not be in conflict herewith.

Should any applicant fail, prior to the date set for such filing in his permit, to file with the state engineer proof of application of water to beneficial use, and the accompanying map, or prior to such extension as the state engineer may grant, the state engineer shall advise the holder of said permit, by mail, that the same is held for cancelation, and should the said holder within thirty days after the mailing of such advice fail to file the required affidavit and map or either of them with the state engineer, the said permit shall be canceled and no further proceedings shall be had thereunder.

May refuse faulty map.

SEC. 70. The state engineer may, in his discretion, refuse to accept for filing, any map not conforming with the foregoing provisions and such rules and regulations as he may make. He may, in his discretion, require additional data to be placed thereon, and may make proper provision therefor.

Penalty for false swearing.

SEC. 71. Should it be found upon inspection of the premises by the state engineer that said surveyor or engineer had sworn falsely to said map and survey, he may, in the discretion of the state engineer, be barred from the further practice of engineering in any matters before the state engineer, in addition to the penalties prescribed by law for swearing falsely to any affidavit.

Certificate issued by engineer—Filed, where.

SEC. 72. As soon as practicable after satisfactory proof has been made to the state engineer that any application to appropriate water has been perfected in accordance with the provisions of this act, said state engineer shall issue to said applicant, his assign or assigns, a certificate setting forth the name and postoffice address of the appropriator, his assign or assigns, date, source, purpose and amount of appropriation; and if for irrigation, a description of the irrigated lands by legal subdivisions, when possible, to which said water is appurtenant, together with the number of the permit under which such certificate is issued, which certificate shall, within thirty (30) days after its issuance, be sent by mail to the recorder of the county in which such water is diverted from its source, as well as to the recorder of the county in which the water is used, to be recorded in books specially kept for that purpose, and the fee for recording such certificate, which is hereby fixed in the sum of one dollar ($1) for each county in which said record is made, shall be paid in advance to the state engineer by the party in whose favor the certificate is issued.

Fees.

SEC. 73. The following fees shall be collected by the state engineer in advance, and shall be accounted for and paid by him into the general fund of the state treasury, once each month; provided, however, that the fees named in subdivision (c) of this section shall not apply to permits for underground waters; and provided further, that five dollars shall be the minimum fee for issuing and recording any permit:

(a) For examining and filing an application for permit to appropriate water, fifteen dollars ($15), which shall include the cost of publication, which publication fee is hereby fixed at ten dollars ($10).

(b) For examining and filing an application for permit to change the point of diversion, manner of use, or place of use, twenty-five dollars ($25), which shall include the cost of permit should the same issue thereunder, and the cost of publication of such application.

(c) For issuing and recording permit to appropriate water for irrigation purposes, five cents per acre for each acre to be irrigated, up to and including one hundred acres, and three cents for each acre in excess of one hundred acres, up to and including one thousand acres, and two cents for each acre in excess of one thousand acres.

(d) For issuing and recording permit for power purposes, twenty-five cents for each theoretical horsepower to be developed up to and including one hundred horsepower, and fifteen cents for each horsepower in excess of one hundred horsepower, up to and including one thousand horsepower, and ten cents for each horsepower in excess of one thousand.

(e) For issuing and recording permit to store water, two cents for each acre-foot of water to be stored, up to and including one thousand acre-feet, and one cent for each acre-foot in excess of one thousand.

(f) For issuing and recording permit to appropriate water for any other purpose, $5 for each second-foot of water applied for, or fraction thereof.

(g) For filing secondary permit under reservoir permit, $5; for approving and recording permit under reservoir permit, $5.

(h) For filing proof of commencement of work, $1.

(i) For filing proof of completion of work under any permit, $1.

(j) For filing any protest, affidavit, or any other water-right instrument or paper, $1.

(k) For making copy of any document recorded or filed in his office, one dollar for the first hundred words, and twenty cents for each additional one hundred words or fraction thereof; where the amount exceeds $5, then only the actual cost in excess of that amount shall be charged.

(l) For certifying to copies of documents, records, or maps, one dollar for each certificate.

(m) For blue-print copy of any drawing or map, ten cents per square foot.

(n) For such other work as may be required of his office, actual cost of the work. As amended, Stats. 1915, 383.

Seal.

SEC. 74. The state engineer is hereby empowered and directed to procure, for his said office, a seal upon which shall appear his official title, and such other suitable inscription as he may deem proper, and such seal shall be affixed to all official permits, certificates and other documents issued by him under the provisions of this act.

Aggrieved party may have order reviewed, how.

SEC. 75. Any person feeling himself aggrieved by any order or decision of the state engineer, acting in person or through his assistants or the water commissioners, affecting his interests, when such order or decision relates to the administration of determined rights or is made pursuant to sections 52 to 88, inclusive, of this act, may have the same reviewed by a proceeding for that purpose, in so far as may be in the nature of an appeal, which shall be initiated in the proper court of the county in which the matters affected or a portion thereof are situated. The proceedings in every case shall be heard and tried by the court, and shall be informal and summary, but full opportunity to be heard shall be had before judgment is pronounced. And no such proceeding shall be entertained unless notice thereof, containing a statement of the substance of the order or decision complained of, and of the manner in which the same injuriously affects the petitioner's interests, shall have been served upon the state engineer, personally or by registered mail, at his office at the state capitol within thirty days following the rendition of the order or decision in question. A similar notice shall also be served personally or by registered mail upon the person or persons who may have been affected by such order or decision. Where evidence has been filed with, or testimony taken before, the state engineer, acting as aforesaid, a transcribed copy thereof, or of any specific part of the same, duly certified as a true and correct transcript in the manner provided by law, shall be received in evidence with the same effect as if the reporter were present and testified to the facts so certified. A copy of said transcript shall be furnished on demand, at actual cost, to any person affected by such order or decision, and to all other persons on payment of a reasonable amount therefor, to be fixed by the state engineer. No bond shall be required except a stay is desired, and the proceedings herein provided for shall not be a stay unless, within five days following the service of notice thereof, a bond shall be filed in an amount to be fixed by the court, with sureties satisfactory to such court, conditioned to perform the judgment rendered in such proceedings. Costs shall be paid as in civil cases brought in the district court, except by the state engineer or the state; and the practice in civil cases shall apply and be consistent with the informal and summary character of such proceedings, as herein provided. Appeals may be taken to the supreme court from the judgment of the district court in the same manner and with the same effect as in other civil cases, except that notice of appeal must be served and filed within sixty days from the entry of judgment. The decision of the state engineer shall be prima facie correct, and the burden of proof shall be upon the party attacking the same. Whenever it shall appear to the state engineer that any litigation, whether now pending or hereafter brought, may adversely affect the rights of the public in water, it shall be his duty to request the attorney-general to appear and protect the interests of the state. As amended, Stats. 1915, 384.

Reservoir permits, regulations concerning.

SEC. 76. All applications for reservoir permits shall be subject to the provisions of sections 59 to 74, both inclusive, except those sections wherein proof of beneficial use is required to be filed; but the party or parties proposing to apply to a beneficial use the water stored in any such reservoir shall file an application for permit to be known herein as the secondary permit, in compliance with the provisions of sections 59 to 74, both inclusive, except that no notice of such application shall be published. Said application shall refer to said reservoir for a supply of water and shall show by documentary evidence that an agreement has been entered into with the owner of the reservoir for a permanent and sufficient interest in such reservoir, to impound enough water for the purpose set forth in said application.

When beneficial use has been completed and perfected under the secondary permit, and after the holder thereof shall have made proofs of the commencement and completion of his work, and of the application of water to beneficial use, as in the case of other permits, as provided in this act, final certificate of appropriation shall issue as other certificates are issued, except that said certificate shall refer to both the works described in the secondary permit and the reservoir described in the primary permit.

Use of bed of stream, how regulated—Expenses, how met.

SEC. 77. Whenever the owner, manager or lessee of a reservoir constructed under the provisions of this act shall desire to use the bed of a stream or other watercourse for the purpose of carrying stored or impounded water from the reservoir to the consumer thereof, he shall, in writing, notify the state engineer, and the water commissioner of the district in which said water is to be used, giving the date when it is proposed to discharge water from said reservoir, its volume, and the names of all the persons and ditches entitled to its use, and it shall then be the duty of the said state engineer, or his assistant, to regulate the said works and head-gates, of all ditches from the stream or watercourse not entitled to the use of such stored water as will enable those having the right to secure the volume to which they are entitled. The state engineer shall keep a true and distinct account of the time spent by him in the discharge of his duties, as defined in this section, and to present a certified statement thereof to the county commissioners of the county wherein the expense is incurred. Said county commissioners shall present a bill for the expense so incurred to the reservoir owner, manager or lessee, and if such owner, manager, or lessee shall neglect for thirty (30) days after the presentation of such bill of costs, to pay the same, the said costs shall be made a charge upon the said reservoir and shall be collected as delinquent taxes until payment of such bill of costs has been made.

Legal advisers of state engineer.

SEC. 78. The attorney-general and the district attorney of the county in which legal questions arise, shall be the legal advisers of the state engineer and shall perform any and all legal duties necessary in connection with their work without any further compensation than their salaries fixed by law.

Share of expenses, how collected.

SEC. 79. In all cases where ditches are owned by two or more persons, and one or more of such persons shall fail or neglect to do a proportionate share of the work necessary for the proper maintenance and operation of such ditch or ditches, or to construct suitable head-gates, or other devices at the point where water is diverted from the main ditch, such owner or owners desiring the performance of such work, may, after giving ten days' written notice to such other owner or owners who have failed to perform such proportionate share of the work necessary for the operation and maintenance of said ditch or ditches, perform such share of the work, and recover therefor from such person or persons in default, the reasonable expense of such work.

Expenses a lien.

SEC. 80. Upon the failure of any coowner to pay his proportionate share of such expense, as mentioned in the preceding section, within thirty days after receiving a statement of the same as performed by his coowner or owners, such person or persons so performing such labor may secure payment of said claim by filing an itemized and sworn statement thereof, setting forth the date of the performance and the nature of the labor so performed, with the county clerk of the county wherein said ditch is situated, and when so filed it shall constitute a valid lien against the interest of such person or persons in default, which said lien may be established and enforced in the same manner as provided by law for the enforcement of mechanics' liens.

Evidence of guilt.

SEC. 81. The unauthorized use of water to which another person is entitled, or the wilful waste of water to the detriment of another, shall be a misdemeanor, and the possession or use of such water without legal right, shall be prima facie evidence of the guilt of the person using or diverting it.

Obstruction unlawful.

SEC. 82. Whenever any appropriator of water has the lawful right of way for the storage, diversion, or carriage of water, it shall be unlawful to place or maintain any obstruction that shall interfere with the use of his works, or prevent convenient access thereto. Any violation of the provisions of this section shall be a misdemeanor.

Penalty for violation.

SEC. 83. All violations of the provisions of this act declared herein to be a misdemeanor, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars ($250), and not less than ten dollars ($10), or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Vested rights not impaired.

SEC. 84. Nothing in this act contained shall impair the vested right of any person to the use of water, nor shall the right of any person to take and use water be impaired or affected by any of the provisions of this act where appropriations have been initiated in accordance with law prior to the approval of this act. Any and all appropriations based upon applications and permits now on file in the state engineer's office, shall be perfected in accordance with the laws in force at the time of their filing.

The provisions of this section do not limit the power of the state engineer to determine for administrative purposes relative rights of water appropriators or users vested prior to the passage of the act, and to administer such prior acquired rights in accordance with such determinations subject to remedy by the courts for errors in determinations. Ormsby County v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 315, et seq. (142 P. 803).

It was the purpose of the legislature, particularly emphasized in this section, to recognize appropriations made under former laws or legislative acts, and to keep those appropriations free from being affected or impaired by anything contained in the water law of 1913. Ormsby County v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 317, et seq. (142 P. 803) (McCarran, J., dissenting opinion).

Cited, Bergman v. Kearney, 241 F. 886.

Rotation in use.

SEC. 85. To bring about a more economical use of the available water supply, it shall be lawful for water users owning lands to which water is appurtenant, to rotate in the use of the supply to which they may be collectively entitled; or a single water user, having lands to which water rights of a different priority attach, may in like manner rotate in use, when such rotation can be made without injury to lands enjoying an earlier priority, to the end that each user may have an irrigation head of at least two (2) cubic feet per second.

Engineer to make rules and regulations.

SEC. 86. The state engineer is hereby empowered to make such reasonable rules and regulations as may be necessary for the proper and orderly execution of the powers conferred by this act.

Each section declared independent.

SEC. 87. Each section of this act and every part of each section is hereby declared to be independent sections, and parts of sections, and the holding of any section or part thereof to be void or ineffective for any cause shall not be deemed to affect any other section or any part thereof.

Specified acts repealed.

SEC. 88. All acts designated in the following schedule, and all other acts and parts of acts in conflict herewith, shall stand repealed from and after the time when this act goes into effect.

SCHEDULE

An act to provide for the appropriation, distribution and use of water, and to define and preserve existing water rights, to provide for the appointment of a state engineer, an assistant state engineer, and fixing their compensation, duties and powers, defining the duties of the state board of irrigation, providing for the appointment of water commissioners and defining their duties, approved February 26, 1907.

An act amendatory of a certain act entitled "An act to provide for the appropriation, distribution and use of water, and to define and preserve existing rights, to provide for the appointment of a state engineer and assistant state engineer, and fixing their compensation, duties and powers, defining the duties of the state board of irrigation, providing for the appointment of water commissioners, and defining their duties," approved February 26, 1907, and to provide a fee system for the certification of the records of, and an official seal for, the state engineer's office, and other matters relating thereto, approved February 20, 1909.

The repeal of a law by this act shall not affect any application for permit made to, or permit granted by, the state engineer to appropriate the public water when any such instrument was filed or approved before the repeal takes effect, and any action or proceeding heretofore commenced or initiated under any law repealed by this act, shall be completed in accordance with the provisions of the law in force at the time of such filing and approval.

What admissible as evidence.

SEC. 88A. Any and all maps, plats, surveys, and evidence on file in the office of the state engineer relating to any proof of appropriation involved in the proceedings for the determination of the relative rights in and to the waters of any stream system, obtained or filed under the provisions of this or any preceding act relating to the office of state engineer, shall be admissible in court and shall have the same force and effect as though obtained and submitted under the provisions of this act as amended; provided, that at least ninety days prior to the rendering of his order of determination of the relative rights in and to the waters of any stream system, the state engineer shall notify all parties in interest of his intention to consider such maps, plats, and evidence, and of his intention to submit his findings to the court under the provisions of this act as amended; such notice to be given in the manner prescribed in section 22 of this act. Within sixty days after such notice, any such party in interest may file with the state engineer any additional or supplementary maps, plats, surveys, or evidence, or objections to the admissibility of any evidence hitherto presented and on file in the office of the state engineer, in relation to his claim of water right or adverse to the claim or claims of the water right of any other party or parties in interest, in order so to perfect his claim in accordance with the provisions of this amended act, and the state engineer shall consider the whole thereof in rendering such order of determination, and the same shall become a part of the record which shall be submitted to the court as provided by sections 34 to 39, inclusive, of this act. Added, Stats. 1915, 385.

Cited, Bergman v. Kearney, 241 F. 890.

Relative rights submitted.

SEC. 88B. In all cases where the state engineer has already issued findings declaring the relative rights of appropriators in and to the waters of any stream system, the same may be submitted to the court under the provisions of sections 34 to 39, inclusive, of this act.

Cited, Bergman v. Kearney, 241 F. 890.

Engineer, member and secretary state board of irrigation.

SEC. 88C. The state engineer is hereby made a member of the state board of irrigation and shall act as secretary of such board. Added, Stats. 1915, 385.

This act making water for beneficial purposes appurtenant to the place of use, unless it becomes impracticable to beneficially use water at the place, in which case the right may be severed and transferred, and become appurtenant to another place, does not affect the rights acquired by one obtaining, for several years prior to the act, water for irrigation from a water company engaged in selling water for irrigation. Prosole v. Steamboat Canal Co., 37 Nev. 154, 158, 160 (140 P. 720; 144 P. 944).

Questions presented in certain of the provisions of sections 18 to 51, inclusive, such as whether the determinations made by the state engineer have any force other than as being controlling for purposes of the administration of the law, until modified, suspended, or set aside by some order or decree of the court, or whether the methods prescribed for appeal from the decisions of the state engineer in cases of contest are valid, are unnecessary to be determined in this case, and will not be considered under the rule that constitutional questions not essential to a determination of the case will not usually be determined. Ormsby County v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 315, et seq. (142 P. 803).

The provisions generally of sections 18 to 51, inclusive, of this law, considered for purposes of administration, are not violative of article 3 of the state constitution, dividing the state government into three coordinate departments. Id.

The provisions of sections 18 to 51, inclusive, are not violative of section 6 of article 6 of the constitution fixing the appellate and original jurisdiction of district courts in that the determinations made by the state engineer of the relative rights of water users are not made in "cases in equity" or "cases at law" as those terms are used in said section. Id.

In so far as this law authorizes the state engineer to investigate and determine the relative rights of water appropriators or users upon any stream or stream system, or require statements to be made by the several claimants of their respective claims, and require such claimants to support the same with proofs, and authorizes the state engineer to determine contests, or authorizes the control of the distribution of the waters of a stream to the person found to be entitled thereto, the law is valid. Id.

Assuming the establishment of the relative rights of water users on a stream system, no constitutional right is infringed by a system of a state control such as is provided in sections 52-56 of this act. Id.

The constitutionality of sections 18 to 51 of this act should be viewed with reference to the purpose designed to be accomplished by sections 52 to 56 of said act, which latter sections are clearly administrative in character. Id.

The provisions of sections 18 to 51, inclusive, do not contemplate the deprivation of property without due process of law; they contemplate the securing to water users their rights, not the taking of the same away. For purposes of administration the enjoyment of such rights may be affected, but only after notice and hearing, and the right to adjudication by the courts is not taken away. Id.

Due process of law is not limited to judicial proceedings, but also comprehends determinations by administrative officers or boards where notice and a hearing are provided. Id.

The state, in the exercise of its police power to prescribe laws for the general welfare, may provide for inspection, regulation, and exercise a superintending control over the waters and watercourses of the state, and this act, giving the state engineer the right to institute proceedings to determine the rights of the owners and persons controlling water rights in the state, if construed as administrative only, and not to impair vested rights, is valid. Id.

This act providing for the establishment of water rights in proceedings before the state engineer, and authorizing such administrative officer to make decrees which, in the absence of appeal, are declared final, in so far as it attempts to make such decrees conclusive on the parties, is unconstitutional as impairing the constitutional power of the judiciary, under Const. art. 6, sec. 1, declaring that the judicial power of the state shall be vested in certain specified courts. Id.

Sections 18 to 51, inclusive, of this act are unconstitutional and void in that they attempt to invest the state engineer with power to affect or destroy the property rights of water appropriators or users in violation of the due-process-of-law provisions of the federal and state constitutions, and because they attempt to invest the state engineer with judicial powers reposed in the courts, in violation of article 3, section 1, and article 6, sections 1-6, of the state constitution. Id. (McCarran, J., dissenting opinion.)

Courts of a state which have adopted a statute from another state, after it has been construed by the courts of that state, are not bound by such construction, where the organic law of the two states differs in essential particulars affecting the law in question, or where the laws are not identical, or where the circumstances of the adopting state are essentially different. Held, also, that this law differs in essential particulars from the water laws of Wyoming and Nebraska, and that the constitutions of those states also differ in material particulars, hence, this court is not bound by the decision of the highest courts of those states construing the provisions of their water laws. Id. (McCarran, J., dissenting opinion.)

This law as amended by Stats. 1915, 378, there being provision for notice, is not violative of federal Const. Amend. 14, prohibiting the taking of property without due process of law. Vineyard Land and Stock Co. v. District Court, 42 Nev. 1-3, 11-15, 22, 28-64 (171 P. 166).

It is not the rule in Nevada that there can be no due process of law unless the methods, means and instrumentalities which were in existence at the time of the adoption of the Nevada constitution are adhered to. Id.

This law is not violative of Const. art. 6, sec. 6, since the entire proceedings under the water law amount to nothing until a copy of the order of determination of water rights of the state engineer is filed in the office of the clerk of the district court, thus operating as a complaint, the proceedings before the state engineer being nothing more than the routine of preparing and filing the complaint in the district court, which invests the latter court with jurisdiction to act. Id.

Rev. Laws, 4677, and the Water Law, Stats. 1913, 192, provide that in all measurements of water a cubic foot of water per second of time shall be the standard of measurement. Plaintiff sued defendant to have it adjudged that he was the owner of three-eighths of the water of a creek, and the court so decreed and enjoined defendant from diverting such three-eighths of the water or any part thereof from the stream. Held, that the decree was too uncertain as to the quantity of water to which plaintiff was entitled, but should use the standard of measurement described by the statute or some measurement readily translatable therein. Ramelli v. Sorgi, 38 Nev. 552, 558 (149 P. 71).

This law, as amended, is not violative of Const. art. 3, sec. 1, and art. 6, sec. 1, providing that the powers of government shall be divided into three separate departments, the legislative, executive, and judicial, and that the judicial power of the state shall be vested in a supreme court, district courts, and justices of the peace, the act not conferring judicial powers on the state engineer, since the procedure before him merely paves the way for an adjudication by the district court. Id.

This law is not violative of Const. art. 6, sec. 1, since the law does not contemplate or suggest the taking of private property for any public or any other use. Id.

This law as amended providing that from and after the filing of the state engineer's order of determination with the clerk of the district court, and during the hearing thereof, the waters of the stream in question may be distributed as indicated in the order of determination, unless a stay bond be given, is not unconstitutional. Id.

This law as amended is not unconstitutional, as permitting a taking of property without due process of law, in that, should an interested party fail to file objections, to the determination of the state engineer as to water rights, with the clerk of the district court in which the engineer files a copy of his order of determination, and the court enters a decree in accordance with such order, such decree would be tantamount to a taking of property without due process. Id.

This law as amended by Stats. 1915, c. 253, in providing that existing water rights acquired before its passage shall be ascertained and determined first by the state engineer and afterward by the district court as therein prescribed, is not unconstitutional, as depriving the holders of vested rights; but such provision is a proper and necessary one, to enable the state to ascertain and delimit new rights to be acquired under the act and is within the legislative power. Bergman v. Kearney, 241 F. 884-886, 890, 896, 903, 906, 907.

Appropriation for use of water from a stream, although the rights acquired thereby are recognized by both federal and state governments, is subject to regulation and control by the state, which in the exercise of its police power may provide efficient regulations covering the distribution and use of such water. Id.

Under this law it was held that provisions for hearing and determination by the state engineer are not in violation of art. 3, sec. 1, of the state constitution, as conferring judicial power on an administrative officer, since his determination has none of the finality of a judgment but is merely a preliminary step in the proceeding which culminates in a final decree of the district court. Id.

4723-4791. Repealed, so far as inconsistent with the provisions of chap. 64, Stats. 1919, 84, Stats. 1919, 114.

4723. Irrigation districts, how organized.

SECTION 1. Whenever a majority of the holders of title, or evidence of title, to lands susceptible of one mode of irrigation from a common source or combined sources, and by the same system or combined system of works, desire to provide for the irrigation of the same, or, when for drainage purposes and other reasons, they desire to organize the proposed territory into one district, or if they desire to cooperate with the United States under the federal reclamation laws for the purpose of construction of irrigation works, including drainage works, or for the purchase, extension, operation or maintenance of constructed work or for the assumption, as principal or guarantor, of indebtedness to the United States on account of district lands, they may propose the organization of an irrigation district under this act; provided, said holders of title, or evidence of title, shall hold such title, or evidence of title, to at least one-half part of the total area of the land in the proposed district; provided, further, that no person shall be a competent signer of a petition provided in this act for the formation of an "irrigation district" who is not the holder of a title or evidence of title to not less than five acres of land irrigated or susceptible of irrigation from the said common source of water supply, which shall be accessible for the purpose of the district. The equalized county assessment roll next preceding the presentation of a petition for the organization of an irrigation district shall be sufficient evidence of title for the purpose of this act, but other evidence may be received, including receipts or other evidence of rights of entrymen on land under any law of the United States or this state, and such entrymen shall be competent signers of such petition, and the land on which they have made entries shall, for the purpose of said petition, be considered as owned by them. And such entrymen shall share all the privileges and obligations of freeholders and owners of private land within the district, under the several provisions of this act, including the right to vote and hold office subject to the terms of the act of Congress entitled "An act to promote reclamation of arid lands," approved August 11, 1916. The petitioners may determine in said petition whether the proposed district shall be divided into three, five, or seven divisions, and whether it shall have three, five, or seven directors, but if no number is named in the petition, the board of county commissioners may determine whether the number shall be three, five, or seven. As amended, Stats. 1915, 434; 1917, 255.

4725. That section 3 of the above-entitled act is amended to read as follows; provided, that the number of directors and the number of divisions of districts organized prior to the passage of this amendment shall not be altered or changed except by petition of two-thirds of the qualified electors of said district and a majority vote of the directors:

Commissioners to define boundaries—Proviso—Contiguous lands—Elections—Officers.

SEC. 3. When such petition is presented, and it shall appear that the notice of the presentation of said petition has been given as required by law, and that said petition has been signed by the requisite number of petitioners as required by this act, the commissioners shall then proceed to define the boundaries of said proposed district from said petition and from such application for the exclusion of lands therefrom and inclusion of lands therein as may be made in accordance with the provisions of this act. The said commissioners may adjourn such examination from time to time not exceeding three weeks in all and shall, by final order duly entered, define and establish the boundaries of such proposed district; provided, that said board shall not modify such proposed boundaries described in the petition so as to change the object of said petition or so as to exempt from the operation of this act any land within the boundaries proposed by the petition susceptible to irrigation by the same system of water-works applicable to other lands in such proposed district; provided, also, that contiguous lands not included in such proposed district, as described in the petition, may, upon application of the owner or owners thereof, be included in such district upon such hearing; provided, that in the hearing of any such petition the board of county commissioners shall disregard any informalities therein, and in case they deny the same, or dismiss it for any reasons on account of the provisions of this act not having been complied with, which are the only reasons upon which they shall have a right to refuse or dismiss the same, they shall state their reasons in writing therefor in detail, which shall be entered upon their records, and in case the reasons are not well founded, a writ of mandamus shall, upon proper application therefor, issue out of the district court of said county, compelling them to act in compliance with this act, which writ shall be heard within twenty days from the date of issuance, and which twenty days shall be excluded from the forty days given the commissioners herein to act upon said petition.

When the boundaries of any proposed district shall have been examined and defined as aforesaid, the county commissioners shall forthwith make an order allowing the prayer of said petition, defining and establishing the boundaries and designating the name of such proposed district, and also divide such district into three, five, or seven divisions, as named in the petition as nearly equal in size as may be practicable, and one director, who shall be a landholder and qualified elector in the division, shall be elected as a director, from such division, by the freeholders who are also qualified electors in the proposed district at large. No more than one person shall be elected as a director from one and the same division of such district. Thereupon the said commissioners shall by further order duly entered upon their record call an election of the landholders, who are also qualified electors of said district, to be held for the purpose of determining whether such district shall be organized under the conditions of this act, and by such order shall submit the names of one or more persons from each of the divisions of said district as herein provided, to be voted for as directors therein. Each of said divisions shall constitute an election district for the purpose of this act. Said board of county commissioners shall then give notice of such election to be held in such proposed district, which notice shall be published for three weeks prior to such election in a newspaper within the county or counties within which such proposed district lies. Such notice shall require the said electors to cast ballots which shall contain the words "Irrigation District—Yes" or "Irrigation District—No," or words equivalent thereto, and also the names of persons to be voted for to fill the various elective offices by this act provided for. For the purpose of this election above provided for, the said board of county commissioners must establish a convenient number of election precincts and polling places in said proposed districts and define the boundaries thereof, which said precincts may thereafter be changed by the board of directors of such district, and shall also appoint the judges of election for such precinct, one of whom shall act as clerk of the election.

The officers of such district shall consist of three, five, or seven directors, as aforesaid, a secretary and a treasurer, who shall be appointed by the board of directors.

Any person, male or female, of the age of twenty-one years or over, whether a resident of the district or not, who is a bona-fide holder of title or evidence of title as defined in section 1 hereof, to land situated in the district, shall be entitled to vote at any election held under the provisions of this act, but at any election upon the question of a proposed bond issue, contract with the United States or any election to authorize indebtedness, each qualified voter shall be entitled to cast one vote for each dollar, or major fraction thereof, of benefit or assessment apportioned to his land as shown in the apportionment of benefits under the proposed contract or bond issue as herein required to be made, filed and published prior to the election, and at any such election a member of the election board shall indorse on the ballot of each elector the number of votes to which he is entitled, and his ballot shall be counted as the number of votes so indorsed thereon. Any elector residing outside of the district owning land in the district and qualified to vote at district elections shall be considered as a resident of that division and precinct of the district in which the major portion of his lands are located for the purpose of determining his place of voting and qualifications for holding office; provided, that the number of directors and the number of divisions of districts organized prior to the passage of this amendment shall not be altered or changed except by petition of two-thirds of the qualified electors of said district and a majority vote of the directors. As amended, Stats. 1917, 256.

4726. Elections, how conducted—New districts, when.

SEC. 4. Except as in this act otherwise provided, all such elections shall be conducted as nearly as practicable in accordance with the general election laws of this state. The said board of county commissioners shall meet on the second Monday succeeding such election and proceed to canvass the votes cast thereat, and if, upon such canvass, it appears that at least a majority of said legal electors in said district voting at such election have voted "Irrigation District—Yes" the said board shall, by an order entered on their minutes, declare such territory duly organized as an irrigation district, under the name and style theretofore designated, and shall declare the persons receiving, respectively, the highest number of votes for such several offices, to be duly elected to such office. Said board shall cause a copy of such order, including a plat of said district duly certified by the clerk of the board of county commissioners, to be immediately filed for record in the office of the county clerk of each county in which any portion of such lands are situated, and no board of county commissioners of any county, including any portion of such district, shall, after the date of organization of such district, allow another district to be formed, including any of the lands of such district, without the consent of the board of directors thereof, and from and after the date of such filing, the organization of such district shall be complete, and the officers thereof shall immediately enter upon the duties of their respective offices, upon qualifying, in accordance with the law, and shall hold such offices, respectively, until their successors are elected and have qualified. As amended, Stats. 1917, 258.

4727. Regular district elections, when—Terms of directors—Qualifications—Oath and bond.

SEC. 5. The regular election of said district shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in April biennially thereafter, at which shall be elected one director by the electors of the district at large; provided, in districts already organized where directors have been elected in conformity with existing laws, no election shall be held until the year 1916; provided further, the directors elected at the organization election, heretofore held or held hereafter, shall be selected by lot, so that if there be three directors one shall hold his office for the term of two years, and two for the term of four years, but if there be five directors then two shall hold office for the term of two years, and three for the term of four years, and if there be seven directors then three shall hold office for the term of two years, and four for the term of four years, and an election shall be held in each district biennially thereafter, at which one, two, three, or four directors as may be necessary to replace the directors whose terms expire, shall be elected for a term of four years, or until their successors are elected and qualify. Such director must be a qualified elector and a freeholder of the division of the director whom he is to succeed in office. Within ten days after receiving the certificates of election hereinafter provided for, such officer shall take and subscribe to an official oath and file the same in the office of the board of directors, and execute the bond hereinafter provided for. Each member of said board of directors shall execute an official bond in the sum of seven thousand five hundred dollars ($7,500), which said bonds shall be approved by the judge of the district court in and for said county where such organization is effected, and shall be recorded in the office of the county recorder thereof and filed with the secretary of said board. All official bonds provided for in this act shall be in the form prescribed by law; provided, that in case any district organized under this title is appointed fiscal agent of the United States, or by the United States is authorized to make collection of moneys for and on behalf of the United States in connection with any federal reclamation project, each such director shall execute a further and additional bond in such sum as the secretary of the interior may require, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, and the faithful discharge by the district of its duties as fiscal or other agent of the United States under any such appointment or authorization, and any such bond may be sued upon by the United States or any person injured by the failure of such director or the district to fully, promptly, and completely perform their respective duties. As amended, Stats. 1915, 435; 1917, 258.

4728. Office, where—Election notices—Procedure—Registration.

SEC. 6. The office of the board of directors shall be located in the county where the organization was effected. Fifteen days before any election held under this act, subsequent to the organization of the district, the secretary, who shall be appointed by the board of directors, shall cause notice specifying the polling places in each election precinct to be posted in three public places in each election precinct, of the time and place of holding the election, and shall also post a general notice of the same in the office of said board, which shall be established and kept at some fixed place to be determined by said board in said county. Prior to the time for posting the notice, the board must appoint from each precinct, from the electors thereof, three judges, who shall constitute a board of election for such precinct. If the board fails to appoint a board of election, or the members appointed do not attend the opening of the polls on the morning of election, the electors of the precinct present at that hour may appoint the board, or supply the place of an absent member thereof. The board of directors must, in its order appointing the board of election, designate the hour and the place in the precinct where the election must be held. At least four weeks before any such election, said board of directors shall appoint a registrar for each precinct of the district, except the precinct in which the office of the secretary of the board is located. In the precinct in which his office is located, or where there is but one voting precinct in the district, the secretary of the district shall act as registrar. Such registrars shall be governed in the performance of their duties by the general election laws of the state as far as they are applicable, and must be at their places of registration, to receive applications for registration, from nine o'clock a. m. to nine o'clock p. m., on each of the three Saturdays next preceding the date of election. In addition to the usual elector's oath, the following shall be added: "As I am a holder of land within the boundaries of.....Irrigation District." No election for any purpose shall be held in any irrigation district without such registration, and only those persons duly registered shall be allowed to vote thereat; provided, said directors may include all of said district in one voting precinct. As amended, Stats. 1915, 436; 1917, 259.

4729. Further regulations regarding election.

SEC. 7. The said judge shall elect a chairman, who may administer all oaths required in the progress of an election, and appoint judges and clerks, if during the progress of an election any judge or clerk ceases to act. Any member of the board of election, or any clerk thereof, may administer and certify oaths required to be administered during the progress of the election. The board of election of each precinct must, before opening the polls, appoint two clerks to act as clerks of the election.

Before opening the polls, each member of the board and each clerk must take and subscribe to an oath to faithfully perform the duties imposed upon them by law. Any elector of the precinct may administer and certify such oath. The time of opening and closing the polls, the manner of conducting the election, canvassing and announcing the result, the keeping of the tally-list, and the making and certifying said results, and the disposition of the ballots after election, shall be the same, as near as may be, as provided for elections under the general election law of this state; but no registrar or election officer shall receive any pay for services at any district election; provided, that the returns shall be delivered to the secretary of the district, and that no list, tally-paper, or certificate returns from any election, shall be set aside or rejected for want of form if it can be satisfactorily understood. The board of directors must meet at its usual place of meeting on the first Monday after each election to canvass the returns, and they shall proceed in the same manner and with like effect, as near as may be, as the board of county commissioners in canvassing the returns of general elections, and when they shall have declared the result, the secretary shall make full entries in his record in like manner as is required of the county clerk in general elections. The board of directors must declare elected the person or persons having the highest number of votes given for each office. The secretary shall immediately make out and deliver to such person or persons a certificate of election signed by him and authenticated with the seal of the board. In case of a vacancy in the office of the director, the vacancy shall be filled by appointment by the remaining members of the board from the division in which the vacancy occurred. An officer appointed to fill a vacancy, as above provided, shall hold his office until the next regular election of said district, at which election a director shall be elected for the remainder of the unexpired term. As amended, Stats. 1917, 260.

4734. Election of officers—Meetings—Additional bonds—Organization of board—Appointees.

SEC. 12. On the organization of the first board of directors of any such district, they shall designate some place within the district as the office of said board, and said board shall hold a regular monthly meeting in its office on the first Monday in every month, and any special meetings as may be required for the proper transaction of business; provided, that all special meetings must be ordered by the president or a majority of the board, the order must be entered of record, and the secretary must give each member not joining in the order five days' notice of such special meetings. The order must specify the business to be transacted at such special meeting, and none other than that specified shall be transacted; provided further, that whenever all members of the board are present, however called, the same shall be deemed a legal meeting, and any lawful business may be transacted. All meetings of the board must be public, and a majority shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business; but on all questions requiring a vote there shall be a concurrence of at least a majority of the members of the board. All records of the board shall be open to the inspection of any elector during business hours; provided further, that in case any district organized under this title is appointed fiscal agent of the United States, or by the United States is authorized to make collections of moneys for and on behalf of the United States in connection with any federal reclamation project, the treasurer shall execute a further and additional official bond in such sum as the secretary of the interior may require, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, and the faithful discharge by the district of its duties as fiscal or other agent of the United States under any such appointment or authorization, and such further additional bond may be sued upon by the United States or any person injured by the failure of the said treasurer or of the district to fully, promptly, and completely perform their respective duties.

On the first Monday in May, next following their election, the board of directors shall meet and organize a board, elect a president from their number, and appoint a secretary and treasurer; provided, said board may in its discretion appoint one person to fill the offices of secretary-treasurer; and provided further, said appointee or appointees shall hold office during the pleasure of the board. All appointees of the board shall file bonds for the faithful performance of their duties as required by the board, it to approve the same. As amended, Stats. 1915, 437.

4735. Powers and duties of board.

SEC. 13. Said board shall have the power to manage and conduct the business and affairs of the district, make and execute all necessary contracts, employ and appoint such agents, officers, and employees as may be required, and prescribe their duties, and to establish equitable by-laws, rules and regulations, for the distribution and use of water among the owners of such land as may be necessary and just to secure the just and proper distribution of the same. Said by-laws, rules and regulations must be printed in convenient form for distribution throughout the district. The board and its agents and employees shall have the right to enter upon any land to make surveys, and may locate the necessary irrigation works, and the lines of any canal or canals, and the necessary branches for the same, on any lands which may be deemed best for such location. Said board shall also have the right to acquire, either by purchase, condemnation, or other legal means, all lands, rights, and other property necessary for the construction, use and supply, maintenance, repair, and improvement of said canal or canals and works, including canals and works constructed and being constructed by private owners, lands for reservoirs for the storage of needful waters, and all necessary appurtenances. In case of purchase, the bonds of the district hereinafter provided for may be used to their par value in payment.

For the purpose of acquiring control over government land within the district, and of complying with the provisions of the aforesaid act of Congress of August 11, 1916, the board shall have authority to make such investigation, and base thereon such representations and assurances to the secretary of the interior as may be requisite. Said board may appropriate water in accordance with the law, and also construct the necessary dams, reservoirs, and works for the collection of water for said district; and do any and every lawful act necessary to be done that sufficient water may be furnished to each land owner in said district for irrigation purposes. The use of all water required for the irrigation of lands of any district formed under the provisions of this act, together with the rights of way for canals and ditches, sites for reservoirs, and all other property required to fully carry out the provisions of this act, is hereby declared to be a public use, subject to the regulations and control of the state, in the manner prescribed by law.

Said board may enter into any obligation or contract with the United States for the construction, operation, and maintenance of the necessary works for the delivery and distribution of water therefrom under the provisions of the federal reclamation act and all acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto, and the rules and regulations established thereunder; or the board may contract with the United States for a water supply or drainage works, under any act of Congress providing for or permitting such contract, or may provide by contract with the United States for the release of mortgages or liens given or reserved to the United States upon district lands, and may provide for the assumption by the district, either as principal or guarantor, of indebtedness to the United States on account of district lands and apportion to each tract of land so released benefits in the amount of the obligations to the United States so provided to be released; and the contract between the district and the United States may provide for the collection and payment of indebtedness so incurred or assumed by the district and the tax or assessment for the same at the same times and in the same amounts or installments provided in the federal reclamation laws, and if so provided in the contract, such taxes and assessments shall become delinquent at the same dates provided in the act of Congress of August 13, 1914 (38 Stats. 686), known as the reclamation extension act and in that event if it be provided in the contract that the United States waives any penalties for delinquency other or greater than those named in the said act of Congress of August 13, 1914, then, instead of the penalties otherwise provided in state laws, the penalties for delinquency in the payment of that part of the tax representing the special assessment for payment of the obligations of the district to the United States shall be the penalties named in the said act of Congress of August 13, 1914, and the amount required to be paid in case of any redemption from any tax sale or tax judgment shall be determined by figuring the part thereof due to the United States upon the basis of the amount of such special assessment levied for the purpose of paying the United States plus the penalties named in said act of Congress of August 13, 1914. And the said board shall have full power to do any and all things required by the federal statutes now or hereafter enacted in connection therewith, and all things required by the rules and regulations now or that may hereafter be established by any department of the federal government in regard thereto. All water, the right to the use of which is acquired by the district under any contract with the United States, shall be distributed and apportioned by the district in accordance with the acts of Congress, the regulations of the secretary of the interior, and the provisions of said contract in relation thereto, and said contract may provide that water delivery may be denied to any delinquent land owner for non-payment of any assessment required for compliance with said contract with the United States. That any one of the several divisions of the irrigation district, desiring to secure local drains, laterals, or other structures or improvements, the benefits of which are limited to such division, may provide for the construction and operation of such local improvement in the following manner: That upon presentation to the board of directors of any irrigation district of a petition signed by a majority of the land owners of any division owning or holding title or possessory rights to at least one-fourth of the total acreage of such division, and designating two land owners of such division by the petitioners as local directors of such division, and describing in a general way the local improvements desired, the board of directors of the district shall consider such petition at a regular or special meeting, and if they find that the requirements of the law have been complied with in regard to such petition, shall appoint the two land owners designated in such petition as directors of a local board for such division, the first of such local directors named in the petition to hold office for a period of two years and the second for a period of four years, and successors to be elected by the electors of the division in like manner as the directors of the district are elected by the electors of the district. The two local directors so appointed or elected, together with the director of the district from such division, shall constitute the local board for such divisions, and may provide for the construction or operation of local drains, laterals, and other structures or improvements, the benefits of which are confined to such division, and for the purpose of the construction and operation of such local improvements and apportionment, assessment, and payment therefor, shall have all the powers that the directors of the district are authorized to exercise in regard to the construction and operation of, and payment for, district works, and shall proceed in like manner and with like effect to submit to the electors of the division the question of authority for any proposed bond issue of such division or contract between such division with the United States, and if carried by the necessary two-thirds majority of the votes cast at the election, such local board shall proceed to have such bond issue or contract judicially reviewed and confirmed in like manner as a district bond issue, and with like effect and prior to such election in like manner shall apportion the benefits thereof to the lands of the division, and certify such apportionment to the board of directors of the district, who shall report the same to the proper county officer in like manner and effect as an apportionment of benefits made by the district, and shall likewise provide for payments of the bonds or contract or the division and the interest thereon, if any, and operation and maintenance of such local works and the payment of the local board and incidental expenses in connection therewith.

Each member of said local board shall receive a salary of three dollars per day for the time actually employed, but should such proposed bond issue or contract with the United States for such proposed local improvement fail to receive the required majority of the votes of the division at such election, then the term of office of such local directors shall thereupon terminate and said local board be dissolved. Provided, further, in case contract has been or may hereafter be made with the United States as herein provided, bonds of the district may be deposited with the United States at 90 per cent of their par value, to the amount to be paid by the district to the United States under any such contract, the interest on said bonds to be provided for by assessment and levy as in the case of other bonds of the district, and regularly paid to the United States, to be applied as provided in such contracts, and if bonds of the district are not so deposited it shall be the duty of the board of directors to include as part of any levy or assessment provided for in section 31, as herein amended, an amount sufficient to meet each year all payments accruing under the terms of any such contract; and the board may accept, on behalf of the district, appointment of the district as fiscal agent of the United States, or authorization of the district by the United States to make collections of moneys for or on behalf of the United States in connection with any federal reclamation project, whereupon the district shall be authorized to so act and assume the duties and liabilities incident to such action, and the said board shall have full power to do any and all things required by the federal statutes now or hereafter enacted in connection therewith, and all things required by the rules and regulations now or that may hereafter be established by any department of the federal government in regard thereto; provided, all water, the right to the use of which is acquired by the district under any contract with the United States, shall be distributed and apportioned by the district in accordance with the acts of Congress and the rules and regulations of the secretary of the interior, and the provisions and contract between the said district and the United States in relation thereto. As amended, Stats. 1915, 437; 1917, 261.

4736. Legal title vests in district—Proviso.

SEC. 14. The legal title to all property or rights acquired under the provisions of this act shall immediately by operation of law vest in such irrigation district and shall be held by such district in trust for, and is hereby dedicated and set apart to the uses and purposes set forth in this act. Said board is hereby authorized and empowered to hold, use, acquire, manage, occupy, and possess said property and rights as herein provided; provided, however, that any property acquired by the district may be conveyed to the United States in so far as the same may be needed by the United States for the construction, operation and maintenance of works for the benefit of the district under any contract which may be entered into with the United States pursuant to this act. As amended, Stats. 1917, 265.

4740. Special election for special assessment, when.

SEC. 18. The board of directors may, at any time when in their judgment it may be advisable, call a special election and submit to the qualified electors of the district, the question whether or not a special assessment shall be levied for the purpose of raising money to be applied to any of the purposes provided in this act. Such election must be called upon the notice prescribed, and the same shall be held and the result thereof be determined and declared, in all respects in conformity with the provisions of sections 5 and 6. The notice must specify the amount of money proposed to be raised, and the purpose for which it is intended to be used. At such elections the ballots shall contain the words "Assessment—Yes," or "Assessment—No." If two-thirds or more of the votes cast are "Assessment—Yes," the board shall immediately levy an assessment sufficient to raise the amount voted. The assessment so levied shall be computed and entered on the assessment roll by the secretary of the board and collected in the same manner as other assessments provided for herein; and when collected shall be paid into the district treasury for the purpose specified in a notice of such special election. As amended, Stats. 1917, 265.

4741. Power to incur debts limited—Proviso—Power to levy and collect tax.

SEC. 19. The board of directors, or other officers of the district, shall have no power to incur any debt or liability whatever, either by issuing bonds or otherwise, in excess of the express provisions of this act; and any debt or liability incurred in excess of such express provisions shall be and remain absolutely void; provided, that for the purpose of organization, or for any of the purposes of this act, the board of directors may, before the collection of the first assessment, incur an indebtedness not exceeding in the aggregate the sum of three thousand dollars, and may cause warrants of the district to issue therefor, bearing interest at six per cent per annum; provided, that the directors have the right and power to levy a tax of not to exceed five (5) cents the acre on all land and lands in said district for the payment of all expenses of organization and matters relating thereto; and provided further, that thereafter the directors have the right and power to levy a tax annually of not to exceed three (3) cents the acre on all land and lands in said district for the payment of the ordinary and current expenses of the district, including the salary of officers and other incidental expenses. After such levy is made, the secretary of the board of directors shall transmit the same to the county auditor of the county within which said district is located; the county auditor shall enter the same in the tax rolls of the county; and it shall be the duty of the county treasurer to collect such taxes at the time and in the same manner that other taxes are collected. As amended, Stats. 1915, 439.

4744. County commissioners to examine books.

SEC. 22. Any board of directors of any such irrigation district, or the secretary thereof, shall at any time allow any member of the board of county commissioners, when acting under the order of such board, to have access to all books, records, and vouchers of the district which are in possession or control of said board of directors or said secretary of said board, and in case any district is appointed fiscal agent of the United States, or by the United States is authorized to make collections for or on behalf of the United States in connection with any federal irrigation project, such board of directors, or the secretary thereof, shall at any time allow any officer or employee of the United States, when acting under the order of the secretary of the interior, to have access to all books, records, and vouchers of the district which are in possession or control of the secretary or of said board. As amended, Stats. 1915, 440.

Assessments based on benefits.

SEC. 23. As soon as practicable after the organization of any such district, the board of directors shall, by a resolution entered on its records, formulate a general plan of its proposed operation, in which it shall state what constructive works or other property it proposes to purchase and the cost of purchasing the same; and further what construction work it proposes to do and how it proposes to raise funds for carrying out said plan. For the purpose of ascertaining the cost of any such construction work said board shall cause such surveys, examinations, and plans to be made as shall demonstrate the practicability of such plan, and furnish the proper basis for an estimate of the cost of carrying out the same. All such surveys, examinations, maps, plans, and estimates shall be made under the directions of a competent irrigation engineer and certified by him. No such surveys, examinations, or plans need be made if it is proposed to enter into contract with the United States under the federal laws. Upon receiving said report, said board of directors shall proceed to determine the amount of money necessary to be raised, and shall immediately thereafter call a special election, at which shall be submitted to the electors of said district possessing the qualifications prescribed by this act, the question whether or not the expense shall be authorized, and whether by bond issue or otherwise. Notice of such election must be given by posting notices in three public places in each election precinct in said district at least four weeks before the date of said election, and the publication thereof for the same length of time in some newspaper published in the district, and in case no paper is published in the district then in a paper published in each county in which the district, or any part thereof, is located. Such notice must specify the time of holding the election, the amount of bonds proposed to be issued, and, in case such maps and estimates have been made, it shall further state that copies thereof are on file and open for public inspection by the people of the district, at the office of said board. But if contract is proposed to be made with the United States and bonds are not to be deposited with the United States in connection therewith, the question to be submitted at such special election is whether contracts shall be entered into with the United States. The notice of election in such case shall state the maximum amount of money proposed to be payable to the United States for construction purposes exclusive of penalties and interest. Said election must be held and the results thereof determined and declared in all respects as nearly as practicable in conformity with the provisions of this act governing the election of officers; provided, that no informalities in conducting such an election shall invalidate the same if the election shall have been otherwise fairly conducted. At such an election the ballot shall contain the words "....." (Question) "Yes," or "....." (Question) "No," or words equivalent thereto. If two-thirds of the votes cast are "Yes," the board of directors shall be authorized to incur the

act. Said board is hereby authorized and empowered to hold, use, acquire, manage, occupy, and possess said property and rights as herein provided; provided, however, that any property acquired by the district may be conveyed to the United States in so far as the same may be needed by the United States for the construction, operation and maintenance of works for the benefit of the district under any contract which may be entered into with the United States pursuant to this act. As amended, Stats. 1917, 265.

4740. Special election for special assessment, when.

SEC. 18. The board of directors may, at any time when in their judgment it may be advisable, call a special election and submit to the qualified electors of the district, the question whether or not a special assessment shall be levied for the purpose of raising money to be applied to any of the purposes provided in this act. Such election must be called upon the notice prescribed, and the same shall be held and the result thereof be determined and declared, in all respects in conformity with the provisions of sections 5 and 6. The notice must specify the amount of money proposed to be raised, and the purpose for which it is intended to be used. At such elections the ballots shall contain the words "Assessment—Yes," or "Assessment—No." If two-thirds or more of the votes cast are "Assessment—Yes," the board shall immediately levy an assessment sufficient to raise the amount voted. The assessment so levied shall be computed and entered on the assessment roll by the secretary of the board and collected in the same manner as other assessments provided for herein; and when collected shall be paid into the district treasury for the purpose specified in a notice of such special election. As amended, Stats. 1917, 265.

4741. Power to incur debts limited—Proviso—Power to levy and collect tax.

SEC. 19. The board of directors, or other officers of the district, shall have no power to incur any debt or liability whatever, either by issuing bonds or otherwise, in excess of the express provisions of this act; and any debt or liability incurred in excess of such express provisions shall be and remain absolutely void; provided, that for the purpose of organization, or for any of the purposes of this act, the board of directors may, before the collection of the first assessment, incur an indebtedness not exceeding in the aggregate the sum of three thousand dollars, and may cause warrants of the district to issue therefor, bearing interest at six per cent per annum; provided, that the directors have the right and power to levy a tax of not to exceed five (5) cents the acre on all land and lands in said district for the payment of all expenses of organization and matters relating thereto; and provided further, that thereafter the directors have the right and power to levy a tax annually of not to exceed three (3) cents the acre on all land and lands in said district for the payment of the ordinary and current expenses of the district, including the salary of officers and other incidental expenses. After such levy is made, the secretary of the board of directors shall transmit the same to the county auditor of the county within which said district is located; the county auditor shall enter the same in the tax rolls of the county; and it shall be the duty of the county treasurer to collect such taxes at the time and in the same manner that other taxes are collected. As amended, Stats. 1915, 439.

4744. County commissioners to examine books.

SEC. 22. Any board of directors of any such irrigation district, or the secretary thereof, shall at any time allow any member of the board of county commissioners, when acting under the order of such board, to have access to all books, records, and vouchers of the district which are in possession or control of said board of directors or said secretary of said board, and in case any district is appointed fiscal agent of the United States, or by the United States is authorized to make collections for or on behalf of the United States in connection with any federal irrigation project, such board of directors, or the secretary thereof, shall at any time allow any officer or employee of the United States, when acting under the order of the secretary of the interior, to have access to all books, records, and vouchers of the district which are in possession or control of the secretary or of said board. As amended, Stats. 1915, 440.

4745. General plan of operation — Special election, when — Procedure— Assessments based on benefits.

SEC. 23. As soon as practicable after the organization of any such district, the board of directors shall, by a resolution entered on its records, formulate a general plan of its proposed operation, in which it shall state what constructive works or other property it proposes to purchase and the cost of purchasing the same; and further what construction work it proposes to do and how it proposes to raise funds for carrying out said plan. For the purpose of ascertaining the cost of any such construction work said board shall cause such surveys, examinations, and plans to be made as shall demonstrate the practicability of such plan, and furnish the proper basis for an estimate of the cost of carrying out the same. All such surveys, examinations, maps, plans, and estimates shall be made under the directions of a competent irrigation engineer and certified by him. No such surveys, examinations, or plans need be made if it is proposed to enter into contract with the United States under the federal laws. Upon receiving said report, said board of directors shall proceed to determine the amount of money necessary to be raised, and shall immediately thereafter call a special election, at which shall be submitted to the electors of said district possessing the qualifications prescribed by this act, the question whether or not the expense shall be authorized, and whether by bond issue or otherwise. Notice of such election must be given by posting notices in three public places in each election precinct in said district at least four weeks before the date of said election, and the publication thereof for the same length of time in some newspaper published in the district, and in case no paper is published in the district then in a paper published in each county in which the district, or any part thereof, is located. Such notice must specify the time of holding the election, the amount of bonds proposed to be issued, and, in case such maps and estimates have been made, it shall further state that copies thereof are on file and open for public inspection by the people of the district, at the office of said board. But if contract is proposed to be made with the United States and bonds are not to be deposited with the United States in connection therewith, the question to be submitted at such special election is whether contracts shall be entered into with the United States. The notice of election in such case shall state the maximum amount of money proposed to be payable to the United States for construction purposes exclusive of penalties and interest. Said election must be held and the results thereof determined and declared in all respects as nearly as practicable in conformity with the provisions of this act governing the election of officers; provided, that no informalities in conducting such an election shall invalidate the same if the election shall have been otherwise fairly conducted. At such an election the ballot shall contain the words "....." (Question) "Yes," or "....." (Question) "No," or words equivalent thereto. If two-thirds of the votes cast are "Yes," the board of directors shall be authorized to incur the expense, and if a bond issue be authorized, shall cause bonds in said amounts to be issued, and if a contract with the United States be authorized, the board shall negotiate and execute a contract calling for payment not exceeding the amount voted upon; if more than one-third of the votes cast at any bond election are "No," the result of such election shall be so declared and entered of record. And whenever thereafter said board, in its judgment, deems it for the best interest of the district that the question of the issuance of bonds in said amounts, or any other amounts, shall be submitted to the electors it shall so declare of record in its minutes, and may thereupon submit such questions to said electors in the same manner and with like effect as at such previous elections, but no question shall be resubmitted to the electors within one year after the same has been voted upon and rejected; provided further, that said elections may authorize the assessment of all lands in the district based upon benefits by the irrigation plan or scheme as herein provided, and provide for the payment of such assessments by annual payments or at such times as may seem fit, each tract of land assessed being liable for its proportion on the benefit basis and for no further amount. As amended, Stats. 1915, 441; 1917, 266.

4746. Issue of bonds, regulations concerning.

SEC. 24. The bonds authorized by any vote shall be designated as a series, and the series shall be numbered consecutively as authorized. The portion of the bonds of the series sold at any time shall be designated as an issue, and each issue shall be numbered in its order. The bonds of such issue shall be numbered consecutively commencing with those earliest falling due, and they shall be designated as eleven-year bonds, twelve-year bonds, etc. They shall be negotiable in form, and payable in money of the United States as follows, to wit: At the expiration of eleven years from each issue, five per cent of the whole number of bonds of such issue; at the expiration of twelve years, six per cent; at the expiration of thirteen years, seven per cent; at the expiration of fourteen years, eight per cent; at the expiration of fifteen years, nine per cent; at the expiration of sixteen years, ten per cent; at the expiration of seventeen years, eleven per cent; at the expiration of eighteen years, thirteen per cent; at the expiration of nineteen years, fifteen per cent; at the expiration of twenty years, sixteen per cent; provided, that such percentages may be changed sufficiently so that every bond shall be in an amount of one hundred dollars, or a multiple thereof, and the above provisions shall not be construed to require any single bond to fall due in partial payments. Interest coupons shall be attached thereto, and all bonds and coupons shall be dated on January 1, or July 1, next following the date of their authorization, and they shall bear interest at the rate of not to exceed six per cent per annum, payable semiannually on the first day of January and July of each year. The principal and interest shall be payable at the place designated therein. Said bonds shall be each of a denomination of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than one thousand dollars, and shall be signed by the president and secretary, and the seal of the board of directors shall be affixed thereto. Coupons attached to each bond shall be signed by the secretary. Said bonds shall express on their face that they were issued by the authority of this act, naming it, and shall also state the number of the issue of which said bonds are a part. The secretary and the treasurer shall each keep a record of the bonds sold, their number, the date of sale, the price received, and the name of the purchaser. In case the money raised by the sale of all the bonds be insufficient for the completion of the plans and works adopted, and additional bonds be not voted, it shall be the duty of the board of directors to provide for the completion of said plan by levy of assessment therefor, in the manner hereinafter provided; provided further, that when the money provided by any previous issue of bonds has become exhausted by expenditures herein authorized therefor, and it becomes necessary to raise additional money for such purpose, additional bonds may be issued, submitting the question at a general election to the qualified voters of said district, otherwise complying with the provisions of this section in respect to an original issue of said bonds; provided, also, the lien for taxes for the payment of interest and principal or of any bond issue, or for the payment of moneys to the United States under contract by the district, shall be a prior lien to that of any subsequent bond issue, or to that under any subsequent contract with the United States; provided further, that the time for the issuance and maturity of the bonds and the manner of their payment may be otherwise determined and directed, if submitted to a vote by the electors of said district at the election authorizing the said bonds; provided further, that the contract with the United States, if any, may provide for such installments and for repayment of the principal at such times as may be required by the federal laws and may be agreed upon between the board and the secretary of the interior and the bonds securing the payment of the same, if any be issued and deposited, may be in like terms and of such denominations as may be agreed upon. As amended, Stats. 1915, 441; 1917, 267.

4747. Apportionment of benefits—Maps—Assessments to be proportional.

SEC. 25. That prior to any election to authorize an issue of bonds, or a contract with the United States, as hereinbefore provided, the board of directors shall examine each tract or legal subdivision of land in the said district, and shall determine the benefits which will accrue to each of such tracts or subdivisions from the construction or purchase of such irrigation works; and the cost of such work shall be apportioned or distributed over such tracts or subdivisions of land in proportion to such benefits, and the amounts so apportioned or distributed to each of said tracts or subdivisions shall be and remain the basis for fixing the annual assessments levied against such tracts or subdivisions in carrying out the purposes of this act; provided, that if contract be made with the United States to provide for release of liens to the United States, the benefits apportioned to each tract of land shall be in proportion to the amount of the obligation to the United States released, as provided in section 13 hereof. And if any lands within such district shall not be released from any lien, then the benefits shall be apportioned and distributed in proportion to benefits accruing thereto in accordance with the federal acts of Congress, public notices and regulations and the contracts between the districts and the United States. And prior to such election such board of directors shall make, or cause to be made, a list of such apportionment or distribution, which list shall contain a complete description of each subdivision or tract of land of such district and the amount and rate per acre of such apportionment or distribution of cost, and the name of the owner thereof; or they may prepare a map on a convenient scale showing each of said subdivisions or tracts with the rate per acre of such apportionment entered thereon; provided, that where all lands on any map or section of a map are assessed at the same rate a general statement to that effect shall be sufficient. Said list or map shall be made in duplicate, and one copy of each shall be filed in the office of the state engineer, and one copy shall remain in the office of said board of directors for public inspection, and at least thirty days prior to any such election the secretary of the district shall publish a notice in a newspaper published in the county where the office of the district is located, or if there be no such newspaper then in some newspaper in general circulation in such county, stating that the list or map showing such apportionment of benefits has been duly filed in the office of the district for public inspection, and shall file a copy of such list or map at each election precinct for the use of the election officers. Whenever thereafter an assessment is made, either in lieu of bonds, or an annual assessment for raising the interest on bonds, or any portion of the principals, or the expenses of maintaining the property of the district, or any special assessment voted by the electors, it shall be spread upon the lands, in the same proportion as the assessment of benefits, and the whole amount of the assessment of benefits shall equal the amount of bonds or other obligations authorized at the election last above mentioned. As amended, Stats. 1917, 269.

4749. Confirmation of proceedings—Proviso.

SEC. 27. The board of directors of the irrigation district shall file with the clerk of the district court in and for the county in which his office is situated a petition, praying in effect that the proceedings aforesaid may be examined, approved, and confirmed by the court. The petition shall state generally that the irrigation district was duly organized and the first board of directors elected, that due and lawful proceedings were taken to issue bonds in an amount to be stated, or that lawful proceedings were taken for the execution of a contract with the United States, as the case may be, and that said assessment, list and apportionment were duly made and a copy of said assessment, list and apportionment shall be attached to said petition, but the petition need not state other facts showing such proceedings; provided, that after the organization of the district is complete, a petition may be filed for the confirmation of the proceedings so far, or after the authorization of any issue of bonds, or after the execution of contract with the United States, such petition may be so filed, and where the procedure is by separate petitions for the confirmation of different portions of said proceedings, subsequent proceedings may be in the name of reopening of the same case, but shall not be considered as authorizing any rehearing of the matter theretofore heard and decided. As amended, Stats. 1917, 270.

4751. Hearing and confirmation.

SEC. 29. Upon the hearing of such special proceedings, the court shall examine all the proceedings set up in the petition, may ratify, approve, and confirm the same, or any part thereof, and in case of a petition to confirm said assessment, list, apportionment, and distribution, the courts shall hear all objections either filed in said proceedings or brought up in the hearing before the board of directors as aforesaid, and for that purpose any person desiring to be heard upon objections overruled by the board of directors, shall state substance of such objections and the rulings of the board in his answer, and if the proceedings relate to the authorization of contract with the United States the court may examine the proceedings for the authorization thereof and the validity of such contract and may approve and confirm the same. The court shall disregard every error, irregularity, or omission which does not affect the substantial right of the party, and if the court shall find that said assessments, list, and apportionment are in any substantial matter erroneous or unjust, the same shall not be returned to said board, but the court proceed to correct the same so as to conform to this act, and the rights of all parties in the premises, and the final order or decree of the court may approve and confirm such proceedings in part; and in case the proceedings for organization of the district and the issue of bonds are approved, the court shall correct all the errors in the assessment, apportionment, and distribution of costs as above provided, and render the final decree approving and confirming all of the said proceedings. In case of the approval of the organization of the district and the disapproval of the proceedings for issuing bonds, the district shall have the right to institute further proceedings for the issuance of bonds de novo. The cost of the special proceedings may be allowed and apportioned among the parties thereto in the discretion of the court. As amended, Stats. 1917, 270.

4753. Payment of bonds and interest.

SEC. 31. Said bonds and the interest thereon and all payments due or to become due to the United States under any contract between the district and the United States, accompanying which bonds of the district have not been deposited with the United States, as herein provided, shall be paid by revenue derived from the annual assessment upon the land and the district; and all the land in the district shall be and remain liable to be assessed for such payment. As amended, Stats. 1915, 442.

4758. Levy of assessments.

SEC. 36. Annually, before October first, the board of directors shall levy an assessment upon the lands in said district upon the basis, and in the proportion, of the list and apportionment of benefits approved by the court as hereinbefore provided, which assessment shall be sufficient to raise the annual interest on the outstanding bonds, and all payments due or to become due the ensuing year to the United States or any person or persons under any contract between the district and the United States, or said person or persons accompanying which bonds of the district have not been deposited with the United States or any person or persons, as herein provided. At the expiration of ten years after the issue of said bonds of any issue, the board must increase said assessment, as may be necessary from year to year, to raise a sum sufficient to pay the principal of the outstanding bonds as they mature. The secretary of the board must compute and enter in a separate column of the assessment book the respective sums, in dollars and cents, to be paid as an assessment on the property therein enumerated. When collected, the assessment shall be paid into the county treasury, and shall constitute a special fund, to be called "Bond Fund of.....Irrigation District." In case any assessment should be made for the purpose contemplated by a bond authorization, it shall be entered in a separate column of the assessment book in the same manner as the bond fund; and when collected shall constitute the "Construction Fund of.....Irrigation District," or in case such assessments include amounts due or to become due under any contract between the district and the United States as aforesaid, "Bond and United States Contract Fund of.....Irrigation District." As amended, Stats. 1915, 442.

4760. Payment of assessments.

SEC. 38. After such assessment is made up, the secretary of the board of directors shall forthwith certify the same to the county auditor of the county in which the district is located, and the county auditor shall enter the same in the tax rolls of the county; and it shall be the duty of the county treasurer to collect such taxes at the time and in the same manner and subject to the same penalties that other taxes are collected. Said taxes shall become due and delinquent at the same time and shall be collected by the same officers and in the same manner as state and county taxes. As amended, Stats. 1915, 443.

4761. Delinquent list.

SEC. 39. The county auditor, when making up the assessment roll, shall been effected, and dividing said consolidated district into three divisions, and shall appoint some person qualified under this act to act as director of each of said divisions of said district until the next general election for the election of officers, when a board of directors shall be elected as provided in section 5; provided, however, that the organization of such district shall not take effect until the first Tuesday of the January following said order of its establishment. If the date provided by law for the election of directors shall come between the date of said order of the board of county commissioners and said first Tuesday of January, then in making such order said board shall designate the board of directors of one of the consolidated districts as a board to take charge of said election, and a director shall in that case be elected for each division of said consolidated district, and in that case no appointment of directors shall be made by said board of county commissioners. If, however, upon such a canvass by said board of county commissioners it appears that a majority of votes cast in any district thus proposed to be consolidated is "Consolidation—No," then a record of that fact shall be entered in the same minutes of the said board of county commissioners, and all the proceedings had under this section shall be void; provided also, that in case contract has been made between either district and the United States, as in section 13 provided, no consolidation shall be made and no order of consolidation entered until the secretary of the interior shall assent thereto in writing, and such assent shall be filed with the board of county commissioners. As amended, Stats. 1915, 445.

District dissolved—Method of procedure.

SEC. 69½. Upon the filing of the petition in the district court setting forth that said irrigation district should be forthwith dissolved, such petition to be signed by at least a majority of the land owners and who own at least two-thirds of the land in said district, the said court shall make its order setting said petition for hearing, giving at least ten and not more than twenty days notice thereof, by publication in a newspaper, if one is published in the county; provided further, that before the order can be entered dissolving the district, the directors must show that the district, as such, does not owe any money nor that there are any outstanding bonds of said district or other evidence of indebtedness. Upon a proper showing being made the said district court shall enter its order dissolving absolutely such irrigation district; provided further, the said district may be divided or land excluded therefrom on a similar showing and petition signed by a majority of the electors owning at least two-thirds of all the land in the said district; provided further, that in case contract has been made between the district and the United States no division of said district or change in the boundaries of the district thereof, and no order dividing or changing the boundaries of the district or excluding land therefrom shall be made until the secretary of the interior shall assent thereto in writing, and such assent be filed with the said court having jurisdiction thereof. Added, Stats. 1915, 446.

4791. Duty of treasurer.

SEC. 70. It shall be the duty of the treasurer, or secretary-treasurer of the said district, to attend all sales of property for delinquent taxes where assessments or taxes have been levied by the district, and in case there are no bidders for any parcel or parcels of property offered for sale and which parcel or parcels are affected by a tax or assessment of said district, to pay such tax and costs thereon, then such treasurers may bid for and bid in such parcel or parcels of property as others will not buy as aforesaid, in the name of and for said district; and such treasurer shall take the certificate of sale, or deeds for such property, as other private buyers and subject to the same redemption, fees, and other provisions of law relating of the district, and thereupon the district shall be and remain an irrigation district as fully and to every intent and purpose as if the lands which are included in the district by the change of the boundaries as aforesaid had been included therein at the original organization of the district; provided, that in case contract has been made between the district and the United States, as in section 13 provided, no change shall be made in the boundaries of the district, and the board of directors shall make no order changing the boundaries of the district until the secretary of the interior shall assent thereto in writing, and such assent be filed with the board of directors. As amended, Stats. 1915, 444.

4783. Excluded lands to be surveyed.

SEC. 61. The board of directors to whom such petition is presented must cause the land described in such petition to be surveyed by a competent irrigation engineer, and if found to be too high to receive any benefit from irrigation works of said district, said board must make an order changing the boundaries of said district so as to exclude the land described in said petition; provided, that in case contract has been made between the district and the United States, as in section 13 provided, no change shall be made in the boundaries of the district, and the board of directors shall make no order changing the boundaries of the district until the secretary of the interior shall assent thereto in writing and such assent be filed with the board of directors. As amended, Stats. 1915, 445.

4786. Districts may be consolidated—Election to decide, when—Ballots—Directors of consolidated district—Provisos.

SEC. 64. Whenever the board of directors of any two or more irrigation districts which are contiguous deem for the best interests of their respective districts that the same be consolidated into a single district, such board of directors may petition the board of county commissioners for an order for an election, to vote upon the question of such consolidation, which petition shall state in detail the terms upon which said consolidation is proposed to be made. Upon receiving such petitions, the said board of county commissioners shall request the state engineer to investigate the conditions of such districts, and all questions affecting such proposed consolidation, and he shall make a report of the result of such investigation to the board of county commissioners not more than ninety days after such request is received. At the time said report upon the matter is made, said board of county commissioners, if deemed advisable, shall make an order fixing the time for an election in the said district to vote upon the question of such proposed consolidation, which time shall not be less than thirty, nor more than sixty days after the date of said report. Notice of said election shall be published as required for notice of the election in section 4 of this act; and the said board of directors shall make all necessary arrangements for such election in their respective districts as provided in this act for other elections. The ballots should be substantially as follows: "Consolidation—Yes," "Consolidation—No." The said board of directors shall canvass the returns of such election as provided in case of usual district elections, and shall immediately thereafter transmit, by messenger or by registered mail, certified abstracts of the result of said election in their respective districts to the clerk of the board of county commissioners. Within ten days after such returns are received by the clerk the said board of county commissioners shall meet and canvass the same. If it appears that a majority of all the votes cast in each of said districts is "Consolidation—Yes," said board shall make an order and enter the same of record in its minutes establishing said consolidated district, giving its boundaries and designation, and in detail the terms under which the consolidation has been effected, and dividing said consolidated district into three divisions, and shall appoint some person qualified under this act to act as director of each of said divisions of said district until the next general election for the election of officers, when a board of directors shall be elected as provided in section 5; provided, however, that the organization of such district shall not take effect until the first Tuesday of the January following said order of its establishment. If the date provided by law for the election of directors shall come between the date of said order of the board of county commissioners and said first Tuesday of January, then in making such order said board shall designate the board of directors of one of the consolidated districts as a board to take charge of said election, and a director shall in that case be elected for each division of said consolidated district, and in that case no appointment of directors shall be made by said board of county commissioners. If, however, upon such a canvass by said board of county commissioners it appears that a majority of votes cast in any district thus proposed to be consolidated is "Consolidation—No," then a record of that fact shall be entered in the same minutes of the said board of county commissioners, and all the proceedings had under this section shall be void; provided also, that in case contract has been made between either district and the United States, as in section 13 provided, no consolidation shall be made and no order of consolidation entered until the secretary of the interior shall assent thereto in writing, and such assent shall be filed with the board of county commissioners. As amended, Stats. 1915, 445.

District dissolved—Method of procedure.

SEC. 69½. Upon the filing of the petition in the district court setting forth that said irrigation district should be forthwith dissolved, such petition to be signed by at least a majority of the land owners and who own at least two-thirds of the land in said district, the said court shall make its order setting said petition for hearing, giving at least ten and not more than twenty days notice thereof, by publication in a newspaper, if one is published in the county; provided further, that before the order can be entered dissolving the district, the directors must show that the district, as such, does not owe any money nor that there are any outstanding bonds of said district or other evidence of indebtedness. Upon a proper showing being made the said district court shall enter its order dissolving absolutely such irrigation district; provided further, the said district may be divided or land excluded therefrom on a similar showing and petition signed by a majority of the electors owning at least two-thirds of all the land in the said district; provided further, that in case contract has been made between the district and the United States no division of said district or change in the boundaries of the district thereof, and no order dividing or changing the boundaries of the district or excluding land therefrom shall be made until the secretary of the interior shall assent thereto in writing, and such assent be filed with the said court having jurisdiction thereof. Added, Stats. 1915, 446.

4791. Duty of treasurer.

SEC. 70. It shall be the duty of the treasurer, or secretary-treasurer of the said district, to attend all sales of property for delinquent taxes where assessments or taxes have been levied by the district, and in case there are no bidders for any parcel or parcels of property offered for sale and which parcel or parcels are affected by a tax or assessment of said district, to pay such tax and costs thereon, then such treasurers may bid for and bid in such parcel or parcels of property as others will not buy as aforesaid, in the name of and for said district; and such treasurer shall take the certificate of sale, or deeds for such property, as other private buyers and subject to the same redemption, fees, and other provisions of law relating thereto. Said property shall be held, treated, and disposed of in accordance with the laws relating to similar cases in which counties purchase property. Added, Stats. 1915, 447.

Guardian or executor considered owner, when—Corporations and copartnerships considered natural persons.

SEC. 71. A guardian, executor or administrator shall be considered as the owner of the land held by him as such guardian, executor or administrator, and shall have the right to sign petitions, vote and do all other things that any person may or can do under this act. Corporations and copartnerships holding land in the district shall be considered as persons entitled to exercise all the right of natural persons, and the president of the corporation or other person duly authorized by the president or vice-president may sign any petition authorized by this act or cast the vote of the corporation at any district election. Added, Stats. 1917, 271.

An Act to provide for the organization and government of irrigation districts, for the irrigation and drainage of lands and other related undertakings thereby, and for the acquisition and distribution of water and other property, construction, operation and maintenance of works, diversion, storage, distribution, collection and carriage of water; cooperation with the United States; and matters properly connected therewith.

Districts, how organized.

SECTION 1. A majority in number of the holders of title, or evidence of title, to lands susceptible of one mode of irrigation from a common source or combined sources, and by the same system or combined systems of works, may propose the organization of an irrigation district under this act; provided, said holders of title or evidence of title shall hold such title or evidence of title to at least one-half part of the total area of the land in the proposed district; provided further, that every signer of a petition for the organization of an irrigation district shall be the holder of title or evidence of title to at least five acres of land within the proposed district. The equalized county assessment roll next preceding the presentation of a petition for the organization of an irrigation district shall be sufficient evidence of title for the purpose of this act, but other evidence may be received, including receipts or other evidence of rights of entrymen on land under any law of the United States, and such entrymen shall be competent signers of such petition, and the land on which they have made entries shall, for the purpose of said petition, be considered as owned by them. Such entrymen shall share all the privileges and obligations of freeholders and owners of private land within the district, under the several provisions of this act, including the right to vote and hold office, subject to the terms of the act of Congress entitled "An act to promote reclamation of arid lands," approved August 11, 1916. The petitioners may determine in said petition whether the proposed district shall be divided into three, five, or seven divisions, and whether it shall have three, five, or seven directors, but if no number is named in the petition the board of county commissioners may determine whether the number shall be three, five, or seven.

Petition presented to county commissioners—Bond—Notice.

SEC. 2. Whenever it is proposed to organize an irrigation district a petition shall first be presented to the board of county commissioners of the county in which the lands or the greater portion thereof are situated, signed by the required number, possessing the qualifications provided for election held under this act subsequent to the organization of the district the secretary shall cause notice specifying the polling places and time of holding the election to be posted in three public places in each election precinct and in the office of the board of directors. Prior to the time for posting the notice the board of directors shall appoint three qualified electors to act as inspectors of election in each election precinct and shall also appoint two clerks of election for each precinct. If the board of directors fail to appoint a board of election or the members appointed do not attend the opening of the polls on the morning of election the electors of the precinct present at that hour may appoint the board or supply the place of absent members thereof. The board of directors shall, in its order appointing the board of election, designate the hour and the place in each precinct where the election shall be held. At least four weeks before any such election said board of directors shall appoint a registrar for each precinct of the district. Such registrars shall be governed in the performance of their duties by the general election laws of the state as far as they are applicable and shall be at their places of registration to receive applications for registrations from nine o'clock a. m. to nine o'clock p. m. on each of the three Saturdays next preceding the date of election. The registrars shall require registrants to take the following oath, in substance: "I am, or have declared my intention to become, a citizen of the United States, am over the age of twenty-one years, and am, or properly represent, under the law in pursuance of which this election is to be held, the holder of title or evidence of title, as defined in said law, to land within the boundaries of the.....irrigation district." No election for any purpose except for organization shall be held in any irrigation district without such registration, and only electors duly registered shall be entitled to vote thereat.

Same—Director's bond.

SEC. 7. Before opening the polls each inspector and each clerk must take and subscribe to an oath to faithfully perform the duties imposed upon him by law. Any elector of the precinct may administer and certify such oath. Vacancies occurring during the progress of the election may be filled by the remaining inspector or inspectors, and any inspector of election may administer and certify oaths. The time of opening and closing the polls, the manner of conducting the election, canvassing and announcing the result, the keeping of the tally-list, and the making and certifying of such result and the disposition of the ballots after election shall be the same, as near as may be, as provided for elections under the general election law of this state, but no registrar or election officer shall receive any pay for services at any district election. The returns shall be delivered to the secretary of the district and no list, tally-paper or returns from any election shall be set aside or rejected for want of form if it can be satisfactorily understood. The board of directors shall meet at its usual place of meeting on the second Monday after an election to canvass the returns and it shall proceed in the same manner and with like effect, as near as may be, as the board of county commissioners in canvassing the returns of general elections, and when it shall have declared the result the secretary shall make full entries in his record in like manner as is required of the county clerk in general elections. The board of directors must declare elected the person or persons having the highest number of votes given for each office. The secretary shall immediately make out and deliver to such person or persons a certificate of election signed by him and authenticated with the seal of the board. Within ten days after receiving the certificate of his election, each director shall take and subscribe to an official oath and file the same with the secretary of the board of directors. Each member of within the division from which he is elected. Each division shall constitute an election precinct for the purposes of this act. The board of county commissioners shall give notice of such election, which shall be published for two weeks prior to such election in a newspaper within the county where the petition is filed. Such notice shall require the electors to cast ballots, which shall contain the words "Irrigation District—Yes," or "Irrigation District—No," or words equivalent thereto, and the names of persons to be voted for as directors. For the purpose of this election the board shall establish a polling place in each election precinct aforesaid, and shall also appoint three qualified electors to act as inspectors of election in each election precinct, and also appoint for each precinct two clerks of election. The number of directors and the number and boundaries of divisions of any district organized under the laws of this state shall not be altered or changed except by a petition of a majority of the qualified electors of the district and a majority of the directors.

Election—General laws to govern.

SEC. 4. Except as in this act otherwise provided, all such elections shall be conducted as near as may be practicable in accordance with the general election laws of this state. The board of county commissioners shall meet on the second Monday succeeding such election and proceed to canvass the votes cast thereat, and if upon such canvass it appear that a majority of the electors voted "Irrigation District—Yes" the board, by an order entered upon its minutes, shall declare such territory duly organized as an irrigation district under the name and style theretofore designated, and shall declare the persons receiving respectively the highest number of votes for directors to be duly elected, and shall cause a copy of such order and a plat of said district, each duly certified by the clerk of the board of county commissioners, to be immediately filed for record in the office of the county recorder of each county in which any portion of such lands are situated, and certified copies thereof shall also be filed with the county clerk of such counties, and thereafter the organization of the district shall be complete. No lands while they remain within a district shall be included in any other district.

Time of irrigation district elections—Terms—Nominations—Fee.

SEC. 5. The regular elections of irrigation districts shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in April of the second calendar year after the completion of the organization thereof, and on the same day biennially thereafter, or as to districts heretofore organized, biennially after the first regular election therein. The directors elected at the organization election shall be selected by lot so that one, two or three directors, according to whether there are in all three, five, or seven on the board, shall hold office until their successors are elected at the next regular election and qualify, and two, three, or four directors, as the case may be, shall hold office until their successors are elected at the second regular election after organization and qualify, and at the regular election biennially thereafter directors shall be elected, to replace the directors whose terms expire, for terms of four years, or until their successors are elected and qualify. Directors so elected shall have the qualifications prescribed in this act for directors elected at the time of organization. Nominations for the office of directors shall be made by filing a declaration with the secretary within fifty days before the date of election and not later than ten days before such election. Candidates shall pay twenty-five ($25) dollars filing fee with such declaration.

General rules concerning election.

SEC. 6. Not less than fifteen nor more than twenty days before any election held under this act subsequent to the organization of the district the secretary shall cause notice specifying the polling places and time of holding the election to be posted in three public places in each election precinct and in the office of the board of directors. Prior to the time for posting the notice the board of directors shall appoint three qualified electors to act as inspectors of election in each election precinct and shall also appoint two clerks of election for each precinct. If the board of directors fail to appoint a board of election or the members appointed do not attend the opening of the polls on the morning of election the electors of the precinct present at that hour may appoint the board or supply the place of absent members thereof. The board of directors shall, in its order appointing the board of election, designate the hour and the place in each precinct where the election shall be held. At least four weeks before any such election said board of directors shall appoint a registrar for each precinct of the district. Such registrars shall be governed in the performance of their duties by the general election laws of the state as far as they are applicable and shall be at their places of registration to receive applications for registrations from nine o'clock a. m. to nine o'clock p. m. on each of the three Saturdays next preceding the date of election. The registrars shall require registrants to take the following oath, in substance: "I am, or have declared my intention to become, a citizen of the United States, am over the age of twenty-one years, and am, or properly represent, under the law in pursuance of which this election is to be held, the holder of title or evidence of title, as defined in said law, to land within the boundaries of the.....irrigation district." No election for any purpose except for organization shall be held in any irrigation district without such registration, and only electors duly registered shall be entitled to vote thereat.

Same—Director's bond.

SEC. 7. Before opening the polls each inspector and each clerk must take and subscribe to an oath to faithfully perform the duties imposed upon him by law. Any elector of the precinct may administer and certify such oath. Vacancies occurring during the progress of the election may be filled by the remaining inspector or inspectors, and any inspector of election may administer and certify oaths. The time of opening and closing the polls, the manner of conducting the election, canvassing and announcing the result, the keeping of the tally-list, and the making and certifying of such result and the disposition of the ballots after election shall be the same, as near as may be, as provided for elections under the general election law of this state, but no registrar or election officer shall receive any pay for services at any district election. The returns shall be delivered to the secretary of the district and no list, tally-paper or returns from any election shall be set aside or rejected for want of form if it can be satisfactorily understood. The board of directors shall meet at its usual place of meeting on the second Monday after an election to canvass the returns and it shall proceed in the same manner and with like effect, as near as may be, as the board of county commissioners in canvassing the returns of general elections, and when it shall have declared the result the secretary shall make full entries in his record in like manner as is required of the county clerk in general elections. The board of directors must declare elected the person or persons having the highest number of votes given for each office. The secretary shall immediately make out and deliver to such person or persons a certificate of election signed by him and authenticated with the seal of the board. Within ten days after receiving the certificate of his election, each director shall take and subscribe to an official oath and file the same with the secretary of the board of directors. Each member of said board of directors shall execute an official bond in the sum of fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000), which shall be approved by the judge of the district court in and for the county where such organization is effected. Such bonds shall be recovered in the office of the county recorder and filed with the secretary of the board.

Who entitled to vote.

SEC. 8. Any person, male or female, of the age of 21 years or over, whether a resident of the district or not, who is or has declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States and who is a bona-fide holder of title, or evidence of title, as defined in section 1 hereof, to land situated in the district, shall be entitled to one vote at any election held under the provisions of this act, and shall be held to be referred to whenever the words elector or electors are used herein. Any elector residing outside of the district owning land in the district and qualified to vote at district elections shall be considered as a resident of that division and precinct of the district in which the major portion of his lands are located for the purpose of determining his place of voting and qualifications for holding office. A guardian, executor or administrator shall be considered as the holder of title or evidence of title as prescribed in section 1 hereof to the land in the estate for which he is such guardian, executor, or administrator, and shall have the right to sign petitions, vote and do all things that any elector may or can do under this act. Corporations holding land in the district shall be considered as persons entitled to exercise all the rights of natural persons and the president of the corporation, or other person duly authorized by the president or vice-president in writing, may sign any petition authorized by this act or cast the vote of the corporation at any election.

Officers—Regular meetings—Special meetings.

SEC. 9. The officers of such district shall consist of three, five, or seven directors, as aforesaid, a president and vice-president elected from their number, a secretary and a treasurer. The secretary and treasurer shall be appointed by the board of directors and may or may not be members of said board. Such officers shall serve at the will of the board. One person may be appointed to serve as secretary and treasurer. The board of directors shall designate some place within the county where the organization of the district was effected as the office of the board and the board shall hold a regular monthly meeting in its office on the first Monday in every month and such special meetings as may be required for the proper transaction of business; provided, that all special meetings must be called by the president or a majority of the board. The order calling such special meeting shall be entered of record, and the secretary shall give each member not joining in the order five days' notice of such special meeting. The order must specify the business to be transacted at such special meeting, and none other than that specified shall be transacted. Whenever all members of the board are present at a meeting the same shall be deemed a legal meeting and any lawful business may be transacted. All meetings of the board shall be public and a majority of the members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, but on all questions requiring a vote there shall be a concurrence of at least a majority of the members of the board. All records of the board shall be open to the inspection of any elector during business hours. On the first Monday in May next following their election, the board of directors shall meet and organize, elect a president and vice-president and appoint a secretary and treasurer. The appointees aforesaid shall file bonds which shall be approved by the board, for the faithful performance of their duties. Any vacancies in the office and no informalities in conducting such an election shall invalidate the same if it shall have been otherwise fairly conducted. At such an election the ballot shall contain the words "..... (Question) Yes," or "..... (Question) No," or words equivalent thereto. If two-thirds or more of the votes cast are "Yes," the board of directors shall be authorized to incur the expense, and if a bond issue be authorized shall cause bonds in the amount authorized to be issued. If more than one-third of the votes cast at any bond election are "No," the result of such election shall be so declared and entered of record. Thereafter, whenever said board in its judgment deems it for the best interest of the district that the question of the issuance of bonds in such amount, or in any other amount, shall be submitted to the electors it shall so declare of record in its minutes, and may thereupon submit such question to said electors in the same manner and with like effect as at such previous election, but no question shall be resubmitted to the electors within one year after the same has been voted upon and rejected.

Bonds in series—Description.

SEC. 16. The bonds authorized by vote shall be designated as a series, and the series shall be numbered consecutively as authorized. The portion of the bonds of the series sold at any time shall be designated as an issue and each issue shall be numbered in its order. The bonds of such issue shall be numbered consecutively, commencing with those earliest falling due, and they shall be designated as eleven-year bonds, twelve-year bonds, etc. They shall be negotiable in form, and payable in money of the United States as follows, to wit: At the expiration of eleven years from each issue, five per cent of the whole number of bonds of such issue; at the expiration of twelve years, six per cent; at the expiration of thirteen years, seven per cent; at the expiration of fourteen years, eight per cent; at the expiration of fifteen years, nine per cent; at the expiration of sixteen years, ten per cent; at the expiration of seventeen years, eleven per cent; at the expiration of eighteen years, thirteen per cent; at the expiration of nineteen years, fifteen per cent; at the expiration of twenty years, sixteen per cent; provided, that such percentage may be changed sufficiently so that every bond shall be in the amount of one hundred dollars, or a multiple thereof, and the above provisions shall not be construed to require any single bond to fall due in partial payments. Interest coupons shall be attached thereto, and all bonds and coupons shall be dated on January 1, or July 1, next following the date of their authorization, and they shall bear interest at the rate of not to exceed six per cent per annum, payable semiannually on the first day of January and July of each year. The principal and interest shall be payable at the place designated therein. Said bonds shall be each of a denomination of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than one thousand dollars, and shall be signed by the president and secretary, and the seal of the district shall be affixed thereto. Coupons attached to each bond shall be signed by the secretary. Said bonds shall express on their face that they were issued by the authority of this act, naming it, and shall also state the number of the issue of which said bonds are a part. The secretary and the treasurer shall each keep a record of the bonds sold, their number, the date of sale, the price received, and the name of the purchaser. In case the money raised by the sale of all the bonds be insufficient for the completion of the plans and works adopted, and additional bonds be not voted, it shall be the duty of the board of directors to provide for the completion of said plan by levy or assessment therefor; provided, further, that when the money obtained by any previous issue of bonds has become exhausted by expenditures herein authorized, and it becomes necessary to raise additional moneys to carry out the adopted plan, additional bonds may be issued if authorized at an election for that purpose, which election shall be called and otherwise conducted in accordance with the provisions of this act in respect to an original issue of bonds. The lien for taxes for the payment of interest and principal of any bond issue shall be a prior lien to that of any subsequent bond issue. The time for the issuance and maturity of the bonds and the manner of their payment may be otherwise determined and directed, if submitted to a vote, by the electors of said district at the election authorizing the said bonds.

How cost apportioned.

SEC. 17. Whenever the electors shall have authorized an issue of bonds, as hereinbefore provided, the board of directors shall examine each tract or legal subdivision of land in the district, and shall determine the benefits which will accrue to each of such tracts or subdivisions from the construction or purchase of the works proposed for the district; and the costs of such works shall be apportioned or distributed over such tracts or subdivisions of land in proportion to such benefits. The board shall make, or cause to be made, a list of such apportionment or distribution, which list shall contain a complete description of each subdivision or tract of land of such district with the amount and rate per acre of such apportionment or distribution, and the name of the owner thereof, or it may prepare a map on a convenient scale showing each of said subdivisions or tracts with the rate per acre of such apportionment entered thereon; provided, that where all or any portion of the lands are assessed by said board at the same rate a general statement to that effect shall be sufficient. Said list or map shall be made in duplicate, and one copy of each shall be filed in the office of the state engineer, and the original shall remain in the office of the board of directors. Whenever thereafter an assessment is made, either in lieu of bonds, or an annual assessment for raising the interest on bonds, or any portion of the principal, or the expenses of maintaining the property of the district, or any special assessment voted by the electors, it shall be spread upon the lands in the same proportion as the assessments of benefits, and the whole amount of the assessments of benefits shall equal the amount of bonds or other obligations authorized at the election last above mentioned; provided always, that the benefits arising from the undertakings for which special assessments are made may be distributed equally over the lands, or especially apportioned, when such course is authorized in the election therefor, and that assessments or tolls and charges may be made or imposed as hereinafter provided, when coming within the designation of operation and maintenance charges, by way of a minimum stated charge per acre whether water is used or not, and a charge for water used in excess of the amount delivered for the minimum charge, or such other reasonable method of fixing or collecting the operation and maintenance charge as the board of directors may adopt. Where drainage works are to be constructed, benefits may be apportioned to higher lands not then actually requiring drainage by reason of the fact that their irrigation contributes water which must be carried off or away from the lower lands.

Apportionment of benefits to be published—Notice of meeting.

SEC. 18. Before final action upon the apportionment of benefits provided for in the last preceding section, the board shall publish notice for two weeks in a newspaper published in the county in which the organization was effected that it will meet at its office on the day stated in said notice for the purpose of reviewing such apportionment of benefits. At such meeting the board shall proceed to hear all parties interested who may appear, and it shall continue in session from day to day until the apportionment is completed. It shall hear and receive all evidence offered, including any maps or surveys which any owners of lands may produce, and may classify the lands in such a way that the assessment when completed shall be just and equitable. Any person interested who shall fail to appear before the board shall not be permitted thereafter to contest said apportionment, or any assessment thereunder, except upon a special application to the court in the proceeding for confirmation of said apportionment, showing reasonable excuse for failing to appear before the board. In case any elector makes objection to said apportionment before said board, and said objection is overruled and such elector does not consent to the apportionment as finally determined, such objection shall, without further proceedings, be heard at the confirmation proceedings herein provided for.

Confirmation proceedings—Notice to be published.

SEC. 19. The board of directors of the district shall file with the clerk of the district court in and for the county in which its office is situated, a petition praying in effect that the proceedings aforesaid be examined, approved and confirmed by the court. The petition shall state generally that the irrigation district was duly organized and the first board of directors elected, that due and legal proceedings were taken to issue bonds, stating the amount thereof, and that an apportionment of benefits was made by the board and a list thereof duly filed according to law. A list of the apportionment shall be attached to said petition, but the petition need not state other facts. Such petition for confirmation of the proceedings thus far had may be filed after the organization of the district is complete, or after the authorization of any issue of bonds, or after any other undertaking of the district. The court or judge shall fix the time and place for the hearing of any such petition, and the clerk shall publish a notice thereof for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper published in the county. Any person interested may on or before the day fixed for said hearing answer said petition. None of the pleadings need be sworn to, and every material statement of the petition not controverted by answer shall be taken as true. A failure to answer the petition shall be deemed to be an admission of the material allegations thereof. The rules of pleading and practice provided by the civil practice act of this state shall be followed so far as applicable. A motion for a new trial, and all proceedings in the nature of appeals or rehearings, may be had as in any ordinary civil action.

Proceedings in district court—Costs.

SEC. 20. Upon the hearing of such petition, the court shall examine all the proceedings sought to be confirmed and may ratify, approve and confirm the same or any part thereof; and when an apportionment of benefits is examined all objections thereto, including those made at the hearing before the board, shall be set up in the answer and heard by the court. The court shall disregard every error, irregularity or omission which does not affect the substantial rights of any party, and if the court shall find that the apportionment is as to any substantial matter erroneous or unjust, the same shall not be returned to the board, but the court shall proceed to correct the same so as to conform to this act and the rights of all parties in the premises, and the final judgment may approve and confirm such proceedings in whole or in part. In case of the approval of the organization of the district and the disapproval of the proceedings for issuing bonds the district may again undertake proceedings for the issuance of bonds and have the same confirmed as herein provided. The cost of the proceedings in court may be allowed and apportioned among the parties thereto in the discretion of the court.

Sale of bonds.

SEC. 21. The board may sell bonds from time to time in such quantities as may be necessary and most advantageous to raise money for the construction of works and the acquisition of property and rights and to otherwise carry out the objects and purposes of this act. Before making any sale the board shall by resolution declare its intention to sell a specific number and amount of bonds, and if said bonds can be sold at par with accrued interest they may be disposed of without advertising; otherwise notice shall be published for three weeks in a newspaper in the county in which the office of the district is situated, and in such other newspaper in or outside of the state as the board may deem expedient, that sealed proposals will be received at its office on or before a day and hour set in said notice for the purchase of said bonds. At the time appointed the board shall publicly open the proposals, and sell the bonds to the highest responsible bidder, or it may reject all bids; but in case no bids are received, or all bids are rejected, it shall not again be necessary to advertise the sale thereof, but they may be sold at any time until canceled; provided, that the said board shall in no event sell any of the bonds for less than ninety (90) per cent of the par value thereof and accrued interest. If for any reason the bonds of a district cannot be sold, or if at any time it shall be deemed for the best interests of the district to withdraw from sale all or any portion of an authorized bond issue, the board of directors may, in its discretion, cancel the same and levy assessments in the amount of the bonds canceled; provided, that the revenue derived from said assessments must be employed for the same purpose as was contemplated by the bond authorization, but no levy shall be made to pay for work or material, payment for which was contemplated by bonds which have been authorized, until bonds to the amount of said assessments have been canceled. Assessments made in lieu of bonds canceled shall be collected in the same manner and shall have the same force and effect as other assessments levied under the provisions of this act; provided, that such assessments shall not during any one year exceed ten per cent of the total bond issue authorized by such district, unless a greater assessment shall be authorized by a majority vote of the qualified electors of the district voting at a general election or a special election called for that purpose.

Bonds and interest, how paid.

SEC. 22. Said bonds and the interest thereon shall be paid by revenue derived from the annual assessment upon the lands in the district; and all the land in the district shall be and remain liable to be assessed for such payment in accord with the apportionment of benefits as in this act provided.

Funds created and named.

SEC. 23. The following funds are hereby created and established, to which the moneys properly belonging shall be apportioned, to wit: Construction fund, bond fund, and general fund. Moneys accruing from the sale of bonds, and from any assessments levied for the direct payment of cost of construction, purchase of property, or other undertakings for which bonds may be issued, shall be deposited and kept in the construction fund. Moneys accruing from assessments levied for the payment of interest and principal on bonds shall be deposited and kept in the bond fund. All other moneys, including those realized from assessments, or, as the case may be, from tolls and charges levied or imposed for defraying the organization and current expense of the district, and expenses and cost of the care, operation, maintenance, management, repair, and necessary current improvement or replacement of existing works and property, including salaries and wages of officers and employees and other proper incidental expenditures, shall be deposited and kept in the general fund. The treasurer of the district is hereby authorized and required to receive and receipt for and to collect the moneys accruing to the several funds above named, and to place the same to the credit of the district in the appropriate fund. Said treasurer shall be responsible upon his official bond for the safe-keeping and disbursement of the moneys in such funds. Interest coupons shall be paid by him as in this act provided. The board may establish rules and regulations and prescribe the conditions under which the treasurer may make disbursements from the general fund, but no other payments from any of the funds above named shall be made by the treasurer except upon vouchers signed by the president and secretary authorized by order of the board. The county treasurer or treasurers who are required by this act to collect assessments levied by the district are hereby authorized to turn over to the treasurer of the district all moneys so collected and to take his receipt therefor. Such district treasurer shall report to the board in writing on the first Monday in each month the amount of money in the several funds aforesaid and the amounts received and paid out in the preceding month, and the treasurer shall make such other report and accounting as the board may require. Such reports shall be verified and filed with the secretary of the board.

Payment of interest—Redemption of bonds.

SEC. 24. The treasurer, upon the presentation of interest coupons when due, shall pay the same from the bond fund. Whenever after ten years from the issuance of bonds said fund shall amount to the sum of ten thousand dollars, the board of directors may direct the treasurer to pay such an amount of said bonds not due as the money in said fund will redeem at the lowest value at which they may be offered for liquidation, after advertising for at least three weeks in some newspaper published in the county in which the office of the district is located, and in such other newspapers as the board may deem advisable, for sealed proposals for the redemption of such bonds. Such proposals shall be opened by the board in open meeting at a time to be named in the notice, and the lowest bid or bids shall be accepted; provided, that no bonds shall be redeemed at a rate above par. In case two or more bids are equal the lowest-numbered bond shall have the preference, and if any of said bonds are not so redeemed, that amount of the redemption money shall be invested by the treasurer under the direction of the board in United States bonds or the bonds or warrants of the state or municipal or school bonds, and such bonds and the proceeds therefrom shall belong to the bond fund.

Secretary to be assessor—Duties as assessor.

SEC. 25. The secretary of the board of directors shall be the assessor of the district and on or before August fifteenth of each year shall prepare an assessment book containing a full and accurate list and description of all the land of the district, and a list of the persons who own, claim or have possession or control thereof during said year, giving the number of acres listed to each person. If the name of the person owning, claiming, possessing, or controlling any tract of said land is not known, it shall be listed to "unknown owner."

Board to correct assessments, when—Notice published.

SEC. 26. The board shall meet on the first Monday in September of each year to correct assessments and the secretary shall publish notice of such meeting for two weeks in a newspaper published in the county in which the district was organized. In the meantime the assessment book or books shall remain in the office of the secretary for the inspection of all parties interested. The board of directors, which is hereby constituted a board of correction for the purpose, shall meet and continue from day to day as long as may be necessary, not to exceed five days, exclusive of holidays, and may make such changes in said assessment book or books as may be necessary to have it conform to the facts. Within ten days after the close of said session the secretary of the board shall have the corrected assessment book or books completed.

Assessment for interest increased, when.

SEC. 27. At its regular meeting in October the board of directors shall levy an assessment upon the lands in said district in accordance with the provisions of this act, which assessment shall be sufficient to raise the annual interest on the outstanding bonds. At the expiration of ten years after a bond issue or such other period as may be authorized, the board must increase said assessment as may be necessary from year to year to raise a sum sufficient to pay the principal of the outstanding bonds of that issue as they mature. The secretary of the board shall compute and enter in a separate column of the assessment book or books the respective sums to be paid as an assessment on the property therein enumerated. Except as otherwise provided herein assessments made for any of the other purposes of this act shall be made and levied as above provided and entered in appropriate columns of the assessment book or books.

Assessment lien against property, when.

SEC. 28. An assessment is a lien against the property assessed from and after the first Monday in March of the succeeding year. The lien of the bonds of any issue shall be a preferred lien to that of any subsequent issue, and such lien is not removed until the assessments are paid or the property sold for the payment thereof.

Assessment book for county auditors—Duties of county officers.

SEC. 29. An assessment book shall be made up for the lands in each county in which the district is situated and the secretary of the board of directors shall forthwith certify the same to the county auditor or county auditors, as the case may be, who shall enter such assessments in the tax rolls of such county or counties. The assessments when levied and enrolled shall become due and delinquent at the same time and be subject to the same penalties and shall be collected by the same officers and in the same manner as state and county taxes. The county auditor, district attorney, clerk and treasurer shall do and perform all acts necessary to accomplish the collection of the same with penalties and the sale for delinquency and redemption of the lands involved.

Bids for construction.

SEC. 30. After adopting a plan for such works as are proposed, and when there is sufficient money in the construction fund as aforesaid, the board of directors shall cause notice to be given by the secretary by publication thereof for not less than two weeks in a newspaper published in the county in which the district was organized, and in such other publications or newspapers as it may deem advisable, calling for bids for the construction of such works, or any portion thereof. If less than the whole work is advertised then the portions so advertised must be particularly described in such notice. The notice shall set forth that the plans and specifications can be seen at the office of the board, that the board will receive sealed proposals for the construction of the proposed works and that a contract therefor will be let to the lowest responsible bidder, subject to the right of the board to reject any and all bids, stating the time and place for opening the bids. At the time and place appointed the bids shall be opened in public and as soon as convenient thereafter the board shall accept a bid or bids and contract for the construction of the works, either in portions or as a whole, or it may reject any and all bids and readvertise for proposals. Contracts for the purchase of material shall be entered into in the same manner, but if no reasonable bid is received the material may be purchased without advertisement. Any person or persons to whom a contract may be awarded shall enter into a bond in favor of the district with good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the board for not less than 20 per cent of the amount of the contract price, conditioned upon the faithful performance of said contract. The work shall be done under the direction and to the satisfaction of the engineer employed by the district and approved by the board; provided, that no contract of any kind shall be let by said board of directors unless there is sufficient money in the district treasury at the time such contract is let to fully pay for the work or material so contracted for.

No bids, when.

SEC. 31. On the petition of a majority of the electors of the district, the board of directors may do any work mentioned in the preceding section on behalf of the district without calling for bids, and it may use the construction fund therefor.

Construction fund, how used and reimbursed—Service refused, when.

SEC. 32. The cost and expense of purchasing and acquiring property, and of constructing works to carry out the formulated plan or plans, whether for irrigation or drainage or both, or for the improvement or supplementing of existing works, except as otherwise provided herein, shall be paid out of the construction fund. For the purpose of defraying the organization and current expense of the district, and of the care, operation, maintenance, management, repair, and necessary current improvement or replacement of existing works and property, including salaries and wages of officers and employees and other proper incidental expenditures, the board may fix rates of tolls or charges, and provide for the collection thereof by the district treasurer as operation and maintenance, or some like designation, or may levy assessments therefor, or for a portion thereof, collecting the balance as tolls or charges as aforesaid. In this relation provision may be made by the board for the fixing, levying, and collection of a minimum, flat, or stated operation and maintenance assessment, toll, or charge per acre, whether water is used or not, and a further operation and maintenance toll or charge for water used in excess of the amount delivered for the minimum charge; or the board may adopt other reasonable methods of fixing and collecting the operation and maintenance charges. Assessments, tolls, and charges may be collected in advance, and the assessment aforesaid, and such tolls and charges, may be based upon an estimate of the operation and maintenance revenue required for the current or ensuing year; to be adjusted as near as may be from year to year. Water service may be refused and water delivery may be shut off whenever there is a default in the payment of operation and maintenance, but all other legal remedies shall also be available for the enforcement of the debt. The tolls and charges shall be collected by the treasurer and deposited in the general fund, and he shall account therefor and disburse the same as in this act provided.

Rights of board in constructing works.

SEC. 33. The board of directors shall have the power to construct the works of the district across any stream of water, watercourse, street, avenue, highway, railway, canal, ditch or flume, in such manner as to afford security for life and property; but said board shall restore the same when so crossed or intersected to their former state as near as may be or in a manner not unnecessarily impairing its usefulness; and if a railroad company or those in control of the property, thing or franchise to be crossed cannot agree with the board upon the amount to be paid, or upon the point or points or the manner of crossing or intersecting, the same shall be ascertained and determined as herein provided in respect to the taking of land.

Rights of way over state land granted.

SEC. 34. The right of way is hereby given, dedicated and set apart, to locate, construct, operate and maintain the works of the district over and through any of the lands which are now or may be the property of the state.

Districts to have the right of eminent domain.

SEC. 35. All irrigation districts organized under the laws of the State of Nevada shall have the right of eminent domain with the power by and through their board of directors to cause to be condemned and appropriated in the name of and for the use of said districts all reservoirs, canals, and works, with their appurtenances, constructed for the irrigation or drainage of any lands within the district or for uses incidental thereto, and all lands required therefor, and all lands and rights of way required for the works constructed, or to be constructed, or which may be acquired by the district, and all necessary appurtenances and other property and rights necessary for the construction, operation, maintenance, repair, and improvement of said works. Such districts shall have the right by and through their boards of directors to acquire by purchase or other legal means any or all of the property mentioned and referred to in this section. In any action or proceedings for the condemnation of any such property wherein an irrigation district is plaintiff such district, within six months after final judgment, shall pay the amount awarded in the judgment, or said judgment will be annulled. Except as otherwise provided in this act the provisions of the laws of Nevada relative to the right of eminent domain, civil actions, new trials and appeals, shall be applicable to and constitute the rules of practise in condemnation proceedings by irrigation districts.

How certain lands may be annexed.

SEC. 36. The holder or holders of any title or evidence of title, as defined in section 1 hereof, representing one-half or more of any body of lands adjacent to or in the vicinity of an irrigation district, which are susceptible of irrigation or drainage, as the case may be, or both, by the district system, or combined systems of works, may file with the board of directors of the district a petition, in writing, praying that said land may be annexed. The petition shall describe the land and also describe the several parcels owned by petitioners.

Notice of petition advertised—Cost of proceedings.

SEC. 37. The secretary shall cause a notice of the filing of such petition to be published two weeks in a newspaper published in the county where the district was organized. The notice shall state the filing of such petition, the names of the petitioners, and contain a description of the lands mentioned in the petition, sufficient to identify the same, and it shall notify all persons interested in or that may be affected by such change of boundaries of the district to appear at the office of the board at a time named in said notice and show cause, in writing, if any they have, why the lands mentioned should not be annexed to said district. The petitioner or petitioners shall advance to the district treasurer sufficient money to pay the estimated cost of these proceedings.

Directors to hear petition.

SEC. 38. The board of directors, at the time mentioned in said notice, or at such other time to which the hearing may be adjourned, shall hear the petition and all the objections thereto. The failure of any person to show cause as aforesaid shall be taken as an assent on his part to a change of the boundaries of the district so as to include the whole or part of the land mentioned in the petition.

New lands to share previous expense.

SEC. 39. The board of directors may require as a condition to the granting of said petition that the petitioners shall pay to the district such sums as nearly as the same can be estimated as said petitioners or their grantors would theretofore have been required to pay had such lands been included in such district at the time the same was originally organized.

Petition rejected, when—Accepted, when.

SEC. 40. The board of directors, if they deem it not for the best interests of the district to include therein the lands mentioned in the petition, shall reject the same. But if the board deem it for the best interests of the district, and if no person interested shall show cause why the proposed change be not made, or if having shown cause withdraws the same, the board may order, without any election, that the lands mentioned in said petition or any part thereof be annexed to the district. The order shall describe the lands so annexed, and the board shall cause a survey thereof to be made if deemed necessary.

Objection, how treated.

SEC. 41. If any person interested shall object as aforesaid and shall not withdraw the same, and if the board deem it for the best interests of the district to include the lands mentioned in said objection, or some part thereof, the board shall adopt a resolution to that effect. The resolution shall describe the lands proposed to be included in the district.

Election held—Same as bond election.

SEC. 42. Upon the adoption of the resolution mentioned in the last preceding section the board shall order that an election be held within said district to determine whether the lands described in said resolution shall be annexed to the district, and shall fix the time at which such election shall be held. Notice thereof shall be published, and such election shall be held, and all things pertaining thereto conducted in the manner prescribed by this act in case of an election to determine whether bonds of the district shall be issued. The ballots cast at such election shall contain the words "for annexation," or "against annexation," or expressions equivalent thereto. The notice of election shall describe the lands proposed to be annexed to the district.

Effect of majority vote.

SEC. 43. If at such election a majority of all the votes cast shall be against annexation the board shall proceed no further in the matter; but if a majority of such votes be in favor of annexation the board shall thereupon order that the boundaries of the district be changed to include the lands to be so annexed and cause a copy of such order, together with a plat of said lands, each certified to by the secretary of the board, to be filed for record in the office of the county recorder of the county or counties in which such lands are situated. The order shall describe the land so annexed and thereafter such lands shall be subject to all the provisions of this act. Immediately after the filing for record of the order annexing said lands the directors shall state on their minutes to which division or divisions in said district the lands shall be attached, or may redivide the district to accommodate said lands.

Certain lands thrown out of district—Procedure.

SEC. 44. The holder or holders of title, or evidence of title, as described in section 1 hereof, may file with the board of directors a petition, in writing, praying that the boundaries of said district be so changed as to exclude the lands described therein. The petition shall describe the boundaries of the several parcels owned by the petitioners and shall state the reasons for the exclusion prayed for. The board of directors shall cause the land described in such petition to be surveyed and reported upon by a competent irrigation engineer, and if the board shall then find said lands to be of such character as to prevent their receiving benefits from the existing or proposed works, the board shall make an order changing the boundaries of said district so as to exclude the land described in said petition. If lands are excluded as in this section provided a copy of the order excluding same, with a plat of land excluded, each certified by the secretary of the board, shall be filed for record in the office of the county recorder of the county or counties in which such lands are situated. If said petition be denied the signers thereof shall be liable to the district for the full amount of cost of the proceedings and survey of said lands.

State lands to become part of irrigation district, when.

SEC. 45. No state lands shall become a part of an irrigation district except by the consent of the state land register, who is hereby authorized to consent thereto on behalf of the state in writing when in his judgment, with the advice of the state engineer, such lands will be benefited by inclusion in the district. Such consent may be indicated by signing a petition for organization or annexation as in this act provided. District assessments, charges, and tolls against said lands shall not be assessed as taxes, but shall be billed to the state land register, who shall voucher the same to the appropriate officer or officers for payment, and such officer or officers are hereby authorized to pay the same out of any state funds not otherwise appropriated. Contracts for the sale of such lands shall be conditioned upon the payment by the purchaser of such assessments, charges and tolls, and upon cancelation of such contracts payments due the district shall be made by the state as above provided.

Vested rights not affected.

SEC. 46. Vested interests in or to structures, works and property or water rights owned or used in connection with mining or power development shall never be affected by or taken under the provisions of this act, saving and excepting that rights of way may be acquired by the district over or across such works and property.

Irrigation district, how dissolved.

SEC. 47. Upon the filing of a petition in the district court setting forth that an irrigation district should be forthwith dissolved, such petition to be signed by at least a majority of the electors owning at least two-thirds of the land in said district, the court shall make its order setting said petition for hearing, giving at least three weeks notice by publication in a newspaper published in the county in which the district was organized; provided, that before the order can be entered dissolving the district the directors must show that the district does not owe any money nor that there are any outstanding bonds of the district or other evidence of indebtedness. Upon a proper showing being made, the court shall enter its order dissolving such irrigation district.

Special elections for raising money—Procedure.

SEC. 48. The board of directors of a district may at any time when deemed advisable call a special election and submit to the qualified electors of the district the question whether or not a special assessment shall be levied for the purpose of raising money to be applied to any of the purposes provided in this act. Such election shall be called and the same shall be held and the result thereof determined and declared in all respects in conformity with the provisions of this act in respect to bond elections. The notice shall specify the amount of money proposed to be raised and the purpose for which it is intended to be used, and whether an equal rate of assessment or a special apportionment of benefits is to be made in that relation if either is proposed. At such election the ballots shall contain the words "Assessment—Yes," or "Assessment—No." If two-thirds or more of the votes cast are "Assessment—Yes," the board shall immediately proceed to apportion the benefits, if such apportionment is to be made, and to levy an assessment sufficient to raise the amount voted. The assessment so levied shall be entered in the assessment book or books by the secretary of the board and collected in the same manner as other assessments provided for herein and when received by the treasurer of the district shall be deposited and kept in the construction fund. At such an election there may be submitted the proposition of authorizing the board of directors to levy each year for a stated number of years assessments not exceeding a stated amount per acre for the purpose of providing a fund from which repairs may be made and replacement and extensions of existing works may be constructed and paid for as the necessity for same arises. In such case plans and specifications need not be made in advance—a general description of the contemplated undertaking shall be sufficient. If said proposition be carried by two-thirds of the electors the board shall be authorized to levy such assessment and same shall be collected as are other assessments under this act. Moneys realized from such assessments shall be deposited and kept in the general fund and disbursed by the treasurer in accord with the direction of the board or rules and regulations established by it.

Division may provide for local works.

SEC. 49. Any one of the several divisions of a district may provide for the construction of local drains, laterals or other improvements, or the replacement or extension of existing works or structures, the benefits of which are limited to such division, in the following manner: Upon presentation to the board of directors of the district of a petition, signed by a majority of the electors of such division representing at least one-half of the total acreage thereof, describing in a general way the local matters proposed to be undertaken and naming two electors of such division for local directors thereof, the board of directors of the district shall consider such petition at a regular meeting and if it finds that the law has been complied with shall approve the same and appoint the electors named in the petition as members of the local board. One shall hold office until his successor is elected at the next biennial district election and qualifies, and the other until his successor is elected at the second biennial district election after his appointment and qualifies. The terms of such local directors shall be determined by lot and their successors shall be elected for four-year terms at the biennial elections. The said two local directors, with the director of the district from that division, shall constitute the local board of such division, and such board may provide for the local undertakings above named; being hereby authorized for that purpose in so far as applicable to exercise the powers and perform the duties granted to or imposed upon the board of directors of the district in connection with its affairs. Such local board shall thereupon prepare plans and estimates of the local undertakings proposed to be accomplished by such division, stating therein whether the funds therefor are to be raised by a single special assessment or the said board is to be authorized to secure the necessary amounts by way of annual assessments extending over a stated number of years, and not in excess of a stated amount per acre; and if the latter method is to be used a general statement of the purposes for which the money is to be raised may be substituted for more explicit plans and estimates. Such plans and estimates or statement shall be filed with the secretary of the district, accompanied by a request of the local board that an election be called in the division to authorize the proposed special assessment or assessments and the construction of the proposed works; thereupon the secretary of the board shall give notice of the purpose, time and place of such election, naming the polling place, and inspectors and clerks of election suggested by the local board; such notice to be published and election to be held, as near as may be, as provided in this act for an election for special assessments in the district. If such election fail of the required two-thirds vote of the electors of the division, the terms of office of the local directors shall thereupon terminate and the said local board shall be dissolved. If the special assessment or assessments and construction of the proposed works be authorized at such election, the local board shall levy such assessments, or, as the case may be, shall proceed to the levying of annual assessments, and a list of such assessments or the first annual assessment, if to be made that year, shall be delivered to the treasurer of the district and by him entered in the assessment book or books thereof, and such assessment or assessments and the collection thereof shall thereafter take the course of assessments of the district as in this act provided. All the above-described proceedings relating to the local undertakings of a division, including apportionment of benefits for undertakings authorized by special election, may be confirmed in court as a part of the confirmation proceedings, or upon petition of the board of directors of the division. Each member of the local board of a division shall receive three dollars per day for each day in attending meetings of the board, or while engaged in official business under the order of the board. When the local undertakings above provided for are accomplished and paid for, a showing to that effect shall be made to the board of directors of the district, and upon the approval thereof by such board the terms of office of the local directors shall terminate, and any moneys of such division in the district treasury shall be appropriately credited to the lands of the division in connection with future assessments against such lands.

Annual report to state engineer.

SEC. 50. At least as often as once a year after the approval of said plans the board of directors shall make a report to the state engineer of the progress of the work of the district and whether or not the plan formulated under the provisions of this act is being successfully carried out, and whether or not in the opinion of the board the funds available will complete the proposed works. Upon receipt of such report by the state engineer, he shall make such suggestions and recommendations to such board of directors as may be necessary to conserve the best interests of the district.

Financial condition published annually.

SEC. 51. On or before the first Tuesday of February of each year the board of directors of each irrigation district shall publish in at least one issue of some newspaper published in the county where the office of the district is located a full, true, and correct statement of the financial condition of said district on the first day of that year, giving a statement of all liabilities and assets of the district.

County commissioners to have free access to records.

SEC. 52. The board of directors of each irrigation district, or the secretary thereof, shall at any time allow any member of the board of county commissioners, when acting under the order of such board, to have access to all books, records, and vouchers of the district which are in the possession or control of said board of directors or said secretary.

Towns may be supplied with water.

SEC. 53. Water may be supplied by the district, or by a division thereof when a local board of such division is created and authorized, to towns within or in the vicinity of the district, and an appropriate charge made therefor, when such supply can be developed as an incident of or in connection with the works of the district or the local undertakings of a division.

Additional powers.

SEC. 54. In addition to the powers with which irrigation districts are or may be vested under the laws of the state, irrigation districts shall have the following powers: To cooperate and contract with the United States under the federal reclamation act of June 17, 1902, and all acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto, or any other act of Congress heretofore or hereafter enacted authorizing or permitting such cooperation, and to cooperate and contract with the State of Nevada under any law heretofore or hereafter enacted authorizing or permitting such cooperation, for purposes of construction of works, whether for irrigation or drainage, or both, or for the acquisition, purchase, extension, operation, or maintenance of constructed works, or for a water supply, or for the assumption as principal or guarantor of indebtedness to the United States on account of district lands or for the collection of moneys due the United States as fiscal agents or otherwise.

Directors to carry out enlarged powers.

SEC. 55. The board of directors shall generally perform all such acts as shall be necessary to carry out the enlarged powers in the foregoing section enumerated. Said board may enter into obligations or contracts with the United States for the aforesaid purposes, and may provide therein for the delivery and distribution of water to the lands of such district under the aforesaid acts of Congress and the rules and regulations established thereunder. The contract may provide for the conveyance to the United States as partial consideration for the privileges obtained by the district under said contract of water rights or other property of the district; and in case contract has been or may hereafter be made with the United States as herein provided bonds of the district may be transferred to or deposited with the United States, if so provided by said contract and authorized as hereinafter set forth, at not less than ninety-five per cent of their par value to the amount to be paid by the district to the United States or any part thereof; the interest, or principal, or both, of said bonds to be raised by assessment and levy as hereinafter prescribed and to be regularly paid to the United States and applied as provided in said contract. Bonds transferred to or deposited with the United States may call for the payment of such interest, not exceeding six per cent per annum, may be of such denomination, and may call for the repayment of the principal at such times as may be agreed upon between the board and the secretary of the interior. The contract with the United States may likewise call for the payment of the amount or amounts to be paid by the district to the United States or any part thereof at such times and in such installments and with such interest charges not exceeding the aforesaid rate as may be agreed upon, and for assessment and levy therefor as hereinafter provided, and the obligations of such contracts shall be a prior lien to any subsequent bond issue. Moreover, the board may accept on behalf of the district appointment of the district as fiscal agent of the United States, or authorization of the district by the United States to make collection of moneys for or on behalf of the United States in connection with any federal reclamation project, whereupon the district shall be authorized so to act and to assume the duties and liabilities incident to such action, and the said board shall have full power to do any and all things required by the federal statutes now or hereafter enacted in connection therewith, and all things required by the rules and regulations now or that may hereafter be established by any department of the federal government in regard thereto. Districts cooperating with the United States may rent or lease water to private lands, entrymen, or municipalities in the neighborhood of the district in pursuance of contract with the United States.

Election on proposal to enter into cooperative contract.

SEC. 56. Any proposal to enter into a contract with the United States for the repayment of construction moneys, the cost of a water supply, the operation and maintenance of existing works, or the acquisition of property, and to issue bonds if any be proposed, shall be voted upon at an election wherein proceedings shall be had in so far as applicable in the manner provided in the case of the ordinary issuance of district bonds. Notice of the election herein provided for shall contain, in addition to the information required in the case of ordinary bond election, a statement of the maximum amount of money to be payable to the United States for construction purposes, costs of water supply and acquisition of property, exclusive of penalties and interest, together with a general statement of the property, if any, to be conveyed by the district as hereinabove provided. The ballots at such election shall contain a brief statement of the general purpose of said contract and the amount of the obligation to be assumed, as aforesaid, with the words "Contract—Yes," and "Contract—No," or "Contract and bonds—Yes," and "Contract and bonds—No," as the case may be. The board of directors may submit any such contract or proposed contract and bond issue, if any, to the district court of the county wherein is located the office of said board to determine the validity thereof and the authority of the board to enter into such contract, and the authority for and the validity of the issuance and deposit or transfer of said bonds; whereupon the same proceedings shall be had as in the ordinary case of the judicial determination of the validity of bonds and with like effect.

Act of Congress to govern distribution of water.

SEC. 57. All water delivered to the district or the right to the use of which is acquired by the district, under any contract with the United States, shall be distributed and apportioned by the district in accordance with the acts of Congress applicable thereto, the rules and regulations of the secretary of the interior thereunder, and the provisions of said contract, and provision may be made in the contract between the district and the United States for the refusal of water service to any or all lands which may become delinquent in the payment of any assessment, toll or charge levied or imposed for the purpose of carrying out any contract between the district and the United States. In case of contract with the United States under which the district assumes the operation and maintenance of the existing works, assessments, tolls and charges may be levied or imposed by the board of directors, as provided in this act to raise the sums required annually therefor, including amounts due the United States under said contract.

Rights of way may be conveyed.

SEC. 58. Any rights of way or other property owned or acquired by the district may be conveyed by the board to the United States in so far as the same may be needed for the construction, operation and maintenance of works by the United States pursuant to this act.

Payment to United States, how provided for.

SEC. 59. All payments due or to become due to the United States under any contract between the district and the United States, including such payments of interest and principal on bonds as may be required in connection with a deposit or transfer thereof to the United States, shall be paid unless otherwise provided by contract, by revenue derived from annual assessments, apportioned as hereinafter prescribed, and levies thereof upon such real property within the district as may be accessible for district purposes under the laws of the state or by tolls and charges as the case may be, and such real property shall be and remain liable to be assessed and levied upon for such payments as herein provided. It shall be the duty of the board of directors annually to levy an assessment, or to impose and cause to be collected tolls or charges sufficient to raise the money necessary to meet all payments when due as provided in the contract. All money collected in pursuance of such contract by assessment and levies or otherwise, and to be paid to the United States, shall be paid into the district treasury and held in a fund to be known as the "United States Contract Fund," to be used for payments due to the United States under any such contract. Public lands of the United States within any district shall be subject to assessment for all purposes of this act to the extent provided for by the act of Congress approved August 11, 1916, entitled "An act to promote reclamation of arid lands," or any other law which may hereafter be enacted by Congress in the same relation, upon full compliance therewith by the district. Nothing in this act contained shall be construed to relieve the district from obligation to pay as a district in case of default of any land, unless so provided by the said contract between the district and the United States.

Board to provide release of mortgages and liens.

SEC. 60. The board may also provide by contract with the United States for the release of mortgages or liens given or reserved to the United States upon district lands, and may provide for the assumption by the district, either as principal or guarantor, of indebtedness to the United States on account of district lands, and apportion to each tract of land so released, benefits in the amount of the obligations to the United States so provided to be released; and the contract between the district and the United States may provide for the collection and payment of indebtedness so incurred or assumed by the district and the tax or assessment for the same at the same times and in the same amounts or installments provided in the federal reclamation laws, and if so provided in the contract, such taxes and assessments shall become delinquent at the same dates provided in the act of Congress of August 13, 1914 (38 Stats. 686), known as the reclamation extension act, and in that event, if it be provided in the contract that the United States waives any penalties for delinquency other or greater than those named in the said act of Congress of August 13, 1914, then, instead of the penalties otherwise provided in state laws, the penalties for delinquency in the payment of that part of the tax representing the special assessment for payment of the obligations of the district to the United States shall be the penalties named in the said act of Congress of August 13, 1914, and the amount required to be paid in case of any redemption from any tax sale or tax judgment shall be determined by figuring the part thereof due to the United States upon the basis of the amount of such special assessment levied for the purpose of paying the United States plus the penalties named in said act of Congress of August 13, 1914. And the said board shall have full power to do any and all things required by the federal statutes now or hereafter enacted in connection therewith, and all things required by the rules and regulations now or that may hereafter be established by any department of the federal government in regard thereto.

Payments due United States under contract, how apportioned.

SEC. 61. The assessment required in any year to meet the payment due to the United States under the contract as in this act provided may be in accord with an apportionment of benefits made in or in pursuance of such contract and in the ascertainment of such benefits there shall be taken into account the provisions of the contract between the United States and the district, the federal laws applicable thereto, and the notice and regulations issued in pursuance of said laws, and in case such contract is for the assumption by the district as principal or guarantor of indebtedness to the United States theretofore existing on account of district lands, there shall be further taken into account the provision of existing contracts carrying such indebtedness and the amounts of such liens as may be released in pursuance of the contract between the United States and the district.

Not dissolved nor bounds changed when under contract with United States.

SEC. 62. Where contract shall have been entered into and is in force and effect between the United States and any irrigation district, the district shall not be dissolved, nor shall the boundaries be changed, except upon written consent of the secretary of the interior, filed with the official records of the district. If such consent be given and lands be excluded, the areas excluded shall be free from all liens and charges for payments to become due to the United States. The board of directors of a district is hereby relieved from the duties imposed upon it in sections 15 and 30 of this act in so far as the same may not be required in case of contract between the district and the United States, and in that relation may take advantage of or adopt such surveys and plans as may have been or be made by the United States.

When district is served by United States works—Separate unit, when.

SEC. 63. When an irrigation district comprises lands which are served by works constructed by the United States and the portion of such works situated in a division of the district may be regarded as a separate unit of the larger system for operation and maintenance purposes, or when local drains, laterals, or other improvements may be provided as additions to such works and constitute benefits limited to such division, or when the replacement or extension of such works or some part thereof would constitute benefits limited to such division, a petition signed by the requisite number of electors of such division may be presented to the board of directors of the district and a local board of directors of such division created as provided in this act; whereupon such board of directors shall have the power to contract with the United States for the operation of the existing system aforesaid, or for the construction either by such division or by the United States of local drains, laterals or other improvements and for the operation and maintenance thereof, or for the replacement or extension of existing works or structures and for the operation and maintenance thereof or any separate part of the same; provided, that such contract shall first be authorized by a special election held for the purpose in such division and for the purpose of authorizing the local board of directors to levy an assessment or assessments, as provided in this act, to secure the moneys required to carry out said contract, including the amounts that will be due the United States thereunder and that will be required for the construction of the proposed local drains, laterals, or other improvements, or for the replacement and extension of existing works or structures. Where it is proposed that a division shall assume only the operation and maintenance of existing works an election shall be held upon the contract in the same manner, but the local board of directors, after said contract is made in pursuance of the authority granted in such election, shall have the power to levy assessments or impose tolls and charges annually or otherwise to raise the amounts necessary to carry out said contract and to operate and maintain said works, including amounts to be paid to the United States under said contract, in the same manner and to the same effect as can be done by the board of directors of the district under the provisions of this act. Where local drains, laterals or improvements are to be constructed, or existing works or structures replaced or extended, and are thereafter to be operated and maintained by the division, the local board shall have similar power to levy assessments and to impose tolls or charges to raise the money required for such operation and maintenance, including amounts due the United States in that relation. The works described in the contract with the United States shall be constructed, replaced or extended by such local board of directors, and the money raised by such special assessment therefor or for the operation and maintenance thereof shall be collected, kept and disbursed, and the apportionment of benefits made, as in this act provided when a division of the district is authorized to provide for local undertakings, the benefits of which are limited to such division; provided, that the provisions of this act relating to cooperation between a district and the United States, including those relating to the distribution and apportionment of water and the apportionment of benefits, shall apply in case of contract between the United States and a division of a district in so far as applicable. The execution of such contract with the United States and all proceedings ancillary thereto may be confirmed in court as a part of the confirmation proceedings instituted by the district, or upon petition by the board of directors of the division.

When district comprises certain lands—Procedure.

SEC. 64. When an irrigation district comprises lands which are or may be served by works constructed by the United States, and a contract is proposed to be entered into with the United States for the operation and maintenance by the district of the existing works, or for the construction of a drainage system or other extension or improvement of such works, and the lands in a division of the district may be regarded as clearly outside the scope of such contract, the election thereon and for the authorization of the program or undertaking contemplated thereby may be confined to the remaining portion of the district exclusive of such division, and the apportionment of the benefits may be made accordingly; otherwise the proceedings in connection with such contract and the program or undertaking contemplated thereby shall be as heretofore provided in this act.

Additional bonds of officers, when.

SEC. 65. In any case where an irrigation district is appointed fiscal agent of the United States in connection with any federal reclamation project, or by the United States, or under contract therewith, is authorized or required to make collection of moneys on behalf of the United States, or for payments due the United States under any such contract, each director of the district, and the secretary and the treasurer thereof, shall execute a further and additional bond in such sum as the secretary of the interior may require, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, or as fiscal or other agent of the United States, or both; and any such bonds may be sued upon by the United States or any person injured by the failure of such officer or officers of the district to fully, promptly or completely perform their respective duties. This requirement shall apply to the directors of a division, and in so far as applicable to the officers of a district acting in that relation, in case of contract between the United States and such division. In all cases of contracts with the United States as above described the board of directors of the district, or of a division thereof, and the secretary and treasurer of a district, shall at any time allow any officer or employee of the United States, when acting under the order of the secretary of the interior, to have access to all books, records and documents which are in the possession or control of such officers.

Newspaper publication defined.

SEC. 66. Whenever in this act any notice is required to be given by publication, such provision shall be satisfied by publishing the same in a weekly newspaper the same number of times consecutively as the number of weeks mentioned in the requirement.

Certain words defined and construed.

SEC. 67. Whenever the words "irrigation district" or "district" are used in this act, they shall be held to mean any irrigation district heretofore organized under the laws of the state as well as under this act, to the full extent required to accomplish the purposes of this act; and whenever the words "county treasurer" or "treasurer of the county" are used in this act, they shall as well be held to mean "ex officio tax receiver" or "tax receiver" of the county.

Certain districts not disturbed.

SEC. 68. Nothing in this act shall be so construed as to affect the validity of any district heretofore organized under the laws of this state, or its rights in or to property, or any of its rights or privileges of whatsoever kind or nature; but said districts are hereby made subject to the provisions of this act as far as applicable; nor shall it affect, impair, or discharge any contract, obligation, lien or charge for, or upon which it was or might become liable or chargeable had not this act been passed; nor shall it affect the validity of any bonds which have been issued but not sold, nor shall it affect any action which now may be pending. In such districts as have been heretofore organized, and in which directors of the various divisions thereof have been elected by the votes of the electors of the district at large, such elections are hereby confirmed.

Not to repeal previous legislation, except certain act named.

SEC. 69. Nothing in this act shall be construed as repealing or in any wise modifying the provisions of any other act relating to the subject of irrigation or drainage except such as may be contained in the act entitled "An act to provide for the organization and government of drainage, irrigation and water storage districts, to provide for the acquisition of water and other property, and for the distribution of the water thereby for irrigation purposes, and for other matters properly connected therewith," approved March 20, 1911, and subsequent acts supplementary thereto or amendatory thereof, all of which acts, so far as they may be inconsistent herewith, are hereby repealed.

Title of act.

SEC. 70. This act may be referred to in any action, proceeding, or legislative enactment as "The Nevada Irrigation District Act," and whenever the words "irrigation district" are or have been used in any action or proceeding or in any act or resolution of the legislature such words shall be construed to mean an irrigation district organized under the provisions of the act approved March 20, 1911, or acts supplementary thereto or amendatory thereof, referred to in the preceding section, or an irrigation district organized or existing under this act.

An Act to provide for the organization and government of drainage districts and to provide for the acquisition, repair and development of canals, drains, ditches, watercourses and other property, and for the distribution of water thereby for drainage purposes, and to provide for the levying of taxes and for the issuing and sale of bonds thereof.

Approved March 31, 1913, 461

Who may file petition.

SECTION 1. Whenever a majority of the owners of title or evidence of title of lands within a district proposed to be organized as a drainage district, who own or control not less than one-third in area of the land to be reclaimed or benefited, or whenever one-third of the owners of title of lands within a district proposed to be organized as a drainage district, and who own or control a major portion in area of the lands to be reclaimed or benefited, or lands which are susceptible of drainage desire to provide for the drainage of the same, they may propose the organization of a drainage district under the provisions of this act, and when so organized, such district shall have the powers conferred or that may hereafter be conferred by law upon such drainage districts. The equalized county assessment roll next preceding the presentation of a petition for the organization of a drainage district, under the provisions of this act, shall be sufficient evidence of title for the purpose of this act.

Petition, where presented.

SEC. 2. A petition shall first be presented to the board of county commissioners of the county in which the land is situated, and if the proposed district will contain land situate in more than one county, then in the county in which the greatest portion thereof is situated, signed by the required number of holders of title, or evidence of title, of such proposed district, evidenced as above provided, which petition shall set forth and particularly describe the proposed boundaries of such district, and shall pray that the same may be organized under the provisions of this act. Such petition shall be presented at a regular meeting of the said board of county commissioners, and due notice thereof shall be given as hereinafter provided. And the said petitioners shall file with the board of county commissioners a good and sufficient undertaking in the sum of two (2) per cent of the estimated cost of the proposed improvements in the said drainage district. The condition of such undertaking shall be to the effect that if the said board of county commissioners shall find no merit in the said petition and shall find that the cost of the proposed improvement or improvements shall be in excess of the benefit or benefits to be derived therefrom, that the petitioners will pay all costs of preliminary surveys and the publication of notice and such other lawful expenses as may have been incurred by the said board of county commissioners in connection with such investigation. The petition shall also contain the name proposed to be given to the drainage district.

Notice of filing petition.

SEC. 3. Such petition for the creation of the proposed district being filed, the county clerk of said county shall cause three (3) weeks' notice of the presentation and filing of such petition to be given, addressed "to all persons interested," by posting notices thereof at the door of the courthouse of the county or counties in which the district is situated, and in at least three (3) of the most public places in such proposed district, and also by publishing a copy thereof at least once a week for three successive weeks in some newspaper or newspapers published in the county in which the district is proposed to be formed, and if any portion of said proposed district lie within another county or counties, then said petition and notice shall be posted as above provided or published in a newspaper published or having a general circulation in each of said counties. Such notice shall state when said petition was and is filed; the starting-points, route or routes, terminal or terminals, and general description of the proposed work; the boundaries and general description by legal subdivisions and name of the proposed drainage district, and at what meeting of said board of commissioners the petitioners will ask a hearing of said petition; provided, that it shall not invalidate said notice if no description of drains or ditches is given herein. If any of the land owners of said district are non-residents of the county or counties in which the proposed district will lie, the petition shall be accompanied by an affidavit, giving the names and places of residence of such nonresidents, if known, and if unknown, stating that upon diligent inquiry their places of residence cannot be ascertained; and the county clerk shall send a copy of the notice aforesaid to each of said nonresidents whose residence is known within three (3) days after the first publication of the same. The certificate of the county clerk, or the affidavit of any other credible person, affixed to a copy of said notice, shall be sufficient evidence of the posting, mailing and publication of said notices. As amended, Stats. 1919, 444.

Jurisdiction of county commissioners.

SEC. 4. The county commissioners of the county in which said petition shall be filed may hear the petition at any regular or special meeting, and may determine all matters, pertaining thereto, and all subsequent proceedings of the district when organized under this act, and may adjourn the hearing from time to time, or continue the case for want of sufficient notice or other good cause. The county commissioners, upon application of the petitioners, shall permit the petition, affidavit and orders to be amended, and no petitioner shall have the right to withdraw from said petition, except by the consent of the majority of the other petitioners thereon or where it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the county commissioners that the signature of the petitioner was obtained by fraud or misrepresentation.

Hearing on petition—Finding of county commissioners—Board of supervisors.

SEC. 5. When such petition is presented, the said board of county commissioners shall hear the petition, and may adjourn such hearing from time to time, not exceeding four weeks in all. On the hearing of any petition filed under the provisions of this chapter, all parties through or upon whose land any of the proposed work may be constructed, or whose land may be damaged or benefited thereby, may appear and contest the necessity or utility of the proposed work, or any part thereof, and the contestants and petitioners may offer any competent evidence in regard thereto. It shall be the duty of the county commissioners to hear and determine whether or not the said petition contains the signatures of a majority of the owners of title to the lands within said proposed district, and who represent one-third in area of the lands proposed to be affected by such work, or that the said petition is signed by one-third of the owners of lands in said proposed district who represent a major portion in area of the lands proposed to be reclaimed or benefited, and the affidavit of any three (3) or more of the signers of said petition that they have examined said petition and are acquainted with the locality of said district, and that the said petition is signed by a majority of such owners, who represent at least one-third in area of the lands proposed to be affected by such work, or that said petition is signed by one-third of the owners of lands in said proposed district who represent a major portion in area of the lands proposed to be reclaimed or benefited, may be taken by the county commissioners as prima facie evidence of the facts stated therein; or the oath or affirmation before said county commissioners, or the affidavit of any person, properly taken and certified by any person or court authorized to take acknowledgment of deeds to real estate in this state, giving the age of such party, and his or her ownership of lands to be named in such oath, affirmation or affidavit by proper description, shall be sufficient evidence to the county commissioners of such facts; provided, that all deeds made for the purpose of establishing or defeating the prayer of said petition not made in good faith and for a valuable consideration, shall be taken and held to be in fraud of the provisions of this act, and the holders thereof shall not be considered as owners thereof. If the county commissioners, after hearing any and all competent evidence that may be offered before it for and against the said petition shall find the same has not been signed as hereinbefore required, the said petition shall be dismissed at the cost of the petitioners; but if the county commissioners shall find that the petition has been signed as hereinbefore provided the county commissioners shall so find, and such finding shall be conclusive upon the land owners of such district that they have assented to and accept the provisions of this act; and the board of county commissioners may make such changes in the proposed boundaries as they may find to be proper, and shall establish and define such boundaries; provided, that said board shall not modify said boundaries so as to except from the operation of this act any territory within the boundaries of the district proposed by said petitioners which is susceptible of drainage by the system of works applicable to the other lands in such proposed district; nor shall any lands which will not, in the judgment of said board, be benefited by drainage by said system be included within such district; provided, that any person whose lands are susceptible of drainage from the same source may, in the discretion of the board of county commissioners, upon application of the owner to said board, have such lands included in said district. And if it shall further appear to the county commissioners that the proposed drain or drains, ditch or ditches, or other works, is or are necessary or will be useful for the drainage of the lands proposed to be drained thereby for the agricultural or sanitary purpose, or conducive to the public health or welfare, the county commissioners shall so find, and appoint three (3) competent persons, which shall be known as a board of supervisors, whose term of office shall be for three years, except, however, that the term of office of the first appointees shall be as follows: The term of office of one shall be for three years, the term of office of one shall be for two years, and the term of office of one shall be for one year; and each of which appointees shall hold his office until his successor is appointed, as hereinafter provided, to lay out and construct such proposed work, and to levy a tax upon the lands in said drainage district, subject to the approval of the board of county commissioners, as hereinbefore provided. In case the lands to be drained shall be situated in different counties, not more than two (2) of the members of the board of supervisors shall be chosen from any one of such counties. And if the said board of county commissioners shall find that the establishment and creation of such drainage district will be a benefit as hereinbefore set forth, that the said board shall within ten (10) days proclaim such district or districts created, and that such proclamation shall be published for at least ten (10) days thereafter by posting in three (3) public places within said county, at least one of which places shall be within said drainage district, or by publishing the said proclamation in some paper printed in the English language, and having general circulation within the said county or counties, and the proclamation shall be substantially in the following form:

Office of the Board of County Commissioners, County of....., State of Nevada, A. D. 19.....

In the matter of the petition of (here insert names of the petitioners)

.....
The petition having been heard in the manner required by law, and the county commissioners having duly examined said petition, and having heard evidence concerning the same, and considering all objections to the same, it is ordered by the county commissioners that the petition be and the same is hereby granted; and the county commissioners further find that the work proposed in said petition to be done will be useful for agricultural or sanitary purposes to the owners of land within said proposed district; and the county commissioners also find that the persons who have signed said petition are of lawful age and are a majority of the adult land owners, representing one-third in area (or one-third of the adult land owners, owning a major portion, as the case may be) of the land to be affected by such proposed work. And the county commissioners further find that the said drainage district.....bounded as follows..... is duly established as provided by law.

And the following named are to be known as the board of supervisors for the terms set opposite their names:

.....of.....for the term of.....
.....of.....for the term of.....
.....of.....for the term of.....

Attest:....., Clerk.

.....
County Commissioners.

And upon entering such order of record said district is hereby declared by law to be organized as a drainage district by the name mentioned in the petition, and with the boundaries fixed by the order of said board of supervisors and said district is hereby declared to be a body corporate by the name mentioned in said order of county commissioners, with the right to sue and be sued, and to have perpetual succession, and may adopt and use a corporate seal; and the board of supervisors appointed as aforesaid and their successors in office shall from the entry of such order of confirmation constitute the corporate authorities of such drainage district, and shall exercise the functions conferred upon them by law. Said order shall be final. As amended, Stats. 1919, 445.

Time limit for contesting validity of organization.

SEC. 6. No action shall be commenced or maintained or defense made affecting the validity of the organization, unless the same shall have been commenced or made within sixty days after the making and entering of said order. Said board of county commissioners shall cause a copy of such order, duly certified, to be immediately filed for record in the office of the county recorder of each county in which any portion of such lands is situated and must also immediately forward a copy thereof to the county clerk of each county in which any portion of such district may lie, and no board of county commissioners of any county including any portion of such district shall allow another district to be formed including any of the lands of such district without the consent of the board of supervisors thereof; and from and after the date of such filing the organization of the district shall be complete, and the officers shall be entitled to enter immediately upon the duties of their respective offices upon qualifying in accordance with law and shall hold such offices, respectively, until their successors are appointed and have qualified. As amended, Stats. 1919, 447.

Supervisors to take oath and file bonds.

SEC. 7. After said district has been established by proclamation and after the said board of supervisors have been duly appointed, and before entering upon the duties of their office, such board of supervisors shall take and subscribe to the official oath and swear to faithfully discharge the duties of their office without favor or partiality, and to render a true account of their doings to the county commissioners by whom they were appointed, whenever required by law or order of the county commissioners, which oath shall be filed with the county clerk. The board of supervisors shall execute an official bond in such sum as may be fixed by the board of county commissioners. Bonds herein provided for shall be in the form prescribed by law for the official bonds of county officers.

Supervisors to organize—Right of eminent domain.

SEC. 8. Within thirty days after their election and qualification the supervisors shall meet and organize as a board, and elect a president, a secretary, and a treasurer from among their number. Each of the officers shall hold office during the pleasure of the board. The board of supervisors shall appoint a competent drainage engineer and fix his compensation and shall have the power to adopt a code of by-laws governing the conduct of the business and affairs of the district as a corporation in connection with its association with individuals in and outside of the district, and regulating the use of its drainage system by outsiders. It shall also have the power to make and execute all necessary contracts, to enter into contract with the state or the federal government, to employ and appoint such agents, officers, and employees as may be required, prescribe their duties, and generally perform such acts as shall be necessary to fully carry out the purposes of this act. The board and its agents and employees shall likewise have the right to enter upon any lands to make surveys, and may locate the necessary drainage canal or canals, and the necessary branches for the same, on any lands which may be deemed best for such location. It shall have the right also to acquire on behalf of said district, by purchase or condemnation or other legal means, all lands and other property necessary for the construction, use, maintenance, repair, and improvement of said canal or canals, drains and works constructed (including canals, drains or drain ditches being constructed by private owners), and all necessary appurtenances. The value of the land or other property taken for use by the district shall be determined, if possible, by arbitration, the arbitrators to be selected in the usual manner, and if the owner thereof will not consent to arbitration, then by condemnation proceedings. In case of necessity for condemnation proceedings the board shall proceed in the corporate name of the district under the provisions of the law relating to eminent domain. The right of way without cost is hereby granted to any drainage district organized under this act over, along, and across any land owned by the State of Nevada. As amended, Stats. 1917, 454; 1919, 448.

Duties of president.

SEC. 9. It shall be the duty of the president to preside at meetings of the board, and sign all warrants ordered by it to be drawn on the treasurer for drainage money. In case of the absence of the president, the treasurer shall act as president pro tempore. As amended, Stats. 1919, 449.

Duties of secretary.

SEC. 10. It shall be the duty of the secretary to attend meetings of the board, to keep an accurate journal of its proceedings, to have the care and custody of its records and papers not otherwise provided for, to countersign warrants drawn upon the treasurer, and to prepare and submit to the board an annual statement, under oath, of receipts and disbursements during the year ending December 31. He shall receive for his services such compensation as the board may determine. In case of his absence the treasurer shall act as secretary pro tempore. As amended, Stats. 1919, 449.

Duties of treasurer.

SEC. 11. The treasurer shall subscribe to the official oath of office and give a bond to the board, with sufficient sureties and in such sum as it may require, the oath and bond to be approved by the board and filed with its secretary. The treasurer shall prepare and submit in writing a monthly report of receipts and disbursements, and pay out drainage money only upon a warrant signed by the president, and countersigned by the secretary. He shall likewise perform such other duties as the board may require, and shall receive for his services an amount to be determined by the board.

All meetings public.

SEC. 12. The board of supervisors shall meet and adjourn from time to time as the business may require. All meetings of the board must be public, and a majority of the members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. All records of the board shall be open to inspection of any freeholder in said district during business hours.

Quorum of board.

SEC. 13. A majority of the board of supervisors shall constitute a quorum, and a concurrence of a majority of their number in any matter within their duties shall be sufficient, and the said board of supervisors may appoint such clerical assistants as may be proper and may employ such assistance and aid as may be found necessary.

Board to view land.

SEC. 14. Immediately after their appointment the board of supervisors shall examine all the land proposed to be drained or protected and the land over or upon which the work is proposed to be constructed, and determine:

First—If drainage and levee work as proposed in the petition, whether the starting-points, routes and termini of the proposed work and the proposed location thereof is or are in all respects proper and feasible; and, if not, what is or are so.

Second—The probable cost of the work mentioned in the petition, including all incidental expenses, and the cost of the proceedings therefor.

Third—The probable annual cost of keeping the same in repair after the work is completed.

Fourth—What lands will be injured by the proposed work and the probable aggregate amount of all damages such lands will sustain by reason of the laying out and construction of such work.

Fifth—What lands will be benefited by the construction of the proposed work, and whether the aggregate amount of benefits will equal or exceed the cost of constructing such work, including all incidental expenses, costs of proceedings and damages.

Sixth—Whether the proposed district as set out in the petition filed will embrace all the lands that may be damaged or benefited by the proposed work; and, if not, to report what additional lands will be so affected.

Claims for damages, how settled.

SEC. 14A. In the event that damages are claimed as the result of the drainage of subirrigated lands which have no, or an inadequate, water supply for surface irrigation, the supervisors may elect, in lieu of cash damages, to furnish such surface water supply, and for such purpose may appropriate sufficient waters developed by drainage therefor, condemn the necessary rights of way and construct the necessary works to divert the same to such land. Added, Stats. 1919, 453.

Proceedings dismissed, when.

SEC. 15. The board of supervisors of the said drainage district upon and after its examination of the said district, as hereinbefore provided, shall make a report of its findings to the board of county commissioners. If the board of supervisors shall find that although the said district has been formally proclaimed, the costs and expenses of construction and maintenance and damages accruing are more than equal to the benefits which may inure to the lands in general of said district by reason of the proposed work, it shall so report, and the proceedings shall be dismissed at the cost of the petitioners. But if the board of supervisors shall find that the benefits shall exceed the cost and expenses of construction and maintenance, and damages, it shall so report, and the board of county commissioners shall, by order, confirm such report. The board of supervisors shall thereupon proceed with the construction of the proposed drainage system. As amended, Stats. 1919, 449.

Supervisors to make estimates—Notice—Duty of county assessor.

SEC. 16. The board of supervisors shall, as soon as may be, view each tract of land within the district, and shall carefully consider all of the damages and benefits that each particular tract of land will receive from the construction and maintenance of such drainage system, and assess each tract of land in accordance with the benefits to be received by it, making proper allowance for damage, if there be any. After such assessment is made up, the secretary of the board of supervisors shall transmit the same to the board of commissioners and the board of commissioners shall within fifteen (15) days after the receipt thereof, cause not less than fifteen (15) days' notice to be sent by mail to each land owner in the district of the amount of benefits assessed upon the land owned by him within the district; and stating therein the time when and place where the board of commissioners will meet as a board of equalization of drainage district benefits to be made and levied upon such tract of land within the district, and such assessments shall immediately attach and become a lien upon the lands within the district. The board of supervisors shall, on or before the first Monday of February of each year, prepare a statement and estimate of the amount of money to be raised by taxation within said district for the purpose of constructing canals, drains, drain ditches, and other works, and maintaining the same, liquidating district warrants and paying interest thereon, paying the interest upon the bonded indebtedness of the district, creating a sinking fund for redeeming such bonds, and for the purpose of maintaining and repairing drainage canals, flumes, conduits, bridges, culverts, and other works within said district and for the management and control of such drainage systems, and after adding fifteen per cent of the sum of the foregoing to provide for incidentals and possible delinquencies, shall certify the entire amount to the county assessor of the county or counties in which such district is located. It shall be the duty of such assessors to levy the entire amount required against all the lands of the district in proportion to the equalized assessments of benefits, and the taxes so levied shall be placed on the regular rolls as separate items and shall be collected at the same time and in the same manner and by the same officers as state and county taxes, and any such officer shall be liable on his bond for his neglect so to do. The county treasurer shall pay over such drainage taxes to the treasurer of the board of supervisors as soon as received by him. As amended, Stats. 1917, 455; 1919, 449.

Drainage tax a lien, when.

SEC. 17. All drainage taxes levied and assessed under the provisions of this act shall attach and become a lien on the real property assessed on the day upon which the taxes are levied in each year. As amended, Stats. 1919, 450.

County auditor to include tax.

SEC. 18. At the time of computing the tax, the county auditor shall place upon the assessment roll the district drainage taxes of the several districts of the county in which drainage taxes have been levied, as certified by the board of supervisors.

Tax equalized, how.

SEC. 19. At the time of computing the tax in the county assessment roll the county clerk shall compute the district drainage taxes of the several districts of the county in which drainage taxes have been levied. The board of county commissioners, when sitting as a board of equalization of state and county taxes, shall correct the levy of drainage taxes to conform to the equalized assessments of benefits. As amended, Stats. 1919, 450.

Supervisors to advertise for bids—Day labor, when.

SEC. 20. After adopting a plan of said drainage canal or canals, drains, drain ditches and works the board of supervisors shall proceed to give notice, by publication thereof, not less than twenty days, in at least one newspaper published or having a general circulation in each of the counties composing the district, and in such other publication as they may deem advisable, calling for bids for the construction of such work or of any portion thereof; if less than the whole work is advertised, then the portion so advertised must be particularly described in such notice. Said notice shall set forth that plans and specifications can be seen at the office of the board of supervisors and that the board of supervisors will receive sealed proposals therefor, and that the contract will be let to the lowest responsible bidder, stating the time and place appointed, and the same shall be opened in public, and as soon as convenient thereafter, the supervisors shall let said work, either in portions or as a whole, to the lowest responsible bidder, or they may reject any and all bids, in which event the board of supervisors shall have the power to cause all necessary work to be done by contract approved by and under the supervision and control of said board of supervisors, said contract not to be effectual until ratified by the board of county commissioners. Contract for the purchase of material shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. Any person or persons to whom a contract may be awarded shall enter into a bond with good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the board, payable to said district for its use, for 50 per cent of the amount of the contract price, conditioned for the faithful performance of said contract in accordance with its provisions. The work shall be done under the direction and to the satisfaction of the engineer, and to be approved by the board of supervisors. The supervisors shall not be interested, directly or indirectly, in any material furnished or contract awarded by the said board of supervisors; provided, by unanimous consent of the board of supervisors of the district it shall not be obligatory for said supervisors to call for bids, but they may employ day labor at current wage rates and purchase material at current prices for carrying out the drainage project. As amended, Stats. 1915, 75; 1917, 456.

Power to incur debt limited.

SEC. 21. The board of supervisors or other officers of the district shall have no power to incur any debt or liability whatsoever, either by issuing bonds or otherwise, in excess of the express provisions of this act. A debt or liability incurred in excess of the express provisions of this act shall be in the main absolutely void, except that for the purpose of organization or for the purpose of this act the board of supervisors may, before the collection of the first annual taxes, cause warrants of the district to issue, bearing interest not exceeding seven per cent per annum. Any such indebtedness, however, so created, shall in no sense be the personal obligation of the board of supervisors, but shall constitute a lien upon the lands embraced within said drainage district. The limit of the fund for such purposes shall be in amount the equivalent of an average of one and one-half dollars per acre throughout the district, and it shall be the duty of the board of supervisors, in the preparation of the first annual budget, to make provision for the payment of all such warrants and the interest thereon. As amended, Stats. 1915, 75; 1917, 457; 1919, 451.

Supervisors to report.

SEC. 22. The board of supervisors shall as often as once in each year after their appointment, and as much oftener as the board of county commissioners shall require, make a report to the board of county commissioners of all work done and also showing the amount of money by them collected and the manner in which the same has been expended, and, upon the filing of such report, the board of county commissioners shall set a time, not exceeding three weeks from such filing, when such report shall be heard, and the board of supervisors shall give at least ten days' notice thereof, by posting written or printed notices in not less than four of the most public places in the district, and one at the door of the courthouse of the county in which said district was organized, or by publishing the same for ten days in some paper having general circulation in the county. Upon the time fixed, the board of county commissioners shall hear said report and all objections thereto, or may continue such hearing to another time fixed, and, upon hearing such report, may require evidence to be produced by the board of supervisors in support thereof, and, if found correct, may approve such report. Upon the failure of the board of supervisors, or either of them, to make such report to the satisfaction of the board of county commissioners, as required by this section, such supervisor or supervisors on the application of any person interested, or the county commissioners, without such application, shall remove such supervisor or supervisors from office.

Canals and ditches open to public use.

SEC. 23. The use of any canal, ditch or the like, created under the provisions of this act, shall be deemed a public use and for a public benefit. The supervisors or their representatives from the time of their appointment may go upon the lands lying within said district for the purpose of examining the same, and making surveys, and, after the organization of said district and payment or tender of compensation allowed, may go upon said lands with their servants, teams, tools, instruments, or other equipments, for the purpose of constructing such proposed work, and may forever thereafter enter upon said lands, as aforesaid, for the purpose of maintaining or repairing such proposed work, doing no more damage than the necessity of the occasion may require, and any person or persons who shall wilfully prevent or prohibit any of such persons from entering such lands for the purposes aforesaid shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction be fined any sum not exceeding twenty-five ($25) dollars per day for each day's hindrance, to be recovered in an action of debt in favor of such drainage district before any court of competent jurisdiction, which sum shall be paid into the county treasury for the use of said district.

Want of notice not to invalidate organization—How corrected.

SEC. 24. Whenever it shall appear to the board of supervisors that any proceedings for the organization of a drainage district, or any assessments of damages or benefits under this act, or any law of this state is invalid as to one or more tracts of land, jointly or severally owned, situated in the district, or any tract of land has been omitted from such assessment by reason of clerical error or other mistake, or want of the proper notice or notices as required by law, such want of notice shall not invalidate such organization, neither shall such assessments of benefits be lost to the district; but the board of supervisors of such district will report such conditions to the board of county commissioners, and the said board of county commissioners may make such corrections, amendments, and changes in the assessment rolls, correcting any clerical mistake or want of sufficient notice as may be just; provided, that where such correction, amendment, or change be made, due notice thereof be given to the persons affected thereby. As amended, Stats. 1919, 451.

Duty of supervisors.

SEC. 25. Any engineer employed under the provisions of this act shall receive such compensation as shall be fixed and determined by the board of supervisors. Supervisors shall receive such compensation as shall be fixed by the board of county commissioners. The salaries and all costs and expenses of the district shall be paid by the order of the board of supervisors out of the district treasury from drainage funds collected for that purpose upon warrants signed by the president and countersigned by the secretary. As amended, Stats. 1919, 451.

Supervisor, how removed.

SEC. 26. The county commissioners may at any time, for good cause, remove any supervisor appointed by them and appoint another in his place, and may fill all vacancies caused by death, resignation, removal or otherwise.

Penalty for injuring ditches.

SEC. 27. Any person who shall wrongfully and purposely fill up, cut, injure, destroy or in any manner impair the usefulness of any drain, ditch or other work constructed under this chapter, or heretofore constructed under any law of this state, or that may have been heretofore or may hereafter be voluntarily constructed for the purposes of drainage or protection against overflow, may be fined in any sum not exceeding three hundred ($300) dollars for each offense, to be recovered before any court of competent jurisdiction. All complaints under this section shall be in the name of the State of Nevada, and all fines, when collected, shall be paid over to the proper supervisors, to be used for the work so injured.

Further liabilities.

SEC. 28. In addition to the penalties provided in the preceding section, the person wrongfully and purposely filling up, cutting, injuring, destroying or impairing the usefulness of any such drain, ditch, levee or other work, obstructing or filling up of any natural stream or outlet within or beyond the drainage district, shall be liable to the supervisors having charge thereof for all damages occasioned to such work, and to the owners and occupants of lands for all damages that may result to them by such wrongful act, which may be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Supervisors may use highways.

SEC. 29. The board of supervisors shall have the right to use any part of the right of way of any public highway for the purposes of the work to be done; provided, such use will not permanently destroy or materially impair such public highway for public use, and if in the construction of said work the public highway or railroad or any part of the same will be benefited, the board of supervisors may assess such benefits to such public road or railroad. The amount of such road tax shall be paid out of the road tax of the district in which the public highway or part benefited lies. The banks of any drainage canal may be taken and used by the county as a public highway, but if taken by the county for such purpose the amount to be allowed the drainage district by the county for use of such banks as a public highway shall be settled by arbitration between the county and the district. As amended, Stats. 1917, 457; 1919, 452.

Bridges and culverts maintained.

SEC. 30. The board of supervisors shall have the power and are required to make all necessary bridges and culverts along or across any public highway or railroad which may be deemed necessary for the use or protection of the work, and the cost of the same shall be paid out of the road tax or by the railroad company, as the case may be; provided, however, notice shall first be given to the road or railroad authorities to build or construct such bridge or culvert, and they shall have thirty days in which to build or construct the same; such bridges or culverts shall in all cases be constructed so as not to interfere with the free flow of water through the drains of the district. Should any railroad company refuse or neglect to build or construct any bridge or culvert as herein required, the board of supervisors constructing the same may recover the cost and expenses therefor in a suit against said company before any court having jurisdiction, and reasonable attorneys' fees may be recovered as part of the cost. The proper authorities of any public road or railroad shall have the right to appeal the same as provided for individual land owners.

SEC. 31. The word "ditch," when used in this act, shall be held to include any drain or watercourse, and the petition for any drainage district shall be held to mean and include any side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or drain, whether opened, covered or tiled, or any natural watercourse, into which drains or ditches may enter for the purpose of outlet, whether such watercourse is situated in or outside of the district. And to secure complete drainage of the lands within any drainage district, the board of supervisors are hereby vested with full power to widen, straighten, deepen or enlarge any watercourse, or remove any obstruction or rubbish therefrom, whether such watercourse is situated in, outside of or below any drainage district; and, when it is necessary, straighten such natural watercourse by cutting of new channel upon other lands; the value of such lands to be occupied by such new channel, and damages, if any, made by such work may be ascertained and paid in the manner that is now or may hereafter be provided by any law providing for the exercise of the right of eminent domain in force in this state. The expenses of the work provided for in this section shall be paid from moneys arising from assessments upon lands within the district or in any lawful manner acquired.

Bonds may be issued, when and how.

SEC. 32. Whenever the board of supervisors deem it expedient it shall have the power, for the purpose of constructing drains, drainage canals, or other required improvements, to issue bonds of the district to run not more than twenty years and to bear interest payable semiannually, at a rate not exceeding six per cent per annum, to be called "Drainage District Bonds," and which said bonds shall not be sold for less than ninety per cent of their par value, and the proceeds of which shall be used for no other purpose than paying the cost of construction of such drain, drainage canal, or other like work, expenses of organization and administration and interest on bonds; provided, that before such bonds shall be issued the board of supervisors shall request the board of county commissioners to, and the said board of county commissioners shall at once, call a special election to be held within a time not less than thirty (30) nor more than forty-five (45) days from the date of filing such request, and due notice shall be given of such election which shall be held within said district. Such notice shall require the electors to cast ballots which shall contain the words, "Drainage Bonds.....District.....Yes," or "Drainage Bonds.....District.....No," or words equivalent thereto. No person shall be entitled to vote at any such election held under the provisions of this act unless he shall be a freeholder in the district. The board of commissioners of the county in which such district was organized shall appoint the judges of election and shall provide for as many places of election as will be convenient. Such election shall be conducted as nearly as practicable in accordance with the general laws of the state; provided, that no particular form of ballot shall be required. The said board of county commissioners shall meet on the second Monday next succeeding such election and proceed to canvass the votes cast thereat, and if upon such canvass it shall appear that a majority of all the votes are "Drainage Bonds.....District.....Yes," the board shall, by order to be entered upon its minutes, declare that such drainage bonds have been duly and affirmatively voted upon. The expenses of such election shall be paid out of the funds belonging to said drainage district.

Any property owner may pay the full amount of the benefit assessed against his property before such bonds are issued and receive a receipt in full therefor. Such payments shall be made to the county treasurer, and it shall be the duty of the county clerk to certify to the treasurer the amount of any such assessment when requested to do so, and the county treasurer shall enter the same upon the tax-lists in his hands in a separate place provided therefor, and shall furnish the county clerk with duplicate receipts given for all assessments so paid in full. The terms and times of payment of the bonds so issued shall be fixed by the board. Said bonds shall be issued for the benefit of the district numbered thereon, and each district shall be numbered by the board of supervisors and recorded by the county clerk, said record showing specifically the lands embraced in said district and upon which the tax has not been previously paid in full. In no case shall the amount of bonds exceed the benefits assessed. Each bond issued shall show expressly upon its face that it is to be paid only by a tax assessed, levied and collected on the lands within the district so designated and numbered and for the benefit of which district such bond is issued; nor shall any tax levied or collected for the payment of said bond or bonds, or the interest thereon, on any property outside the district so numbered, designated and benefited. The said board of supervisors shall, by resolution, provide for the issuance and disposal of such bonds and for the payment of interest thereon, the creation of a sinking fund for the ultimate redemption thereof, and for the date and manner of the redemption of said bonds. As amended, Stats. 1915, 76; 1919, 452.

Bonds a lien on lands, when.

SEC. 33. Whenever any such drainage district bonds shall be issued in accordance with the provisions of this title, such bonds shall constitute a lien upon all of the lands and improvements thereon within the boundaries of the district, and the board of supervisors of said district shall, from time to time, as hereinafter provided, levy a sufficient tax to pay the annual interest charge on such bonds, and in addition thereto such an amount as a sinking fund which shall, in the course of events and ultimately, amount to a sufficient sum to redeem said bonds.

Bonds, how signed.

SEC. 34. Each bond issued as provided for by section 32 of this act shall be signed by the president and secretary of the said board of supervisors and be attested by the county clerk, and said county clerk shall also make a certified statement thereon, affixing his seal of office thereto, of the total amount of assessments and rate of interest it bears, pledged for the payment of said bonds and other bonds, if any, issued; the date, number, denomination and time due of all bonds issued which are a lien upon the assessment or installments of assessments of the district; when the assessments were confirmed by the county commissioners, and the number of acres of land in the district against which said assessments were made.

SEC. 35. This act shall take effect upon passage and approval.

Land owners not disqualified.

SEC. 36. Nothing in this act contained shall be held to disqualify, upon the ground of interest, any person from being chosen or appointed to serve upon the board of supervisors by reason of his ownership of land within said district, or being interested in said drainage district, and the taxes levied or to be levied thereon. Added, Stats. 1915, 77.

Organized districts and "Nevada Irrigation District Act" not affected.

SEC. 72. Nothing in this act shall be deemed to affect any drainage district heretofore organized, unless such district duly elects to come under the provisions of the act as hereby amended; nor shall anything in this act be construed as affecting in any way the provisions of the "Nevada Irrigation District Act," approved March 19, 1919. Added, Stats. 1919, 453.

An Act consenting to the use by the United States of America of Lake Tahoe, its waters, bed, shores, and capability of use for reservoir purposes, in connection with the Truckee-Carson reclamation project of the reclamation service of the United States.

Approved March 6, 1913, 35

Consenting to use of lake—Proviso.

SECTION 1. That for the purpose of aiding the Truckee-Carson reclamation project now being carried out by the reclamation service of the United States of America, under the act of Congress approved June 17, 1902

(32 Stat. p. 384), known as the reclamation act, and acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto, consent is hereby given to the use by the United States of America of Lake Tahoe, situated partly in the State of California and partly in the State of Nevada, and the waters, bed, shores and capability of use for reservoir purposes thereof, in such manner and to such extent as the United States of America through its lawful agencies shall think proper for such purpose, and as fully as the State of Nevada could use the same; provided, however, that the consent hereby given is without prejudice to any existing rights that persons or corporations may have in Lake Tahoe or the Truckee River.

An Act relating to the issuance of permits for the appropriation of water, where the works or any part thereof to be constructed under such permits or the point of diversion or place of intended use, or any part thereof are situated without the State of Nevada.

Approved March 22, 1913, 256

Regarding permits for water—Exceptions.

SECTION 1. That no permit for the appropriation of water shall be denied because of the fact that the point of diversion described in the application for such permit, or any portion of the works in such application described and to be constructed for the purpose of storing, conserving, diverting or distributing such water, or because the place of intended use, or the lands to be irrigated by such water, or any part thereof, may be situated in any other state, when such state authorizes the diversion of water from such state for use in Nevada, but in all such cases where either the point of diversion or any of such works or the place of intended use, or the lands, or part of the lands to be irrigated by means of such water, are situated within the State of Nevada, the permit shall issue as in other cases. Except that it shall not purport to authorize the doing or refraining from any act or thing, in connection with the system of appropriation, not properly within the scope of the jurisdiction of the State of Nevada, and the state engineer thereof, to grant.

An Act to provide for cooperation in acquisition, construction and management of irrigation and drainage works between irrigation districts organized or existing under or by virtue of the laws of the State of Nevada, and contiguous or adjoining districts organized under the laws of other states.

May make agreements with districts of adjoining states.

SECTION 1. It shall be lawful for irrigation districts organized or existing under or by virtue of the laws of the State of Nevada to enter into agreements with contiguous adjoining irrigation districts in other states for the joint construction, acquisition, management and control of diverting, impounding or distributing works for the irrigation or drainage of the lands within the boundaries of their respective districts.

What contracts shall contain.

SEC. 2. Such agreements may be evidenced by written contracts executed on behalf of their respective boards of directors or trustees, or by resolutions entered upon their respective minutes. Such contracts or certified copies thereof and certified copies of such resolutions shall be recorded in the office of the county recorder in each county in which is situated any of the lands of said districts or any of the reservoir sites or other real property owned by said districts or acquired under the provisions of this act.

Joint or several ownership, when.

SEC. 3. Such agreements may provide for joint or several ownership or ownership in common of the property necessary or convenient for the purposes of this act, and may provide for the terms and conditions under which, or the respective proportions in which, such property shall be held. Any rights or disputes arising out of or from said agreements may be tried before and enforced by any court of competent jurisdiction in the state.

Joint meetings of directors.

SEC. 4. Any meeting of the board of directors of any such district, held in conjunction with the board of directors of the cooperating district, in the office of such district in the adjoining state, if duly and regularly called as required by law or if regularly adjourned to, shall be as lawful and valid as if held at the office of the board of directors of such district in this state.

Certain proceedings made lawful.

SEC. 5. It shall be lawful for the purposes of such cooperative action to divert water from this state for impounding in the adjoining state or otherwise for distribution to the lands of the cooperating districts regardless of the state in which such lands are situated or to divert water from such adjoining state for impounding or otherwise for distribution to the lands of such cooperating districts in this or the adjoining state.

Cooperating districts may hold property in either state.

SEC. 6. So far as may be necessary for fully carrying out the purposes of this act such cooperating district in the adjoining state may hold title to property in this state, and such cooperating district in this state may hold title to property in the adjoining state.

An Act to provide a law for the conservation of underground waters, providing for the casing and capping of artesian wells, defining the underground waters which are governed by the laws relating to the appropriation of the public waters of the state, providing a penalty for the violation of the provisions of this act, and prescribing the duties of the district attorneys in relation thereto.

Underground water subject to appropriation.

SECTION 1. All underground waters, save and except percolating water, the course and boundaries of which are incapable of determination, are hereby declared to be subject to appropriation under the laws of the state relating to the appropriation and use of water.

Wells to be properly encased.

SEC. 2. Every person sinking or boring an artesian well in the state shall cause to be placed in such well a proper and sufficient casing, so arranged as to prevent the caving in of such well, and to prevent the escape of water therefrom through any intervening sand or gravel stratum, and shall provide the necessary valves and appliances to prevent or control the flow of water from such well.

Water not allowed to waste.

SEC. 3. No person controlling an artesian well shall suffer or permit the waters thereof to flow to waste, unless, and so far as reasonably necessary, to prevent the obstruction thereof, or to flow or to be taken therefrom, save for beneficial purposes.

District attorney to enforce.

SEC. 4. Whenever it shall be called to the attention of the district attorney of any county of the state, by complaint or otherwise, that the proprietor of any artesian well, or any person controlling the same, has failed to install proper casing, valves, or appliances, or is permitting the waters thereof to run to waste, it shall be his duty to investigate such matters and, if it is found that any of the provisions of this act are being violated, to commence criminal action against such owner or proprietor.

Right of entry for officers.

SEC. 5. Any officer of the county or state shall have the right to enter the premises of any such owner or proprietor, where any such well is situated, at any reasonable hour of the day, for the purpose of investigating any matters in connection with this act.

Penalty.

SEC. 6. Any person violating any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished as provided by law.

"Person" defined.

SEC. 7. The word "person," as used herein, shall be interpreted to mean any firm, partnership, association, company, or corporation.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES

4814. Sealer of weights and measures—Duties—Standards.

SEC. 23. The commissioner appointed by the board of control of the Nevada agricultural experiment station is hereby designated and constituted sealer of weights and measures and shall be charged with the proper enforcement of the provisions of this act, and he may appoint such deputy or deputies as he may deem necessary therefor. He shall have the care and custody of the authorized public standards of weights and measures, and of balances and other apparatus of all kinds owned by the state under section 1 of this act. He shall maintain the state standards in good order and submit them at least once in every ten years to the national bureau of standards for verification. He shall at once, after the approval of this act, obtain from the government of the United States all standard weights and measures mentioned in this act which this state does not at that time own. As amended, Stats. 1913, 325.

4824-7. Repealed, Stats. 1913, 259.

The following references are to
Vol. 2, Revised Laws of Nevada.

COURTS AND COURT OFFICERS

4828-4885. This act was adopted, with some modifications, from a statute having the identical title, enacted by the legislature of California and approved April 20, 1863 (Stats. Cal. 1863, 333). State ex rel. Pacific Reclamation Company v. Ducker, 35 Nev. 226 (127 P. 990).

4832. Const. art. 6, sec. 4, vests the supreme court with appellate jurisdiction in all cases in equity. This section is to the same effect. Rev. Laws, 4833, empowers the supreme court to review on appeal a judgment in a proceeding commenced in a district court when the matter in dispute is embraced in the general jurisdiction of the supreme court. Rev. Laws, 5329, provides that an appeal may be taken from a final judgment or special proceeding commenced in the court in which judgment is rendered. Rev. Laws, 6162, provides for petition for the appointment of a guardian for insane persons. Held, that such proceeding is equitable, and a judgment appointing the guardian for a mentally enfeebled person is final, so that an appeal lies. O'Donnell v. District Court, 40 Nev. 428, 433 (165 P. 759).

4833. Rev. Laws, 5329, provides that an appeal may be taken (2) from an order granting or refusing a new trial, etc. The former practice act of 1869 (Stats. 1869, 248), sec. 330, provides that an appeal may be taken from an order "granting or dissolving an injunction and from an order refusing to grant or dissolve an injunction." This section gives the supreme court jurisdiction of an appeal from an order "granting or refusing to grant an injunction or mandamus in a case provided for by law." Held, that section 5329 did not impliedly repeal this section. State ex rel. Pacific Reclamation Company v. Ducker, 35 Nev. 214, 218, 219 (127 P. 990).

4835. Power of court on appeal.

SEC. 8. This court may reverse, affirm, or modify the judgment or order appealed from as to any or all of the parties, and may, if necessary, order a new trial, and on a direct appeal from an order granting a motion to change the place of trial of an action, or refusing to change the place of trial, the court may affirm or reverse such order and order the trial to be had in the proper place. An order changing or refusing to change the place of trial shall not be appealed from on an appeal from a judgment, but only on direct appeal from the order changing or refusing to change the place of trial. Nothing in this act shall be held or so construed as to repeal, impair or change any provision in section 4 of an act entitled "An Act to amend section 387 of an act entitled 'An act to regulate proceedings in civil cases in this state, and to repeal all other acts in relation thereto,' approved March 17, 1911, the same being section 5329 of Revised Laws of Nevada, 1912," approved March 13, 1913. When the judgment or order appealed from is reversed or modified this court may make, or direct the inferior court to make, complete restoration of all property and rights lost by the erroneous judgment or order. The supreme court may make rules not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of the state for its own government and the government of the district courts; but such rules shall not be enforced until thirty days after their adoption and publication. As amended, Stats. 1913, 274.

Under this section, the court has power to modify a judgment for delinquent taxes by reducing the amount of the recovery, notwithstanding Rev. Laws, 3660, imposing an additional penalty in suits for the collection of delinquent taxes, and providing that the judgment shall not be satisfied except by the payment of the tax, the original penalty, the costs, and the additional penalty therein prescribed in full. State v. Nevada Copper Belt R. R. Co., 41 Nev. 220, 222, 226 (168 P. 737).

4851. Under this section, a general statute limiting jurisdiction of justice of the peace and prohibition act, secs. 7, 28 (Stats. 1919, 5, 12), in a prosecution for violation of the latter act, a justice cannot assess greater punishment than a fine of $500 and six months imprisonment in the county jail; the district court alone being authorized to impose excess fine and imprisonment mentioned in section 7. Ex Parte Zwissig, 42 Nev. 360, 364 (178 P. 20, 21).

4870. Nonjudicial days enumerated.

SEC. 50. No court shall be opened, nor shall any judicial business be transacted on Sunday, on the 1st day of January (New Year day), on the 12th day of February (Lincoln's birthday), on the 22d day of February (Washington's birthday), on the 30th day of May, commonly known as Memorial Day, on the 4th day of July, on the first Monday of September of each year (Labor day), on the 12th day of October, to be known as Columbus day; on the 31st day of October, to be known as Admission day; on Thanksgiving day; on the 25th day of December (Christmas day); on a day on which the primary election is held throughout the state; on a day on which the general election is held, or on any day that may be appointed by the president of the United States, or by the governor of this state, for public fast, thanksgiving or holiday, except for the following purposes:

First—To give, upon their request, instructions to a jury then deliberating on their verdict.

Second—To receive a verdict or discharge a jury.

Third—For the exercise of the power of a magistrate in a criminal action, or in a proceeding of a criminal nature.

Fourth—For the issue of a writ of attachment, which may be issued on each and all of the days above enumerated upon the plaintiff, or some person in his behalf, setting forth in the affidavit required by law for obtaining said writ the additional averment as follows: That the affiant has good reason to believe, and does believe, that it will be too late for the purpose of acquiring a lien by said writ to wait till subsequent day for the issuance of the same. And all proceedings instituted, and all writs issued, and all official acts done on any of the days above specified, under and by virtue of this section, shall have all the validity, force and effect of proceedings commenced on other days, whether a lien be obtained or a levy made under and by virtue of said writ.

If the 1st day of January, 12th day of February, 22d day of February, 30th day of May, 4th day of July, 12th day of October, 31st day of October, or the 25th day of December fall upon a Sunday, all judicial business, except for the purposes above noted, shall be suspended on the following Monday.

Nothing herein contained shall affect private transactions of any nature whatsoever. As amended, Stats. 1911, 22; 1913, 61; 1919, 415.

Under power given the court by subd. 2 of this section to sit on Sunday to receive a verdict, the court is necessarily authorized to remand defendant and fix a date for further proceedings. State v. Kuhl, 42 Nev. 185, 207 (175 P. 190, 197).

4886-7. Repealed, Stats. 1913, 314, and the following act (Stats. 1913, 313) substituted:

4902. In consideration of Rev. Laws, 3623, and this section, it was held that the term "assessment roll," as used in this section, means the whole roll for the assessment of taxes, including not only the assessment of real and personal property mentioned in Rev. Laws, 3633, but the assessment of the proceeds of mines mentioned in Rev. Laws, 3696, as well. Esmeralda County v. Mineral County, 37 Nev. 180, 181 (141 P. 73).

4903. Under this section, one judge of the district court has power to excuse jurors and to issue a second venire to fill out the panel. State v. Switzer, 38 Nev. 108, 111 (145 P. 925).

4922. In view of this section and Rev. Laws, 5356, a judgment of dismissal is sufficient without a recital in the record that a motion to dismiss had been made; the presumption being that everything was done to lay the foundation for a valid judgment of dismissal, whether the making of a motion to dismiss, or something more. Raine v. Ennor, 39 Nev. 365, 369 (158 P. 133).

4924. The grand jury being without statutory authority to hire an accountant to audit the books of county officers, the district judge, though required by this section to charge grand juries as to their duties, part of which, Rev. Laws, 7028, provides shall be an inquiry into the wilful and corrupt misconduct of public officers, has no inherent authority to engage a private accountant to examine and audit the books of all county officers; it not appearing that there was any reasonable ground to believe that such officers were guilty of misconduct. Stone v. Bell, 35 Nev. 240, 245 (129 P. 458).

4926. Under this section, where a justice deemed himself disqualified to try a criminal case and called in another justice, and all parties assumed the request was lawfully made, the latter justice was at least a de facto officer, rendering a judgment of conviction valid and not subject to collateral attack on habeas corpus. Ex Parte Simmons, 34 Nev. 493, 495, 498 (125 P. 697).

4929. Under Const. art. 1, sec. 8, art. 2, sec. 1, as amended in 1877, art. 4, sec. 27, this section, and Rev. Laws, 4931, 4937, women, being "qualified electors," may serve on the grand jury. Parus v. District Court, 42 Nev. 229, 233 (174 P. 706, 707).

An Act in relation to courts of record, to prevent unnecessary delay in rendering judicial decisions, and repealing a certain act in conflict therewith.

Approved March 24, 1913, 313

To expedite decisions—Clerks to publish cases.

SECTION 1. It shall be the duty of the clerk of the supreme court, and the county clerk of each county, on or before the fifth day of each calendar month, to publish a list of all cases submitted to the court of which he is clerk, and which remain undecided for a period of more than ninety days, together with the date of original submission, and the dates of any orders of resubmission. Such publication shall be made in a newspaper, publishing official advertising for the state or county. It shall not be necessary to publish the full title of each case, but the number of the case and so much of the title as is sufficient to identify the same shall be published.

Justices of supreme court to make affidavit.

SEC. 2. Each justice of the supreme court shall, before receiving any monthly salary, file with the clerk of the supreme court and with the state controller an affidavit in which shall be stated the number of cases submitted to the supreme court and which remain undetermined; the number of cases assigned to such justice to prepare an opinion for the court, and in which no such opinion has been prepared; that no case has been assigned to him for preparation of an opinion for a period of more than ninety days in which he has not prepared an opinion for submission to his associate members of the court.

Clerk to publish certain statement.

SEC. 3. The clerk of the supreme court shall include in his published statement of cases submitted, the number of cases assigned to each justice in which opinions have not been prepared as shown by the affidavits of the justices filed with him.

Immediate assignment.

SEC. 4. Immediately upon a case being submitted to the supreme court it shall be assigned to one member of the court for the preparation of an opinion therein.

District judge to make affidavit.

SEC. 5. Each district judge shall, before receiving any monthly salary, file with the clerk of each county within his district and with the state controller, an affidavit, in which shall be set forth the number of cases, motions or other matters submitted to him as such district judge in and for each county embraced within his district which remain undecided and that no such case, motion or matter remains undecided which has been submitted for a period of more than ninety days.

Resubmission of cases restricted.

SEC. 6. A case, motion or other matter submitted to the supreme court, or to a district judge for decision, shall not be ordered resubmitted so as to affect the provisions of this act, except by stipulation or consent of counsel in the case, filed or entered of record.

Not to affect reopening case.

SEC. 7. Nothing in this act shall affect the right of a court to reopen a case for further evidence or reargument.

Repeal of certain act.

SEC. 8. An act entitled "An act to prevent unnecessary delay in rendering judicial decisions by the courts of this state," approved March 5, 1891, is hereby repealed.

4897-9. Repealed, Stats. 1915, 277, and the following act (Stats. 1915, 276) substituted:

An Act to provide for the compiling, reporting, printing, and distribution of the decisions of the supreme court of the State of Nevada, and repealing certain acts in conflict herewith.

Approved March 22, 1915, 276

Reporters of supreme court decisions, duties of.

SECTION 1. The clerk of the supreme court and the official court reporter shall be ex officio reporters of decisions. Whenever any case is finally determined by the supreme court it shall be the duty of the reporters of decisions to make a synopsis of the opinion and decision of the supreme court in such case, together with a brief abstract of the briefs filed in the case, in so far as such briefs bear upon the points considered in the opinion of the court. A copy of the opinion, together with the synopsis of the same and the abstract of the briefs, shall be filed by the reporters of decisions with the superintendent of state printing.

Duties regarding printed volumes.

SEC. 2. The reporters of decisions shall have such decisions, synopses, and abstracts of briefs, together with an index, table of cases, and of statutes and provisions of constitutions cited, printed and bound in volumes of the size, as nearly as may be, of the volumes heretofore published, and containing not less than five hundred pages each.

Proof sheets to be furnished—Advance sheets, when.

SEC. 3. The superintendent of state printing shall furnish the reporters of decisions with proof sheets for their verification and correction before publication in permanent form. It shall be in the discretion of the superintendent of state printing, whenever the material furnished by the reporters of decisions will make a folio of sixteen pages, to print a sufficient number of such folios for the permanent volume hereinafter provided for. He may also print, on cheap paper, not for binding, a number of such folios, which may be sold by the superintendent of state printing, at a price sufficient to cover the cost of the same, to subscribers for the permanent volumes.

Title.

SEC. 4. The title of each of the above-mentioned volumes shall be "Nevada Reports," which title, together with the name of the clerk of the supreme court and the number of the volume, shall be printed on the back of each book.

Under what supervision.

SEC. 5. The work of the reporters of decisions in preparing the material for the "Nevada Reports" shall be under the direction and supervision of the justices of the supreme court.

Stenographers to assist.

SEC. 6. It shall be the duty of the stenographic clerks of the supreme court, without additional compensation, to assist the reporters of decisions in the preparation of the material for such "Nevada Reports." Immediately upon the filing of any decision by the supreme court it shall be the duty of the official court reporter to mail a copy of such decision to counsel upon each side of the case, which copy shall bear the certificate of the official court reporter to be a full, true, and correct copy of such decision.

Additional salary for official court reporter.

SEC. 7. The official court reporter, for his services as a reporter of decisions, shall receive a salary of three hundred dollars per annum, payable in equal monthly installments, which shall be in addition to his salary as official court reporter, now prescribed by law.

Style and size of volumes—Number printed.

SEC. 8. The superintendent of state printing shall cause to be printed upon good paper and in workmanlike manner eleven hundred copies of each volume of decisions hereafter published, which shall be disposed of as follows: Six hundred copies shall be bound in buckram and shall be delivered to the secretary of state, for the purposes hereinafter specified, and five hundred copies shall be stored unbound by the superintendent of state printing, subject to the order of the secretary of state.

Distribution made—Price.

SEC. 9. On the receipt of each volume of said reports from the superintendent of state printing, the secretary of state shall distribute them in the following manner: To each state and territory, one copy; to each of the heads of departments at Washington, one copy; to the library of Congress, two copies; to each of the judges of the United States circuit and district courts in the States of Nevada, California, and Oregon, one copy; to the Nevada state library, two copies; to each state officer, justice of the supreme court, clerk of the supreme court, district judge, district attorney, county clerk, and justice of the peace in this state, one copy; and to each public library within this state, one copy. He shall distribute to literary and scientific institutions, publishers, and authors as in his opinion may secure an interchange of works which may properly be placed in the state library. The remaining copies shall be held for sale at the price of two dollars per volume.

Certain acts repealed.

SEC. 10. Those certain acts entitled respectively "An act to provide for the publication and distribution of Nevada Reports," approved March 1, 1883, and "An act to provide for compiling and reporting the decisions of the supreme court of the State of Nevada," approved March 26, 1909, and all other acts and parts of acts in conflict with the provisions of this act, are hereby repealed; provided, that this act shall not apply to the preparation of the 37th Nevada Report, the material for which is now on hand, but that such 37th Nevada Report shall be prepared and published in accordance with the provisions of existing laws.

4900. Repealed, Stats. 1915, 65, and the following act (Stats. 1917, 39) substituted:

An Act giving the clerk of the supreme court authority to appoint a deputy in his office.

Approved March 2, 1917, 39

Deputy allowed; no salary.

SECTION 1. The clerk of the supreme court shall have the power, under his hand and seal, to appoint one deputy in his office, without compensation; the deputy so appointed may, during the absence or inability of the clerk of the supreme court, perform all the duties of a ministerial nature requisite and pertaining to the office.

4901. Judicial districts established—Two judges for second district.

SECTION 1. The State of Nevada is hereby divided into ten judicial districts. The counties of Storey, Douglas, and Ormsby shall constitute the First judicial district; the county of Washoe shall constitute the Second judicial district; the counties of Eureka and Lander shall constitute the Third judicial district; the county of Elko shall constitute the Fourth judicial district; the county of Nye shall constitute the Fifth judicial district; the county of Humboldt shall constitute the Sixth judicial district; the counties of Esmeralda and Mineral shall constitute the Seventh judicial district; the counties of Lyon and Churchill shall constitute the Eighth judicial district; the county of White Pine shall constitute the Ninth judicial district; and the counties of Lincoln and Clark shall constitute the Tenth judicial district. For each of said districts, judges shall be elected by the qualified electors thereof at the general election in 1918, and every four years thereafter, except as otherwise provided in this act, as follows: For each of said districts, except the Second judicial district, there shall be elected one judge. For the Second judicial district there shall be two judges elected. As amended, Stats. 1915, 130.

4902. Salaries of district judges—Each county must contribute.

SEC. 3. The salary of each judge herein elected, or appointed to fill vacancies whenever such vacancies shall occur, shall be four thousand dollars per annum, except the judges of Second judicial district, who shall each receive a salary of four thousand five hundred dollars per annum and the judge of the Fourth judicial district, whose salary shall be four thousand five hundred dollars per annum, and the judge of the Fifth judicial district, whose salary shall be five thousand dollars per annum, and the judge of the Seventh judicial district, whose salary shall be four thousand five hundred dollars per annum; all of said salaries to be paid in equal monthly installments out of the district judges' salary fund, hereby created in the state treasury, which fund shall be supplied in the manner following, to wit: Each county in each district in the state shall contribute annually to the said fund its proportionate share of the money necessary to pay the judge or judges of its district their respective salaries monthly for such year, based upon the assessment roll of the county for the previous year, and it is hereby made the duty of the county commissioners of each county to make such arrangements and orders as may be necessary to insure the forwarding of their county's quota of said district judges' salary fund to the state treasurer at such times and in such installments as will enable the state treasurer to pay each district judge one-twelfth of his annual salary on the first Monday of each and every month, and to cause such money to be forwarded by the county treasurer, and if necessary in order to render certain the forwarding of such money in ample time to prevent any default in said monthly installments said board of county commissioners shall transfer and use any moneys in the county treasuries except those belonging to the public school fund. No salary of any judge shall be paid in advance. As amended, Stats. 1917, 126.

4907. Traveling expenses of district judges, how paid—Amount limited.

SEC. 7. In addition to the salary provided by law, each district judge shall be entitled to receive his necessary expenses in going to and returning from the place of holding court, his traveling expenses when traveling by private conveyance, to be estimated at the usual amounts charged by public conveyance, and also his necessary expenses at the place of holding court when holding court in any county other than that of his residence, said expenses to be allowed and paid as other claims against the state, but in no case shall such expenses exceed the amount of one thousand ($1,000) dollars per annum for each judge. As amended, Stats. 1907, 62; 1915, 163; 1917, 122.

4915. But one bailiff appointed—Proviso.

SEC. 2. In all judicial districts where there are more than one judge, there shall be but one bailiff to attend both divisions of the court, said bailiff to be appointed by the joint action of the two judges; provided, if the two judges cannot agree upon the appointment of the same within thirty days after the approval of this act, then the appointment shall be made by a majority of the board of county commissioners. As amended, Stats. 1919, 385.

4926. One justice may act for another—Time limited—Registry agent—Justice of another county may act, when.

SECTION 1. Whenever any justice of the peace, in consequence of ill-health, absence from his township, or other cause, shall be prevented from attending to his official duties, it shall be lawful for him to invite any other duly qualified justice of the peace of the same county to attend to his official duties, including that of registry agent, instead of such absent or disqualified justice of the peace; provided, such temporary vacancy, resulting from absence or disqualification, shall not be so filled for more than thirty days at any one time; and further provided, that where there is only one justice of the peace in any county of this state, and he, in consequence of ill-health, absence from his township, or other cause, shall be prevented from attending to his official duties, it shall be lawful for him to invite any other duly qualified justice of the peace of some adjoining county to attend to his official duties, including that of registry agent and coroner; provided, that such temporary appointment, resulting from absence, disability, or other cause, shall not be so filled for more than thirty days at one time, and that the justice of the peace so temporarily acting in the place of another justice of the peace shall have no claim for services rendered by him under this act against the county in which he may so temporarily preside. As amended, Stats. 1913, 9.

SEC. 4. To constitute the regular panel of trial jurors for any term of the district court such number of names as the judge may direct shall be drawn from the jury-box. The regular panel of trial jurors may be drawn before the commencement of the term of court, and, if so drawn, the judge thereof must make and file with the county clerk an order that one be drawn, and the number of jurors to be drawn must be named in the order. The drawing shall take place in the office of the county clerk, during regular office hours, in the presence of all persons who may choose to witness it. If the panel be drawn before the commencement of the term it shall be drawn by the judge and clerk, or, if the judge so directs, by any one of the county commissioners of the county and the clerk, and if the judge directs that the panel be drawn by one of the county commissioners of the county and the clerk, the judge must make and file with the clerk an order designating the name of such county commissioner, and fixing the number of names to be drawn as trial jurors and the time at which the persons whose names are so drawn shall be required to attend in court. The drawing shall be conducted as follows:

The number to be drawn having been previously determined by the judge, the box containing the names of the jurors shall first be thoroughly shaken; it shall then be opened and the judge and clerk, or one of the county commissioners of the county and the clerk, if the judge has so ordered, shall alternately draw therefrom one ballot until of nonexempt jurors the number determined upon is obtained; provided, that if the officers drawing such jury deem that the attendance of any juror whose name is so drawn cannot be conveniently and cheaply to the county obtained, by reason of the distance of the residence of such juror from the court or other cause, his name may, in the discretion of such officers, be returned to the box and in its place the name of another juror drawn whose attendance said officers may deem can be conveniently and cheaply to the county obtained. A list of the names so obtained shall be made out and certified by the officers drawing the jury, which list shall remain in the clerk's office subject to inspection by any officer or attorney of the court, and the clerk shall immediately issue a venire. Any person named in such venire who resides elsewhere than at the place at which the court is held, shall be served by the sheriff mailing a summons to such person, commanding him to attend as a juror at a time and place designated therein, which summons shall be registered and deposited in the postoffice, addressed to such person, at his usual postoffice address. And the receipt of the person so addressed for such registered summons shall be regarded as personal service of such summons upon such person, and no mileage shall be allowed for the service of such person. The postage and registry fee shall be paid by the sheriff and allowed him as other claims against the county, and the sheriff shall make return of the venire at least the day before the day named for their appearance, after which the venire shall be subject to inspection by any officer or attorney of the court. As amended, Stats. 1879, 33; 1881, 26; 1915, 167.

4931. Grand jury, number of—How selected—Judge to make order concerning—Venire to sheriff—Judge to select seventeen—Additional selections—Service by mail.

SEC. 8. It shall be the duty of the district judge and any one of the county commissioners of the county, as often as the public interest may require, to select from the qualified jurors of the county (whether their names are or are not upon the list selected by the board of county commissioners) twenty-four persons who shall be summoned to appear as grand jurors at such time as the judge may order; provided, that if the district judge deems proper he may direct any one of the county commissioners of the county and the clerk to select the grand jurors, and such county commissioner and clerk, if the judge so directs, shall select from the said qualified jurors twenty-four persons as grand jurors. If the judge directs the grand jurors to be selected by one of the county commissioners and the clerk, the judge must make and file with the clerk an order designating the name of such county commissioner, and the judge shall in said order fix the time when said grand jurors shall be required to appear; and if from any cause such county commissioner and clerk should fail to select the grand jurors, the judge and any one of the county commissioners may, at any time, select the same. A list of the names so selected as grand jurors shall be made out and certified by the officers making such selection and be filed in the clerk's office, and the clerk shall immediately issue a venire, directed to the sheriff of the county, commanding him to summon the persons so drawn as grand jurors to attend in court at such time as the judge may have directed; and the sheriff shall summon such grand jurors, and out of the number so summoned the court shall select seventeen persons to constitute the grand jury. If from any cause a sufficient number do not appear, or those who appear are excused or discharged, an additional number, sufficient to complete the grand jury, shall be selected from the said qualified jurors by the judge and clerk and summoned to appear in court at such time as the court may direct. Any person named in such venire, who resides elsewhere than at the place at which the court is held, shall be served by the sheriff mailing a summons to such person commanding him to attend as a juror at a time and place designated therein, which summons shall be registered and deposited in the postoffice, addressed to such person at his usual postoffice address. And the receipt of the person so addressed for such registered summons shall be regarded as personal service of such summons upon such person and no mileage shall be allowed for the service of such person. The postage and registry fee shall be paid by the sheriff and allowed him as other claims against the county. As amended, Stats. 1879, 34; 1881, 27; 1915, 168; 1919, 377.

4932. Certain persons exempt—Certain persons liable, how may obtain exemption.

SEC. 9. Upon satisfactory proof, made by affidavit or otherwise, the following-named persons, and no other, shall be exempt from service as grand or trial jurors: Any federal or state officer, judge, justice of the peace, county clerk, sheriff, constable, assessor, recorder, attorney at law, physician, nurse, married woman or school teacher, dentist, minister of the gospel, telegraph and telephone operator, locomotive or stationary engineer, locomotive fireman, conductor, brakeman, mail carrier, engaged in the actual carrying of the United States mail, on a regular mail route, and one-half of all members of each regularly enrolled fire company in the state, said half to be determined by the several fire companies respectively, and all officers of such fire companies, not exceeding ten for each company, and also in all cities and towns wherein there is a paid fire department, after such paid fire department shall have been organized and put in operation, all members of said fire department, and all persons who are now or may hereafter become members of any exempt fireman's association, society, or organization within this state; but such exemption shall not extend to any member of such association, society, or organization, unless prior to becoming a member of the same, such member shall have served as an active fireman in some regularly organized fire department in this state for the period of three years, and also in all cities and towns in this state wherein there are volunteer fire departments, after such volunteer departments shall have been organized and put in operation, all members thereof; and also, all members thereof who may hereafter become members of any exempt fireman's association, society, or organization, within this state; but such exemption shall not extend to any member of such association, society, or organization, unless prior to becoming a member of the same such member shall have served as an active fireman in some regularly organized volunteer fire department in this state, for the period of five years; provided, that the entire exemption of such exempt firemen, where there is a paid fire department, shall not exceed in one town or city one hundred and fifty; and where there is a volunteer fire department the entire exemption shall not exceed, in any one town or city, fifty; and provided further, that any person liable to grand or trial jury duty residing sixty or more miles distant from the county-seat of his county shall be exempted from service on either grand or trial juries for the period of one year upon making affidavit to the fact that he so resides, and filing the same with the clerk of the district court of the district in which his county is situated, and paying to such clerk the sum of twenty-five dollars. Upon the receipt of such affidavit and such sum, the said clerk shall deliver to such person a certificate stating the fact of such receipts, and thereafter, for the period of one year from the date of such payment, the name of such person shall not be placed in the jury box, nor shall such person be selected as a grand or trial juror. It shall be the duty of said clerk, upon the receipt of said sum, to deliver the same to the county treasurer of his county, and the said treasurer shall immediately place the same to the credit of the general fund of said county. As amended, Stats. 1875, 137; 1877, 176; 1881, 155; 1895, 51; 1915, 84; 1917, 32.

4939. Juror not serving, name drawn again—Certain exemptions.

SEC. 3. When a juror drawn is not summoned or fails to appear, or after appearing is excused by the judge from serving, his name shall be returned to the box to be drawn again. The board of commissioners shall not select the name of any person whose name was selected the previous year, and who actually served on the jury by attending in court in response to the venire from day to day until excused from further attendance by order of the court, unless there be not enough other suitable jurors in the county to do the required jury duty. As amended, Stats. 1915, 172.

An Act to fix the fees and mileage of witnesses and jurors, providing the manner of payment thereof, and to repeal all acts and parts of acts in conflict herewith.

Approved March 26, 1919, 174

Fees and mileage of witnesses and jurors fixed.

SECTION 1. Witnesses required to attend in the courts of this state shall receive the following compensation:

For attending in any criminal cases, or civil suit or proceeding before a court of record, referee or commissioner, or before the grand jury, in obedience to a subpoena, four dollars for each day's attendance, which shall include Sundays and holidays.

For attending in a civil suit or proceeding before a justice of the peace, three dollars for each day's attendance, which shall include Sundays and holidays.

Mileage shall be allowed and paid at the rate of thirty cents a mile, one way only, for each mile necessarily and actually traveled by the shortest and most practical route; provided, however, that no person shall be obliged to testify in a civil action or proceeding, unless his mileage and fees for at least one day's attendance shall have been tendered or paid him, or he shall not have demanded the same; and provided further, that no person shall be obliged to testify in a civil action or proceeding, unless his mileage and at least one day's fees shall have been paid him, if he demanded the same.

Witness fees in civil cases shall be taxed as disbursement costs against the defeated party, upon proof by affidavit that they have been actually incurred. Costs shall not be allowed for more than two witnesses to the same fact or series of facts, nor shall a party plaintiff or defendant be allowed any fees or mileage for attendance as a witness in his own behalf.

No per diem or mileage shall be allowed or paid to witnesses in criminal cases in justice courts; provided, however, in preliminary examinations, where witnesses are compelled to travel a greater distance than fifteen miles one way, they shall be paid thirty cents per mile one way only, necessarily traveled, and in addition be paid four dollars a day for each day that they are actually in attendance (which shall include Sundays and holidays), which said claim, when itemized in detail, shall be allowed, audited and paid as are other claims against the county; and provided further, that before any such claim shall be allowed, audited or paid as herein provided, the district attorney and magistrate shall certify thereon that the person in whose behalf such claim is made was a necessary and material witness at such hearing or examination; that the hearing necessarily consumed the number of days for which compensation is claimed; that the claim is correct and that the attendance of such witness was required before such magistrate.

Grand and trial jurors—Coroners' juries—Per diem.

SEC. 2. Each person summoned to attend as a grand or trial juror, unless on or before the day he is summoned to attend he be excused by the court at his own request from serving, shall receive (except as hereinafter provided) four dollars per day for each day he may be in attendance, which shall include Sundays and holidays, and thirty cents a mile for each mile necessarily and actually traveled by the shortest and most practical route, one way only; provided, however, that where the mileage does not exceed one mile no allowance shall be made therefor.

In civil cases, the per diem of each juror engaged in the trial of the cause shall be paid each day in advance to the clerk of the court, or the justice of the peace, by the party who shall have demanded the jury; but in case the party paying such fees shall be the prevailing party, the fees so paid shall be recoverable as costs from the losing party. If the jury from any cause be discharged in a civil action without finding a verdict, and the party who demands the jury shall afterwards obtain judgment, the fees so paid shall be recoverable as costs from the losing party.

Jurors actually sworn and serving in civil cases or proceedings in justice courts shall receive three dollars per day as full compensation for each day of said service.

No fees shall be allowed nor mileage paid trial jurors in criminal cases in justice courts.

The fees paid jurors by the county clerk for services in a civil action or proceeding (which he has received from the party demanding the jury), shall be deducted from the total amount due them for attendance as such jurors, and the balance only shall be a charge against the county; provided, however, the fees for the first day's attendance and each additional day to and including the day the jury is empaneled shall be a charge against and be paid by the county.

Coroners' jurors (with not more than three persons upon the jury) shall be entitled to receive for each day's service two dollars and fifty cents, to be certified to the county clerk by the coroner, and audited, allowed and paid as are other claims against the county; provided, however, that when it is necessary for a coroner's jury to travel a greater distance than one mile to view the remains, or to the place where the inquisition is held, the necessary and actual expenses incurred by the said coroner for the transportation of the jury shall be allowed, audited and paid as are other claims against the county, after having been duly certified to by the said coroner.

County clerk to keep pay-roll.

SEC. 3. The county clerk in cases in the district court shall keep a pay-roll, enrolling thereon all names of witnesses in criminal cases and of all jurors, the number of days in attendance and the actual number of miles traveled by the shortest and most practical route in going to and returning from the place where the court is held, and at the conclusion of said trial or term of court shall forthwith give a statement of the amounts due to such witnesses or jurors, after the same has been duly approved by the district judge, to the county auditor, who shall draw warrants upon the county treasurer for the payment thereof; and provided, that in criminal cases, where witnesses are subpoenaed from without the county, or who, being residents of another state, voluntarily appear as witnesses, at the request of the district attorney and the board of county commissioners of the county in which the court is held, they shall be allowed their actual and necessary traveling expenses incurred by them in going to and returning from the place where the court is held, and such sum per diem not exceeding four dollars as may be fixed by the district judge, who shall certify the same to the county clerk for entry upon the pay-roll hereinbefore required.

Repeal.

SEC. 4. All acts or parts of acts, either general or special, in conflict with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

Stats. 1913, 223. Section 1 of this act divided the state into ten judicial districts and provided that for each of them judges should be elected at the general election in 1914, and, as compiled, that "for each of said districts except the Second judicial district there shall be [elected one judge. For the Second judicial district there shall be] two judges elected"—the words in brackets being omitted from the enrolled bill. Section 3 fixed the salary of the judges in the different districts, referring to "the judge" of different districts mentioned, and section 4 provided that the Second judicial district should have two district judges, with concurrent jurisdiction and power to make rules and regulations for the transaction of business in that district. Held, that the manifest intent was to provide for the election of but one judge in other than the Second district; and hence that the words in brackets, necessary to give it that effect, would be read into the act in order that it might express the true legislative intent. State ex rel. Bartlett v. Brodigan, 37 Nev. 245-250 (141 P. 988).

CIVIL PRACTICE

4943. A method of procedure substantially similar to that of the writ of scire facias is unknown to our practice. Kapp v. District Court, 32 Nev. 267 (107 P. 95; 25 Ann. Cas. 177).

The legislature of 1866, in appointing a commissioner to prepare and report to a subsequent session for its adoption a civil practice act, provided in the act that "the groundwork of said act shall be the code of civil procedure now in force in the State of New York and the civil practice act of California" (Stats. 1866, 158). Hence, we think that these early New York authorities, which do not appear to have been overruled by later decisions, are especially in point in construing similar provisions in our own statutes. Ex Parte Boyd, 36 Nev. 166 (134 P. 455; Ann. Cas. 1915A, 1277).

Cited, Gamble v. Silver Peak, 35 Nev. 355 (133 P. 936).

This section renders the practice act applicable to chancery proceedings, so that process may be served by publication only in such cases as is authorized by statute; the court having no jurisdiction in other cases to order such service. State ex rel. Sparks v. Wildes, 37 Nev. 57, 80 (139 P. 505; 142 P. 627).

Under Const. art. 6, sec. 14, this section, Rev. Laws, 5501, 5518, and 5603, a defendant in an action under section 5588, for unlawful detainer, may show the nonexistence of the relation of landlord and tenant essential to the maintenance and may show that an instrument in form a lease was part of another instrument, and that the two constituted a mortgage, and thereby defeat the action. Yori v. Phenix, 38 Nev. 277, 283 (149 P. 180).

The only source of authority for any pleading and the rules for the construction thereof are drawn from the practice act. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 119, 157 (173 P. 1149, 1150).

However strong grievances or wrongs may appeal to the conscience of the chancellor for correction and relief, averments and allegations thereof, however varied they may be, make a sufficient complaint only when squaring with the rules of this act. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 119, 157 (180 P. 492, 493).

Plaintiff is required to state in his complaint facts which constitute his cause of action and nothing more. Id.

4946. Under this section, Rev. Laws, 4951, 4952, and 4956, it was held that by interpolation Rev. Laws, 4951, was to be read as if providing that, if a person to whom an action to recover a mining claim accrues is a minor, the period of disability shall not be part of the time limited for the commencement of such action, which may be commenced within two years after the disability ceases. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 171, 200 (161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064).

The statute of limitations, like any other statute, is to be construed according to the manifest intention of the legislature, and, in ascertaining such intention, the language used should be construed, if possible, according to the usual meaning of the words used. Id.

4957. Proof that plaintiff had fenced and partially improved a tract of land established a sufficient possession and occupancy to support title by adverse possession under this section, when supported by proof of the other essentials necessary to the acquisition of such title, and entitled him to a judgment quieting his title in the land against a defendant who established no title thereto. Gander v. Simpson, 37 Nev. 1, 4 (137 P. 514).

When two claimants of unenclosed and unimproved land assert title by deed, but it is impossible to tell from the evidence which deed conveys the legal title, neither can be said to have established title by adverse possession, both parties having paid taxes on the land and used the same for grazing purposes. Id.

4966. See Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 171, under section 4946.

4967. Under similar section (Cutting, 3717), it was held, though the mortgage given by a guardian for herself and on behalf of her minor ward was invalid for the reason that the order of the probate court, directing the execution of the mortgage, was without statutory authority, the proceeds of the mortgage having been applied to the satisfaction of a valid existing mortgage, a payment of interest on the invalid mortgage will be applied on the former mortgage for the purpose of tolling the statute of limitations in favor of the right of the second mortgagee to enforce a former mortgage by way of subrogation. Laffranchini v. Clark, 39 Nev. 49, 60 (153 P. 250).

A mortgage being a mere incident to the debt secured, an action to foreclose the mortgage is barred at the expiration of six years from the maturity of the note secured under this section. Id.

Cited, Guisti v. Guisti, 41 Nev. 354 (171 P. 161).

The agreement in question is made the subject of the action, and its violation the cause. The respondents are trustees ex maleficio. Therefore subdivision 4 of this section covers the case made by the complaint. Miller v. Walser, 42 Nev. 521 (181 P. 445), (Sanders, J., dissenting opinion).

4970. Action, by one claiming to be a member of a joint adventure, to establish his interest in the property acquired by the adventure and for an accounting, was founded upon the agreement creating the trust relation between the parties, and therefore governed by the four-year statute of limitation, this section, and not by the three-year statute applicable to action based on fraud; an allegation in the complaint, that plaintiff was prevented from complying with his agreement to contribute to the adventure by the concealment by defendants of information, not changing the character of the action to one of fraud, but being a mere excuse for nonperformance by plaintiff. Miller v. Walser, 42 Nev. 515, 516 (181 P. 438, 443).

The purpose of this section is, in view of Rev. Laws, 4987, 4998, 4999, and 5001, to relax the strict rules of the common law so as to enable those directly interested in the subject-matter of the litigation to maintain the action. Id.

4992. Under this section, as to appointment of guardian ad litem, such appointment may be made for an insane defendant in any case where jurisdiction of the subject-matter has been acquired. McKibbin v. District Court, 41 Nev. 431, 433, 434 (171 P. 374).

Under this section, the court may appoint a guardian ad litem for a nonresident insane defendant in a divorce suit; the action being substantially in rem. Id.

4995. Idem—When parent or guardian may sue.

SEC. 53. The father and mother jointly or the father or the mother, without preference to either, may prosecute as plaintiff for the seduction of the daughter, who, at the time of her seduction, is under the age of majority; and the guardian, for the seduction of the ward, who, at the time of her seduction, is under the age of majority, though the daughter or ward be not living with or in the service of the plaintiff at the time of the seduction, or afterwards, and there be no loss of service. As amended, Stats. 1913, 28.

4996. Parent or guardian may sue for death of minor child or of ward.

SEC. 54. The father and mother jointly, or the father or the mother, without preference to either, may maintain an action for the death or injury of a minor child, when such injury or death is caused by the wrongful act or neglect of another; and a guardian may maintain an action for the injury or death of his ward, if the ward be of lawful age, when such injury or death is caused by the wrongful act or neglect of another, the action by the guardian to be prosecuted for the benefit of the heirs of the ward. Any such action may be maintained against the person causing the injury or death, or, if such person be employed by another person who is responsible for his conduct, also against such other person. As amended, Stats. 1913, 28.

5004. In view of this section, and Rev. Laws, 5240, 5241, a joint and several judgment in action on bond against the executor of a deceased surety and the surviving surety was not erroneous because against one de bonis propriis and against the other de bonis testatoris. Pruett v. Caddigan, 42 Nev. 329, 334 (176 P. 787, 788).

5016. Actions, how commenced.

SEC. 74. Civil action in the district courts shall be commenced by the filing of a complaint with the clerk of the court, and the issuance of a summons thereon; provided, that after the filing of the complaint a defendant in the action may appear by answer, demurrer, or notice of motion filed in the cause, excepting motions to quash service, or denying the sufficiency of process or the jurisdiction of the court over the subject-matter or the person, whether the summons has been issued or not, and such appearance shall be deemed a waiver of summons. As amended, Stats. 1915, 321.

On an appeal from the judgment roll alone, where the judgment roll shows that a demurrer to the complaint was presented to the court, and discloses a ruling thereon, an order sustaining a demurrer is deemed to have been excepted to, under this section, as amended by Stats. 1915, 321, an alleged error in so ruling is not required to be presented by bill of exceptions. Miller v. Walser, 42 Nev. 497, 505 (181 P. 437).

5017. Under Cutting, 3118, similar to this section, it was held that, since the defendant is required to appear within a specified time from the date of service and not from the date of the summons, the summons was not fatally defective, though it contained an incorrect date or no date at all. Emmons v. Marbelite Plaster Co., 193 F. 182, 184.

Under this section it was held that, where a complaint was filed February 26, 1908, the clerk had power on March 2 following to issue a summons thereon, the first summons having been returned unexecuted, plaintiff was entitled to the issuance of another, and the fact that the issuance of the alias summons was authorized by a prior order of the court neither added to nor subtracted from the clerk's authority conferred by statute. Id.

Under Cutting, 3118, similar to this, and Cutting, 3119 and 3121, similar to Rev. Laws, 5018, 5020, it was held, that since the defendant is required to appear within a specified time from the date of service and not from the date of the summons, the summons was not fatally defective, though it contained an incorrect date or no date at all. Id.

5018. Form of summons—Regulations regarding published summons—Attorneys to sign.

SEC. 76. The summons shall be substantially in the following form: In the.....judicial district court of the State of Nevada, in and for.....county. A. B., plaintiff, vs. C. D., defendant; summons. The State of Nevada sends greeting to said defendant: You are hereby summoned to appear within ten days after the service upon you of this summons if served in said county, or within twenty days if served out of said county but within said judicial district, and in all other cases within forty days (exclusive of the day of service), and defend the above-entitled action. Dated..... (Signed) E. F., clerk of said court, or plaintiff's attorney, as the case may be.

2. When service of the summons is made by publication, the summons shall also contain a brief statement of the object of the action substantially as follows: "This action is brought to recover a judgment dissolving the contract of marriage (or bonds of matrimony) existing between you and the plaintiff," or "quieting the title of plaintiff to the land described in the complaint," or "foreclosing the mortgage of plaintiff upon the land (or other property) described in complaint," or as the case may be.

3. Whenever the plaintiff shall be represented by a firm of attorneys, such summons may be signed by the firm name only of such firm or copartnership. As amended, Stats. 1913, 109.

See Emmons v. Marbelite Plaster Co., 193 F. 182, under section 5017.

5020. Repealed, Stats. 1913, 110.

5022. Summons, by whom served, proof of, return.

SEC. 80. The summons shall be served by the sheriff of the county where the defendant is found, or by his deputy, or by any citizen of the United States over twenty-one years of age; and, except as hereinafter provided, a copy of the complaint, certified by the clerk or the plaintiff's attorney, shall be served with the summons. When the summons shall be served by the sheriff or his deputy, it shall be returned with the certificate or affidavit of the officer, of its service, and of the service of a copy of the complaint, to the office of the clerk of the county in which the action is commenced. When the summons is served by any other person, as before provided, it shall be returned to the office of the clerk of the county in which the action is commenced, with the affidavit of such person of its service, and of the service of a copy of the complaint. As amended, Stats. 1913, 109.

5023. Under similar section (Cutting, 3124), in an action to enforce a mechanic's lien against a foreign corporation, service was made upon its manager, who had not been appointed its agent therefor, it was held that such service was valid, since the manager of a corporation is such an agent or "other head" of a company as is contemplated by the statute; an "agent" being one who has authority to act for another. Daly v. Lahontan Mines Company, 39 Nev. 14, 22 (151 P. 514; 158 P. 285).

5024. Under Rev. Laws, 5387, and Rev. Laws, 5375, service of a cost bill should be made upon the attorneys for the adverse party, since their authority is not terminated so long as the amount of costs remains open to settlement, and service of the cost bill upon the resident agent of a foreign corporation was irregular, if not void, since under this section only papers in the nature of process may be served upon the resident agent, and under Rev. Laws, 5475, providing that, unless otherwise apparent from the context, the word "process" means a writ or summons issued in the course of judicial proceedings, the cost bill is not a process. Radovich v. Western Union Telegraph Company, 36 Nev. 341, 346 (135 P. 920; 136 P. 704).

This section and Rev. Laws, 5025, fail to provide means whereby proper notice should be given, and do not constitute due process of law. Wildes v. Lou Dillon Mining Company, 41 Nev. 364, 366, 367 (170 P. 1046).

See Daly v. Lahontan Mines Company, 39 Nev. 14, under section 5023.

Under this section and Rev. Laws, 5025, it was held that service thereunder on the secretary of state did not amount to due process of law, where neither plaintiff nor the secretary of state made any effort to notify the company, and it acquired no knowledge of the suit prior to judgment, or within six months thereafter, within which it might have answered to the merits, though plaintiff knew the defendant was a Utah corporation, had brought a prior action against it, and two days before instituting the action in question made affidavit in which he swore that he was familiar with its business and affairs. King Tonopah Mining Co. v. Lynch, 232 F. 486, 487, 494.

5026. Affidavit held to state facts sufficient to show that S. is a necessary and proper party to the action and sufficient to support an order for publication under the provisions of this section. Veith v. Nevada Reduction Co., 36 Nev. 586, 588 (137 P. 520).

An affidavit for publication of a summons does not require the same detailed statement of a cause of action as is required in a complaint. Statements well-nigh being conclusions of law may, in some instances, suffice for the affidavit. Id.

The provisions of this section are in the alternative and it is sufficient either that the affidavit for publication of summons shows the existence of a cause of action or shows that the defendant is a necessary or proper party. Id.

Affidavit as set forth held sufficient to support an order for publication under the provisions of this section. Veith v. Nevada Reduction Company, 36 Nev. 586, 588 (137 P. 520).

Under this section and Rev. Laws, 5027, it is jurisdictional that the affidavit for order of publication state either the residence of the defendant, whether person or corporation, or that the affiant does not know the residence. Wildes v. Lou Dillon Mining Company, 41 Nev. 364, 368 (170 P. 1046).

Affidavit, in husband's divorce action, that wife's address was unknown to him, and that, after due diligence, she could not be found in the state, so that summons could not be served upon her there, did not contain statement of facts contemplated by this section authorizing service by publication. Perry v. District Court, 42 Nev. 284, 288 (174 P. 1058).

See King Tonopah Mining Co. v. Lynch, 232 F. 486, under section 5024.

5027. Where husband suing for divorce knew his wife was nonresident when he filed affidavit for order of publication, wherein he did not say she was or was not, or that he did not know her residence, the court, in view of this section, acquired no jurisdiction to order publication of summons and decree. Perry v. District Court, 42 Nev. 284, 292, 293 (174 P. 1058).

Statutes providing for service by publication, whether in court of record or justice court, being in derogation of common law, must be strictly construed and followed to give the court jurisdiction over the person. Id.

See Wildes v. Lou Dillon Mining Company, 41 Nev. 364, under section 5026.

See King Tonopah Mining Co. v. Lynch, 232 F. 486, under section 5024.

5030. See King Tonopah Mining Co. v. Lynch, 232 F. 486, under section 5024.

5034. The personal service of summons on the defendant may be considered as equivalent to his appearance, so far as the giving of jurisdiction is concerned. Tiedemann v. Tiedemann, 36 Nev. 507 (137 P. 824).

5036. The only source of authority for any pleading and the rules for the construction thereof are drawn from the practice act. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 119 (173 P. 1150).

5038. The same technical proceedings are not required in a civil action in the justice's court as is required in a criminal complaint, or in pleadings in the district court. State ex rel. Guttery v. Langan, 36 Nev. 577, 583 (137 P. 517).

5039. Joinder of causes of action.

SEC. 97. The plaintiff may unite several causes of action in the same complaint, when they all arise out of:

1. Contracts, express or implied; or
2. Claims to recover specific real property, with or without damages for the withholding thereof, or for waste committed thereon, and the rents and profits of the same; or
3. Claims to recover specific personal property, with or without damages for the withholding thereof; or
4. Claims against a trustee, by virtue of a contract, or by operation of law; or
5. Injuries to character; or
6. Injuries to person; or
7. Injuries to property.

8. The State of Nevada may in the same complaint unite several causes of action for demands for delinquent taxes existing against the same person or persons, partnership or corporation, whether said taxes are payable yearly or quarterly; but the causes of action so united shall all belong to only one of these classes and shall affect all the parties to the action, and not require different places of trial, and shall be separately stated; provided, however, that an action for malicious arrest and prosecution, or either of them, may be united with an action for either injury to character or to the person. As amended, Stats. 1917, 411.

A complaint reciting one connected history of the property affected by an agreement through a series of acts on the part of defendant which contributed to and culminated in the alleged injuries to plaintiff, showing defendants have a connected and common interest in the one subject-matter of the action, and charging the defendants with an inexcusable disregard of a duty voluntarily assumed by their contract, while showing the defendant as much liable in damages for negligent breach of contract as for violation of a trust, constitutes but one cause of action. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 111-118, 134, 141, 155, 158 (180 P. 492, 493).

Two or more causes of action cannot be united in the same complaint, unless the joinder is authorized by the practice act. Id.

This section is to be liberally construed, with a view to effect its object. Id.

A complaint stating five causes of action, the first being for breach of employment contract, the second and third being for shares of stock alleged to have been acquired by defendants in virtue of their contractual relationship with plaintiff, or for value thereof, and fifth for a discovery and accounting from defendants of all their dealings with certain property of plaintiff intrusted to them under an executory contract, is not bad for misjoinder; all such causes of action arising out of contract and being authorized by subdivision 1 of this section. Id.

5040. A demurrer to a complaint for misjoinder of causes of action concedes that the complaint states two or more good causes of action. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 135 (173 P. 1149, 1156).

5045. Cited, Clay v. Scheeline Bank and Trust Company, 40 Nev. 17 (159 P. 1081).

5046. Answer, what to contain—Denial—Counterclaim.

SEC. 104. The answer of the defendant shall contain:

1. A general or specific denial of the allegations in the complaint intended to be controverted by the defendant, or a denial thereof according to information and belief. In denying any allegation in the complaint, not presumptively within the knowledge of the defendant, it shall be sufficient to put such allegation in issue, for the defendant to state, as to such allegation, that he has not sufficient knowledge or information upon which to base a belief.

2. A statement, in ordinary and concise language, of any new matter constituting a defense or counterclaim. As amended, Stats. 1913, 300; 1915, 192.

Under this section, "new matter" constituting a defense means some facts which plaintiff is not bound to prove and which go in avoidance or discharge. Dixon v. Pruett, 42 Nev. 345. 352 (177 P. 11, 12).

Under this section, the sufficiency of a defense is tested by whether the new matter constitutes a defense, taking the complaint as true. Id.

Under this section, a defendant claiming affirmative relief must plead as fully as plaintiff. Id.

An Act pertaining to the form of denials in pleadings in civil actions in the State of Nevada.

Approved February 28, 1913, 29

What constitutes specific denial.

SECTION 1. Whenever, in any civil action hereafter brought in any court of the State of Nevada, a specific denial of the allegations of any pleading is or may be required by any law of this state, the following shall be deemed to be a specific denial and shall be sufficient to put in issue all allegations so denied:

A denial by reference to the paragraphs sought to be denied, citing, by paragraph number, the paragraph or paragraphs sought to be denied, and stating that the party denies all matters in said paragraph or paragraphs contained; or, if it is intended to deny part and to admit part of the allegations of any paragraph, stating that the party denies all matters in such paragraph except certain allegations referred to with sufficient certainty so that it may readily be understood which parts of said paragraph are intended to be denied and which to be admitted.

What constitutes general denial.

SEC. 2. Whenever any pleading mentioned in section 1 hereof shall not be divided into numbered paragraphs, a general denial of such pleading shall be sufficient to put in issue all matters there contained; or the party denying such pleading may deny the same generally, saving and excepting such allegations as he may desire to admit, referring to the admitted allegations with sufficient certainty so that it may readily be understood which parts of said pleadings are intended to be admitted; but nothing herein contained shall be construed to permit a denial, under oath, of any allegation the denial of which, except for this statute, would constitute perjury.

5057. Reply to counterclaim, what to contain, when filed and served.

SEC. 115. When the answer contains new matter, constituting a defense, or a counterclaim, the plaintiff shall, within ten days after service of such answer or within ten days after notice of the overruling of the demurrer thereto, serve and file a reply. Said reply shall consist of:

First—A general or specific denial of the allegations in the answer, or in the counterclaim, intended to be controverted by the plaintiff, or a denial thereof according to information and belief. In denying any allegation in the answer, or in the counterclaim, not presumptively within the knowledge of the plaintiff, it shall be sufficient to put such allegations in issue for the plaintiff to state, as to such allegation, that he has not sufficient knowledge or information upon which to base a belief.

Second—Any new matter not inconsistent with the complaint, constituting a defense to the matter alleged in the answer; or the matter in the answer may be confessed, and any new matter alleged, not inconsistent with the complaint, which avoids the same. As amended, Stats. 1913, 300; 1915, 193.

5058. Failure to demur or reply deemed admission.

SEC. 116. If the plaintiff fails to demur or reply to the new matter, contained in the answer, constituting a defense, the same shall be deemed admitted; and if the plaintiff fails to demur or reply to the counterclaim the same shall be deemed admitted. As amended, Stats. 1913, 301; 1915, 193.

Under this section, as amended by Stats. 1915, 192, an allegation of the answer undenied by the replication, must be taken as true. Bernard v. Metropolis Land Company, 40 Nev. 89, 97 (160 P. 811).

This section applied, Weck v. Reno Traction Company, 38 Nev. 287, 301 (149 P. 65).

5070. While, under this section, the answer pleading as res judicata a judgment of a court of another state, denying divorce, as to which no presumption of regularity of proceedings obtains, need not plead the jurisdictional facts, yet, the reply denying the rendering of the judgment, they must be proven, except those admitted by the reply. Danforth v. Danforth, 40 Nev. 436, 446 (166 P. 127).

5075. Allegations not controverted taken as true—Exception.

SEC. 133. Each material allegation of the complaint not controverted by the answer, and each material allegation of new matter in the answer not controverted by the reply, and each material allegation in the counterclaim not controverted by the reply, must, for the purposes of the action, be taken as true. All allegations of new matter in the reply are to be deemed controverted by the adverse party. As amended, Stats. 1915, 193.

5081. Under this section, amendment of prayer of the complaint may be allowed at the conclusion of plaintiff's case. Miller v. Thompson, 40 Nev. 35, 40 (160 P. 775).

5084. This section should be very liberally construed in furtherance of its purpose. Whise v. Whise, 36 Nev. 16, 20 (131 P. 967; 44 L. R. A. (N.S.) 689).

Under this section, a default judgment cannot be set aside on the ground of excusable neglect unless a meritorious defense be shown. Eaden v. May, 36 Nev. 612, 620 (135 P. 1185).

On an application to set aside a default judgment on the ground of excusable neglect, the affidavit and testimony of defendant's counsel, that in his opinion a good and meritorious defense existed, was not a sufficient showing of a meritorious defense, especially where the action was by a married woman to recover property held by her husband in trust for her from persons who obtained it from the husband at a gambling game while he was intoxicated, since the nature of the action was such as to require a clear showing of merits. Id.

If orders fixing compensation of the receiver of the State Bank and Trust Company, in action by the state to wind up its affairs, were made after notice, they could be regarded as final and subject to attack only by appeal, but, if made without the personal service required by law, the state, under its police power to supervise the banking business, acting by the attorney-general pursuant to Stats. 1913, 279, providing for his intervention, and within the time prescribed by district court rule 45, could move to set them aside pursuant to this section, for want of proper notice, and could appeal from an adverse decision, for the purpose of reducing excessive compensation allowed. State ex rel. Sparks v. Wildes, 37 Nev. 56, 65 (132 P. 505; 142 P. 627).

That since the decree of divorce granted plaintiff he has remarried is no ground for refusing to set aside the decree, if it was obtained through fraud on the court and defendant. Miller v. Miller, 37 Nev. 257, 266 (142 P. 218).

Aside from the question of fraud, the affidavit of mailing, disclosing that the copies of the summons and complaint, if mailed at all, were mailed to defendant at a different address from that directed by the order for substituted process, warrants the granting of an order vacating the default. Id.

Even if the copies of the summons and complaint were mailed defendant, as directed by the order for substituted process, yet her default can be set aside, if she moves to vacate it within six months of entry of the decree, and it is found that through no fault of hers she had failed to receive either such copies or notice of pendency of the action. Id.

Plaintiff in divorce may not complain that defendant did not sooner, after filing her motion to open the default and set aside the decree, bring it on for hearing, she having done so at the first opportunity at which the regular judge, who granted and signed the decree, was present, though, at his request, a judge of another district had been sitting. Id.

The court, on application to vacate a divorce decree on the ground of fraud, may not grant relief based on a private letter addressed to him and the contents of which are unknown to the opposing party or his counsel until it is filed as a basis of the order, and the court, if deeming the matters stated in the letter of sufficient importance, should direct counsel of the parties to investigate the same and present the matter by affidavit. Blundin v. Blundin, 38 Nev. 212, 214 (147 P. 1083).

The supreme court has no power to make a new statement on appeal, which must be settled in the lower court, or to direct that court to make one, the statement having been settled as prescribed by statute; but any relief under this section, by reason of mistake, inadvertence, surprise or excusable neglect of appellant, must be had in the lower court: a motion for a new trial there made having never been determined. Skaggs v. Bridgman, 39 Nev. 310, 313 (154 P. 77; 159 P. 521).

This section was made to cover cases only in which there was valid service by publication. Perry v. District Court, 42 Nev. 284, 287 (174 P. 1058).

Since terms of court are abolished, a judgment can be set aside or amended only as provided by this section, except for fraud, etc. Sweeney v. Sweeney, 42 Nev. 431, 435 (179 P. 638, 639).

Amendment of pleadings in federal court is governed by Rev. St. sec. 954, and not by the law of the state, under the conformity act (Rev. St. sec. 914). Truckee River G. E. Co. v. Benner, 211 F. 79, 81.

The allowance or refusal of leave to amend pleadings in actions at law is discretionary with the trial court, the exercise of which is not reviewable except in case of fraud or abuse of discretion. Id.

Certain amendments held not objectionable as setting forth a new and different cause of action. Id.

5088. Under this section, an order of arrest can be based both upon a verified complaint and an affidavit for arrest and if both, taken together, are sufficient to justify the order, it is not improperly issued. Ex Parte Boyd, 36 Nev. 162, 164 (134 P. 455, Ann. Cas. 1915A. 1277).

5090. See Ex Parte Boyd, 36 Nev. 162, under section 5088.

5112. Under this section and Rev. Laws, 5113, if the only ground of the motion to vacate is because the affidavit upon which the order for arrest was based was insufficient, the court, on the hearing of the motion, will look alone to the affidavit, and, if insufficient, defendant will be discharged; but if the motion contains the further ground that the actual facts do not justify his arrest, the motion will be heard upon affidavits of defendant, counter affidavits of plaintiff, and any other evidence, and defendant is not entitled to be discharged if the proof justifies his being held, although the original affidavit was insufficient. Ex Parte Boyd, 36 Nev. 162-164 (134 P. 455; Ann. Cas. 1915A, 1277).

5124-5135. Cited, State ex rel. Sugarman v. Lamb, 37 Nev. 20 (138 P. 907).

5127. In an action for the possession of personal property, the sheriff, after seizing it, redelivered it to defendant, although defendant's sureties on his undertaking had not justified themselves before the clerk or the court as required by statute. The property still remained within the county. Held, that under this section the sheriff will by an appropriate writ of mandamus be compelled to retake the property and deliver it to plaintiff; the defendant having waived exceptions to plaintiff's sureties and not having established his own right to a return. State ex rel. Sugarman v. Lamb, 37 Nev. 19, 25 (138 P. 907).

5128. Under this section and Rev. Laws, 5129 and 5130, it was held that justification by defendant's sureties upon notice to plaintiff was a condition precedent to the delivery of the property to him; the plaintiff not being required to justify his sureties unless called upon by the defendant. State ex rel. Sugarman v. Lamb, 37 Nev. 19, 21 (138 P. 907).

5129. See State ex rel. Sugarman v. Lamb, 37 Nev. 19, under section 5128.

5130. See State ex rel. Sugarman v. Lamb, 37 Nev. 19, under section 5128.

5133. Under this section, the sheriff may retain possession of property taken in claim and delivery until his fees and expenses are paid. State ex rel. Sugarman v. Lamb, 37 Nev. 20, 26 (138 P. 907).

5134. Cited, State ex rel. Sugarman v. Lamb, 37 Nev. 23 (138 P. 907).

5143. Where a district court had granted a temporary injunction against taxing officers of the county and state, and had overruled the attorney-general's demurrer to the complaint, the latter had an adequate remedy under this section and Rev. Laws, 5329, giving them immediate appeal from an order refusing such motion, so that he cannot maintain prohibition, even though the public interests are so great that he cannot rest on his demurrer and appeal from the judgment thereon, thereby losing his right to plead to the merits. State ex rel. Thatcher v. District Court, 38 Nev. 323, 325 (149 P. 178).

5152. Under this section, the custody required of the attaching officer is such as to enable him to retain and assert his power over the property so that it cannot be withdrawn or taken by another without his knowledge. Green v. Hooper, 41 Nev. 12, 20 (167 P. 23).

It is the duty of the attaching officer to take the property attached into his possession, and the lien of the attachment, as to subsequent purchasers and other creditors, is ineffective if the officer abandons his possession. Id.

5162. Proceedings when defendant recovers judgment.

SEC. 220. If the defendant recover final judgment against the plaintiff, that is, final in the full sense of ending the litigation, whether the judgment becomes final in the trial or the appellate court, then any undertaking received in the action, all the proceeds of sales and money collected by the sheriff, and all the property attached remaining in the sheriff's hands, shall be delivered to the defendant or his agent; the order of attachment shall be discharged and the property released therefrom, but until a judgment in a case becomes final as above stated, the attachment therein shall hold good unless it be otherwise legally released, discharged or dissolved, as elsewhere provided in the said act approved March 17, 1911.

This act shall also be applicable to justice courts. As amended, Stats. 1913, 30.

5165. Under similar section (Cutting, 3234) it was held that this section does not mean that the defendant can apply for the discharge only at the time he appears, and no later. Goldfield-Mohawk Mining Company v. Frances-Mohawk M. & L. Co., 31 Nev. 348, 358 (102 P. 963).

This statute (Cutting, 3227) provides that the sheriff shall make a full inventory of the property attached, and that to enable him to make returns as to debt from credits attached, he shall request the party owing the debt, etc., to give him a memorandum of the same. Cutting, 3234 (similar to this) provides that defendant may apply for an order to discharge the attachment upon the filing of a bond, and that an order may be made releasing the property, debts or credits attached. Held, that a contention that in giving an undertaking only property in the hands of the sheriff could be released, and not property in a bank which had been garnisheed, was of no merit. Id.

An Act regulating the compensation of receivers of corporations in cases of involuntary dissolution or liquidation.

Approved March 29, 1915, 507

To receive certain percentage.

SECTION 1. A receiver of a corporation appointed in any proceeding heretofore or hereafter instituted for the involuntary liquidation or dissolution of such corporation and the winding up of its affairs, in addition to his necessary expenses, shall receive as compensation for his services not to exceed two per cent of all moneys or sums received by him, and an additional two per cent of all moneys paid out by him in dividends; provided, however, in case of extraordinary services rendered by the receiver the court may allow him an additional one per cent upon final accounting of all moneys disbursed by him by way of dividends. Any order, judgment, decree, or proceeding allowing any greater or further compensation than that provided in this act to any receiver of any insolvent corporation appointed in a proceeding for its involuntary liquidation or winding up shall be void.

5194. Under this section and Rev. Laws, 5201 and 5237, where plaintiff, in an action for divorce, failed to appear at the trial, defendant, who had filed a cross-complaint for divorce and injunction, was entitled to proceed to judgment for the full relief asked in the cross-complaint, though plaintiff alone had acquired the requisite residence within the state for the maintenance of an action for divorce. State ex rel. Howe v. Moran, 37 Nev. 404, 407. 411 (142 P. 534).

Defendant, in such case, was entitled to prove the residence of the plaintiff in order to support the jurisdiction of the court to proceed to judgment. Id.

5199. In condemnation proceedings to assess the damages for a right of way taken by a power company, the complaint in answer contained names of commissioners to assess compensation and damages as provided by Stats. 1907, 279, the act governing at the time. Rev. Laws, 5606-5629, relating to the subject of eminent domain, enacted after institution of the proceedings, provided in section 5624 that the provisions of the Revised Laws relative to civil actions should constitute the rules of practice in proceedings under said chapter. Under this section and Rev. Laws, 5818, it was held that the action of the trial court in calling the jury was justified; since the general rule against retrospective construction of the statute does not apply to statutes relating only to remedies. Truckee River G. E. Co. v. Durham, 38 Nev. 311, 316 (149 P. 61).

5201. See State ex rel. Howe v. Moran, 37 Nev. 404, under section 5194.

5210. The party who has the burden of proof is universally allowed to open and close, and such burden, in condemnation proceedings to assess damages, was upon the defendant; moreover, under this section the matter was within the discretion of the court, and, in the absence of showing of abuse, its ruling permitting the defendant to open and close should not be disturbed. Truckee River G. E. Co. v. Durham, 38 Nev. 312, 318 (149 P. 61).

5222. When general or special verdict may be rendered.

SEC. 280. In an action for the recovery of money only, or specific real property, the jury, in their discretion, may render a general or special verdict. In all other cases the court may, in its discretion, direct the jury to find a special verdict in writing upon all or any of the issues, and in all cases may, in its discretion, instruct them, if they render a general verdict, to find upon particular questions of fact, to be stated in writing, and may direct a written finding thereon. The special verdict or finding must be filed with the clerk and entered upon the minutes. Where a special finding of facts is inconsistent with the general verdict, the former controls the latter, and the court must give judgment accordingly. As amended, Stats. 1915, 110.

Under this section if a finding in defendant's favor on special interrogatories would not be inconsistent with a general verdict for plaintiff, a failure to find at all on such interrogatories cannot control such general verdict. Weck v. Reno Traction Co., 38 Nev. 287, 300 (149 P. 65).

The inconsistency between special findings and the general verdict which, under this section, as amended by Stats. 1915, 110, makes the former controlling, must be irreconcilable; one that no reasonable hypothesis or inference under the pleadings can remove. Crosman v. Southern Pacific Company, 42 Nev. 92, 103 (173 P. 226).

5226. Trial by jury waived, when and how.

SEC. 284. Trial by jury may be waived by the several parties to an issue of fact in actions arising on contract, or for the recovery of specific real or personal property, with or without damages, and with the assent of the court in other actions, in the manner following:

1. (a) If a party or his attorney is present at the setting of the cause for trial or has notice thereof, then by failing to demand a trial by jury at or before such setting.

(b) If such party or his attorney is not present at or has no notice of such setting, then by failing to demand a trial by jury within five days after receiving written notice of such setting.

2. By failing to appear at the trial.

3. By written consent, in person or by attorney, filed with the clerk.

4. By oral consent, in open court, entered in the minutes. As amended, Stats. 1919, 239.

Under this section, where condemnation proceedings were set for hearing on defendant's motion, and he did not demand a jury, and the case was continued until the order setting it for hearing was vacated, application being thereafter made by plaintiff for an order appointing commissioners to fix damages, at which time defendant requested that a jury be called to determine compensation, whereupon the court entered an order that a jury be called, its action was proper, since, when the order vacating the setting of the case for trial was entered, the case was left in the status in which it was before set for trial, and defendant's right to a jury was revived. Truckee River G. E. Co. v. Durham, 38 Nev. 312, 317 (149 P. 61).

The trial court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to set aside a waiver of jury trial made in open court, where the application was not made until the trial. DeRemer v. Anderson, 41 Nev. 288, 302 (169 P. 737).

5227. Question of fact must be decided, when.

SEC. 285. Upon a trial of a question of fact by the court, its decision must be given within thirty days after the cause is submitted for decision. The court may, however, at any time before a notice of appeal is served and filed, or before a motion for a new trial is ruled upon, if such motion is made, add to or modify the findings in any respect, so as to make the same conform to the issues presented by the pleadings, and to the evidence adduced at the trial. No such additions to, or modifications of, the findings shall be made unless a notice in writing specifying generally the additions or modifications desired shall have been served on the adverse party or his attorney of record. As amended, Stats. 1915, 218.

Appellant company held not prejudiced by trial court's refusal to find as requested, especially in view of exhaustive decision covering all issues, and judicial finding, made before motion for new trial was disposed of, in conformity to particular issues of title to property in suit made by complaint and cross-complaint. Moore v. Rochester Weaver M. Co., 42 Nev. 180 (174 P. 1017).

5230. Under Cutting, 3279, 3280 (similar to this), the court in quo warranto proceeding to contest an election to a state office, has jurisdiction to appoint a commissioner to count the undisputed ballots and report to the court for its information the actual ballots in dispute as well as the fact and number of undisputed ballots. State ex rel. Springmeyer v. Baker, 35 Nev. 300, 308 (126 P. 345; 129 P. 452).

The compensation due such commissioner may be taxed as costs against the defeated party; but the court may not order relator to pay the costs in advance, though the commissioner may withhold his report until payment is made by the party calling for it, and any compensation advanced by either party to receive and use the report will be recovered as other costs from the losing party. Id.

5236. Judgment on failure to answer, how to be entered.

SEC. 294. Judgment may be had, if the defendant fail to answer the complaint, as follows:

1. In an action arising upon contract for the recovery of money or damages only, if no answer has been filed with the clerk of the court within the time specified in the summons, or such further time as may have been granted, the clerk upon the application of the plaintiff, shall enter the default of the defendant, and immediately thereafter enter judgment for the amount specified in the complaint, including the costs, against the defendant, or against one or more of several defendants, in the cases provided for in section 89.

2. In other actions, if no answer has been filed with the clerk of the court within the time specified in the summons, or such further time as may have been granted, the clerk shall enter the default of the defendant; and thereafter the plaintiff may apply at the first, or any subsequent term of the court, for the relief demanded in the complaint. If the taking of an account, or the proof of any fact, be necessary to enable the court to give judgment or to carry the judgment into effect, the court may take the account, or hear the proof, or may, in its discretion, order a reference for that purpose. And where the action is for the recovery of damages, in whole or in part, the court may order the damages to be assessed by a jury; or if, to determine the amount of damages the examination of a long account be necessary, by a reference, as above provided.

3. In actions where the service of the summons was by publication, the plaintiff, upon the expiration of the time within which, by law, the defendant is required to answer, may, upon proof of the publication, and that no answer has been filed, apply for judgment; and the court shall thereupon require proof to be made of the demand mentioned in the complaint, and if the defendant be not a resident of the state, shall require the plaintiff, or his agent, to be examined on oath respecting any payments that have been made to the plaintiff, or to any one for his use, on account of such demand, and may render judgment for the amount which he is entitled to recover. The word "answer," used in this section, shall be construed to include any pleading that raises an issue of law or fact, whether the same be by general or special appearance. As amended, Stats. 1913, 110.

This section does not govern in actions where personal service is had upon a nonresident, even though the statute declares such service equivalent to publication, for there could be no proof as in case of publication, and the obvious intent of the statute was to protect the rights of nonresidents; hence a default in such case may be entered by the court. Long v. Tighe, 36 Nev. 129, 133, 134 (133 P. 60).

Under this section, while the filing of a demurrer is equivalent to the filing of an answer in preventing a default, where a demurrer to the complaint was sustained and a demurrer to an amended complaint was overruled, the demurrers had served their purpose and had no further effect, and upon defendant's failure to answer within the time allowed by the court the clerk could enter judgment by default. Esden v. May, 36 Nev. 611, 614-618 (135 P. 1185).

Since this section is not made applicable to justices' court by reason of Rev. Laws, 5815, because Rev. Laws, 5754, sets forth a separate and complete system governing trials similar to the system prescribed by this section, and when a separate and independent section is found in the practice act covering the matter of pleading in the justice court, it must be construed that the legislative intent was to limit the provisions in this section to the district court; the relator's special appearance challenging the jurisdiction of the justice court was not affected by the provisions of this section and was not an answer. Regan v. King, 39 Nev. 216, 219-221 (156 P. 688).

A plaintiff who finds that he cannot sustain the cause of action alleged, and thinks there are sufficient facts to sustain a different kind of action, may, under our statute, abandon his case, whereupon a judgment of nonsuit will be entered by the court. Such a judgment is no bar to another action. Christensen v. Duborg, 38 Nev. 411 (150 P. 306).

5239. Under this section and Rev. Laws, 5240, providing that, in an action against several defendants, the court may, in its discretion, render judgment against one or more of them, leaving the action to proceed against the others where a several judgment is proper, in an action against partners, the court did not exceed its jurisdiction by rendering judgment against one of them. Conway v. District Court, 40 Nev. 395, 398 (164 P. 1009).

In view of this section and Rev. Where demurrer to complaint for libel was sustained, all the matters pertaining to the proceedings in the trial court so far as affecting the plaintiff's rights are embraced in the "judgment roll" within subdivision 2 of this section, so that under Stats. 1915, 166, sec. 11, permitting an appeal on the judgment roll alone, it was unnecessary to file assignments of error as required by section 13 of such act. Talbot v. Mack, 41 Nev. 245, 253, 254 (169 P. 25).

5315. Section 5316 must be read in connection with this section. Miller v. Miller, 36 Nev. 118 (134 P. 100; 136 P. 978).

5317. Under similar section (Cutting, 3860), it was held the state appealing from an order granting a new trial must present a bill of exceptions or statement on appeal to show wherein the order of the trial court was erroneous, or otherwise the verdict will be affirmed. State v. Orr, 34 Nev. 297, 300 (122 P. 73).

5318. Matters deemed excepted to.

SEC. 376. The verdict of the jury, the final decision in an action or proceeding, the findings of fact, conclusions of law made by the court, findings of the referee, an interlocutory order or decision finally determining the rights of the parties, or some of them; an order or decision from which an appeal may be taken; an order sustaining or overruling a demurrer; allowing or refusing to allow an amendment to a pleading, striking out or refusing to strike out a pleading, or a portion thereof, refusing a continuance, an order made upon ex parte application, an order or decision made in the absence of a party, an order granting or denying a nonsuit, or a motion to strike out evidence or testimony, and a ruling sustaining or overruling an objection to evidence, rulings of the court as to the competency of jurors, are deemed to have been excepted to. As amended, Stats. 1915, 321.

On an appeal upon the judgment roll alone, where the judgment roll shows that a demurrer to the complaint was presented to the court and discloses a ruling thereon, an order sustaining a demurrer is deemed to have been excepted to under Stats. 1915, 321, amending this section, and alleged error in so ruling is not required to be presented by bill of exceptions. Miller v. Walser, 42 Nev. 505 (181 P. 437, 439).

It was held under this section and Rev. Laws, 5321, 5322, 5325, 5328, 5331, 5335, and 5343. that where defendant filed a "memorandum of exceptions" submitted and relied upon in support of its motion for a new trial, which was verified by its attorney, but not settled by the court, the memorandum could not be considered as filling the office of bills of exceptions or a statement on appeal. Ward v. Pittsburg Silver Peak G. M. Co., 39 Nev. 80, 85 (148 P. 345; 153 P. 434).

Under Rev. Laws, 5323, this section, and Rev. Laws, 5321, it was held that, as motion for a new trial for insufficiency of evidence can be made only on the minutes of the court, a motion for a new trial "on the ground of insufficiency of the evidence to justify the decision, judgment, and findings of fact and conclusions of law" is sufficient, although it failed to state that the motion would be made on the minutes of the court. Saval v. Blume, 41 Nev. 215, 216-219 (168 P. 909).

Under similar section (Stats. 1869, 226, sec. 195), held that, as motion for a new trial for insufficiency of evidence can be made only on the minutes of the court, a motion for a new trial "on the ground of insufficiency of the evidence to justify the decision, judgment, and findings of fact and conclusions of law" is sufficient, although it failed to state that the motion would be made on the minutes of the court. Id.

Rev. Laws, 5322, requiring service of memorandum of errors upon adverse party, has reference only to errors committed at the trial under subdivision 7 of this section, and not error committed in arriving at an erroneous conclusion as to the legal effect of all of the evidence in the case, the making of findings, or entering of judgment. Guisti v. Guisti, 41 Nev. 357 (171 P. 161).

5322. Motion to strike assignment of errors, not filed in the time prescribed by Stats. 1915, 166, sec. 13, and no memorandum of errors being served on respondent pursuant to this section, is well taken. Gardner v. Pacific Power Co., 40 Nev. 343, 344 (163 P. 731).

An ex parte order, extending, as authorized by this section, the time within which a mover for a new trial shall serve on the adverse party a memorandum of exceptions and errors, though properly granted, is without effect until notice thereof has been given to the adverse party, as required by district court rule 36. Beco v. Tonopah Ext. M. Co., 37 Nev. 199-201 (141 P. 453).

Although this section and Stats. 1915, 164, relate to the same subject, both being designed to correct errors on appeal, the purpose of the former was to require a motion for new trial before taking appeal, while the object of the latter was to provide the method of appeal by bills of exception so that the latter does not repeal the former by conflicting objects. Id.

Where an appeal is based upon alleged errors relating to evidence as pointed out under Rev. Laws, 5323, a motion for a new trial must be made and determined before the appeal is taken, as required by this section. Id.

5329. Time within which appeal may be taken.

SEC. 387. An appeal may be taken:

1. From a final judgment in an action or special proceeding commenced in the court in which the judgment is rendered, within six months after the rendition of the judgment.

2. From an order granting or refusing a new trial, or granting or refusing to grant or dissolving or refusing to dissolve an injunction, or appointing or refusing to appoint a receiver, or dissolving or refusing to dissolve an attachment, or changing or refusing to change the place of trial, and from any special order made after final judgment, within sixty days after the order is made and entered in the minutes of the court.

3. From an interlocutory judgment, order or decree hereafter made or entered in actions to redeem real or personal property from a mortgage thereof or lien thereon, determining such right to redeem and directing an accounting, and from an interlocutory judgment in actions for partition which determines the rights and interests of the respective parties and directs partition, sale or division to be made, within sixty days after the rendition of the judgment or order.

4. If an order granting or refusing to grant a motion to change the place of trial of an action is not directly appealed from within the said sixty days, there shall be no appeal therefrom on appeal from the judgment in the case or otherwise, and on demand or motion of either party to an action the court or judge making the order changing or refusing to change the place of trial of an action shall make an order staying the trial of the action until the time to appeal from such order changing or refusing to change.

shall have lapsed; or if an appeal from such order is taken until such appeal shall, in the appellate court, or in some other manner, be legally determined. As amended, Stats. 1913, 113.

Held, this section does not impliedly repeal Rev. Laws, 4833, authorizing an appeal from an order granting an injunction, so that an appeal lies from such order. State ex rel. Pacific Reclamation Co. v. Ducker, 35 Nev. 214, 218, 222-224 (127 P. 990).

It cannot be said that this section was intended to cover the whole subject as to appeals so as to make it operate to repeal all other statutes on the subject, including Rev. Laws, 4833, and Rev. Laws, 4564, 6089, 6162, and 6163 providing for appeals from certain other orders. Id.

Where a district court had granted a temporary injunction against taxing officers of the county and state, and had overruled the attorney-general's demurrer to the complaint, the latter had an adequate remedy under Rev. Laws, 5143, authorizing a motion to set aside the temporary injunction, and Rev. Laws, 5329, giving an immediate appeal from an order refusing such motion, so that he cannot maintain prohibition, even though the public interests are so great that he cannot rest on his demurrer and appeal from the judgment thereon, thereby losing his right to plead to the merits. State ex rel. Thatcher v. District Court, 38 Nev. 323, 326 (149 P. 178).

An order of the trial court in allowing or dismissing a motion for continuance is not of itself an appealable order, and can be reviewed only on appeal from the final judgment. Rosenthal v. Rosenthal, 39 Nev. 74, 76 (153 P. 91).

Const. art. 6, sec. 4, vests the supreme court with appellate jurisdiction in all cases in equity. Rev. Laws, 4832, is to the same effect. Section 4833 empowers the supreme court to review on appeal a judgment in a proceeding commenced in a district court when the matter in dispute is embraced in the general jurisdiction of the supreme court. Section 6162 provides for petition for the appointment of guardian for insane persons. In consideration of the foregoing and this section, it was held that such a proceeding is equitable, and the judgment appointing the guardian for a mentally enfeebled person is final, so that an appeal lies. O'Donnell v. District Court, 40 Nev. 428, 433 (165 P. 759).

Under this section, an order refusing to hear a motion for a new trial is appealable. Saval v. Blume, 41 Nev. 212, 214 (168 P. 909).

An appeal from the judgment taken more than nineteen months after rendition of judgment will be dismissed under this section. Nelson v. Smith, 42 Nev. 302, 309 (176 P. 261, 262).

An order refusing or granting a motion for a new trial is made and entered, within this section, at the time the order is entered in the minutes of the court, and not at the date of filing of a decision upon the merits of the motion. Id.

Similar section (Cutting, 3425) cited, Gamble v. Silver Peak Mines, 35 Nev. 325.

Both appeals being from the judgment as "entered," appellant is in no position to urge that the time within which an appeal may be taken under this section begins to run from the date of the rendition of judgment, and his motion to dismiss cross-appeal, taken within six months after entry of judgment, will not be considered. Dixon v. Pruett, 42 Nev. 345, 349 (177 P. 11).

Where appellant failed to file and serve her notice of appeal within six months after rendition of judgment, as required by this section, a motion for the dismissal of the appeal must be sustained. Clark v. Turner, 42 Nev. 450 (180 P. 908).

5330. A failure to serve and file a statement within the time prescribed by Rev. Laws, 5331, does not defeat the appeal, where it was duly perfected under this section by filing a notice of appeal and undertaking, or a waiver thereof. Glock v. Elges, 39 Nev. 415, 420 (159 P. 629).

An undertaking not filed within five days after filing notice of appeal, as required by this section and Rev. Laws, 5346, prevents a review of the case, unless such undertaking is actually approved by a majority of the justices of the supreme court before a hearing on a motion by the respondent to dismiss, under Rev. Laws, 5353, providing that no appeal shall be dismissed for insufficiency of the undertaking on appeal if a good and sufficient undertaking approved by a majority of the justices be filed before a hearing upon motion to dismiss the appeal. Shute v. Big Meadow Inv. Co., 41 Nev. 361-363 (170 P. 1049).

Approved March 16, 1915, 164

Bill of exceptions, how drawn and settled.

SECTION 1. Any party to an action or special proceeding may, after the filing of the complaint, and before trial, object and except to any ruling, decision, or order made in such action or special proceeding, and, within ten (10) days after such objection and exception, serve and file a bill of exceptions thereto, which bill of exceptions shall be settled and allowed by the judge or court, or by stipulation of the parties, by attaching thereto or inserting therein a certificate to the effect that such bill of exceptions is correct, contains the substance of all the material evidence relating to the point or points involved, and has been settled and allowed; and when such bill of exceptions has been so settled and allowed, it shall be and become a part of the record of such action or special proceeding. As amended, Stats. 1919, 440.

This act revises the subject-matter of Rev. Laws, 5343, respecting statements on appeal, and substitutes therefor in toto a system of bills of exception, and hence repeals by implication the earlier statute. Gill v. Goldfield Con. Mines Co., 43 Nev. — (176 P. 785-787).

Although Rev. Laws, 5328, and this act relate to the same subject, both being designed to correct errors on appeal, the purpose of the former was to require a motion for a new trial before taking appeal, while the object of the latter was to provide the method of appeal by bills of exception, so that the latter does not repeal the former by conflict in objects. Id.

How taken and settled.

SEC. 2. Any party to an action or special proceeding from the time said action or proceeding is called for trial, and until including final judgment has been entered therein, may object and except to any ruling, decision, or order of the court or judge made therein, and, within twenty (20) days after such objection and exception, serve and file a bill of exceptions to such ruling, decision, or action of the court, which bill of exceptions shall be settled and allowed by the judge or court, or by stipulation of the parties, as in the preceding section provided, and when so settled and allowed shall be and become a part of the record of said action or proceeding.

Objections to allowance, how made.

SEC. 3. Any adverse party may object to the allowance and settlement of any bill of exceptions herein provided for within five (5) days after the service of the same, by serving upon the opposite party and filing in said court a statement specifically pointing out wherein said bill does not state the true facts, or wherein the same omits any material fact necessary to explain or make clear any ruling, decision, or action of the court. Such objection shall be heard and determined by the court within five (5) days thereafter, and upon such hearing the court shall designate in what respect said bill is incorrect or untrue, or fails or omits to state the true facts, and shall order and direct that such bill be corrected in accordance with said determination, and engrossed so as to contain the true facts as herein required, and when so engrossed said bill shall be allowed and settled as in this act provided, and when so settled shall become and be a part of the record of said action. If the objections of the adverse party are disallowed, then such bill as originally filed shall be immediately settled and allowed as by this act required.

Requirements as to bills.

SEC. 4. All bills of exceptions required by the provisions hereof shall be typewritten, paged, and the lines of each page numbered; and where more than one bill of exception is filed in the same action or proceeding each bill shall be consecutively numbered. The service of all bills of exception and objections thereto shall be by copy.

Shorthand report, how certified.

SEC. 5. In all cases where an official reporter is appointed by the court, under authority of law, or by agreement of the parties, a transcription of the shorthand report of the proceedings in any action or special proceeding, when certified by said reporter to be a full, true, and correct transcription of such proceedings, may, at the option of any party, be submitted to the court for allowance and settlement, as the bill of exceptions required under the provisions of this act, and the court or judge shall thereupon attach the certificate as herein provided, whereupon such bill of exceptions shall be and become a part of the record.

Service of bill of exceptions.

SEC. 6. Bills of exception to any action, decision, ruling, or order of the court, after final judgment, shall be prepared, served, allowed, and settled in the manner and within the time specified in section 1 of this act.

Same.

SEC. 7. Bills of exceptions provided for by section 2 of this act may be prepared, served, and filed within twenty (20) days after a motion for a new trial has been determined by the court, and all errors relied upon which may have occurred at the trial, or which may be alleged against the findings, or exceptions to the findings as made, and all errors based upon any ground for a new trial, may be included therein, and all such errors may be reviewed by the supreme court on appeal from the judgment or order denying the motion for a new trial.

How settled.

SEC. 8. When the action, decision, ruling, or order excepted to was made by a referee or any judicial officer other than a judge, the bill of exceptions shall be filed, served, and presented to said referee or judicial officer, and be settled, allowed, and certified by him in the same manner and within the same time as other bills of exception are required to be presented to, settled, and certified by the judge or court. A judge, referee, or judicial officer may settle, allow, and certify to a bill of exceptions after he ceases to be such judge, referee, or judicial officer, and if such judge, referee, or judicial officer, before the bill of exceptions is settled, dies, is removed from office, becomes disqualified, is absent from the state, or refuses to settle and allow any bill, or if no method is provided by law for the settlement of the same, it shall be settled and certified in such manner as the supreme court may by its order or rules direct.

Rights waived, when.

SEC. 9. If a party shall omit or fail to serve and file his bill of exceptions within the time limited he shall be deemed to have waived his right thereto, and if a party shall omit to make objections as required to such bill of exceptions within the time limited he shall be deemed to have waived his right thereto.

Extension of time, how.

SEC. 10. The several periods of time specified in this act may be enlarged upon good cause shown by the court, any justice of the supreme court, judge, referee, or judicial official, or by stipulation of the parties. As amended, Stats. 1919, 55.

Bill of exceptions annexed to judgment roll.

SEC. 11. The original bills of exceptions herein provided for, together with a notice of appeal and the undertaking on appeal, shall be annexed to a copy of the judgment roll, certified by the clerk or by the parties, if the appeal be from the judgment; if the appeal be from an order, such original bill shall be annexed to such order, and the same shall be and become the record on appeal when filed in the supreme court. A party may appeal upon the judgment roll alone, in which case only such errors can be considered as appear upon the face of the judgment roll.

Last section not to apply, when.

SEC. 12. The provisions of the last preceding section shall not apply to appeals taken from an order made upon affidavits, but certified copy of such affidavits and counter-affidavits, if any, shall be annexed to the order in place of the bill of exceptions mentioned in the last section.

Assignment of errors, time for serving—Form of.

SEC. 13. Within ten (10) days after the transcript of the record on appeal has been filed in the supreme court, the party or parties appealing shall serve upon the adverse parties and file with the clerk of the supreme court an assignment of errors, which assignment shall designate generally each separate error, specifying the lines or folios, and the pages of the record wherein the same may be found. Any error not assigned shall not be considered by the supreme court. If the party fails to file such assignment within the time limited, no error shall be considered by the supreme court. The assignment of errors herein provided for shall be typewritten or printed, paged, and the lines or folios numbered, and the appellant shall furnish three copies thereof for filing in the supreme court. As amended, Stats. 1919, 55.

Motion to strike assignment of errors not filed in the time prescribed by this section, and no memorandum of errors being served on respondent pursuant to Rev. Laws, 5322, is well taken. Gardner v. Pacific Power Co., 40 Nev. 343, 344, 347 (163 P. 731).

This section is peremptory and leaves no room for construction, so that, if the assignment be not filed within the time limited, the omission may not be cured by a subsequent filing, in the absence of fraud, bad faith, or deception on the part of respondent. Coffin v. Coffin, 40 Nev. 345, 347 (163 P. 731).

This section does not deprive an appellant of his constitutional right of appeal, since while the constitution gives the right of appeal, and the legislature, under the pretense of prescribing forms, cannot deprive parties of substantial rights, the constitutional right of appeal is to be enjoyed and exercised subject to the regulations of law and practices of the court. Id.

An assignment of errors is founded on the bill of exceptions. Id.

Where demurrer to complaint for libel was sustained, all the matters pertaining to the proceedings in the trial court so far as affecting the plaintiff's rights are embraced in the "judgment roll" within Rev. Laws, 5273, subd. 2, stating what constitutes a judgment roll, so that under this act, permitting an appeal on the judgment roll alone, it was unnecessary to file assignments of error as required by this section. Talbot v. Mack, 41 Nev. 245, 252-255 (169 P. 25).

Original exhibits sent, when.

SEC. 14. Where it is not practicable to embody an exhibit in the bill of exceptions, then the original exhibit, certified to by the clerk or by the parties, may be sent to the supreme court, together with the record as hereinabove specified, and such original exhibits shall be and become a part of the record upon appeal in said court.

Certain sections repealed.

SEC. 15. Sections 389, 390, 391, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, and 397 of the above-entitled act, and all provisions of law in conflict herewith, are hereby repealed; but nothing contained herein shall affect or invalidate any proceedings already had in any action or special proceeding now pending, but said action or proceeding may be finally heard and determined upon the record made under the existing law.

5331. Though the provisions of Cutting's Compilation, sec. 3292, were not carried forward into the Revised Laws, yet where the parties stipulated for an extension of time beyond the ten days specified in Rev. Laws, 5323, such stipulation was a waiver of plaintiff's right to object that the motion was not in time. Torp v. Clemons, 37 Nev. 474, 477 (142 P. 1115).

Under this section, any defect in the notice is waived by serving and filing a notice of appeal. Glock v. Elges, 39 Nev. 415, 420 (159 P. 629).

5345. Judgment not reversed for want or insufficiency of finding, unless exception made.

SEC. 403. In cases tried by the court, without a jury, no judgment shall be reversed for want of a finding, or for a defective finding of the facts, unless exceptions be made in the court below to the finding or to the want of a finding after application to the court for additions to or modification of the findings with notice given to the adverse party as prescribed in section 285 of this act. Upon failure of the court on such application to remedy the alleged error, the party moving shall be entitled to his exceptions. As amended, Stats. 1919, 319.

As procedure under Rev. Laws, 6162, is not a case provided for in this section and Rev. Laws, 5347, 5350, and 5351, the perfection of an appeal by giving the undertaking as prescribed by this section stays proceedings in the court below and order appealed from, under the specific provision of Rev. Laws, 5355. O'Donnell v. District Court, 40 Nev. 428, 434 (165 P. 759).

See Shute v. Big Meadow Inv. Co., 41 Nev. 361, under section 5330.

A bond on appeal from an order dismissing writ of certiorari to review judgment of justice's court, which was never filed in the district court as required by this section nor approved by the justices of the supreme court under Rev. Laws, 5358, conferred no jurisdiction of the appeal. Mazade v. Justice Court, 41 Nev. 481, 484 (172 P. 378).

5347. Appeal not to stay execution unless bond filed.

SEC. 405. If the appeal be from a judgment or order directing the payment of money, or from an order dissolving or refusing to dissolve an attachment, it shall not stay the execution of the judgment or order unless a written undertaking be executed on the part of the appellant, by two or more sufficient sureties, stating their place of residence and occupation, to the effect that they are bound in double the amount named in the judgment or order, or double the sum of the value of the property attached, as the case may be; that if the judgment or order appealed from, or any part thereof, be affirmed, or such appeal be dismissed, the appellant shall pay the amount directed to be paid by the judgment or order, or the part of such amount as to which the judgment or order shall be affirmed, if affirmed only in part, and all damages and costs which shall be awarded against the appellant upon the appeal, and that if the appellant does not make such payment within thirty days after the filing of the remittitur from the supreme court, in the court in which the appeal is taken, judgment may be entered on motion of the respondent, in his favor against the sureties for such amount, together with the interest that may be due thereon and the damages and costs which may be awarded against the appellant upon the appeal. When the judgment or order appealed from is made payable in a specified kind of money or currency, the undertaking required by this section shall be drawn and made payable in the same kind of money or currency specified in said judgment or order, and in case of any appeal from an order dissolving or refusing to dissolve an attachment, such undertaking shall be conditioned that if the order appealed from or any part thereof be affirmed, the appellant shall pay to the opposing party, on such appeal, all damages and costs caused by him by reason of said appeal and the stay of execution thereon. As amended, Stats. 1915, 219.

5349. Bond on appeal when order directs delivery of certain property or documents.

SEC. 407. If the judgment or order appealed from direct the assignment or delivery of documents, or personal property, the execution of the judgment or order shall not be stayed by or upon appeal, unless the things required to be assigned or delivered be assigned and placed in the custody of such officer or receiver as the court may appoint, and an undertaking be entered into on the part of the appellant, with at least two sureties, to be approved by the court or judge and in such amount as the court or judge thereof may direct, to the effect that the appellant will, if the judgment or order appealed from, or any part thereof, be affirmed, pay to the opposing party on such appeal all damages and costs caused by him by reason of such appeal and the stay of execution thereof. In lieu of the assignment and delivery, and of the undertaking hereinbefore provided for, the appellant may enter into an undertaking, with at least two sureties, to be approved by the court or judge, and in such amount as the court or judge thereof may direct, to the effect that if the judgment or order, or any part thereof, be affirmed, the appellant will obey the order of the appellate court upon the appeal and pay to the opposing party on such appeal all damages and costs caused by reason of said appeal and the stay of execution thereon.

Not to affect previous act.

SEC. 5. Nothing in this act contained shall be construed to repeal, limit or affect in any way the provisions of an act entitled "An act pertaining to the form of denials in pleadings in civil actions in the State of Nevada," approved February 28, 1913. As amended, Stats. 1913, 301.

5351. On appeal from a mandatory injunction requiring defendant to release water from its reservoir and permit it to flow down the stream so that plaintiff can use it, defendant was entitled, as a matter of right, to a stay of proceedings upon the injunction upon the filing of a proper stay bond. State ex rel. Pacific Reclamation Co. v. Ducker, 35 Nev. 214, 228 (127 P. 990).

5354. While Cutting, 3443 (similar to this), providing that the adverse party may except to the sufficiency of the sureties in an undertaking on appeal, does not require such party to serve notice of his exception upon the appellant, the appellant is entitled to such notice, in view of district court rule 10, providing that motions, except ex parte motions, shall be noticed at least five days before the day specified for a hearing. Konig v. Nevada-California-Oregon Railway, 36 Nev. 181, 197 (135 P. 141).

Held, that an instrument excepting to the sufficiency of the surety on an undertaking on appeal, and asking that such surety appear before the judge and justify as required by such section, although probably sufficient where personal sureties are given, was not a sufficient exception where the undertaking was executed by a surety company. Id.

5356. Rev. Laws, 5339, providing that, upon an appeal from an order made on affidavit, a certified copy of the affidavit and counter affidavit shall be annexed to the order in place of the statement on appeal, and this section, apply to appealable orders only and do not give an appeal from orders not otherwise appealable. *Rosenthal v. of jurisdiction. Ward v. Pittsburg Silver Peak G. M. Co., 39 Nev. 80, 101 (148 P. 345; 153 P. 434).

Notwithstanding this section, where appellant fails to comply, at least substantially, with the provisions of the statute, the court can do nothing but dismiss the appeal, as the right of appeal is regulated by the statute. Id.

5362. The fees of the clerk of the supreme court prescribed by Cutting, 2469 (Rev. Laws, 2006), allowing a fee for entering any motion, rule, or order, and a fee for filing each paper, are limited to orders and motions defined by Cutting, 3586 (same as this section), providing that every direction of the court made or entered in writing and not included in the judgment is an order, and an application for an order is a motion, and an offer of or objection to evidence, or a ruling admitting or rejecting evidence, or the routine adjournment of the trial, is not a motion and order, and the clerk may not recover fees therefor. State ex rel. Springmeyer v. Baker, 35 Nev. 301, 311, 312 (126 P. 345; 129 P. 452).

5367. This section and district court rule 10, relating to service of notice, and rule 45, providing that motions to vacate orders may be made within six months on notice of the adverse party, are applicable to chancery proceedings. State ex rel. Sparks v. Wildes, 37 Nev. 57, 81 (139 P. 505; 142 P. 627).

5369. Where plaintiff's bill of costs was filed, but no copy thereof was filed in the county clerk's office, there was no service on defendant's attorneys under this section, even if this section applies, since under Rev. Laws, 5387, requiring the party claiming costs to deliver a memorandum of the items of his costs to the clerk and serve a copy on the adverse party, the paper required to be served was a copy of the cost bill. Radovich v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 36 Nev. 341, 346 (135 P. 920; 136 P. 704).

5373. Cited, Radovich v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 36 Nev. 346 (135 P. 920; 136 P. 704).

5375. Under Rev. Laws, 5387, and this section, service of a cost bill should be made upon the attorneys for the adverse party, since their authority is not terminated so long as the amount of costs remains open to settlement, and service of the cost bill upon the resident agent of a foreign corporation was irregular, if not void, since under Rev. Laws, 5024, requiring foreign corporations to keep in the state an agent upon whom all legal process may be served, only papers in the nature of process may be served upon the resident agent, and under Rev. Laws, 5475, providing that, unless otherwise apparent from the context, the word "process" means a writ or summons issued in the course of judicial proceedings, the cost bill is not a process. Radovich v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 36 Nev. 341, 345, 346 (135 P. 920; 136 P. 704).

5376. See State ex rel. Springmeyer v. Baker, 35 Nev. 301, under section 5362.

5377. Where a case comes to the district court on appeal from justice's court costs in the district court do not follow as a course, but come under the provisions of Rev. Laws, 5330, whereby the district court is authorized and directed to exercise its discretion in cases other than those mentioned in this section, prescribing allowance of costs as of course. McLeod v. District Court, 39 Nev. 337, 345 (157 P. 649).

This section applies to recovery of damages for forcible entry, where plaintiff's title or right of possession was disputed. Glock v. Elges, 39 Nev. 415, 420 (159 P. 629).

See McLeod v. District Court, 39 Nev. 337, under section 5377.

5380. See State ex rel. Springmeyer v. Baker, 35 Nev. 301, under section 5362.

5381. Under this section, where, in opinion on rehearing, the supreme court made no order as to costs, since defendant appellant had obtained relief originally by reduction of judgment against it, judgment having been reversed unless plaintiff agreed to reduction, appellant should recover his costs on the original appeal. Dixon v. Southern Pacific Co., 42 Nev. 74, 91 (179 P. 382, 383).

Where both parties petition for rehearing, and neither party obtain any relief, as a consequence each party, under this section, should pay his own costs incurred on the rehearing. Id.

Under the provisions of this section, where the supreme court in reversing a judgment makes no order as to costs, the costs shall be allowed to the party obtaining relief, and where a judgment for plaintiff for $300 was reversed, it follows as a matter of course that costs are recoverable by appellant without an order therefor. Richards v. Vermilyea, 42 Nev. 294, 300 (175 P. 188; 180 P. 121).

5387. Filing and service of verified cost bill—Retaxing.

SEC. 445. The party in whose favor judgment is rendered, and who claims his costs, must deliver to the clerk, and serve a copy upon the adverse party, within five days after the verdict or notice of the decision of the court or referee, or such further time as the court or judge may grant, a memorandum of the items of his costs and necessary disbursements in the action or proceeding, which memorandum must be verified by the oath of the party, or his attorney or agent, or by the clerk of his attorney, stating that to the best of his knowledge and belief the items are correct, and that the disbursements have been necessarily incurred in the action or proceeding. He shall be entitled to recover the witness fees, although at the time he may not actually have paid them. Issuance or service of subpoena shall not be necessary to entitle a prevailing party to tax, as costs, witness fees and mileage, provided that such witnesses be sworn and testify in the cause. It shall not be necessary to embody in the memorandum the fees of the clerk, but the clerk shall add the same according to his fees fixed by statute. Within three days after service of a copy of the memorandum, the adverse party may move the court, upon two days' notice, to retax and settle the costs, notice of which motion shall be filed and served on the prevailing party claiming costs. Upon the hearing of the motion the court or judge in chambers shall settle the costs. As amended, Stats. 1919, 56.

Under this section, requiring the clerk to tax his fees, such fees should be taxed in favor of a prevailing plaintiff, although the bill of costs was properly stricken. Glock v. Elges, 39 Nev. 415-422 (159 P. 629).

5396. Contempt, when punishable summarily, when not—Jury trial.

SEC. 454. When a contempt is committed in the immediate view and presence of the court or judge at chambers, it may be punished summarily, for which an order shall be made, reciting the facts as occurring in such immediate view and presence, adjudging that the person proceeded against is thereby guilty of a contempt and that he be punished as therein prescribed. When the contempt is not committed in the immediate view and presence of the court or judge at chambers, an affidavit shall be presented to the court or judge of the facts constituting the contempt, or a statement of the facts by the referees or arbitrators; provided, that in all cases of contempt arising without the immediate view and presence of the court the person charged with contempt may demand and have a jury trial; and provided further, that in all cases of contempt arising without the immediate view and presence of the court, the judge of such court in whose contempt the defendant is alleged to be shall not preside at such trial over the objection of the defendant. As amended, Stats. 1913, 117.

5403. Penalty for contempt—Maximum.

SEC. 461. Upon the answer and evidence taken, the court or judge or jury, as the case may be, shall determine whether the person proceeded against is guilty of the contempt charged; and if it be found that he is guilty of the contempt, a fine may be imposed on him not exceeding five hundred dollars, or he may be imprisoned not exceeding twenty-five (25) days, or both, but no imprisonment shall exceed twenty-five (25) days except as provided in the next section. As amended, Stats. 1913, 117.

5409. This section affects the admissibility of the specified character of evidence, but not the method of the production thereof in court, and the supreme court in quo warranto involving an election contest has no authority to direct the county clerk of the county to certify to the court the ballots and election returns of the precinct of the county for the election. State ex rel. Springmeyer v. Baker and Josephs, 35 Nev. 1, 4, 7, 13, 15 (126 P. 345; 129 P. 452).

5419. In a suit to declare and enforce a resulting trust as to corporate stock alleged to be held by defendant as trustee for plaintiff's testator, defendant was precluded by this section from testifying as to any transaction between himself and testator. Torp v. Clemens, 37 Nev. 474, 483 (142 P. 1115).

This section does not disqualify the witness to testify as to matters brought out by opposing witnesses outside the transaction and out of the presence and hearing of the person who had since died. Id.

One who was jointly indicted with accused for murder and on previous separate trial had been convicted was a competent witness for the state in a murder trial under this section, defining witnesses, and Rev. Laws, 7451, applying this section to criminal actions. State v. Tranmer, 39 Nev. 143, 154, 155 (154 P. 80).

Under this section, when the facts to be proven transpired before the death of such deceased person, testimony of the mother of plaintiff who was adopted by the testatrix and her husband, in a suit against the testatrix's executor to enforce specific performance of alleged contracts by which plaintiff was to inherit any property of which testatrix and her husband might die possessed, it appearing that testatrix's husband conveyed all his property to her, as to matters relative to the alleged agreement transpiring before the death of the testatrix, all of which tended to establish the alleged contract of adoption, is inadmissible. Forsyth v. Heward, 41 Nev. 305, 309 (170 P. 21).

In such case testimony by plaintiff's own father concerning acts and conduct of testatrix and her husband when they went to his house to get plaintiff is also inadmissible under this section; for it would be a mere evasion to allow testimony as to acts when testimony as to transactions with deceased persons is inadmissible. Id.

Under this section, one party to an arrangement with a corporation cannot testify thereto after death of corporate representative, for such representative was the other party to the transaction. Bright v. Virginia and Gold Hill Water Co., 254 F. 175, 179.

5421. Where plaintiff in giving his deposition refused under advice and command of his counsel to answer certain questions until the court had ruled that they should and must be answered, his refusal was not contumacious, nor was he a recalcitrant witness, and it was error, before ruling that the questions must be answered, to strike his complaint. Roberson v. Kilborn, 40 Nev. 423, 426 (165 P. 220).

Conceding questions propounded in taking a deposition were legal and pertinent, it was an arbitrary exercise of authority to enter judgment against defendant before giving him an opportunity to answer the questions propounded and ruled to be proper. Id.

5424. Under this section, a wife was competent to testify against her husband in his action for criminal conversation, where the husband and wife had each consented in open court that the other might testify to anything existing between them having a bearing on the case. Rehling v. Brainard, 38 Nev. 16, 22 (144 P. 167; Ann. Cas. 1917C, 656).

5431. Under this section, the mileage of witnesses residing in another county more than thirty miles from the place of trial cannot be taxed as costs. Zelavin v. Tonopah Belmont D. Co., 39 Nev. 2, 11 (149 P. 188).

5445. Where a nonresident brought habeas corpus within the state against his wife for the possession of their minor child, he was not immune, while in the state for such purpose, from service of summons in a divorce suit; this section not protecting him from being served with a summons or applying to him while voluntarily in this state maintaining his own suit. Tiedemann v. Tiedemann, 35 Nev. 259, 262 (129 P. 313).

5456. Where testimony legally objectionable in substance was elicited from the plaintiff on cross-examination by his attorneys in his deposition taken by defendants, and the deposition was read in evidence as provided for by Comp. L. 3504, similar to this, thereby making the deposition plaintiff's own evidence under the provision to that effect of Comp. L. 3505, an objection made by defendants on the trial to the admission of such objectionable testimony should have been sustained, though the deposition was taken on defendants' motion, since, under a further provision of Comp. L. 3504, the evidence taken in a deposition is subject to all legal exceptions. McLeod v. Miller & Lux, 40 Nev. 448, 483 (153 P. 566; 167 P. 27).

The objection to such substantially inadmissible evidence was properly made at the trial instead of at the taking of the deposition, under the provision of Comp. L. 3504, that depositions may be used upon the trial subject to all legal exceptions. Id.

An affidavit for a primary election contest before a judge of a district court, praying that all ballots cast in the precincts objected to for the particular office might be recounted and for such further relief as to the court might seem meet and proper, was sufficient. Brown v. Dunn, 35 Nev. 167, 176 (127 P. 81).

An Act relating to the time of performance of certain acts provided to be done either by law or contract when the day of performance falls upon a holiday or a nonjudicial day.

Approved March 10, 1913, 49

Secular acts, when executed.

SECTION 1. Whenever any act of a secular nature, other than a work of necessity or mercy, is appointed by law or contract to be performed upon a particular day, which day falls upon a holiday or a nonjudicial day, it may be performed upon the next business day with the same effect as if it had been performed upon the day appointed; and if such act is to be performed at a particular hour it may be performed at the same hour of the next business day.

This act does not permit a nominee at a primary election to be held September 1 to file his papers on August 3 though August 2 falls on Sunday; section 7 of subchapter 3 of election law of 1913 (Stata. 1913, 493, c. 284) providing that such papers shall be filed at least thirty days prior to the primary election. State ex rel. Thatcher v. Brodigan, 37 Nev. 458, 462 (142 P. 520).

5501. Under Const. art. 6, sec. 14, Rev. Laws, 4943, this section, and Rev. Laws, 5518 and 5603, a defendant in an action under Rev. Laws, 5588, for unlawful detainer may show the nonexistence of the relation of landlord and tenant essential to the maintenance of the action, and may show that an instrument in form a lease was a part of another instrument, and that the two constituted a mortgage, and thereby defeat the action. Yori v. Phenix, 38 Nev. 277, 282, 283 (149 P. 180).

Under this section, where plaintiff, by executory contract, agreed to sell land, retaining title and reserving the right to maintain a suit for the foreclosure of the agreement and any equity of redemption of the purchasers, although, pursuant to the contract, the purchasers went into possession, plaintiff could recover in a personal action for the unpaid balance of the purchase price, not being restricted to an action for foreclosure, as it was not a mortgagee, because a mortgagor holds legal title, and a mortgagee only an equitable lien. Southern Pacific Co. v. Miller, 39 Nev. 169, 173-175 (154 P. 929).

5508. This section, providing that in forcible-entry cases, judgments "may" be entered for treble the actual damages, permits, but does not require, such penalty to be imposed. Glock v. Elges, 39 Nev. 415, 416, 422 (159 P. 629).

The supreme court will not modify a judgment to allow treble damages in a forcible-entry case under this section, where the facts are not before it. Id.

5514. Neither under this section, nor independently of it, does a complaint state a cause of action to quiet title if not alleging that defendants claim an interest in the property adverse to plaintiffs. Clay v. Scheeline Banking and Trust Co., 40 Nev. 9, 16 (159 P. 1081).

5518. Cited, Douglass v. Thompson, 35 Nev. 207 (127 P. 561; Ann Cas. 1914C, 920).

Under Cutting, 3357, similar to this, where an absolute conveyance of real property was in fact a mortgage, the grantee was entitled to the rents and profits so long as the mortgagors remained in possession; and hence, on their becoming bankrupts, such rents and profits passed to their trustee. Alter v. Clark, 193 F. 153, 157.

An Act to quiet title to real estate by defining when the lien of an attachment and mortgage and the notice of the pendency of an action expires.

Approved March 2, 1917, 41

Attachment liens expire, when.

SECTION 1. The lien upon real property heretofore or hereafter created by the levy of a writ of attachment shall, unless otherwise released and discharged of record, at the expiration of ten years from the time of such levy terminate and be conclusively presumed to have been regularly released and discharged.

Mortgage liens expire, when.

SEC. 2. The lien heretofore or hereafter created of any mortgage upon any real estate, appearing of record, and not otherwise satisfied and discharged of record, shall at the expiration of ten years after the debt secured by said mortgage according to the terms thereof become wholly due, terminate, and it shall be conclusively presumed that said debt has been regularly satisfied and said lien discharged.

Imputation of notice ceases, when.

SEC. 3. Notice of the pendency of any action shall not constitute notice or be of any force or effect after the expiration of ten years from the time of the filing of such notice.

5588. Unlawful detainer defined.

SEC. 646. A tenant of real property, for a term less than life, is guilty of an unlawful detainer:

1. Where he continues in possession, in person or by subtenant, of the property or any part thereof, after the expiration of the term for which it is let to him. In all cases where real property is leased for a specified term or period, or by express or implied contract, whether written or parol, the tenancy shall be terminated without notice at the expiration of such specified term or period; or

2. When, having leased real property for an indefinite time, with monthly or other periodic rent reserved, he continues in possession thereof, in person or by subtenant, after the end of any such month or period, in cases where the landlord, fifteen days or more prior to the end of such month or period, shall have served notice requiring him to quit the premises at the expiration of such month or period; or, in cases of tenancy at will where he remains in possession of such premises after the expiration of a notice of not less than five days.

3. When he continues in possession, in person or by subtenant, after default in the payment of any rent and after a notice in writing requiring in the alternative the payment of the rent or the surrender of the detained premises, shall have remained uncomplied with for the period of three days after service thereof. Such notice may be served at any time after the rent becomes due.

4. When he assigns or sublets the leased premises contrary to the covenants of the lease, or commits or permits waste thereon, or when he sets up or carries on therein or thereon any unlawful business, or when he suffers, permits, or maintains on or about said premises any nuisance, and remains in possession after service upon him of three days' notice to quit.

5. When he continues in possession, in person or by subtenant, after a neglect or failure to perform any condition or covenant of the lease or agreement under which the property is held, other than those hereinbefore mentioned, and after notice, in writing, requiring in the alternative the performance of such condition or covenant, or the surrender of the property, served upon him, and, if there be a subtenant in actual occupation of the premises, also upon such subtenant, shall remain uncomplied with for five days after the service thereof. Within three days after the service, the tenant, or any subtenant in actual occupation of the premises, or any mortgagee of the term, or other person, interested in its continuance, may perform such condition or covenant and thereby save the lease from forfeiture; provided, that if the covenants and conditions of the lease, violated by the lessee, cannot afterwards be performed, then no notice as last prescribed herein need be given. As amended, Stats. 1917, 31.

See Yori v. Phenix, 38 Nev. 277, under section 5501.

5599. This section does not clearly authorize the trebling of the amount of rent found due, as the statute mentions other elements of damage, such as waste, and while the legislature has used language to indicate that in some way treble damages are to be recovered from tenants holding over, the statute having failed to show what damages shall be trebled, as penalties and forfeitures will not be extended by implication and doubtful construction, no such judgment can be rendered against a tenant holding over. Regan v. King, 39 Nev. 217, 221, 223 (156 P. 688).

5603. See Yori v. Phenix, 38 Nev. 277, under section 5501.

Revised Laws relative to civil actions should constitute the rules of practice in proceedings under said chapter. Rev. Laws, 5199, provided that an issue of facts should be tried by a jury, unless a trial jury was waived, and Rev. Laws, 5818, provided that the repeal of a law by the act should not affect any action or proceeding commenced in a civil case before the repeal took effect, but the proceedings in such case shall, as far as practicable, conform to the provisions of the Revised Laws. Held, that the action of the trial court in calling a jury was justified; since the general rule against the retrospective construction of a statute does not apply to statute relating only to remedies. Truckee River G. E. Co. v. Durham, 38 Nev. 311, 312, 315, 317 (149 P. 61).

Where condemnation proceedings were instituted when Stats. 1907, 279, regulated the subject, and provided that compensation and damages should be assessed by commissioners, the assessment of damages in such proceedings by a jury was permissible after the enactment of these sections, which regulated the subject of eminent domain, and expressly repealed the former act; since the general rule that a special statute enacted for a special purpose, when complete in itself, is not repealed, modified, or amended by a subsequent general statute, has no application where the later general statute expressly repeals the former act. Id.

5606. Rev. Laws, 2456, provides that mining for gold, silver, etc., is the paramount interest of the state and is hereby declared to be of public use. Rev. Laws, 2458, authorizes any citizen to enter upon private unfenced and unimproved land and prospect thereon for precious metals. This section provides that the right of eminent domain shall be exercised for the public uses therein specified, etc. Held, that the use of land as a place upon which to deposit tailings from an ore mill is a public use, and land may be condemned therefor. Goldfield Con. M. & T. Co. v. Old Sandstorm Co., 38 Nev. 427, 436, 442 (150 P. 313).

5614. Cited, Goldfield Con. M. & T. Co. v. Old Sandstorm Co., 38 Nev. 434 (150 P. 313).

5616. Under this section, where there was a leasehold interest in defendant's ranch, a right of way over which plaintiff was seeking to condemn, it was unnecessary for the jury to assess such interest where the plaintiff had purchased the interest from the lessee. Truckee River G. E. Co. v. Durham, 38 Nev. 312, 318 (149 P. 61).

5624. See Truckee River G. E. Co. v. Durham, 38 Nev. 311, under sections 5606-5629.

5647. Under Cutting, 3983, similar to this, and Cutting, 3984, similar to Rev. Laws, 5648, it was held that, while the jury has discretion to grant exemplary damages, it should be permitted to award them only when the injury is proved to have occurred under circumstances indicating fraud, malice, oppression, intentional wrong, wantonness, or a degree of recklessness amounting to indifference to the rights and welfare of others. Benner v. Truckee River G. E. Co., 193 F. 740; 211 F. 81.

In an action against a corporation for decedent's wrongful death caused by the negligence of the manager in charge, plaintiff could not recover exemplary damages authorized in certain cases by Cutting, 3984 (similar to Rev. Laws, 5648), by merely proving that defendant was not notified of a sagging wire, and that its agent promised to repair the same, in the absence of proof that defendant company in any way participated in the negligence of its agent, or of bad faith, evil intent, or intentional wrong or that defendant knowingly employed an unfit and incompetent servant. Id.

5649. Under similar section (Stats. 1905, 249), it was held: Where the plaintiff, in an action to recover damages for the wrongful expulsion from a train, who was a nonresident and had no other property in the state, died while the action was pending, his right of action was property upon which letters of administration might issue in the county in which the case was pending, even though the action might also have been instituted in the state of his residence. Forrester v. Southern Pacific Company, 36 Nev. 247, 265, 271 (134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1).

By the enactment of similar section (Stats. 1907, 437) the common-law rule of fellow-servants was modified, and, moreover, the common-law rule of contributory negligence was superseded by the statutory rule, which is more or less properly termed a rule of "relative" or "comparative" negligence. Lawson v. Halifax-Tonopah M. Co., 36 Nev. 596, 609 (135 P. 611; 138 P. 261; aff. 239 U. S. 632).

By statutory enactment in this state, the common-law rule of fellow-servant has been modified, and the common-law rule of contributory negligence has been superseded by statutory rule, which is more or less properly termed the rule of "relative" or "comparative" negligence. Peterson v. Pittsburg Silver Peak G. M. Co., 37 Nev. 123 (140 P. 519).

Statute similar to this section (Stats. 1907, 437) cited, Knock v. Tonopah and Goldfield R. R. Co., 38 Nev. 146 (145 P. 939; L. R. A. 1915F, 3).

5651. This section substitutes for the common-law rule of contributory negligence the rule of relative or comparative negligence. Peterson v. Pittsburg Silver Peak G. M. Co., 37 Nev. 118, 123 (140 P. 519).

5652. Under this section, a release of an employer from liability for personal injuries, damaging an employee in the sum of about $1,200, in consideration of the payment of $36, did not prevent a recovery of such damages, since the statute invalidates defenses based, not only on contracts made to cover future injuries, but defenses based upon acceptance of insurance, relief benefit, or indemnity by a person already injured, and the word "indemnity" means protection or exemption from loss or damage, passed or to come, or immunity from punishment for past offenses. Lawson v. Halifax-Tonopah M. Co., 36 Nev. 595-598, 601, 609 (135 P. 611; 138 P. 261; aff. 239 U. S. 632).

This section is not unconstitutional, since the legislature has power to enact laws to promote healthful conditions of work or freedom from undue oppression; and a contract which this state, in the legitimate exercise of its police power, has the right to prohibit is not within the protection of Const. U. S. Amend. 14, especially in view of the further provision of that section that upon the trial of an action the defendant may set off the sum it has contributed toward any such insurance, relief benefit or indemnity that may have been paid to the person entitled thereto. Id.

Under Workman's Compensation Act (Stats. 1911, 362), sec. 11, allowing workman to elect any other remedy at law, where a servant, a citizen and resident of California, executed in California a full and fair release of his master from liability for injuries received in his employment in Nevada, which was valid in California, it was a valid defense to action by him in Nevada for such injuries, notwithstanding this section, for, the cause of action being transitory, and being completely barred in California, it was completely extinguished everywhere. Leach v. Mason Valley Mines Co., 40 Nev. 143, 149 (161 P. 513).

This section does not enlarge the writ so as to reach proceedings not of a judicial character, and it will not issue to prohibit county commissioners and county sheriff from enforcing an ordinance requiring licenses for selling, etc., liquors in restaurants, etc. O'Brien v. Humboldt County Commissioners, 41 Nev. 95-98, 101, 102 (167 P. 1007).

The office of the writ of prohibition is not to correct errors, but to prevent courts from transcending the limitation of their jurisdiction in exercise of judicial power. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 118 (173 P. 1149).

Where a statute has imposed restrictions under which a court may act in matters otherwise within its jurisdiction, and those restrictions are disregarded, the party aggrieved may have a remedy by prohibition. Id.

5714. Justice courts, where held—Always open—Jurisdiction.

SEC. 772. The courts held by justices of the peace are denominated justices' courts. They shall have no terms, but shall always be open. Justices' courts shall be held in their respective townships, precincts or cities. Justices' courts shall have jurisdiction of the following actions and proceedings:

1. In actions arising on contract for the recovery of money only, if the sum claimed, exclusive of interest, does not exceed three hundred dollars.

2. In actions for damages for injury to the person, or for taking, detaining, or injuring personal property, or for injury to real property where no issue is raised by the verified answer of the defendant involving the title to or possession of the same, if the damage claimed does not exceed three hundred dollars.

3. In actions for a fine, penalty, or forfeiture, not exceeding three hundred dollars, given by statute, or the ordinance of an incorporated or unincorporated city where no issue is raised by the answer involving the legality of any tax, impost, assessment, toll, or municipal fine.

4. In actions upon bonds or undertakings conditioned for the payment of money, if the sum claimed does not exceed three hundred dollars, though the penalty may exceed that sum.

5. In actions upon bonds or undertakings conditioned for the payment of money, if the sum claimed does not exceed three hundred dollars.

6. In actions to recover the possession of personal property if the value of such property does not exceed three hundred dollars.

7. To take and enter judgment on the confession of a defendant, when the amount confessed, exclusive of interest, does not exceed three hundred dollars.

8. Of actions for the possession of lands and tenements where the relation of landlord and tenant exists.

9. Of actions when the possession of lands and tenements has been unlawfully or fraudulently obtained or withheld, in which case the proceedings shall be as prescribed by the acts upon that subject.

10. Of suits for the collection of taxes, where the amount of the tax sued for does not exceed three hundred dollars.

11. Concurrent jurisdiction with the district courts of actions for the enforcement of mechanics' liens, where the amount of the lien sought to be enforced, exclusive of interest, does not exceed three hundred dollars.

The jurisdiction conferred by this section shall not extend to civil actions, in which the title of real property or mining claims, or questions affecting the boundaries of land, are involved; and if questions of title to real property be involved, cases involving such questions shall be disposed of as hereinafter provided in this act. As amended, Stats. 1913, §59.

Under Const. art. 6, secs. 6-8, this section, and Rev. Laws, 4726, a justice's court has jurisdiction in actions at law brought by the guardian of a minor where the amount involved does not exceed $300. Killgrove v. Morriss, 39 Nev. 224, 226 (156 P. 686).

Cited, State ex rel. Allen Clark Co. v. Pacific Wall Paper Co., 41 Nev. 502 (172 P. 380).

Held, that the words "sum involved" mean the sum involved in the several liens embraced in a suit, and that a justice's court had no jurisdiction in an action to foreclose mechanic's liens, where the total amount of the liens exceeds $300, notwithstanding each of the liens is for a less amount. Phillips v. Snowden Placer Co., 40 Nev. 66, 72, 86, 87 (160 P. 786).

5721. Under this section it was held that, where the issue involved the legality of a tax and the constitutionality of the ordinance imposing the tax, a municipal court had no jurisdiction, and was bound to transfer the proceedings to the district court. In Re Dixon, 40 Nev. 228, 235, 238, 240 (161 P. 737).

In such case, where defendant challenged the legality of the tax or questioned the constitutionality of the ordinance in the municipal court, that court was ousted of jurisdiction and should have certified the pleading to the district court. Id.

5722. On certiorari to review a judgment of the justice court because of a defect in the summons, the judgment should be vacated where the docket of the justice did not affirmatively show a sufficient service of summons. Wong Kee v. Lillis, 37 Nev. 5, 7 (138 P. 900).

Facts essential to establish the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace must affirmatively appear. A recital in a justice's docket that summons was "duly served" or that the attorney "came into court and made return on summons as by law provided," is insufficient. Id.

Where the summons issued out of justice court and served upon defendant was not signed by the justice, it is voidable, and may be set aside on appropriate motion. Id.

Under this section, personal service upon a nonresident defendant made by a nonresident whose affidavit recited that he was over the age of 18 years was ineffectual, and could not give the justice court jurisdiction to render judgment. Lawson v. Dunseath, 41 Nev. 321, 324, 326, 327 (170 P. 19).

5723. See Lawson v. Dunseath, 41 Nev. 321, under section 5732.

5727. Summons, how issued, directed, and what to contain.

SEC. 785. The summons shall be substantially in the following form: In the justice's court of.....township of.....county, State of Nevada. A. B., plaintiff, vs. C. D., defendant. Summons. The State of Nevada sends greeting to said defendant: You are hereby summoned to appear before the undersigned at his office in said township within five days after service upon you of this summons, if served in the township or city in which the action is brought, or within ten days if served out of the said township or city, but within said county, or within twenty days if served elsewhere, exclusive of the day of service, and defend the above-entitled action.

Dated..... Justice of the Peace.

When service of the summons is made by publication, the summons shall also contain a concise statement of the facts constituting the plaintiff's cause of action. If the plaintiff appears by attorney, the name of the attorney must be endorsed upon the summons. As amended, Stats. 1919, 53.

See Wong Kee v. Lillis, 37 Nev. 5, under section 5722.

See Lawson v. Dunseath, 41 Nev. 321, under section 5732.

5728. Time for appearance of defendant.

SEC. 786. The time specified in the summons for the appearance of the defendant must be as follows:

1. If an order of arrest be endorsed upon the summons, forthwith.

2. In all other cases, the summons must contain a direction that the defendant must appear and defend the action within five days, if the summons be served in the township, or city, in which the action is brought; within ten days, if served out of township, or city, but in the county in which the action, is brought, and within twenty days, if served elsewhere. As amended, Stats. 1919, 54.

Similar section (Comp. Laws, 3612) cited. Sherwin v. Sherwin, 33 Nev. 324, 326, 329 (111 P. 286; 122 P. 481; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 108).

5731. Summons, may be served out of county.

SEC. 789. The summons may be served out of the county in which the action is brought. As amended, Stats. 1913, 360.

5732. Summons, by whom and how served.

SEC. 790. The summons may be served by a sheriff or constable of any of the counties of this state, or by any other person of the age of twenty-one years or over, not a party to the action, and said summons must be served and returned, as provided in chapter 8 of this act, or it may be served by publication; and sections 84 to 88, both inclusive, of this act, so far as they relate to the publication of summons, are made applicable to justices' courts, the word "justice" being substituted for the word "judge"; the word "twenty" for the word "forty," and the word "four" for the word "six," wherever the same occur respectively; provided, that service of summons may be made upon the resident agent of any corporation doing business in this state, subject to the provisions of this act. As amended, Stats. 1913, 360.

Under this section, personal service upon a nonresident defendant made by a nonresident whose affidavit recited that he was over the age of 18 years was ineffectual, and could not give the justice court jurisdiction to render judgment. Lawson v. Dunseath, 41 Nev. 321, 324, 327 (170 P. 19).

Under this section as amended by Stats. 1913, 360, it was held: A judgment of a justice of the peace against defendants will be held void on certiorari, the records or files of the case not affirmatively showing summons was served or that defendants appeared, nothing being assumed in favor of courts of limited jurisdiction and it not being permissible to consider affidavits that summons was in fact served. State ex rel. Jones v. Bonner, 43 Nev. — (181 P. 586).

5734. Similar section (Gen. Stats. 3352) cited, State ex rel. Pacific Reclamation Co. v. Ducker, 35 Nev. 220 (127 P. 990).

The same technical pleadings are not required in a civil action in the justice's court as is required in a criminal complaint, or in pleadings in the district courts. State ex rel. Guttery v. Langan, 36 Nev. 577, 582 (137 P. 517).

5744. Order of arrest, and arrest of defendant.

SEC. 802. An order to arrest the defendant may be endorsed on a summons issued by the justice, and the defendant may be arrested thereon by the sheriff or constable, at the time of serving the summons, and brought before the justice, and there detained until duly discharged, in the following cases:

1. In an action for the recovery of money or damages on a cause of action arising upon contract, express or implied, when the defendant is about to depart from the state, with intent to defraud his creditors.

2. In an action for a fine or penalty, or for money or property embezzled or fraudulently misapplied, or converted to his own use by one who received it in a fiduciary capacity.

3. When the defendant has been guilty of a fraud in contracting the debts or incurring the obligation for which the action is brought.

4. When the defendant has removed, concealed, or disposed of his property, or is about to do so, with intent to defraud his creditors. As amended, Stats. 1913, 364.

5749. Attachment must issue on affidavit.

SEC. 807. A writ to attach the property of the defendant must be issued by the justice at the time of, or after, issuing summons, on receiving an affidavit by or on behalf of the plaintiff, showing the same facts as are required to be shown by the affidavit specified in section 206. As amended, Stats. 1915, 303.

5752. Certain provisions apply to attachments in justices' courts.

SEC. 810. The sections of this act from section 209 to 226, both inclusive, are applicable to attachments issued in justices' courts, the word "constable" being substituted for the word "sheriff," whenever the writ is directed to a constable, and the word "justice" being substituted for the word "judge." As amended, Stats. 1913, 365.

5754. Relator's special appearance challenging the jurisdiction of the justice court was not affected by the provisions of Rev. Laws, 5236, and therefore was not an answer. Regan v. King, 39 Nev. 216, 217, 220 (156 P. 688).

Under this section, where the defendant appeared specially and filed a motion to dismiss the complaint, but did not answer, the justice did not exceed his jurisdiction in entering a default against the defendant and denying him time to answer after the time prescribed by law had expired. Id.

5778. Cost must be included in judgment—Cost bill.

SEC. 836. The justice must tax and include in the judgment the costs allowed by law to the prevailing party. The party in whose favor judgment is rendered and who claims his costs must deliver to the justice, and serve a copy upon the adverse party, within two days after the verdict or notice of the decision of the justice, or such further time as may be granted, a memorandum of the items of his costs and necessary disbursements in the action, which memorandum must be verified by the oath of the party or his attorney or agent, or by the clerk of his attorney, stating that to the best of his knowledge and belief the items are correct and that the disbursements have been necessarily incurred in the action. He shall be entitled to recover the witness fees, although at the time he may not have actually paid them. It shall not be necessary to embody in the memorandum the fees of the justice, but the justice shall add the same according to his fees, fixed by statute. Within two days after service of a copy of the memorandum, the adverse party may move the court, upon two days' notice, to relax and settle the costs, a copy of which notice of motion shall be filed and served upon the prevailing party claiming costs, and thereupon the justice shall settle the costs. If the judgment is entered by default it shall not be necessary to make service of a copy of the cost bill. As amended, Stats. 1913, 365.

5786. Execution, how levied—Proviso.

SEC. 844. The sheriff or constable to whom execution is directed must execute the same in the same manner as the sheriff is required by the provisions of chapter 42 of this act to proceed upon executions directed to to him; and the constable, when the execution is directed to him, is vested for that purpose with all the powers of the sheriff. The sheriff or constable to whom the execution is directed must execute the same in the same manner as the sheriff is required by the provisions of chapter 42 of this act to proceed upon executions directed to him, and the constable to whom the writ is given, and his successor in office, shall have all the powers and be subject to all the duties and liabilities therein given and imposed upon the sheriff; provided, that the sales of real property shall be made at the front door of the office of the justice of the peace; or if the sale be of real property in a county other than the one in which the judgment was rendered, the sale shall be at the front door of the office of the justice of the peace of the county in which the property is situated, nearest the property. As amended, Stats. 1913, 365.

5787. Certain chapters apply to justice courts.

SEC. 845. The provisions of chapters 42 and 43 of this act are applicable to justices' courts, the word "justice" being inserted in lieu of the words "judge" and "clerk" whenever they occur, and the word "constable" being substituted to that end for the word "sheriff." As amended, Stats. 1913, 366.

5792. Similar section (Cutting, 3699) cited, Konig v. Nevada-California-Oregon Railway Co., 36 Nev. 197 (135 P. 141).

Under statute (Comp. Laws, 3679) similar to this, it was held that a deposit with a justice of a sum equal to the amount of the judgment appealed from, including costs, is equivalent to the filing of an undertaking for the payment of the costs on appeal. Whether such deposit is sufficient to also stay execution, not determined. Floyd v. District Court, 36 Nev. 349, 356, 357 (135 P. 922).

Under this section, held that the justification of the sureties in the prescribed manner is essential to the district court's jurisdiction, where their sufficiency was properly challenged. Yowell v. District Court, 39 Nev. 423, 428-431 (159 P. 632).

Where the sureties' sufficiency is not excepted to within five days, as required by this section, the district court acquires jurisdiction, notwithstanding that two days later the appellant admits due service of such exceptions before the justice has certified the case. Id.

5793. Similar section (Cutting, 3699) cited, Konig v. Nevada-California-Oregon Ry. Co., 36 Nev. 197 (135 P. 141).

5812. Justices may require security for cost.

SEC. 870. The justice may in all cases require a deposit of money to cover cost of court before issuing the summons; provided, that when the plaintiff in an action is a nonresident of the State of Nevada, or a foreign corporation, upon motion of the opposite party at any time before final judgment such nonresident shall be required to give security for all costs and charges that may be awarded against him or it. When such security shall be required from a nonresident plaintiff all proceedings in the action shall be stayed until an undertaking executed by two or more persons and approved by the justice shall be filed with the justice to the effect that they will pay such costs and charges as may be awarded against such nonresident plaintiff by judgment or during the progress of the action. And such undertaking shall be in a sum not less than one hundred ($100) dollars, or in lieu of such undertaking such nonresident plaintiff may deposit one hundred ($100) dollars in lawful money of the United States with such justice, which shall be held subject to the conditions herein mentioned for the undertaking. When such security shall be ordered from a nonresident plaintiff, it shall be furnished within thirty days from notice of such order, or upon failure to furnish such security, judgment shall be entered for the defendant. A new or additional undertaking or deposit of cash may be ordered by the justice at any time upon proof that the original undertaking or deposit is insufficient and proceedings stayed for a nonresident plaintiff until the same be furnished or judgment entered against a nonresident defendant who shall fail to furnish the same within thirty days from notice of such order. After the lapse of thirty days from notice to a nonresident plaintiff that security has been ordered as required in this act and upon proof that no such undertaking or deposit of cash has been made, the justice shall enter judgment against such plaintiff. As amended, Stats. 1917, 424.

5815. Under this section it was held that relator's special appearance challenging the jurisdiction of the justice court was not affected by the provisions of Rev. Laws, 5326, and therefore was not an answer. Regan v. King, 39 Nev. 216, 220 (156 P. 688).

5817. Cited, Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 215 (161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064).

5818. Under this section it was held that the action of a trial court in calling a jury in condemnation proceedings was justified; since the general rule against the retrospective construction of a statute does not apply to statute relating only to remedies. Truckee River G. E. Co. v. Durham, 38 Nev. 311, 316 (149 P. 61).

5838. Divorce, how obtained—Causes for divorce.

SEC. 22. Divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be obtained, by complaint under oath, to the district court of the county in which the cause therefor shall have accrued, or in which the defendant shall reside or be found, or in which the plaintiff shall reside, if the latter be either the county in which the parties last cohabited, or in which the plaintiff shall have resided six months before suit be brought, for the following causes:

First—Impotency at the time of the marriage continuing to the time of the divorce.

Second—Adultery, since the marriage, remaining unforgiven.

Third—Wilful desertion, at any time, of either party by the other, for the period of one year.

Fourth—Conviction of felony or infamous crime.

Fifth—Habitual gross drunkenness contracted since marriage of either party, which shall incapacitate such party from contributing his or her share to the support of the family.

Sixth—Extreme cruelty in either party.

Seventh—Neglect of the husband, for the period of one year, to provide the common necessities of life, when such neglect is not the result of poverty on the part of the husband, which he could not avoid by ordinary industry.

SEC. 2. All acts or parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed. As amended, Stats. 1913, 10; 1915, 26.

Not to affect certain actions.

SEC. 4. This act shall in no manner apply to, affect or invalidate any action for divorce commenced or pending in any court before January 1, 1914, but all such actions shall be heard and determined upon the provisions of law now existing. Added, Stats. 1913, 159.

Actual living in the county by plaintiff for the six months is necessary to give the court jurisdiction under this section. "Resided" means permanency as well as continuity. Actual residence is the place of actual abode; of physical presence—the abiding-place. Legal residence may be merely ideal, but actual residence must be substantial. Where residence is made the basis of jurisdiction, parties who seek to invoke the power of the court to relieve them from the marriage tie must bring themselves clearly and affirmatively within the jurisdiction of the court. Fleming v. Fleming, 36 Nev. 135-141 (134 P. 445).

Under this section a complaint alleging that the plaintiff is a resident of a certain county within this state and that the defendant "is now within and can be found in such county" alleges facts sufficient to invest the court with jurisdiction. Tiedemann v. Tiedemann, 36 Nev. 495, 497, 500, 501, 503 (137 P. 824).

Under this section a six-months' residence is essential only when the plaintiff relies alone on his or her residence. Rev. Laws, 3609, only affects the character of residence where a residence is essential to jurisdiction. Id.

"Found," as used in this section, is used in the same sense that it is used in other provisions of the civil practice act relative to the service of process, and means the county in which service of summons may be had personally upon the defendant. Id.

The act of February 15, 1875 (Stats. 1875, 63) entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act relating to marriage and divorce,' approved November 28, 1861," and containing only three sections, purports, by section 1, to amend section 22 of the original act by reenacting the section as changed. Sections 2 and 3 are the ordinary repeal of inconsistent laws, and a provision as to when it shall take effect. The act of February 20, 1913 (Stats. 1913, 10) entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to amend an act relating to marriage and divorce,' approved November 28, 1861," purports to amend "section 22" by reenacting it with the changes effected by the amendment and repealing conflicting acts. Held that, in view of Const. art. 4, sec. 19, providing that no law shall be revised or amended by reference, but the act or section as amended shall be reenacted and published, the act of 1875 did not repeal section 22 of the original act, and the act of 1913 was not void as attempting to amend section 22, after such repeal, but the unchanged part of the section as originally enacted continued in force, notwithstanding the amendments so that the title of the act of 1913 is sufficient. Worthington v. District Court, 37 Nev. 212-221, 226 (142 P. 230; Ann. Cas. 1916E, 1097; L. R. A. 1916A, 696).

The provision in the act of February 20, 1913 (Stats. 1913, 10), amending section 22 of the marriage and divorce act of 1861 (Stats. 1861, 94), as amended in 1875 (Stats. 1875, 63), by declaring that when, at the time of the accrual of a cause for divorce, the parties shall not both be bona-fide residents of the state, no court shall grant divorce, unless either party shall have been a bona-fide resident for not less than one year next preceding the commencement of the action, is of general uniform operation throughout the state, and applies the same in every part of the state, and to all persons under similar circumstances, and is not a local or special law within Const. art. 4, sec. 20, prohibiting any local or special law granting a divorce. Id.

The act of February 20, 1913 (Stats. 1913, 10), amending section 22 of the marriage and divorce act of 1861 (Stats. 1861, 94) as amended in 1875 (Stats. 1875, 63), by declaring that when, at the time the cause for divorce accrues, the parties shall not have been bona-fide residents, the court shall not grant a divorce unless either party shall have been a bona-fide resident for not less than a year, provides for a classification of nonresidents at the time of the accrual of the cause of action for divorce, and the classification is reasonable, and does not conflict with the fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution guaranteeing the equal protection of the laws. Id.

The provisions of the act of February 20, 1913 (Stats. 1913, 10), amending section 22 of the marriage and divorce act of 1861 (Stats. 1861, 94), as amended by the act of February 15, 1875 (Stats. 1875, 63), by declaring that the court shall not grant divorce, unless either party shall have been a resident for not less than one year, relates merely to procedure, and not to the cause of action, and applies to cases where the cause of action accrued before the act took effect. Id.

The constitutional prohibition against the impairment of obligation of contracts does not apply to divorces, which are under the control of the legislature, and the provision of the above-mentioned act declaring that when, at the time a cause of divorce accrues, the parties are not both residents, the court cannot have jurisdiction, unless either party has been a bona-fide resident for not less than one year, does not impair the obligation of contracts, though it be construed as relating to a cause for divorce. Id.

Under this section, it was held that there was no necessary repugnancy between the provisions of the Revised Laws relating to residence and Stats. 1911, 318; the latter merely adding the requirement of physical presence to the former general requirement of the intention permanently to reside; so that the plaintiff, taking up her residence solely for the purpose of maintaining a divorce action, did not acquire such residence as was necessary to give the court jurisdiction of her suit. Presson v. Presson, 38 Nev. 203-206 (147 P. 1081).

Under this section as amended by Stats. 1915, 26, the complaint of a husband, not alleging his residence in the county, but merely that he is now therein, does not bring his status within the jurisdiction of the court, the matrimonial domicile of the parties being in another state, and the marital offenses complained of being such as might have been determined by the courts of the matrimonial domicile, though the complaint alleges that the defendant can be found in and is a resident of the county, the right of the wife to acquire another domicile separate from him, where their unity is dissolved, not availing him. Aspinwall v. Aspinwall, 40 Nev. 55, 59 (160 P. 253).

At common law, it was a well-founded rule that a woman on her marriage lost her own domicile and acquired that of her husband. Merritt v. Merritt, 40 Nev. 385, 389 (160 P. 22; 164 P. 644).

A wife may acquire and maintain a domicile separate from that of her husband. Id.

A complaint in divorce alleging plaintiff's residence in W. County, that defendant is within the jurisdiction of the court and can be served in W. County, gives the court jurisdiction under this section, giving jurisdiction if defendant can be found in the county. Id.

Evidence held sufficient to establish plaintiff's bona-fide residence within the state, though she admitted she was living at a hotel and owned no property within the state. Id.

When the husband gives up the domicile at one place and establishes another, and in good faith urges his wife to live with him there, her refusal to accept the invitation, if without sufficient reason, amounts to "desertion." Roberson v. Roberson, 41 Nev. 276, 281 (169 P. 333).

In a suit by husband, who was first guilty of desertion, for divorce on the ground of desertion of the wife, evidence held insufficient to show that the husband's invitation to the wife to come and live with him was made in good faith. Id.

Under this section, a district court has jurisdiction to grant divorce for extreme cruelty and desertion to a husband resident in the county for a year, though the acts complained of all occurred in another state, under whose statutes there was no cause of action for divorce on those grounds, since the law of the forum controls, it being the legislative intent that the district court have jurisdiction to determine the marriage status of parties whose residential qualifications meet the requirements of the statute, regardless of where the cause of action may have arisen; marriage, though a civil contract, constituting an exception to the rule of lex loci contractus. Blakeslee v. Blakeslee, 41 Nev. 235, 242 (168 P. 950).

In a suit to set aside a divorce decree, a complaint alleging that the decree was void, because plaintiff therein was not a bona-fide resident of the county wherein the decree was granted, was insufficient, since under this section as amended by Stats. 1915, 26, relating to jurisdiction of divorce actions, jurisdiction might have been obtained on another ground than that of the residence of the plaintiff, and it was not alleged that jurisdiction was not dependent on such other grounds. Wade v. Wade, 41 Nev. 533, 535 (173 P. 553).

5841. See Schmitt v. Jensen, 37 Nev. 150, under section 5840.

The power of the court given by this section to make such disposition of the property of the parties as shall appear just and equitable in granting a decree of divorce, is limited by Const. art 4, sec. 21, Stats. 1864–65, 239, and Stats. 1873, 193, determining the property rights of husband and wife. Walker v. Walker, 41 Nev. 4, 8, 9, 10 (164 P. 653).

Under the above authorities the dissolution of the marriage does not of itself operate to change the property rights. Id.

Rev. Laws, 2166, determines the rights of the parties to the community property on dissolution of the marriage, though the earlier statute, empowering the court to dispose of property on granting a divorce, has not been amended or repealed in terms. Id.

The declaration of Rev. Laws, 2172, that neither husband nor wife has any interest in the property of the other, is subject to the exceptions of Rev. Laws, 2173, and under the latter provision one spouse may acquire an interest, legal or equitable, in the separate property of the other which the court, in granting a divorce, can protect under this section. Id.

Where a husband, whose wife was granted a divorce for his misconduct, had settled on her at the time of the marriage property of the value previously agreed on, which had in the meantime enormously increased in value, and which left the husband without property of his own, the court can, under this section, protect any equity of the husband in such property notwithstanding his guilt, which is only one of the factors to be considered in determining the property rights. Id.

In consideration of this section, Stats. 1864–65, 239, sec. 12 (Rev. Laws, 2166, 2188, 5841, and 5843), it was held in view of another section of the same act appearing as Rev. Laws, 5843, and declaring that when marriage shall be dissolved by the husband being sentenced to imprisonment and when a divorce shall be ordered for the cause of adultery committed by the husband, the wife shall be entitled to the same proportion of his lands and property as if he were dead; but in other cases the court shall set apart such portion for her support and the support of their children that shall be deemed just, and, as the act of 1861 was passed before the creation of community property, effect cannot be given to it, particularly in view of the construction by the California courts of the later statutes, which must be deemed to have been adopted when the statutes were adopted from that state; hence decree of divorce in favor of the husband for desertion does not, though there was no adjudication as to property rights, deprive the wife of her rights in the community property. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 757, 762–766, 769.

5843. Disposition of property—Rule when wife obtains decree on ground of imprisonment or adultery of husband — Alimony pendente lite—Procedure—Orders.

SEC. 27. When the marriage shall be dissolved by the husband being sentenced to imprisonment, and when a divorce shall be ordered for the cause of adultery committed by the husband, the wife shall be entitled to the same proportion of his lands and property as if he were dead; but in other cases the court may set apart such portion for her support, and the support of their children, as shall be deemed just and equitable. In the event of the remarriage of the wife, and there being issue of the former marriage, the court in which the divorce was granted may, on proper showing for cause, enter an order that the alimony previously awarded, or part thereof, be paid as ordered by the court for the benefit of the minor children. In any suit for divorce now pending, or which may hereafter be commenced, the court or judge may, in its discretion, upon application, of which due notice shall have been given to the husband or his attorney, at any time after the filing of the complaint, require the husband to pay such sums as may be necessary to enable the wife to carry on or defend such suit, and for her support and for the support of the children of the parties during the pendency of such suit; and the court or judge may direct the application of specific property of the husband to such object, and may also direct the payment to the wife for such purpose of any sum or sums that may be due and owing the husband from any quarter, and may enforce all orders made in this behalf, as provided in section 24 of this act. As amended, Stats. 1915, 324.

Under this section it was held that, though alimony cannot be allowed if the marriage in fact be void, the district court has jurisdiction to award temporary alimony. Poupart v. District Court, 34 Nev. 336, 339 (123 P. 769).

Despite this section, where a divorce decree provides for installment payments of alimony and for support of child, the former wife cannot, nearly three years after judgment, and after husband's death, revive cause, and, under guise of making his representatives parties defendant, retry issue of alimony and child's support and recover judgment for lump sum instead of monthly payments, and declare it a prior lien upon husband's estate, a judgment entirely different from the original judgment. Sweeney v. Sweeney, 42 Nev. 432, 439 (179 P. 638, 640).

In consideration of this section, Stats. 1864-65, 239, sec. 12 (Rev. Laws, 2166, 2188, 5841, and 5843), it was held in view of another section of the same act appearing as Rev. Laws, 5843, and declaring that when marriage shall be dissolved by the husband being sentenced to imprisonment and when a divorce shall be ordered for the cause of adultery committed by the husband, the wife shall be entitled to the same proportion of his lands and property as if he were dead; but in other cases the court shall set apart such portion for her support and the support of their children that shall be deemed just, and, as the act of 1861 was passed before the creation of community property, effect cannot be given to it, particularly in view of the construction by the California courts of the later statutes, which must be deemed to have been adopted when the statutes were adopted from that state; hence decree of divorce in favor of the husband for desertion does not, though there was no adjudication as to property rights, deprive the wife of her rights in the community property. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 757, 764.

SEPARATE MAINTENANCE

An Act providing, in certain cases, for actions for separate maintenance by the wife against her husband, permitting suitable allowances for the prosecution of the action and for the support and custody of the children and establishing the remedies, procedure and venue in such actions.

Approved March 13, 1913, 120

Wife may recover for support of herself and children.

SECTION 1. When the wife has any cause of action for divorce against her husband, or when she has been deserted by him and such desertion has continued for the space of ninety days, she may, without applying for a divorce, maintain in the district court, an action against her husband for permanent support and maintenance of herself or of herself and of her child or children.

Court may require husband to pay expense.

SEC. 2. During the pendency of such action, the court may, in its discretion, require the husband to pay any money necessary for the prosecution of the action and for the support and maintenance of the wife or of the wife and of her child or children.

Power of court.

SEC. 3. In any such action the court may assign and decree to the wife the possession of any real or personal property of the husband and may order or decree the payment of a fixed sum of money for the support of the wife or for the support of the wife and of her child or children and provide that the payment of the same be secured upon real estate, or other security may be required, or any other suitable provision may be made; payments to be made at such times and in such manner as to the court may seem proper. And the court shall have power to change, modify or revoke its orders and decrees from time to time. No order or decree shall be effective beyond the joint lives of the husband and wife.

Husband may be enjoined.

SEC. 4. At any time after the filing of the complaint the wife may file a notice of pendency of the action in the office of the county recorder of any county in which the husband may have real property, which shall have the same effect as such notice in actions directly affecting real property. The court may also enjoin the husband from disposing of any property during the pendency of the action.

Preliminary and final orders.

SEC. 5. The court in such actions may make such preliminary and final orders as it may deem proper for the custody, control and support of any minor child or children of the parties.

Orders may be enforced—Receiver, when.

SEC. 6. The final judgment and any order or orders made before or after judgment may be enforced by the court by such order or orders as in its discretion it may from time to time deem necessary; a receiver may be appointed, security may be required, execution may issue, under which real or personal property of the husband may be sold as under execution in other cases, and disobedience of any order or orders may be punished as a contempt.

Procedure same as for divorce.

SEC. 7. In all cases commenced hereunder, the proceedings and practice shall be the same, as nearly as may be, as is now or hereafter may be provided in actions for divorce; and suit may be brought, at the option of the wife, either in the county in which the wife shall reside, at the time the suit is commenced, or in the county in which the husband may be found.

5894. Who entitled to letters of administration—Precedence.

SEC. 38. Administration of the estate of a person dying intestate shall be granted to some one or more of the persons hereinafter mentioned, and they shall be respectively entitled in the following order:

First—The surviving husband or wife, or such person as he or she may request to have appointed.

Second—The children.

Third—The father, or the mother.

Fourth—The brother.

Fifth—The sister.

Sixth—The grandchildren.

Seventh—Any other of the kindred entitled to share in the distribution of the estate.

Eighth—The creditors.

Ninth—The public administrator.

Tenth—Any of the kindred not above enumerated, within the fourth degree of consanguinity.

Eleventh—Any person or persons legally competent. As amended, Stats. 1913, 28; 1917, 355.

5910. Executor and administrator to take oath—Form of—Filed and recorded—Certified copies of records and papers have force of originals.

SEC. 54. Before letters testamentary or of administration shall be issued to the executor or administrator he shall take and subscribe an oath or affirmation before an officer authorized to administer oaths that he will perform, according to law, the duties of executor or administrator; said oath shall be filed and recorded by the clerk. All duly certified copies of any record or paper in matters of estates shall have the same force and effect in all cases whatsoever as the original papers would have. As amended, Stats. 1919, 31.

5911. Under this section, the relationship of trustees and cestui que trust between the executor and administrators and the heirs is not created in so far as the same might apply to the realty of an estate, so that the rule that a statute of limitations running against a trustee holding the legal title to realty runs also against cestui does not apply. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 172, 213 (161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064).

5943. Appraisement, how made—Compensation of appraisers limited—Inventory, what to include.

SEC. 87. For the purpose of making the appraisement, the court or judge shall appoint not more than three disinterested persons who shall be entitled to a reasonable compensation for their services, to be allowed by the court. This compensation as allowed shall be in the form of a bill of items for their services, including all necessary disbursements, which shall be sworn to by them, and filed at the same time as the inventory. The compensation shall not exceed five dollars per day each, and may be paid out of the estate at any time. The inventory shall include all the estate of the deceased wherever situated; provided, that where any estate consists of money, deposits in banks, bonds, policies of life insurance or securities for money or evidence of indebtedness, when the same is equal in value to money, the court or judge shall not appoint appraisers, but shall record the value of the same in the minutes of the court. As amended, Stats. 1919, 54.

5950. Under the statutory provisions and procedure relative to the estates of decedents the title to real estate vests in the heirs and devisees at the moment of the death of the testator or intestate, subject only to the right of possession of the executor or administrator under this section, for the payment of the debts and expenses of administration, with the right in the administrator to possession until the estate is settled or delivered over to the parties entitled by the order of the probate court. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 172, 208 (161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064).

5957. Under Stats. 1897, 119, similar to this section, construed with other statutes, it was held that a widow cannot have set aside to her as a homestead land which was her husband's separate property at his death, and had not been declared on as a homestead; there being other heirs. In Re Cook's Estate, 34 Nev. 218, 235, 238 (117 P. 27).

5958. Cited, Guisti v. Guisti, 41 Nev. 355 (171 P. 161).

A claim which is to be paid at a future date, and is so contingent that it is uncertain whether or not any demand will accrue, is not such a claim as is required to be filed within three months after the date of the first publication of notice to creditors under this section. Pruett v. Caddigan, 42 Nev. 329, 333, 334 (176 P. 788).

5965. This section contemplates that offsets in favor of the decedent and known to the claimant be credited upon the claim. Hibbard v. Clark, 39 Nev. 230, 233 (156 P. 447).

In a complaint on a rejected claim against decedent's estate, the facts constituting an offset or counterclaim in favor of the estate must be alleged; the general rule of pleading that a complaint need not allege facts constituting an offset or counterclaim being inapplicable by reason of the provisions of this section which contemplates the credit of offsets upon such claims. Id.

5967. See In Re Delaney's Estate, 41 Nev. 384, under section 5963.

5972. The judicial power, authority and duty of the United States district court is wholly independent of state action and cannot directly or indirectly be destroyed, abridged, limited or rendered less efficacious by any state statutes or by any state authority whatever, so that this section and sections 5974 and 5975 could not confer on the district courts of the state a practically exclusive jurisdiction over the property owing deceased party defendant in possession of the United States district court by its receiver and in course of distribution to judgment and other creditors. Johnson v. Johnson, 225 F. 414, 416.

5974. See Johnson v. Johnson, 225 F. 414, under section 5972.

5975. See Johnson v. Johnson, 225 F. 414, under section 5972.

An Act authorizing the sale, lease or option of mines, mining claims or mining property owned or held by estates, and providing for the conveyance thereof.

Approved February 12, 1917, 15

Sale or lease of mining claims or mining property.

SECTION 1. When all or any portion of the estate of any deceased person, or of any ward under guardianship, consists of mines, mining claims or mining property, whether patented or unpatented, or of interests in mines, mining claims, and mining property, the administrator or executor of the estate of such deceased person, or the guardian of the property of the ward, may petition the court having jurisdiction of the estate for leave to lease such mines, mining claims, or mining property, or such interests in mines, mining claims or other mining property, belonging to the estate of the deceased, or to the ward, with an option to the lessee to purchase the same; and if upon the hearing it appears to the satisfaction of the court that it is for the best interest of the estate or of the ward, the court may make an order authorizing the administrator, executor or guardian to lease all or any portion of such mines, mining claims or other mining property, or all, or any portion, of the interests therein belonging to the estate or to the ward, as he shall designate in the order, and to give an option to the lessee to purchase the same within a specified time at a stipulated price; and when such order has been made, the executor, administrator, or guardian may lease the property or the interests in the property specified in said order, and give the lessee an option to purchase the same within the time, at the price, and on the terms specified in the order.

When deed may be executed.

SEC. 2. If the lessee complies with the terms of the lease and accepts the option and tenders the stipulated price, he shall be entitled to a deed to be executed and delivered by the administrator, executor or guardian in the name of the interested heirs or wards for the mines, mining claims or other mining property, or the aforesaid interest therein upon which the option was given, and title shall pass upon execution and delivery of such deed acknowledging payment of such price without further order by the court.

6022. Under Cutting, 2951, similar to this, an action for damages caused by wrongful ejection of a passenger from a train, where the passenger had paid his fare and received a ticket, is a transitory action upon a contract which may be continued by the administratrix of the plaintiff after his death. Forrester v. Southern Pacific Company, 36 Nev. 247, 265 (134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1).

6041. See In Re Delaney's Estate, 41 Nev. 384, under section 5963.

6052. It is within the power of the state to determine the order in which debts of an estate shall be paid; therefore federal courts must give effect to this section declaring priorities. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 758, 767, 769.

Under this section it was held that, as the term "debt," used in the statute, signifies no more than a sum of money owing on a contract, express or implied, only the profits of the community estate converted by the husband can be deemed debts, but the husband must be treated as trustee of the wife's interest in the community property, and as to such she takes priority over creditors who reduced their debts to judgment during the husband's lifetime, while as to the debt for the profits withheld she does not. Id.

6057. The obligation of a surety on a guardian's bond, being a subsisting one, is not a "contingent claim" referred to in this section, providing for the payment into court of amount that would be payable if the whole were established as absolute. Pruett v. Caddigan, 42 Nev. 329, 335, 336 (176 P. 787).

6089. It cannot be said that Rev. Laws, 5329, was intended to cover the whole subject as to appeals so as to make it operate to repeal all other statutes on the subject including Rev. Laws, 4833; Rev. Laws, 4564, this section and Rev. Laws, 6112 and 6113, providing for appeals and certain other orders. State ex rel. Pacific Reclamation Co. v. Ducker, 35 Nev. 214, 223 (127 P. 990).

6112. See State ex rel. Pacific Reclamation Co. v. Ducker, 35 Nev. 214, under section 6089.

Where a petition is presented in the district court for removal of an administrator, setting up his alleged wrongful acts, and, after hearing both petitioner and respondent, decision was rendered dismissing the petition, such action was not reviewable by mandamus since the court exercised jurisdiction and discretion in hearing and deciding the case and petitioner had a plain, speedy and adequate remedy at law by appeal from such decision under this section. State ex rel. Freyesleben v. District Court, 40 Nev. 163, 169 (161 P. 510).

6116. Descent and distribution—When to escheat.

SEC. 259. When any person having title to any estate, not otherwise limited by marriage contract, shall die intestate as to such estate, it shall descend and be distributed, subject to the payment of his or her debts, in the following manner:

First—If there be a surviving husband or wife, and only one child, or the lawful issue of one child, one-half to the surviving husband or wife, and one-half to such child or issue of such child. If there be a surviving husband or wife and more than one child living, or one child living and the lawful issue of one or more deceased children, one-third to the surviving husband or wife, and the remainder in equal shares to his or her children, and to the lawful issue of any deceased child by right of representation. If there be no child of the intestate living at his or her death, the remainder shall go to all of his or her lineal descendants, and if all of the said descendants are in the same degree of kindred to the intestate they shall share equally, otherwise they shall take according to the right of representation.

Second—If he or she shall leave no issue, the estate shall go, one-half to the surviving husband or wife, one-fourth to the intestate's father, and one-fourth to the intestate's mother, if both are living; if not, one-half to either the father or mother then living. If he or she shall leave no issue, nor father, nor mother, the whole community property of the intestate shall go to the surviving husband or wife, and one-half of the separate property of the intestate shall go to the surviving husband or wife, and the other half thereof shall go in equal shares to the brothers and sisters of the intestate, and to the children of any deceased brother or sister by right of representation. If he or she shall leave no issue, or husband, or wife, the estate shall go, one-half to the intestate's father and one-half to the intestate's mother, if both are living; if not, the whole estate shall go to either the father or mother then living. If he or she shall leave no issue, father, mother, brother, or sister, or children of any issue, brother or sister, all of the property, both community and separate, of the intestate shall go to the surviving husband or wife.

Third—If there be no issue, nor husband, nor wife, nor father, nor mother, then in equal shares to the brothers and sisters of the intestate, and to the children of any deceased brother or sister by right of representation.

Fourth—If the intestate shall leave no issue, nor husband, nor wife, nor father, nor mother, and no brother or sister living at his or her death, the estate shall go to the next of kin in equal degree, excepting that when there are two or more collateral kindred in equal degree, but claiming through different ancestors, those who claim through the nearest ancestors shall be preferred to those who claim through ancestors more remote; provided, however, if any person shall die leaving several children, or leaving one child and issue of one or more children, and any such surviving child shall die under age and not having been married, all of the estate that came to such deceased child by inheritance from such deceased parent shall descend in equal shares to the other children of the same parent, and to the issue of any such other children who may have died, by right of representation.

Fifth—If at the death of such child, who shall die under age and not having been married, all the other children of this said parent being also dead, and any of them shall have left issue, the estate that came to such child by inheritance from his or her said parent shall descend to all the issue of the other children of the same parent, and if all the said issue are in the same degree of kindred to said child they shall share the said estate equally; otherwise they shall take according to the right of representation.

Sixth—If there be no surviving husband, or wife, or kindred, except a child or children, the estate shall, if there be only one child, all go to that child; and if there be more than one child, the estate shall descend and be distributed to all the intestate's children, share and share alike.

Seventh—If there be no surviving husband, or wife, or kindred, except a child or children and the lawful issue of a child or children, the estate shall descend and be distributed to such child or children and lawful issue of such child or children by right of representation, as follows: To such child or children each a child's part, and to the lawful issue of each deceased child, by right of representation, the same part and proportion that its parent would have received in case such parent had been living at the time of the intestate's death; that is, the lawful issue of any deceased child shall receive the part and proportion that its parent would have received had such parent been living at the time of the intestate's death.

Eighth—If there be no surviving husband, or wife, or kindred, except the lawful issue of a child or children, all of the estate shall descend and be distributed to the lawful issue of such child or children by right of representation, and this rule shall apply to the lawful issue of all such children and to their lawful issue ad infinitum.

Ninth—If the intestate shall leave no husband, nor wife, nor kindred, the estate shall escheat to the state for the support of the common schools. As amended, Stats. 1899, 118; 1901, 44; 1903, 218; 1913, 56; 1915, 149; 1917, 37.

6131. Idem—Duty of attorney-general—To file information—Citation to issue.

SEC. 274. Whenever the attorney-general shall be informed, or shall have reason to believe, that any real or personal estate has become escheatable to this state for the reasons specified in the preceding section, or that any such estate has for any other reason become escheatable, it shall be his duty to file an information in behalf of the state in the district court of the county wherein such estate, or any part thereof, is situated, setting forth a description of the estate, the name of the person last lawfully seized, the name of the terre-tenant and persons claiming such estate, if known, and the facts and circumstances in consequence of which said estate is claimed to have become escheated, and alleging that by reason thereof the State of Nevada has by law right to such estate; whereupon, such court shall order that a citation be issued to such person or persons, bodies politic, or corporate, alleged in such information to hold, possess or claim such estate, requiring them to appear and show cause why such estate should not be vested in the State of Nevada, said citation to be made returnable within the time allowed by law in other civil actions. The court may also, if deemed advisable, order the citation to be published in a newspaper published in said county (if any) and, if none, then in some other newspaper in this state; provided, however, that when the residue remaining of any estate mentioned in the preceding section, after the payment of the costs and expenses of administration and creditors' claims, and other expenses, does not exceed the sum or value of five hundred dollars, the proceedings hereinbefore specified for the escheating of such estate to the State of Nevada shall be dispensed with, and the administrator of such estate, or other legal representative of the deceased, shall, on the order of the court, pay over or deliver such residue to the county treasurer of the county wherein said estate is being probated or is situated, for the benefit of the State of Nevada, and the receipt or certificate of said county treasurer, evidencing such payment or delivery, shall be filed with the clerk of the district court of the county wherein such estate is being probated or is situated, and upon such filing said administrator, or other legal representative of the deceased, shall be released and discharged from all further liability as to such residue, and upon such payment or delivery to him said county treasurer shall notify the attorney-general of the State of Nevada of the same, and shall pay over or deliver such residue to the state treasurer of the State of Nevada, taking his receipt or certificate therefor, and such payment or delivery shall be subject to all of the provisions of this act concerning the recovery of the same from this state by any person or persons found to be entitled thereto. As amended, Stats. 1919, 34.

6153. Idem—Father and mother legal guardian.

SEC. 5. The father and mother, being each competent to transact his or her own business, and not otherwise unsuitable, shall be entitled to the

6154. Idem—Powers and duties of guardian—Lawful age.

SEC. 6. The guardian or guardians appointed as aforesaid shall have the custody and tuition of the minor, and the care and management of the estate, of which appointed, including the earnings of said minor, until such minor shall attain the age of twenty-one years, if a male, or eighteen years, if a female, unless sooner discharged according to law. As amended, Stats. 1913, 27.

6155. Idem—Bond to be given—Sureties—Condition of bond—Letters of guardianship, form of—No bond, when.

SEC. 7. Before the order appointing any person guardian under this act shall take effect, and before letters shall issue, the person or persons so appointed shall take and subscribe the official oath, to be endorsed on the letters, and shall give bond to the minor or minors in such sum as the court may order, with at least two sufficient sureties to be approved by the court or judge, and conditioned that the guardian shall faithfully execute the duties of his or her trust according to law; and the following conditions shall be deemed to form a part of such bond without being expressed therein:

First—To make a full and true inventory of all the estate, real and personal, of the ward, and have the same appraised by three disinterested persons, to be appointed by the court or judge, and to return and file in the clerk's office within twenty days after qualifying such inventory and appraisal under oath.

Second—To manage all such estate according to law and for the best interest of the ward, and to discharge faithfully his or her trust in relation thereto, and also in relation to the care, custody, and education of the ward.

Third—To render under oath a true account of the property, estate and moneys of the ward, and all proceeds or interest derived therefrom, and of the management and disposition of the same, within one year after appointment, and annually thereafter, and at such other time as the court may direct.

Fourth—At the expiration of his trust, to settle his or her final account with the court or with the ward if of legal age, or his or her legal representative, and to pay over all moneys, and deliver all the estate and effects remaining in his or her hands or justly chargeable to the guardian on such settlement, to the person or persons lawfully entitled thereto.

Upon filing such bonds, duly approved by the district judge, and taking the oath of office as aforesaid, the clerk shall issue letters of guardianship to the person or persons appointed. Letters of guardianship may be substantially in the following form: (After properly entitling court and cause.)

WHEREAS, By order of said court herein made and entered on the..... day of....., I,....., was (or were, as the case may be) appointed guardian of the (person and estate, or either, as the case may be) of....., minor; and, whereas, the said..... has (or have, as the case may be) duly qualified according to law, these letters are hereby issued to....., as such guardian. Witness my hand and the seal of said court, this..... day of.....

....., Clerk.

Provided, If a person is appointed in a will to be guardian without bonds, the court may direct letters to issue to such on taking and subscribing the oath of office.

5812. Justices may require security for cost.

SEC. 870. The justice may in all cases require a deposit of money to cover cost of court before issuing the summons; provided, that when the plaintiff in an action is a nonresident of the State of Nevada, or a foreign corporation, upon motion of the opposite party at any time before final judgment such nonresident shall be required to give security for all costs and charges that may be awarded against him or it. When such security shall be required from a nonresident plaintiff all proceedings in the action shall be stayed until an undertaking executed by two or more persons and approved by the justice shall be filed with the justice to the effect that they will pay such costs and charges as may be awarded against such nonresident plaintiff by judgment or during the progress of the action. And such undertaking shall be in a sum not less than one hundred ($100) dollars, or in lieu of such undertaking such nonresident plaintiff may deposit one hundred ($100) dollars in lawful money of the United States with such justice, which shall be held subject to the conditions herein mentioned for the undertaking. When such security shall be ordered from a nonresident plaintiff, it shall be furnished within thirty days from notice of such order, or upon failure to furnish such security, judgment shall be entered for the defendant. A new or additional undertaking or deposit of cash may be ordered by the justice at any time upon proof that the original undertaking or deposit is insufficient and proceedings stayed for a nonresident plaintiff until the same be furnished or judgment entered against a nonresident defendant who shall fail to furnish the same within thirty days from notice of such order. After the lapse of thirty days from notice to a nonresident plaintiff that security has been ordered as required in this act and upon proof that no such undertaking or deposit of cash has been made, the justice shall enter judgment against such plaintiff. As amended, Stats. 1917, 424.

E. Co. v. Durham*, 38 Nev. 311, 316 (149 P. 61).

5838. Divorce, how obtained—Causes for divorce.

SEC. 22. Divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be obtained, by complaint under oath, to the district court of the county in which the cause therefor shall have accrued, or in which the defendant shall reside or be found, or in which the plaintiff shall reside, if the latter be either the county in which the parties last cohabited, or in which the plaintiff shall have resided six months before suit be brought, for the following causes:

First—Impotency at the time of the marriage continuing to the time of the divorce.

Second—Adultery, since the marriage, remaining unforgiven.

Third—Wilful desertion, at any time, of either party by the other, for the period of one year.

Fourth—Conviction of felony or infamous crime.

Fifth—Habitual gross drunkenness contracted since marriage of either party, which shall incapacitate such party from contributing his or her share to the support of the family.

Sixth—Extreme cruelty in either party.

Uniformity of laws.

SEC. 2. This act shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it.

6239. Under the clear provisions of the habeas corpus act (Rev. Laws, 6239, 6241; 6242, 6243, 6245) the warrant of a committing magistrate and the bench warrant under an indictment are not final judgments, nor conclusive, and the judge or court hearing an application for a writ of habeas corpus may take or hear evidence against the warrants and indictment, and may discharge the accused when the magistrate, grand jury, or court have exceeded their jurisdiction, when the process has been issued in a case not allowed by law, or when the party has been committed on a criminal charge without reasonable or probable cause. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 80, 100 (126 P. 655; 129 P. 308).

The warrant of the committing magistrate and the bench warrants issued under the indictment are not final judgments, nor conclusive under the habeas corpus act. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 81, 101 (126 P. 655; 129 P. 308).

Sections 1, 2, 3, Stats. 1913, 300, repealed, Stats. 1915, 193.

Stats. 1915, 36, c. 35. Under this act, a signature to a will by having another aid or steady the hand of the testator, at his request, is valid, if the testator possessed testamentary capacity, was acting under no undue influence, and realized the force and effect of the provisions of the will he was signing. In Re Gordon, 40 Nev. 300, 303 (161 P. 717).

CRIMES AND PUNISHMENTS

6266. The words "gross misdemeanor" do not describe a particular or generic offense, but define simply a general class or grade of offense, determined by the limit fixed by law upon the punishment which may be imposed. Ex Parte Booth, 39 Nev. 193 (154 P. 933; L. R. A. 1916F, 960).

The penalty which a city may prescribe for violation of an ordinance being such that the offense under the definition of this section is a misdemeanor, the supreme court has no jurisdiction of an appeal from conviction thereof, its appellate jurisdiction in criminal cases being by Const. art. 6, sec. 4, limited to felony and it being immaterial that the case was transferred from the police court to the district court because the validity of the tax imposed by the ordinance was attacked; "cases at law" in which is involved the legality of a tax, of which the supreme court is given appellate jurisdiction, not including a criminal case. City of Reno v. Dixon, 42 Nev. 71 (172 P. 367, 368).

6291. Under this section and Rev. Laws, 6642, declaring that carnal knowledge of a female child under 16 is "rape," an indictment alleging that the accused attempted to residents, the court shall not grant a divorce unless either party shall have been a bona-fide resident for not less than a year, provides for a classification of nonresidents at the time of the accrual of the cause of action for divorce, and the classification is reasonable, and does not conflict with the fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution guaranteeing the equal protection of the laws. Id.

The provisions of the act of February 20, 1913 (Stats. 1913, 10), amending section 22 of the marriage and divorce act of 1861 (Stats. 1861, 94), as amended by the act of February 15, 1875 (Stats. 1875, 63), by declaring that the court shall not grant divorce, unless either party shall have been a resident for not less than one year, relates merely to procedure, and not to the cause of action, and applies to cases where the cause of action accrued before the act took effect. Id.

The constitutional prohibition against the impairment of obligation of contracts does not apply to divorces, which are under the control of the legislature, and the provision of the above-mentioned act declaring that when, at the time a cause of divorce accrues, the parties are not both residents, the court cannot have jurisdiction, unless either party has been a bona-fide resident for not less than one year, does not impair the obligation of contracts, though it be construed as relating to a cause for divorce. Id.

Under this section, it was held that there was no necessary repugnancy between the provisions of the Revised Laws relating to residence and Stats. 1911, 318; the latter merely adding the requirement of physical presence to the former general requirement of the intention permanently to reside; so that the plaintiff, taking up her residence solely for the purpose of maintaining a divorce action, did not acquire such residence as was necessary to give the court jurisdiction of her suit. Presson v. Presson, 38 Nev. 203-206 (147 P. 1081).

Under this section as amended by Stats. 1915, 26, the complaint of a husband, not alleging his residence in the county, but merely that he is now therein, does not bring his status within the jurisdiction of the court, the matrimonial domicile of the parties being in another state, and the marital offenses complained of being such as might have been determined by the courts of the matrimonial domicile, though the complaint alleges that the defendant can be found in and is a resident of the county, the right of the wife to acquire another domicile separate from him, where their unity is dissolved, not availing him. Aspinwall v. Aspinwall, 40 Nev. 55, 59 (160 P. 253).

At common law, it was a well-founded rule that a woman on her marriage lost her own domicile and acquired that of her husband. Merritt v. Merritt, 40 Nev. 385, 389 (160 P. 22; 164 P. 644).

A wife may acquire and maintain a domicile separate from that of her husband. Id.

A complaint in divorce alleging plaintiff's residence in W. County, that defendant is within the jurisdiction of the court and can be served in W. County, gives the court jurisdiction under this section, giving jurisdiction if defendant can be found in the county. Id.

Evidence held sufficient to establish plaintiff's bona-fide residence within the state, though she admitted she was living at a hotel and owned no property within the state. Id.

When the husband gives up the domicile at one place and establishes another, and in good faith urges his wife to live with him there, her refusal to accept the invitation, if without sufficient reason, amounts to "desertion." Roberson v. Roberson, 41 Nev. 276, 281 (169 P. 333).

In a suit by husband, who was first guilty of desertion, for divorce on the ground of desertion of the wife, evidence held insufficient to show that the husband's invitation to the wife to come and live with him was made in good faith. Id.

Under this section, a district court has jurisdiction to grant divorce for extreme cruelty and desertion to a husband resident in the county for a year, though the acts complained of all occurred in another state, under whose statutes there was no cause of action for divorce on those grounds, since the law of the forum controls, it being the legislative intent that the district court have jurisdiction to determine the marriage status of parties whose residential qualifications meet the requirements of the statute, regardless of where the cause of action may have arisen; marriage, though a civil contract, constituting an exception to the rule of lex loci contractus. Blakeslee v. Blakeslee, 41 Nev. 235, 242 (168 P. 950).

In a suit to set aside a divorce decree, a complaint alleging that the decree was void, of the action and for the support and maintenance of the wife or of the wife and of her child or children.

Power of court.

SEC. 3. In any such action the court may assign and decree to the wife the possession of any real or personal property of the husband and may order or decree the payment of a fixed sum of money for the support of the wife or for the support of the wife and of her child or children and provide that the payment of the same be secured upon real estate, or other security may be required, or any other suitable provision may be made; payments to be made at such times and in such manner as to the court may seem proper. And the court shall have power to change, modify or revoke its orders and decrees from time to time. No order or decree shall be effective beyond the joint lives of the husband and wife.

Husband may be enjoined.

SEC. 4. At any time after the filing of the complaint the wife may file a notice of pendency of the action in the office of the county recorder of any county in which the husband may have real property, which shall have the same effect as such notice in actions directly affecting real property. The court may also enjoin the husband from disposing of any property during the pendency of the action.

Preliminary and final orders.

SEC. 5. The court in such actions may make such preliminary and final orders as it may deem proper for the custody, control and support of any minor child or children of the parties.

Orders may be enforced—Receiver, when.

SEC. 6. The final judgment and any order or orders made before or after judgment may be enforced by the court by such order or orders as in its discretion it may from time to time deem necessary; a receiver may be appointed, security may be required, execution may issue, under which real or personal property of the husband may be sold as under execution in other cases, and disobedience of any order or orders may be punished as a contempt.

Procedure same as for divorce.

SEC. 7. In all cases commenced hereunder, the proceedings and practice shall be the same, as nearly as may be, as is now or hereafter may be provided in actions for divorce; and suit may be brought, at the option of the wife, either in the county in which the wife shall reside, at the time the suit is commenced, or in the county in which the husband may be found.

5894. Who entitled to letters of administration—Precedence.

SEC. 38. Administration of the estate of a person dying intestate shall be granted to some one or more of the persons hereinafter mentioned, and they shall be respectively entitled in the following order:

First—The surviving husband or wife, or such person as he or she may request to have appointed.

Second—The children.

Third—The father, or the mother.

Fourth—The brother.

Fifth—The sister.

Sixth—The grandchildren.

Seventh—Any other of the kindred entitled to share in the distribution of the estate.

Eighth—The creditors.

Ninth—The public administrator.

Tenth—Any of the kindred not above enumerated, within the fourth degree of consanguinity.

Eleventh—Any person or persons legally competent. As amended, Stats. 1913, 28; 1917, 355.

5910. Executor and administrator to take oath—Form of—Filed and recorded—Certified copies of records and papers have force of originals.

SEC. 54. Before letters testamentary or of administration shall be issued to the executor or administrator he shall take and subscribe an oath or affirmation before an officer authorized to administer oaths that he will perform, according to law, the duties of executor or administrator; said oath shall be filed and recorded by the clerk. All duly certified copies of any record or paper in matters of estates shall have the same force and effect in all cases whatsoever as the original papers would have. As amended, Stats. 1919, 31.

5911. Under this section, the relationship of trustees and cestui que trust between the executor and administrators and the heirs is not created in so far as the same might apply to the realty of an estate, so that the rule that a statute of limitations running against a trustee holding the legal title to realty runs also against cestui does not apply. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 172, 213 (161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064).

5943. Appraisement, how made—Compensation of appraisers limited—Inventory, what to include.

SEC. 87. For the purpose of making the appraisement, the court or judge shall appoint not more than three disinterested persons who shall be entitled to a reasonable compensation for their services, to be allowed by the court. This compensation as allowed shall be in the form of a bill of items for their services, including all necessary disbursements, which shall be sworn to by them, and filed at the same time as the inventory. The compensation shall not exceed five dollars per day each, and may be paid out of the estate at any time. The inventory shall include all the estate of the deceased wherever situated; provided, that where any estate consists of money, deposits in banks, bonds, policies of life insurance or securities for money or evidence of indebtedness, when the same is equal in value to money, the court or judge shall not appoint appraisers, but shall record the value of the same in the minutes of the court. As amended, Stats. 1919, 54.

5950. Under the statutory provisions and procedure relative to the estates of decedents the title to real estate vests in the heirs and devisees at the moment of the death of the testator or intestate, subject only to the right of possession of the executor or administrator under this section, for the payment of the debts and expenses of administration, with the right in the administrator to possession until the estate is settled or delivered over to the parties entitled by the order of the probate court. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 172, 208 (161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064).

5957. Under Stats. 1897, 119, similar to this section, construed with other statutes, it was held that a widow cannot have set aside to her as a homestead land which was her husband's separate property at his death, and had not been declared on as a homestead; there being other heirs. In Re Cook's Estate, 34 Nev. 218, 235, 238 (117 P. 27).

5958. Cited, Guisti v. Guisti, 41 Nev. 355 (171 P. 161).

5963. Under this section and Rev. Laws, 5964, 5967, and 6041, as to the duties of an administrator, expedient administration is required, and where an estate had cash on hand to meet all indebtedness, and everything was present to facilitate a speedy discharge of the trust, but the administrator permitted the estate to drag on for nearly seven years without an accounting and without any attempt to secure an order for expenditure of money, he was guilty of a breach of his duties. In Re Delaney's Estate, 41 Nev. 384, 400 (171 P. 383; L. R. A. 1918D, 1022).

A claim which is to be paid at a future date, and is so contingent that it is uncertain whether or not any demand will accrue, is not such a claim as is required to be filed within three months after the date of the first publication of notice to creditors under this section. Pruett v. Caddigan, 42 Nev. 329, 333, 334 (176 P. 788).

5965. This section contemplates that offsets in favor of the decedent and known to the claimant be credited upon the claim. Hibbard v. Clark, 39 Nev. 230, 233 (156 P. 447).

In a complaint on a rejected claim against decedent's estate, the facts constituting an offset or counterclaim in favor of the estate must be alleged; the general rule of pleading that a complaint need not allege facts constituting an offset or counterclaim being inapplicable by reason of the provisions of this section which contemplates the credit of offsets upon such claims. Id.

5967. See In Re Delaney's Estate, 41 Nev. 384, under section 5963.

5972. The judicial power, authority and duty of the United States district court is wholly independent of state action and cannot directly or indirectly be destroyed, abridged, limited or rendered less efficacious by any state statutes or by any state authority whatever. so that this section and sections 5974 and 5975 could not confer on the district courts of the state a practically exclusive jurisdiction over the property owing deceased party defendant in possession of the United States district court by its receiver and in course of distribution to judgment and other creditors. Johnson v. Johnson, 225 F. 414, 416.

An Act authorizing the sale, lease or option of mines, mining claims or mining property owned or held by estates, and providing for the conveyance thereof.

Approved February 12, 1917, 15

Sale or lease of mining claims or mining property.

SECTION 1. When all or any portion of the estate of any deceased person, or of any ward under guardianship, consists of mines, mining claims or mining property, whether patented or unpatented, or of interests in mines, mining claims, and mining property, the administrator or executor of the estate of such deceased person, or the guardian of the property of the ward, may petition the court having jurisdiction of the estate for leave to lease such mines, mining claims, or mining property, or such interests in mines, mining claims or other mining property, belonging to the estate of the deceased, or to the ward, with an option to the lessee to purchase the same; and if upon the hearing it appears to the satisfaction of the court that it is for the best interest of the estate or of the ward, the court may make an order authorizing the administrator, executor or guardian to lease all or any portion of such mines, mining claims or other mining property, or all, or any portion, of the interests therein belonging to the estate or to the ward, as he shall designate in the order, and to give an option to the lessee to purchase the same within a specified time at a stipulated price; and when such order has been made, the executor, administrator, or guardian may lease the property or the interests in the property specified in said order, and give the lessee an option to purchase the same within the time, at the price, and on the terms specified in the order.

When deed may be executed.

SEC. 2. If the lessee complies with the terms of the lease and accepts the option and tenders the stipulated price, he shall be entitled to a deed to be executed and delivered by the administrator, executor or guardian in the name of the interested heirs or wards for the mines, mining claims or other mining property, or the aforesaid interest therein upon which the option was given, and title shall pass upon execution and delivery of such deed acknowledging payment of such price without further order by the court.

6022. Under Cutting, 2951, similar to this, an action for damages caused by wrongful ejection of a passenger from a train, where the passenger had paid his fare and received a ticket, is a transitory action upon a contract which may be continued by the administratrix of the plaintiff after his death. Forrester v. Southern Pacific Company, 36 Nev. 247, 265 (134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1).

6041. See In Re Delaney's Estate, 41 Nev. 384, under section 5963.

6052. It is within the power of the state to determine the order in which debts of an estate shall be paid; therefore federal courts must give effect to this section declaring priorities. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 758, 767, 769.

Under this section it was held that, as the term "debt," used in the statute, signifies no more than a sum of money owing on a contract, express or implied, only the profits of the community estate converted by the husband can be deemed debts, but the husband must be treated as trustee of the wife's interest in the community property, and as to such she takes priority over creditors who reduced their debts to judgment during the husband's lifetime, while as to the debt for the profits withheld she does not. Id.

6057. The obligation of a surety on a guardian's bond, being a subsisting one, is not a "contingent claim" referred to in this section, providing for the payment into court of amount that would be payable if the whole were established as absolute. Pruett v. Caddigan, 42 Nev. 329, 335, 336 (176 P. 787).

6089. It cannot be said that Rev. Laws, 5329, was intended to cover the whole subject as to appeals so as to make it operate to repeal all other statutes on the subject including Rev. Laws, 4833; Rev. Laws, 4564, this section and Rev. Laws, 6112 and 6113, providing for appeals and certain other orders. State ex rel. Pacific Reclamation Co. v. Ducker, 35 Nev. 214, 223 (127 P. 990).

6112. See State ex rel. Pacific Reclamation Co. v. Ducker, 35 Nev. 214, under section 6089.

Where a petition is presented in the district court for removal of an administrator, setting up his alleged wrongful acts, and, after hearing both petitioner and respondent, decision was rendered dismissing the petition, such action was not reviewable by mandamus since the court exercised jurisdiction and discretion in hearing and deciding the case and petitioner had a plain, speedy and adequate remedy at law by appeal from such decision under this section. State ex rel. Freyesleben v. District Court, 40 Nev. 163, 169 (161 P. 510).

6116. Descent and distribution—When to escheat.

SEC. 259. When any person having title to any estate, not otherwise limited by marriage contract, shall die intestate as to such estate, it shall descend and be distributed, subject to the payment of his or her debts, in the following manner:

First—If there be a surviving husband or wife, and only one child, or the lawful issue of one child, one-half to the surviving husband or wife, and one-half to such child or issue of such child. If there be a surviving husband or wife and more than one child living, or one child living and the lawful issue of one or more deceased children, one-third to the surviving husband or wife, and the remainder in equal shares to his or her children, and to the lawful issue of any deceased child by right of representation. If there be no child of the intestate living at his or her death, the remainder shall go to all of his or her lineal descendants, and if all of the said descendants are in the same degree of kindred to the intestate they shall share equally, otherwise they shall take according to the right of representation.

Second—If he or she shall leave no issue, the estate shall go, one-half to the surviving husband or wife, one-fourth to the intestate's father, and one-fourth to the intestate's mother, if both are living; if not, one-half to either the father or mother then living. If he or she shall leave no issue, nor father, nor mother, the whole community property of the intestate shall go to the surviving husband or wife, and one-half of the separate property of the intestate shall go to the surviving husband or wife, and the other half thereof shall go in equal shares to the brothers and sisters of the intestate, and to the children of any deceased brother or sister by right of representation. If he or she shall leave no issue, or husband, or wife, the estate shall go, one-half to the intestate's father and one-half to the intestate's mother, if both are living; if not, the whole estate shall go to either the father or mother then living. If he or she shall leave no issue, father, mother, brother, or sister, or children of any issue, brother or sister, all of the property, both community and separate, of the intestate shall go to the surviving husband or wife.

Third—If there be no issue, nor husband, nor wife, nor father, nor mother, then in equal shares to the brothers and sisters of the intestate, and to the children of any deceased brother or sister by right of representation.

Fourth—If the intestate shall leave no issue, nor husband, nor wife, nor father, nor mother, and no brother or sister living at his or her death, the estate shall go to the next of kin in equal degree, excepting that when there are two or more collateral kindred in equal degree, but claiming through different ancestors, those who claim through the nearest ancestors shall be preferred to those who claim through ancestors more remote; provided, however, if any person shall die leaving several children, or leaving one child and issue of one or more children, and any such surviving child shall die under age and not having been married, all of the estate that came to such deceased child by inheritance from such deceased parent shall descend in equal shares to the other children of the same parent, and to the issue of any such other children who may have died, by right of representation.

Fifth—If at the death of such child, who shall die under age and not having been married, all the other children of this said parent being also dead, and any of them shall have left issue; the estate that came to such child by inheritance from his or her said parent shall descend to all the issue of the other children of the same parent, and if all the said issue are in the same degree of kindred to said child they shall share the said estate equally; otherwise they shall take according to the right of representation.

Sixth—If there be no surviving husband, or wife, or kindred, except a child or children, the estate shall, if there be only one child, all go to that child; and if there be more than one child, the estate shall descend and be distributed to all the intestate's children, share and share alike.

Seventh—If there be no surviving husband, or wife, or kindred, except a child or children and the lawful issue of a child or children, the estate shall descend and be distributed to such child or children and lawful issue of such child or children by right of representation, as follows: To such child or children each a child's part, and to the lawful issue of each deceased child, by right of representation, the same part and proportion that its parent would have received in case such parent had been living at the time of the intestate's death; that is, the lawful issue of any deceased child shall receive the part and proportion that its parent would have received had such parent been living at the time of the intestate's death.

Eighth—If there be no surviving husband, or wife, or kindred, except the lawful issue of a child or children, all of the estate shall descend and be distributed to the lawful issue of such child or children by right of representation, and this rule shall apply to the lawful issue of all such children and to their lawful issue ad infinitum.

Ninth—If the intestate shall leave no husband, nor wife, nor kindred, the estate shall escheat to the state for the support of the common schools. As amended, Stats. 1899, 113; 1901, 44; 1903, 218; 1913, 56; 1915, 149; 1917, 37.

6131. Idem—Duty of attorney-general—To file information—Citation to issue.

SEC. 274. Whenever the attorney-general shall be informed, or shall have reason to believe, that any real or personal estate has become escheatable to this state for the reasons specified in the preceding section, or that any such estate has for any other reason become escheatable, it shall be his duty to file an information in behalf of the state in the district court of the county wherein such estate, or any part thereof, is situated, setting forth a description of the estate, the name of the person last lawfully seized, the name of the terre-tenant and persons claiming such estate, if known, and the facts and circumstances in consequence of which said estate is claimed to have become escheated, and alleging that by reason thereof the State of Nevada has by law right to such estate; whereupon, such court shall order that a citation be issued to such person or persons, bodies politic, or corporate, alleged in such information to hold, possess or claim such estate, requiring them to appear and show cause why such estate should not be vested in the State of Nevada, said citation to be made returnable within the time allowed by law in other civil actions. The court may also, if deemed advisable, order the citation to be published in a newspaper published in said county (if any) and, if none, then in some other newspaper in this state; provided, however, that when the residue remaining of any estate mentioned in the preceding section, after the payment of the costs and expenses of administration and creditors' claims, and other expenses, does not exceed the sum or value of five hundred dollars, the proceedings hereinbefore specified for the escheating of such estate to the State of Nevada shall be dispensed with, and the administrator of such estate, or other legal representative of the deceased, shall, on the order of the court, pay over or deliver such residue to the county treasurer of the county wherein said estate is being probated or is situated, for the benefit of the State of Nevada, and the receipt or certificate of said county treasurer, evidencing such payment or delivery, shall be filed with the clerk of the district court of the county wherein such estate is being probated or is situated, and upon such filing said administrator, or other legal representative of the deceased, shall be released and discharged from all further liability as to such residue, and upon such payment or delivery to him said county treasurer shall notify the attorney-general of the State of Nevada of the same, and shall pay over or deliver such residue to the state treasurer of the State of Nevada, taking his receipt or certificate therefor, and such payment or delivery shall be subject to all of the provisions of this act concerning the recovery of the same from this state by any person or persons found to be entitled thereto. As amended, Stats. 1919, 34.

6153. Idem—Father and mother legal guardian.

SEC. 5. The father and mother, being each competent to transact his or her own business, and not otherwise unsuitable, shall be entitled to the

6154. Idem—Powers and duties of guardian—Lawful age.

SEC. 6. The guardian or guardians appointed as aforesaid shall have the custody and tuition of the minor, and the care and management of the estate, of which appointed, including the earnings of said minor, until such minor shall attain the age of twenty-one years, if a male, or eighteen years, if a female, unless sooner discharged according to law. As amended, Stats. 1913, 27.

6155. Idem—Bond to be given—Sureties—Condition of bond—Letters of guardianship, form of—No bond, when.

SEC. 7. Before the order appointing any person guardian under this act shall take effect, and before letters shall issue, the person or persons so appointed shall take and subscribe the official oath, to be endorsed on the letters, and shall give bond to the minor or minors in such sum as the court may order, with at least two sufficient sureties to be approved by the court or judge, and conditioned that the guardian shall faithfully execute the duties of his or her trust according to law; and the following conditions shall be deemed to form a part of such bond without being expressed therein:

First—To make a full and true inventory of all the estate, real and personal, of the ward, and have the same appraised by three disinterested persons, to be appointed by the court or judge, and to return and file in the clerk's office within twenty days after qualifying such inventory and appraisement under oath.

Second—To manage all such estate according to law and for the best interest of the ward, and to discharge faithfully his or her trust in relation thereto, and also in relation to the care, custody, and education of the ward.

Third—To render under oath a true account of the property, estate and moneys of the ward, and all proceeds or interest derived therefrom, and of the management and disposition of the same, within one year after appointment, and annually thereafter, and at such other time as the court may direct.

Fourth—At the expiration of his trust, to settle his or her final account with the court or with the ward if of legal age, or his or her legal representative, and to pay over all moneys, and deliver all the estate and effects remaining in his or her hands or justly chargeable to the guardian on such settlement, to the person or persons lawfully entitled thereto.

Upon filing such bonds, duly approved by the district judge, and taking the oath of office as aforesaid, the clerk shall issue letters of guardianship to the person or persons appointed. Letters of guardianship may be substantially in the following form: (After properly entitling court and cause.)

WHEREAS, By order of said court herein made and entered on the _____ day of _____, I, _____, was (or were, as the case may be) appointed guardian of the (person and estate, or either, as the case may be) of _____, minor; and, whereas, the said _____ has (or have, as the case may be) duly qualified according to law, these letters are hereby issued to _____, as such guardian. Witness my hand and the seal of said court, this _____ day of _____.

_____, Clerk.

Provided, If a person is appointed in a will to be guardian without bonds, the court may direct letters to issue to such on taking and subscribing the oath of office.

Provided further, That if there are no assets of said ward no bonds shall be required of the guardian.

Provided further, That where any estate consists of money, bonds, bank deposits, policies of life insurance, or securities for money, or evidence of indebtedness, when the same is equal to money, the court or judge shall not appoint any appraisers, but shall record the value of the same in the order appointing the guardian. As amended, Stats. 1919, 73.

6161. Guardian pendente lite—Next friend may sue or defend for.

SEC. 13. Nothing contained in this act shall affect or impair the power of the court to appoint a guardian to defend the interest of any minor, in any suit or matter pending therein, or to appoint or allow any person as the next friend of a minor to commence and prosecute any suit in behalf of a minor. As amended, Stats. 1913, 27.

6162. Held, that the procedure provided in this section is equitable, and the judgment appointing the guardian for a mentally enfeebled person is final so that an appeal lies. O'Donnell v. District Court, 40 Nev. 428, 432-434 (165 P. 759).

6165. Where a guardian of an infant gave a mortgage upon the common property of the infant and the guardian, in order to pay off a mortgage about to be foreclosed, such mortgage was not valid; there being at the time no statute conferring on the court the power to allow the guardian to execute such mortgage. Lafranchini v. Clark, 39 Nev. 48, 52 (153 P. 250).

6204. Requisites of a valid will—Holographic, exception.

SEC. 3. No will, executed in this state, except such nuncupative wills as are mentioned in this act, and except such holographic wills as are mentioned in an act entitled "An act relating to holographic wills," approved March 20, 1895, shall be valid, unless it be in writing, and signed by the testator, or by some person in his presence, and by his express direction, and attested by at least two competent witnesses, subscribing their names to the will in the presence of the testator. As amended, Stats. 1915, 36.

6205. Under Rev. Laws, 6219, this section, and Rev. Laws, 6620, it was held in the absence of an interchangeable or indiscriminate use of such terms in the statute, the words "devisee" and "devise" are not to be given the scope of "legatee" and "legacy," and do not comprehend the disposition of personal property; so that, where a will gave and bequeathed the residue of all property of testatrix to a relative and her daughter and the devisee predeceased the testatrix, the daughter was entitled to all the residue of the realty, and to one-half the residue of the personal property, but as to the other half of the residue of the personal property, the testatrix died intestate. An Act relative to wills executed without this state, and to promote uniformity among the states in that respect.

When wills deemed legally executed.

SECTION 1. A last will and testament, executed without this state in the mode prescribed by the law, either of the state where executed, or of the testator's domicile, shall be deemed to be legally executed, and shall be of the same force and effect as if executed in the mode prescribed by the law of this state; provided, said last will and testament is in writing and subscribed by the testator.

Uniformity of laws.

SEC. 2. This act shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it.

6239. Under the clear provisions of the habeas corpus act (Rev. Laws, 6239, 6241, 6242, 6243, 6245) the warrant of a committing magistrate and the bench warrant under an indictment are not final judgments, nor conclusive, and the judge or court hearing an application for a writ of habeas corpus may take or hear evidence against the warrants and indictment, and may discharge the accused when the magistrate, grand jury, or court have exceeded their jurisdiction, when the process has been issued in a case not allowed by law, or when the party has been committed on a criminal charge without reasonable or probable cause. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 80, 100 (126 P. 655; 129 P. 308).

6240. See Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 80, under section 6239.

6254. After an order in a habeas corpus proceeding discharging the prisoner a rehearing will not be granted, since this would suspend the former order and result in the rearrest of the prisoner, contrary to the express provisions of this section. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 86, 151 (126 P. 655; 129 P. 308).

Sections 1, 2, 3, Stats. 1913, 300, repealed, Stats. 1915, 193.

Stats. 1915, 36, c. 35. Under this act, a signature to a will by having another aid or steady the hand of the testator, at his request, is valid, if the testator possessed testamentary capacity, was acting under no undue influence, and realized the force and effect of the provisions of the will he was signing. CRIMES AND PUNISHMENTS

6286. The words "gross misdemeanor" do not describe a particular or generic offense, but define simply a general class or grade of offense, determined by the limit fixed by law upon the punishment which may be imposed. Ex Parte Booth, 39 Nev. 193 (154 P. 933; L. R. A. 1916F, 960).

The penalty which a city may prescribe for violation of an ordinance being such that the offense under the definition of this section is a misdemeanor, the supreme court has no jurisdiction of an appeal from conviction thereof, its appellate jurisdiction in criminal cases being by Const. art. 6, sec. 4, limited to felony and it being immaterial that the case was transferred from the police court to the district court because the validity of the tax imposed by the ordinance was attacked; "cases at law" in which is involved the legality of a tax, of which the supreme court is given appellate jurisdiction, not including a criminal case. *City of Reno v. An Act defining criminal syndicalism, and providing a punishment therefor.

Approved February 27, 1919, 33

Criminal syndicalism defined.

SECTION 1. Criminal syndicalism is the doctrine which advocates or teaches crime, sabotage, violence, or unlawful methods of terrorism as a means of accomplishing industrial or political reform. The advocacy or teaching of such doctrine, whether by word of mouth or writing, is a felony punishable as in this act otherwise provided.

Certain acts declared felonies—Penalty.

SEC. 2. Any person who—

(1) By word of mouth or writing, advocates or teaches the duty, necessity or propriety of crime, sabotage, violence or other unlawful methods of terrorism as a means of accomplishing industrial or political reform; or

(2) Prints, publishes, edits, issues or knowingly circulates, sells, distributes or publicly displays any book, paper, document, or written matter in any form, containing or advocating, advising or teaching the doctrine that industrial or political reform should be brought about by crime, sabotage, violence or other unlawful methods of terrorism; or

(3) Openly, wilfully and deliberately justifies, by word of mouth or writing, the commission or the attempt to commit crime, sabotage, violence, or other unlawful methods of terrorism with intent to exemplify, spread, or advocate the propriety of the doctrine of criminal syndicalism; or

(4) Organizes or helps to organize or becomes a member of, or voluntarily assembles with, any society, group, or assemblage of persons formed to teach or advocate the doctrine of criminal syndicalism;

Is guilty of a felony and punishable by imprisonment in the state prison for not more than ten years or by a fine of not more than $5,000, or both.

Certain assemblages prohibited—Penalties.

SEC. 3. Whenever two or more persons assemble for the purpose of advocating or teaching the doctrines of criminal syndicalism as defined in this act, such an assemblage is unlawful, and every person voluntarily participating therein by his presence, aid, or instigation is guilty of a felony and punishable by imprisonment in the state prison for not more than ten years or by a fine of not more than $5,000, or both.

Keepers of buildings culpable, when—Penalty.

SEC. 4. The owner, agent, superintendent, janitor, caretaker, or occupant of any place, building, or room, who wilfully and knowingly permits therein any assemblage of persons prohibited by the provisions of section three of this act, or who, after the notification that the premises are so used, permits such use to be continued, is guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than one year or by a fine of not more than $500, or both.

of the action and for the support and maintenance of the wife or of the wife and of her child or children.

Power of court.

SEC. 3. In any such action the court may assign and decree to the wife the possession of any real or personal property of the husband and may order or decree the payment of a fixed sum of money for the support of the wife or for the support of the wife and of her child or children and provide that the payment of the same be secured upon real estate, or other security may be required, or any other suitable provision may be made; payments to be made at such times and in such manner as to the court may seem proper. And the court shall have power to change, modify or revoke its orders and decrees from time to time. No order or decree shall be effective beyond the joint lives of the husband and wife.

Husband may be enjoined.

SEC. 4. At any time after the filing of the complaint the wife may file a notice of pendency of the action in the office of the county recorder of any county in which the husband may have real property, which shall have the same effect as such notice in actions directly affecting real property. The court may also enjoin the husband from disposing of any property during the pendency of the action.

Preliminary and final orders.

SEC. 5. The court in such actions may make such preliminary and final orders as it may deem proper for the custody, control and support of any minor child or children of the parties.

Orders may be enforced—Receiver, when.

SEC. 6. The final judgment and any order or orders made before or after judgment may be enforced by the court by such order or orders as in its discretion it may from time to time deem necessary; a receiver may be appointed, security may be required, execution may issue, under which real or personal property of the husband may be sold as under execution in other cases, and disobedience of any order or orders may be punished as a contempt.

Procedure same as for divorce.

SEC. 7. In all cases commenced hereunder, the proceedings and practice shall be the same, as nearly as may be, as is now or hereafter may be provided in actions for divorce; and suit may be brought, at the option of the wife, either in the county in which the wife shall reside, at the time the suit is commenced, or in the county in which the husband may be found.

5894. Who entitled to letters of administration—Precedence.

SEC. 38. Administration of the estate of a person dying intestate shall be granted to some one or more of the persons hereinafter mentioned, and they shall be respectively entitled in the following order:

First—The surviving husband or wife, or such person as he or she may request to have appointed.

Second—The children.

Third—The father, or the mother.

Fourth—The brother.

Fifth—The sister.

Sixth—The grandchildren.

Seventh—Any other of the kindred entitled to share in the distribution of the estate.

Eighth—The creditors.

Ninth—The public administrator.

Tenth—Any of the kindred not above enumerated, within the fourth degree of consanguinity.

Eleventh—Any person or persons legally competent. As amended, Stats. 1913, 28; 1917, 355.

5910. Executor and administrator to take oath—Form of—Filed and recorded—Certified copies of records and papers have force of originals.

SEC. 54. Before letters testamentary or of administration shall be issued to the executor or administrator he shall take and subscribe an oath or affirmation before an officer authorized to administer oaths that he will perform, according to law, the duties of executor or administrator; said oath shall be filed and recorded by the clerk. All duly certified copies of any record or paper in matters of estates shall have the same force and effect in all cases whatsoever as the original papers would have. As amended, Stats. 1919, 31.

5911. Under this section, the relationship of trustees and cestui que trust between the executor and administrators and the heirs is not created in so far as the same might apply to the realty of an estate, so that the rule that a statute of limitations running against a trustee holding the legal title to realty runs also against cestui does not apply. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 172, 213 (161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064).

5943. Appraisement, how made—Compensation of appraisers limited—Inventory, what to include.

SEC. 87. For the purpose of making the appraisement, the court or judge shall appoint not more than three disinterested persons who shall be entitled to a reasonable compensation for their services, to be allowed by the court. This compensation as allowed shall be in the form of a bill of items for their services, including all necessary disbursements, which shall be sworn to by them, and filed at the same time as the inventory. The compensation shall not exceed five dollars per day each, and may be paid out of the estate at any time. The inventory shall include all the estate of the deceased wherever situated; provided, that where any estate consists of money, deposits in banks, bonds, policies of life insurance or securities for money or evidence of indebtedness, when the same is equal in value to money, the court or judge shall not appoint appraisers, but shall record the value of the same in the minutes of the court. As amended, Stats. 1919, 54.

5950. Under the statutory provisions and procedure relative to the estates of decedents the title to real estate vests in the heirs and devisees at the moment of the death of the testator or intestate, subject only to the right of possession of the executor or administrator under this section, for the payment of the debts and expenses of administration, with the right in the administrator to possession until the estate is settled or delivered over to the parties entitled by the order of the probate court. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 172, 208 (161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064).

5957. Under Stats. 1897, 119, similar to this section, construed with other statutes, it was held that a widow cannot have set aside to her as a homestead land which was her husband's separate property at his death, and had not been declared on as a homestead; there being other heirs. In Re Cook's Estate, 34 Nev. 218, 235, 238 (117 P. 27).

authority, or having legal charge, shall take, place, harbor, inveigle, entice, persuade, encourage or procure any female person to enter any place within this state in which prostitution is practiced, encouraged or allowed, for the purpose of prostitution, or any person who shall, by promises, threats, violence, or by any device or scheme, by fraud or artifice, by duress of person or goods, or abuse of any position of confidence or authority or having legal charge, take, place, harbor, inveigle, entice, persuade, encourage or procure any female person of previous chaste character to enter any place within this state in which prostitution is practiced, encouraged or allowed for the purpose of sexual intercourse, or who takes or detains a female with the intent to compel her by force, threats, menace or duress to marry him or to marry any other person, or who shall receive or give or agree to receive or give any money or thing of value for procuring or attempting to procure any female person to become a prostitute or to come into this state or leave this state for the purpose of prostitution, or, being her husband, for the purpose of sexual intercourse, shall be guilty of pandering, and upon conviction, shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for a term of not less than two nor more than twenty years.

Placing wife in brothel, pandering—Felony.

SEC. 2. Any person who, by force, fraud, intimidation or threats, places or procures any other person or persons to place, his wife in a house of prostitution or lead a life of prostitution shall be guilty of pandering and upon conviction thereof shall be sentenced to the state prison for not less than two nor more than twenty years. 6022. Under Cutting, 2951, similar to this, an action for damages caused by wrongful ejection of a passenger from a train, where the passenger had paid his fare and received a ticket, is a transitory action upon a contract which may be continued by the administratrix of the plaintiff after his death. *Forrester v. 6052. It is within the power of the state to determine the order in which debts of an estate shall be paid; therefore federal courts must give effect to this section declaring priorities. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 758, 767, 769.

Under this section it was held that, as the term "debt," used in the statute, signifies no more than a sum of money owing on a contract, express or implied, only the profits of the community estate converted by the husband can be deemed debts, but the husband must be treated as trustee of the wife's interest in the community property, and as to such she takes priority over creditors who reduced their debts to judgment during the husband's lifetime, while as to the debt for the profits withheld she does not. Id.

6057. The obligation of a surety on a guardian's bond, being a subsisting one, is not a "contingent claim" referred to in this section, providing for the payment into court of amount that would be payable if the whole were established as absolute. Pruett v. Caddigan, 42 Nev. 329, 335, 336 (176 P. 787).

6116. Descent and distribution—When to escheat.

SEC. 259. When any person having title to any estate, not otherwise limited by marriage contract, shall die intestate as to such estate, it shall descend and be distributed, subject to the payment of his or her debts, in the following manner:

First—If there be a surviving husband or wife, and only one child, or the lawful issue of one child, one-half to the surviving husband or wife, and one-half to such child or issue of such child. If there be a surviving husband or wife and more than one child living, or one child living and the lawful issue of one or more deceased children, one-third to the surviving husband or wife, and the remainder in equal shares to his or her children, and to the lawful issue of any deceased child by right of representation. If there be no child of the intestate living at his or her death, the remainder shall go to all of his or her lineal descendants, and if all of the said descendants are in the same degree of kindred to the intestate they shall share equally, otherwise they shall take according to the right of representation.

Second—If he or she shall leave no issue, the estate shall go, one-half to the surviving husband or wife, one-fourth to the intestate's father, and one-fourth to the intestate's mother, if both are living; if not, one-half to either the father or mother then living. If he or she shall leave no issue, nor father, nor mother, the whole community property of the intestate shall go to the surviving husband or wife, and one-half of the separate property of the intestate shall go to the surviving husband or wife, and the other half thereof shall go in equal shares to the brothers and sisters of the intestate, and to the children of any deceased brother or sister by right of representation. If he or she shall leave no issue, or husband, or wife, the estate shall go, one-half to the intestate's father and one-half to the intestate's mother, if both are living; if not, the whole estate shall go to either the father or mother then living. If he or she shall leave no issue, father, mother, brother, or sister, or children of any issue, brother or sister, all of the property, both community and separate, of the intestate shall go to the surviving husband or wife.

Third—If there be no issue, nor husband, nor wife, nor father, nor mother, then in equal shares to the brothers and sisters of the intestate, and to the children of any deceased brother or sister by right of representation.

Fourth—If the intestate shall leave no issue, nor husband, nor wife, nor father, nor mother, and no brother or sister living at his or her death, the estate shall go to the next of kin in equal degree, excepting that when there are two or more collateral kindred in equal degree, but claiming through different ancestors, those who claim through the nearest ancestors shall be preferred to those who claim through ancestors more remote; provided, however, if any person shall die leaving several children, or leaving one child and issue of one or more children, and any such surviving child shall die under age and not having been married, all of the estate that came to such deceased child by inheritance from such deceased parent shall descend in equal shares to the other children of the same parent, and to the issue of any such other children who may have died, by right of representation.

Fifth—If at the death of such child, who shall die under age and not having been married, all the other children of this said parent being also dead, and any of them shall have left issue; the estate that came to such child by inheritance from his or her said parent shall descend to all the issue of the other children of the same parent, and if all the said issue are in the same degree of kindred to said child they shall share the said estate equally; otherwise they shall take according to the right of representation.

Sixth—If there be no surviving husband, or wife, or kindred, except a child or children, the estate shall, if there be only one child, all go to that child; and if there be more than one child, the estate shall descend and be distributed to all the intestate's children, share and share alike.

Seventh—If there be no surviving husband, or wife, or kindred, except a child or children and the lawful issue of a child or children, the estate shall descend and be distributed to such child or children and lawful issue of such child or children by right of representation, as follows: To such child or children each a child's part, and to the lawful issue of each deceased child, by right of representation, the same part and proportion that its parent would have received in case such parent had been living at the time of the intestate's death; that is, the lawful issue of any deceased child shall receive the part and proportion that its parent would have received had such parent been living at the time of the intestate's death.

Eighth—If there be no surviving husband, or wife, or kindred, except the lawful issue of a child or children, all of the estate shall descend and be distributed to the lawful issue of such child or children by right of representation, and this rule shall apply to the lawful issue of all such children and to their lawful issue ad infinitum.

Ninth—If the intestate shall leave no husband, nor wife, nor kindred, the estate shall escheat to the state for the support of the common schools. As amended, Stats. 1899, 113; 1901, 44; 1903, 218; 1913, 56; 1915, 149; 1917, 37.

6131. Idem—Duty of attorney-general—To file information—Citation to issue.

SEC. 274. Whenever the attorney-general shall be informed, or shall have reason to believe, that any real or personal estate has become escheatable to this state for the reasons specified in the preceding section, or that any such estate has for any other reason become escheatable, it shall be his duty to file an information in behalf of the state in the district court of the county wherein such estate, or any part thereof, is situated, setting forth a description of the estate, the name of the person last lawfully seized, the name of the terre-tenant and persons claiming such estate, if known, and the facts and circumstances in consequence of which said estate is claimed to have become escheated, and alleging that by reason thereof the State of Nevada has by law right to such estate; whereupon, such court shall order that a citation be issued to such person or persons, bodies politic, or corporate, alleged in such information to hold, possess or claim such estate, requiring them to appear and show cause why such estate should not be vested in the State of Nevada, said citation to be made returnable within the time allowed by law in other civil actions. The court may also, if deemed advisable, order the citation to be published in a newspaper published in said county (if any) and, if none, then in some other newspaper in this state; provided, however, that when the residue remaining of any estate mentioned in the preceding section, after the payment of the costs and expenses of administration and creditors' claims, and other expenses, does not exceed the sum or value of five hundred dollars, the proceedings hereinbefore specified for the escheating of such estate to the State of Nevada shall be dispensed with, and the administrator of such estate, or other legal representative of the deceased, shall, on the order of the court, pay over or deliver such residue to the county treasurer of the county wherein said estate is being probated or is situated, for the benefit of the State of Nevada, and the receipt or certificate of said county treasurer, evidencing such payment or delivery, shall be filed with the clerk of the district court of the county wherein such estate is being probated or is situated, and upon such filing said administrator, or other legal representative of the deceased, shall be released and discharged from all further liability as to such residue, and upon such payment or delivery to him said county treasurer shall notify the attorney-general of the State of Nevada of the same, and shall pay over or deliver such residue to the state treasurer of the State of Nevada, taking his receipt or certificate therefor, and such payment or delivery shall be subject to all of the provisions of this act concerning the recovery of the same from this state by any person or persons found to be entitled thereto. As amended, Stats. 1919, 34.

twenty-one, hokey-pokey, craps, klondyke, or any banking or percentage game played with cards, dice, or any device, for money, property, checks, credit, or any representative of value; or any gambling game in which any person keeping, conducting, managing or permitting the same to be carried on receives, directly or indirectly, any compensation or reward, or any percentage or share of the money or property played, for keeping, running, carrying on or permitting the said game to be carried on; or to play, maintain or keep, any slot machine played for money or for checks or tokens redeemable in money, or to buy, sell or deal in pools, or make books on horse races, save and except the playing of poker, stud-horse poker, five hundred, solo and whist, when the deal alternates and no percentage taken and that any and all racing associations and corporations which shall obtain license to conduct race meetings in the State of Nevada, pursuant to law, may carry on and permit within the inclosure where horse-racing is held, betting upon the races conducted within said inclosure by and through the pari-mutuel system of betting; and any person who violates any of the above provisions shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be imprisoned in the state prison for a period of not less than one year nor more than five years. Every person who shall play at any game whatsoever, other than those hereinabove excepted, for money, property or gain, with cards, dice or any other device which may be adapted to or used in playing any game of chance, or in which chance is a material element, or who shall bet or wager on the hands or cards or sides of such as do play as aforesaid, shall be deemed guilty of a felony; provided, however, that nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as prohibiting social games played, only for drinks and cigars served individually, or for prizes of a value not to exceed two dollars, nor nickel-in-the-slot machines for the sale of cigars and drinks and no playback allowed. As amended, Stats. 1913, 235; 1915, 31, 462.

6547. [The following act supersedes Rev. Laws, 6547:]

An Act to prevent pollution or contamination of the waters of lakes, rivers and streams in the State of Nevada, and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof, and repealing certain acts in conflict herewith.

Approved March 27, 1917, 412

Pollution of waters prohibited—Penalty.

SECTION 1. Any person or persons, firm, company, corporation or association, city or town who shall deposit, or who shall permit or allow any person or persons in their employ or under their control, management or direction to deposit in any of the waters of the lakes, rivers, streams, and ditches in or running into or through the State of Nevada, or cause to be washed or infiltrated into any of said waters, or place or deposit where the same may be washed or infiltrated into any of said waters, any sawdust, pulp, oils, rubbish, filth, or poisonous or deleterious substance or substances which affects the health of persons, fish or live stock, or renders said waters unpalatable or distasteful, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction shall be fined in a sum not less than fifty ($50) dollars, nor more than five hundred ($500) dollars, exclusive of court costs.

Repeal of certain act.

SEC. 2. An act entitled "An act to prevent pollution or contamination of the waters of the lakes, rivers, streams and ditches in the State of Nevada, prescribing penalties and making an appropriation to carry out the provisions of this act," approved March 20, 1903, and all acts amendatory or supplemental thereto, are hereby repealed.

6603. U. S. flag or Nevada state flag, penalty for desecration of.

SEC. 338. Any person who, in any manner, for exhibition or display, puts or causes to be placed, any inscription, design, device, symbol, portrait, name, advertisement, words, character, marks, or notice, or sets or places any goods, wares, and merchandise whatever upon any flag or ensign of the United States, or state flag of this state, or ensign, evidently purporting to be either of said flags or ensign, or who in any manner appends, annexes or affixes to any such flag or ensign any inscription, design, device, symbol, portrait, name, advertisement, words, marks, notice or token whatever, or who displays or exhibits or causes to be displayed or exhibited, any flag or ensign, evidently purporting to be either of said flags, upon which shall in any manner be put, attached, annexed, or affixed any inscription, design, device, symbol, portrait, name, advertisement, words, marks, notice or token whatever, or who publicly or wilfully mutilates, tramples upon, or who tears down or wilfully and maliciously removes while owned by others, or defames, slanders, or speaks evily or in a contemptuous manner of or otherwise defaces or defiles any of said flags, or ensign, which are public or private property, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor; provided, however, that this act shall not apply to flags or ensigns the property of or used in the service of the United States or of this state, upon which inscriptions, names of actions, words, marks or symbols are placed pursuant to law or authorized regulations. As amended, Stats. 1919, 438.

6619. What constitutes vagrancy—Penalty.

SEC. 354. Every—

1. Idle or dissolute person, without visible or known means of living, who has the physical ability to work, and who does not for the space of ten days make proper inquiry for, and use due diligence to seek, employment or labor, when employment is offered him; or

2. Idle or dissolute person who roams about the country from place to place without any lawful business; or

3. Healthy beggar who solicits alms as a business; or

4. Person who makes a practice of going from house to house, begging food, money, or other articles, or seeks admission to such houses upon frivolous pretexts for no other apparent motive than to see who may be therein, or to gain an insight of the premises; or

5. Idle or dissolute person or associate of known thieves who wanders about the streets at late or unusual hours of the night, or prowls around dark alleys, by-ways, and other dark or unfrequented places at any hour of the night without any legitimate business in so doing; or

6. Idle or dissolute person who lodges in any barn, shed, shop, outhouse, or place other than that kept for lodging purposes, without the permission of the owner or person entitled to the possession thereof; or

7. Common drunkard who is in the habit of lying around the streets, alleys, sidewalks, saloons, barrooms, or other public places in a state of intoxication; or

8. Pimp, panderer, procurer, or procuress; or

10. Female person known as a "street walker," or common prostitute, who shall, upon the public streets, or in or about any public place or assemblage, or in any saloon, barroom, clubroom, or any other public or general place of resort for men, or anywhere within the sight or hearing of ladies or children, conduct or behave herself in an immodest, drunken, indecent, profane, or obscene manner, either by actions, language, or improper exposure of her person; or

11. Boy or male person under the age of twenty-one years, who habitually remains away from his home or place of residence after the hour of 9 o'clock p. m., without some lawful and necessary business, or other imperative duty, or good and sufficient reason or cause for such absence from home after such hour, or his own amusement and pastime, without any legitimate business for so doing, frequents and passes his time in any billiard-room or other place where any such games are played, or any saloon or other place where intoxicating liquor is sold or drank; or who at any hour of the night or day, for his own amusement and pastime, without any legitimate business for so doing, frequents or loafs around any low den, house, or other place of vice, infamy, or immorality, where known thieves and other vicious and infamous persons resort or congregate; or who at any hour of the night, either alone or otherwise, prowls about the streets or town, disturbing the peace and quiet of the neighborhood by loud or unnecessary noise, or committing petty depredations, tricks or pranks, upon the person or property of other people, or by abusive, obscene, or insulting language, or by any manner of rowdyism whatsoever, disturbs or annoys the passers-by, any lawful assemblage of persons, or the neighborhood at large; or

12. Person who keeps a place where lost or stolen property is concealed; or

13. Person who solicits or procures, or who attempts to solicit or procure, money, or other thing of value, by falsely pretending or representing himself or herself to be blind, deaf, dumb, without arms or legs, or to be otherwise physically deficient or suffering any physical defect or infirmity—

Is a vagrant, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than three months, or by a fine of not more than three hundred dollars, or both. As amended, Stats. 1915, 32.

6624. Cutting, 4711, similar to this section, designates certain acts as constituting arson in the second degree, and prescribes the punishment thereof, and Cutting, 4712, similar to Rev. Laws, 6625, prescribes that one wilfully burning insured property to injure or defraud "shall be adjudged guilty of arson in the second degree and punished accordingly." Held, that the words quoted refer to and are intended to supply the same punishment provided for that offense in the preceding section. Ex Parte Prosolo, 32 Nev. 378, 380, 381 (108 P. 630).

6635. Under this section, it is presumed from an unlawful entry that the same was with the intent to commit larceny, unless such entry is satisfactorily explained. State v. Patchen, 36 Nev. 510, 515 (137 P. 406).

6638. Grand larceny defined.

SEC. 373. Every person who shall feloniously steal, take, and carry away, lead or drive away, the personal goods or property of another, of the value of fifty dollars or more shall be deemed guilty of grand larceny, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for any term not less than two years nor more than fourteen years. As amended, Stats. 1915, 119.

Under Rev. Laws, 7260, 7261, and this section, it was held that under the first-mentioned statute the court, upon conviction, could only impose an indeterminate sentence from one to fourteen years and could not fix a greater or lesser minimum than that provided by the statute, for the board of pardons may parole the prisoner at any time after the expiration of the minimum sentence. Ex Parte Melosevich, 36 Nev. 67, 69 (133 P. 57).

Section 375½, added by Stats. 1915, 155, providing that it shall be unlawful for any person to have in his possession any hide from which the ears have been removed, or the brand obliterated, cannot be declared invalid for the reason that it is unjust and oppressive, in that the owner and thief are placed in the same class. Park v. State, 42 Nev. 386, 389, 390, 394, 397 (178 P. 389, 390, 393; 3 Am. Law Rep. 75).

Section 375½, as added by said act, deprives a person of his property without due process of law against the guaranties of section 1, article 14, of the federal constitution, and section 8, article 1 of the state constitution. Id.

This section as added is an unnecessary invasion of property rights, and therefore an unreasonable exertion of the police power. Id.

Hides must be preserved intact.

SEC. 375½. It shall be unlawful for any person to have in his possession any hide of any cow, bull, steer, calf, or heifer, from which hide the ears have been removed or the brand cut out or removed, or the brand obliterated, defaced, or disfigured so that the same cannot be readily recognized, and any person having such hide in his possession shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for any term not less than one year nor more than five years. Added, Stats. 1915, 155.

6641. Failure to exhibit hide or keep record of brand, misdemeanor.

SEC. 376. It shall be unlawful for the keeper of any slaughter-house, or persons engaged in slaughtering cattle for sale in this state, to purchase any cattle for slaughter, or any slaughtered bovine animal, without having exhibited to him the hide of such animal, and examining the brand and other marks upon such hide, and making and entering in a book kept for that purpose a description of such brands and marks, together with the name of the person from whom the purchase was made, and the date of such purchase. Said book shall be kept at the slaughter-house or business office of the person engaged in slaughtering cattle, and shall be open to the inspection of any person or persons during business hours. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned in the county jail not less than thirty days nor more than two hundred and fifty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. It shall be the duty of every keeper of any slaughter-house, and engaged in the business of slaughtering any bovine animals, to keep at his slaughter-house, or place of business a book of record, in which shall be recorded and preserved a description of the brand and other marks upon the hides of each slaughtered bovine animal, together with the name of the person from whom the animal was purchased, and the date of the purchase. Said book shall be opened to the inspection of any person or persons during business hours. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined not less than fifty dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not less than thirty days nor more than two hundred and fifty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. As amended, Stats. 1913, §73.

Peddler of meat to exhibit hide—Exception—Penalty.

SEC. 376½. It shall be unlawful for any person peddling the meat of any bovine animal, who is not the keeper of any shop or meat-market, to sell such meat without having in his possession, then and there, and upon request exhibiting, the hide of such animal containing the brand and other marks thereon. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not less than fifty ($50) dollars nor more than five hundred ($500) dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not less than twenty-five days, nor more than two hundred and fifty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. Added, Stats. 1919, 298.

SEC. 400. Every person who shall make, pass, utter, or publish, with an intention to defraud any other person or persons, body politic or corporate, either in this state or elsewhere, or with the like intention shall attempt to pass, utter, or publish, or shall have in his possession, with like intent to utter, pass, or publish, any fictitious bill, note, or check purporting to be the bill, note or check, or other instrument in writing, for the payment of money or property of some bank, corporation, copartnership, or individual, when in fact there shall be no such bank, corporation, copartnership, or individual in existence, the said person knowing the said bill, note, check, or instrument in writing for the payment of money or property to be fictitious, shall be deemed guilty of forgery, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for a term not less than one or more than fourteen years. Whenever such note, bill, check, or other instrument in writing is drawn upon any bank, proof that the purported drawer of the same had no account at said bank, shall be deemed sufficient evidence to sustain the allegation of the nonexistence of the drawer of such instrument. As amended, Stats. 1915, 15.

6672. Drawing checks when no deposit or credit—Penalty.

SEC. 407. Every person who shall make, pass, utter or publish with the intention to defraud any other person or persons, firm, corporation or body politic, any bill, note, check or other instrument in writing for the payment of money or the delivery of other valuable property, directed to, or drawn upon, any real or fictitious person, bank, firm, partnership, or corporation, when in fact such person shall have no money, property or credit or shall have insufficient money, property, or credit with the drawee of such instrument to meet and make payment of the same, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars or by imprisonment in the state prison not less than one nor more than two years, or by both such fine and imprisonment. If payment of money is refused on any instrument mentioned above when the instrument calls for the payment of money, because the maker has insufficient money with the drawee to meet and make payment of same, and the person who shall make, pass, utter or publish said instrument shall fail to deposit with the person, bank, firm, partnership or corporation upon which the paper is drawn, within ten days from the date the said instrument was presented for payment, a sufficient sum to pay the amount called for in the instrument or pay to the person holding the instrument the amount thereof, together with any protest fees that have been paid thereon, it shall be prima facie evidence that the person who made, passed, uttered or published the instrument intended to defraud. And, provided further, that if any person shall sign his name to a check or draft which has inscribed over his signature the words "I hereby represent that the amount called for in this instrument is on deposit to my credit free of any claim, and acknowledge that this amount has been paid to me upon representation of such fact," and payment of such check or draft is refused by the person or persons, firm, corporation, partnership, or bank upon which it is drawn, because such person shall have no money, property, or credit, or shall have insufficient money, property, or credit with the drawee of the said instrument to meet and make payment of the same, it shall be prima facie evidence that the person who made, passed, uttered or published said instrument intended to defraud. All acts or parts of acts that conflict herewith are hereby repealed. As amended, Stats. 1917, 10.

Certain false advertising prohibited.

SECTION 1. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, corporation or association, who, with intent to sell or in anywise dispose of merchandise, securities, service, or anything offered by such person, firm, corporation or association, directly or indirectly, to the public for sale or distribution, or with intent to increase the consumption thereof, or to induce the public in any manner to enter into any obligation relating thereto, or to acquire title thereto, or any interest therein, makes, publishes, disseminates, circulates, or places before the public, or causes, directly or indirectly, to be made, published, disseminated, circulated, or placed before the public in this state, in a newspaper or other publication or in form of a book, notice, handbill, poster, bill, circular, pamphlet, or letter, or in any other way, an advertisement of any sort regarding merchandise, securities, service or any thing so offered to the public, which advertisement contains any assertion, representation or statement of fact which is untrue, deceptive or misleading.

Penalties.

SEC. 2. Any person, firm, or any officer or managing agent of any corporation or association, who shall violate the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not less than thirty (30) days nor more than ninety (90) days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

6704. Indictment charging the president of an insurance corporation with obtaining money by selling stock under false pretenses states a felony under this section, and not a misdemeanor under Rev. Laws, 1174, prohibiting officer of any corporation from making false representations, the fact that the accused received the money as president being immaterial. In Re Crane, 40 Nev. 338, 340, 342 (163 P. 246).

Rev. Laws, 1174, making it a misdemeanor for an officer of a corporation to make false representations, does not affect the crime of obtaining money under false pretenses defined by this section. Id.

6726. Defrauding innkeeper—Penalty.

SEC. 461. Any person who shall obtain food, lodging, or other accommodation at any hotel, inn, boarding, rooming, or eating house with intent to defraud the owner or keeper thereof, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not to exceed five hundred dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than six months. Proof that lodging, food, or other accommodations were obtained by false pretense, or by false or fictitious show or pretense of any baggage or other property, or that the person refused or neglected to pay for such food, lodging, or other accommodations, or that he gave in payment for such food, lodging, or other accommodation negotiable paper on which payment was refused, or that he absconded without paying, or offering to pay, for such food, lodging, or other accommodation, or that he surreptitiously removed or attempted to remove his baggage, shall be prima facie evidence of the fraudulent intent mentioned herein; but this act shall not apply where there has been an agreement in writing for delay in payment for a period to exceed ten days. All acts or other parts of acts that conflict herewith are hereby repealed. As amended, Stats. 1917, 35.

6733. The mere opening, breaking into, tapping or connecting with any pipe, flume, ditch or reservoir does not constitute the crime defined by this section; the taking or removing therefrom of water belonging to another or allowing the same to be taken being an essential element of the crime. Ex Parte Schultz, 42 Nev. 254, 257 (174 P. 431, 432).

6747. Under Cutting, 4780, similar to this, a complaint sufficiently avers ownership by another than accused, as against collateral attack in false imprisonment against a justice of the peace, where it charges the severance and removal of the property from the possession of the complaining witness; possession being prima facie evidence of ownership. Gordon v. District Court, 36 Nev. 1, 11 (131 P. 134; 44 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1078).

An Act to prevent the obtaining of labor under false representation or pretense, and prescribing a penalty therefor.

Approved March 27, 1913, 448

Who liable for misrepresentation—Penalty.

SECTION 1. Any person, persons, partnership, association, company, or corporation (his or its officers, directors or agents), who or which shall employ upon wages any person or persons in any occupation, and who or which at the time of employing such person or persons shall make any false representation or pretenses as to having sufficient funds to pay such wages, and who after labor has been done under such employment by said employee or employees shall fail upon the discharge or resignation of such employee or employees, for a period of five days after such wages are legally payable, to pay said employee or employees on demand the wages due said employee or employees for such labor, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction therefor shall be punishable by imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed six months, or by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars ($500), or by both such fine and imprisonment.

An Act to prohibit any employer from making any rule or regulation against any of his or her employees on account of engaging in politics or running for public office, and providing a penalty for the violation thereof.

Approved March 6, 1915, 82

Employer shall not prohibit employees.

SECTION 1. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation doing business or employing labor in the State of Nevada to make any rule or regulation, prohibiting or preventing any employee from engaging in politics or becoming a candidate for any public office in this state.

Penalty—Principal responsible.

SEC. 2. Any person, firm, or corporation violating the provisions of this act shall upon conviction thereof be fined in a sum of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars. The foregoing penalty shall be recovered in a suit brought for that purpose by the attorney-general in the name and for the benefit of the State of Nevada, but no such prosecution shall be commenced later than three months after the commission of the offense herein described. In all prosecutions hereunder the person, firm, or corporation violating this act shall be held responsible for the acts of his, her or its managers, officers, agents, and employees.

Damages not prevented.

SEC. 3. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the injured employee from recovering damages from his or her employer for injury suffered through violation of this act.

6782. Employer may discharge employee—Written reasons for discharge —“Employee” construed.

SEC. 517. The two preceding sections shall not be construed as prohibiting any corporation, company, organization, or individual from giving in writing, at the time said employee leaves or is discharged from the service of said employer, a truthful statement of the reason for such leaving of the service or discharge of such employee, nor shall the foregoing sections be construed to prevent any employer from giving any employee or former employee any statement with reference to any meritorious services which said employee may have rendered to such employer, and it shall be the duty of the employer to supply upon demand from employee, statements as provided in this section. The word “employee,” as used in this act, shall be construed to mean every person who shall have entered upon service or employment of an employer, and such employment shall be deemed to commence from the date of the entry or performance of any service, and any contract of employment, rule, regulation, or device to the contrary shall be void; provided, that no such statement shall be required unless the employee shall have been in service for a period of not less than sixty days and that only one such statement shall be issued to such employee. As amended, Stats. 1915, 275.

6783. [This section repealed, Stats. 1915, 69, and the following act substituted in lieu thereof:]

An Act making it unlawful for certain persons to accept fees, commissions, or gratuities for the employment of labor, prescribing certain penalties for the violation thereof, and other matters properly connected therewith.

Approved March 2, 1915, 68

Unlawful for employer to demand or receive emolument—Penalty.

SECTION 1. It shall be and is hereby made unlawful for any manager, superintendent, officer, agent, servant, foreman, shift boss, or other employee of any person or corporation, charged or intrusted with the employment of any workmen or laborers, or with the continuance of workmen or laborers in employment, to demand or receive, either directly or indirectly, from any workman or laborer, employed through his agency, or worked or continued in employment under his direction or control, any fee, commission, or gratuity of any kind or nature as the price or condition of the employment of any such workman or laborer, or as the price or condition of his continuance in such employment; and any such manager, superintendent, officer, agent, servant, foreman, shift boss, or other employee of any person or corporation, charged or intrusted with the employment of laborers or workmen for his principal, or under whose direction or control such workmen and laborers are engaged in work and labor for such principal, who shall demand or receive, either directly or indirectly, any fee, commission, or gratuity of any kind or nature, from any workman or laborer employed by him or through his agency, or worked under his direction and control, either as the price and condition of the employment of such workman or laborer, or as the price and condition of the continuance of such workman or laborer in such employment, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars ($50) and not exceeding three hundred dollars ($300), or by imprisonment not exceeding six (6) months, or both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court trying the charge.

Certain section repealed.

SEC. 2. Section 518 of "An act concerning crimes and punishments, and repealing certain acts relating thereto," approved March 17, 1911, being section 6783 of the Revised Laws of 1912, is hereby repealed.

6799. Safety cages in mines.

SEC. 534. It shall be unlawful for any person or persons, company or companies, corporation or corporations, to sink or work through any vertical shaft, at a greater depth than three hundred and fifty feet, unless the said shaft shall be provided with an iron-bonneted safety cage, safety crosshead or safety skip, to be used in the lowering and hoisting of the employees of such person or persons, company or companies, corporation or corporations. The safety apparatus shall be securely fastened to the cage, crosshead or skip, and shall be of sufficient strength to hold the cage, crosshead or skip loaded at any depth to which the shaft may be sunk; provided, that where safety crosshead is used for other than sinking purposes the same shall be equipped with gates as provided by law for cages; and provided further, that where skips are used for other than sinking purposes platforms for men to stand on when being hoisted or lowered shall be placed in said skip not less than four feet from top of same and that an overhead bar be provided for the men to hold to. In any shaft less than three hundred and fifty feet deep where no safety cage, safety crosshead or safety skip is used and where crosshead or crossheads are used.

platforms for employees to ride upon in lowering and hoisting said employees shall be placed above said crosshead or crossheads. Any person or persons, company or companies, corporation or corporations or the managing agent of any person or persons, company or companies, corporation or corporations, violating the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in the sum of five hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail for a term of six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment. As amended, Stats. 1913, 422.

This section was not complied with by having a cage somewhere about the workings of a mine without using it, although the employees did not demand its use. Ryan v. Manhattan B. F. M. Co., 38 Nev. 92, 93, 96-98 (145 P. 907).

That it was customary to work through and sink in vertical mining shafts by means of a crosshead and bucket for raising and lowering employees did not justify the violation of this section; it not appearing that the apparatus used was generally or customarily regarded as better or safer than that provided by the statute. Id.

In an action for injuries to an employee in a mine caused by the failure to provide an iron-bonneted safety cage as required by this section, evidence that the employer was unaware of the existence of such statute was not admissible. Id.

An employer's noncompliance with this section did not entitle an injured employee to damages, unless such noncompliance was the proximate cause of his injuries, and unless a compliance therewith would have avoided the accident and prevented the injuries. Id.

The failure of a mining company to provide an iron-bonneted safety cage for raising and lowering employees as required by this statute was the proximate cause of injuries to an employee thrown from the bucket on which he was riding, though the swinging of the bucket against the sides of the shaft and its entanglement with a bell cord were intervening agencies, as the culminating catastrophe would not have happened in the absence of either the omission of the safety appliance or the intervening agencies, and, hence, they operated concurrently. Id.

An Act for the prevention of cruelty to animals, defining certain terms and fixing the grade of crimes for violation thereof, and repealing certain sections of an act entitled "An act concerning crimes and punishments, and repealing certain acts relating thereto," approved March 17, 1911.

Approved March 28, 1919, 319

Definitions.

SECTION 1. The word "animal," as used in this article, does not include the human race, but includes every other living creature;

2. The word "torture" or "cruelty" includes every act, omission, or neglect, whereby unjustifiable physical pain, suffering or death is caused or permitted.

Keeping a place where animals are fought.

SEC. 2. A person who keeps or uses, or is in any manner connected with, or interested in the management of, or receives money for the admission of any person to, a house, apartment, pit or place kept or used for baiting or fighting any bird or animal, and any owner or occupant of a house, apartment, pit or place who wilfully procures or permits the same to be used or occupied for such baiting or fighting, is guilty of a misdemeanor. Upon complaint under oath or affirmation to any magistrate authorized to issue warrants in criminal cases that the complainant has just and reasonable cause to suspect that any of the provisions of law relating to or in any wise affecting animals are being or about to be violated in any particular building or place, such magistrate shall immediately issue and deliver a warrant to any person authorized by law to make arrests for such offenses, authorizing him to enter and search such building or place, and to arrest any person there present found violating any of said laws, and to bring such person before the nearest magistrate of competent jurisdiction to be dealt with according to law.

Instigating fights between birds and animals.

SEC. 3. A person who sets on foot, instigates, promotes, or carries on, or does any act as assistant, umpire, or principal, or is a witness of, or in any way aids in or engages in the furtherance of any fight between cocks or other birds, or dogs, bulls, bears, or other animals, premeditated by any person owning, or having custody of such birds or animals, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Officer may take possession of animals or implements used in fights among animals.

SEC. 4. Any officer authorized by law to make arrests may lawfully take possession of any animals, or implements, or other property used or employed, or about to be used or employed, in the violation of any provision of law relating to fights among animals. He shall state to the person in charge thereof, at the time of such taking, his name and residence, and also the time and place at which the application provided for by the next section will be made.

Disposition of animals or implements used in fights among animals.

SEC. 5. The officer, after taking possession of such animals, or implements or other property, pursuant to the preceding section, shall apply to the magistrate before whom complaint is made against the offender violating such provision of law, for the order next hereinafter mentioned, and shall make and file an affidavit with such magistrate, stating therein the name of the offender charged in such complaint, the time, place and description of the animals, implements or other property so taken, together with the name of the party who claims the same, if known, and that the affiant has reason to believe and does believe, stating the grounds of such belief, that the same were used or employed, or were about to be used or employed, in such violation, and will establish the truth thereof upon the trial of such offender. He shall then deliver such animals, implements or other property, to such magistrate, who shall thereupon, by order in writing, place the same in the custody of an officer or other proper person in such order named and designated, to be by him kept until the trial or final discharge of the offender, and shall send a copy of such order, without delay, to the district attorney of the county. The officer or person so named and designated in such order shall immediately thereupon assume such custody, and shall retain the same for the purpose of evidence upon such trial, subject to the order of the court before which such offender may be required to appear, until his final discharge or conviction. Upon the conviction of such offender, the animals, implements, or other property, shall be adjudged by the court to be forfeited. In the event of the acquittal or final discharge, without conviction, of such offender, said court shall, on demand, direct the delivery of the property so held in custody to the owner thereof.

Overdriving, torturing and injuring animals—Failing to provide proper sustenance.

SEC. 6. A person who overdrives, overloads, tortures or cruelly beats or unjustifiably injures, maims, mutilates or kills any animal, and whether belonging to himself or to another, or deprives any animal of necessary sustenance, food or drink, or neglects or refuses to furnish it such sustenance or drink, or causes, procures or permits any animal to be overdriven, overloaded, tortured, cruelly beaten, or unjustifiably injured, maimed, mutilated or killed, or to be deprived of necessary food or drink, or who wilfully sets on foot, instigates, engages in, or in any way furthers an act of cruelty to any animal, or any act tending to produce such cruelty, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Nothing herein contained shall be construed to prohibit or interfere with any properly conducted scientific experiments or investigations, which experiments shall be performed only under the authority of the faculty of some regularly incorporated medical college or university of this state.

Abandonment of disabled animal.

SEC. 7. A person being the owner or possessor, or having charge or custody of a maimed, diseased, disabled or infirm animal, who abandons such animal or leaves it to die in a public street, road or public place, or who allows it to lie in a public street, road or public place more than three hours after he receives notice that it is left disabled, is guilty of a misdemeanor. Any agent or officer of any society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, or of any society duly incorporated for that purpose, or any police officer, may lawfully destroy or cause to be destroyed any animal found abandoned and not properly cared for, appearing, in the judgment of two reputable citizens called by him to view the same in his presence, to be glandered, injured or diseased past recovery for any useful purpose; or after such agent or officer has obtained in writing from the owner of such animal his consent to such destruction. When any person arrested is, at the time of such arrest, in charge of any animal or of any vehicle drawn by or containing any animal, any agent or officer of said society or societies or any police officer may take charge of such animal and of such vehicle and its contents and deposit the same in a safe place of custody, or deliver the same into the possession of the police or sheriff of the county or place wherein such arrest was made, who shall thereupon assume the custody thereof; and all necessary expenses incurred in taking charge of such property shall be a charge thereon.

Failure to provide proper food and drink to impounded animal.

SEC. 8. A person who, having impounded or confined any animal, refuses or neglects to supply to such animal during its confinement a sufficient supply of good and wholesome air, food, shelter and water, is guilty of a misdemeanor. In case any animal shall be at any time impounded as aforesaid, and shall continue to be without necessary food and water for more than twelve successive hours, it shall be lawful for any person from time to time, and as often as it shall be necessary, to enter into and upon any pound in which any such animal shall be so confined and to supply it with necessary food and water, so long as it shall remain so confined; such person shall not be liable to any action for such entry, and the reasonable cost of such food and water may be collected by him of the owner of such animal, and the said animal shall not be exempt from levy and sale upon execution issued upon a judgment therefor.

Selling or offering to sell or exposing diseased animal.

SEC. 9. A person who wilfully sells or offers to sell, uses, exposes, or causes or permits to be sold, offered for sale, used or exposed, any horse or other animal having the disease known as glanders or farcy, or other contagious or infectious disease dangerous to the life or health of human beings, or animals, or which is diseased past recovery, or who refuses upon demand to deprive of life an animal affected with any such disease, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Selling disabled horses.

SEC. 10. It shall be unlawful for any person to sell any horse which, by reason of disease, could not be worked in this state without violating the law against cruelty to animals.

Poisoning or attempting to poison animals.

SEC. 11. A person who unjustifiably administers any poisonous or noxious drug or substance to a horse, mule or domestic cattle, or unjustifiably exposes any such drug or substance with intent that the same shall be taken by a horse, mule or by domestic cattle, whether such horse, mule or domestic cattle be the property of himself or another, is guilty of a felony. A person who unjustifiably administers any poisonous or noxious drug or substance to any animal other than a horse, mule or domestic cattle, or unjustifiably exposes any such drug or substance with intent that the same shall be taken by an animal other than a horse, mule or domestic cattle, whether such animal be the property of himself or another, is guilty of a misdemeanor; provided, that nothing in this act shall be construed so as to prevent the destruction of noxious animals.

Throwing substance injurious to animals in public place.

SEC. 12. A person who wilfully throws, drops or places, or causes to be thrown, dropped or placed upon any road, highway, street or public place, any glass, nails, pieces of metal, or other substance which might wound, disable or injure any animal, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Keeping milch cows in unhealthy places and feeding them with food producing unwholesome milk.

SEC. 13. A person who keeps a cow or any animal for the production of milk, in a crowded or unhealthy place, or in a diseased condition, or feeds such cow or animal upon any food that produces impure or unwholesome milk, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Transporting animals for more than twenty-eight consecutive hours without unloading.

SEC. 14. A railway corporation, or an owner, agent, consignee, or person in charge of any horses, sheep, cattle or swine, in the course of or for transportation, who confines, or causes or suffers the same to be confined, in cars for a longer period than twenty-eight consecutive hours, without unloading for rest, water and feeding during five consecutive hours, unless prevented by storm or inevitable accident, is guilty of a misdemeanor. In estimating such confinement, the time during which the animals have been confined without rest on connecting roads from which they are received, must be computed; provided, the time of confinement prescribed in this act may be extended to thirty-six hours upon the written request of the owner or the person in custody of a particular shipment of live stock, which written request shall be separate and apart from any printed bill of lading, or other railroad form, which request for extension of time shall be made to the conductor of train, agent, or other authorized agent of the railroad company over which said stock is being transported.

Running horses on highway.

SEC. 15. A person driving any vehicle upon any plank road, turnpike or public highway, who unjustifiably runs the horses drawing the same, or causes or permits them to run, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Carrying animal in cruel manner.

SEC. 16. A person who carries or causes to be carried in or upon any vessel or vehicle or otherwise any animal in a cruel or inhuman manner, or so as to produce torture, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Certain sections repealed.

SEC. 17. Sections numbered 482 and 550 of that certain act entitled "An act concerning crimes and punishments and repealing certain acts relating thereto," approved March 17, 1911, being sections numbered 6747 and 6815, respectively, of the Revised Laws of Nevada, 1912, are hereby repealed.

CRIMINAL PRACTICE6870. Giving or refusing to give bond, effect—Imprisonment.

SEC. 20. If the bond required by the last section is given, the person complained of shall be discharged. If he does not give it, the magistrate must commit him to prison until he gives such bond, specifying in the warrant the requirement to give security, the amount thereof, and the omission to pay the same; provided, that in no event shall the person complained of be confined in prison for a period of longer than six months for a failure or omission to give such bond. As amended, Stats. 1915, 16.

6894. Complaint on behalf of state for benefit of a county, stating that the complainant is a citizen, resident and taxpayer of the county, and is foreman of the grand jury and at the request of the grand jury petitions for removal of a county commissioner, was a proper petition under Rev. Laws, 2851, et seq., providing for removal, and not under this section, since the allegations as to action on the grand jury's request were surplusage; the complaint being sufficient without them. Ex Parte Jones and Gregory, 41 Nev. 523, 528 (173 P. 885).

6903. Cited, Ex Parte Jones and Gregory, 41 Nev. 528 (173 P. 885).

6908. Under this section, Rev. Laws, 6921 and 7459, one sentenced to life imprisonment for murder may be tried pending his incarceration for a murder previously committed, and, in the event of his conviction thereof and sentence to death, the sentence may be carried into execution, notwithstanding Rev. Laws, 7256, providing that, where defendant has been convicted of two or more offenses before judgment on either, the judgment may be that the imprisonment on any one may commence at the expiration of the imprisonment on any other. Ex Parte Tranmer, 35 Nev. 56, 68 (126 P. 337; 41 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1095).

6987. Testimony on a preliminary hearing for larceny from the person, held, in habeas corpus proceedings, not to make reasonable or probable that the crime was committed by accused, so as to constitute the sufficient cause necessary under this section for holding them to answer. Ex Parte Williams and Lathrop, 39 Nev. 440, 444 (159 P. 518).

6999. Cited, Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 107 (126 P. 655; 129 P. 308).

7003. On resubmission of an indictment to the grand jury accused was "held to answer" within this section. State v. Bachman, 41 Nev. 197, 204 (168 P. 733).

7003-7008. Under these sections a challenge should be made before the grand jury is sworn, if the accused has been previously bound over. State v. Towers, 37 Nev. 104 (139 P. 776; Ann. Cas. 1916D, 269).

7005. Under section 7090 and this section, the indictment may be set aside by the court in which the defendant is arraigned, upon motion, when the defendant has not been held to answer before the finding of the indictment, on the ground that a state of mind exists upon the part of the grand juror which would prevent him from acting impartially and without prejudice. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 86 (126 P. 655; 129 P. 308).

Under this section it was held that a grand juror, who had formed a belief or opinion from statements made to him that defendants were keeping a gambling-place, was not disqualified where he further testified that his opinion was not such as would justify him in making a charge against accused. State v. Williams, 35 Nev. 276, 281 (129 P. 317).

Under this section and Rev. Laws, 7010, providing that an accused can take advantage of any objection to the panel or to an individual grand juror "in no other mode than by challenge," an accused waived his right to object that one of the jurors was a resident of another state by waiting until the time for pleading to the indictment, more than two weeks after the impaneling of the grand jury, when opportunity was given his counsel to challenge, though accused was not then present. McComb v. District Court, 36 Nev. 417, 421, 433, 441 (136 P. 563).

Under this section, subd. 6, Rev. Laws, 7399, 7401, 7044, 7101, and 7024, it was held that, as a reconsideration of the charge or the evidence would be necessary, it could not be resubmitted to the same grand jury, which, having already formed an opinion on the merits, was subject to the challenge that their state of mind prevented them from acting impartially, but that the resubmission must be to another grand jury. State v. Towers, 37 Nev. 94, 96, 100 (139 P. 776; Ann. Cas. 1916D, 269).

One cannot complain of the court's refusal to consider the challenges before the grand jury was sworn, where he failed to take advantage of the ruling of the court that all points that could be raised then might be raised at the proper stage of the proceeding, in view of Rev. Laws, 7090, providing that indictments may be set aside on motion for any of the grounds which would have been good as challenges either to the panel or to any individual grand juror. State v. Bachman, 41 Nev. 197, 202, 210 (168 P. 733).

One who bases an opinion as to a crime merely upon rumor and current publications is not disqualified from serving on a grand jury returning an indictment as to such crime under subdivision 6 of this section. Parus v. District Court, 42 Nev. 229, 243, 248 (174 P. 706, 710, 712).

Cited, State v. Towers, 37 Nev. 104 (139 P. 776; Ann. Cas. 1916D, 269).

7012. It is the commission of an offense within the county which gives the grand jury authority to indict. Under Rev. Laws, 7020, "the grand jury must inquire into all public offenses committed and triable in the jurisdiction of the court." Under Rev. Laws, 7012 and 7013, the foreman and members of the grand jury are required to take an oath to present all offenses "committed and triable within the county of which you shall have or can obtain legal evidence"; and under Rev. Laws, 7026, indictments shall be found "when all the evidence taken together is such as would, if unexplained or uncontradicted, warrant a conviction by the trial jury." Under these statutory provisions the grand jury has not power to indict without evidence of the commission of an act constituting a criminal offense in the county, which would sustain a conviction by a grand jury. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 82, 107 (126 P. 655; 129 P. 308).

7028. Under this section, Rev. Laws, 7029, 4148, and 4153, it was held that, there being a presumption that public officers performed the duties required of them by law, the grand jury cannot hire an accountant to examine the books of county officials; it being their duty, in case there is reason to believe that the books of the county should be audited, to request either the board of county commissioners or the governor to provide for such audit. Stone v. Bell, 35 Nev. 240, 245 (129 P. 458).

The grand jury being without statutory authority to hire an accountant to audit the books of county officers, the district judge, though required by Rev. Laws, 4924, to charge grand juries as to their duties, part of which this section provides shall be an inquiry into the wilful and corrupt misconduct of public officers, has no inherent authority to engage a private accountant to examine and audit the books of all county officers; it not appearing that there was any reasonable ground to believe that such officers were guilty of misconduct. Id.

The Supreme Court of California has repeatedly held, in construing the corresponding section in the code of that state, that failure to make an order of resubmission does not operate as a bar to another prosecution for the same offense. In Re Hironymous, 38 Nev. 199 (147 P. 453).

An Act providing for the prosecution and punishment of crimes, misdemeanors and offenses by information.

Approved March 24, 1913, 293

Courts may act upon information.

SECTION 1. The several courts of this state shall have and may exercise the same power and jurisdiction, to try and determine prosecutions upon information for crimes, misdemeanors and offenses, to issue writs and process and do all other acts therein as in cases of like prosecution under indictment.

District attorney or deputy must be informant.

SEC. 2. All information shall be filed in the court having jurisdiction of the offenses specified therein, by the district attorney of the proper county as informant, and his name shall be subscribed thereto by himself or by his deputy. He shall endorse thereon the names of such witnesses as are known to him at the time of filing the same, and shall also endorse upon such information the names of such other witnesses as may become known to him before the trial at such time as the court may, by rule or otherwise prescribe; but this shall not preclude the calling of witnesses whose names, or the materiality of whose testimony are first learned by the district attorney upon the trial. In all cases in which the defendant has not had or waived a preliminary examination there shall be filed with the information the affidavit of some credible person verifying the information upon the personal knowledge of affiant that the offense was committed.

Offense stated in plain language.

SEC. 3. The offense charged in any information shall be stated in plain, concise language without prolixity or unnecessary repetition. Different offenses and the different degrees of the same offense may be joined in one information in all cases where the same might be joined by different counts in one indictment; and in all cases the defendant shall have the same rights as to all proceedings therein as he would have if prosecuted for the same offense under indictment.

Information sufficient, when—Form.

SEC. 4. The information shall be sufficient if it can be understood therefrom:

First—That it is entitled in a court having authority to receive it, though the name of the court be not accurately set forth.

Second—That the defendant is named; or if his name cannot be discovered, that he be described by a fictitious name, with a statement that he has refused to discover his real name.

Third—That the offense was committed at some place within the jurisdiction of the court.

Fourth—That the offense was committed at some time prior to the finding of the indictment.

Fifth—That the act or omission charged as the offense is clearly and distinctly set forth in ordinary and concise language, without repetition, and in such a manner as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended.

Seventh—That the act or omission charged as the offense is stated with such a degree of certainty as to enable the court to pronounce judgment upon a conviction according to the right of the case.

The information may be in the following form:

State of Nevada, County of _____, ss.

In the _____ court. The State of Nevada against A. B. C. D., district attorney within and for the county of _____ in the state aforesaid, in the name and by the authority of the State of Nevada, informs the court that A. B. on the _____ day of _____, A. D. 19____, at the said county of _____, did (here state offense) against the peace and dignity of the State of Nevada.

C. D., district attorney; or C. D., district attorney, by H. M., deputy.

Information sufficient, when—Proviso.

SEC. 5. No information shall be deemed insufficient, nor shall the trial, judgment, or other proceedings thereon be affected by reason of any defect or imperfection in matters of form which shall not tend to the prejudice of the defendant; and the court may, on application, direct the information to be amended to supply the deficiency or omission when, by such amendments, the nature of the charge shall not be changed and the defendant's defense to the action on the merits will not be prejudiced thereby; provided, the court may in its discretion allow a postponement of the trial.

Laws apply same as upon indictment.

SEC. 6. All provisions of law applying to prosecutions upon indictments, to writs and process therein, and the issuing and service thereof, to motions, pleadings, trials and punishments, or the passing or execution of any sentence, and to all other proceedings in cases of indictment, whether in a court of original or appellate jurisdiction, shall to the same extent, and in the same manner as near as may be, apply to informations and to all prosecutions and proceedings thereon.

Accused may be jailed.

SEC. 7. Any person who may, according to law, be committed to jail, or become recognized or held to bail, with sureties for his appearance in court, to answer to any indictment, may in like manner be so committed to jail or become recognized and held to bail for his appearance to answer to any information or indictment, as the case may be.

Duty of district attorney.

SEC. 8. It shall be the duty of the district attorney of the proper district to inquire into all cases of preliminary examinations as provided by law, touching the commission of any offense, whether the offenders shall be committed to jail, or be recognized or held to bail; and if the district attorney shall determine in any such case that an information ought not to be filed, he shall file with the clerk of the court having jurisdiction of such supposed offense a written statement containing his reasons, in fact and in law, for not filing any information in such case; and such statement shall be filed within ten days after the holding of such preliminary examination.

Information, how made—Upon affidavit, when.

SEC. 9. An information may be filed against any person for any offense when such person has had a preliminary examination as provided by law before a justice of the peace, or other examining officer or magistrate, and has been bound over to appear at the court having jurisdiction, or shall have waived his right to such preliminary examination. If, however, upon such preliminary examination the accused has been discharged, or the affidavit or complaint upon which the examination has been held has not been delivered to the clerk of the proper court, the district attorney may, upon affidavit of any person who has knowledge of the commission of an offense, and who is a competent witness to testify in the case, setting forth the offense and the name of the person or persons charged with the commission thereof, upon being furnished with the names of the witnesses for the prosecution, by leave of the court first had, file an information, and process shall forthwith issue thereon. The affidavit mentioned herein need not be filed in cases where the defendant has waived a preliminary examination, or upon such preliminary examination has been bound over to appear at the court having jurisdiction. All informations shall set forth the crime committed according to the facts. As amended, Stats. 1915, 16.

See Ex Parte Oxley and Mulvaney, 38 Nev. 379, 382, under this section of the information act of 1913, 293.

See State v. Wells, 39 Nev. 432, under the information act of 1913, 293.

Judge may require district attorney to prosecute.

SEC. 10. The judge of the court having jurisdiction may in extreme cases, upon affidavit filed with him of the commission of a crime, require the district attorney to prosecute any person for such crime, and may compel by attachment, fine or imprisonment a compliance by the district attorney with the provisions of this section.

Transcript of preliminary examination filed.

SEC. 11. Whenever any preliminary examination has been had and the defendant held to appear before a court having jurisdiction of the offense, it shall be the duty of the magistrate or other officer holding such examination to deliver to the clerk of said court within ten days after the holding of such examination the complaint, bonds, affidavits, warrants and a full transcript of the proceedings of such examination.

Duty of district attorney.

SEC. 12. It shall be the duty of the district attorney of the proper county, by himself or deputy, to be present at and conduct the prosecution in all preliminary examinations where a felony is charged.

Deputy same as principal.

SEC. 13. All matters and things required to be done by the district attorney by the provisions of this act may be done with like force and effect by his deputy.

Not to affect pending cases.

SEC. 14. Nothing in this act shall be held to apply to, or in any manner affect, any indictment, trial, writ of error, appeal or other proceeding, judgment or sentence, in cases of the violation of any of the provisions of the criminal law of the State of Nevada now pending in any court in this state, but the same shall be held and conducted and adjudged as provided by the law in force before this act shall take effect. Any offense which shall have been committed before this act takes effect shall be inquired of, prosecuted and punished in accordance with the law in force at the time of the commission of such offense.

Cited, In Re Hironymous, 38 Nev. 203 (147 P. 453).

Under this act an information was filed, charging defendants with grand larceny. Upon preliminary examination they were discharged, and thereupon, a second information, charging the same offense being filed against them, they were committed, and sought habeas corpus, contending that the statute rendered such commitment invalid. Held that, while such statute was necessary to authorize prosecution on information, since it contained nothing negating the magistrate's power to hold a second preliminary examination after the accused's discharge, the mere fact that it provided a method whereby an information could be filed against one so previously discharged did not operate to change the nonstatutory rule that discharge on a prior examination is no bar to another examination and a commitment for the same offense. In Re Oxley and Mulvaney, 38 Nev. 379, 382 (149 P. 992).

Under this act, sec. 2 and sec. 9, as amended by Stats. 1915, 16, the district attorney may file an information upon affidavit of any person knowing of the offense, etc., but such affidavit need not be filed where the defendant has waived a preliminary examination or upon such examination has been bound over. One accused of crime has a right to opportunity to either have or waive preliminary examination. State v. Wells, 39 Nev. 432-435 (159 P. 520).

See State v. Wells, 39 Nev. 432, under section 2 of this act.

Under this act, requiring charge to be clearly set forth, etc., an information, charging theft of "cattle," is not bad; the word "cattle," as used in Rev. Laws, 6640, embracing cows, bulls, and steers of domesticated bovine genus. State ex rel. Esser v. District Court, 42 Nev. 218, 222, 223 (174 P. 1024, 1025).

7049. Indictment or information, first pleading.

SEC. 199. The first pleading on the part of the state is the indictment or information. As amended, Stats. 1919, 416.

7050. Indictment or information, what to contain.

SEC. 200. The indictment or information must contain the title of the action, specifying the name of the court to which the same is presented and the names of the parties, and a statement of the acts constituting the offense in ordinary and concise language and in such manner as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended. As amended, Stats. 1919, 416.

When questioned for the first time on appeal an indictment will be held sufficient unless it is so defective that by no construction within the reasonable limit of the language used it can be said to charge the offense for which the defendant was convicted. State v. Hughes, 31 Nev. 270, 273 (102 P. 562).

See State v. MacKinnon, 41 Nev. 182, under section 6412.

7052. In view of this section, providing that evidence tending to prove a charge need not be stated in the indictment, such allegations will be rejected as mere surplusage. In Re Crane, 40 Nev. 338, 340 (163 P. 246).

7053. Indictment or information when defendant named fictitiously or erroneously.

SEC. 203. When a defendant is charged by a fictitious or erroneous name, and in any stage of the proceedings his true name is discovered, it must be inserted in the subsequent proceedings referring to the fact of his being charged by the name mentioned in the indictment or information. As amended, Stats. 1919, 416.

7054. Indictment or information to charge only one offense.

SEC. 204. The indictment or information may charge different offenses or different statements of the same offenses, under separate counts, but they must all relate to the same act, transaction, or event, and charges of offenses occurring at different and distinct times and places must not be joined. The prosecution is not required to elect between the different offenses or counts set forth in the indictment or information, but the defendant may be convicted of but one of the offenses charged, and the same must be stated in the verdict. As amended, Stats. 1919, 416.

7055. Indictment or information—Time of offense, how stated.

SEC. 205. The precise time at which an offense was committed need not be stated in the indictment or information, but it may be alleged to have been committed at any time before the finding of the indictment or the filing of the information, except where or when the time is a material ingredient to the offense. As amended, Stats. 1919, 416.

7057. Construction of words in indictment or information.

SEC. 207. The words used in an indictment or information shall be construed in the usual acceptance in common language, except such words and phrases as are defined by law, and these shall be construed according to their legal meaning. As amended, Stats. 1919, 417.

7058. Exact words of statute not necessary.

SEC. 208. Words used in a statute to define a public offense need not be strictly pursued in the indictment or information, but other words conveying the same meaning may be used. As amended, Stats. 1919, 417.

7059. Indictment or information, when sufficient.

SEC. 209. The indictment or information shall be sufficient if it can be understood therefrom:

1. That it is entitled in a court having authority to receive it, though the name of the court be not accurately set forth.

2. If an indictment, that it was found by a grand jury of the county in which the court was held, or, if an information, that it was subscribed and presented to the court by the district attorney of the county in which the court was held.

3. That the defendant is named, or, if his name cannot be discovered, that he is described by a fictitious name, with the statement that his true name is to the grand jury or district attorney, as the case may be, unknown.

4. That the offense was committed at some place within the jurisdiction of the court.

5. That the offense was committed at some time prior to the time of finding the indictment or filing the information.

6. That the act or omission charged as the offense is clearly and distinctly set forth in ordinary and concise language, without repetition and in such a manner as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended.

7. That the act or omission charged as the offense is stated with such a degree of certainty as to enable the court to pronounce judgment upon a conviction, according to the right of the case. As amended, Stats. 1919, 417.

In view of Cutting, 4208, similar to this section, providing that the offense charged shall be distinctly set forth in ordinary and concise language, so as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended, and the general rule that an indictment charging an offense in the words of the statute is sufficient, an indictment for forgery sufficiently charged the offense by the averment that the defendant "attempted to pass a fictitious check," particularly when the sufficiency of the indictment was not raised until after verdict. State v. Raymond, 34 Nev. 198, 202 (117 P. 17).

In construing an indictment questioned for the first time on appeal, it must be held sufficient, unless so defective that by no construction can it be said to charge the offense for which defendant was convicted. Id.

7060. Defect in form not material if not prejudicial.

SEC. 210. No indictment or information shall be deemed insufficient, nor shall the trial, judgment or other proceeding thereon be affected by reason of any defect or imperfection in matter of form which does not tend to the prejudice of a substantial right of the defendant upon its merits. As amended, Stats. 1919, 417.

Under this section, where, in an abundance of precaution, the court, instead of directing an indictment to be amended to cure a clerical error, dismissed the indictment and reconvened the grand jury, which thereupon returned a second indictment, the new indictment should be regarded in effect as simply an amendment of the first indictment. In Re Hironymous, 38 Nev. 195, 202 (147 P. 453).

7061. What need not be stated.

SEC. 211. Neither presumptions of law nor matters of which judicial notice is taken need be stated in an indictment or information. As amended, Stats. 1919, 418.

7064. Requisites of indictment or information for libel.

SEC. 214. An indictment or information for libel need not set forth any intrinsic facts for the purpose of showing the application to the party libeled of the defamatory matter on which the indictment or information is founded; but it is sufficient to state generally that the same was published concerning him and the fact that it was so published must be established on the trial. As amended, Stats. 1919, 418.

7065. Trial for forgery—Lost instrument, description of, immaterial.

SEC. 215. When an instrument which is the subject of an indictment or information for forgery has been destroyed or withheld by the act or procurement of the defendant, and the fact of such destruction or withholding is alleged in the indictment or information and established on the trial, the misdescription of the instrument shall be deemed immaterial. As amended, Stats. 1919, 418.

7066. Perjury, what deemed sufficient.

SEC. 216. In an indictment or information for perjury or subornation of perjury, it is sufficient to set forth the substances of the controversy or matter in respect to which the offense was committed, and in what court, or before whom, the oath alleged to be false was taken, and that the court or the person before whom it was taken had authority to administer the same, with proper allegations as to the falsity of the matter of which the perjury is assigned; but the indictment or information need not set forth the pleadings, record or proceedings with which the oath is connected, or the commission or the authority of the court or person before whom the perjury was committed. As amended, Stats. 1919, 418.

7067. Obtaining under false pretense, what sufficient description.

SEC. 217. In every complaint, indictment or information for obtaining or attempting to obtain any chose in action, money, goods, wares, chattels, effects or other valuable things, by false representations or by causing or procuring others to report falsely of his wealth or mercantile character, or by any false pretense whatsoever, it shall be a sufficient description of the offense to charge that the accused did, at a certain time and place, unlawfully obtain, or attempt to obtain, as the case may be, from A. B. his money or property, describing it generally, where it can be done, by means and by use of a cheat, or fraud, or trick, or deception, or false representation, or false pretense, or confidence game, or false and bogus check, or instrument, or coin, or metal, as the case may be, with intent to cheat and defraud the said A. B. As amended, Stats. 1919, 418.

7068. What sufficient in charge of larceny or embezzlement.

SEC. 218. In an indictment or information for the larceny or embezzlement of money, bank-notes, certificates of stock, or valuable securities, or for a conspiracy to cheat or defraud a person of any such property, it is sufficient to allege the larceny or embezzlement, or the conspiracy to cheat and defraud, to be of money, bank-notes, certificates of stock, or valuable securities, without specifying the coin, number, denomination, or kind thereof. As amended, Stats. 1919, 419.

7069. Same for selling or keeping obscene books.

SEC. 219. An indictment or information for exhibiting, publishing, passing, selling, or offering to sell, or having in possession, with such intent, any lewd or obscene book, pamphlet, picture, print, card, paper, or writing, need not set forth any portion of the language used or figures shown upon such book, pamphlet, picture, print, card, paper or writing; but it is sufficient to state generally the fact of the lewdness or obscenity thereof. As amended, Stats. 1919, 419.

7070. Against several.

SEC. 220. Upon an indictment or information against several defendants, any one or more may be convicted or acquitted. As amended, Stats. 1919, 419.

7071. No distinction between principal and accessory before the fact.

SEC. 221. No distinction shall exist between an accessory before the fact and a principal in the first and second degree in cases of felony and all persons concerned in the commission of a felony, whether they directly commit the act constituting the offense, or aid and abet in its commission, though not present, shall hereafter be prosecuted, tried and punished as principals, and no other facts need be alleged in any indictment or information against such an accessory than are required in an indictment or information against his principal. As amended, Stats. 1919, 419.

7072. Accessory after fact may be prosecuted.

SEC. 222. An accessory after the fact to the commission of a felony may be prosecuted by an indictment or information, tried and punished, though the principal may be neither prosecuted nor tried, and though the principal may have been acquitted. As amended, Stats. 1919, 419.

7073. Compounding and concealing offenses, punished.

SEC. 223. A person may be indicted or informed against for having, with the knowledge of the commission of a public offense, taken money or property of another, or a gratuity, or a reward, or an engagement, or understanding, express or implied, to compound or conceal the offense or to abstain from a prosecution therefor or to withhold any evidence thereof, though the person guilty of the original offense has not been indicted, informed against nor tried. As amended, Stats. 1919, 419.

7074. Defendant must be arraigned.

SEC. 224. When the indictment or information is filed, the defendant must be arraigned thereon before the court in which it is found unless the cause is transferred to some other county for trial. As amended, Stats. 1919, 420.

7075. Defendant charged with felony must appear personally.

SEC. 225. If the indictment or information be for a felony, the defendant must be personally present; but if for a misdemeanor, his personal appearance is unnecessary and he may appear upon arraignment by counsel. As amended, Stats. 1919, 420.

Cited, State v. Clark, 36 Nev. 477 (135 P. 1083).

7077. Failure of defendant on bail to appear, procedure—Bench warrant.

SEC. 227. If the defendant has been discharged on bail, or has deposited money instead thereof, and does not appear to be arraigned when his personal attendance is necessary, the court, in addition to the forfeiture of the recognizance, or of the money deposited, may direct the clerk to issue a bench warrant for his arrest; if the defendant has been indicted by the grand jury or informed against by the district attorney of the county without having been previously charged or held to answer, the court may also direct the clerk to issue a bench warrant for his arrest. As amended, Stats. 1919, 420.

7079. Form of bench warrant.

SEC. 229. The bench warrant upon the indictment or information shall be substantially in the following form:

County of..... The State of Nevada, to any sheriff, constable, marshal, policeman, or peace officer in this state: An indictment having been found (or information filed) on the.....day of....., A. D. 19....., in the district court of the....., county of....., charging C. D. with the crime of (designating it generally), you are therefore commanded forthwith to arrest the above-named C. D. and bring him before that court to answer the indictment or information; or if the court is not in session that you deliver him into the custody of the sheriff of the county of..... By order of the court. Given under my hand with the seal of the court affixed this..... day of....., A. D. 19..... E. F., Clerk. (Seal.) As amended, Stats. 1919, 420.

7083. Bail increased, when.

SEC. 233. When the indictment or information is for a felony and the defendant, before the filing thereof has given bail for his appearance to answer the charge, the court in which the indictment or information is presented, or in which it is pending, may order the defendant to be committed to actual custody unless he gives bail in an increased amount, to be specified in the order. As amended, Stats. 1919, 421.

7086. Arraignment, how made.

SEC. 236. The arraignment must be made by the court or by the clerk, or district attorney, under its direction, and consists in reading the indictment or information to the defendant, and delivering to him a copy thereof and of the indorsements thereon including the list of witnesses indorsed on it and asking him whether he pleads guilty or not guilty to the indictment or information. As amended, Stats. 1919, 421.

7087. Procedure when defendant does not declare true name.

SEC. 237. When the defendant is arraigned he must be informed that, if the name by which he is prosecuted is not his true name, he must then declare his true name or be proceeded against by the name in the indictment or information; if he gives no other name, the court may proceed accordingly; but, if he alleges that another name is his true name, the court must direct an entry thereof in the minutes of the arraignment, and the subsequent proceedings on the information or indictment may be had against him by that name, referring also to the name by which he was first charged therein. As amended, Stats. 1919, 421.

7088. Time given to answer arraignment.

SEC. 238. If on the arraignment the defendant requires it, he must be allowed a reasonable time, not less than one day, to answer the indictment or information. As amended, Stats. 1919, 421.

7089. Defendant may answer, demur or plead.

SEC. 239. The defendant may, in answer to the arraignment, move to set aside, demur or plead to the indictment or information. As amended, Stats. 1919, 421.

7090. When indictment or information set aside.

SEC. 240. The indictment or information must be set aside by the court in which the defendant is arraigned, upon his motion, in any of the following cases:

If it be an indictment:

1. Where it is not found indorsed and presented as prescribed in this act.
2. When the names of the witnesses examined before the grand jury, or whose deposition may have been read before them, are not inserted at the foot of the indictment, or indorsed thereon.
3. When a person is permitted to be present during the session of the grand jury, when the charge embraced in the indictment is under consideration, except as provided in section 180.
4. When the defendant has not been held to answer before the finding of the indictment, on any ground which would have been good ground for challenge, either to the panel or to any individual grand juror.

If it be an information:

1. That it was not subscribed by the district attorney of the county.

Under this section, sections 7092, 7094, 7399, 7401, and 7101, it was held that an order dismissing an indictment on motion of the district attorney because of a clerical error therein did not bar a new prosecution, though no order was entered resubmitting the case to the grand jury. In Re Hironymous, 38 Nev. 194, 199 (147 P. 453).

See State v. Bachman, 41 Nev. 197, under section 7005.

7091. Objections, when deemed waived.

SEC. 241. If the motion to set aside the indictment or information is not made, the defendant is precluded from afterward taking the objections mentioned in the last section. As amended, Stats. 1919, 422.

7092. Motion, when heard—Proceedings when motion is denied or granted.

SEC. 242. The motion must be heard at the time it is made, unless for good cause the court postpones the hearing to another time. If the motion is denied, the defendant must immediately answer the indictment or information, either by demurring or pleading thereto. If the motion is granted, the court must order that the defendant, if in custody, be discharged therefrom; or, if admitted to bail that his bail be exonerated; or, if he has deposited money instead of bail, that the same be refunded to him, unless it directs that the case be resubmitted to the same or another grand jury, or that an information be filed by the district attorney; provided, that after such order of resubmission the defendant may be examined before a magistrate, and discharged, or committed by him, as in other cases, if before indictment or information filed he has not been examined and committed by a magistrate or has not theretofore waived his preliminary examination. As amended, Stats. 1919, 422.

See In Re Hironymous, 38 Nev. 194, under section 7090.

7093. Defendant to remain in custody, or on bail, on resubmission of case.

SEC. 243. If the court directs the case to be resubmitted or an information to be filed, the defendant, if already in custody, must so remain unless he is admitted to bail; or if already admitted to bail, or money has been deposited instead thereof, the bail or money is answerable for the appearance of the defendant to answer a new indictment or information; but unless a new indictment is found or information filed before the next grand jury of the county is discharged, the court must, on the discharge of such grand jury, make the order prescribed by the preceding section. As amended, Stats. 1919, 422.

See State v. Bachman, 41 Nev. 197, under section 7003.

7094. Order no bar to further prosecution.

SEC. 244. An order to set aside an indictment or information, as provided in this chapter, is no bar to a future prosecution for the same offense. As amended, Stats. 1919, 422.

See In Re Hironymous, 38 Nev. 194, under section 7090.

7097. Grounds for demurrer to indictment or information.

SEC. 247. The defendant may demur to the indictment or information when it appears upon the face thereof, either:

1. If an indictment, that the grand jury by which it was found had no legal authority to inquire into the offense charged by reason of its not being within the legal jurisdiction of the court, or if an information, that the court has no jurisdiction of the offense charged therein.

2. If an indictment, that it does not substantially conform to the requirements of sections 200 and 201 of this act; if an information, that it does not conform to sections 3 and 4 of an act entitled "An act providing for the prosecution and punishment of crimes, misdemeanors and offenses by information," approved March 24, 1913.

3. That more than one offense is charged except as provided in section 204 of this act.

4. That the facts stated do not constitute a public offense.

5. That the indictment or information contains matter, which, if true, would constitute legal justification or excuse of the offense charged, or other legal bar to the prosecution. As amended, Stats. 1919, 423.

7098. Form of demurrer.

SEC. 248. The demurrer must be in writing, signed by either the defendant or his counsel, and filed. It must distinctly specify the ground of objection to the indictment or information, or it must be disregarded. As amended, Stats. 1919, 423.

7101. Allowance of demurrer bar to another prosecution, when.

SEC. 251. If the demurrer is allowed, the judgment is final upon the indictment or information demurred to and is a bar to another prosecution for the same offense, unless the court, being of the opinion that the objection on which the demurrer is allowed may be avoided in a new indictment or information, direct the case to be submitted to the same or another grand jury, or directs a new information to be filed; provided, that after such order or resubmission the defendant may be examined before a magistrate and discharged or committed by him, as in other cases. As amended, Stats. 1919, 423.

See State v. Bachman, 37 Nev. 94, under section 7005.

See In Re Hironymous, 38 Nev. 194, under section 7090.

7102. When defendant discharged, or bail exonerated.

SEC. 252. If the court does not permit the information to be amended nor direct that an information be filed or that the case be resubmitted, as provided in the preceding section, the defendant, if in custody, must be discharged, or if admitted to bail, his bail is exonerated, or if he has deposited money instead of bail, the money must be refunded to him. As amended, Stats. 1919, 423.

7105. Objections, how taken.

SEC. 255. When the objections mentioned in section 247 appear upon the face of the indictment or information they can only be taken advantage of by demurrer, except that the objection to the jurisdiction of the court over the subject of the indictment or information, or that the facts stated do not constitute a public offense, may be taken at the trial under the plea of not guilty, and in arrest of judgment. As amended, Stats. 1919, 424.

Where the sufficiency of an indictment is questioned for the first time on appeal, it will be construed more liberally than in cases where the objection is properly made before trial. State v. Kruger, 34 Nev. 302, 303 (122 P. 483).

7106. Kind of pleas.

SEC. 256. There are four kinds of pleas to an indictment or information.

A plea of:

1. Guilty.
2. Not guilty.
3. A former judgment of conviction or acquittal of the offense charged which may be pleaded, either with or without the plea of not guilty.
4. Once in jeopardy. As amended, Stats. 1919, 424.

It is not necessary that a verdict to be sufficient should specify the crime charged, no more than it is necessary for a defendant to specify the crime charged when entering a plea of "guilty" or "not guilty." Ex Parte Booth, 39 Nev. 184, 187 (154 P. 933; L. R. A. 1916F, 960).

7107. Pleas, how entered, form of.

SEC. 257. Every plea must be oral and must be entered upon the minutes of the court in substantially the following form:

1. If the defendant plead guilty: "The defendant pleads that he is guilty of the offense charged."
2. If he plead not guilty: "The defendant pleads that he is not guilty of the offense charged."
3. If he plead a former conviction or acquittal: "The defendant pleads that he has already been convicted (or acquitted) of the offense charged by the judgment of the court of..... (naming it), rendered at..... (naming the place), on the..... day of....."

4. If he pleads once in jeopardy: "The defendant pleads that he has been once in jeopardy for the offense charged (specifying the time, place and court)." As amended, Stats. 1919, 424.

See Ex Parte Booth, 39 Nev. 184, under section 7106.

7108. Plea of guilty, how entered.

SEC. 258. A plea of guilty can be put in by the defendant himself only in open court, unless upon indictment or information against a corporation, in which case it may be put in by counsel. The court may at any time before judgment, upon a plea of guilty, permit it to be withdrawn and a plea of not guilty substituted. As amended, Stats. 1919, 424.

7109. Plea of not guilty, puts in issue, what.

SEC. 259. The plea of not guilty puts in issue every material allegation of the indictment or information. As amended, Stats. 1919, 424.

7111. Plea of former acquittal, effect of.

SEC. 261. If the defendant was formerly acquitted on the ground of variance between the indictment or information and proof, or the indictment or information was dismissed upon an objection to its form or substance, or in order to hold the defendant for a higher offense without a judgment of acquittal, it is not an acquittal of the same offense. As amended, Stats. 1919, 424.

7112. Effect of acquittal on merits.

SEC. 262. Whenever the defendant is acquitted on the merits he is acquitted of the same offense, notwithstanding any defect in form or substance in the indictment or information on which the trial was had. As amended, Stats. 1919, 425.

7113. Effect of former acquittal or conviction of higher offense.

SEC. 263. When the defendant is convicted or acquitted, or has been once placed in jeopardy upon an indictment or information, the conviction, acquittal or jeopardy is a bar to another indictment or information for the offense charged in the former, or for an attempt to commit the same, or for an offense necessarily included therein, of which he might have been convicted under that indictment or information. As amended, Stats. 1919, 425.

7114. Plea of not guilty, entered, when.

SEC. 264. If the defendant refuses to answer the indictment or information by a demurrer or plea, a plea of not guilty must be entered. As amended, Stats. 1919, 425.

7115. Grounds for change of venue.

SEC. 265. A criminal action prosecuted by indictment or information may be removed from the court in which it is pending, on application of the defendant or state, on the ground that a fair and impartial trial cannot be had in the county where the indictment or information is pending. As amended, Stats. 1919, 425.

7116. Application for removal, how made.

SEC. 266. The application for removal must be made in open court and in writing, verified by the affidavit of the defendant or district attorney, and a copy of said affidavit must be served on the adverse party, at least one day prior to the hearing of the application; provided, the application may be supported or opposed by other affidavits or other evidence, or other witnesses may be examined in open court. Whenever the affidavit of the defendant shows that he cannot safely appear in person to make such application, because popular prejudice is so great as to endanger his personal safety, and such statement is sustained by other testimony, such application may be made by his attorney and must be heard and determined in the absence of the defendant, notwithstanding the charge then pending against him be a felony, and he has not, at the time of such application, been arrested or given bail, or been arraigned, or pleaded or demurred to the indictment or information. As amended, Stats. 1919, 425.

7123. In a prosecution for felony, where a witness was examined by the state for a few moments before accused was brought in, neither the court nor the prosecution noting his absence, and his attorneys, who were present, not objecting on account of his absence, the error will be considered harmless where the testimony was stricken out and later reintroduced without objection, particularly as the prosecution was had before the enactment of this section, which requires the defendant's presence at a trial for felony under the old laws which did not contain any such requirement. State v. Clark, 36 Nev. 472, 477 (135 P. 1083).

7125. Calendar to be prepared by clerk.

SEC. 275. The clerk must prepare a calendar of all criminal actions pending in the court, enumerating them according to the date of the filing of the indictment or information specifying opposite the title of each action, whether such action is for a felony, or a misdemeanor, and whether the defendant is in custody or on bail. As amended, Stats. 1919, 426.

7133. Under this section an objection to the panel, on the ground that the court having summoned a panel of jurors excused a portion of them and issued a second venire, is not well taken. State v. Switzer, 38 Nev. 108, 111 (145 P. 925).

7134. See State v. Switzer, 38 Nev. 108, under section 7133.

7145. Under this section, Rev. Laws, 7146, 7147, and 7150, it was held that a challenge "for actual bias" not stating any ground upon which the challenge rested or any reason on which it was made or the party against whom the jury was biased, was in form insufficient. State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 64, 71 (145 P. 919; 150 P. 764).

7146. See State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 64, under section 7145.

7147. See State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 64, under section 7145.

7148. Grounds for challenge for implied bias.

SEC. 298. A challenge for implied bias may be taken for all or any of the following causes and for no other:

1. Consanguinity or affinity within the fourth degree to the person alleged to be injured by the offense charged or on whose complaint the prosecution shall have been instituted, or to the defendant.

2. Standing in the relation of guardian and ward, attorney and client, master and servant, landlord and tenant, debtor and creditor; or being a member of the family of the defendant, or of the person alleged to be injured by the offense charged, or on whose complaint the prosecution shall have been instituted or in the employment of any such parties.

3. Being a party adverse to the defendant in a civil action, or having complaint against, or been accused by him, in a criminal prosecution.

4. Having served on the grand jury which found the indictment, or on a coroner's jury which inquired into the death of a person whose death is the subject of the indictment or information.

5. Having served on a trial jury which has tried another person for the offense charged.

6. Having been one of a jury formerly sworn to try the same charge, and whose verdict was set aside, or which was discharged without a verdict after the case was submitted to it.

7. Having served as a juror in a civil action brought against the defendant for the act charged as an offense.

8. Having formed or expressed an unqualified opinion or belief that the prisoner is guilty or not guilty of the offense charged.

9. If the offense charged is punishable with death, the entertaining of such conscientious opinions as would preclude his finding the defendant guilty; in which case he must neither be permitted nor compelled to serve as a juror.

10. Because he is, or within the year preceding has been, engaged or interested in carrying on any business, calling, or employment the carrying on of which is a violation of law, where the defendant is indicted or informed against for a like offense.

11. Because he has been a witness either for or against the defendant on the preliminary trial or before the grand jury. As amended, Stats. 1919, 426.

Cited, State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 78 (145 P. 919; 150 P. 764).

7150. See State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 64, under section 7145.

Challenges of certain jurors, which were not specific as required by this section, will not be considered on appeal. State v. Milosovich, 42 Nev. 269 (175 F. 139).

7159. Order of trial.

SEC. 309. The jury having been empaneled and sworn the trial shall proceed in the following order:

1. If the indictment or information be for a felony, the clerk must read it and state the plea of the defendant to the jury; in all other cases this formality may be dispensed with.

2. The district attorney or other counsel for the state must open the cause and offer the evidence in support of the charge.

3. The defendant or his counsel may then open the defense and offer his evidence in support thereof.

4. The parties may then respectively offer rebutting testimony only, unless the court, for good reasons, in furtherance of justice, permit them to offer evidence upon their original cause.

5. When the evidence is concluded, unless the case is submitted to the jury on either side, or on both sides, without argument, or unless a demand be made to have the jury instructed in advance of the argument as hereafter provided in this section, the counsel for the people must open and must conclude the argument.

6. The judge shall then charge the jury, if requested by either party; he may state the testimony and declare the law, but shall not charge the jury in respect to matters of fact; such charge shall be reduced to writing before it is given; and in no case shall any charge or instructions be given to the jury otherwise than in writing, unless by the mutual consent of the parties. If either party request it, the court must settle and give the instructions to the jury before the argument begins, but this shall not prevent the giving of further instructions which may become necessary by reason of the argument. As amended, Stats. 1919, 427.

The particular ground of an objection or exception must be brought to the attention of the trial court, consequently accused cannot complain on appeal that oral statements by the court, to the jury, intended to promote a verdict, are improper because not in writing, where that objection was not made below; it appearing that the only exception to the statements was on the ground that they were of such a nature as to prejudice accused. State v. Clark, 36 Nev. 472, 483 (135 P. 1083).

7160. Defendant deemed competent witness.

SEC. 310. In the trial of all indictments, complaints, and other proceedings against persons charged with the commission of crimes or offenses, the person so charged shall, at his own request, but not otherwise, be deemed a competent witness, the credit to be given his testimony being left solely to the jury, under the instructions of the court; provided, that no special instruction shall be given relating exclusively to the testimony of the defendant, or particularly directing the attention of the jury to the defendant's testimony. As amended, Stats. 1915, 191.

In view of this section, as amended by Stats. 1915, 191, the court properly refused to instruct that defendant had testified, in his own behalf, and that this was his legal right, and that the jury were not permitted to reject his testimony merely because he was the accused. State v. Blaha, 39 Nev. 115, 119 (154 P. 78).

7161. Defendant not compelled to testify.

SEC. 311. Nothing herein contained shall be construed as compelling any such person to testify. No instruction shall be given relative to the failure of the person charged with the commission of crime or offense to testify, except, upon the request of the person so charged, the court shall instruct the jury that, in accordance with a right guaranteed by the constitution, no person can be compelled, in a criminal action, to be a witness against himself. As amended, Stats. 1915, 192.

In a prosecution for permitting gambling on defendant's premises, a statement by the district attorney in argument, "Why didn't the defendant call any witnesses to the stand? Why didn't he put his brother on the stand, his attendant? I will tell you why; he didn't dare do it." was not objectionable as a reference to defendant's failure to testify in his own behalf. State v. Williams, 35 Nev. 276, 283 (129 P. 317).

7162. Argument may be restricted.

SEC. 312. If the indictment or information be for an offense punishable with death, two counsel on each side may argue the case to the jury, but in such case, as well as in all others, the counsel for the state must open and conclude the argument. If it be for any other offense, the court may, in its discretion, restrict the argument to one counsel on each side. As amended, Stats. 1919, 427.

7163. Notwithstanding this section, an accused person, relying on the defense of insanity, has the burden of proof, and must satisfy the jury by preponderance of the evidence that he is insane, there being a presumption of sanity. State v. Nelson, 36 Nev. 403, 413 (136 P. 377).

7165. Under this section, the court, having given the definition of "reasonable doubt" therein contained, did not err in refusing accused's requested instruction on reasonable doubt. State v. Carey, 34 Nev. 310, 313 (122 P. 868).

7169. Discharged defendant may testify for codefendant.

SEC. 319. When two or more persons are included in the same indictment or information and the court is of opinion that in regard to a particular defendant there is not sufficient evidence to put him on his defense, it shall order him to be discharged before the evidence is closed that he may be a witness for his codefendant. As amended, Stats. 1919, 427.

7173. Conspiracy—Overt acts to be proved.

SEC. 323. Upon a trial for conspiracy in a case where an overt act shall be necessary to constitute the offense, the defendant shall not be convicted unless one or more overt acts shall be expressly alleged in the indictment or information, nor unless one of the acts alleged shall have been proved; but other overt acts not alleged may be given in evidence. As amended, Stats. 1919, 428.

7180. Where there was evidence from which the jury might have concluded that the complaining witness was an accomplice, it was error to refuse to charge that, if such witness was willing that the offense be committed on him, then, in the absence of other evidence than the testimony and acts of witness to connect accused with the offense charged, accused must be acquitted, since by this section a conviction cannot be had on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice. State v. Carey, 34 Nev. 309, 311 (122 P. 868).

In a prosecution for permitting unlawful gambling in the defendant's place of business, evidence that other unlawful games were played there, and that the game in question, as testified to by the participants and other witnesses, was carried on with the door locked and attended by defendant's brother, furnished sufficient corroboration of the testimony of accomplices required by this section to sustain a conviction. State v. Williams, 35 Nev. 276, 282, 311 (129 P. 317).

The general rule of this section is to be applied where the sole witness against the defendant on his preliminary examination is an accomplice, and a commitment on his uncorroborated testimony is not on reasonable or probable cause. In Re Oxley and Mulvaney, 38 Nev. 380, 386 (149 P. 992).

Under the provisions of this section and Rev. Laws, 7451, a coconspirator may be a competent witness against his coconspirators. State v. Beck, 42 Nev. 215 (174 P. 715).

7182. Procedure when higher offense is shown by evidence.

SEC. 332. If it appears by the testimony that the facts proved constitute an offense of a higher nature than that charged in the indictment or information, the court may direct the jury to be discharged, and all proceedings on the indictment or information to be suspended, and may order the defendant to be committed, or continued on, or admitted to bail, to answer any new indictment or information which may be found, or filed against him for the higher offense. As amended, Stats. 1919, 428.

7183. Procedure if higher offense ignored.

SEC. 333. If an indictment for the higher offense be dismissed by the grand jury, or be not found at its next session, or if an information be not filed before the next session of the grand jury, the court shall again proceed to try the defendant on the original indictment or information. As amended, Stats. 1919, 428.

7184. Want of jurisdiction—Discharge of jury.

SEC. 334. The court may also direct the jury to be discharged when it appears that it has not jurisdiction of the offense, or that the facts as charged in the indictment or information do not constitute an offense punishable by law. As amended, Stats. 1919, 428.

7186. Defendant held when offense committed in another county.

SEC. 336. If the offense was committed within the jurisdiction of another county of this state, the court may direct the defendant to be committed for such time as it deems reasonable, to await a warrant from the proper county for his arrest, or, if the offense is a misdemeanor only, it may admit him to bail in an undertaking, with sufficient sureties that he will, within such time as the court may appoint, render himself amenable to a warrant for his arrest from the proper county; and, if not sooner arrested thereon, will attend at the office of the sheriff of the county, where the trial was had, at a certain time particularly specified in the undertaking, to surrender himself upon the warrant, if issued, or that his bail will forfeit such sum as the court may fix, to be mentioned in the undertaking; and the clerk must forthwith transmit a certified copy of the indictment or information, and of all the papers filed in the action, to the district attorney of the proper county, the expenses of which transmission are chargeable to that county. As amended, Stats. 1919, 428.

7188. Facts not constituting an offense—Defendant discharged or case resubmitted.

SEC. 338. If the jury be discharged because the facts as charged do not constitute an offense punishable by law, the court must order that the defendant, if in custody, be discharged, or if admitted to bail, that his bail be exonerated, or if he has deposited money instead of bail, that the money deposited be refunded to him, unless, in the opinion of the court, a new indictment or information can be framed, upon which the defendant can be legally convicted, in which case it may direct the district attorney to file a new information, or (if the defendant has not been committed by a magistrate, or waived a preliminary examination) direct that the case be submitted to the same or another grand jury; and the same proceedings must be had thereon as are prescribed in section 243; provided, that after such order or submission the defendant may be examined before a magistrate, and discharged or committed by him as in other cases. As amended, Stats. 1919, 429.

7196. Jury determines law and facts in libel.

SEC. 346. On a trial for libel the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the facts. As amended, Stats. 1919, 429.

In consideration of Rev. Laws, 6428, this section, Rev. Laws, 7216, 7218, 7221, and 7222, in a prosecution for libel where the verdict was: "We the jury find the defendant guilty of a gross misdemeanor," it was held that, as the jury were entitled to find the grade of the offense, and as the whole record might be looked to, the verdict was not so indefinite that a judgment entered thereon was void; such verdict indicating the degree of the offense of which the accused was convicted. Ex Parte Booth, 39 Nev. 184, 190 (154 P. 933; L. R. A. 1916F, 960).

7197. Court decides law; jury decides fact.

SEC. 347. On a trial for any other offense than libel, the questions of law are to be decided by the court, saving the right of the defendant to except, and questions of fact by the jury, and, although the jury have the power to find a general verdict which includes questions of law as well as of fact, they are bound, nevertheless, to receive as law what is laid down as such by the court. As amended, Stats. 1919, 429.

7203. Similar section (Cutting, 4341) cited, State v. Luhano, 31 Nev. 279 (102 P. 260).

7210. Discharge without verdict—Retrial.

SEC. 360. In all cases where a jury is discharged or prevented from giving a verdict by reason of any accident or other cause, except where the defendant is discharged during the progress of the trial or after the cause is submitted to them, the cause may be again tried. As amended, Stats. 1919, 429.

7214. Defendant must be present at verdict for felony.

SEC. 364. If the indictment or information be for a felony, the defendant must, before a verdict, appear in person. If it be for a misdemeanor, the verdict may be rendered in his absence. As amended, Stats. 1919, 429.

In a prosecution for felony, where a witness was examined by the state for a few moments before accused was brought in, neither the court nor the prosecution noting his absence, and his attorneys, who were present, not objecting on account of his absence, the error will be considered harmless where the testimony was stricken out and later reintroduced without objection, particularly as the prosecution was had before the enactment of Rev. Laws, 7123, which requires the defendant's presence at a trial for felony, under the old law, which did not contain any such requirement. State v. Clark, 36 Nev. 472, 477 (135 P. 1083).

7216. Forms of verdict.

SEC. 366. A verdict upon a plea of not guilty shall be either "guilty" or "not guilty," which imports a conviction or acquittal of the offense charged in the indictment or information. Upon a plea of a former conviction or acquittal for the same offense, it shall be either "for the state" or "for the defendant." When the defendant is acquitted on the ground that he was insane at the time of the commission of the act charged, the verdict must be "not guilty by reason of insanity." When the defendant is acquitted on the ground of variance between the indictment or information and the proof, the verdict must be "not guilty by reason of variance between the indictment or information and proof." As amended, Stats. 1919, 429.

See Ex Parte Booth, 39 Nev. 184, under section 7196.

7218. See Ex Parte Booth, 39 Nev. 184, under section 7196.

7219. May be found guilty of any offense included in one charged.

SEC. 369. In all cases the defendant may be found guilty of any offense, the commission of which is necessarily included in that with which he is charged, or may be found guilty of an attempt to commit the offense charged. As amended, Stats. 1919, 430.

7221. See Ex Parte Booth, 39 Nev. 184, under section 7196.

7227. Exceptions may be taken by defendant, how.

SEC. 377. On the trial of an indictment or information exceptions may be taken by the defendant to a decision of the court upon a matter of law in any of the following cases:

1. In disallowing a challenge to the panel of the jury, or to an individual juror;

2. In admitting or rejecting witnesses or testimony, on the trial of a challenge to a juror for actual bias;

3. In admitting or rejecting witnesses or testimony, or in deciding any question of law, not a matter of discretion. As amended, Stats. 1919, 430.

7231. What deemed excepted to by either party.

SEC. 381. The decision of the court in a criminal action or proceeding upon a matter of law shall be deemed excepted to by either party in the following cases:

1. In granting or refusing a motion to set aside an indictment or information;

2. In allowing or disallowing a demurrer to an indictment or information;

3. In granting or refusing a motion in arrest of judgment;

4. In granting or refusing a motion for a new trial;

5. In making or refusing to make an order after judgment affecting any substantial right of the parties. As amended, Stats. 1919, 430.

7232. New trial defined—Effect of granting.

SEC. 382. A new trial is a reexamination of the issue in the same court before another jury, after a verdict has been given. It places the parties in the same condition as if no trial had been had. All the testimony must be produced anew, and the former verdict cannot be used or referred to either in evidence or in argument, nor be pleaded in bar of any conviction which might have been had under the indictment or information. As amended, Stats. 1919, 430.

7234. Causes for granting new trial.

SEC. 384. The court in which a trial is had upon the issue of fact, has power to grant a new trial where a verdict has been rendered against the defendant upon his application, in the following cases only:

1. When the trial has been had in his absence, if the indictment be for felony;

2. When the jury has received any evidence out of court other than that resulting from a view, as provided in section 341;

3. When the jury has separated without leave of the court, after retiring to deliberate upon their verdict, or have been guilty of any misconduct tending to prevent a fair and due consideration of the case;

4. When the verdict has been decided by lot, or by any means other than a fair expression of opinion on the part of all the jurors;

5. When the court has misdirected the jury in a matter of law, or has erred in the decision of any question of law arising during the course of the trial;

6. When the verdict is contrary to law or evidence, but no more than two new trials shall be granted for this cause alone;

7. When new evidence shall have been discovered material to the defendant and which he could not, with reasonable diligence, have discovered and produced at the trial. When a motion for a new trial is made upon the ground of newly discovered evidence, the defendant must produce at the hearing, in support thereof, the affidavits of the witnesses by whom such evidence is expected to be given, and if time is required by the defendant to procure such affidavits, the court may postpone the hearing of the motion for such length of time as, under all the circumstances of the case, may seem reasonable. As amended, Stats. 1917, 423.

An order granting a new trial to accused for insufficiency of evidence to support a conviction will not be disturbed on appeal, except in case of abuse of discretion. State v. Bauer, 34 Nev. 305, 306 (122 P. 76).

A motion for a new trial may be heard by the trial court without a bill of exceptions, statement, or affidavit, when it is based on matters which transpired before, and are within the knowledge of the court. Id.

A motion for a new trial under this section may be determined without any bill of exceptions or statement or affidavit. State v. Orr, 34 Nev. 297, 301 (122 P. 73).

7238. Arrest of judgment defined—Grounds for.

SEC. 388. A motion in arrest of judgment is an application on the part of the defendant that no judgment be rendered on a plea or verdict of guilty, or on a verdict against the defendant on a plea of a former conviction or acquittal or once in jeopardy. It may be founded on any of the defects in the indictment or information mentioned in section 247, unless the objection shall have been waived by a failure to demur, and must be made before or at the time the defendant is called for judgment. As amended, Stats. 1919, 431.

7240. Idem—Effect of allowance.

SEC. 390. The effect of allowing a motion in arrest of judgment is to place the defendant in the same situation in which he was before the indictment was found or information filed. As amended, Stats. 1919, 431.

7241. Procedure after allowance of arrest of judgment.

SEC. 391. If, from the evidence on the trial, there is reasonable ground to believe the defendant guilty, and a new indictment or information can be framed upon which he may be convicted, the court may order him to be recommitted to the officers of the proper county, or admitted to bail anew to answer the new indictment or information. If the evidence show him guilty of another offense, he shall be committed or held thereon, and in neither case shall the verdict be a bar to another prosecution. But if no evidence appear sufficient to charge him with any offense, he shall, if in custody, be discharged; or, if admitted to bail, his bail shall be exonerated; or, if money has been deposited instead of bail, it shall be refunded to the defendant, and the arrest of judgment shall operate as an acquittal of the charge upon which the indictment or information was founded. As amended, Stats. 1919, 431.

7245. Cited, State v. Clark, 36 Nev. 477 (135 P. 1083).

7251. Appearance for judgment—Defendant asked to show cause.

SEC. 401. When the defendant appears for judgment, he shall be informed by the court, or by the clerk under its direction, of the nature of the charge against him and of his plea, and the verdict, if any there are, and shall be asked whether he have any legal excuse to show why judgment should not be pronounced against him. As amended, Stats. 1919, 431.

7256. See Ex Parte Tranmer, 35 Nev. 56, under section 6908.

7260. Indeterminate sentences, how fixed.

SEC. 410. Whenever any person shall be convicted of any felony for which no fixed period of confinement is imposed by law, the court shall, in addition to any fine or forfeiture which he may impose, direct that such person be confined in the state prison, for an indeterminate term limited only by the minimum and maximum term of imprisonment prescribed by law for the offense of which such person shall be convicted; and where no minimum term of imprisonment is prescribed by law, the court shall fix the minimum term in his discretion at not less than one year nor more than five years, and where no maximum term of imprisonment is prescribed by law, the court shall fix such maximum term of imprisonment. Immediately after the rendition of judgment in such case the district judge who presided at the trial and the district attorney who prosecuted the case shall transmit to the secretary of the board of pardons and parole commissioners a written statement of facts within their knowledge which may aid said board in the exercise of the powers conferred by section 411 of this act, and may include in such statement such comments as they may deem pertinent. As amended, Stats. 1913, 274.

See State v. Enkhhouse, 40 Nev. 2, under section 6146.

7263. Entry of judgment—Record of action, what to include.

SEC. 413. When judgment upon a conviction is rendered, the clerk shall enter the same in the minutes, stating briefly the offense for which the conviction has been had, and shall, within five days, annex together and file the following papers, which shall constitute the record of the action:

1. A copy of the minutes of any challenge which may have been interposed by the defendant to the panel of the grand jury, or to any individual grand juror, and the proceedings thereon;

2. The indictment or information and a copy of the minutes of the plea or demurrer;

3. A copy of the minutes of any challenge which may have been interposed to the panel of the trial jury, or of any individual juror, and the proceedings thereon;

4. A copy of the minutes of the trial;

5. A copy of the minutes of the judgment;

6. The decision of the court upon matters of law deemed excepted to, if such decision is in writing, and a copy of the minutes showing any decision deemed excepted to;

7. Any written charges given or refused by the court, with the endorsements thereon;

8. The affidavits and counter affidavits, if any, used on the hearing of a motion for a new trial;

9. The bill of exceptions, if any, when settled, shall be attached to the foregoing and become a part of the record. As amended, Stats. 1919, 431.

7293. Effect of appeal by state—Entry of judgment on reversal.

SEC. 443. An appeal taken by the state shall in no case stay or affect the operation of a judgment in favor of the defendant; provided, if the appeal by the state is from an order sustaining a demurrer to an indictment or information, or granting a motion to set aside an indictment or information, and upon such appeal said order is reversed, the defendant shall thereupon be liable to arrest and trial upon said indictment or information. If the appeal by the state be from an order allowing a motion in arrest of judgment, or granting a motion for a new trial, and upon appeal such order is reversed, the trial court shall enter judgment against the defendant. As amended, Stats. 1919, 432.

7294. Under this section and Rev. Laws, 7314, the element of probable cause for the appeal from a conviction and judgment of imprisonment is essential, and over which judicial discretion may be exercised on the question of bail. State v. McFarlin, 41 Nev. 105, 106, 111 (167 P. 1011).

This section is in the nature of a supersedeas, whereby the execution of the judgment of conviction is stayed pending appeal, and, standing alone, has nothing to do with the question of admission to bail, which is governed by Rev. Laws, 7314. Id.

Under this section and Rev. Laws, 7314, where petitioner's appeal from a conviction for embezzlement sentencing him to imprisonment was properly taken in good faith, and it appears that newly discovered evidence, which was not available at or during the trial, is now available, and is of such a nature as might reasonably be expected to raise a reasonable doubt of guilt, petitioner will be admitted to bail by the supreme court. Id.

7295. Time for transmitting record and notice.

SEC. 445. Upon the appeal being taken, the clerk with whom the notice of appeal is filed, must, within ten days thereafter, without charge, transmit to the clerk of the supreme court the notice of appeal and the record in said action, and if the appeal be by the state from an order sustaining a demurrer to or setting aside an indictment or information, or allowing a motion for a new trial or motion in arrest of judgment, the clerk shall within said time likewise prepare and forward the indictment or information, demurrer, order of the court sustaining said demurrer, and notice of appeal, which shall constitute the record on appeal. As amended, Stats. 1919, 432.

7299. Where no briefs are filed, and counsel for accused fails to appear and argue the case after notice, the supreme court may, under this section, affirm the judgment without reviewing the assignments of error. State v. Jorme, 34 Nev. 307 (122 P. 483).

7302. Cited, Brown v. Dunn, 35 Nev. 177 (127 P. 81).

Where evidence showed conclusively and was undisputed that the accused killed deceased with a knife, the admission of his statements as to his possession of the knife by which deceased was killed, even if erroneous because he was not warned that they might be used against him, did not require a reversal in view of this section and Rev. Laws, 7469. State v. Mircovich, 35 Nev. 485, 489, 490 (130 P. 765).

Cited, State v. Scott, 37 Nev. 450, 451 (142 P. 1053).

7306. Entry of judgment—Papers remitted to court below.

SEC. 456. When the judgment of the supreme court shall have been given, it must be entered on the minutes, and a certified copy of the entry remitted to the clerk of the court from which the appeal shall have been taken. When the supreme court reverses or modifies the judgment of an inferior court on appeal, the clerk of the supreme court shall return to said inferior court with the remittitur therein the papers transmitted to the supreme court on appeal. As amended, Stats. 1919, 247.

7313. Admission to bail before conviction.

SEC. 463. Before conviction, a defendant may be admitted to bail:

1. For his appearance before a magistrate, on the examination of the charge, before being held to answer;

2. To appear at the court to which the magistrate is required to return the depositions and statement upon the defendant being held to answer after examination;

3. After indictment or information, either before the bench warrant is issued for his arrest, or upon an order of the court committing or enlarging the amount of bail, or upon his being surrendered by his bail to answer the indictment or information in the court in which it is found, or filed, or to which it may be sent or removed for trial. As amended, Stats. 1919, 432.

7324. Bail on bench warrant—Form of undertaking.

SEC. 474. When the defendant has been arrested upon a bench warrant, the bail must be put in by a written undertaking, executed by two sufficient sureties (with or without the defendant, in the discretion of the court or magistrate), and acknowledged before the court or magistrate, in substantially the following form:

An indictment having been found (or an information having been filed), on the.....day of....., A. D. 19...., in the district court of thejudicial district of the State of Nevada, in and for the county of.....(as the case may be), charging A. B. with the crime of (indicating it generally), and he having been duly admitted to bail in the sum of.....dollars, we, C. D. and E. F. (stating their place of residence), hereby undertake that the above-named A. B. shall appear and answer the indictment or information above mentioned in whatever court it may be prosecuted, and shall at all times render himself amenable to the orders and processes of the court, and, if convicted, shall appear for judgment and render himself in execution thereof; or, if he fail to perform either of these conditions, that we will pay to the State of Nevada the sum of.....dollars (inserting the sum in which the defendant is admitted to bail). As amended, Stats. 1919, 433.

7340. Recommitted after bail.

SEC. 490. The court to which the committing magistrate shall return the depositions and statement, or in which an indictment or information, or an appeal is pending, or to which a judgment on appeal is remitted to be carried into effect, may, by an order to be entered on its minutes, direct the arrest of the defendant and his commitment to the officer to whose custody he was committed at the time of giving bail, and his detention until legally discharged, in the following cases:

1. When, by reason of his failure to appear, he has incurred a forfeiture of his bail, or of money deposited instead thereof, as provided in section 486;

2. When it satisfactorily appears to the court that his bail, or either of them, are dead, or insufficient, or have removed from the state;

3. Upon an indictment being found or information filed in the cases provided in section 233. As amended, Stats. 1919, 433.

7341. Order of recommitment, what to contain.

SEC. 491. The order for the recommitment of the defendant shall recite generally the facts upon which it is founded, and shall direct that the defendant be arrested by any sheriff, constable, marshal, policeman, or other peace officer within the state, and committed to the custody of the sheriff of the county where the depositions and statement were returned, or the indictment was found, or the information was filed, or the conviction was had, as the case may be, to be detained until legally discharged. As amended, Stats. 1919, 434.

7345. Idem—Who may take bail.

SEC. 495. When the defendant is admitted to bail, the bail may be taken in the amount specified in the order, by any magistrate in the county having authority in a similar case to admit to bail upon the holding of the defendant to answer before indictment or information, or by any other magistrate to be designated by the court. As amended, Stats. 1919, 434.

7346. Form of undertaking on recommitment.

SEC. 496. When bail is taken upon the recommitment of the defendant, the undertaking shall be in substantially the following form:

An order having been made on the.....day of....., A. D. 19....., by the court (naming it), that A. B. be admitted to bail in the sum of $....., in an action pending in that court against him, in behalf of the State of Nevada, upon a (presentment, indictment, information, or appeal, as the case may be), we, C. D. and E. F., of (stating their place of residence), hereby undertake that the above-named A. B. shall appear in that or any other court in which his appearance may be lawfully required, upon that (presentment, indictment, information, or appeal, as the case may be), and shall at all times render himself amenable to its orders and processes, and appear for judgment, and surrender himself in execution thereof; or, if he fail to perform any of these conditions, that we will pay to the State of Nevada the sum of $..... (inserting the sum in which the defendant is admitted to bail). As amended, Stats. 1919, 434.

7349. Who may issue subpoena—Order for prisoner as witness.

SEC. 499. A magistrate before whom a complaint is laid, or a clerk of the district court before which a proceeding by indictment or information is being tried, may issue subpoenas subscribed by them for witnesses within the State of Nevada, either on behalf of the state or of the defendant; and when it is necessary to have a person imprisoned in the state prison brought before any district court, or a person imprisoned in the county jail brought before a district court sitting in another county, an order for that purpose may be made by the district court, or district judge, at chambers, and executed by the sheriff of the county when it is made; such order can only be made upon motion of a party upon affidavit showing the nature of the action or proceeding, the testimony expected from the witness, and its materiality. As amended, Stats. 1919, 434.

7351. District attorney may issue subpoena.

SEC. 501. The district attorney may in like manner issue subpoenas subscribed by him, for witnesses within the state, in support of an indictment or information, to appear before the court at which it is to be tried. As amended, Stats. 1919, 435.

7352. Clerk to issue blank subpoenas to defendant.

SEC. 502. The clerk of the court at which an indictment or information is to be tried shall, at all times, upon the application of the defendant, and without charge, issue as many blank subpoenas, subscribed by him as clerk, for witnesses within the state, as may be required by the defendant. As amended, Stats. 1919, 435.

7365. Witnesses for defense examined conditionally.

SEC. 515. When a defendant has been held to answer a charge for a public offense, he may, either before or after indictment or information, have witnesses examined conditionally on his behalf, as prescribed in this chapter and not otherwise. As amended, Stats. 1919, 435.

7372. Stay of trial may be granted, when.

SEC. 522. If application for a commission is granted, the court or judge may insert in the order therefor a direction that the trial of the indictment or information be stayed for a specified time, reasonably sufficient for the execution and return of the commission. As amended, Stats. 1919, 435.

7386. Sanity of defendant, when questioned, decided, how.

SEC. 536. When an indictment or information is called for trial, or upon conviction the defendant is brought up for judgment, if doubt shall arise as to the sanity of the defendant, the court shall order the question to be submitted to a jury that must be drawn and selected as in other cases. As amended, Stats. 1919, 435.

7387. Trial suspended until question of sanity settled.

SEC. 537. The trial of the indictment or information, or the pronouncing of the judgment, as the case may be, shall be suspended until the question of insanity shall be determined by the verdict of the jury. As amended, Stats. 1919, 435.

7388. Trial of question of insanity, method of procedure.

SEC. 538. The trial of the question of insanity shall proceed in the following form:

1. The counsel for the defendant shall open the case and offer evidence in support of the allegations of insanity;
2. The counsel for the state shall open their case and offer evidence in support thereof;
3. The parties may then respectively offer rebutting testimony only, unless the court for good reason in furtherance of justice, permit them to offer evidence upon their original cause;
4. When the evidence is concluded, unless the case is submitted to the jury, on either or both sides, without argument, the counsel for the state must commence, and the defendant, or his counsel, may conclude the argument to the jury;
5. If the indictment or information be for an offense punishable with death, two counsel on each side may argue the cause to the jury, in which case they must do so alternately. In other cases the argument may be restricted to one counsel on each side;
6. The court shall then charge the jury, stating to them all matters of law necessary for their information in rendering a verdict. As amended, Stats. 1919, 436.

7389. Procedure on finding defendant sane.

SEC. 539. If the jury find that the defendant is sane, the trial of the indictment or information shall proceed, or judgment may be pronounced, as the case may be. As amended, Stats. 1919, 436.

7395. Court may order dismissal of prosecution, when.

SEC. 545. When a person has been held to answer for a public offense, if an indictment be not found or an information filed against him at the next session of the court at which he is held to answer, and at which a meeting of the grand jury is held, the court shall order the prosecution to be dismissed, unless good cause to the contrary be shown. As amended, Stats. 1919, 436.

7396. Defendant dismissed if not tried at next session of court.

SEC. 546. If a defendant, whose trial has not been postponed upon his application, is not brought to trial at the next session of the court at which the indictment or information is triable, after the same is found or filed, the court shall order the indictment or information to be dismissed, unless good cause to the contrary be shown. As amended, Stats. 1919, 436.

When accused, indicted under two indictments for a double murder, obtains a change of venue in the case of one indictment, but the other indictment was not removed, and at the next term of court the latter case was called for trial, and subsequently removed to another county on a change of venue, accused could not complain that he was not given a speedy trial under such indictment, as guaranteed by the constitution and this section. Ex Parte Tranmer, 35 Nev. 56, 79 (126 P. 337; 41 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1095).

The statute guaranteeing a speedy trial does not apply while accused is in prison serving a sentence on another charge; but accused, serving such sentence, may demand that he be tried on all indictments against him, and a refusal to try him may enable him to invoke the statute. Id.

7397. Action continued, when—Discharge, when.

SEC. 547. If the defendant is not charged or tried as provided in the last two preceding sections, and sufficient reason therefor shown, the court may order the action to be continued from time to time and in the meantime may discharge the defendant from custody, on his own recognizance, or on the recognizance of bail, for his appearance to answer the charge at the time to which the action is continued. As amended, Stats. 1919, 436.

7399. Dismissal on motion of court or district attorney.

SEC. 549. The court may, either of its own motion or upon the application of the district attorney, and in furtherance of justice, order any action after indictment found or information filed to be dismissed; but in such cases the reasons of the dismissal shall be set forth in the order, which must be entered on the minutes. As amended, Stats. 1919, 437.

7409. Corporation must answer same as natural person.

SEC. 559. Whenever an indictment is found or an information filed against a corporation, it must be summoned to appear as provided in the civil practice act, or as provided in this chapter for the service of a summons. The corporation may appear by counsel. If it does not appear, a plea of not guilty must be entered. In either case, proceedings thereupon must be had as if the defendant were a natural person. As amended, Stats. 1919, 437.

7414. Defective title of affidavit not to invalidate.

SEC. 564. It shall not be necessary to entitle an affidavit or deposition in the action, whether taken before or after indictment found or information filed or upon an appeal; but if made without a title, or with an erroneous title, it shall be as valid and effectual for every purpose as if it were duly entitled, if it intelligibly refer to the proceeding, indictment, information, or appeal in which it is made. As amended, Stats. 1919, 437.

7444. Commissioners to provide reasonable expenses.

SEC. 594. Whenever any fugitive from justice shall be returned to this state under interstate or international extradition, and shall be delivered to the sheriff of the county in which the fugitive is charged with having committed a crime against the laws of this state, the board of county commissioners of every such county is authorized to provide for the payment by the county of such reasonable sum of money to defray the expenses of the extradition and delivery aforesaid as the board may deem just and reasonable; provided, that a majority of the members of the board of county commissioners shall have consented, by order of the board entered on its minutes, to the extradition of the fugitive before extradition proceedings are instituted, and not otherwise. As amended, Stats. 1917, 25.

An Act to provide for the extradition of persons of unsound mind, and to make uniform the laws of the states which enact the same.

Approved March 20, 1917, 232

Name of act.

SECTION 1. This act may be cited as the Uniform Act for the Extradition of Persons of Unsound Mind.

Definitions.

SEC. 2. The terms "flight" and "fled," as used in this act, shall be construed to mean any voluntary or involuntary departure from the jurisdiction of the court where the proceedings hereinafter mentioned may have been instituted and are still pending, with the effect of avoiding, impeding, or delaying the action of the court in which such proceedings may have been instituted or be pending, or any such departure from the state where the person demanded then was if he was then under detention by law as a person of unsound mind and subject to detention. The word "state," wherever used in this act, shall include states, territories, districts, and insular and other possessions of the United States. As applied to a request to return any person within the purview of this act to or from the District of Columbia, the words "Executive Authority," "Governor," and "Chief Magistrate," respectively, shall include a justice of the supreme court of the District of Columbia and other authority.

Such persons may be extradited, when.

SEC. 3. A person alleged to be of unsound mind found in this state, who has fled from another state, in which at the time of his flight:

(a) He was under detention by law in a hospital, asylum, or other institution for the insane as a person of unsound mind; or

(b) He had been theretofore determined by legal proceedings to be of unsound mind, the finding being unreversed and in full force and effect, and the control of his person having been acquired by a court of competent jurisdiction of the state from which he fled; or —shall, on demand of the executive authority of the state from which he fled, be delivered up to be removed thereto.

Governor to act.

SEC. 4. Whenever the executive authority of any state demands of the executive authority of this state any fugitive within the purview of section 3 and produces a copy of the commitment, decree, or other judicial process and proceedings, certified as authentic by the governor or chief magistrate of the state whence the person so charged has fled, with an affidavit made before a proper officer showing the person to be such a fugitive, it shall be the duty of the executive authority of this state to cause him to be apprehended and secured, if found in this state, and to cause immediate notice of the apprehension to be given to the executive authority making such demand, or to the agent of such authority appointed to receive the fugitive, and to cause the fugitive to be delivered to such agent when he shall appear. If no such agent appears within thirty days from the time of the apprehension, the fugitive may be discharged. All costs and expenses incurred in the apprehending, securing, maintaining, and transmitting such fugitive to the state making such demand shall be paid by such state. Any agent so appointed who received the fugitive into his custody shall be empowered to transmit him to the state from which he has fled. The executive authority of this state is hereby vested with the power, on the application of any person interested, to demand the return to this state of any fugitive within the purview of this act.

Limitation.

SEC. 5. Any proceeding under this act shall be begun within one year after the flight referred to in this act.

Interpretation of act.

SEC. 6. This act shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it.

7451. One who was jointly indicted with accused for murder, and on previous separate trial had been convicted, was a competent witness for the state in a murder trial under Rev. Laws, 5419, defining witnesses, and this section, applying section 5419 to similar actions. State v. Tranmer, 39 Nev. 143, 154, 155 (154 P. 80).

Cited, State v. Scott, 37 Nev. 447 (142 P. 1053).

Cited, State v. Tranmer, 39 Nev. 155 (154 P. 80).

The testimony of a coconspirator that defendant informed the witness that he and another were planning to rob a stage; that defendant later unqualifiedly stated that the robbery had been committed and the stage driver murdered, was admissible. State v. Beck, 42 Nev. 215 (174 P. 715).

Under this section, there is no rule precluding a witness from voluntarily testifying either for or against an accomplice, though called as a witness by the prosecuting attorney. State ex rel. Esser v. District Court, 42 Nev. 218, 227 (174 P. 1024, 1026).

7466. Costs when criminal action removed before trial.

SEC. 616. In every case where a criminal action may have been or shall be removed before trial, the cost accruing upon such removal and trial shall be a charge against the county in which the cause of the indictment or information occurred. As amended, Stats. 1919, 437.

7467. Clerk to certify costs to auditor.

SEC. 617. The clerk of the county to which such action is or may be removed, shall certify the amount of said costs to the auditor of the county in which the indictment was found, or the information filed, which shall be examined, allowed, and paid as other county charges. As amended, Stats. 1919, 437.

7468. Superseding of a criminal law no bar to punishment unless specifically expressed.

SEC. 618. The superseding of any law creating a criminal offense shall not be held to constitute a bar to the indictment or information and punishment of a crime already committed, or to bar the trial and punishment of a crime where an indictment or information has been already found, for a violation of the law so superseded, unless the intention to bar such indictment, information and punishment, or trial and punishment where an indictment has been already found or an information filed, is expressly declared in the superseding act. As amended, Stats. 1919, 437.

SEC. 3. When a justice of the peace, acting as coroner, or his deputy, has been informed that a person has been killed, or committed suicide, or has suddenly died under such circumstances as to afford reasonable ground to suspect that the death has been occasioned by unnatural means, he shall go to the place where the body is and summon three persons qualified by law to serve as jurors, to appear before him forthwith at the place where the body is, to inquire into the cause of the death. As amended, Stats. 1919, 60.

7546. Oath of jurors.

SEC. 5. When the jurors attend, they shall be sworn by the justice of the peace, acting as coroner, or deputy, to inquire who the person was, and when, where and by what means he came to his death, and into the circumstances attending his death, and to render a true verdict thereon according to the evidence. As amended, Stats. 1919, 60.

7550. Where the testimony of a witness at a coroner's inquest was reduced to writing in accordance with this section, but the record was not read by or to the witness, and was not filed by him, a transcript thereof is not admissible to impeach the testimony of such witness in a subsequent case growing out of the death investigated by a coroner. New York L. I. Co. v. Neasham, 250 F. 787, 788.

SEC. 4. In addition to the time-off for good behavior from the term of sentence now allowed by law, convicts so detailed for work upon the public roads shall be allowed ten days' time-off for each month's faithful work and compliance with such rules and regulations; and in addition thereto, each convict so detailed shall be allowed the sum of ten cents for each day's labor, and which shall accumulate as a fund to be paid the convict on the termination of his sentence, or on his release by pardon or parole, and which shall be in addition to the sum of money ordinarily given discharged convicts; provided, that, on the petition of any such convict, said board, in its discretion, may pay out from any sum so to the credit of any convict a portion or all thereof, in support of the dependent wife, children or parent of such convict in distress. As amended, Stats. 1913, 577.

An Act concerning minor inmates of the Nevada state prison.

Approved March 18, 1915, 224

Minors may be sent to school of industry.

SECTION 1. The board of parole commissioners of this state is authorized, in its discretion, to transfer to the Nevada school of industry any minor persons who are now, or hereafter may be, inmates of the Nevada state prison.

An Act authorizing and relating to the employment of convicts on the state prison farm, and to provide a fund in the state treasury for the payment thereof.

Approved March 17, 1913, 158

Convicts on farm—Proviso.

SECTION 1. The board of state prison commissioners is hereby authorized and directed to detail for work on the state prison farm any male convict in the state prison who, on the recommendation of the warden, and in the opinion of said board, may be properly so detailed, excepting prisoners under sentence of death; provided, that such detail shall be voluntary on the part of the convict, and shall not be caused by any form of compulsion.

Same rules as for prisoners on road work.

SEC. 2. Such detail of convicts for work on the prison farm shall be regulated according to the provisions of law provided for the employment of convicts on the public highways of the state.

ABANDONMENT

1. Acts and omissions.

1. Acts and omissions.

A company engaged in milling and reducing ores deposited tailings from ores purchased by it on its own land in a gulch, through which water at times flowed in great volume, making it necessary to dam up the tailings so that they would not be washed away. This damming process eventually forced the tailings on defendant's adjoining land. The tailings were valuable and could be re-treated profitably, and the company intended to re-treat them. In placing them on defendant's land it acted on legal advice, and there was testimony that it did not intend to abandon the tailings. Held, that the evidence warranted the conclusion that the company did not abandon the tailings so as to give defendants title thereto, since "abandonment" is the relinquishment of a right or the giving up of something to which a party is entitled, and, in determining whether one has abandoned his property or rights, the intention is the paramount object of inquiry. *Goldfield Con. v. V. DEATH OF PARTY AND REVIVAL OF ACTION

1. Statutory provisions.

The legislature has the power to provide that actions for the tortious breach of contract shall survive the death of the plaintiff. Forrester v. S. P. Co., 36 Nev. 248; 134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1.

It is not the duty of the court, in construing a statute providing for the survival of actions, though in derogation of common law, to hold that the legislature did not intend what the language of the act clearly indicates, or that cases which would not survive at common law should be excluded from the operation of the statute, where they come within the ordinary meaning of the words employed. Id.

2. Actions on contract.

Under Comp. Laws, 2951, providing that actions founded upon contracts may be maintained by executors and administrators in all cases where they might be maintained by the decedent in his lifetime, an action for damages caused by wrongful ejection of a passenger from a train, where the passenger had paid his fare and received a ticket, is a transitory action upon a contract which may be continued by the administratrix of the plaintiff after his death. Forrester v. S. P. Co., 36 Nev. 247; 134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1.

ACCORD AND SATISFACTION

1. Nature and requisites.
2. Disputed or unliquidated claims.
3. Evidence.

1. Nature and requisites.

To support a plea of accord and satisfaction, it must clearly appear from the evidence that there was in fact a meeting of the minds of the parties on that point, and the proof may not depend on the construction that may be placed on a statute. Wolf v. Humboldt County, 36 Nev. 26; 131 P. 964; 45 L. R. A. (N.S.) 762.

2. Disputed or unliquidated claims.

A party who accepts the amount allowed on his claim against a county, disallowed in part, is not estopped from recovering the part disallowed, unless the acceptance was under circumstances disclosing a settlement or compromise of the matters in dispute. Id.

3. Evidence.

A party seeking to avail himself of a plea of accord and satisfaction has the burden of proving clearly a meeting of minds of parties, accompanied by a sufficient consideration. Id.

ACTIONII. NATURE AND FORM.

1. Under code and practice acts.
2. Nature of action.
3. Single and entire cause of action.
4. Nature and grounds of action.
5. Contract and tort.
6. Parties and interests involved.

II. NATURE AND FORM1. Under code and practice acts.

Under the code of civil procedure, the district courts in proper cases may administer both legal and equitable relief. Botsford v. Van Riper, et al., 33 Nev. 156; 110 P. 705.

Plaintiff sued defendant banking company and the firm of S. Bros., alleging that the firm had collected certain funds as plaintiff's agent and had wrongfully deposited them in the firm account in defendant bank to which the firm was indebted and that defendant bank, with knowledge of plaintiff's ownership of the money, wrongfully credited the same on the firm's debt, and refused on demand to pay the money to plaintiff, whereupon plaintiff prayed that it might be decreed to be the owner of the money, and that the bank be ordered to account therefor and pay it over. Held, that the facts alleged stated a cause of action in equity and not at law. McStay Co. v. Stoddard, 35 Nev. 284; 132 P. 545.

Civil practice act (Rev. Laws, 4943), section 1, providing that there shall be in the state but one form of civil action for the enforcement or protection of private rights, renders the practice act applicable to chancery proceedings, so that process may be served by publication only in such cases as is authorized by statute; the court having no jurisdiction in other cases to order such service. State v. Wildes, 37 Nev. 57; 139 P. 505; 142 P. 627.

2. Nature of action.

An action for damages for injuries due to the use of excessive force in ejecting a trespasser from a train is an action in tort, and not upon breach of contract. Forrester v. S. P. Co., 36 Nev. 248; 134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1.

Where the law imposes a duty arising from the relation rather than the contract, and there is a breach of duty, the aggrieved party may sue in trespass on the case, but if there be no legal duty, except arising from the contract, there can be no election, and the party must rely upon the agreement alone, although in either case the complaint may be required to lay a previous ground by showing a contract. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 113; 173 P. 1149; 180 P. 492.

3. Single and entire cause of action.

The formal chancery bills for accounting, discovery, and the like are no longer used, but the remedies are preserved, and, conceding a complaint to be a good specimen of a bill in equity, nevertheless, if it states but one cause of action, whatever else it may contain, the defendant cannot successfully demur on the ground of improper uniting of several causes. Id.

A complaint reciting one connected history of the property affected by an agreement through a series of acts on the part of defendants which contributed to and culminated in the alleged injuries to plaintiffs, showing defendants have a connected and common interest in the one subject-matter of the action, and charging the defendants with an inexcusable disregard of a duty voluntarily assumed by their contract, while showing defendants as much liable in damages for negligent breach of contract as for violation of a trust, constitutes but one cause of action. Id.

4. Nature and grounds of action.

Two or more causes of action cannot be united in the same complaint, unless the joinder is authorized by the practice act. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 111; 173 P. 1149; 180 P. 492.

Practice act, sec. 97, specifying cases in which two or more causes can be joined in same complaint, is to be liberally construed, with a view to effect its object. Id.

A complaint stating five causes of action, the first being for breach of employment contract, the second and third being for shares of stock alleged to have been acquired by defendants in virtue of their contractual relationship with plaintiff, or for value thereof, and fifth for a discovery and accounting from defendants of all their dealings with certain property of plaintiffs intrusted to them under an executory contract, is not bad for misjoinder; all such causes of action arising out of contract and being authorized by practice act, sec. 97, subd. 1, permitting several causes of action to be united in same complaint, when arising out of contract, express or implied. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 112; 173 P. 1149; 180 P. 492.

5. Contract and tort.

The averment of negligence in the first cause of action and fraudulent dealings in the second and subsequent causes held to amount to substantial allegations of breach of agreement, and not tort, and hence there was no misjoinder. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 113; 173 P. 1149; 180 P. 492.

Plaintiffs are entitled to such relief as they establish upon proper proof of the alleged facts, and the prayer for judgment is not demurrable as asking relief upon both tort and contract. Id.

6. Parties and interests involved.

A complaint alleging a defendant acquired a part of plaintiffs' property under a contract as their attorney, and that a contract with another defendant, whereby latter was to receive a portion of plaintiffs' property, was void in its inception, because fraudulent, and praying for damages for defendants' failure to protect such property from loss, is bad, because it does not state cause of action against both defendants; the defendants being jointly liable, if at all, and the complaint showing on its face that latter defendant had no interest in property, and hence no duty of protecting it from loss. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 112; 173 P. 1149; 180 P. 492.

(E) Duration and Continuity of Possession.

4. In general.

(F) Hostile Character of Possession.

5. In general.

I. NATURE AND REQUISITES(A) ACQUISITION OF RIGHTS BY PRESCRIPTION

1. Character and elements of adverse possession.

To constitute the "adverse user" which is essential to the acquisition of an estate by prescription, it is essential that the possession be by actual, open, and notorious occupation, hostile to the title of the owner of the servient estate, and that it be under an exclusive claim of right, and be continuous and uninterrupted for five years prior to the commencement of the action. Howard v. Wright, 38 Nev. 25; 143 P. 1184.

(B) ACTUAL POSSESSION2. Acts of ownership.

Proof that plaintiff had fenced and partially improved a tract of land established a sufficient possession and occupancy to support title by adverse possession under Rev. Laws, 4957, when supported by the proof of the other essentials necessary to the acquisition of such title, and entitled him to judgment quieting his title in the land against a defendant who established no title thereto. Gander v. Simpson, 37 Nev. 1; 137 P. 514.

Where two claimants of uninclosed and unimproved land assert title by deed but it is impossible to tell from the evidence which deed conveys the legal title, neither can be said to have established title by adverse possession, both parties having paid taxes on the land and used the same for grazing purposes. Id.

3. Evidence.

Facts of case considered in reference to title by adverse possession of portion of an unpatented mining claim, majority of court deeming same insufficient. L. V. & T. R. R. v. Summerfield, 35 Nev. 229; 129 P. 303.

(E) DURATION AND CONTINUITY OF POSSESSION

4. In general.

Where defendants and their predecessors had continued under a deed executed in 1887 in the sole, open, and notorious possession of a strip of ground by the side of a lot the boundary of which was in dispute, an action by the holder of the record title thereto to recover its possession was barred. Quinn v. Small, 38 Nev. 8; 143 P. 1053.

(F) HOSTILE CHARACTER OF POSSESSION

5. In general.

The permissive use of one's premises, however long continued and whether the permission be express or implied, confers no rights of continued enjoyment. Howard v. Wright, 38 Nev. 25; 143 P. 1184.

Stats. 1915, c. 135, amending act of March 17, 1911, by adding thereto section 3754, providing that it shall be unlawful for any person to have in his possession any hide from which the ears have been removed, or the brand obliterated, is an unnecessary invasion of property rights, and therefore an unreasonable exertion of the police power. State v. Park, 42 Nev. 386; 178 P. 389, 3 Am. Law Rep. 75.

2. Actions and other proceedings for damages.

Under allegations that defendants during month of March grazed sheep upon plaintiff's property, thereby injuring it for grazing purposes, damages may be based upon the land's value for grazing purposes during the lambing season, without such damages being specially pleaded, where the land was most useful for this purpose. Wheeler v. O'Brien, 40 Nev. 414; 165 P. 339.

In damage action for unlawfully grazing sheep, defendants' testimony that plaintiff's sheep also grazed upon defendants' property to their damage held not to require a finding of damage for defendants. Id.

In a trespass action for grazing sheep upon plaintiff's land, the damages may be calculated upon the reasonable value of pasturage, where the land was used only for such purposes. Jensen v. Pradere, 39 Nev. 466; 159 P. 54.

Under Rev. Laws, 2336, providing that live stock grazing on another's land, shall be liable for damages, costs, and an attorney's fee, held that a personal judgment for the attorney's fee cannot be rendered against the owner of the stock. Id.

- 130. Technical, formal or trivial defects or errors.
- 131. Ordering new trial, and directing further proceedings in lower court.

I. NATURE AND FORM OF REMEDY

1. Origin, nature, and scope of remedies.

An appeal is a matter purely of statutory right, and, unless authorized by statute, any attempted appeal taken from a judgment or order not appealable is void and confers no jurisdiction on the appellate court. Esmeralda County v. Wildes, 36 Nev. 526; 137 P. 400, 405.

An appeal is a statutory right, and where a receiver is without right of appeal an order of the district court authorizing the receiver to prosecute an appeal is a nullity and cannot invest this court with jurisdiction. Id.

It is not lightly to be assumed that from failure or omission of a special act to provide for an appeal the legislature intended to deny such right to any person whose civil and legal rights are involved. O'Donnell v. District Court, 40 Nev. 428; 165 P. 759.

2. Statutory provisions and remedies.

Stats. 1915, c. 142, sec. 13, requiring assignments of error to be served and filed within twenty days, does not deprive an appellant of his constitutional right of appeal, since while the constitution gives the right of appeal, and the legislature, under the pretense of prescribing forms cannot deprive parties of substantial rights, the constitutional right of appeal is to be enjoyed and exercised subject to the regulations of law and practices of the court. Coffin v. Coffin, 40 Nev. 345; 163 P. 731.

III. DECISIONS REVIEWABLE

(A) COURTS AND OTHER TRIBUNALS SUBJECT TO REVIEW

3. Intermediate courts.

Since an order dismissing an appeal from a justice's court, whether erroneous or not, would be within the jurisdiction of the district court, it could not be reviewed by the supreme court by certiorari; being a final determination of the appeal. Bancroft v. Pike, 33 Nev. 53; 110 P. 1.

(B) NATURE OF SUBJECT-MATTER AND CHARACTER OF PARTIES

4. Cases in intermediate courts.

The supreme court has jurisdiction of an appeal from an order of the district court dismissing a writ of certiorari to review a judgment of a justice of the peace attacked on jurisdictional grounds, regardless of the amount in controversy. Wong Kee v. Lillis, 37 Nev. 5; 138 P. 900.

(D) FINALITY OF DETERMINATION

5. Nature.

Rev. Laws, 5339, providing that, upon an appeal from an order made on affidavit, a certified copy of the affidavit and counter affidavit shall be annexed to the order in place of the statement on appeal, and section 5356, providing that on appeal from an order appellant shall furnish the court with a copy of the notice of appeal, the order appealed from, and a copy of the papers used on the hearing, and a statement, if there be one, apply to appealable orders only, and do not give an appeal from orders not otherwise appealable. Rosenthal v. Rosenthal, 39 Nev. 74; 153 P. 91.

6. Nature and scope of decision.

An order of the trial court dismissing a motion for a continuance is not directly appealable. Id.

7. Final order—Quashing service.

An order quashing personal service of summons, made on a nonresident defendant while within the state, was a final order from which an appeal would lie under civil practice act, sec. 383 (Rev. Laws, 5325). Tiedemann v. Tiedemann, 35 Nev. 259; 129 P. 313.

8. Orders after judgment.

Under Rev. Laws, 5329, providing that appeal may be taken from any special order made after final judgment, an order refusing to hear a motion for a new trial is appealable. Saval v. Blume, 41 Nev. 212; 168 P. 900.

(E) NATURE, SCOPE AND EFFECT OF DECISION

9. Injunction.

It cannot be said that section 387 of the practice act (Rev. Laws, 5329) was intended to cover the whole subject as to appeals so as to make it operate to repeal all other statutes on the subject, including section 6 of the act of 1865 (Rev. Laws, 4833); Rev. Laws, 4564, 6089, 6112 and 6133 providing for appeals from certain other orders. State v. Ducker, 35 Nev. 214; 127 P. 900.

Section 387 of the practice act, effective January 1, 1912 (Rev. Laws, 5329), provides that an appeal may be taken (2) from an order granting or refusing a new trial, or refusing to grant or dissolve an injunction, or refusing to appoint a receiver, or refusing to change the place of trial, and from any special order made after final judgment within sixty days after made and entered. The former practice act of 1869 (Stats. 1869, p. 248), sec. 330, provides that an appeal may be taken from an order "granting or dissolving an injunction and from an order refusing to grant or dissolve an injunction." The act approved January 26, 1865, sec. 6 (Rev. Laws, 4833), "concerning the courts of justice of this state and judicial officers," gives the supreme court jurisdiction of an appeal from an order "granting or refusing to grant an injunction or mandamus in a case provided for by law." Held, that section 387 did not impliedly repeal section 6, authorizing an appeal from an order granting an injunction, so that an appeal lies from such order. Id.

10. Receiver.

An order specifically allowing or rejecting all of the items of the final account of a receiver and directing a distribution of the funds is appealable. Martin & Co. v. Kirby, 34 Nev. 205; 117 P. 2.

An order, entered after notice and hearing on application of creditors for leave to sue a receiver of the debtor, presented after entry of order sustaining objections to the final report of the receiver and to his discharge, which allows the claims of the creditors in a specified sum, and which requires the receiver to pay the same within a specified time, and which authorizes actions against the receiver and his surety for nonpayment within the specified time, is appealable. Id.

An order specifically allowing or rejecting all of the items of the final account of a receiver and directing a distribution of the funds is appealable. Id.

An order, entered after notice and hearing on application of creditors for leave to sue a receiver of the debtor, presented after entry of order sustaining objections to the final report of the receiver and to his discharge which allows the claims of the creditors in a specified sum, and which requires the receiver to pay the same within a specified time, and which authorizes actions against the receiver and his surety for nonpayment within the specified time, is appealable. Id.

IV. RIGHT OF REVIEW

(A) PERSONS ENTITLED

11. Parties or persons injured or aggrieved.

A receiver has no right of appeal from an order segregating creditors into classes with reference to the priority or preference of their claims, or directing the payment of a certain claim in preference to others, or an order adjudicating a certain claim to be preferred as against others that may be classed as general claims. Esmeralda County v. Wildes, 38 Nev. 526; 137 P. 400, 405.

The receiver of a state bank in course of involuntary liquidation has no right of appeal from an order decreeing a certain deposit of county funds to be a preferred claim over that of general creditors and directing its payment in full in advance of the claims of general creditors. Id.

A receiver may appeal from any order affecting his proper duties or personal rights, or where the estate as a whole is interested. Id.

A receiver, as such, has no personal interest in the segregation or distribution of the assets in his hands otherwise than for his compensation, and orders affecting only the rights of creditors, as between each other, do not affect the receiver personally, and he has no right of appeal from such orders. Id.

Under the provisions of Rev. Laws, 5327, which provide that "any party aggrieved may appeal," etc., the word "aggrieved" refers to a substantial grievance. The imposition of some injustice, or illegal obligation or burden, or the denial of some equitable or legal right, would constitute a grievance in the contemplation of the statute. Id.

(B) ESTOPPEL, WAIVER, OR AGREEMENTS AFFECTING RIGHT

12. Recognition of or acquiescence in decision.

Defendant by offering testimony, and not standing on its motion for nonsuit, waived the motion so that it cannot rely, on appeal, on error in denying the motion. Hochsultz v. Potosi Zinc Co., 33 Nev. 198; 110 P. 713.

13. Payment of or on judgment.

Plaintiff does not waive his right of appeal from that portion of a judgment denying him costs by accepting payment for the damage and interest items, and satisfying the judgment to that extent. Glock v. Elges, 39 Nev. 416; 159 P. 629.

V. PRESENTATION AND RESERVATION IN LOWER COURT OF GROUNDS OF REVIEW

(A) ISSUES AND QUESTIONS IN LOWER COURT

14. Necessity of presentation.

The supreme court, on appeal, will not consider questions not jurisdictional, raised for the first time on appeal. Allen v. Ingalls, 33 Nev. 281; 111 P. 34; 114 P. 758; 30 Ann. Cas. 755.

15. Nature and theory of cause.

Where a suit was tried by both parties on the theory that it was in equity, defendant could not object for the first time on appeal that the complaint stated a cause of action at law and that plaintiff had mistaken his remedy which was in equity instead of at law. McStay Supply Co. v. Stoddard, 35 Nev. 284; 132 P. 545.

16. Motions and other incidental and collateral proceedings.

On appeal from a judgment dismissing a suit for want of prosecution, the supreme court cannot consider the matter whether no motion to dismiss was made or argued in the trial court; counsel for plaintiff should have moved to vacate the order of dismissal for that reason, offered evidence in support thereof, and, if the court refused to vacate the order, the supreme court could have considered the question on appeal. Raine v. Ennor, 39 Nev. 365; 158 P. 133.

17. Objections to declaration, complaint, or petition.

The complaint, though praying that title be quieted against defendant, not containing the necessary allegation of a complaint to quiet title, that defendants claim an interest in the property adverse to plaintiffs, but alleging that defendants were endeavoring to cloud and cast a cloud on said property, and the evidence being such as would be offered in an action to prevent a cloud being cast on plaintiff's title, defendants were entitled to assume that the action was brought merely to prevent a cloud, as regards the contention that, because defendants did not urge in the trial court that the complaint did not state a cause of action to quiet title, they cannot do so on appeal, and that therefore the judgment should be reversed, and one quieting title in plaintiffs be ordered for want of denials in the answer. Clay v. Scheeline B. & T. Co., 40 Nev. 9; 159 P. 1081.

18. Objections to plea or answer or to subsequent pleadings.

Plaintiffs, not having, until after judgment, questioned that the answer stated a defense to the matter pleaded in the complaint, cannot on appeal urge failure of defendants to demur to the complaint, as not stating a cause of action, and to deny certain of its allegations, as ground for reversing the judgment and ordering one for plaintiffs; as a demurrer to an answer which does not aid the complaint will be sustained to the defective complaint. Id.

19. Necessity of timely objection.

The giving of an instruction not made the ground of objection and exception when given cannot be taken advantage of on appeal as error. Weck v. Reno Traction Co., 38 Nev. 286; 149 P. 65.

20. Necessity of specific objection.

Rulings upon evidence cannot be reviewed when challenged only by general objections. Wheeler v. O'Brien, 40 Nev. 414; 165 P. 339.

21. Scope and effect of objection.

Where an objection to evidence was sustained, not because of the form of the offer, but on the ground that the evidence was not admissible for the purpose offered, appellant cannot claim on appeal that the evidence was properly excluded because the offer was not in proper form. Peterson v. Silver Peak, 37 Nev. 117; 140 P. 519.

An objection to testimony as to value of land "that the witness is not qualified to show that he is entitled to give his opinion as to the market value of this ranch" was insufficient to raise on appeal the objection that he must first state the facts on which he based his opinion. T. R. G. E. Co. v. Durham, 38 Nev. 313; 149 P. 61.

22. Review of specific questions and particular decisions.

The dismissal of an action without affording plaintiff an opportunity to amend cannot be complained of, where there was no application for a modification of the order or for time to amend. Keenan v. Keenan, 40 Nev. 352; 164 P. 351.

(C) EXCEPTIONS

23. Rulings as to arguments and conduct of counsel.

Where statements made before the jury by counsel for the successful party were to some extent provoked, and no exception was taken to them, the judgment would not be reversed, though the statements were erroneous. Knock v. T. G. R. R. Co., 38 Nev. 144; 145 P. 939; L. R. A. 1915F, 3.

24. Necessity of specific exception.

Exceptions to instructions stating that defendant desired to note a special exception to each instruction given to the jury at plaintiff's request, to each instruction given by the court of its own motion, and to each instruction requested by defendant and refused, were not sufficient under the statute to authorize a review of error in giving and refusing the instructions. Hochschultz v. Potosi Zinc Co., 33 Nev. 198; 110 P. 713.

(D) MOTIONS FOR NEW TRIAL

25. Review of decisions of intermediate courts.

On motion for an instructed verdict the testimony must be viewed in the light which is most favorable to the adverse party. Vascacillas v. Southern Pacific Co., 247 Fed. 8; 159 C. C. A. 226.

26. Necessity of statement of grounds.

Rev. Laws, 5322, requiring service of memorandum of errors upon adverse party, has reference only to errors committed at the trial under section 5320, subd. 7, and not error committed in arriving at an erroneous conclusion as to the legal effect of all the evidence in the case, the making of findings, or entering of judgment. Gulsti v. Gulsti, 41 Nev. 349; 171 P. 161.

Under Rev. Laws, 5328, providing that where an appeal is based on the ground that the evidence does not justify the verdict or support findings, or upon alleged errors in ruling, motion for new trial must be made and determined before the appeal is taken, where the abstractness of an instruction was not urged as ground for new trial, the appellate court could not consider the point. Weck v. Reno Traction Co., 38 Nev. 286; 149 P. 65.

An erroneous instruction not specified as error in the memorandum of exceptions cannot be considered on appeal. Id.

27. Sufficiency and scope of statement of grounds.

An appellant cannot obtain a review of matters not complained of in the motion for new trial. Potosi Zinc Co. v. Mahoney, 36 Nev. 390; 135 P. 1078.

VII. REQUISITES AND PROCEEDINGS FOR TRANSFER OF CAUSE

(A) TIME OF TAKING PROCEEDINGS.

28. Nature and operation of limitations.

An appeal from a judgment taken more than nineteen months after rendition of judgment will be dismissed, under Rev. Laws, 5329. Nelson v. Smith, 42 Nev. 302; 176 P. 261; 178 P. 625.

29. Effect of motion for new trial or rehearing.

An order refusing or granting a motion for a new trial is made and entered, within Rev. Laws, 5329, requiring an appeal from such order to be taken within sixty days after the order has been "made and entered in the case," at the time the order is entered in the minutes of the court, and not at the date of filing of a decision upon the merits of the motion. Id.

30. Effect of delay or failure to take proceedings.

An appeal not taken within one year after rendition of judgment must be dismissed. Paroni v. Simonsen, 34 Nev. 26; 115 P. 415.

The appeal from the judgment, not being taken within the six months from its rendition limited by statute, will be dismissed. Ward v. Silver Peak, 37 Nev. 470; 143 P. 119.

(C) PAYMENT OF FEES OR COSTS, AND BONDS OR OTHER SECURITIES

31. Sufficiency and justification.

While Comp. Laws, 3443, providing that the adverse party may except to the sufficiency of the sureties in an undertaking on appeal, does not require such party to serve notice of his exceptions upon the appellant, the appellant is entitled to such notice, in view of district court rule 10, providing that motions, except ex parte motions, etc., shall be noticed at least five days before the day specified for a hearing. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 181; 135 P. 141.

Comp. Laws, 3443, provides that the adverse party may except to the sufficiency of the sureties in an undertaking on appeal, and that unless they or other sureties justify before the judge or clerk the appeal shall be regarded as if no such undertaking had been given. Section 3699 provides that, where sureties are required to justify, they shall appear before the officer or person authorized to take the justification, and may be examined under oath touching their qualifications as sureties. The act of March 28, 1909, sec. 5 (Rev. Laws, 698), provides relative to the justification by a surety company that a certificate of the secretary of state, showing that such company is authorized to do business in the state, shall be prima facie evidence of all matters therein stated, that any printed copy of a circular issued by the United States treasury department, stating the amount of the capital and surplus of any such company, shall be prima facie evidence of the amount of such capital and surplus, and that, if accompanied with the certificate of the secretary of state, it shall be a complete justification for any amount not exceeding 10 per centum of the capital and surplus. Held, that an instrument excepting to the sufficiency of the surety on an undertaking on appeal, and asking that such surety appear before the judge and justify as required by section 3443, although probably sufficient where personal sureties are given, was not a sufficient exception where the undertaking was executed by a surety company; section 698 having provided an entirely different method for the justification of such companies. Id.

32. Form and contents of bond or undertaking.

Where judgment in justice's court went against defendant, and he brought certiorari against the justice to review the judgment in the district court which dismissed the writ, a bond on appeal to the supreme court, bearing the title of the cause in the justice's court, gave no jurisdiction of the appeal in view of Rev. Laws, 5325, 5330, prescribing the method of appeal. Mazade v. Justice Court, 14 Nev. 481; 172 P. 378.

33. Approval of bond or undertaking.

A bond on appeal from order dismissing writ of certiorari to review judgment of justice's court, which was never filed in the district court as required by Rev. Laws, 5346, nor approved by the justices of the supreme court under section 5358, conferred no jurisdiction of the appeal. Id.

34. Delivery or filing and service of bond or undertaking.

Where it is provided by statute that an appeal is taken by the filing and service of a notice of appeal, but that an appeal shall not be effectual unless an undertaking thereon is filed within five days thereafter, the failure to file the undertaking within the time prescribed does not prevent the filing of a new notice with an undertaking thereafter, providing the time to appeal has not expired. Douglass v. Thompson, 35 Nev. 196; 127 P. 561; Ann. Cas. 1914C. 920.

An undertaking not filed within five days after filing of the notice of appeal, as required by Rev. Laws, 5330, 5346 (Civ. Prac. Act, secs. 388, 404), prevents a review of the case, unless such undertaking is actually approved by a majority of the justices of the supreme court before a hearing on a motion by the respondent to dismiss, under Rev. Laws, 5358 (Civ. Prac. Act, sec. 416), providing that no appeal shall be dismissed for insufficiency of the undertaking on appeal if a good and sufficient undertaking approved by a majority of the justices be filed before a hearing upon motion to dismiss the appeal. Shute v. Big Meadow Inv. Co., 41 Nev. 361; 170 P. 1049.

35. Bond or undertaking on review of two or more decisions.

Where an appeal is taken both from the judgment and the order denying a motion for new trial, a single undertaking is sufficient. Winters v. Winters, 34 Nev. 233; 123 P. 17, 1135.

(D) WRIT OF ERROR. CITATION OR NOTICE

36. Sufficiency.

The indorsements and the file marks on the original notice of appeal filed with the clerk of the court were no part of the notice, and a failure to include them in the copy served on the adverse party did not affect its validity. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 181; 135 P. 141.

37. Persons to be served.

While it is better practice to direct notice of appeal to all of the parties who, under any circumstances, might have adverse interests on the appeal, under the statute, if notice be served upon the adverse parties, it is sufficient. Douglass v. Thompson, 35 Nev. 196; 127 P. 561; Ann. Cas. 1914C. 920.

IX. SUPERSEDEAS OR STAY OF PROCEEDINGS

38. Right to supersedeas or stay.

On appeal from a mandatory injunction requiring defendant to release water from its reservoir and permit it to flow down the stream so that plaintiff could use it, defendant was entitled as a matter of right, to a stay of proceedings upon the injunction upon the filing of a proper stay bond. State v. Ducker, 35 Nev. 214; 127 P. 990.

39. Use of appeal or cost bond as supersedeas bond.

Where an action was instituted to recover possession of certain mines under a contract giving plaintiffs the right to take possession of and work the mines, defendants, to stay execution pending appeal from a judgment for plaintiffs, were bound to give an undertaking, the amount of which should be fixed by the judge under Comp. Laws, 3440, providing that, if a judgment appealed from directs the delivery of possession of real property, execution shall not be stayed unless a written undertaking be executed by appellant to the effect that during the possession of the property by appellant he will not commit or suffer any waste thereon, and that, if the judgment be affirmed, he will pay the value of the use and occupation from the time of appeal until delivery of possession pursuant to the judgment or order, not exceeding the sum fixed by the judge, a $300 cost bond being insufficient for such stay. Silver Peak v. District Court, 33 Nev. 97; 110 P. 503; 29 Ann. Cas. 587.

Where, after judgment in favor of plaintiffs, the parties stipulated that the operation of a writ of assistance would be stayed to such a time as the court might set for the hearing of testimony to determine the amount of a stay bond, and that the bond, as to its form and sufficiency, should be approved by the court or a judge thereof, and should be to the end and substantially in the form as though on an appeal and given under Comp. Laws, 3440, defendants were thereafter estopped to contend that such section did not cover the bond to be given, and that the giving of a $300 cost bond was sufficient to stay the execution of the writ pending appeal. Id.

40. Amount or penalty of bond or undertaking.

When application was first made to the court to fix a stay bond pending appeal in an action to recover certain mines, the court was unable to give the matter due consideration, and authorized a temporary stay on the giving of an appeal bond for $300, reserving the right thereafter to establish the amount of a permanent bond to stay execution, pending appeal, and fixed a date for the hearing of proofs on that subject. The court thereafter fixed $150,000 as the amount of an undertaking to stay execution pending a motion for a new trial, and until fifteen days thereafter. Defendants failed to introduce any proof regarding the value of the ore they were removing from the property, and as to the plaintiff's damage from waste by their continued possession. Held, that the court had jurisdiction to fix the amount of such stay bond. Id.

41. Time of giving bond.

A bond to stay execution pending appeal may be given any time before the execution has been executed. Id.

42. Attachment and garnishment.

Where the court dissolved an attachment of personal property and the attaching officer immediately delivered it over to the debtor and took his receipt therefor, the court's order was executed, and the subsequent appeal and bond staying the execution of the order were ineffective, and the debtor might thereafter dispose of the property as he saw fit. Green v. Hooper, 41 Nev. 13; 167 P. 23.

X. RECORD AND PROCEEDINGS NOT IN RECORD

(B) SCOPE AND CONTENTS OF RECORD

43. Pleadings and proceedings relating thereto.

Upon appeal from an order denying costs, the pleadings cannot be considered unless embodied in a statement attached to the order. Glock v. Elges, 39 Nev. 415; 159 P. 629.

44. Proceedings on reference.

The findings of fact and conclusions of law of a referee cannot be considered on appeal when they are not included in any statement of appeal or motion for new trial or proper bill of exceptions, because they are not a part of the judgment roll. Western E. Co. v. Nevada A. Co., 33 Nev. 203; 110 P. 1129.

45. Verdict, findings or decision.

As an appeal, in the absence of statement or bill of exceptions, carries up the judgment roll alone, findings made by the trial court cannot be considered, in the absence of a statement or bill of exceptions. Werner v. Babcock, 34 Nev. 42; 116 P. 357.

46. Opinion of lower court.

Though section 340 of the civil practice act (Comp. Laws, 3445) provides, among other things, that if any written opinion be placed on file, in entering judgment or making an order below, a copy shall be furnished, certified in like manner, etc., a written opinion and findings of the lower court do not constitute any part of the "judgment roll," but are only intended to aid the appellate court in the determination of an appeal. Id.

(C) NECESSITY OF BILL OF EXCEPTIONS, CASE, OR STATEMENT OF FACTS

47. Decisions not otherwise reviewable.

On appeal from the judgment roll alone, where the judgment roll shows that a demurrer to the complaint was presented to the court, and discloses a ruling thereon, an order sustaining a demurrer is deemed to have been excepted to, under Stats. 1915, c. 208, and alleged error in so ruling is not required to be presented by bill of exceptions. Walser v. Moran 42 Nev. 497; 181 P. 437.

48. Scope and sufficiency of case, statement, or certificate of evidence.

A statement on appeal is presumed to contain all the evidence and need not contain certificate to that effect. Gamble v. Silver Peak, 34 Nev. 351; 126 P. 111.

Under Comp Laws, 3864, which provides that a statement on appeal is presumed to contain all the evidence, a statement need not contain a certificate that it contains all the material evidence in the case. Gamble v. Silver Peak, 34 Nev. 352; 126 P. 111.

49. Substitutes.

Rev. Laws, 5320, specifies the causes for which new trials may be granted. Sections 5321, 5322, provide that a motion for error in law occurring at the trial and excepted to by the party making application must be made upon the minutes of the court without statement or bill of exceptions, and that the moving party shall, within ten days after the service of motion for new trial, serve upon the adverse party a memorandum of such errors as he intends to rely on upon the motion, verified by his attorney. Section 5325 provides that a judgment or order in a civil case may be reviewed as prescribed by the title. Section 5328 provides that when the appeal is based on the ground of errors in rulings on the evidence or upon the giving of erroneous instructions, appellant must present his motion for a new trial to the trial court and have it determined before the appeal can be taken. Section 5331 defines a statement on appeal and presents the method of serving, filing, settling, and amending the same. Section 5335 provides that the omission to make a statement within the time limited shall be deemed a waiver of the right thereto, and the omission of proposed amendments an implied agreement to the statement, and section 5343 provides that a bill of exceptions may be taken to the order or ruling of the court, which shall be signed by the presiding judge and become a part of the record, and that any party aggrieved may appeal from the judgment or any appealable order without further statement or motion. Defendant filed a "Memorandum of Exceptions," submitted and relied upon in support of its motion for a new trial, which was verified by its attorney, but not settled by the court. Held, that the memorandum could not be considered as filing the office of bills of exceptions or a statement on appeal. Ward v. Pittsburg Silver Peak, 39 Nev. 80; 148 P. 345; 153 P. 434.

Absence of statement on appeal is unobjectionable where counsel have stipulated that the statement on motion for a new trial shall be considered as a statement on appeal. Gamble v. Silver Peak, 34 Nev. 351; 126 P. 111.

50. Effect of failure to make bill, case, or statement.

By direct provision of Rev. Laws, 5338, a party may appeal on the judgment roll alone. Daly v. Lahontan Mines Co., 39 Nev. 14; 151 P. 514; 158 P. 285.

Within Rev. Laws, 5358, providing that an appeal shall not be dismissed for any irregularity not affecting the jurisdiction of the court to hear and determine the appeal, or affecting the substantial rights of the parties, where there was no bill of exceptions or statement on appeal, but only a memorandum of exceptions for use on a motion for a new trial, the matter was one of jurisdiction. Ward v. Pittsburg Silver Peak, 39 Nev. 80; 148 P. 345; 153 P. 434.

(D) CONTENTS, MAKING, AND SETTLEMENT OF CASE OR STATEMENT OF FACTS

51. Matters included.

The order denying the motion for a new trial, or the minute entry thereof, must be contained in the statement on appeal to give the supreme court jurisdiction. In Re Cook's Estate, 34 Nev. 217; 117 P. 27.

52. Time for making and filing or service.

Where plaintiff made a late filing below of its statement on appeal, its complaint and the reply, denying the affirmative matter in the answer, having been verified, its application for relief from the default should not have been denied merely for failure to file an affidavit of merits, since the trial court, to which the application was made, had the pleadings before it and had heard the evidence, and so could consider them in determining the question of the merits of the appeal. Bank of Italy v. Burns, 38 Nev. 398; 150 P. 249.

In considering an application for relief from the entry of a default for late filing below of a statement on appeal, the trial court should grant the relief sought in a case of doubt. Id.

Under Rev. Laws, 5331, requiring a proposed statement to be served and filed within thirty days after written notice of the judgment or order appealed from, any defect in such notice is waived by serving and filing a notice of appeal. Glock v. Elges, 39 Nev. 415; 159 P. 629.

A statement, not served and filed within the time prescribed by Rev. Laws, 5331, cannot be considered on appeal. Id.

A failure to serve and file a statement within the time prescribed by Rev. Laws, 5331, does not defeat the appeal, where it was duly perfected under section 5330, by filing a notice of appeal and undertaking or waiver thereof. Id.

(F) MAKING, FORM, AND REQUISITES OF TRANSCRIPT OR RETURN

53. Duty to make.

Counsel should personally supervise the making up of the record on appeal and not rely upon the clerks of court, and should examine the transcripts before they are sent up, if possible, so as to make timely correction of any defects therein. In Re Cook's Estate, 34 Nev. 217; 117 P. 27.

(H) TRANSMISSION, FILING, PRINTING, AND SERVICE OF COPIES

54. Excuses for delay.

An objection that transcript of record was not filed within thirty days after the appeal had been perfected, in compliance with supreme court rule 2, was waived, where, after the transcript was filed, counsel for the parties entered into stipulations in which additional time to serve and file points and authorities was given to counsel for respondent, especially where the respondent failed to timely move for dismissal. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 497; 181 P. 437.

55. Service of copies.

Where transcript was served in part before docketing of cause in the supreme court and the remainder within a reasonable time thereafter, the appeal will not be dismissed under court rule 13 relating to the curing of technical objections, the policy of the court being to give the appellant every reasonable opportunity to be heard. Guisti v. Guisti, 41 Nev. 349; 171 P. 161.

56. Effect of failure to print or serve copies.

Motion to strike assignment of errors, not filed in the time prescribed by Stats. 1915, c. 142, sec. 13, and no memorandum of errors being served on respondent pursuant to Rev. Laws, 5322, is well taken. Gardner v. Pacific Power Co., 40 Nev. 343; 163 P. 731.

(I) DEFECTS, OBJECTIONS, AMENDMENT AND CORRECTION

57. Authority.

This court cannot require the trial court to add or take from the statement or bill of exceptions as settled by the trial judge. Upon a proper showing that an exception was insisted upon before the trial court and refused, the supreme court, if the exception is clearly proven, will determine the exception and ruling and the facts applicable thereto to be a part of the record on appeal, not in the nature of an amendment to the bill or statement as settled by the trial judge, but with the same force and effect. Miller v. Miller, 36 Nev. 115; 134 P. 100; 136 P. 978.

The supreme court has no power to make a new statement on appeal, which must be settled in the lower court, or to direct that court to make one, the statement having been settled as prescribed by statute; but any relief under the practice act, sec. 142 (Rev. Laws, 5084), by reason of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect of appellant, must be had in the lower court; a motion for a new trial there made having never been determined. Skaggs v. Bridgman, 39 Nev. 310; 154 P. 77; 159 P. 521.

58. Supplying omissions.

Where the clerk's certificate referred to an "appeal from the order denying a new trial herein," the supreme court may, on appellant's application, permit him to supply the order by filing a minute entry thereof, so as to enable the supreme court to consider the appeal, though the statement on appeal originally did not contain the motion for a new trial, or a minute entry thereof. In Re Cook's Estate, 34 Nev. 217; 117 P. 27.

59. Striking out.

Whether there shall be stricken from the files on appeal from an order refusing a new trial, a transcript of the testimony and proceedings certified by the reporter, but with nothing to indicate that it had been agreed on by counsel or settled and allowed by the court as a statement on appeal, or that it was used at the hearing on the motion for the new trial, depends on whether or not the minutes of the court offered by appellant under the rule as to diminution of the record, when admitted, show it is in some way properly connected with the appeal. Ward v. Silver Peak, 37 Nev. 470; 143 P. 119.

(K) QUESTIONS PRESENTED FOR REVIEW

60. Limitation by scope of record.

Where a judgment is supported by the pleadings and nothing save the record proper is before the appellate court, it must be affirmed. Werner v. Babcock, 34 Nev. 42; 116 P. 357.

61. Errors on face of record.

Where a receiver's accounts are not made part of the record on appeal from an order refusing to set aside an order fixing his compensation, it is not shown on such appeal that the petition for compensation misled the court by misstating his accounts, so that a mistake in its action appeared as a matter of record below. State v. Wildes, 37 Nev. 56; 139 P. 505; 142 P. 627.

62. Question on interlocutory proceedings.

In the absence of a statement on appeal or bill of exceptions, the appellate court is confined to examination of the judgment roll alone, and cannot review the denial of a continuance to take depositions. Rosenthal v. Rosenthal, 39 Nev. 74; 153 P. 91.

XI. ASSIGNMENT OF ERRORS

63. Purpose and functions.

An assignment of errors is founded upon the bill of exceptions. Coffin v. Coffin, 40 Nev. 345; 163 P. 731.

64. Necessity.

In the absence of an assignment of error to the sustaining of a demurrer to the cause of action, the ruling will not be reviewed. Lamb v. Lucky Boy M. Co., 37 Nev. 9; 138 P. 902.

Where the appeal is upon the judgment roll alone, no assignment of errors is necessary. Miller v. Walser, 42 Nev. 497; 181 P. 437.

Where demurrer to complaint for libel was sustained, all the matters pertaining to the proceedings in the trial court so far as affecting the plaintiff's rights are embraced in the "judgment roll" within Rev. Laws, 5273, subd. 2, stating what constitutes the judgment roll, so that under Stats. 1915, c. 142, sec. 11, permitting an appeal on the judgment roll alone, it was unnecessary, to file assignments of error as required by section 13 of such act. Talbot v. Mack, 41 Nev. 245; 169 P. 25.

A point not presented by an assignment of error cannot be considered on appeal. Wright v. Washoe County Bank, 251 F. 819, 163 C. C. A. 653.

65. Time for filing.

Stats. 1915, c. 142, sec. 13, providing that assignments of error shall be served on the adverse parties and filed with the clerk of the supreme court within twenty days after an appeal has been taken, and that if not so filed no error shall be considered, is peremptory and leaves no room for construction, so that, if the assignment be not filed within the time limited, the omission may not be cured by a subsequent filing, in the absence of fraud, had faith, or deception on the part of respondent. Coffin v. Coffin, 40 Nev. 345; 163 P. 731.

Motion to affirm, copy of transcript of record not being served on respondent, as required by supreme court rule 25, par. 3, and appellant's points and authorities or brief not being filed and served in the time provided by rule 11, is well taken. Gardner v. Pacific Power Co., 40 Nev. 343; 163 P. 731.

66. Scope and effect of assignment.

A memorandum of errors filed and served in support of a motion for a new trial may be considered on appeal without further assignment of errors. Torp v. Clemons, 37 Nev. 474; 142 P. 1115.

XII. BRIEFS

67. Specification of errors.

The supreme court may consider and determine the merits of an appeal or proceeding upon questions other than those considered by counsel. But, where such questions suggest themselves to the court, the better practice would be to request counsel to consider the same and afford them opportunity to be heard thereon. Radovich v. W. U. Tel. Co., 36 Nev. 341; 135 P. 920; 136 P. 704.

68. Striking out.

Where statements in the reply brief of counsel for appellant reflecting upon the professional conduct of counsel for respondent are not warranted by anything appearing in the record, they are improper and will be directed to be expunged. Raine v. Ennor, 39 Nev. 365; 158 P. 133.

69. Failure to set out points and arguments.

Assignments of error not referred to in the briefs or oral argument do not require consideration. State v. King, 35 Nev. 153; 126 P. 880.

XIII. DISMISSAL, WITHDRAWAL OR ABANDONMENT

70. Want of actual controversy.

An appeal will be dismissed upon proof by affidavit that there is no longer a controversy for determination. Foster v. Jones, 35 Nev. 248; 128 P. 986.

Where, pending appeal from judgment sustaining demurrer to the complaint in an action to enjoin a nuisance, defendant built its plant and operated it for three years, without any perceptible harm to plaintiff's lands, the appeal would be dismissed as embodying a "moot case," one seeking to determine an abstract question which does not rest upon existing facts or rights, since the cause of action of plaintiff's complaint, if any was alleged, was based upon a threatened injury to its lands from proposed action which did not in fact follow such action. Pac. L. Co. v. Mason Val. M. Co., 39 Nev. 105; 153 P. 431.

71. Defects in proceedings for review.

Notwithstanding Rev. Laws, 5358, where appellant fails to comply, at least substantially, with the provisions of the statute, the court can do nothing but dismiss the appeal, as the right of appeal is regulated by statute. Ward v. Pittsburg Silver Peak, 39 Nev. 80; 184 P. 345; 153 P. 434.

72. Proceedings frivolous or for delay.

Where appellant filed an affidavit that he had been taken seriously ill about the time the appeal was taken, and was confined to a hospital for about two months thereafter, and was not aware for about a year and a half that his appeal had not been duly prosecuted, and that he did not know, prior to that time, that he was without attorney in the supreme court, the court will not dismiss the appeal on the ground that it was taken for delay merely. Golden v. McKim, 37 Nev. 205; 141 P. 676.

73. Time for making.

That a motion to dismiss an appeal for noncompliance with supreme court rules 2 and 3, providing that the transcript of the record must be filed within thirty days after the appeal has been perfected and the statement settled, otherwise the appeal will be dismissed on motion without notice, was not filed until more than three terms had elapsed after the appeal was taken and the record filed in the supreme court, did not amount to a waiver of the right to make a motion; supreme court rule 8, providing that objections to the record affecting any right "which might be cured on suggestion of diminution of the record," not applying. Skages v. Bridgman, 39 Nev. 310; 154 P. 77; 159 P. 521.

74. Hearing and determination.

An appeal regularly taken will not be dismissed unless it clearly appears the appeal was taken for delay, or apparent want of prosecution is not accounted for. Boyce v. Third Chance M. Co., 36 Nev. 53; 123 P. 397.

It is the practice of the supreme court to hear motions to dismiss and other preliminary motions together with the merits unless special reasons for the contrary exist. Id.

75. Abandonment.

That appellant having failed for more than six months to file briefs, or to appear and argue the case on a motion to dismiss or on the merits after notice of the hearing, and having made no request to submit the cause without argument or brief, warrants an inference of abandonment of the appeal, which was from the judgment roll alone, so that the judgment is properly affirmed; no glaring defects appearing on the face of the judgment roll. Potosi Zinc Co. v. Mahoney, 34 Nev. 295; 119 P. 775.

76. Vacating order and reinstatement.

An appeal dismissed for noncompliance with supreme court rules 2 and 3 will not be restored, where no purpose would be served, the record presenting for consideration only the judgment roll showing no error. Skaggs v. Bridgman, 39 Nev. 310; 154 P. 77; 159 P. 521.

XV. HEARING AND REHEARING

77. Grounds—Petition for rehearing.

The questions raised for the first time on a petition for a rehearing will not be considered. Gamble v. Silver Peak, 35 Nev. 319; 133 P. 936.

An appellant who has prevailed on appeal and obtained a reversal of the judgment and order appealed from, as prayed for, will not be heard for the first time on reply to a petition for a rehearing, to suggest that a further order be made directing the lower court to dismiss the action. Id.

78. Scope and conduct.

A point not urged in supreme court upon original hearing cannot be considered on petition for rehearing. Nelson v. Smith, 42 Nev. 303; 176 P. 261; 178 P. 625.

XVI. REVIEW

(A) SCOPE AND EXTENT

79. Matters not necessary to decision on review.

The supreme court will not determine constitutional questions which are not essential to a decision of the case. U. S. F. & G. Co. v. Marks, 37 Nev. 306; 142 P. 524.

80. Trial in equitable actions.

In equity case, verdict of jury is merely advisory, and in such cases supreme court will not review errors assigned to instructions given to jury. Nelson v. Smith, 42 Nev. 303; 176 P. 261; 178 P. 625.

81. Rulings as law of case.

The court on appeal will assume a ruling of the trial court not questioned by counsel for the adverse party to have been correct. Seeley v. Goodwin, 39 Nev. 315; 156 P. 934.

82. Reasons for decision.

The rule of law that a judgment which is right will not be reversed merely because a wrong reason is given may not be applied to uphold a judgment not sustained by sufficient evidence. Richards v. Vermilyea, 42 Nev. 294; 175 P. 188; 180 P. 121.

83. On appeal from decision on motion for new trial or after grant of new trial.

An exception, properly before and considered by the court in denying a motion for new trial, may be considered on appeal from the order denying the motion, though it might have been made the basis of a direct appeal from the judgment. Ward v. Silver Peak, 37 Nev. 470; 143 P. 119.

(B) INTERLOCUTORY, COLLATERAL, AND SUPPLEMENTARY PROCEEDINGS AND QUESTIONS

84. Interlocutory proceedings brought up.

An order denying a motion for a continuance can only be reviewed by appeal from a judgment or order refusing a new trial, or by bill of exceptions properly allowed by the trial court. Rosenthal v. Rosenthal, 39 Nev. 74; 153 P. 91.

Under Rev. Laws, 5340, the court on appeal from judgment will review court's ruling on motion to strike certain affirmative matter pleaded in answer. Potter v. L. A. & S. L. R. R., 42 Nev. 370; 177 P. 933.

85. On separate appeal from interlocutory judgment or order.

Where the case is before the supreme court on appeal from an order sustaining demurrer to the complaint, the court cannot look back of the complaint to ascertain the facts. Daly v. Lahontan Mines Co., 39 Nev. 15; 151 P. 514; 158 P. 285.

(C) PARTIES ENTITLED TO ALLEGE ERROR

86. Error committed or invited by party complaining.

(D) AMENDMENTS, ADDITIONAL PROOFS AND TRIAL OF CAUSE ANEW

87. Additional proofs.

The court on appeal from a judgment based on findings that land is mineral may consider a patent since issued conclusive that the land is not mineral. Earl v. Morrison, 39 Nev. 120; 154 P. 75.

(E) PRESUMPTIONS

88. Burden of showing error.

The parties claiming error on appeal must clearly establish it. Peterson v. Silver Peak, 37 Nev. 117; 140 P. 519.

89. In general.

The court on appeal from a judgment only, will presume that the evidence is sufficient to support the findings of the trial court. Wolf v. Humboldt County, 36 Nev. 26; 131 P. 964; 45 L. R. A. (N.S.) 762.

Where the executors of an estate had made two reports before their final report, each of which was proved and settled by the court, and there was no evidence in the record that the estate could have been settled sooner with advantage, the court would not presume such to have been the fact. In Re Hartung's Estate, 39 Nev. 200; 155 P. 353.

Where the evidence is not included in the transcript, the supreme court is bound to assume that it supports the findings. Phillips v. Snowden Placer Co., 40 Nev. 67; 160 P. 786.

90. Pleading.

The presumption, if any, as to time of filing the petition in bankruptcy, is that it was filed on the day of the adjudication of bankruptcy; the act of July 1, 1898, c. 541, 30 Stats. 551 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3429), requiring no notice of the hearing, but contemplating a hearing forthwith and an adjudication or a dismissal of the petition. Allen v. Ingalls, 33 Nev. 281; 111 P. 34; 114 P. 758; 30 Ann. Cas. 755.

91. Dismissal, nonsuit, demurrer to evidence, or direction of verdict.

In view of Rev. Laws, 4922, 5356, a judgment of dismissal is sufficient without a recital in the record that a motion to dismiss had been made; the presumption being that everything was done to lay the foundation for a valid judgment of dismissal, whether the making of a motion to dismiss, or something more. Raine v. Ennor, 39 Nev. 365; 158 P. 133.

92. Findings of court or referee.

Findings necessary to support the judgment are presumed where findings are not made or requested. Murray v. Osborne, 33 Nev. 267; 111 P. 31.

Where the record showed that, on a motion to open a default on the ground of excusable neglect, the court admitted an English statute offered in evidence by plaintiff to support her contention that defendants could not be heard on their motion, but failed to show that the court acted in any way on such statute, it would not be assumed that he gave such contention serious consideration. Esden v. May, 36 Nev. 612; 135 P. 1185.

Fact that trial court refused to find as requested, not showing court did not find at all, and record not affirmatively showing court either failed or refused to follow practice act, supreme court will not presume against regularity of proceedings of trial court as to findings. Moore v. Rochester W. M. Co., 42 Nev. 165; 174 P. 1017.

93. Taking and perfecting appeal or other proceeding for review.

Where, on a motion to dismiss an appeal on the ground that the copy of the notice of appeal was served on the respondent before the filing of the original, it appeared that the filing and service were on the same day, and the affidavit of respondent's counsel that the original was filed after the service of the copy was apparently based upon the assumption that the copy should have included a copy of the indorsements on the original, contained no facts showing any particular knowledge of the order of filing and service, other than that gained from the documents, and was contradicted by the affidavit of the appellant's attorney that the filing preceded the service, the presumption that they were filed in regular order was not overcome. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 181; 135 P. 141.

Where it appeared that a copy of notice of appeal was served on the attorneys for the respondent on the same day that the original notice was filed with clerk, it would be presumed, in the absence of proof to the contrary, that the filing preceded the service. Id.

94. Making and contents of transcript or abstract of record.

Where a judgment roll contains a demurrer to the complaint, and an amended complaint is in the record, it will be inferred that the demurrer was sustained, and that the original complaint was superseded by the amended complaint, and the absence of the original complaint from the transcript is a mere technical omission, which could have been cured on suggestion of diminution of the record under supreme court rule 8, and could not have prejudiced the rights of respondent. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 497; 181 P. 437.

(F) DISCRETION OF LOWER COURT

95. Power to review.

If the trial court passes on a motion to vacate an alleged fraudulent award of arbitrators, the court of review will rarely disturb such a discretionary order. Nelson v. Reinhart, 41 Nev. 69; 167 P. 690.

96. Opening default.

Ordinarily an appellate court will not disturb an order setting aside a default where the application is made on the ground of inadvertence or excusable neglect and supported by an affidavit or showing of merits. Esden v. May, 36 Nev. 612; 135 P. 1185.

97. Amended and supplemental pleadings.

The allowance or refusal of leave to amend pleadings in actions at law is discretionary with the trial court, the exercise of which is not reviewable except in case of gross abuse of discretion. T. R. G. E. Co. v. Benner, 211 F. 79; 127 C. C. A. 503.

98. Proceedings preliminary to trial—Continuance.

A motion for a continuance is addressed to the discretion of the court, and its ruling will not be reversed, except for most potent reasons. Neven v. Neven, 38 Nev. 541; 148 P. 354; 154 P. 78; Ann. Cas. 1918B, 1083.

99. Examination of witnesses.

While ordinarily the allowance of leading questions is no ground for reversal, even if the trial court abuses its discretion, the abuse may be so flagrant as to require a reversal. Anderson v. Berrum, 36 Nev. 465; 136 P. 973.

100. New trial or rehearing—For insufficiency of evidence.

Orders of the trial court granting new trial for insufficiency of conflicting evidence will not be disturbed, in the absence of a clear abuse of discretion. Goldfield Mohawk Co. v. Frances-Mohawk Co., 35 Nev. 424; 129 P. 315.

(G) QUESTIONS OF FACT, VERDICTS AND FINDINGS

101. Power and duty to review.

The parties to an action tried without a jury cannot by consent or stipulation authorize the Circuit Court of Appeals to review the sufficiency of the evidence to support a general finding, as the authority of that court is regulated by statute, and its jurisdiction cannot be enlarged or extended by consent or stipulation of the parties. Sierra Land and Livestock Co. v. Desert Power and Mill Co., 229 F. 982; 144 C. C. A. 264.

102. Questions involving issues of fact.

Court's refusal to bar an attorney from appearing for plaintiffs on ground that he had been previously hired by defendants, where based upon conflicting testimony on question of fact as to whether he was so employed, will not be disturbed by the supreme court. Nelson v. Smith, 42 Nev. 302; 176 P. 261; 178 P. 625.

103. Verdicts—Sufficiency of evidence in support.

The jury's finding as to the cause of injuries to an employee in a mine, thrown from the bucket in which he was riding, when supported by substantial evidence, will not be disturbed. Ryan v. Manhattan M. Co., 38 Nev. 92; 145 P. 907.

A judgment will not be reversed where there is substantial evidence to support it. Jensen v. Pradere, 39 Nev. 446; 159 P. 54.

On a writ of error to review a judgment entered on the verdict of a jury, if there is any substantial evidence to support the verdict, it is sufficient, the determination of the weight to which it is entitled not being within the province of the appellate court, which is confined to a consideration of exceptions, to the admission or rejection of evidence, and to the charge of the court and its refusal to charge. Montana Tonopah M. Co. v. Dunlap, 196 F. 612; 116 C. C. A. 286.

104. Verdicts—On conflicting evidence.

On appeal from a verdict for the plaintiff, in an action where the testimony was conflicting, facts may be regarded as shown by the evidence for the plaintiff. Forrester v. S. P. Co., 36 Nev. 247; 134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1.

In a suit to establish and enforce a trust a finding of the existence of the trust, based on substantially conflicting evidence, will not be reversed on appeal. Torp v. Clemons, 37 Nev. 474; 142 P. 1115.

The finding of the jury on controverted issues of fact, if supported by substantial evidence, cannot be disturbed on appeal. H. H. M. Safe Co. v. Baillet, 38 Nev. 164; 145 P. 941.

Where the evidence is conflicting, the verdict will not be disturbed on appeal. Knock v. T. & G. R. R. Co., 38 Nev. 143; 145 P. 939; L. R. A. 1915F, 3.

A verdict based upon conflicting evidence will not be disturbed by the supreme court. Nelson v. Smith, 42 Nev. 303; 176 P. 261; 178 P. 625.

105. Verdicts—Against weight of evidence.

Where testimony as to matters essential to a recovery is contradicted by physical facts, a verdict contrary to the physical facts must be set aside, but testimony contrary to a physical fact as to a matter not controlling affects only the credibility of the witnesses. Knock v. T. & G. R. R. Co., 38 Nev. 143; 145 P. 939; L. R. A. 1915F, 3.

106. Verdicts—Amount of recovery.

In actions in which there is no legal rule for the measure of damages, the allowance by the jury will not be disturbed as excessive unless it is so flagrantly improper as to indicate prejudice or corruption in the jury, especially where the trial court has approved the award by denying a new trial. Forrester v. S. P. Co., 36 Nev. 248; 134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1.

Where there was a substantial conflict as to the nature and the duration of the injuries sued for, and the amount of the verdict was reasonably supported by the evidence, the injured person testified as a witness, the jury had ample opportunity to observe his manner, conduct, and condition, and he was subjected to a long and careful cross-examination, the verdict will not be disturbed as excessive. Ryan v. Manhattan M. Co., 38 Nev. 93; 145 P. 907.

An objection that the damages allowed were excessive is not reviewable by the circuit court of appeals. Truckee R. G. E. Co. v. Benner, 211 F. 79; 127 C. C. A. 503.

107. Verdicts—Approval of trial court.

This court will not disturb a verdict if there is any substantial evidence to support it, especially where a motion for nonsuit has been overruled and a motion for a new trial has been denied. Leete v. S. P. Co., 37 Nev. 49; 139 P. 29.

108. Findings of court—Conclusiveness.

Where, in action for attorney's services, the court found that plaintiffs were entitled to recover fees on the basis of a schedule claimed to have been submitted by them to defendant before the services were rendered, and that the schedule rates were the reasonable value of the services, the case would be so considered on appeal, and the opinions of experts, placing a different value on the services rendered, would not be regarded as controlling. Thompson v. Tonopah L. Co., 37 Nev. 183; 141 P. 69.

In cases tried by the court without a jury, the same consideration is given to the court's findings as to a verdict, and the same rules apply as to reversing them on appeal, on the ground that they are contrary to the evidence, as apply to a verdict. Id.

Under Rev. St. sec. 700 (Comp. St. 1913, sec. 1668), providing that, when an issue of fact in any civil case is tried and determined by the court without a jury, the rulings of the court in progress of the trial, if excepted to at the time and duly presented by a bill of exceptions, may be reviewed upon writ of error or appeal, and that when the finding is special the review may extend to a determination of the sufficiency of the facts found to support the judgment, an appellate court cannot, on writ of error, inquire into the sufficiency of the testimony to support a general finding, where at the close of the testimony there was no application for a declaration of law that upon the whole case the finding should be for plaintiff or for defendant. Sierra Land and Livestock Co. v. Desert Power and Mill Co., 229 F. 982; 144 C. C. A. 264.

109. Findings of court—Sufficiency of evidence in support.

The weight of the evidence and the credibility of witnesses is within the exclusive province of the trial court, and this court will not disturb a judgment unless it can be said, as a matter of law, that there is no substantial evidence in support of it. Jones v. West End Con. M. Co., 36 Nev. 149; 134 P. 104.

An appellate court is reluctant to disturb the trial court's judgment on the ground that the evidence does not justify it, and will not do so except where there is no substantial evidence to support it. Gault v. Grose, 39 Nev. 274; 155 P. 1098.

A finding supported by substantial evidence will not be disturbed, where no passion or prejudice on the trial court's part is indicated. De Remer v. Anderson, 41 Nev. 288; 169 P. 737.

Findings of the trial court are reluctantly disturbed, and will not be interfered with where there is substantial evidence to sustain them. McCone v. Eccles, 42 Nev. 451; 181 P. 134.

110. Findings of court—On conflicting evidence.

It is the exclusive province of the court, acting without a jury, to determine the facts on conflicting evidence, and its finding sustained by any substantial evidence is conclusive on appeal. Murray v. Osborne, 33 Nev. 267; 111 P. 31.

The supreme court will not disturb findings on conflicting evidence. Botsford v. Van Riper, 33 Nev. 156; 110 P. 705.

A finding on conflicting evidence is conclusive upon appeal. Indiana M. Co. v. Gold Hills Co., 35 Nev. 158; 126 P. 965.

Finding of fact on conflicting evidence will not be reversed on appeal. McStay Supply Co. v. Stoddard, 35 Nev. 284; 132 P. 545.

Findings of the lower court upon conflicting evidence are binding upon the supreme court. Round Mountain Co. v. Sphinx Co., 35 Nev. 392; 129 P. 308.

Court's finding of facts on conflicting evidence is conclusive on appeal. Girton v. Daniels, 35 Nev. 438; 129 P. 555.

Where there is a material conflict in the testimony, the decision of the trial court will be deemed conclusive on appeal. R. B. F. M. Co. v. R. C. M. Co., 33 Nev. 307; 111 P. 30.

Where the evidence is conflicting, a finding of the trial court will not be disturbed on appeal. Jensen v. Wilslef, 36 Nev. 37; 132 P. 16; Ann. Cas. 1914D, 1220.

A finding by the trial court on conflicting evidence will not be disturbed on appeal, unless it is clear that a wrong conclusion has been reached. Potosi Zinc Co. v. Mahoney, 36 Nev. 390; 135 P. 1078.

Findings of the trial court based upon conflicting testimony are conclusive upon this court upon appeal. The decision of the district court in adverse proceedings based upon conflicting evidence is binding upon the supreme court and the federal land office. Round Mountain v. Round Mountain Sphinx, 36 Nev. 546; 138 P. 71.

Where there is a substantial conflict in the testimony, the appellate court will not substitute its judgment for that of the trial court, and will only interfere when it is clear that a wrong conclusion was reached. Robinson M. Co. v. Riepe, 37 Nev. 27; 138 P. 910.

The supreme court will not disturb the finding of the trial court on conflicting evidence, if there is any substantial evidence to support it. Thompson v. Tonopah L. Co., 37 Nev. 183; 141 P. 69.

The judgment in a case tried without a jury will not be disturbed on appeal, though the evidence is conflicting, where it is supported by any substantial evidence. Rehling v. Brainard, 38 Nev. 17; 144 P. 167; Ann. Cas. 1917C, 656.

A judgment based on substantially conflicting testimony will not be disturbed on appeal. Albee v. Albee, 38 Nev. 191; 147 P. 452.

Where the testimony of the plaintiff on the trial of an action to foreclose a mechanic's lien was positive that a notice disclaiming liability for the work done was not posted, and the defendant's testimony was equally positive that it was posted, there was such a conflict in the testimony that the determination of the lower court would not be disturbed. Gaston v. Avensino, 39 Nev. 128; 154 P. 85.

Where the testimony of defendant and his witnesses was controverted by plaintiff's witnesses it was the exclusive province of the court below to determine the facts from the conflicting testimony. Carey v. Clark, 40 Nev. 151; 161 P. 713.

A judgment will not be reversed for insufficiency of evidence where substantial, although conflicting, evidence supports it. Picetti v. Wheeler, 39 Nev. 437; 159 P. 522.

Where there is a substantial conflict in the evidence on a material issue, the trial court's determination will not be disturbed, if it is supported by substantial evidence. In Re Gordon, 40 Nev. 300; 161 P. 717.

Where the evidence was conflicting, and there was substantial evidence to support the decision of the trial court, the supreme court cannot disturb the findings. Carey v. Clark, 40 Nev. 151; 161 P. 713.

Where the evidence was conflicting, but the judgment of the trial court was supported by substantial evidence, its conclusion should not be disturbed. Washoe Co. Bank v. Campbell, 41 Nev. 154; 167 P. 643.

The supreme court will not disturb a finding of the lower court based upon conflicting evidence. Clark Co. v. Francovich, 42 Nev. 321; 176 P. 259.

(H) HARMLESS ERROR

111. Errors not affecting result.

Unless an error substantially affects the rights of the complaining party, so that it could be reasonably claimed that a different result might have been reached, had the error not occurred, it is harmless. Peterson v. Silver Peak, 37 Nev. 119; 140 P. 519.

112. Burden to show prejudice from error.

A party cannot complain on appeal of the admission of incompetent evidence which inures to his benefit. Rehling v. Brainard, 38 Nev. 16; 144 P. 167; Ann. Cas. 1917C, 656.

A party could not complain of the trial court's adoption of an erroneous measure of damages which inured to its benefit. Turner L. Co. v. Tonopah L. Co., 38 Nev. 338; 145 P. 914.

113. Pleading—Demurrers or exceptions.

Where plaintiff's complaint was based on a record of a judgment rendered in a foreign state, the sustaining of a demurrer and dismissal of the complaint without affording an opportunity to amend was harmless, though contrary to the better practice, for an amendment could not change the record. Keenan v. Keenan, 40 Nev. 352; 164 P. 351.

114. Striking out or dismissing.

Court's refusal to strike out an irrelevant and immaterial paragraph in complaint was not prejudicial to defendant. Pruett v. Cadigan, 42 Nev. 329; 176 P. 787.

115. Selection and impaneling of jurors.

Any error in sustaining a challenge to a juror is harmless if no objectionable persons are on the jury as finally constituted. Sherman v. Southern Pacific Co., 33 Nev. 385; 111 P. 416; 115 P. 909; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 217.

116. Conduct of trial or hearing.

In denying a motion to strike certain evidence, the trial court remarked, "I don't think the testimony does you any harm," and, in overruling an objection to an interrogatory, stated to appellant's attorney, "You are not on surrebuttal testimony, but I will allow it just to show you that we give every leeway possible, possibly more than the court should," and, in ruling on a motion to strike an answer, also stated to counsel, "I have known you for a long time, and I like you, and you are a good fellow; but when you come to the trial of a case, I know an attorney is ambitious; I know he wants to do everything in the world; and I admire that; but don't step beyond the bounds." Held, that while the trial judge's remarks were improper, they were not reversible error, in absence of a showing of prejudice to appellant therefrom. Peterson v. Silver Peak, 37 Nev. 117; 140 P. 519.

117. Rulings on questions to witnesses.

Allowing a witness, who had testified to making an examination immediately after the derailment of the train, to be asked on cross-examination as to whether or not the smoker was more broken or its occupants more frequently injured than in other cars, was harmless; his answer being that he did not know. Sherman v. Southern Pacific Co., 33 Nev. 385; 111 P. 416; 115 P. 909; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 217.

The allowance of leading questions on the redirect examination of plaintiff is not reversible error where the matters elicited might have been elicited by a longer series of direct questions. Anderson v. Berrum, 36 Nev. 463; 136 P. 973.

In civil action for assault and battery, exclusion, on cross-examination of defendant, of question as to statement made by him, held cured by admission of testimony of one who heard the statement. Wright v. Starr, 42 Nev. 441; 179 P. 877.

118. Admission of evidence—Prejudicial effect.

A judgment will not be reversed because of the admission of incompetent evidence which was afterwards stricken out and which did not prejudice appellant. Boydston v. Jacobs, 38 Nev. 176; 147 P. 447.

Error in admitting or excluding evidence on material issues is reversible. Peterson v. Silver Peak, 37 Nev. 119; 140 P. 519.

In an employee's action for injuries, the admission of written statements signed by him after the accident was not error, where they contained nothing materially different from his testimony. O'Brien v. L. V. & T. R. Co., 242 F. 850; 155 C. C. A. 438.

In an action on a life policy, where the defense was suicide, and a witness at the trial gave testimony tending to support defense, the erroneous admission of a transcript of his testimony given before the coroner and offered to impeach his testimony at the trial, must be deemed prejudicial, where the jury, after considerable deliberation, returned and asked that the transcript of the witness's testimony at the inquest be again read to them, which was done. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Neasham, 250 F. 787; 163 C. C. A. 119.

119. Defects supplied or objection removed subsequently.

Where the jury found that a contract for the sale of a safe had been mutually rescinded, the seller was not prejudiced by the admission of evidence as to a warranty that the safe was fireproof. H. H. M. Safe Co. v. Baillet, 38 Nev. 164; 145 P. 941.

120. On trial without a jury.

In an action tried by the court without a jury, the erroneous admission of certain documents in evidence is not ground for reversal, where it appears that the court did not give weight thereto as being prima facie evidence, but rested its conclusion on the testimony of the witnesses. Rawhide Balloon Fraction M. Co. v. Rawhide Coalition M. Co., 33 Nev. 307; 110 P. 30.

Where incompetent evidence is admitted in a trial without a jury, a reversal is warranted only when the record shows that the competent evidence was insufficient to support the findings or that the improper evidence affected the result. Rehling v. Brainard, 38 Nev. 16; 114 P. 167; Ann. Cas. 1917C, 656.

121. Exclusion of evidence — Prejudicial effect.

In an action against defendant zinc mining company for injuries to one employed as a mucker by an explosion, any error in excluding a question to plaintiff on cross-examination whether his uncle did not state in the presence of an officer of defendant that the plaintiff was a miner could not have prejudiced defendant, where the evidence was conflicting whether defendant was informed by plaintiff, or by his uncle with his knowledge, that plaintiff was a miner, and defendant's books showed that plaintiff was given a miner's wages at the start, but his pay was reduced to that of a mucker six days thereafter, at which wages he continued to work. Hochschultz v. Potosi Zinc Co., 33 Nev. 198; 110 P. 713.

122. Instructions to jury—Prejudicial effect.

In an action for the wrongful ejection of a passenger holding such a ticket, an instruction requiring the company to exercise the highest degree of care, if erroneous, was harmless, since the company would be liable under such circumstances if only required to exercise ordinary care. Forrester v. S. P. Co., 36 Nev. 250; 134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1.

In action involving validity of location on public mineral land, an erroneous instruction as to defendants' right to locate on the land in question does not justify a reversal where, eliminating the finding made on such instruction and the issue to be determined thereby, plaintiffs' right to location was determined by finding on other issue not affected by the instruction. Nelson v. Smith, 42 Nev. 303; 176 P. 261; 178 P. 625.

123. Applicability to issues and evidence.

Where instructions are framed, without reference to the issues or evidence, and are calculated to mislead, or are erroneous under the facts and evidence, and prejudicial, they constitute reversible error. Cutler v. Pittsburg Silver Peak, 34 Nev. 46; 116 P. 418.

124. Error cured by verdict or judgment.

Where, under the admitted facts, the verdict rendered was justified, the error, if any, in a charge as to the duty of the jury to distrust the evidence of any witness who had wilfully sworn falsely to any material matter was not prejudicial to the defeated party. Henningsen v. Tonopah and Goldfield R. R. Co., 33 Nev. 209; 111 P. 36; 119 P. 774; 29 Ann. Cas. 1008.

In an action against a corporation and an individual defendant for injuries, the court charged that, if the jury found from the evidence that plaintiff was entitled to recover from the defendant corporation for injuries as alleged, the jury should award plaintiff such damages, not to exceed $15,000, which, in the jury's opinion, would compensate him for the pecuniary damages proximately caused him by the injuries complained of. Held, that since the verdict was for plaintiff against both defendants, the corporation could not complain that the instruction referred to it alone, and the individual defendant could not complain, since he was not personally referred to therein. Cutler v. P. S. P. M. Co., 34 Nev. 45; 116 P. 418.

125. Findings by court or referee.

Where there are sufficient findings on issues made in the case to support the judgment, it is immaterial that there is no finding, or an erroneous finding on some other issue, which, if made, or differently made, would not compel any different conclusion from that reached by the findings which were actually made. Nelson v. Smith, 42 Nev. 303; 176 P. 261; 178 P. 625.

Appellant company held not prejudiced by trial court's refusal to find as requested, especially in view of exhaustive decision covering all issues, and additional finding, made before motion for new trial was disposed of, in conformity to particular issues of title to property in suit made by complaint and cross-complaint. Moore v. Rochester W. M. Co., 42 Nev. 165; 174 P. 1017.

126. Judgment or order.

That the judgment as to appellant was not in the form as provided by statute was not prejudicial. Pruett v. Caddigan, 42 Nev. 329; 176 P. 787.

XVII. DETERMINATION AND DISPOSITION OF CAUSE

(A) DECISION

127. Decision on consent.

Under Rev. Laws, 4835, authorizing the supreme court to reverse, affirm, or modify the judgment or order appealed from, the court has power to modify a judgment for delinquent taxes by reducing the amount of the recovery, and will so modify the judgment where the attorney-general, the district attorney, and the attorney for defendant stipulate for such modification, notwithstanding section 3660, imposing an additional penalty in suits for the collection of delinquent taxes, and providing that the judgment shall not be satisfied except by the payment of the tax, the original penalty, the costs, and the additional penalty therein prescribed in full. State v. Nev. Copper Belt R. Co., 41 Nev. 220; 168 P. 737.

(B) AFFIRMANCE

128. On motion—Grounds.

Judgment was entered July 16, 1910, and notice of appeal was filed and served July 20, and statement on appeal was filed August 6, 1910. The record on appeal was filed January 2, 1911. After being passed for several terms, the case was set for hearing for January 30, 1913, and when called appellant's counsel asked for further time to file a brief, without offering any excuse for not filing it before. The case was continued to March 25, with fifteen days to file a brief. On that day the argument was further continued to June 25, for illness of counsel, with sixty days to file a brief, and on June 25 a further extension of thirty days to file brief was given. No brief was ever filed. Held, that a motion to affirm for want of prosecution should be granted. Arnold v. Florence-Goldfield, 36 Nev. 147; 134 P. 95.

129. Conditions in general.

Where the principles of a case are controlled by the decision in a former case in which a petition for rehearing is pending, the decision rendered in the case at bar will be subject to further order, dependent upon the final disposition of the petition for rehearing. Porch v. Patterson, 39 Nev. 251; 156 P. 439.

(D) REVERSAL

130. Technical, formal, or trivial defects or errors.

Under Rev. Laws, 5222, providing that where a special finding of facts is inconsistent with the general verdict the finding controls, and the court must give judgment accordingly, where, in an action against a street-railroad company for damages to plaintiff's automobile in collision, the jury failed to answer special interrogatories whether anything prevented plaintiff from turning his automobile to the left off defendant's track when he saw the approaching street car, instead of to the right, as he did, after speeding up to pass vehicles obstructing that side of the road, considering the subjective influence upon plaintiff of the law of the road, and that it was necessary to decide instantly, on account of the speed of the approaching car, it could not be said as matter of law that plaintiff was negligent in turning to the right, and the jury could properly find that plaintiff was not negligent in taking the track at first, that defendant was negligent in running its car at an excessive speed, and that plaintiff acted reasonably in turning to the right, although he might have turned to the left with safety, so that the failure to find whether he could so have turned to the left, assuming that answer would have been that he could, in favor of defendant, was not so inconsistent with the general verdict for plaintiff as to call for its control by the failure to find, justifying reversal of judgment entered on the verdict for plaintiff under Rev. Laws, 5066, providing that no judgment shall be reversed for error not affecting the substantial rights of the parties. Weck v. Reno Traction Co., 38 Nev. 287; 149 P. 65.

131. Ordering new trial, and directing further proceedings in lower court.

Under Comp. Laws, 2513, empowering the supreme court to review on appeal an order granting or refusing a new trial, and section 2515 providing that such court may reverse, affirm, or modify the judgment or order appealed from, and may, if necessary, order a new trial, etc., the court on reversing an order denying a new trial demanded for insufficiency of evidence to support the verdict may remand the case, with directions to the trial court to consider and pass on such ground anew. Goldfield Mohawk M. Co. v. Frances-Mohawk M. & L. Co., 33 Nev. 491; 112 P. 42.

ARBITRATION AND AWARDI. SUBMISSION.

1. Agreements to arbitrate—Effect on pending or subsequent action.

III. AWARD.

2. Impeachment or vacation—Motion to set aside or vacate.

I. SUBMISSION

1. Agreements to arbitrate—Effect on pending or subsequent action.

The mere fact that the parties agree to submit to arbitration did not work discontinuance and dismissal of the case in the absence of manifest intention of the parties to accomplish such result. Nelson v. Reinhart, 41 Nev. 69; 167 P. 690.

III. AWARD

2. Impeachment or vacation—Motion to set aside or vacate.

In an action for money loaned, where the parties agreed and did submit to arbitration stipulating for judgment entry according to the result of the arbitration, the court had jurisdiction to entertain a motion to set aside the award upon allegations that the arbitration was fraudulent and wrongful. Id.

ARRESTI. IN CIVIL ACTIONS.

1. Complaint or other pleading.
2. Discharge on motion—And proceedings thereon.

I. IN CIVIL ACTIONS1. Complaint or other pleading.

Under civil practice act, secs. 146, 148 (Rev. Laws, 5088, 5090), providing for the arrest of a defendant in civil actions whenever about to depart the state or dispose of or remove his property with intent to defraud creditors, an order of arrest can be based both upon a verified complaint and an affidavit for arrest, and if both, taken together, are sufficient to justify the order, it is not improperly issued. Ex Parte Boyd, 36 Nev. 162; 134 P. 455; Ann. Cas. 1915A, 1277.

2. Discharge on motion—And proceedings thereon.

Under civil practice act, secs. 170-1 (Rev. Laws, 5112, 5113), providing that a defendant arrested in a civil action may apply to the court to vacate the order of arrest, if the only ground of the motion to vacate is because the affidavit upon which the order for arrest was based was insufficient, the court, on the hearing of the motion, will look alone to the affidavit, and if insufficient, defendant will be discharged; but, if the motion contains the further ground that the actual facts do not justify his arrest, the motion will be heard upon affidavits of defendant, counter affidavits of plaintiff, and any other evidence, and defendant is not entitled to be discharged if the proof justifies his being held, though the original affidavit was insufficient. Id.

I. CIVIL LIABILITY(A) ACTS CONSTITUTING AND LIABILITY THEREFOR*1. Nature and elements—Consent.

A recovery of damages may not be had

In a civil action for ordinary assault and battery by one who has consented to or participated in the acts causing the injury. Wright v. Starr, 42 Nev. 441; 179 P. 877.

(B) ACTIONS

2. Pleading.

Lack of consent being an essential element of a civil action for damages for assault and battery, it is unnecessary that defendant affirmatively plead consent in justification of the acts charged in the complaint and denied in the answer. Id.

II. CRIMINAL RESPONSIBILITY

(A) OFFENSES

3. Nature and elements—Overt act.

In a prosecution for murder, evidence held not to show that defendant made the first assault upon deceased; an "assault" requiring an attempt to carry the intent to assault into execution by an overt act. State v. Huber, 38 Nev. 253; 148 P. 562.

9. Actions—Parties.

10. Actions—Damages.

I. NATURE AND GROUNDS

(A) NATURE OF REMEDY—CAUSES OF ACTION AND PARTIES

1. Nature and purpose of remedy.

The remedy by attachment is dependent upon statute. Green v. Hooper, 41 Nev. 12; 167 P. 23.

(B) GROUNDS OF ATTACHMENT

2. Fraudulent transfer or other disposition of property.

Stats. 1869, c. 112, sec. 123, as amended by Stats. 1907, c. 58, authorizes an attachment in an action on an unsecured contract, for the direct payment of money, and, if so secured, when such security has been rendered nugatory by the act of the defendant. In an action on a note secured by certain stock, an attachment was issued on an affidavit, which, after setting out the making of the note and defendant's failure to pay it, recited that it was secured by 50,000 shares of stock which were afterwards surrendered and placed in escrow by defendant and rendered nugatory. Defendant applied to dissolve the writ and filed affidavit that plaintiff accepted the stock certificate as security for the note, and at all times had retained the same as such security, that it had never been surrendered, and was still held as security for the indebtedness. Plaintiff, in opposition to the motion to dissolve, alleged that, after the certificate was delivered, it had never been transferred on the company's books, and was later withdrawn from the plaintiff and placed in escrow under an agreement for sale; either the proceeds or the certificate to be returned to plaintiff. Held, that such escrow agreement, if carried out, would enable plaintiff to deduct the proceeds of the stock from the note and interest and hence it did not render the security nugatory, so as to justify an attachment. Bank v. Murphy, 34 Nev. 461; 125 P. 365.

V. LEVY, LIEN, AND CUSTODY AND DISPOSITION OF PROPERTY

3. Mode and sufficiency of levy—Personal property.

Under Rev. Laws, 5152, providing that personal property capable of manual delivery shall be attached by taking it into custody, the custody required of the attaching officer is such as to enable him to retain and assert his power over the property so that it cannot be withdrawn or taken by another without his knowledge. Green v. Hooper, 41 Nev. 12; 167 P. 23.

To effect an attachment of personal property it must be taken into the custody of the officer serving the writ, and unless that is done there is no existing attachment. Id.

4. Waiver, release or abandonment, and discharge or extinguishment of levy.

It is the duty of the attaching officer to take the property attached into his possession, and the lien of the attachment, as to subsequent purchasers and other creditors, is ineffective if the officer abandons his possession. Id.

When the personal property on which a levy of attachment has been made is left by the attaching officer in the possession of the debtor, it ceases to be in custodia legis and may be taken by other creditors. Id.

See Appeal and Error, 2; Bankruptcy, 1.

5. Expenses of keeping property and compensation of custodian.

A keeper of attached property must ordinarily look to the sheriff who attaches the property for his compensation, and in the absence of an express agreement with the plaintiff in the action he cannot recover from him. Allen v. Ingalls, 33 Nev. 281; 111 P. 34; 114 P. 758; 30 Ann. Cas. 755.

A settlement by a sheriff with his deputy for services as keeper of attached property, made without the knowledge of a third person employed by the deputy as keeper, is not binding on the third person, and does not preclude him from suing the sheriff for his services. Id.

Where a sheriff, in possession through a keeper of attached property, remained in possession after the debtor was adjudged a bankrupt, without notifying the keeper of any change in the status of the property, the keeper could recover from the sheriff for his services after the adjudication, though the sheriff thereafter was a mere bailee for the trustee in bankruptcy. Id.

VII. QUASHING, VACATING, DISSOLUTION OR ABANDONMENT

6. Effect of dissolution.

Where an attachment of personal property was dissolved by the court's order and was at once delivered to the debtor upon his receipt therefor, a chattel mortgage, previously filed, covering the property so released from attachment, became immediately effective. Green v. Hooper, 41 Nev. 13; 167 P. 23.

IX. RETURN

7. Operation and effect.

Where a judgment was had upon attachment of property of a nonresident and the personal service of summons, it cannot be presumed, as against the sheriff's return of service of the attachment, that there was an occupant upon the land attached. Long v. Tighe, 36 Nev. 129; 133 P. 60.

X. LIABILITIES ON BONDS OR UNDERTAKINGS8. Accrual or release of liability by breach or fulfillment of conditions—Bonds or undertakings to procure attachment.

The fact that an attachment lien was merged in a judgment lien and the property attached sold under execution does not relieve from liability upon the attachment bond. Jaksich v. Guisti, 36 Nev. 104; 134 P. 452.

A judgment for damages obtained for malicious prosecution of attachment is a bar to further action upon the bond. Id.

The defendant whose property has been wrongfully attached has an action under the statute upon the attachment bond, or, where the attachment was issued maliciously and without probable cause, defendant may proceed under the common law for malicious prosecution. Id.

9. Actions—Parties.

An action upon an attachment bond may be instituted without joining the sureties. Id.

10. Actions—Damages.

Where property has been sold under execution upon an erroneous judgment which is reversed upon appeal, the plaintiff is liable in damages to the defendant for the value of the property sold, such value to be determined as of the time of the execution of sale. Id.

I. THE OFFICE OF ATTORNEY(C) SUSPENSION AND DISBARMENT*1. Grounds for disbarment—Character and conduct.

For an attorney to publish and advertise a pamphlet, the purpose of which is to attract nonresidents to the state to apply to its courts for divorce, through his agency as an attorney, that he may profit financially thereby, is "misconduct," within Comp. Laws, 2625, providing for removal or suspension of attorneys for misconduct. In Re Schnitzer, 33 Nev. 581; 112 P. 848; 33 L. R. A. (N.S.) 941.

2. Grounds for suspension—Contempt of court.

An attorney's action in knowingly and fraudulently procuring the service of summons in a divorce action in which he was counsel for plaintiff, upon another than defendant, and by falsely representing to the officer that the person served upon was said defendant, procured him to make a return of service showing falsely that the summons had been duly served upon said defendant, was misconduct sufficient for disbarment. In Re Bailey, 40 Nev. 139; 161 P. 512.

3. Proceedings—Evidence.

Evidence in a disbarment proceeding examined, and held to show that the respondent's statement to the trial court, in an action for divorce in which he appeared for plaintiff, tried in March, 1911, that he knew that the plaintiff therein had been residing in Reno since March, 1910, was false and that certain testimony was misleading; and hence he would be suspended. Bar Association v. Scoular, 34 Nev. 313; 123 P. 13.

When requested by a court for information it is the duty of an attorney to give the court the facts within his knowledge, and, if he give his conclusions, the facts upon which such conclusions are based. Id.

Rule in Re Schnitzer, 33 Nev. 581, followed. Id.

In a proceeding for disbarment of an attorney, evidence, consisting in part of an affidavit, held to support a charge that respondent by falsely and wilfully representing to an officer that affiant was defendant in a divorce action in which respondent was attorney for plaintiff, procured the service of summons on affiant and a false affidavit of service. In Re Bailey, 40 Nev. 139; 161 P. 512.

In a proceeding for the disbarment of an attorney, evidence that an affidavit of service of summons in a divorce suit, in which plaintiff was represented by respondent, associated with another, was altered after it was made so as to show a valid service, is insufficient, as against the positive sworn denial of the attorney, to show that he made the alteration. In Re Winters, 40 Nev. 355; 163 P. 244.

4. Proceedings—Punishment.

An attorney who published and advertised a pamphlet to attract nonresidents to the state to apply for divorce through him will be shown leniency, and suspended for only eight months, and till the further order of the court; he having discontinued the advertising when his attention was called to his methods being condemned by the bar association of the city, and his being the first case of the character brought to the attention of the court. In Re Schnitzer, 33 Nev. 581; 112 P. 848; 33 L. R. A. (N.S.) 941.

IV. COMPENSATION AND LIEN OF ATTORNEY

(A) FEES AND OTHER REMUNERATION

5. Contracts for compensation, making, requisites, and validity.

Where attorney deals with client for his own benefit, transaction is not only regarded with suspicion, and closely scrutinized, but it is presumptively invalid for constructive fraud, a presumption to be overcome only by the clearest evidence. Moore v. Rochester W. M. Co., 42 Nev. 164; 174 P. 1017.

Where an attorney, with the work he is required to do under his contract partially performed, exacts from his client an additional compensation under threat of withdrawing from the case, nothing but the best of reasons are sufficient to uphold the agreement. Id.

6. Allowance and payment from funds in court.

No question of attorney's fees being presented by the record, the matter of an allowance for such fees to counsel for appellant is entirely within the province of the trial court. In Re Hartung's Estate, 39 Nev. 200; 155 P. 353.

7. Actions for compensation—Evidence.

Where, prior to the rendition of services by attorneys, they submitted a schedule of fees calling for a retainer of $200 a month to cover office work, including adjusting claims or settling suits out of court, as well as advising, drawing contracts, making forms, etc., and in an action for services testified that their office work for defendant amounted to an average of two hours a day, the court did not err in admitting evidence to show the value of such services. Thompson v. Tonopah L. Co., 37 Nev. 183; 141 P. 69.

8. Actions for compensation—Trial.

Where attorneys, before rendering services, submitted to defendant a schedule of fees that would be charged, and the court, in an action for services rendered, found on expert evidence that the services were reasonably of the schedule values, such finding was sufficient to sustain a judgment to the extent of such values, without reference to whether the schedule was itself binding on defendant. Id.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

1. Compensation.

1. Compensation.

A general appropriation bill approved March 22, 1909 (Stats. 1909, c. 140), appropriated for the years 1909 and 1910, $4,800 for salary of a deputy attorney-general. An act approved on the following day (Stats. 1909, c. 159) provided that the salary of a deputy attorney-general should be $2,400 a year, payable out of the general fund in the same manner that salaries of other state officers are paid, which, under an earlier statute, was monthly. There was nothing in either of the acts in the nature of a relief bill. Held, that the intent was that the deputy attorney-general should be paid monthly in the future, and an incumbent who, during the part of the year before the approval of the act, had acted as stenographer in the attorney-general's office, drawing a salary from the state therefor, and had also acted as deputy attorney-general under a previous statute not providing compensation for such office, was not entitled under the acts to receive the designated salary for the portion of the year previous to their passage. *State ex rel. BAIL

II. IN CRIMINAL PROSECUTIONS.

1. Right to release.

II. IN CRIMINAL PROSECUTIONS—Contd.

2. Right to release—Pending appeal or other proceeding for review.
3. Jurisdiction and authority to admit to bail.

II. IN CRIMINAL PROSECUTIONS

1. Right to release.

In capital cases, the court may grant bail where peculiar circumstances appear, or where the court in the exercise of sound judicial discretion determines that the proof is not evident and the presumption is not sufficiently great. Ex Parte Nagel, 41 Nev. 86; 167 P. 689.

2. Right to release—Pending appeal or other proceeding for review.

The criminal practice act, secs. 479, 500 (Comp. Laws, 4444, 4465), provides that no appeal from a conviction, unless it be of fine only, shall operate as a stay, but that after appeal a defendant who has been convicted may be admitted to bail in the discretion of the court. The defendant was convicted of larceny, and refused bail on application to the trial court. Held, that as the discretion of the trial judge is not to be disturbed, except for clear abuse, the defendant would not be admitted to bail by the supreme court, especially where the case would shortly be heard on its merits. State v. Smith, 33 Nev. 435; 111 P. 929.

Const. art. 1, sec. 7, providing that "all persons shall be bailable by sufficient sureties, unless for capital offenses when the proof is evident, or the presumption great," was only designed to alter the common-law rule as to criminal cases before conviction, leaving the matter of bail after conviction discretionary. State v. McFarlin, 41 Nev. 105; 167 P. 1011.

Under Rev. Laws, 7294, providing that an appeal from a conviction shall stay the execution upon filing with the clerk of the court, in which the conviction shall have been had, a certificate of the judge of such court, or a justice of the supreme court, that there is probable cause for the appeal, and sec. 7314, providing that, after conviction of an offense not punishable with death, a defendant on appeal may be admitted to bail (1) as a matter of right, where the appeal is from a judgment imposing a fine, and (2) as a matter of discretion in all other cases, the element of probable cause for the appeal from a conviction and judgment of imprisonment is essential, and over which judicial discretion may be exercised on the question of bail. Id.

Rev. Laws, 7294, is in the nature of a supersedeas, whereby the execution of the judgment of conviction is stayed pending appeal, and, standing alone, has nothing to do with the question of admission to bail, which is governed by section 7314. Id.

3. Jurisdiction and authority to admit to bail.

Under Rev. Laws, 7294, 7314, where petitioner's appeal from a conviction for embezzlement sentencing him to imprisonment was properly taken in good faith, and it appears that newly discovered evidence, which was not available at or during the trial, is now available, and is of such a nature as might reasonably be expected to raise a reasonable doubt of guilt, petitioner will be admitted to bail by the supreme court. Id.

II. PETITION, ADJUDICATION, WARRANT, AND CUSTODY OF PROPERTY

(C) INVOLUNTARY PROCEEDINGS

1. Acts of bankruptcy—Preference by transfer by insolvent.

Since the court in determining whether an act of bankruptcy has been committed considers the intent of the debtor only, a preference which cannot be avoided because not having been accepted as such by the creditor may yet be sufficient to support an adjudication in bankruptcy. Alter v. Clark, 193 F. 154.

III. ASSIGNMENT, ADMINISTRATION, AND DISTRIBUTION OF ESTATE

(B) ASSIGNMENT AND TITLE, RIGHTS, AND REMEDIES OF TRUSTEES

2. Property and rights vesting in trustee—Ownership or possession of property.

Under Comp. Laws, Nev. 3357, providing that a mortgage of real property shall not be deemed a conveyance whatever its terms so as to enable the owner of the mortgage to recover possession of the real property without a foreclosure and sale, where an absolute conveyance of real property was in fact a mortgage, the grantee was not entitled to the rents and profits so long as the mortgagors remained in possession; and hence, on their becoming bankrupts, such rents and profits passed to their trustee. Alter v. Clark, 193 F. 153.

(C) PREFERENCES AND TRANSFERS BY BANKRUPT, AND ATTACHMENT AND OTHER LIENS

3. Transfers—Validity as against trustee.

Comp. Laws, Nev. 1215, requires the county recorder to be satisfied by affidavits that all state and county taxes due and payable on moneys loaned have been paid before any mortgage or lien given as security therefor can be satisfied of record. Section 1084 requires the assessor to demand from each person a statement under oath or affirmation of all the real estate or personal property within the county owned or claimed by such person, and refusal or failure to make such statement on demand is a misdemeanor, and an affidavit knowingly false constitutes perjury. Held, that where defendant loaned money to bankrupts, receiving as security an absolute deed to certain real and personal property, which was in fact a mortgage, the fact that the security was made in the form of a deed to prevent the assessment and collection of taxes on the money loaned was collateral only, and did not so taint the security as to render it unenforceable as against the mortgagor's trustee in bankruptcy. Id.

The validity of a chattel mortgage against creditors represented by a trustee in bankruptcy must be determined by the law of the state in which the mortgage was made and where the property was situated. In Re Petersen, 252 F. 850.

4. Fraudulent transfers—Intent of debtor.

Under Rev. Laws, 1083, as to fraudulent conveyances, chattel mortgage given by debtor to wife twelve years after indebtedness to her was contradicted, no payments having been made, and intended to protect debtor's property from his creditors, was void as to his trustee in bankruptcy. Id.

5. Transfers void under state laws.

Comp. Laws, Nev. 2703, provides that every sale made by a vendor of goods and chattels in his possession or under his control, and every assignment of goods and chattels unless the same be accompanied by an immediate delivery and be followed by actual and continued change of possession of the things sold or assigned, shall be conclusive evidence of fraud as against the vendor's creditors, or creditors of the person making such assignment, or subsequent purchasers in good faith, and section 2705 declares that no mortgage of chattels shall be valid for any purpose as against other than the parties thereto unless there shall be appended or annexed thereto the affidavit of the mortgagor and mortgagee, or some person in their behalf, setting forth that the mortgage is made in good faith and given for a debt actually owing from the mortgagor, stating the amount and character of such debt, and that it is not made to hinder, delay, or defraud any of the mortgagor's creditors. Held, that where certain deeds which were in fact mortgages purported to convey chattels as well as real estate, but there was neither delivery of the chattels to the mortgagee nor affidavit as required by section 2705, the deeds, in so far as they were mortgages of the personal property, were void as against the mortgagor's creditors and trustee in bankruptcy. Alter v. Clark, 193 F. 153.

6. Dissolution of liens—Time of proceeding.

Under the bankruptcy act of July 1, 1898, c. 541, 30 Stats. 565 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 3422, 3450), only the attachment liens obtained within four months of the filing of the petition in bankruptcy are dissolved by the adjudication in bankruptcy. Allen v. Ingalls, 33 Nev. 281; 111 P. 34; 114 P. 758; 30 Ann. Cas. 755.

7. Subrogation of trustee to rights under lien.

An attaching officer, who after the court's order dissolving an attachment of personal property delivered it to the debtor on his receipt therefor, had no right or special property therein, so that there were no rights to which the debtor's referee in bankruptcy could be subrogated. Green v. Hooper, 41 Nev. 13; 167 P. 23.

(D) ADMINISTRATION OF ESTATE

8. Referees—Review of proceedings by judge.

If it is the purpose of counsel by agreement to set aside decision of referee in bankruptcy, they should do so by some direct and unequivocal action, not by attempting to review order without consulting referee, or securing any records from his office. In Re Petersen, 252 F. 846.

If counsel wish district court to review determination of referee in bankruptcy, record to be examined should be made up and submitted, under the bankruptcy act and the general orders in bankruptcy, and until this is done the court cannot review the proceedings before the referee. Id.

On review of order of referee in bankruptcy, agreement as to what conclusions should be drawn from evidence does not afford district court sufficient data to enable it to determine whether there has been misstatement of evidence, particularly when referee's summary of evidence is not submitted. Id.

A party to an order made by the referee on the merits cannot have a review of it, unless he pursues the mode prescribed in general order in bankruptcy No. 27. Id.

The bankruptcy act contemplates that the record on review of an order of the referee shall be made up by him and also by him certified to the district court. Id.

(E) ACTIONS BY OR AGAINST TRUSTEE

9. Evidence.

Where, in a suit by a bankrupts' trustee to set aside an alleged preference, the defendant testified that he did not know there were other creditors of the bankrupts than himself until the attachment suit was begun, such proof was not overthrown by evidence of the bankrupts that defendant knew that they were borrowing large sums of money from him. Alter v. Clark 193 F. 154.

In a suit to set aside an alleged preference, the burden is on the trustee to establish by a preponderance of the evidence the fact that defendant knew, or had reason to know, that the conveyance to him was intended as a preference. Id.

(F) CLAIMS AGAINST AND DISTRIBUTION OF ESTATE

10. Review of referee's proceedings.

On review of order of referee in bankruptcy sustaining objections to claim on note, secured by chattel mortgage and presented by bankrupt's wife, if existence of fraud as to creditors on part of bankrupt is still in issue, there should be a detailed summary of the evidence, not a mere statement of conclusions, in relation to the alleged fraud. In Re Petersen, 252 F. 846.

The business of banking is a lawful business, which it is the inherent right of every citizen to engage in. Marymont v. Banking Board, 33 Nev. 333; 111 P. 295; 32 L. R. A. (N.S.) 477; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 162.

2. Power to control and regulate.

Banking and other pursuits may be regulated in the public interest. Id.

The banking business is so essential to the public welfare that laws may be passed for its regulation. State v. Wildes, 37 Nev. 55; 139 P. 505; 142 P. 627.

II. BANKING CORPORATIONS AND ASSOCIATIONS

(B) CAPITAL, STOCK, AND DIVIDENDS

3. Lien of bank on stock or dividends.

Facts held to support a finding that the bank did not have knowledge of plaintiff's ownership at the time it acquired a lien on the stock while in the name of another. Wright v. Washoe County Bank, 251 F. 819; 163 C. C. A. 653.

Delay of a bank in enforcing a lien, which it had under its by-laws against the stock of an apparent owner for any indebtedness owing the bank, did not raise an equity in favor of a third person, who was actual owner of the stock, where the bank had no knowledge of such ownership. Id.

Where by-laws of bank gave it a lien on stock for any debts due it, the bank did not waive its lien by taking other security for a loan to a stockholder. Id.

(D) OFFICERS AND AGENTS

4. Rights and liabilities as to bank and stockholders—Nature and extent.

(E) INSOLVENCY AND DISSOLUTION

5. Constitutional and statutory provisions.

The banking act of March 22, 1911, being a general and comprehensive act, working over and covering most of the features of the general banking act of March 24, 1909, and evidently intended as a substitute for it, repeals the provisions of that act by implication, except as specifically continued in force. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 85; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

Section 18 of the general banking act of March 22, 1911 (Stats. 1911, p. 279; Rev. Laws. 631), having remodeled and carried over most of the provisions of section 22 of the general banking act of March 24, 1909 (Stats. 1909, p. 257), and having omitted the provision of section 22 making it a felony to publish any false statement of the amount of the assets and liabilities of a banking corporation, and the later act being a general and comprehensive one, working over the provisions of the earlier act, the provision making it a felony to publish such a statement is repealed and no longer in force. Id.

6. Remedies and proceedings on insolvency.

Under the police power the state may control the banking business and protect the depositors after a bank's failure, and may authorize the attorney-general or other officer to do so, and so from the passage of the act of March 2, 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 204), authorizing the attorney-general to proceed as he may deem necessary in relation to the affairs or receivership of the State Bank and Trust Company, he could intervene in an action by the state to wind up its affairs, either to protect depositors or for the benefit of the state. State v. Wildes, 37 Nev. 55; 139 P. 505; 142 P. 627.

7. Assets and receivers on insolvency.

The receivership, being the essence of the judgment entered in pursuance of the statute of 1907 (Stats. 1907, c. 119) at the instance of the state as the party plaintiff, the state was interested in orders affecting compensation of the receiver, by reason of the police powers exercised in furtherance of public welfare, and was entitled to notice, as a party in interest, of any motions, subsequent to the final order creating the receivership, to fix the compensation of the receiver, for the reason that the same affected the force of the original judgment creating the receivership. State v. Wildes, 37 Nev. 57; 139 P. 505; 142 P. 627.

At the time orders fixing the compensation of the receiver, appointed under the provisions of the banking act of 1907 (Stats. 1907, p. 229), were made, there was no statute authorizing the attorney-general to oppose them, nor providing that he should be served with notice of motions to fix such compensation. State v. Wildes, 37 Nev. 55; 139 P. 505; 142 P. 627.

Since the passage of the act of 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 204), the attorney-general is authorized to appear in the State Bank and Trust Company receivership case, in the name of the state, on behalf of the creditors. Id.

Though, when orders were made fixing compensation of the receiver of the State Bank and Trust Company in an action by the state to wind up its affairs, the attorney-general was not authorized to appear therein, he became authorized by the act of March 2, 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 204), allowing him to proceed as he might deem necessary in such action, and could move to set the orders aside because made ex parte, where the services of the receiver had not been terminated or his accounts closed. State v. Wildes, 37 Nev. 56; 139 P. 505; 142 P. 627.

With no law authorizing notice by publication, and applying Rev. Laws, 5367-5370, providing only for service of notice by personal delivery, by leaving a copy, and by mail and telegraph in certain cases, publication of notice of motions to fix compensation of the receiver of the State Bank and Trust Company did not cut off rights of the state or depositors or parties in interest from a hearing or assertion of their rights, or from proceeding to vacate the orders, by showing the allowance or claim to be excessive. Id.

If orders fixing compensation of the receiver of the State Bank and Trust Company, in an action by the state to wind up its affairs, were made after notice, they could be regarded as final and subject to attack only by appeal, but, if made without the personal service required by law, the state, under its police power to supervise the banking business, acting by the attorney-general pursuant to the act of March 2, 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 204), providing for his intervention, and within the time prescribed by district court rule 45, could move to set them aside pursuant to Rev. Laws, 5084, for want of proper notice, and could appeal from an adverse decision, for the purpose of reducing excessive compensation allowed. Id.

8. Criminal responsibility on insolvency—Offenses.

There is nothing in the act of March 13, 1909 (Stats. 1909, c. 92), which by section 1 penalizes the receipt or the assent to the receipt of deposits by a bank officer, who knows the bank to be insolvent, and by section 2 provides that a bank officer having authority to close the bank or to prevent the receipt of deposits, and failing to exercise such authority, is deemed guilty of assenting to the receipt of deposits, which makes an officer of an incorporated bank criminally liable simply because he is such officer with knowledge of the bank's insolvency, or because deposits are being received for the bank by some other officer. Ex Parte Smith, 33 Nev. 466; 111 P. 930.

The title of the act of March 13, 1909 (Stats. 1909, c. 92), in addition to referring to the offenses declared, states that its purpose is to establish a rule of evidence in connection therewith. Section 2 makes the failure of a bank within thirty days after the receipt of deposits prima facie evidence of the officers' knowledge of its insolvency, and in a previous part it is provided that any officer having authority to close the bank or to prevent the receipt of deposits, who does not exercise such authority, shall be "deemed" to have assented to the receipt of deposits. Held, that only the part of the section relating to the knowledge imputed from the bank's failure is evidential in character, while the word "deemed," as used in the section, means "adjudged" in the sense of constituting a crime, instead of a rule of evidence. Id.

Under the act of March 13, 1909 (Stats. 1909, c. 92), only such officers as were present at the receipt of deposits, or who actually received the deposits, or who had authority to close the bank or to prevent the receipt of deposits, could be guilty of the offense of assenting to the receipt of deposits. Id.

Where, under indictments and bench warrants under a statute making it a felony for any officer, director or person to accept or receive a deposit in any bank, when he knows or has good reason to know that the bank is insolvent, or for permitting, conniving at or assenting to the reception of deposits, it is sought to hold and punish directors and officers of a bank who are not residing in the county, and were not at the bank, and did nothing in regard to the receipt of deposits, on the assumption that, because they were such directors and officers, the inference would follow that they were receiving the deposits, assenting to and conniving at the reception of deposits which were being received by the bank through its cashier, they are entitled to be discharged because the statute nowhere by its terms provides any penalty against petitioners or persons for merely acting as directors or officers of a bank, whether solvent or insolvent, or when receiving deposits and insolvent, except officers or persons actually receiving deposits for the bank, knowing or having good reason to know that it is insolvent. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 83; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

The receipt in a private bank of a deposit by the teller is the receipt by the private banker, because he is the principal, the teller, the agent, and the deposit is the banker's private property; but the receipt of a deposit in an incorporated bank by the teller is a receipt by the corporation and the deposit becomes the property of the incorporated bank, not of the teller or other officers of the bank; and the teller or cashier actually receiving the deposit for an incorporated bank is not guilty of felony unless he knows, or has good reason to know, that the bank is insolvent, and he may not have the same knowledge regarding the value of the assets and the insolvency of the bank as the directors. Id.

A director or officer, when he is not specially authorized by the board of directors or stockholders, is not empowered to prevent the reception of deposits or to close a bank which has long been doing business and is receiving deposits merely because he is such officer. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 84; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

Under the provisions of the statute, that any bank officer having authority to close the bank or to prevent the reception of deposits, who does not exercise such authority when he knows the bank to be insolvent, shall be deemed to have assented to the reception of deposits, the officer is not guilty of assenting to the reception of deposits merely because he is such officer, when he has not been authorized to close the bank nor to prevent the reception of deposits, and is absent and does nothing in regard to the deposits. Under the statute, the assenting to the reception of deposits implies the power to withhold assent; and an officer who is without this power and is absent and does not act in regard to the deposit, cannot be held guilty of assenting to the reception of a deposit. Id.

9. Criminal responsibility on insolvency— Prosecution and punishment.

An indictment charging the accused with assenting to the receipt of bank deposits was framed under the act of March 13, 1909 (Stats. 1909, c. 92), which by section 1 makes it a crime for a bank officer to receive deposits or to assent to the receipt of deposits when the bank is known to be insolvent, and by section 2 provides that any officer of an incorporated bank, having authority to close the bank or to prevent the receipt of deposits, who shall not exercise such authority when he knows that the bank is insolvent, shall be deemed to have assented to the receipt of deposits. The indictment contained no allegations that the accused had any authority to close the bank, or to prevent the receipt of deposits, or that the accused personally received deposits knowing the bank to be insolvent. Held, that, under section 2, considered with the direct definition of section 1 as to the offense of assenting to the receipt of deposits, the "assent" required by the statute implied permission, and presupposed some inherent power to withhold assent. Ex Parte Smith, 33 Nev. 466; 111 P. 930.

Under an indictment for assenting to the receipts of deposits by an officer of an incorporated bank, contrary to act of March 13, 1909 (Stats. 1909, c. 92), which by section 1 makes it a crime for any bank officer to receive or to assent to the receipt of deposits knowing the bank to be insolvent and by section 2 provides that any bank officer having authority to close the bank or to prevent the receipt of deposits, who does not exercise such authority when the bank is known to be insolvent, shall be deemed to have assented to the receipt of deposits, and making the failure of such bank within thirty days after the receipt of any deposits prima facie evidence of such officer's knowledge of its insolvency, the presumption of knowledge of insolvency by its terms applies only to such officers as have power to close the bank or to prevent deposits. Id.

An indictment under Purdon's Dig. Pa. (13th ed.), p. 942, par. 193, making it a crime for an officer of an insolvent bank to receive deposits, is fatally defective if the names of the owners of a private bank are not given and there is no allegation that each is insolvent. Ex Parte Rovnianek, 41 Nev. 141; 168 P. 327.

III. FUNCTIONS AND DEALINGS

(C) DEPOSITS

10. Relation between bank and depositor.

The relation between a bank and its depositor is that of debtor and creditor, so that the title to money deposited passes at once to the bank and becomes a part of its general assets. McStay Supply Co. v. Stoddard, 35 Nev. 285; 132 P. 545.

11. Title to and disposition of deposits—Trust funds.

Where a principal permits his agent to deposit money to the credit of the agent's account in a bank, and neglects to give notice of ownership of the money until the bank's lien has attached for an indebtedness due from the agent, a notice thereafter given is too late and will not affect the bank's right to apply the money to satisfy its lien. McStay Supply Co. v. Stoddard, 35 Nev. 284; 132 P. 545.

12. Application of deposits to debts due bank or set-off by bank.

Where an agent to collect and remit for claims belonging to plaintiff, without authority, deposited the proceeds of the collections to his deposit account in a bank to which he was indebted, plaintiff was the equitable owner of such proceeds, and the bank had no authority after notice to apply the same to the agent's debt to it. Id.

13. Set-off by depositor.

No demand is necessary for a deposit in an insolvent bank in order to set it off against a note of the depositor in the hands of the receiver. First Nat. Bk. v. Nye Co., 38 Nev. 124; 145 P. 932; Ann. Cas. 1917C, 1195.

14. Lien of bank on deposits.

A bank has a lien on all funds belonging to depositors deposited for any indebtedness owing to it by them. McStay Supply Co. v. Stoddard, 35 Nev. 284; 132 P. 545.

Where a principal permits his agent to deposit money in a bank without notice to the bank that the money belongs to the principal, and the agent checks out the money or subjects it to a lien on account of money borrowed from the bank, the loss is that of the principal and not of the bank. Id.

I. REQUISITES AND VALIDITY

(B) FORM AND CONTENTS OF PROMISSORY NOTES AND DUE BILLS

1. Certificates of deposit.

Certificates of deposit are promissory notes, and have the same force and effect as a promissory note; indorsers thereon being bound by the same rules that apply to indorsers on a note. Jensen v. Wilslef, 36 Nev. 37; 132 P. 16; Ann. Cas. 1914D, 1220.

V. RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES ON INDORSEMENT OR TRANSFER

(B) INDORSEMENT FOR TRANSFER

2. Nature of liability as indorser.

Where a certificate of deposit already indorsed in blank is negotiated by the holder, nothing that the holder can do will alter the liability of the indorser. Jensen v. Wilslef, 36 Nev. 38; 132 P. 16; Ann. Cas. 1914D, 1220.

3. Indorsement in blank.

A person who indorses a note in blank usually warrants the solvency of the parties. Jensen v. Wilslef, 36 Nev. 37; 132 P. 16; Ann. Cas. 1914D, 1220.

Under Rev. Laws, 2613, providing that every indorser, without qualification, warrants that on due presentment it shall be accepted or paid, and that, if dishonored, he will pay the amount thereof to the holder, one who indorses in blank a certificate of deposit is liable to the holder where the paper is dishonored owing to the insolvency of the bank. Id.

(C) ASSIGNMENT OR SALE

4. Equities and defenses—Set-offs existing before transfer or notice.

By express provision of the civil practice act, sec. 46, action on a non-negotiable note by its assignee is subject to any set-off or defense existing at the time of or "before notice of" the assignment. First Nat. Bank v. Nye County, 38 Nev. 124; 145 P. 932; Ann. Cas. 1917C, 1195.

VIII. ACTIONS

5. Parties defendant.

In an action against a county on its note, given a bank, by the assignee thereof, neither the receiver of the bank nor its preferred creditors are necessary parties; any questions of preference being for the receivership matter. Id.

6. Presumptions and burden of proof.

In general, where an indorser contends that his indorsement was understood to be other than a warranty of payment, he has the burden of proving the same. Jensen v. Wilslef, 36 Nev. 38; 132 P. 16; Ann. Cas. 1914D, 1220.

I. DESCRIPTION

1. Relative importance of conflicting elements.

Natural monuments control directions. Lyon County v. Storey County, 34 Nev. 243; 117 P. 827.

It is a fundamental rule in construing conveyances that courses and distances give way to permanent monuments, and the northerly side line of a street, extended, is in effect a "permanent monument." Carey v. Clark, 40 Nev. 151; 161 P. 731.

II. EVIDENCE, ASCERTAINMENT AND ESTABLISHMENT

2. Recognition and acquiescence.

Where a dividing line was established between the property of plaintiffs and defendant by the act of one through whom plaintiffs deraigned title and was acquiesced in by defendant, in accordance with which they or their grantees occupied their respective lands for a time in excess of that prescribed by limitations, and, immediately upon the establishment of such line, defendant made valuable improvements with reference thereto, with the knowledge of the one who established the line, he and his successors in interest would be estopped from questioning its correctness, notwithstanding the rule that when the intent is to establish the line according to the true boundary, and by mistake the parties agree on a line which does not conform thereto, the agreed line is not conclusive. Small v. Robbins, 33 Nev. 288; 110 P. 1128; 112 P. 274; 123 P. 770.

IV. COMPENSATION AND LIEN

1. Failure to complete contract or transaction negotiated.

Defendants employed plaintiff to procure a purchaser for stock in the P. Company. On September 9, 1909, after his contract had expired S. took an option to purchase the stock for $125,000, and defendants agreed in consideration of the services rendered in the sale of the stock to pay plaintiff 10 per cent commission. Subsequently they executed a compromise agreement, agreeing to pay plaintiff $3,000 commission on the sale of such stock. S. did not exercise the option and made no payments on the stock. Held, that plaintiff was not entitled to a commission, as the so-called compromise was only a compromise of the amount, and it was to be paid only upon the actual consummation of the sale. Christensen v. Duborg, 38 Nev. 404; 150 P. 306.

V. ACTIONS FOR COMPENSATION

2. Pleading.

Plaintiff sued, alleging that prior to September 9, 1909, he performed services in procuring the sale of stock; that defendants agreed to pay him 10 per cent commission on all moneys received from the sale of the stock as received and thereafter, by way of compromise, agreed to pay him $3,000 for such services. The evidence showed that two of the defendants, after S.'s option to purchase had expired and after they had purchased the stock of the third defendant, agreed with S., in consideration of the allotment to them of 3,000,000 shares of the stock of another company, to transfer to such company a controlling amount of the stock of the P. Company, and to convey to it certain land; that sales were to be made to develop certain properties and raise $325,000, which was to be divided equally between the parties to the agreement; and that a sale of all or part of such 3,000,000 shares was made from which such two defendants realized a large sum of money. Held, that plaintiff could not recover, because of variance. Id.

II. PROSECUTION AND PUNISHMENT1. Weight and sufficiency of evidence.

In a prosecution for burglary, where all the circumstances are indicative that the breaking or entry was without consent, it is immaterial that the owner or person in possession, during the course of his testimony, failed to testify specifically that the entry was without consent. State v. Patchen, 36 Nev. 510; 137 P. 406.

In a prosecution for burglary in the first degree, evidence held to justify verdict of guilty against a defendant. State v. Whitaker, 39 Nev. 159; 154 P. 927.

In a prosecution for burglary in the first degree, evidence held sufficient to justify finding that the mill was broken into in the nighttime, between sunset and sunrise, as defined by Rev. Laws, 6634. Id.

2. Trial—Instructions.

In a prosecution for burglary, where all the circumstances are indicative that the breaking or entry was without consent, if defendant desires to take advantage of the failure of the owner to testify directly to the fact of want of consent, he should raise the question at the proper time at the trial. State v. Patchen, 36 Nev. 510; 137 P. 406.

A requested instruction in part read: "The gist of the crime of burglary is the entering of a store with intent to steal the goods contained in the said store, regardless of the fact whether or not there was an actual stealing of the said goods." The trial judge drew a line through the word "regardless" and the words following and marked the instruction "Given as Modified." Held, not error, but the method of modification is criticized. Id.

Under Rev. Laws, 6635, it is presumed from an unlawful entry that the same was with the intent to commit larceny unless such entry is satisfactorily explained. Id. See Criminal Law, 49.

I. CONTROL AND REGULATION OF COMMON CARRIERS

(A) IN GENERAL

1. Charges.

Change in tariff schedule takes effect upon compliance with act to regulate railroads (Stats. 1907, p. 73, sec. 4a; Rev. Laws, 4552), providing for change upon 30 days' notice to commission, notwithstanding failure to post notice whenever a change is made as required by subdivision "b"; the only effect of such failure being liability by railroad for damages resulting therefrom under section 26. Crumley v. Southern Pacific, 42 Nev. 337; 177 P. 17.

II. CARRIAGE OF GOODS

(A) DELIVERY TO CARRIER

2. Effect of delivery and acceptance.

Where the owner of ore on a mine dump, anticipating that E., who was operating the mine, would endeavor to ship it, notified the railroad, and forbade the transportation of such ore, and the railroad, when E. offered the ore for transportation, required him to make affidavit that such ore was his, which he did, and the railroad transported the ore for him, such railroad was liable to the owner of the ore as for a conversion, being charged with constructive notice of the owner's right. Dixon v. Southern Pacific Co., 42 Nev. 73; 172 P. 368; 177 P. 14.

(C) CUSTODY AND CONTROL OF GOODS

3. Title to goods.

Where an owner of ore notified defendant carrier that he owned it, but that he believed a third person intended to steal and ship it as owner, the carrier by avowing its intention to ship the ore if tendered to it waived its right to insist that the description of the ore was insufficient to give it notice of plaintiff's title in a subsequent suit by the owner against the carrier to recover for the conversion of the ore. Dixon v. Southern Pacific Co., 42 Nev. 74; 172 P. 368; 177 P. 14.

(D) TRANSPORTATION AND DELIVERY BY CARRIER

4. Duties of carrier in making delivery.

It is the duty of a carrier on demand to deliver property in its possession to the true owner, whether it has been received from him or from another as consignor, notwithstanding that, in case of conflicting claims, a hardship will be imposed upon it in determining right of possession. Dixon v. Southern Pacific Co., 42 Nev. 73; 172 P. 368; 177 P. 14.

5. Liability for failure or refusal to deliver.

The carrying of goods by a carrier from terminus to terminus on the requirement of a person unlawfully in possession is not a conversion, though if the true owner intervenes before the goods are delivered, and demands them, and the carrier refuses to deliver them, it is liable in trover. Id.

(E) DELAY IN TRANSPORTATION OR DELIVERY

6. Demurrage, and liability of consignee or owner for delay.

Where the rules of a car service association, regularly filed with the interstate commerce commission, prohibited agents from storing carload freight in warehouses or on ground belonging to the railroad company without adding car service charges, the same as if the freight had been left in the car, the carrier's right to collect demurrage does not end when the shipment is unloaded, so that the car may be released for service, the rule being obligatory upon the carrier, and violations thereof constituting unlawful discriminations. Horton v. Tonopah and Goldfield R. Co., 225 F. 406.

While changes in freight rates will not be given a retroactive effect, as to the contract of shipment, when the shipment has reached destination, and after the expiration of the free time allowed under the schedules filed with the interstate commerce commission, demurrage rates may be advanced and collected after such time without being objectionable as affecting pre-existing rights, since the shipper has no right under the contract of shipment to occupy the carrier's premises for storage purposes. Id.

(J) CHARGES AND LIENS

7. Rates of freight.

Upon a shipment of ore under tariff rates providing for determining the valuation from the gross assay value of the entire contents at destination after deducting the charges for assaying, etc., the carrier was not bound to accept the certificate of valuation furnished by the smelting company receiving it, where such certificate was not determined in accordance with the carrier's rules and regulations. M. S. M. Co. v. L. V. & T. R. R. Co., 36 Nev. 62; 132 P. 1157.

Under a tariff fixing freight rates on ore at a valuation of not less than $100 per ton, determined from the gross assay value of the entire contents according to the market price of the metal product at destination after deducting the charges for assay, smelting, and handling at the smelter, and then fixing the actual rate at certain figures based on the value per ton, ore on which the assay value per ton, exclusive of moisture, was $57.88 as against $63.96 per ton for dry ore, was properly valued for the purpose of determining the freight rate at its valuation per ton including the moisture content; moisture being included in the words "entire contents." Id.

8. Lien for charges.

Under Rev. Laws, Nev. 451 providing that uncalled-for freight may be sold for the charges, upon notice, in an action by the shipper for conversion of a shipment of lumber which had been sold to pay freight and demurrage, the burden was on the carrier to show that the sale was regularly conducted. Horton v. Tonopah and Goldfield R. Co., 225 F. 406.

Where a carrier sold certain carload lots of lumber, title to which was in the plaintiff as consignor, but which consignee had refused to accept, for freight and demurrage charges, in one parcel, together with shipments belonging to others, to a purchaser who secretly acted as agent for the carrier, which was the real purchaser, it was a conversion of the lumber. Id.

Where the carrier has sold lumber shipped for freight and demurrage charges, after due notice and demand, and in strict compliance with the statute relating to the sale of unclaimed freight, there is no conversion. Id.

IV. CARRIAGE OF PASSENGERS(B) FARES, TICKETS AND SPECIAL CONTRACTS*9. Conditions in tickets.

A condition in a railroad ticket that in case of controversy the passenger agrees to pay the regular fare and apply for reimbursement at the office of the company, is unreasonable and void. Forrester v. S. P. Co., 36 Nev. 250; 134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1.

(C) PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT OF TRANSPORTATION10. Performance of special contract.

One contracting and paying for a special train is entitled to the services of the train, and the carrier running it to a farther point under false representations, and attaching other cars to it, is guilty of a breach of the contract. Burrus v. N. C. O. Ry., 38 Nev. 156; 145 P. 926; L. R. A. 1917D, 750.

11. Actions arising out of breach of contract—Breach of contract.

A railroad company, breaching its contract to furnish a special train to carry speedily for medical treatment a son of the person contracting for the train, is liable to the person for mental anguish caused by the breach causing delay in the son's removal, where the company was, at the time of the making of the contract, advised of the necessity of the speedy removal of the son for medical treatment and the danger to his life by any delay in removal. Id.

Where a railroad company, contracting to furnish a special train for the speedy removal of plaintiff's son to a place for medical treatment breached the contract by delaying the removal for three hours with knowledge of all the facts, a verdict for $10,000 was excessive, though punitive damages could be allowed and compensation for mental anguish could be recovered, and the verdict must be reduced to $5,000. Id.

(D) PERSONAL INJURIES12. Care required and liability of carrier.

The carrier owes to a passenger the duty to exercise the highest practical degree of care, skill, and foresight in the selection and use of suitable cars, motive power, appliances, and servants, and in the proper construction of its roadbed and track, and the operating and running of its trains. Sherman v. Southern Pacific Co., 33 Nev. 385; 111 P. 416; 115 P. 909; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 217.

13. Actions for injuries—Pleading.

The complaint alleging injury to plaintiff while a passenger on defendant's train, through the derailment thereof, caused by the negligence of defendant and its servants, is sufficient, without pointing out the specific facts going to establish the negligence; a prima facie case of negligence being made out by showing the derailment. Id.

14. Actions for injuries—Presumptions and burden of proof.

It is incumbent on the carrier in an action for injury to a passenger from derailment of a train to repel by satisfactory proof every imputation of the slightest negligence. Id.

The derailment of the car in which the passenger is riding is prima facie evidence of the carrier's negligence, and it is its duty to know and show the facts. Id.

A presumption of negligence arises against a carrier immediately on plaintiff proving that he was injured by the derailing of the car in which he was riding, and it is for the jury to determine from the evidence in rebuttal as to whether the defendant sufficiently overcame this presumption. Id.

(F) EJECTION OF PASSENGERS AND INTRUDERS15. Defective or invalid tickets.

Where a train agent falsely charged that a passenger had stolen his ticket or bought it from a scalper, and ejected him from the train, the company is liable for the ejection, even though the ticket had been mistakenly punched as to the time limit more than once, where none of the other punch marks indicated a time limit subsequent to the purchase of the ticket as stamped on the back, and prior to the ejection from the train. Forrester v. S. P. Co., 36 Nev. 249; 134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1.

A provision in a railroad ticket that it should be void if it showed any alterations, or if more than one date was canceled, does not relieve the carrier from liability for wrongfully ejecting a passenger upon whose ticket extra punch marks had been placed by the ticket agent. Forrester v. S. P. Co., 36 Nev. 250; 134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1.

16. Actions for wrongful ejection—Evidence.

In an action for wrongful ejection of a passenger by a train agent, who had special authority to take up tickets and remove passengers, evidence held sufficient to show that the company had ratified the acts of the agent in ejecting the passenger, if such ratification was necessary to render it liable for exemplary damages. Forrester v. S. P. Co., 36 Nev. 248; 134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1.

17. Actions for wrongful ejection—Damages—Injuries to the person.

A passenger bound for San Francisco on a through ticket was wrongfully ejected by the train agent, who humiliated and insulted him by charging that he had stolen his ticket. He was put off at the sidetrack in the desert, though the company's agent knew that he was sick and did not have enough money to pay his fare to his destination. After his ejection, the district agent of the company refused to give him transportation, and further insulted him. As a result, the passenger was compelled to walk and ride in box and coal cars for a considerable distance in inclement weather, in consequence of which he contracted pneumonia, which resulted in consumption, eventually causing his death, while the action was pending. Held, that a verdict for $11,115, of which $1,115 was for railroad fare and medical and hospital bills, was not excessive as to require a reversal. Forrester v. S. P. Co., 36 Nev. 249; 134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1.

18. Actions for wrongful ejection—Instructions.

An instruction that the face of a ticket is conclusive between the train agent and the passenger, and that the former is not bound to listen to explanations on the part of the passenger where the ticket is defective, but may eject the passenger if he refuses to pay fare, is not applicable in an action for the expulsion of a passenger from a train, where the ticket was sufficient to entitle him to transportation even though extra punch marks had been placed thereon by mistake. Forrester v. S. P. Co., 36 Nev. 250; 134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1.

In an action for the wrongful ejection of a passenger who had a ticket, and who was sick and unable to pay his fare to his destination, an instruction that a common carrier of passengers must exercise the highest practicable degree of care that human judgment and foresight is capable of to make the passenger's journey safe, is proper. Forrester v. S. P. Co., 36 Nev. 249; 134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1.

(G) PASSENGERS' EFFECTS19. Limitation of liability.

If it be conceded that passenger carriers by specific rules which are reasonable, and not inconsistent with the statutes or with their duties to the public, and which are distinctly brought to the knowledge of the passenger, may protect themselves against liability as insurers of baggage exceeding a fixed value except upon payment of an additional compensation proportioned to the risk, a contract so limiting the amount of liability does not relieve the carrier of liability for baggage lost through its negligence. Zetler v. T. & G. R. R. Co., 35 Nev. 381; 129 P. 299.

The delivery of a passenger's baggage at carrier's baggage-room to a person not entitled to receive it is such negligence as makes the company liable, notwithstanding a contract limiting its liability to a fixed value. Id.

A carrier, by reasonable regulations brought to the knowledge of a passenger, may limit its liability as an insurer for the transportation of baggage to a specified value, except when paid additional compensation proportional to the risk, and $100 is a reasonable amount in value above which an additional charge may be made. Zetler v. T. & G. R. R. Co., 37 Nev. 486; 143 P. 119; L. R. A. 1916A, 1270.

A stipulation limiting a carrier's liability for loss of baggage to $100, in the absence of payment of an excess charge for additional valuation, is unavailable, where the carrier has wilfully taken or withheld the baggage from the passenger, or has negligently delivered it to the wrong person. Id.

(H) PALACE CARS—SLEEPING CARS20. Ejection of passengers.

Railroad was not liable for ejecting passenger from drawing-room, where passenger not sharing room with another holder of first-class passenger ticket had but one such ticket, contrary to tariff schedule, and refused to vacate room or purchase another ticket. Crumley v. Southern Pacific, 42 Nev. 337; 177 P. 17.

CERTIORARI

I. NATURE AND GROUNDS.

1. Existence of remedy by appeal or writ of error.
2. Want or excess of jurisdiction.
3. Errors and irregularities.

II. PROCEEDINGS AND DETERMINATION.

4. Review—Scope and extent.

I. NATURE AND GROUNDS

1. Existence of remedy by appeal or writ of error.

Where, on the defendant's appeal from adverse judgment in justice's court to the district court on questions of law only the judgment was affirmed, defendant's right to certiorari was limited to a review of the district court judgment, from which no appeal lies; and certiorari would not lie from the supreme court to review the judgment of the justice. State v. Pacific W. P. Co., 41 Nev. 501; 172 P. 380.

2. Want or excess of jurisdiction.

An erroneous order striking out a cost bill duly filed is in excess of the court's jurisdiction, and may be annulled on certiorari, especially as, if the error was not held jurisdictional, there would be no remedy where no appeal lies, although the mere lack of a remedy would not in itself require the error to be jurisdictional. Radovich v. W. U. Tel. Co., 36 Nev. 341; 135 P. 920; 136 P. 704.

All presumptions are in favor of an order made by the court below where no reasons are given for the order, but this rule does not apply where the court below expressly bases its order upon an erroneous conception of fact or law. Id.

Certiorari will lie to review the erroneous assumption of jurisdiction by a district court, where a statutory step was omitted upon appealing to it from a justice court. Yowell v. District Court, 39 Nev. 423; 159 P. 632.

On original petition for certiorari to review a judgment of the district court, review is limited to whether the district court had jurisdiction to render any judgment, and whether it had jurisdiction to render the particular judgment rendered. State v. Breen, 41 Nev. 516; 173 P. 555.

3. Errors and irregularities.

In an action in the district court on appeal from justice court, where by statute it was the province and duty of the court to exercise its discretion in allowing items of cost before the same could become part of the judgment, even though no objections were filed, error in refusing to strike objections to the cost bill is not reviewable on certiorari. McLeod v. District Court, 39 Nev. 337; 157 P. 649.

The action of the court in a mechanic's lien suit in affirming a judgment for costs before a justice of the peace, even if irregular, cannot be reviewed on certiorari. State v. Moran, 42 Nev. 356; 176 P. 413.

II. PROCEEDINGS AND DETERMINATION

4. Review—Scope and extent.

On certiorari to review the act of the district court in striking items from the cost bill, the scope of the inquiry permissible is that of jurisdiction, and, if the act of the district court was within its jurisdiction, the inquiry ceases, and the writ has no function to perform; an authorized act of a court not being reviewable by certiorari. McLeod v. District Court, 39 Nev. 337; 157 P. 649.

I. CREATION, EXISTENCE, AND VALIDITY.

1. Validity of gifts and trusts.

II. CONSTRUCTION, ADMINISTRATION AND ENFORCEMENT.

2. Property included and title or interest acquired.
3. Conditions.

I. CREATION, EXISTENCE, AND VALIDITY

1. Validity of gifts and trusts.

A bequest of the income of an estate, to be paid over to a fraternal order annually, if within five years from testator's death the order established an orphans' home as provided therein, held not void as imposing no imperative duty upon the order to devote the money to a charitable use, since under the will the income was to be used in the maintenance of the home. In Re Hartung, 40 Nev. 263; 160 P. 782; 161 P. 715.

II. CONSTRUCTION, ADMINISTRATION, AND ENFORCEMENT

2. Property included and title or interest acquired.

A will gave the residue of the testator's estate to defendant fraternal order if, within five years from the date of his death, the fraternal order should establish a home for orphans and foundlings to be named after the testator's son, and providing, as an alternative, if the order should not accept, a similar gift of the income of the residue to a school district on condition they build an industrial school named after testator's son, or, in default of the district's acceptance, a similar gift to the state university to establish an industrial school fund named after testator's son. Held, that, the intention of the testator being to provide a "monument" or artificial structure for the purpose of preserving the memory of his son, the fraternal order was not entitled to the annual income of the estate in any event, but only so long as it maintained the home. Id.

3. Conditions.

A devise conditioned upon establishing by fraternal order of an orphans' home "worthy of its name" was satisfied by the establishment of a home which, considering the strength of the order in the state, the population of the state, and the general conditions existing therein, compared favorably with similar institutions of the order elsewhere. In Re Hartung, 40 Nev. 262; 160 P. 782; 161 P. 715.

A devise conditioned on the establishment of an orphans' home "near" a city was satisfied by its establishment within the city corporate limits; the apparent intention by such direction being to confine the location of the home to the vicinity of the city, and not to exclude it from the city limits. In Re Hartung, 40 Nev. 263; 160 P. 782; 161 P. 715.

Under a will devising the residue of an estate to an Independent Order of Odd Fellows, the income therefrom to be paid over to them annually, if within five years from testator's death the order established a home for orphans "worthy of its name," the words "worthy of its name" did not require the expenditure therefor of the sum of $25,000 as specified for a school building in another paragraph of the will, but the will made the order itself judge as to whether or not the home was worthy of its name, subject to the right of the courts to finally determine the question. Id.

CHattel MORTGAGES

I. REQUISITES AND VALIDITY.

(B) Form and Contents of Instruments.

1. Form of instrument—Certainty.
2. Form of instrument—Animals.

I. REQUISITES AND VALIDITY

(B) FORM AND CONTENTS OF INSTRUMENTS

1. Form of instrument—Certainty.

As against creditors and others who may acquire adverse rights, mortgages of specified number of articles or animals out of a large number is void for uncertainty, when particular articles are not separated or designated, so they can be distinguished from others of same kind; but it is enough if description, supplemented by suggested inquiries, enables parties to identify property. In Re Petersen, 252 F. 849.

The situs of the property covered by chattel mortgage is usually regarded as an important fact in its identification, which must be accomplished by the description, to validate the mortgage against creditors and others who may acquire adverse rights. In Re Petersen, 252 F. 850.

Chattel mortgage covering "seventeen head of work stock," etc., and books and accounts due mortgagor in the business conducted under his name, insufficiently described property to be void against creditors; neither location of property nor residence of mortgagor or mortgagee being given. Id.

2. Form of instrument—Animals.

A mortgage of property described as one span of colts, three years old, one gray and one bay, is defective; but if it further states the colts are in the mortgagor's possession on his farm, in a certain township, county, and state, the description is sufficient. Id.

CLERKS OF COURT

1. Nature of office.
2. Creation and abolition of office.
3. Compensation and fees—Rights.
4. Compensation and fees—Writs, process and notices.

1. Nature of office.

The office of clerk of the supreme court is a constitutional office. State v. Douglass, 33 Nev. 82; 110 P. 177.

2. Creation and abolition of office.

Const. art. 4, sec. 32, providing that the legislature shall provide for the election by the people of a clerk of the supreme court, etc., provides, as amended in 1889, that the legislature shall have power to increase, diminish, consolidate, or abolish the following county officers: County clerks, county recorders, etc. Held, that by expressly designating certain offices which might be consolidated, the constitution intended to exclude all other offices, and hence the act of February 20, 1893 (Stats. 1893, p. 32, c. 35), providing that the secretary of state shall be ex officio clerk of the supreme court and ex officio state librarian, while sufficient to confer color of authority on the secretary of state acting ex officio clerk of the supreme court, it is without force as an amendment or repeal, by implication, of the statute (Comp. Laws, 1782, 1790 and 1793), providing for the election of a clerk of the supreme court in the manner other state officers are elected. Id.

3. Compensation and fees—Rights.

The fees of the clerk of the supreme court prescribed by Comp. Laws, 2469, allowing a fee for entering any motion, rule, or order, and a fee for filing each paper, are limited to orders and motions defined by section 3586, providing that every direction of the court made or entered in writing and not included in the judgment is an order, and an application for an order is a motion, and an offer of or objection to evidence, or a ruling admitting or rejecting evidence, or the routine adjournment of the trial, is not a motion and order, and the clerk may not recover fees therefor. State v. Baker and Josephs, 35 Nev. 301; 126 P. 345; 129 P. 452.

4. Compensation and fees—Writs, process, and notices.

The clerk of the supreme court in an original proceeding must on request issue subpoenas, and fees therefor will be disallowed unless the party against whom the charge is made applied for and obtained a written order for the subpoenas. Id.

III. MEANS AND METHODS OF REGULATION

1. Licenses and privilege taxes—Mercantile business.

Rev. Laws, 3890-3894, inclusive (act approved March 24, 1905, sec. 1; Stats. 1905, c. 153), makes it unlawful for any itinerant merchant or peddler to offer goods for sale without first obtaining a license. Section 2 defines an itinerant merchant, etc., as one having no permanent place of business within the state, which is not regularly located and taxed. Section 3 fixes the amount of the license required. Section 4 provides that the act shall not apply to drummers representing wholesale houses; and section 5 provides that it shall not apply to the sale of farm products. Held, that the act violated art. 1, sec. 8, of the constitution of the United States relating to interstate commerce. Ex Parte Taylor and Rounds, 35 Nev. 504; 131 P. 133.

2. Taxation of property employed in.

The state may tax the intrastate business of a corporation engaged in intrastate and interstate commerce, but may not tax the interstate business by levy of a tax on the gross receipts of the corporation. State v. Wells Fargo & Co., 38 Nev. 505; 150 P. 836.

While, under the commerce clause of the federal constitution, a state may not tax the privilege or act of engaging in interstate commerce, it can tax the carrier's property within the state, though chiefly employed in such commerce. Wells Fargo & Co. v. State of Nevada, 39 S. C. R. 62.

1. Nature and authority.

While, in adopting the common law of England, it was adopted as modified by certain statutes enacted by Parliament prior to the Revolution, only those provisions of such statutes which are applicable to our conditions and in no way conflict with our statutory laws are in force in the state. Esden v. May, 36 Nev. 612; 135 P. 1185.

2. Application and operation.

The common law, except as specially abrogated or except as unsuitable, prevails in Nevada. State v. Hamilton, 33 Nev. 418; 111 P. 1026.

I. ESTABLISHMENT AND AMENDMENT OF CONSTITUTIONS

1. Adoption—Legislative powers and proceedings.

Under Const. art. 16, sec. 1, requiring that proposed constitutional amendments shall be "entered" on the respective journals of the senate and assembly, a proposed constitutional amendment need not be entered on the journal in full, it being sufficient if it be entered by an identifying reference. Ex Parte Ming, 42 Nev. 472; 181 P. 319.

II. CONSTRUCTION, OPERATION, AND ENFORCEMENT OF CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS

2. General rules of construction.

In the construing of constitutions or statutes the intention of the convention or the legislature controls, to be determined in accordance with established rules. Goldfield Con. M. Co. v. State, 35 Nev. 178; 127 P. 77.

3. Intent and policy.

The object of construction, as applied to a written constitution, is to give effect to the intent of the people in adopting it, which intent is to be found in the instrument itself, as it is to be presumed that language has been employed with sufficient precision to convey it, and, unless it appears that the presumption does not hold in the particular case, nothing will remain but to enforce it. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 170; 161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064.

4. Meaning of language.

When a word is used in a statute or constitution, it is supposed that it is used in its ordinary sense, unless the contrary is indicated. Ex Parte Ming, 42 Nev. 472; 181 P. 319.

5. Matters extrinsic to instrument.

As an aid to determining the meaning of a provision of the constitution intended by its framers, the proceedings and debates in the constitutional convention may be considered. Ex Parte Shelor, 33 Nev. 361; 111 P. 291.

In the construction of a constitutional provision, it is not improper to examine the debates on the subject, though they are not authoritative, as it is the text of the constitution which was adopted. Phillips v. Snowden Placer Co., 40 Nev. 66; 160 P. 786.

6. Subsequent legislative or executive construction.

Where a doubt exists as to the proper construction to be placed on a constitutional or statutory provision, courts will give weight to the construction placed thereon by other coordinate branches of the government. State v. Cole, 38 Nev. 215; 148 P. 551.

7. Retroactive operation.

The provisions of the constitution, state or federal, do not cover rights, privileges, and obligations not specified and not existing or understood at the time of its adoption, or not in force by long acquiescence, or by continued official or public approval. Worthington v. District Court, 37 Nev. 215; 142 P. 230; Ann. Cas. 1916E, 1097; L. R. A. 1916A, 696.

8. Operation as to laws previously in force.

Statutes may be nullified, in so far as future operation is concerned, by a constitution as well as by statute, as the constitution is the direct, positive, and limiting voice of the people, and may establish a policy, fix a limit to legislation on a given subject, or prohibit specified acts as being performed by public servants. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 170; 161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064.

9. Grant or limitation of powers—State constitutions.

The act of March 24, 1909 (Stats. 1908-09, c. 191), the "Banking Act," provided by section 2 that it should be unlawful under penalty for any corporation, partnership, firm, or individual to engage in the banking business except by means of a corporation duly organized for such purpose under the laws of the state. Sections 5 and 6 created a state banking board to have general supervision of banks and banking. Section 12 provided that it should be unlawful to engage in banking without obtaining a license from such board, which license should issue only to corporations duly organized to do a banking business. Held, that such act was in conflict with the constitution (art. 1, sec. 1) asserting rights to liberty, property and happiness; with article 1, section 8, guaranteeing due process of law, and with article 1, section 20, under which rights not enumerated are saved to the people. Marymont v. Nevada State Banking Board, 33 Nev. 333; 111 P. 295; 32 L. R. A. (N.S.) 477; Ann. Cas. 1914E, 162.

10. Self-executing provisions.

Const. art. 10, sec. 1, as amended in November, 1902 (Stats. 1901, p. 136), declared that the legislature should provide a uniform and equal rate of assessment and taxation to secure a just valuation of real and personal property, mining claims, etc., and that the acreage of patented claims should be assessed at the valuation of $10 per acre. Stats. 1905, c. 58, provided for the assessment of patented mines at such valuation. Article 10, sec. 1, as amended in 1906 (Stats. 1907, p. 501), provided that patented mining claims should be assessed at not less than $500, except when $100 in labor has been actually performed on such mine during the year. In addition to the tax on the net proceeds, and no legislation was passed pursuant to such provision until 1913. Held, that the constitutional amendment of 1906 was self-executing, at least as to the provision for taxation of patented mines, and absolutely nullified the statute of 1905, so that an assessment thereunder in 1909 was invalid. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 170; 161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064.

In determining when a constitutional provision is self-executing, there is a distinction between a declarative limitation of legislative power on a given subject, within which legislation may or should be enacted, and positive constitutional inhibition which no legislative act can relieve or modify; the former might require future legislation; the latter must, from its nature, be self-executing. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 171; 161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064.

11. Self-executing provisions—Relation to officers or official acts or proceedings.

The provisions of section 3 of article 19 of the state constitution that "the second power reserved by the people is the referendum, which shall be exercised in the manner provided in sections 1 and 2," apply to state elections. State v. Brodigan, 37 Nev. 37; 138 P. 914.

Const. art. 19, sec. 1, declares that, whenever 10 per cent of the voters shall express their wish that any law or resolution of the legislature shall be submitted to a vote of the people, the officers charged with the duty of announcing elections shall submit the question to be voted on. Section 2 declares that, if a majority of the voters at an election shall signify approval of a law or resolution, such law shall stand or, if the majority be against it, it shall be void. Section 3 declares that the electors reserve to themselves the power to propose laws and propose amendments of the constitution, and to enact or reject the same at the polls independent of the legislature, that the first power is the initiative, and no more than 10 per cent of the qualified voters shall be required to propose any measure, and that initiative petitions, except in municipal legislation, shall be filed with the secretary of state not less than thirty days before any regular session of the legislature, and the secretary shall transmit the same to the legislature as soon as it convenes, and that the second power by the people is referendum, which shall be exercised in the manner provided. Held, that, while this article declares that it shall be self-executing, yet it does not impose upon the secretary of state the duty to file a referendum petition for the submission of an act of the legislature to the voters of a county at the next general election, and hence the filing of such a petition cannot be coerced by a mandamus for, though a constitutional provision declares it shall be self-executing, yet, if it does not provide for the manner of its execution, the execution must be provided for by statute. Id.

While it is provided that the provisions of article 19 "shall be self-executing, but legislation may be enacted to facilitate its operation," the further provisions that "the legislature may provide by law for the manner of exercising the initiative and referendum powers as to county and municipal legislation," makes it apparent that it was intended that further legislation should be enacted for carrying into effect that part relating to county matters, as the article itself makes no such provision. Id.

12. Self-executing provisions—Prohibitions and restrictions.

Prohibitory provisions in a constitution are usually self-executing to the extent that anything done in violation of them is void, and no legislation is required to execute such provision; but they are not self-executing when they merely indicate principles without laying down rules by which they may be given the force of law. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 171; 161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064.

13. Validity of statutory provisions—Constitutionality.

That a statute has for years been enforced by the courts, without its constitutionality being challenged, may be considered as a recognition of its constitutionality, and courts will seldom entertain questions of the constitutionality of a statute recognized as being valid in the adjudication of rights, and when the invalidity of the statute would lead to serious consequences. Worthington v. District Court, 37 Nev. 212; 142 P. 230; Ann. Cas. 1916E, 1097; L. R. A. 1916A, 606.

14. Persons entitled to raise constitutional questions.

Where a petition fails to show that authorized representatives of the Progressive party sought to preserve the rights of their party under section 8, Stats. 1915, c. 283, for the apportionment of convention delegates, held that petitioners for writ of prohibition cannot question the validity of section 3, providing for apportionment on the basis of vote for congressman at the last election. Turner v. Fogg, 39 Nev. 406; 159 P. 56.

One charged with violation of prohibition act could not complain of its unconstitutionality as providing justice of peace might assess fine in excess of limitation fixed by general statute prescribing his jurisdiction, where the punishment fixed was actually within limitation of the general statute. Ex Parte Zwissig, 42 Nev. 330; 178 P. 20.

The court will hear only those objecting to the constitutionality of a statute who are affected by its alleged unconstitutionality in the particulars complained of. Bergman v. Kearney, 241 F. 885.

15. Persons entitled to raise constitutional questions—Estoppel or waiver.

Where the requirement under Stats. 1908-09, c. 200, secs. 21, 22 (Rev. Laws, 2851, 2852), providing for removal of officers, that officer removed shall pay complainant $500, is waived, the constitutionality of such requirement cannot be considered. Gay v. District Court, 41 Nev. 330; 171 P. 156.

16. Determination of constitutional questions—Necessity of determination.

It is the rule that constitutional questions will not be determined unless the determination is necessary for the disposition of the case. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 86; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

The court does not determine constitutional questions, when such determination is not necessary for the decision of the case. State v. Boerlin, 38 Nev. 39; 144 P. 738.

Courts will presume statutes to be valid and will not consider a question affecting their invalidity, unless essential to a determination of the case. State v. Douglass, 33 Nev. 82; 110 P. 177.

Constitutional questions, not necessary for an adjudication of the rights of the parties, will not be determined. State v. Tax Commission, 38 Nev. 112; 145 P. 905.

17. Determination of constitutional questions—Presumptions in favor of constitutionality.

In all cases of doubt every presumption and intentment will be made in favor of the constitutionality of an act of the legislature. Quillel v. Strosnider, 34 Nev. 9; 115 P. 177.

On an application for prohibition on the eve of election to annul Stats. 1915, c. 283, providing for the nomination of candidates by political parties, and the holding of primaries and conventions, the court will not speculate on the effect of possible contingencies on the validity of the act, nor annul it because contingencies may arise under section 11 of such act which would make the act impossible of enforcement. Turner v. Fogg, 39 Nev. 406; 159 P. 56.

When a statute is assailed as being unconstitutional, every presumption is in favor of its validity, all doubts must be resolved in its favor, and, unless it is clearly in derogation of some constitutional provision, it must be sustained. Vineyard L. & S. Co. v. District Court, 42 Nev. 1; 171 P. 166.

All doubts as to the validity of a statute must be resolved in favor of validity. State v. Wells Fargo & Co., 38 Nev. 506; 150 P. 836.

III. DISTRIBUTION OF GOVERNMENTAL POWERS AND FUNCTIONS

(A) LEGISLATIVE POWERS AND DELEGATION THEREOF

18. Nature and scope.

Each of the three departments of government, the legislative, executive, and judicial, is supreme in the powers conferred upon it by the constitution, and no department has the right to control or interfere with the powers delegated to another department. State v. Dickerson, 33 Nev. 540; 113 P. 105.

19. Encroachment on judiciary.

Rev. Laws, 1513, defining the election duties of boards of county commissioners, providing for recounts by them, is not void as vesting judicial powers in such board. McBride v. Griswold, 38 Nev. 56; 146 P. 756.

20. Encroachment on judiciary—Remedies and procedure.

The appointment of a receiver for a bank in involuntary liquidation proceedings, and his investiture of the bank's property for the purpose of liquidation under the orders of the court, constituted a part of the judgment ordering the bank into involuntary liquidation. State v. Wildes, 34 Nev. 94; 116 P. 595.

The water law (Stats. 1913, c. 140), as amended by Stats. 1915, c. 253, providing that, subject to existing rights, the water of all sources of supply belongs to the public, providing for the appointment of a state engineer, to whom application may be made to appropriate any unappropriated water in a public stream, etc., and providing that the state engineer, on his own initiative, or on application of one or more users of water of any stream, may make an order for the determination of the relative rights of the water users, there being provision for notice, etc., is not violative of Const. art. 3, sec. 1, and art. 6, sec. 1, providing that the powers of government shall be divided into three separate departments, the legislative, executive, and judicial, etc., and that the judicial power of the state shall be vested in a supreme court, district courts, and justices of the peace, the act not conferring judicial powers on the state engineer, since the procedure before him merely paves the way for an adjudication by the district court. Vineyard L. & S. Co. v. District Court, 42 Nev. 2; 171 P. 166.

Stats. 1911, c. 150 sec. 79, regulating the affairs of banks and providing that the state bank examiner shall take possession of all banks and their property and accounts in the custody of any receiver previously appointed, and shall administer and settle the same, and all such receivers shall be required to turn over the same to the bank examiner, or a deputy appointed by him, constituted an interference with the duties and prerogatives of the court appointing such receivers and was unconstitutional as violating section 1, article 3, of the constitution, providing that no persons charged with the exercise of powers properly belonging to one department shall exercise any functions appertaining to either of the others, except as expressly directed or permitted. Id.

21. Encroachment on executive.

The provision in the act entitled "An act to require the acceptance and collection of grants, devises, bequests, donations, and assignments to the State of Nevada," approved February 26, 1901 (Stats. 1901, c. 19), that "whenever any grant, devise, bequest, donation, or gift or assignment of money, bonds, or choses in action shall be made to this state, the governor is directed to receive and accept the same, so that the right and title to the same shall pass to the state." imposes a ministerial duty upon the governor which could have been conferred as well upon any other officer or person, and which in no way conflicts with or pertains to the constitutional powers or prerogatives of the governor, excepting that it is his duty to enforce this and other statutes under section 7 of article 5 of the constitution, which provides that "he shall see that the laws are faithfully executed." He is nowhere empowered to set aside the law because he may not agree with its policy. He is as much unauthorized to prevent the reception of the bonds as if the legislature had directed the state treasurer instead of the governor to accept them for the state. State v. Dickerson, 33 Nev. 540; 113 P. 105.

Neither the legislature nor the courts can compel the governor to perform acts which would be in conflict with the powers and prerogatives conferred upon him by the constitution. As to these he is absolute. Id.

22. Delegation of powers—To judiciary.

Const. art. 3, sec. 1, providing that none of the three departments of government shall exercise functions belonging to the others except where expressly directed, makes it plain that the district court could be delegated powers other than those expressly mentioned by article 6, section 6. Gay v. District Court, 41 Nev. 330; 171 P. 156.

23. Delegation of powers—To local authorities.

Article 10 of the constitution, as amended and ratified at the general election in 1906, provides (section 1) that the legislature shall provide for uniform and equal taxation and for a just valuation for taxation of all property, except mines and mining claims, when not patented, the proceeds alone of which shall be assessed and taxed; and, when patented, each patented mine shall be assessed at not less than $500, except when $100 in labor has been actually performed thereon during the year, in addition to the tax on the net proceeds, etc. Rev. Laws, 3621, provides that all property within the state shall be subject to taxation except: "Second—Unpatented mines and mining claims; provided." etc. Held, that where $100 worth or more of labor has been expended on a patented mining claim during any one year and prior to the time of assessment, the mine is exempt from taxation, except on the proceeds thereof. Goldfield Con. M. Co. v. State, 35 Nev. 178; 127 P. 77.

(B) JUDICIAL POWERS AND FUNCTIONS

24. Encroachment on legislature.

The court has no legislative power and cannot put into a statute a provision omitted by the legislature. Mighels v. Eggers, 36 Nev. 364; 136 P. 104.

While the courts may give effect to statutes by a fair and liberal construction of the language used, they cannot supply language to make them operative for a presumed purpose, unless from the reading of the entire act the intent is manifest. State v. Brodigan, 37 Nev. 245; 141 P. 988.

The legislature, representing the people of the state, has the sole authority to enact and repeal statutes, and in this regard its power is supreme in all matters of government, where not prohibited by constitutional limitations, state or federal. State v. Dickerson, 33 Nev. 540; 113 P. 105.

The court, in determining the validity of a statute, will not consider its policy, wisdom, or expediency, but will enforce it in accordance with the intention of the legislature, unless clearly in conflict with the constitution. Worthington v. District Court, 37 Nev. 214; 142 P. 230; Ann. Cas. 1916E. 1097; L. R. A. 1916A, 696.

Questions relating to the wisdom, policy, and expediency of statutes are for the people's representatives in legislature assembled, and not for the governor or the courts to determine. State v. Dickerson, 33 Nev. 540; 113 P. 105.

Stats. 1915, c. 135, amending act of March 17, 1911, by adding thereto section 3751, providing that it shall be unlawful for any person to have in his possession any hide from which the ears have been removed, or the brand obliterated, cannot be declared invalid by the supreme court, for the reason that it is unjust and oppressive, in that the owner and thief are placed in the same class. State v. Park, 42 Nev. 386; 178 P. 389; 3 Am. Law Rep. 75.

The courts, in considering the constitutionality of a statute, have nothing to do with the general policy of the law. Vineyard L. & S. Co. v. District Court, 42 Nev. 1; 171 P. 166.

The justice, wisdom, and expediency of laws are within the exclusive province of the legislature. State v. Park, 42 Nev. 386; 178 P. 389; 3 Am. Law Rep. 75.

The motives of the legislature are not subject to judicial inquiry, and its will is above the judgment of the courts as to the wisdom or policy of legislation. City of Reno v. Stoddard, 40 Nev. 537; 167 P. 317.

(C) EXECUTIVE POWERS AND FUNCTIONS

25. Encroachment on legislature.

The contention of the lieutenant- and acting governor that the acceptance as directed by the statute of repudiated bonds of a sister state, tendered to this state as a donation, would disturb the harmonious relations existing between the two states, and that for certain legal reasons the bonds cannot be collected, raises a question for the legislature in the first instance and for the judiciary in the second, neither of which is within the functions of the executive or justifies his refusal to accept the bonds. State v. Dickerson, 33 Nev. 540; 113 P. 105.

The governor may recommend the passage of laws, and may veto bills passed by the senate and assembly; but when an act not in conflict with the constitution passes both houses of the legislature, and is approved by him or passes over his veto, it becomes binding, and no person is above a law so enacted. As he cannot prevent its passage over his veto, he is powerless to set aside a statute after it has become a law. Id.

The legislature is the exclusive judge as to whether a law on any subject not enumerated in the constitution can be made general and applicable to the whole state, and the judgment of the legislature as to whether a general law is applicable or special, or local laws are required regarding subjects not so enumerated, is conclusive. Quilici v. Strosnider, 34 Nev. 9; 115 P. 177.

26. Encroachment on judiciary—Powers, duties and acts under legislative authority.

Stats. 1913, c. 140, providing for the establishment of water rights in proceedings before the state engineer, and authorizing such administrative officer to make decrees which, in the absence of appeal, are declared final, in so far as it attempts to make such decrees conclusive on the parties, is unconstitutional as impairing the constitutional power of the judiciary, under Const. art. 6, sec. 1, declaring that the judicial power of the state shall be vested in certain specified courts. Ormsby County v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 316; 142 P. 803.

The provisions of section 84 of the water law of 1913 providing: "Nothing in this act contained shall impair the vested right of any person, * * * nor shall the right of any person * * * be impaired or affected by any of the provisions of this act where appropriations have been initiated in accordance with law prior to the approval of this act," does not limit the power of the state engineer to determine for administrative purposes relative rights of water appropriators or users vested prior to the passage of the act, and to administer such prior acquired rights in accordance with such determinations subject to remedy by the courts for errors in determinations.

Ormsby County v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 315; 142 P. 803.

In so far as the water law of 1913 authorizes the state engineer to investigate and determine the relative rights of water appropriators or users upon any stream or stream system, or requires statements to be made by the several claimants of their respective claims and requires such claimants to support the same with proofs, and authorizes the state engineer to determine contests, or authorizes the control of the distribution of the waters of a stream to the persons found to be entitled thereto, the law is valid. Id.

Sections 18 to 51, inclusive, of the water law of 1913 are unconstitutional and void in that they attempt to invest the state engineer with powers to affect or destroy the property rights of water appropriators or users in violation of the due-process-of-law provisions of the federal and state constitutions, and because they attempt to invest the state engineer with judicial powers reposed in the courts, in violation of article 3, section 1, and article 6, sections 1 and 6, of the state constitution. Ormsby Co. v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 314, 316; 142 P. 803.

The water law (Stats. 1913, c. 140), as amended by Stats. 1915, c. 253, providing that, subject to existing rights, the water of all sources of supply belongs to the public, providing for the appointment of a state engineer, to whom application may be made to appropriate any unappropriated water in a public stream, etc., and providing that the state engineer, on his own initiative or on application of one or more users of water of any stream, may make an order for the determination of the relative rights of the water users, there being provision for notice, etc., is not violative of Const. art. 6, sec. 6, providing that the district courts shall have original jurisdiction in all cases which involve the title or the right of possession to, or the possession of, real property, even though a water right is real estate, since the entire proceedings under the water law amount to nothing until a copy of the order of determination of water rights of the state engineer is filed in the office of the clerk of the district court, thus operating as a complaint, the proceedings before the state engineer being nothing more than the routine of preparing and filing the complaint in the district court, which invests the latter court with jurisdiction to act. Vineyard L. & S. Co. v. District Court, 42 Nev. 2; 171 P. 166.

The Nevada water law of March 22, 1913, as amended by Stats. Nev. 1915, c. 253, confers upon the state engineer supervisory power over the distribution and use of water from the streams of the state. As incidental to the exercise of such power it authorizes him, on notice to all parties in interest and after making surveys and maps of a stream and on a hearing, to ascertain and determine the rights of users of water from the stream. He is then required to file his order of determination, with the original evidence and transcript, with the district court, to apply to the court to have the matter set down for hearing and serve notice on all parties in interest. Pending the hearing, distribution of water is to be made in accordance with his order, unless a stay bond is filed and approved by the court. The order, claims of claimants, and exceptions to the order constitute the pleadings on which the case is to proceed as nearly as may be in accordance with the rules governing civil actions, and upon the evidence taken before the engineer and such further evidence as may be offered the court is to render a final decree determining the rights of users of water from the stream, from which decree an appeal may be taken to the supreme court. Held, that such provisions for hearing and determination by the state engineer are not in violation of article 3, section 1, of the state constitution, as conferring judicial power on an administrative officer, since his determination has none of the finality of a judgment, but is merely a preliminary step in the proceeding which culminates in a final decree of the district court. Bergman v. Kearney, 241 F. 885.

V. PERSONAL, CIVIL AND POLITICAL RIGHTS

27. Constitutional guaranties.

A statute enacted for the prevention of a public offense which the legislature deems essential to declare to promote the public good must be reasonably adapted to attain that end without unnecessarily invading personal or property rights. State v. Park, 42 Nev. 386; 178 P. 389; 3 Am. Law Rep. 75.

28. Rights to acquire, hold and dispose of property.

The constitution (art. 1, sec. 1) asserting that the acquisition and protection of property is an inalienable right, means more than the right to protect property already owned by the citizen. Marymont v. Banking Board, 33 Nev. 333; 111 P. 295; 32 L. R. A. (N.S.) 477; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 162.

VI. VESTED RIGHTS

29. Estates and interests in property.

Stats. 1911, c. 133, secs. 217, 218 (Rev. Laws, 3457, 3458), prohibiting the keeping of houses of ill-fame within 800 yards of schools, etc., is not unconstitutional, as interfering with vested rights, as against one conducting such place in accordance with an ordinance of the city, adopted pursuant to previous legislative authority. Ex Parte Ah Pah, 34 Nev. 283; 119 P. 770.

The Nevada water law of March 22, 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 140), as amended in 1915 (Stats. 1915, c. 253), in providing that existing water rights acquired before its passage shall be ascertained and determined first by the state engineer and afterwards by the district court as therein prescribed, is not unconstitutional, as depriving the holders of vested rights; but such provision is a proper and necessary one, to enable the state to ascertain and delimit new rights to be acquired under the act, and is within the legislative power. Bergman v. Kearney, 241 F. 884.

30. Rights of action and defenses.

The legislature is without power to take from an owner or claimant of property the right to defend an action by which it is sought to obtain a decree adjudging defendant to be without title to or right to the property so claimed. Scott v. Day-Bristol M. Co., 37 Nev. 299; 142 P. 625.

31. Remedies.

No person has a vested right in any rule of law, nor can any one assert a vested right in any particular mode of procedure. Vineyard L. & S. Co. v. District Court, 42 Nev. 3; 171 P. 166.

32. The law impairing the obligation.

Stats. Nev. 1903, p. 207, c. 111, sec. 1, which provides that "It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to make or enter into any agreement, either oral or in writing, by the terms of which any employee of such person, firm or corporation, or any person about to enter the employ of such person, firm or corporation, as a condition for continuing or obtaining such employment, shall promise or agree not to become or continue a member of a labor organization, or shall promise or agree to become or continue a member of a labor organization," deprives the employer of the liberty to contract as to matters which may be vital to him, and therefore is invalid under the constitutional provision that "no one shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law." Goldfield Con. Mines Co. v. Goldfield Miners' Union, 159 F. 501.

VII. OBLIGATION OF CONTRACTS

(C) CONTRACTS OF INDIVIDUALS AND PRIVATE CORPORATIONS

33. Marriage and divorce.

The constitutional prohibition against the impairment of obligation of contracts does not apply to divorces, which are under the control of the legislature, and the provision of the act of February 20, 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 10), amending section 22 of the marriage and divorce act of 1861 (Stats. 1861, c. 33), as amended in 1875 (Stats. 1875, c. 22), by declaring that when, at the time a cause of divorce accrues, the parties are not both residents, the court cannot have jurisdiction, unless either party has been a bona-fide resident for not less than one year, does not impair the obligation of contracts, though it be construed as relating to a cause for divorce. Worthington v. District Court, 37 Nev. 214; 142 P. 230; Ann. Cas. 1916E, 1097; L. R. A. 1916A, 696.

34. Liens—Validity as against trustee.

A rule of the interstate commerce commission regulating freight rates and charges cannot be regarded as retroactive, unless it impairs some right vested according to existing law. Horton v. Tonopah and Goldfield R. Co., 225 F. 407.

IX. PRIVILEGES OR IMMUNITIES IN CLASS LEGISLATION

35. Grants of special privileges or immunities.

An ordinance, the purpose of which is stated in the title—directing the issue of a license to D. for the keeping or conducting of a restaurant at a designated place, with the privilege in connection therewith of selling, furnishing, serving or otherwise disposing of wine, malt and spirituous liquors in sealed packages—is void because it grants a special privilege to a single individual to conduct a private business of a character subject to general police regulations, and in which no public interest is subserved. State v. Reno City Council, 36 Nev. 334; 138 P. 110; 50 L. R. A. (N.S.) 105.

36. Privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States.

A statute of a state which provides that where, at the time of the accrual of a cause for divorce, the parties shall not be both bona-fide residents, no court shall grant a divorce, unless either party shall have been a bona-fide resident for not less than one year next preceding the bringing of the action, does not violate Const. U. S. art. 4, sec. 2, guaranteeing to citizens of each state all privileges and immunities of citizens in the several states; there being a distinction between citizenship and residence and the rights of citizens and residents, and the constitution guaranteeing no rights to citizens as to divorce. Worthington v. District Court, 37 Nev. 214; 142 P. 230; Ann. Cas. 1916E. 1097; L. R. A. 1916A, 696.

37. Class legislation.

Stats. 1913, c. 111, sec. 1, subd. b, making counties liable under the Workmen's Compensation Act, is not unconstitutional as discriminatory; the classification of counties being reasonable. Nevada Ind. Com. v. Washoe Co., 41 Nev. 437; 171 P. 511.

X. EQUAL PROTECTION OF LAWS

38. Licenses and license taxes.

The act violates the fourteenth amendment and article 4 of section 2 of the constitution of the United States, relating to equal protection of the laws. Ex Parte Taylor and Rounds, 35 Nev. 504; 131 P. 133.

39. Civil remedies and proceedings.

The act of February 20, 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 10) amending section 22 of the marriage and divorce act of 1861 (Stats. 1861, c. 33), as amended in 1875 (Stats. 1875, c. 22), by declaring that when, at the time a cause for divorce accrues, the parties shall not have been bona-fide residents, the court shall not grant a divorce, unless either party shall have been a bona-fide resident for not less than a year, provides for a classification of nonresidents at the time of the accrual of the cause of action for divorce, and the classification is reasonable, and does not conflict with the fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution guaranteeing the equal protection of the laws. Worthington v. District Court, 37 Nev. 213; 142 P. 230; Ann. Cas. 1916E. 1097; L. R. A. 1916A, 696.

XI. DUE PROCESS OF LAW

40. Constitutional guaranties.

It is not the rule in Nevada that there can be no due process of law unless the methods, means, and instrumentalities which were in existence at the time of the adoption of the Nevada constitution are adhered to. Vineyard L. & S. Co. v. District Court, 42 Nev. 2; 171 P. 166.

The fundamental requisites of "due process of law" are notice and an opportunity to be heard. King Tonopah M. Co. v. Lynch, 232 F. 486.

A state may not, by prescribing what shall constitute due process of law, subtract anything from the right recognized and established as due process in the federal constitution. King Tonopah M. Co. v. Lynch, 232 F. 485.

41. Criminal prosecution—Statutory creation or definition of offense.

Stats. 1915, c. 135, amending act of March 17, 1911, by adding thereto section 375½, providing that it shall be unlawful for any person to have in his possession any hide from which the ears have been removed, or the brand obliterated, deprives a person of his property without due process of law against the guaranties of section 1, article 14, of the federal constitution, and section 8, article 1, of the state constitution. State v. Park, 42 Nev. 386; 178 P. 389; 3 Am. Law Rep. 75.

42. Deprivation of property.

Water law (Stats. 1913, c. 140), as amended by Stats. 1915, c. 253, providing that, subject to existing rights, the water of all sources of supply belongs to the public, providing for the appointment of a state engineer, to whom application may be made to appropriate any unappropriated water in a public stream, etc., and providing that the state engineer, on his own initiative, or on application of one or more users of water of any stream, may make an order for the determination of the relative rights of the water users, there being provision for notice, etc., is not violative of federal Const. Amend. 14, prohibiting the taking of property without due process of law. Vineyard L. & S. Co. v. District Court, 42 Nev. 1; 171 P. 166.

43. Taxation of property—Assessment and collection.

There is no want of due process within the fourteenth amendment because of valuation by board for taxation being without notice to property owner; the mode of enforcing the tax (Rev. Laws. 3659-3665) being by a judicial proceeding wherein process issues and an opportunity is afforded for a full hearing, and payment being enforced only after there is a judgment sustaining the tax. Wells Fargo & Co. v. State of Nevada, 39 S. C. R. 62.

Such section is not unconstitutional, since the legislature has power to enact laws to promote healthful conditions of work or freedom from undue oppression; and a contract which the state, in the legitimate exercise of its police power, has the right to prohibit is not within the protection of Const. U. S. Amend. 14, prohibiting the states from depriving any person of liberty or property without due process of law, especially in view of the further provision of that section that upon the trial of an action the defendant may set off the sum it has contributed toward any such insurance, relief benefit, or indemnity that may have been paid to the person entitled thereto. Lawson v. Halifax-Tonopah M. Co., 36 Nev. 591; 135 P. 611; 133 P. 261.

44. Creation or displacement of liens.

Workmen's Compensation Act (Stats. 1913, c. 111), sec. 1, subd. b, making counties subject thereto, is not unconstitutional as depriving counties of due process of law, the money required to be paid by the counties going for a public purpose of supporting the indigent, which is a legitimate charge on the people of the state and its various subdivisions. Nevada Ind. Com. v. Washoe Co., 41 Nev. 437; 171 P. 511.

45. Civil remedies and proceedings—Special or summary proceedings.

The water law (Stats. 1913, c. 140), as amended by Stats. 1915, c. 253, is not unconstitutional, as permitting a taking of property without due process of law, in that, should an interested party fail to file objections, to the determination of the state engineer as to water rights, with the clerk of the district court in which the engineer files a copy of his order of determination, and the court enters a decree in accordance with such order, such decree will be tantamount to a taking of property without due process. Vineyard L. & S. Co. v. District Court, 42 Nev. 3; 171 P. 166.

46. Civil remedies and proceedings—Parties and process, or notice.

Rev. Laws, 5024, 5025, relating to service of process on foreign corporations, fail to provide means whereby proper notice should be given, and do not constitute due process of law. Wildes v. Lou Dillon M. Co., 41 Nev. 364; 170 P. 1046.

A method of service of process, though prescribed by state statute, is not sufficient, if it does not amount to due process of law. King Tonopah M. Co. v. Lynch, 232 F. 485.

Rev. Laws, Nev. 5024, requires foreign corporations owning property or doing business in the state to appoint and keep in the state an agent upon whom process may be served. Section 5025 provides that if any such company shall fail to appoint such agent, on the production of a certificate of the secretary of state showing the fact, which certificate shall be conclusive evidence of the fact, it shall be lawful to serve such company with any legal process by delivering a copy to the secretary of state, or, in his absence, to a deputy secretary of state. Held, that service thereunder on the secretary of state did not amount to due process of law, where neither plaintiff nor the secretary of state made any effort or attempt to notify the company, and it acquired no knowledge of the suit prior to judgment, or within the six months thereafter, within which it might have answered to the merits, though plaintiff knew the defendant was a Utah corporation, had brought a prior action against it, and two days before instituting the action in question made an affidavit in which he swore that he was familiar with its business and affairs. King Tonopah M. Co. v. Lynch, 232 F. 486.

47. Civil remedies and proceedings—Right to trial by jury.

Stats. 1908-09, c. 200, secs. 21, 22 (Rev. Laws, 2851, 2852), providing for summary trial in cases of removal of officers, does not violate the constitutional provision that one charged with crime is entitled to a jury trial, because the legislature has plenary power in such cases. Gay v. District Court, 41 Nev. 330; 171 P. 156.

48. Administrative proceedings.

The provisions of said act for notice and hearing, with the right to file exceptions to the determination of the engineer, even by those who fail or refuse to appear or submit evidence, are sufficient to constitute due process of law, and the act is otherwise constitutional. Bergman v. Kearney, 241 F. 885.

I. ACTS OR CONDUCT CONSTITUTING CONTEMPT OF COURT

1. Disobedience to mandate, order, or judgment—Validity of mandate, order, or judgment.

Alleged violation of a void order of court does not constitute contempt of court, and prohibition will lie to prevent proceeding to punish for such alleged contempt. McKinnon v. Harwood, 35 Nev. 494; 130 P. 465.

CONTINUANCE

1. Pendency of other action.
2. Absence of party.

1. Pendency of other action.

Under Rev. Laws, 2227, providing that, at the time of filing the complaint and issuing the summons in a lien action, the plaintiff shall notify all persons claiming liens to exhibit proof, and that all liens not exhibited shall be deemed to be waived in favor of those exhibited, where lien claimants sued to enforce their lien, and gave proper notice to other claimants to exhibit their liens, and other claimants, who had an opportunity to exhibit their liens and had elected to institute an independent suit, appeared by attorney and stated that the other suit was pending for the foreclosure of their liens and that at the proper time they would appear and join in the foreclosure, the court very properly refused the claimants' continuance. Daly v. Lahontan Mines Co., 39 Nev. 15; 151 P. 514; 158 P. 285.

2. Absence of party.

Where defendant, in a suit for divorce, was present with his counsel in court on March 28, when by his consent the case was set for trial April 4, without then informing the court of the necessity of his being absent so near that date as to prevent his presence at the trial, and it did not appear that his absence before the trial, which prevented his presence at the trial, was due to a court proceeding, denial of continuance because of his absence, supported by a telegram merely announcing his inability to be present because of guardianship proceedings, was not an abuse of discretion. Neven v. Neven, 38 Nev. 541; 148 P. 354; 154 P. 78; Ann. Cas. 1918B, 1083.

A party who is a material witness in his own behalf is not entitled to a continuance because of his absence, unless he shows that he had his testimony ready for use at the trial, but was prevented from attending the trial by some obstacle which, by the exercise of reasonable diligence, he could not overcome, and which he did not create by his own voluntary act. Id.

A party in two court proceedings in different places is bound by the first notice of trial, and the requirement of his presence at that trial affords a ground for a continuance of the other proceeding. Id.

7. Approval or decision of others—Withholding approval.
8. Acts or omissions constituting breach.

I. REQUISITES AND VALIDITY(B) PARTIES, PROPOSALS, AND ACCEPTANCE

1. Qualified or conditional acceptance of offer.

Where the terms of a letter of proposal are accepted with certain qualifications, contract is not complete until terms imposed by letter of acceptance are agreed to. McCone v. Eccles, 42 Nev. 451; 181 P. 134.

(E) VALIDITY OF ASSENT

2. Mistake.

The contract whereby plaintiff abandons public lands, on which she has located mining claims, in consideration of the payment to her by defendant of $100 a month, till sale of 160 acres of the land, and agreement of defendant to make application for withdrawal, under the Carey Act (Act of Aug. 18, 1894, c. 301, 28 Stat. 372) of said lands and other lands, and to appropriate and develop them thereunder, the same to be sold, and a fifth of the proceeds of sale to be paid to plaintiff, is void as impossible of performance, and made under a mutual mistake; said act not allowing of sale of withdrawn land by the one withdrawing it, but only development of an irrigation system and sale of water therefrom to settlers, who make entry on the land and buy it from the state. Miller v. Thompson, 40 Nev. 35; 160 P. 775.

(F) LEGALITY OF OBJECT AND OF CONSIDERATION

3. Restraint of trade or competition in trade.

An agreement between mine operators that they will not employ any person who belongs to a certain labor organization, or to any organization affiliating therewith, does not constitute an unlawful conspiracy against such organization or its members. Goldfield Con. Mines Co. v. Goldfield Miners' Union, 159 F. 501.

II. CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION(A) GENERAL RULES OF CONSTRUCTION

4. Intention of parties.

When there is doubt as to the meaning of a contract, a party will be held to that meaning which he knew the other party supposed the words to bear during the performance of the contract. Scully v. United States, 197 F. 328.

IV. RESCISSION AND ABANDONMENT

5. Acts constituting rescission.

A building contractor, on a dispute arising over a partial payment by the owner, notified the owner that he had "forfeited" the contract for failure to make the payment, and stated that the contractor might decide to cancel the contract. The contractor remained in charge of the work until completion. A large portion of the work had been subcontracted for before the dispute, but the subcontractors never released the contractor. The owner posted a notice on the building that he was not responsible for any debts made by the contractor, and declared that the contract was forfeited. The contractor posted a notice that the owner had defaulted in payments and that the building was being completed by subcontractors, who would not hold the property for their claims. Letters passing between the parties contained misstatements which did not relate to any material matter. The owner incurred expenses in the construction of the building by exercising rights under the contract and in settling with subcontractors. Held, that the contract was not rescinded, and the contractor could enforce his rights thereunder. Schuler v. Golden, 37 Nev. 281; 142 P. 221.

V. PERFORMANCE OR BREACH

6. Performance of conditions.

A party who commits the first breach of a contract cannot maintain an action against the other for a subsequent failure to perform. Bradley v. N. C. O., 42 Nev. 411; 178 P. 906.

7. Approval or decision of others—Withholding approval.

While the decision of an arbiter to whom the question of the performance of a contract is committed by its terms is binding on the parties, in the absence of fraud, mistake or negligence so great as to be equivalent to bad faith, it is not necessary that there should be actual fraud or intentional wrong to entitle the contractor to maintain an action to recover for his work, notwithstanding the refusal of the arbiter to approve the same, but it is enough if such refusal was arbitrary, unreasonable, or unjust. Scully v. United States, 197 F. 327.

8. Acts or omissions constituting breach.

Railroad, contracting for building specified length of fence on its right of way within specified time, by notifying contractor to discontinue work, preventing continued performance of contract, and leading contractor to disband crew, breached the contract, notwithstanding its direction to contractor to resume work four months later. Bradley v. N. C. O., 42 Nev. 411; 178 P. 906.

Where accused was serving a life sentence in the state prison for murder, the district court had jurisdiction to order his production before it for trial on another murder charge. State v. Tranmer, 39 Nev. 142; 154 P. 80.

The statute guaranteeing a speedy trial does not apply while accused is in prison serving a sentence on another charge; but accused, serving such sentence, may demand that he be tried on all indictments against him, and a refusal to try him may enable him to invoke the statute. Ex Parte Tranmer, 35 Nev. 57; 126 P. 337; 41 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1005.

Under Rev. Laws, 6908, 6921, 7459, providing that every person shall be liable to punishment for a public offense committed by him, that there is no limitation of the time within which a prosecution for murder must be commenced, and that, when it is necessary to have one imprisoned brought before a court, an order for that purpose may be made, one sentenced to life imprisonment for murder may be tried pending his incarceration for a murder previously committed, and in the event of his conviction thereof, and sentence to death, the sentence may be carried into execution, notwithstanding section 7256, providing that, where defendant has been convicted of two or more offenses before judgment on either, the judgment may be that the imprisonment on any one may commence at the expiration of the imprisonment on any other. Ex Parte Tranmer, 35 Nev. 56; 126 P. 337; 41 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1095.

(D) TRANSFER OF SHARES

1. Sales—Remedies.

In suit for breach of contract to convey 25,000 shares of capital stock of corporation to be organized to develop mining claims, made in consideration of plaintiff's trust deed of his interest or option in claims, evidence held insufficient to sustain verdict of $300. Richards v. Vermilyea, 42 Nev. 294; 175 P. 188; 180 P. 121.

In action for breach of contract to deliver shares of capital stock of corporation to be organized, its value, if a proper criterion of damages, would be as of time of breach, and not as of date of contract. Id.

2. Registration or transfer on corporate books—Liabilities and remedies for refusal.

In an action against a corporation for conversion of stock by refusing to register its transfer on its books, evidence held to support a finding that the transfer was a bona-fide transaction. Robinson M. Co. v. Riepe, 37 Nev. 27; 138 P. 910.

VI. OFFICERS AND AGENTS

(C) RIGHTS, DUTIES, AND LIABILITIES AS TO CORPORATION

3. Compensation.

Where services rendered by plaintiff to a corporation of which he was a director or vice-president were within the scope of his official duties, he could not recover therefor without proof of an express contract of employment with an agreement for compensation, but as to services rendered outside the scope of his official duty he was entitled to recover on an implied promise if such promise could be inferred from the facts and circumstances in the case. Dunlap v. Montana-Tonopah M. Co., 192 F. 714; aff. 196 F. 612.

An officer or director of a corporation may recover fair and reasonable compensation for services rendered for the corporation outside the scope of his official duties, although there was no express contract therefor, if the services were rendered under such circumstances as to raise the fair presumption that the parties intended and understood that they were to be paid for. Montana Tonopah M. Co. v. Dunlap, 196 F. 612; 116 C. C. A. 286.

Evidence held to warrant a finding that emergency services rendered by a corporation's vice-president were without the scope of his official duties, and that he was entitled to recover compensation therefor, without an express contract to pay for them. Dunlap v. Montana-Tonopah M. Co., 192 F. 715; aff. 196 F. 612.

VII. CORPORATE POWERS AND LIABILITIES

(B) REPRESENTATION BY OFFICERS AND AGENTS

4. Application of principle of agency.

One is an agent, whether he is acting for a natural person or corporation; the fact the principal is artificial not interfering with the status of the agent. Bright v. Virginia and Gold Hill Water Co., 254 F. 175.

5. Actual or apparent authority.

Where an agent is clothed with a title implying general powers as vice-president, general manager, or superintendent of a corporation, the business public and courts may fairly presume he is what the corporation holds him out as being. Bradley v. N. C. O., 42 Nev. 411; 178 P. 906.

6. Purchases, sales, and warranties.

One employed to build in another state a standard-gage track in place of a narrow-gage one, and operate the road built, has authority to contract for the sale of narrow-gage ties removed from the track in the construction of the standard gage; he being the head officer in the state, charged with the management of the road. Henningsen v. Tonopah and Goldfield Railroad Co., 33 Nev. 208; 111 P. 36; 119 P. 774; 29 Ann. Cas. 1008.

Where an agent of a corporation purchased goods for it, the fact that the corporation, after being served with summons in an action for the price, gave the agent property to reimburse him for the merchandise sold by the seller, and for advances made by the agent before and after the corporation was incorporated, did not defeat liability of the corporation to the seller. Nesbitt v. Cherry Creek I. Co., 38 Nev. 150; 145 P. 929.

7. Ratification and repudiation.

A person was employed to build in a distant state a standard-gage track in place of a narrow-gage one, and to operate the road. The president of the company assented to his statement that the narrow-gage ties removed from the road ought to be sold. A form of contract for sale was drawn up by the attorney of the company, and then turned over to the auditor. Deliveries of ties under the contract were made for about six or seven months under the direction of the person in charge. The president was informed of the execution of the contract soon after it was made. The company's auditor, chief clerk, and assistant treasurer had knowledge of the contract and received payments for ties delivered under it. Held, that the company ratified the contract. Henningsen v. Tonopah and Goldfield Railroad Co., 33 Nev. 208; 111 P. 36; 119 P. 774; 29 Ann. Cas. 1008.

The unauthorized act of the managing director of a company in granting a license became effectual when ratified by the company. Sheehan v. Kasper, 41 Nev. 27; 165 P. 632.

8. Undisclosed agency for corporation.

Where goods furnished by a seller were furnished for the use of a corporation after its incorporation, the corporation was equitably and legally liable, though the purchase for it was made by its undisclosed agent. Nesbitt v. Cherry Creek I. Co., 38 Nev. 150; 145 P. 929.

9. Evidence as to authority.

In an action against a corporation upon a note, defended upon the ground that the person executing the note was not its president, either de jure or de facto, because not a stockholder, evidence held to sustain a finding that he was a stockholder and president with authority to execute the note. Darrough v. Nevada M. Co., 37 Nev. 170; 140 P. 724.

(D) CONTRACTS AND INDEBTEDNESS

10. Mortgages and trust deeds — Forms, requisites, and validity.

A corporation which has received the benefit of all the money advanced by its mortgagee is not in a position to question the good faith and validity of the transaction. Nev. Con. M. Co. v. Lewis, 34 Nev. 500; 126 P. 105.

(F) CIVIL ACTION

11. Process and notice.

The method of service of process on corporations, prescribed by statute, must be one that with reasonable certainty will result in actual notice to the corporation. King Tonopah M. Co. v. Lynch, 232 F. 487.

VIII. INSOLVENCY AND RECEIVERS

12. Evidence of.

Evidence held insufficient to show that a company at the time of executing a mortgage was insolvent. Nevada Con. M. Co. v. Lewis, 34 Nev. 500; 126 P. 105.

XII. FOREIGN CORPORATIONS

13. Power to exclude, restrict, or regulate.

The legislature of a state has a right to exclude foreign corporations, providing the corporation is so organized that it has no authority to do anything but purely intrastate business. King Tonopah M. Co. v. Lynch, 232 F. 485.

14. Expulsion, or withdrawal of permission to do business.

A state legislature may prescribe the conditions on which a corporation may remain in and do business within the state, and for a violation of such conditions the privilege of doing business in the state may be revoked; but the corporation cannot, as punishment, be deprived of or compelled to waive a right guaranteed by the federal constitution. Id.

15. Right to sue or defend.

Where a Maryland fidelity and guaranty company has secured a license to do business in Nevada, its right to foreclose a mortgage, taken to indemnify it for loss incurred as surety on an appeal bond, will not be denied because such corporation has failed to pay a gross-earnings tax imposed on foreign insurance companies doing business in Maryland, and which tax might be enforced in Nevada under general corporation law (Stats. 1903, c. 88), sec. 106, providing that foreign corporations doing business in the state shall suffer such penalties and taxes as may be imposed by the laws of the foreign state on corporations of Nevada; the Maryland statutes containing no provision that the failure to pay the tax shall result in any forfeiture of the corporation's property rights, the only penalty imposed being a fine. U. S. F. & G. Co. v. Marks, 37 Nev. 306; 142 P. 524.

Comp. Laws, 3124, provides that service of process against a foreign corporation doing business within the state, may be made on an agent, cashier, secretary, president, or other head thereof. Section 899 provides that every foreign corporation doing business in the state shall appoint an agent upon whom all legal process may also be served. In an action to enforce a mechanic's lien against a foreign corporation, service was made on its manager who had not been appointed its agent therefor. Held, that such service was valid under section 3124, which was in force at the passage of section 899, since the manager of a corporation is such an agent or "other head" of a company as is contemplated by the statute; an "agent" being one who has authority to act for another. Daly v. Lachontan Mines Co., 39 Nev. 14; 151 P. 514; 158 P. 285.

16. Actions by or against—Process.

A constructive agreement by a corporation doing business in a state to submit to a void or illegal statute prescribing a mode of serving process, which denies due process of law, cannot be founded on anything less than actual knowledge of the statute, as the presumption that every man knows the law does not hold him to a knowledge of statutes which for any reason are illegal or void. King Tonopah M. Co. v. Lynch, 232 F. 485.

17. Actions by or against—Attachment and garnishment.

Where the property attached in an action against a nonresident foreign corporation was a patented mining claim, which was not being worked and had not been worked or occupied for years, and on which annual labor was neither performed nor required, and the only visible evidence of the seizure was notice to that effect posted on the claim, such seizure did not obviate the necessity of notice to the owner, and a valid judgment, which might be enforced against the mining claims, could not be obtained unless the company was served as prescribed by law and the service must have amounted to due process. King Tonopah M. Co. v. Lynch, 232 F. 486.

18. Actions by or against—Judgment.

Where, in an action against a nonresident foreign corporation, a writ of attachment was issued and levied when the action was commenced, the property so sequestered limited the extent to which a judgment obtained by constructive service could be enforced. King Tonopah M. Co. v. Lynch, 232 F. 485.

14. Disbursements.
15. Expenses of record, abstract, or transcript on appeal or error.
16. Damages and penalties for frivolous appeal and delay—Right and grounds.
17. Taxation of costs on appeal and error.

I. NATURE AND GROUNDS AND EXTENT OF RIGHT

1. Dependent on statute.

Costs are recoverable only by express statutory provisions. State v. Baker and Josephs, 35 Nev. 300; 126 P. 345; 129 P. 452.

2. Apportionment.

In a suit by a former wife to obtain her share in property which had composed the community estate of herself and her former husband, the costs of receivership proceedings will not be assessed wholly against the husband's interest, though the wife prevailed, where the equities were not all in her favor. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 758.

V. AMOUNT, RATE, AND ITEMS

3. Witnesses' fees.

Witness fees may only be taxed when expressly allowed by legislative enactment. Zelavin v. Tonopah Belmont, 39 Nev. 2; 149 P. 188.

Although a party is not entitled to tax mileage on account of witnesses attending court out of the county, he may nevertheless less recover their per diem for the days they were upon the witness stand. Id.

4. Mileage.

Under Rev. Laws, 5431, providing that no person shall be required to attend as a witness out of the county in which he resides, unless the distance be less than thirty miles from his residence, the mileage of witnesses residing in another county more than thirty miles from the place of trial cannot be taxed as costs. Id.

Where it does not appear on a motion to retax costs that witnesses from a foreign state were not served at the state line, their mileage may be recovered from such line. Zelavin v. Tonopah Belmont Co., 39 Nev. 3; 149 P. 188.

VI. TAXATION

5. Bill of costs—Service.

Where plaintiff's bill of costs was filed, but no copy thereof was filed in the county clerk's office, there was no service on defendant's attorneys under Rev. Laws, 5369, providing that where the party on whom the service is to be made does not reside at the county-seat, the service may be made by filing the papers to be served in the county clerk's office, even if that section applies, since under section 5387, requiring the party claiming costs to deliver a memorandum of the items of his costs to the clerk and serve a copy upon the adverse party, the paper required to be served was a copy of the cost bill. Radovich v. W. U. Tel. Co., 36 Nev. 341; 135 P. 920; 136 P. 704.

Under Rev. Laws, 5387, providing that the party prevailing must deliver to the clerk a memorandum of the items of his costs, and serve a copy upon the adverse party, and section 5375 providing that where a party has an attorney the service of papers shall be upon the attorney, with certain exceptions, service of a cost bill should be made upon the attorneys for the adverse party, since their authority is not terminated so long as the amount of costs remains open to settlement, and service of the cost bill upon the resident agent of a foreign corporation was irregular, if not void, since under section 5024, requiring foreign corporations to keep in the state an agent upon whom all legal process may be served, only papers in the nature of process may be served upon the resident agent, and under section 5475, providing that, unless otherwise apparent from the context, the word "process" means a writ or summons issued in the course of judicial proceedings, the cost bill is not a process. Id.

The court has jurisdiction to strike from the files a cost bill not filed within the time allowed by law. Id.

6. Duties and proceedings of taxing officer.

Under Rev. Laws, 5387, requiring the clerk to tax his fees, such fees should be taxed in favor of a prevailing plaintiff, although the bill of costs was properly stricken. Glock v. Elges, 39 Nev. 415; 159 P. 629.

7. Remedies for erroneous taxation.

Under rule 34, providing that the party against whom judgment is entered shall have two days after service of a copy of the cost bill in which to move to retax costs, a notice of motion to retax, filed and served within two days after service of the cost bill, was sufficient, without actually filing and making in court within that time a motion to retax. Lind v. Webber, 36 Nev. 624; 134 P. 461; 135 P. 139; 141 P. 458; 50 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1046.

Under rule 34, providing that the party against whom judgment is entered shall have two days after service of a copy of the cost bill in which to move to retax, if defendant felt aggrieved because a hearing for a motion to retax was noticed for the second Saturday instead of the first thereafter, he should have applied to the lower court to shorten the time. Id.

8. Remedies for erroneous taxation—Motion for retaxation.

Where plaintiffs filed and served a notice of motion to retax costs two days after the entry of judgment, it was error to sustain an objection to the hearing of the motion, because no "motion" had been filed within two days after the entry of judgment. Id.

Where a cost bill has been filed in time, and thereafter a motion to retax is made without reservation of any question of service, a subsequent order to strike because of defective service is an excess of jurisdiction. Radovich v. W. U. Tel. Co., 36 Nev. 341; 135 P. 920; 136 P. 704.

A party who did not serve a copy of his cost bill on the attorneys for the adverse party, as required by law, could not attack a motion to retax the costs as not having been filed in time. Id.

9. Waiver and correction of irregularities and errors.

The party entitled to assert a waiver upon the part of the adverse party may himself waive such waiver. Id.

Where a cost bill is filed in time, the filing of a motion to retax, without reservation, is a waiver of any question of the regularity of service. Id.

Plaintiff's failure to serve a copy of his cost bill upon the defendant's attorneys was waived, where they moved to retax the costs, without questioning the service or reserving the right to so question it. Id.

VII. ON APPEAL OR ERROR, AND ON NEW TRIAL OR MOTION THEREFOR

10. Review of decisions of justices of the peace.

Where a case comes to the district court on appeal from justice's court, costs in the district court do not follow as of course, but come under the provisions of Rev. Laws, 5380, whereby the district court is authorized and directed to exercise its discretion in cases other than those mentioned in section 5377, prescribing allowance of costs as of course. McLeod v. District Court, 39 Nev. 337; 157 P. 649.

11. Prevailing or successful party.

In view of Rev. Laws, 5333, providing that when appellant specifies as ground for appeal that the judge erred in denying a motion for new trial on ground that the evidence did not support the judgment and does not prevail, he shall not recover costs for the statement of the testimony, although he prevails on other alleged errors on an appeal from the judgment and from an order denying a motion for a new trial, where the only relief granted appellant was on the appeal from the judgment based on the judgment roll alone, appellant is not entitled to costs for the transcript on appeal from the order denying his motion for a new trial. Ramelli v. Sorgi, 40 Nev. 281; 161 P. 717.

12. Persons liable.

Where costs are incurred on both sides on appeal or original proceeding, the clerk must collect his costs in advance from the respective parties incurring them. State v. Baker and Josephs, 35 Nev. 301; 126 P. 345; 129 P. 452.

Each party to an appeal or proceeding in the supreme court is primarily liable for the costs made by him, and there is no statutory authority for the charging to relator or appellant, or requiring the payment by them before judgment, of fees incurred by respondent. Id.

13. Award or certificate of costs on determination on appeal or writ of error.

Under the provisions of Rev. Laws, 5381, where the supreme court in reversing a judgment makes no order as to costs, the costs shall be allowed to the party obtaining relief, and where a judgment for plaintiff for $300 was reversed, it follows as a matter of course that costs are recoverable by appellant without an order therefor. Richards v. Vermilyea, 42 Nev. 294; 175 P. 188; 180 P. 121.

14. Disbursements.

Items for cash paid a surety company by appellant as premiums on the appeal and stay bond are proper elements of cost to be collected by appellant upon reversal, in view of Rev. Laws, 699. Id.

15. Expenses of record, abstract, or transcript on appeal or error.

In computing the costs under supreme court rule 6, fixing the amount to be allowed per folio for a typewritten copy of the transcript, it was error for the clerk to include in his calculation the original papers on file and included in the record. Id.

16. Damages and penalties for frivolous appeal and delay—Right and grounds.

Appealing for delay. Paroni v. Simonsen, 34 Nev. 26; 115 P. 415.

Under Rev. Laws, 5381, where, in opinion on rehearing, the supreme court made no order as to costs, since defendant appellant had obtained relief originally by reduction of judgment against it, judgment having been reversed unless plaintiff agreed to reduction, appellant should recover its costs on original appeal. Dixon v. Southern Pacific Co., 42 Nev. 74; 172 P. 368; 177 P. 14.

Where both parties petitioned for rehearing, and neither obtained any relief as a consequence, each party, under Rev. Laws, 5381, should pay his own costs incurred on rehearing. Id.

Damages for appealing for delay, authorized by Comp. Laws, 3434, are properly assessed on dismissal for failure to appeal in time, where appellant waited until what he supposed to be the last day for appeal, brought no record up, and did not resist the motion to dismiss. Paroni v. Simonsen, 34 Nev. 26; 115 P. 415.

17. Taxation of costs on appeal or error.

Until the discretion of the district court on appeal from justice's court was exercised in fixing costs, there was nothing in the statutes or procedure preventing the party against whom the costs might be assessed from appearing to object to the whole cost bill, or any items therein. McLeod v. District Court, 39 Nev. 337; 157 P. 649.

A cost bill, though not filed until after decision on rehearing, was filed in time. Ramelli v. Sorgi, 40 Nev. 281; 161 P. 717.

Under Sup. Ct. Rule 6, par. 2, providing that a party, desiring to recover as costs his printing expenses, shall within five days after the decision of the cause file with the clerk and serve on the opposite party a cost bill, stating the actual cost of the printing, service thereof on the opposite party within such time is as necessary as its filing with the clerk. Zelavin v. Tonopah Belmont Co., 41 Nev. 1; 149 P. 188; 161 P. 736.

Sup. Ct. Rule 6, par. 2, making the filing and service of cost bill within five days after decision of cause a condition to recovery of printing expenses as costs, not being for the convenience of the court or tending to facilitate its business, its enforcement is not subject to its discretion. Id.

Under rule 6, paragraph 3, rules of supreme court, objections to cost bill must be filed with the clerk of the court and heard and settled by such clerk. From the ruling of the clerk an appeal may be taken to the court. The court will not consider objections to a cost bill except upon appeal from the decision of the clerk. In Re Hartung's Estate, 39 Nev. 200; 155 P. 353.

Stats. 1866, c. 47, sec. 1, which authorized the survey and establishment of boundaries between the several counties, and required the survey to be commenced within six months after the passage of the act, was directory, especially in view of section 7, permitting such surveys to be made when a county line is now or may "hereafter" be in dispute. Id.

The legislature has complete control of the entire subject of counties and county-seats, except where prohibited by constitutional provisions. Quilici v. Strosnider, 34 Nev. 9; 115 P. 177.

(C) COUNTY BOARD3. Removal.

Complaint on behalf of state for benefit of a county, stating that the complainant is a citizen, resident and taxpayer of the county, and is foreman of the grand jury and at the request of the grand jury petitions for removal of county commissioner, was a proper petition under Rev. Laws, 2851, et seq., providing for removal, and not under section 6894, et seq., providing for removal after jury trial, since the allegations as to action on the grand jury's request were surplusage; the complaint being sufficient without them. Ex Parte Jones and Gregory, 41 Nev. 523; 173 P. 885.

4. Powers and functions.

Whether boards of county commissioners may exercise powers not expressly granted, but which may be implied from the language of a statute, discussed, but not determined. Heywood v. Nye County, 36 Nev. 568; 137 P. 515.

(D) OFFICERS AND AGENTS5. Removal.

Whether or not Const. art. 6, sec. 6, gives the district court jurisdiction of proceedings for removal of county officers, article 7, section 4, gives the legislature plenary power to provide procedure therefor, and therefore Stats. 1908-09, c. 200, secs. 21, 22 (Rev. Laws, 2851, 2852), giving such jurisdiction, is constitutional. Gay v. District Court, 41 Nev. 330; 171 P. 156.

6. Accounting for public funds or other property.

Where a county auditor was his own successor in office, he was bound to make the joint report required by Rev. Laws, 3746, requiring the county auditor and county treasurer to make a joint statement to the board of county commissioners, showing the amount of collections, etc., though such report should have been made during the preceding term, since the duty was a continuing one. State v. Kirman, 17 Nev. 380, distinguished. State v. Bonfield, 37 Nev. 44; 138 P. 906.

IV. FISCAL MANAGEMENT, PUBLIC DEBTS, SECURITIES, AND TAXATION7. Borrowing money.

A county having had the benefit of money obtained by county commissioners on a temporary loan under the act of March 13, 1903 (Stats. 1903, c. 78), sec. 6, is estopped to assert that there did not exist a case of great necessity or emergency authorizing the commissioners making the loan. First Nat. Bank v. Nye Co., 38 Nev. 124; 145 P. 932; Ann. Cas. 1917C, 1195.

8. Bills and notes.

County commissioners cannot issue negotiable notes unless power is given expressly or by clear implication. First Nat.

Bank v. Nye County, 38 Nev. 123; 145 P. 932; Ann. Cas. 1917C, 1195.

Under the act of March 13, 1903 (Stats. 1903, c. 78), secs. 6, 7 (Rev. Laws, 3831, 3832) authorizing county commissioners, in case of great necessity or emergency, to make a temporary loan, and requiring them at the next tax levy to levy an extra tax to pay it, no power to execute a negotiable note to secure the payment can be implied. First Nat. Bank v. Nye County, 38 Nev. 124; 145 P. 932; Ann. Cas. 1917C, 1195.

Giving negotiable notes for temporary loans made by county commissioners in case of great necessity or emergency, to be paid for from the next tax levy, under authority of the act of March 13, 1903 (Stats. 1903, c. 78), secs. 6, 7 (Rev. Laws, 3831, 3832), is not within the act of March 8, 1865 (Stats. 1864-65, c. 80), sec. 8, subd. 13, empowering county commissioners to do things "strictly necessary" to the full discharge of their powers. Id.

County commissioners having no power to issue negotiable notes, notes issued by them will be regarded as non-negotiable. Id.

V. CLAIMS AGAINST COUNTY

9. Effect of allowance or disallowance.

Under Rev. Laws, 1523, prohibiting actions on a demand against a county, unless first presented to the county commissioners and county auditor for allowance, and providing that where they fail to allow the same, or some part thereof, the claimant may sue, and sections 1535 and 1541, providing that demands against a county must be presented in the form of bills, one having several liquidated claims may put them in one bill, and where specified demands are allowed and others rejected the claimant may accept the amount allowed and sue for the claims disallowed in whole or in part; and a constable presenting monthly bills made up of various items for services rendered, for which the statute prescribes fees, may accept the part allowed and sue for the part disallowed, though in the case of an unliquidated demand the allowance of a part requires claimant to accept the part as satisfaction for the claim, or sue for the entire demand. Wolf v. Humboldt County, 36 Nev. 26; 131 P. 964; 45 L. R. A. (N.S.) 762.

VI. ACTIONS

10. Conditions precedent—Presentation of claim.

The orders of county commissioners authorizing issuance of notes, and their subsequent issuance thereof, constitute them approved liquidated demands against the county, which therefore need not be presented to the board for allowance before action thereon, and this though they be not negotiable. *First Nat. I. NATURE, EXTENT, AND EXERCISE OF JURISDICTION

1. Nature and source of authority—Local or transitory actions.

An action for personal injuries is transitory, and may be maintained in the state in which service can be obtained on the defendant, though the injuries were caused in another state. Keane Wonder M. Co. v. Cunningham, 222 F. 821; 138 C. C. A. 247.

2. Nature and source of authority—Actions under laws of other state.

Where the statutes of the state in which a transitory cause of action arose are not in the substance inconsistent with the statutes or the public policy of the state in which the action is brought, they will be recognized and applied, and to be contrary to the "public policy" of the state the foreign statutes must be against good morals or natural justice, or such that the enforcement of it would be prejudicial to the general interests of the citizens, it not being sufficient that it differs from the law of the state. Id.

3. Presumptions as to jurisdiction.

It is a primal duty of all courts to keep strictly within their jurisdiction. In every affirmative action taken by a court, there is an implied adjudication of jurisdiction. Gamble v. Silver Peak, 39 Nev. 319; 133 P. 936.

A court should always take note of a suggestion of want of jurisdiction, notwithstanding the rule as to waiver or estoppel, where rights of third parties may be involved and may raise the question of its own motion. Id.

4. Waiver of objections.

It is a general rule that a jurisdictional question may be raised at any time. However, a party, by his conduct, may become estopped to raise such a question. Where a party has treated a judgment as final throughout the proceedings, applied for and obtained relief upon the assumption that such judgment was final, and upon appeal prayed for its affirmance or reversal, he will not thereafter be heard to question its finality. Id.

Whether a judgment is final or is only interlocutory is a question of law. Id.

Where complainant, in a suit for divorce, averred under oath that he had resided within the county long enough to give the court jurisdiction, after judgment for defendant he could not have an order setting it aside without prejudice on the ground that he had not in fact been a resident of the county for the jurisdictional period; he having waived objection to jurisdiction of his person. Grant v. Grant, 38 Nev. 185; 147 P. 451.

5. Determination of questions of jurisdiction.

As the constitution authorizes the issuance of writs of mandamus regardless of the value involved, and the bonds tendered with their coupons are of the face value of over $400,000, and the respondent introduced no proof to support the allegations in his answer that the bonds are of no value, their value, which depends upon the result of a suit, need not be proven in advance by the petitioner in order to entitle him to a writ of mandate requiring their acceptance preliminary to suit to determine their validity, and which would also establish their value, as with other negotiable instruments their value is presumed. State ex rel. White v. Dickerson, 33 Nev. 540; 113 P. 105.

II. ESTABLISHMENT, ORGANIZATION, AND PROCEDURE

(C) *RULES OF COURT AND CONDUCT OF BUSINESS*6. Operation and effect of rules.

The rules of the district court have the force and effect of statutory provisions and must be followed. Beco v. Tonopah Ext. M. Co., 37 Nev. 199; 141 P. 453.

III. COURTS OF GENERAL ORIGINAL JURISDICTION

(A) *GROUND'S OF JURISDICTION*7. Amount in controversy.

If any amount is required to authorize the issuance of a writ of mandate when

Bank v. Nye County, 38 Nev. 123; 145 P. 932; Ann. Cas. 1917C, 1195.

Under the act of March 13, 1903 (Stats. 1903, c. 78), secs. 6, 7 (Rev. Laws, 3831, 3832) authorizing county commissioners, in case of great necessity or emergency, to make a temporary loan, and requiring them at the next tax levy to levy an extra tax to pay it, no power to execute a negotiable note to secure the payment can be implied. First Nat. Bank v. Nye County, 38 Nev. 124; 145 P. 932; Ann. Cas. 1917C, 1195.

Giving negotiable notes for temporary loans made by county commissioners in case of great necessity or emergency, to be paid for from the next tax levy, under authority of the act of March 13, 1903 (Stats. 1903, c. 78), secs. 6, 7 (Rev. Laws, 3831, 3832), is not within the act of March 8, 1865 (Stats. 1864-65, c. 80), sec. 8, subd. 13, empowering county commissioners to do things "strictly necessary" to the full discharge of their powers. Id.

County commissioners having no power to issue negotiable notes, notes issued by them will be regarded as non-negotiable. Id.

V. CLAIMS AGAINST COUNTY

9. Effect of allowance or disallowance.

Under Rev. Laws, 1523, prohibiting actions on a demand against a county, unless first presented to the county commissioners and county auditor for allowance, and providing that where they fail to allow the same, or some part thereof, the claimant may sue, and sections 1535 and 1541, providing that demands against a county must be presented in the form of bills, one having several liquidated claims may put them in one bill, and where specified demands are allowed and others rejected the claimant may accept the amount allowed and sue for the claims disallowed in whole or in part; and a constable presenting monthly bills made up of various items for services rendered, for which the statute prescribes fees, may accept the part allowed and sue for the part disallowed, though in the case of an unliquidated demand the allowance of a part requires claimant to accept the part as satisfaction for the claim, or sue for the entire demand. Wolf v. Humboldt County, 36 Nev. 26; 131 P. 964; 45 L. R. A. (N.S.) 762.

VI. ACTIONS

10. Conditions precedent—Presentation of claim.

The orders of county commissioners authorizing issuance of notes, and their subsequent issuance thereof, constitute them approved liquidated demands against the county, which therefore need not be presented to the board for allowance before action thereon, and this though they be not negotiable. First Nat. Bank v. Nye Co., 38 Nev. 124; 145 P. 932; Ann. Cas. 1917C, 1195.

I. NATURE, EXTENT, AND EXERCISE OF JURISDICTION

1. Nature and source of authority—Local or transitory actions.

An action for personal injuries is transitory, and may be maintained in the state in which service can be obtained on the defendant, though the injuries were caused in another state. Keane Wonder M. Co. v. Cunningham, 222 F. 821; 138 C. C. A. 247.

4. Waiver of objections.

It is a general rule that a jurisdictional question may be raised at any time. However, a party, by his conduct, may become estopped to raise such a question. Where a party has treated a judgment as final throughout the proceedings, applied for and obtained relief upon the assumption that such judgment was final, and upon appeal prayed for its affirmance or reversal, he will not thereafter be heard to question its finality. Id.

Whether a judgment is final or is only interlocutory is a question of law. Id.

Where complainant, in a suit for divorce, averred under oath that he had resided within the county long enough to give the court jurisdiction, after judgment for defendant he could not have an order setting it aside without prejudice on the ground that he had not in fact been a resident of the county for the jurisdictional period; he having waived objection to jurisdiction of his person. *Grant v. 5. Determination of questions of jurisdiction.

As the constitution authorizes the issuance of writs of mandamus regardless of the value involved, and the bonds tendered with their coupons are of the face value of over $400,000, and the respondent introduced no proof to support the allegations in his answer that the bonds are of no value, their value, which depends upon the result of a suit, need not be proven in advance by the petitioner in order to entitle him to a writ of mandate requiring their acceptance preliminary to suit to determine their validity, and which would also establish their value, as with other negotiable instruments their value is presumed. State ex rel. White v. Dickerson, 33 Nev. 540; 113 P. 105.

(C) RULES OF COURT AND CONDUCT OF BUSINESS

6. Operation and effect of rules.

The rules of the district court have the force and effect of statutory provisions and must be followed. Beco v. Tonopah Ext. M. Co., 37 Nev. 199; 141 P. 453.

III. COURTS OF GENERAL ORIGINAL JURISDICTION

(A) GROUNDS OF JURISDICTION

7. Amount in controversy.

If any amount is required to authorize the issuance of a writ of mandate when plaintiff had never taken possession was within the record, especially where the judgment for defendant did not turn upon such assertion, and a petition for a writ of error to the United States Supreme Court on the ground that the court's opinion raised a federal question would be denied. Id.

VIII. CONCURRENT AND CONFLICTING JURISDICTION AND COMITY

(A) COURTS OF SAME STATE, AND TRANSFER OF CAUSES

22. Grounds.

In such case, where defendant challenged the legality of the tax or questioned the constitutionality of the ordinance in the municipal court, that court was ousted of jurisdiction and should have certified the pleading to the district court. In Re Dixon, 40 Nev. 228; 161 P. 737.

(B) STATE COURTS AND UNITED STATES COURTS

23. Exclusive or concurrent jurisdiction.

One contracting with a railroad company for a special train to run from a point in the state to a point in a sister state and return may sue the company in a state court for a breach of the contract, without previous application to the interstate commerce commission. Burrus v. N. C. O. Ry. Co., 38 Nev. 156; 145 P. 926; L. R. A. 1917D, 750.

The judicial power, authority, and duty of the United States district court is wholly independent of state action and cannot directly or indirectly be destroyed, abridged, limited or rendered less efficacious by any state statute or by any state authority whatever, so that Rev. Laws, Nev. 5972, 5974, 5975, could not confer on the district courts of the state a practically exclusive jurisdiction over the property of a deceased party defendant in possession of the United States district court by its receiver and in course of distribution to judgment and other creditors. Johnson v. Johnson, 225 F. 414.

The powers exercised by the English court of chancery in probate matters, on the theory that the administrator of an estate was charged with the administration of a trust, prevailing at the adoption of the federal constitution and the passage of the judiciary act, were vested in the United States circuit court, so that such court has general equity jurisdiction to administer, as between citizens of different states, the assets of a deceased party to a suit within its jurisdiction. Id.

24. Pendency and scope of prior proceeding.

After an order of the federal court restraining disposition of property of the defendant was served on a bank holding defendant's property, the bank cannot, by attachment in the state courts, acquire any lien. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 759.

25. Property in custody of the law—Administration of decedents' estates.

The United States district court would not attempt to execute its judgment in favor of plaintiff, if the property of defendant's estate was in the possession and custody of an administrator appointed by the state court, since the federal court, upon reasons of necessity and comity, cannot seize and control property while it is in the custody of a state court. Johnson v. Johnson, 225 F. 414.

hear and determine the subject-matter in controversy in the suit before the court, including the power to issue proper process to enforce such judgment or decree. Id.

(B) JURISDICTION DEPENDENT ON NATURE OF SUBJECT-MATTER

13. Actions by or against United States officers.

Under Const. art. 2, sec. 2, providing for the appointment of officers by the president or heads of departments, a deputy United States surveyor, appointment of whom by a surveyor-general is provided for by Rev. St. sec. 2223 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1362), is not an "officer of the United States," within act of March 3, 1887, c. 359, sec. 2, 24 Stat. 505, as amended by act of June 27, 1898, c. 503, 30 Stat. 495 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 753), withdrawing from the jurisdiction of the circuit and district courts suits for fees, salary, or compensation for official services of officers of the United States. Scully v. United States, 193 F. 185.

(C) JURISDICTION DEPENDENT ON CITIZENSHIP, RESIDENCE, OR CHARACTER OF PARTIES

14. Suits against states.

Despite the constitutional amendment depriving the federal courts of jurisdiction of a suit against a state by a private individual, the federal courts may take jurisdiction of a suit to enjoin state or county officers from illegal exactions under color of state tax statutes. Nev.-Cal. Power Co. v. Hamilton, 235 F. 317.

(D) JURISDICTION DEPENDENT ON AMOUNT OR VALUE IN CONTROVERSY

15. Matter in dispute and amount or value claimed or involved.

The federal district court has jurisdiction of a suit involving $3,000 or more, where the parties are citizens of different states. Id.

(E) PROCEDURE, AND ADOPTION OF PRACTICE OF STATE COURTS

16. Conformity to state practice—Exclusion of equity causes.

An adequate remedy at law, which can be administered only in a state court, is not sufficient to compel a federal court to dismiss an equitable cause over which its jurisdiction is otherwise valid and complete, and relegate the complainant for his only alternative relief to a state court. Nev.-Cal. Power Co. v. Hamilton, 235 F. 319.

17. Pleading.

Amendment of pleadings in federal courts is governed by Rev. St. sec. 954 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 696), and not by the laws of the state under Conformity Act (Rev. St. sec. 914 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 694]). T. R. G. E. Co. v. Benner, 211 F. 79; 127 C. C. A. 503.

(F) STATE LAWS AS RULES OF DECISION

18. Authority of state statutes, constitutions and ordinances.

It is within the power of the state to determine the order in which debts of an estate shall be paid; therefore the federal courts must give effect to Rev. Laws, Nev. 6052, declaring priorities. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 758.

19. Authority of state decision—Construction of state statute.

The federal courts follow the decisions of the highest courts of the states in construing the constitution and laws of the state, unless they conflict with the United States constitution or laws. Forrester v. S. P. Co., 36 Nev. 248; 134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1.

Where, in an action for wrongful death under a state statute, the court limited plaintiff's recovery, if any, to the actual pecuniary loss or damage which the beneficiaries had sustained from decedent's death, and the instructions conformed to the construction which had been placed on the statute by the highest court of the state, it was not material that the individual view of the trial court as to the construction of the statute did not coincide with that submitted. T. R. G. E. Co. v. Benner, 211 F. 79; 127 C. C. A. 503.

If the question of the validity of a state statute involves merely its conformity to the state constitution, the decisions of the highest court of the state are final and conclusive, and a federal court is reluctant to declare a state statute invalid on that ground before the question has been considered and determined by the state tribunal. Bergman v. Kearney, 241 F. 885.

In so far as ruling of state court, that the state is not concluded by assessor's entry as to whether tax was on property or privilege, turns on the authority of the state board and the assessor under the state statute, and the relative effect to be given their acts, it is not reviewable by the national court. Wells Fargo & Co. v. State of Nevada, 39 S. C. R. 62.

(G) SUPREME COURT

20. Time and manner of raising federal question in state court.

To suggest or set up a federal question for the first time in a petition for rehearing in the highest court of the state is not in time. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 173; 161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064.

21. Writ of error and proceedings thereon.

In an action to quiet title to a mining claim and mill site claimed under a United States patent duly recorded, where the agreed statement of facts asserted defendant's adverse possession under a certificate of tax sale, and precluded the idea of plaintiff's possession, the court's assertion that plaintiff had never taken possession was within the record, especially where the judgment for defendant did not turn upon such assertion, and a petition for a writ of error to the United States Supreme Court on the ground that the court's opinion raised a federal question would be denied. Id.

VIII. CONCURRENT AND CONFLICTING JURISDICTION AND COMITY

(A) COURTS OF SAME STATE, AND TRANSFER OF CAUSES

22. Grounds.

In such case, where defendant challenged the legality of the tax or questioned the constitutionality of the ordinance in the municipal court, that court was ousted of jurisdiction and should have certified the pleading to the district court. In Re Dixon, 40 Nev. 228; 161 P. 737.

XVII. PUNISHMENT AND PREVENTION OF CRIME.

- 119. Extent of punishment.

I. NATURE AND ELEMENTS OF CRIME AND DEFENSES

1. Power to define and punish crime—States.

The legislature may regulate the banking business, and the penal statutes safeguarding the business of banking are applicable to banks organized previous to, as well as to banks organized after, their passage. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 80; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

Acting within constitutional bounds, the legislature is clothed with unlimited and absolute power to define statutory offenses and prescribe punishment for their violation, and may penalize acts which before were innocent. State v. Park, 42 Nev. 386; 178 P. 389; 3 Am. Law Rep. 75.

The legislature may, in the exercise of the police power when public interests demand it, define and declare public offenses the effect of which restricts or regulates the use and enjoyment of private property. Id.

2. Attempts.

An act done with intent to commit a crime, and tending, but failing, to accomplish it, is an attempt to commit that crime (citing 1 Words and Phrases, Attempt to Commit Crime). State v. Huber, 38 Nev. 253; 148 P. 562.

III. PARTIES TO OFFENSES

3. Principals, aiders, abettors, and accomplices.

Where it does not appear that a person knowingly, voluntarily, and with common intent with the alleged principal offender, united in the commission of the crime charged, such person is not an "accomplice." In Re Bowman and Best, 38 Nev. 484; 151 P. 517.

No distinction exists between an accessory before the fact and a principal, or between principals in the first and second degree in cases of felony, and all persons concerned in the commission of a felony, whether they deliberately commit the offense or merely aid and abet in its commission, though not present, are properly indicted, tried, and punished as principals. State v. Mangana, 33 Nev. 511; 112 P. 693.

4. Accessory after fact—Assistance.

Under Pen. Code Utah, sec. 4075, providing that persons who, after full knowledge that a felony has been committed, conceal it from the magistrate, or harbor or protect the person charged therewith or convicted thereof, are accessories, where petitioner for habeas corpus, after a third person in Utah procured certain bonds from another by false pretenses, induced the defrauded person to delay the institution of criminal proceedings against the third person for a few days, during which the latter left the State of Utah, petitioner was not an accessory after the fact to the crime, since the words "harbor and protect" of the statute imply more than mere withholding of knowledge as to the whereabouts of the party charged, and necessarily contemplate some affirmative act or acts of concealment or assistance rendered to the principal personally; mere words of inducement or persuasion intended to cause a third party to delay filing a criminal charge not being enough to bring the party within the statute. In Re Overfield, 39 Nev. 30; 152 P. 568.

The act of the petitioner in leaving Utah himself with the stolen bonds on his person did not render him an accessory after the fact to the crime of obtaining property by false pretenses. Id.

IV. JURISDICTION

5. Constitutional and statutory provisions.

The act relating to crimes and punishments (Stats. 1861, c. 28), section 10 of which defines an accessory before the fact and makes him a principal, does not apply as against an accessory before the fact under an indictment which does not allege facts sufficient to constitute an offense by the principal. Ex Parte Smith, 33 Nev. 466; 111 P. 930.

V. VENUE

(A) PLACE OF BRINGING PROSECUTION

6. Locality of offense.

Knowingly subscribing or swearing to a false report and other acts by an officer, director, proprietor, agent or clerk of a bank are punishable in the county where the report was subscribed or sworn to or the acts committed. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 85; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

Under the Ohio act of April 28, 1908 (99 Ohio Laws, p. 228), imposing a penalty upon a father who neglects to provide for his minor child, and providing that the offense shall be held to have been committed in any county in which the child may be when complaint is made, the venue of the offense is in the county where the child is when complaint was made or the indictment returned. Ex Parte Lewis, 34 Nev. 28; 115 P. 729.

(B) CHANGE OF VENUE

7. Discretion of court.

A motion for a change of venue is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court, and where it is possible to secure an impartial jury the denial of the motion is within the court's discretion. State v. Casey, 34 Nev. 154; 117 P. 5.

8. Grounds for change—Local prejudice.

To require a change of venue under Comp. Laws, 4271, providing for a change of venue on the ground that a fair trial cannot be had in the county where the indictment is pending, it must appear that the prejudice against the accused is so great as to prevent a fair trial, and it is not sufficient merely to show that great prejudice exists against him. Id.

Where there was great feeling against accused in the town where the offense was committed, but that feeling did not permeate the entire county, which contained between four and five thousand possible jurors, and many of the jurors were drawn from portions of the county where the victim of accused was unknown, and where the crime was hardly known of or discussed, the refusal to grant a change of venue on the ground of the prejudice against accused was not erroneous. Id.

VI. LIMITATION OF PROSECUTIONS

9. Commencement of prosecution—Amendment of proceedings.

Under Rev. Laws, 7060, providing that no indictment shall be deemed insufficient, nor shall the trial, judgment, or other proceeding be affected by reason of any defect or imperfection in matters of form which shall not tend to the prejudice of the defendant, and that the court may, on application, direct the indictment to be amended to supply the deficiency or omission when, by such amendment, the nature of the charge shall not be changed and the defense on the merits will not be prejudiced, where in an abundance of precaution the court, instead of directing an indictment to be amended to cure a clerical error, dismissed the indictment and reconvened the grand jury, which thereupon returned a second indictment, the new indictment should be regarded in effect as simply an amendment of the first indictment. In Re Hironymous, 38 Nev. 194; 147 P. 453.

VII. FORMER JEOPARDY

10. Elements—Jurisdiction of court.

An acquittal in such case would have barred a subsequent prosecution. Ex Parte Simmons, 34 Nev. 493; 125 P. 697.

11. Elements—Indictment or information.

Where the court in habeas corpus reviews an indictment framed under the act of March 13, 1909 (Stats. 1909, c. 92), and commission of which the defendant was on trial, where there was nothing to show that at the time witnesses saw the revolver in defendant's possession he was engaged in the commission of any criminal offense. State v. Switzer, 38 Nev. 109; 145 P. 925.

In a prosecution for killing by stabbing, evidence that the defendant stabbed another man during a fight over the deceased a few minutes before he stabbed the deceased was admissible under the exception to the rule excluding evidence of collateral crimes, in that it was with reference to a contemporaneous crime, the circumstances of which were inseparable from the crime charged. State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 64; 145 P. 919; 150 P. 764.

Evidence of other crimes can generally be considered only when it tends to establish motive, intent, absence of mistake or accident, a common plan or scheme, or identity. State v. McFarlin, 41 Nev. 486; 172 P. 371.

25. Acts showing intent or malice or motive.

In a prosecution for maliciously threatening injury to the person with intent to extort money, evidence of similar offenses committed about the same time are admissible to show intent. State v. Vertrees, 33 Nev. 509; 112 P. 42.

26. Character or reputation of accused — General reputation.

A person's general reputation may not be established by the opinion of the witness, but by the reputation he bears in the community in which he lives. State v. Huber, 38 Nev. 253; 148 P. 562.

(D) MATERIALITY AND COMPETENCY

27. Compelling accused to criminate himself.

Where testimony was freely and voluntarily given, accused cannot complain that he was compelled to be a witness against himself in violation of his constitutional right. State v. Bachman, 41 Nev. 197; 168 P. 733.

(E) BEST AND SECONDARY AND DEMONSTRATIVE EVIDENCE

28. Demonstrative evidence.

Where accused shot decedent and resisted immediate arrest by a citizen by stabbing him with a knife, and the defense relied on drunkenness and insanity, the court properly admitted the knife in evidence. State v. Casey, 34 Nev. 154; 117 P. 5.

The identification of a knife as that in defendant's possession the afternoon before the homicide and as the one used by defendant when he stabbed the deceased held to warrant its admission in evidence. State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 65; 145 P. 919; 150 P. 764.

(F) ADMISSIONS, DECLARATIONS AND HEARSAY

29. Declarations by accused.

In a murder case, the testimony of a coconspirator in the robbery in which the murder was committed that defendant told him that a third conspirator had committed the murder was admissible as a voluntary statement against the interest of the defendant connecting him with the murder, through the conspiracy to rob. State v. Beck, 42 Nev. 209; 174 P. 714.

The testimony of a coconspirator that after the crime the defendant stated to him that the robbery and murder had taken place was admissible to establish the conspiracy and murder and connect defendant with it, whether there was any subsisting interest in property thereby fraudulently acquired or not. Id.

The testimony of a coconspirator that defendant informed the witness that he and another were planning to rob the stage; that defendant later unqualifiedly stated the robbery had been committed and the stage driver murdered, was admissible. Id.

30. Declarations by accused — Proof and effect.

In a prosecution for burglary, it was not necessary that a foundation be laid for the admission of defendant's statements that he purchased the stolen jewelry in certain cities. State v. Blaha, 39 Nev. 115; 154 P. 78.

31. Declarations in presence of accused.

In a prosecution for murder, deceased's companion could not relate a conversation with deceased shortly before the killing, wherein he assumed that accused had made an earlier attack. State v. Fronhofer, 38 Nev. 448; 150 P. 846.

(G) ACTS AND DECLARATIONS OF CONSPIRATORS AND CODEFENDANTS

32. Grounds of admissibility.

In a prosecution for larceny of ore, statements of an accomplice, relating in part to the taking of the ore and its division according to agreement, were admissible in evidence; some ore having been taken thereafter, and the statements being material. State v. Smith, 33 Nev. 438; 117 P. 19.

A statement of an accomplice who conspired with accused to steal ore that he had made thousands of dollars for accused was not admissible in evidence in a prosecution for larceny; it not appearing whether the transaction referred to was illegal, and it not relating to the conspiracy. Id.

33. Furtherance or execution of common purpose.

Where a man and wife were jointly tried for threatening to commit personal injury with intent to extort money, and the evidence tends to show that the wife was an accessory before the fact, acts and declarations made by her in the consummation of the unlawful act are admissible against the husband. State v. Vertrees, 33 Nev. 509; 112 P. 42.

34. After accomplishment of object.

In a prosecution for larceny by conspiring with others to steal ore, evidence of a was carrying a pistol and a belt filled with cartridges for the purpose of protecting himself and certain live stock against a possible attack by rabid coyotes, for the purposes of preliminary examination the magistrate would be justified in acting upon the probability that the accused would not be carrying an unloaded pistol for such purpose. Ex Parte Molino, 39 Nev. 360; 157 P. 1012.

It is not required upon preliminary examination, in order to warrant a magistrate in holding the accused to answer, that the evidence taken as a whole be sufficient to warrant a jury in reaching a conclusion of the guilt of the accused beyond a reasonable doubt. Id.

The general rule of Rev. Laws, 7180, providing that a conviction of crime cannot be had on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice, is to be applied where the sole witness against the defendant on his preliminary examination is an accomplice, and a commitment on his uncorroborated testimony is not on reasonable or probable cause. In Re Oxley and Mulvaney, 38 Nev. 380; 149 P. 992.

17. Judgment, sentence, and record.

The sentence imposed by a justice being imprisonment for thirty days, his entry of judgment of imprisonment for the term of "thirty," omitting the word "days," is merely a clerical mistake which may be corrected by him in the absence of defendant. Ex Parte Breckenridge, 34 Nev. 275; 118 P. 687; Ann. Cas. 1914B, 871.

Under Rev. Laws, 4851, general statute limiting jurisdiction of justice of peace, and prohibition act, secs. 7, 28, in prosecution for violation of latter act, a justice cannot assess greater punishment than fine of $500 and six months' imprisonment in county jail; district court alone being authorized to impose excess fine and imprisonment mentioned in section 7. Ex Parte Zwissig, 42 Nev. 360; 178 P. 20.

18. Appeal and trial de novo.

Commitment by a justice under his judgment is valid, though appeal was taken from the justice to the district court, such court having dismissed the appeal, even if the dismissal was erroneous; it being an error which was within the jurisdiction of that court, and a final disposition of the case there. Ex Parte Breckenridge, 34 Nev. 275; 118 P. 687; Ann. Cas. 1914B, 871.

Rev. Laws, 7513, provides that, on appeal from a conviction before a justice, appellant shall file with the justice and serve upon the district attorney a notice, setting forth the character of the judgment and his intention to appeal therefrom. A notice of appeal was addressed to the district attorney and to an acting justice of the peace, stating that defendant intended to appeal, and did thereby appeal, from a conviction in the justice court of receiving and buying personal property from an intoxicated person, and from the judgment and sentence of the justice court imposing a fine, and in the alternative an imprisonment, upon questions of both law and fact. Held, that notice of appeal was sufficient. Jensen v. District Court, 40 Nev. 135; 161 P. 162.

IX. ARRAIGNMENT AND PLEAS

19. Plea in abatement—Time and order of pleading.

The objection in a plea of abatement that no preliminary hearing on the charge was had or waived, and that no leave of court was obtained for the filing of the information, should be made before plea of not guilty is entered. State v. Wells, 39 Nev. 432; 159 P. 520.

20. Plea of not guilty—Withdrawal.

A motion to set aside a plea of not guilty for the purpose of interposing a plea in abatement is addressed to the sound judicial discretion of the trial court. Id.

X. EVIDENCE

(A) JUDICIAL NOTICE, PRESUMPTIONS, AND BURDEN OF PROOF

21. Judicial notice.

Supreme court will take judicial cognizance of the publication of the Revised Laws of the state, compiled and published under the supervision of the code commission, in which the crimes and punishments act, sec. 375 (Rev. Laws, 6640), appears. State v. District Court, 42 Nev. 218; 174 P. 1023.

22. Burden of proof—Insanity.

Notwithstanding Rev. Laws, 7163, providing that a defendant in a criminal action is presumed to be innocent until the contrary be proven, and in case of reasonable doubt as to his guilt he is entitled to be acquitted, an accused person, relying on the defense of insanity, has the burden of proof, and must satisfy the jury, by a preponderance of the evidence, that he is insane, there being a presumption of sanity. State v. Nelson, 36 Nev. 403; 136 P. 377.

(B) FACT IN ISSUE AND RELEVANT TO ISSUES, AND RES GESTÆ

23. Acts and statements of person injured.

Where the prosecuting witness, when first asked who stabbed her, gave an equivocal answer, and stated that others ought to know the man, her next charge that accused was guilty, made forty-five minutes after the occurrence, when her wounds had been dressed, and she was under no particular excitement, is not admissible as part of the res gestæ, there having been sufficient time to fabricate. State v. Pappas, 39 Nev. 40; 152 P. 571.

(C) OTHER OFFENSES AND CHARACTER OF ACCUSED

24. Other offenses as evidence of offense charged.

Such evidence was not within the rule prohibiting evidence of a separate and distinct crime unconnected with that for the informed that they might be used against him; there being no statutory provision in this state that confessions shall not be admitted unless it appears that accused was warned that what he should say might be used against him. State v. Mircovich, 35 Nev. 485; 130 P. 765.

47. "Voluntary confession."

Where defendant with the two others was indicted for arson, and the complaining witness and the sheriff advised him to protect himself, that it would be better for him if he told the truth, the theory of the prosecution being that his codefendants were the principals who had instigated him to burn the prosecuting witness's store, and the prosecuting witness told him that he only wanted the principals, and others told him that his statements to a detective while in jail were sufficient to send him to prison, a confession elicited under such circumstances is not voluntary; for to be voluntary a confession must be made without hope or inducement of reward. State v. Dye, 36 Nev. 143; 133 P. 935.

(M) WEIGHT AND SUFFICIENCY

48. Credibility of witnesses.

Where testimony of a witness given upon cross-examination modifies, varies, or conflicts with the testimony given upon direct examination, it is the province of the magistrate, the court, or the jury, as the case may be, to determine the truth of the witness's testimony from the entire examination. Ex Parte Molino, 39 Nev. 360; 157 P. 1012.

49. Conclusiveness of evidence on party introducing it.

Statements or explanations made by the accused at the time of arrest may be introduced as a part of the state's case without binding the state to the truthfulness of such statements unless contradicted. The reasonableness of such statements is a matter entirely for the jury. State v. Patchen, 36 Nev. 510; 137 P. 406.

XI. TIME OF TRIAL AND CONTINUANCE

50. Discretion of court.

A continuance in a criminal case is within the discretion of the trial court, and in the absence of an abuse of discretion its action will be sustained. Ex Parte Tranmer, 35 Nev. 56; 126 P. 337; 41 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1095.

The question of continuance in criminal cases is always a matter within the sound discretion of the trial court, and, unless that tribunal abuses its power, its determination cannot be reviewed on appeal. State v. Nelson, 36 Nev. 403; 136 P. 377.

51. Grounds—Absence of counsel.

Where defendant when arraigned waived his right to counsel and was thereafter brought into court twice before trial and did not signify his desire for counsel until the morning of the trial more than two weeks after the order setting the case for trial, it was not an abuse of discretion to deny his motion for a continuance for the purpose of securing counsel. State v. MacKinnon, 41 Nev. 182; 168 P. 330.

52. Grounds—Absence of witness.

To entitle an accused to a continuance on the ground of the absence of witnesses, it must appear that the witnesses are really material, that the accused has been guilty of no negligence and that the attendance of the witnesses can be had at the time to which the trial is deferred. State v. Nelson, 36 Nev. 403; 136 P. 377.

53. Application and affidavits for continuance.

An affidavit for a continuance on the ground of the absence of material witnesses which alleged that subpoenas had been placed in the hands of the sheriff, shows the very slightest diligence. Id.

Where an affidavit for continuance on the ground of the absence of witnesses showed that there was another witness by whom the same facts could be proven, it was not an abuse of discretion on the part of the trial court to refuse the continuance. Id.

Where an affidavit for a continuance on the ground of the absence of material witnesses showed that the witnesses were out of the jurisdiction of the court, and failed to give any reasonable ground for the belief that their attendance could be procured at some subsequent term, the refusal of a continuance was not an abuse of discretion, particularly where the testimony at the trial showed that the names of the witnesses were not correctly stated in the affidavit, and that the facts could be proven by another disinterested witness. Id.

54. Objections and exceptions.

Where accused, indicted under two indictments for a double murder, did not object to a continuation of the trial under one indictment, pending his trial under the other, resulting in his conviction and sentence to life imprisonment, and did not apply for a speedy trial, he could not complain that he was not given a speedy trial. Ex Parte Tranmer, 35 Nev. 56; 126 P. 337; 41 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1095.

Where accused, indicted under two indictments for a double murder, obtained a change of venue in the case of one indictment, but the other indictment was not removed, and at the next term of court the latter case was called for trial and subsequently removed to another county on a change of venue, accused could not complain that he was not given a speedy trial under such indictment, as guaranteed by the constitution and Rev. Laws, 7396. Id.

XII. TRIAL

(A) PRELIMINARY PROCEEDINGS

55. Separate trial of codefendants.

Where two persons are jointly indicted for grand larceny after preliminary examination in which they were jointly charged with such crime, and after investigation by grand jury, they may, under the statute, demand separate trials which demand court would be required to grant. State v. District Court, 42 Nev. 219; 174 P. 1023.

(B) COURSE AND CONDUCT OF TRIAL

56. Counsel for accused.

The privilege of accused under Const. art. 1, sec. 8, to appear in person or with counsel may be waived, and, once waived, a judgment will not be reversed because the court at a later date refused to grant a continuance so that counsel might be employed unless the refusal was an abuse of discretion. State v. MacKinnon, 41 Nev. 182; 168 P. 330.

57. Comments on evidence or witnesses.

In a prosecution for homicide, where the state offered a purported dying declaration, oral statements by the court as to the nature of dying declarations, and as to weight of the one offered, made in the presence of the jury upon admitting the declaration in evidence, must be considered as an uncalled for instruction. State v. Scott, 37 Nev. 412; 142 P. 1053.

(C) RECEPTION OF EVIDENCE

58. Compelling calling of witness.

It is not obligatory upon a district attorney to call all of the eyewitnesses to a transaction charged to be a crime. State v. Milosovich, 42 Nev. 264; 175 P. 139.

59. Presence of jury during inquiry.

The preliminary proof necessary for the admission of a dying declaration is for the court alone, and a request that the jury be withdrawn while such evidence is being heard should be granted. State v. Scott, 37 Nev. 412; 142 P. 1053.

60. Effect of admission.

In prosecution for embezzlement of certain money, the court should instruct as to the purpose for which other shortages might be considered by the jury. State v. McFarlin, 41 Nev. 486; 172 P. 371.

(D) OBJECTIONS TO EVIDENCE, MOTIONS TO STRIKE OUT, AND EXCEPTIONS

61. Time for objection.

Where one accused of homicide was permitted without objection to introduce evidence attacking deceased's reputation for peace and quiet before he had testified to an overt act of deceased looking toward his claim of justifiable homicide, it was too late for the state to object to questions on cross-examination of character witnesses as to whether they had heard of deceased's acts in testing whether they knew his reputation. State v. Sella, 41 Nev. 113; 168 P. 278.

62. Sufficiency and scope of objection.

The objectionable part of evidence must be specifically pointed out, a general objection to its admission being insufficient, unless it is all incompetent. State v. Smith, 33 Nev. 438; 117 P. 19.

An objection to evidence on a specified ground waives all other grounds of objection. Id.

(E) ARGUMENTS AND CONDUCT OF COUNSEL

63. Rights and duties of prosecuting attorney.

While a prosecuting attorney should be vigorous in the prosecution of crime, his duty is not solely to convict, and he should protect the rights of an accused person and not seek to take unfair advantage. State v. Scott, 37 Nev. 412; 142 P. 1053.

64. Presentation of evidence—For prosecution.

Where, on a murder trial, a principal with accused in the murder, who had been previously convicted and sentenced to death, was produced as a witness by the state, and during the early part of his examination counsel for accused had asked the state in the jury's presence whether it was admitted that witness was then under conviction of a felony and in the state's prison, it was misconduct for the state's counsel to ask the witness whether he was not then in the penitentiary under sentence of death, where the only object of the state's question was to influence the jury to assess the death penalty against accused. State v. Tranmer, 39 Nev. 142; 154 P. 80.

65. Comments on evidence or witnesses.

Remarks of the district attorney in argument based on the evidence in the case will not be regarded as improper. State v. King, 35 Nev. 153; 126 P. 880.

66. Comments on failure of accused to testify.

In a prosecution for permitting gambling on defendant's premises, a statement by the district attorney in argument, "Why didn't defendant call any witnesses to the stand? Why didn't he put his brother on the stand, his attendant? * * * I will tell you why; he didn't dare do it," was not objectionable as a reference to defendant's failure to testify in his own behalf. State v. Williams, 35 Nev. 276; 129 P. 317.

67. Appeals to sympathy or prejudice.

A remark of the district attorney in arguing in favor of the death penalty that if the jury could not pronounce by their verdict the death penalty upon defendant, "Let's resurrect old Casey that killed Mrs. H. and let him live again," without stating the facts in regard to the commission of the crime for which Casey was hanged, and evidently with the assumption that the jurors were aware of the punishment suffered by him, was not beyond the bounds of legitimate argument. State v. Mirco-vich, 35 Nev. 486; 130 P. 765.

On a trial for murder, where a witness for the state on cross-examination had informed that they might be used against him; there being no statutory provision in this state that confessions shall not be admitted unless it appears that accused was warned that what he should say might be used against him. State v. Mircovich, 35 Nev. 485; 130 P. 765.

47. "Voluntary confession."

Where defendant with the two others was indicted for arson, and the complaining witness and the sheriff advised him to protect himself, that it would be better for him if he told the truth, the theory of the prosecution being that his codefendants were the principals who had instigated him to burn the prosecuting witness's store, and the prosecuting witness told him that he only wanted the principals, and others told him that his statements to a detective while in jail were sufficient to send him to prison, a confession elicited under such circumstances is not voluntary; for to be voluntary a confession must be made without hope or inducement of reward. State v. Dye, 36 Nev. 143; 133 P. 935.

(M) WEIGHT AND SUFFICIENCY

48. Credibility of witnesses.

Where testimony of a witness given upon cross-examination modifies, varies, or conflicts with the testimony given upon direct examination, it is the province of the magistrate, the court, or the jury, as the case may be, to determine the truth of the witness's testimony from the entire examination. Ex Parte Mollino, 39 Nev. 360; 157 P. 1012.

49. Conclusiveness of evidence on party introducing it.

Statements or explanations made by the accused at the time of arrest may be introduced as a part of the state's case without binding the state to the truthfulness of such statements unless contradicted. The reasonableness of such statements is a matter entirely for the jury. State v. Patchen, 36 Nev. 510; 137 P. 406.

XI. TIME OF TRIAL AND CONTINUANCE

50. Discretion of court.

A continuance in a criminal case is within the discretion of the trial court, and in the absence of an abuse of discretion its action will be sustained. Ex Parte Tranmer, 35 Nev. 56; 126 P. 337; 41 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1095.

The question of continuance in criminal cases is always a matter within the sound discretion of the trial court, and, unless that tribunal abuses its power, its determination cannot be reviewed on appeal. State v. Nelson, 36 Nev. 403; 136 P. 377.

51. Grounds—Absence of counsel.

Where defendant when arraigned waived his right to counsel and was thereafter brought into court twice before trial and did signify his desire for counsel until the beginning of the trial more than two weeks after the order setting the case for trial, it was not an abuse of discretion to deny his motion for a continuance for the purpose of securing counsel. State v. MacKinnon, Nev. 182; 168 P. 330.

52. Grounds—Absence of witness.

To entitle an accused to a continuance the ground of the absence of witnesses must appear that the witnesses are real material, that the accused has been gulf of no negligence and that the attendance of the witnesses can be had at the time at which the trial is deferred. State v. Nelson, 36 Nev. 403; 136 P. 377.

53. Application and affidavits for continuance.

An affidavit for a continuance on the ground of the absence of material witnesses which alleged that subpoenas had been placed in the hands of the sheriff, shows the very slightest diligence. Id.

Where an affidavit for continuance on the ground of the absence of witnesses showed that there was another witness by whom the same facts could be proven, it was not an abuse of discretion on the part of the trial court to refuse the continuance. Id.

Where an affidavit for a continuance on the ground of the absence of material witnesses showed that the witnesses were out of the jurisdiction of the court, and failed to give any reasonable ground for the belief that their attendance could be procured at some subsequent term, the refusal of a continuance was not an abuse of discretion, particularly where the testimony at the trial showed that the names of the witnesses were not correctly stated in the affidavit, and that the facts could be proven by another disinterested witness. Id.

54. Objections and exceptions.

Where accused, indicted under two indictments for a double murder, did not object to a continuation of the trial under one indictment, pending his trial under the other, resulting in his conviction and sentence to life imprisonment, and did not apply for a speedy trial, he could not complain that he was not given a speedy trial. Ex Parte Tranmer, 35 Nev. 56; 126 P. 337; 41 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1095.

Where accused, indicted under two indictments for a double murder, obtained a change of venue in the case of one indictment, but the other indictment was not removed, and at the next term of court the latter case was called for trial and subsequently removed to another county on a change of venue, accused could not complain that he was not given a speedy trial under such indictment, as guaranteed by the constitution and Rev. Laws, 7396. Id.

XII. TRIAL

(A) PRELIMINARY PROCEEDINGS

55. Separate trial of codefendants.

Where two persons are jointly indicted for grand larceny after preliminary examination in which they were jointly charged defendant had testified in his own behalf, and that this was his legal right, and that the jury were not permitted to reject his testimony merely because he was accused. State v. Blaha, 39 Nev. 115; 154 P. 78.

77. Reasonable doubt.

In a prosecution for homicide an instruction on reasonable doubt, which contrasted the rule as to burden of proof in civil and criminal cases, and gave as the reason for the latter rule that "the charity of the law and its solicitude for the safety of the innocent are such that an artificial presumption of innocence attends a person accused of crime," was not an incorrect statement of the law because of the use of the words "charity" and "artificial," and could not have misled the jury, where it was one of nine instructions on the subject of presumption of innocence and reasonable doubt. State v. Skinner, 37 Nev. 107; 139 P. 773.

78. Application of instructions to case.

Where, in a prosecution for committing a crime, the state offered evidence of the conduct of the accused and the complaining witness earlier in the evening before the alleged assault, and sought to draw from such conduct the conclusion of a pre-conceived design on accused's part to commit the crime, and the acts testified to were as susceptible of an innocent as a criminal construction, it was error to refuse to charge that when a man's conduct may from the evidence be reasonably referred to two motives—one criminal and the other innocent—the jury should presume the innocent, and not the criminal motive. State v. Carey, 34 Nev. 310; 122 P. 868.

Under conclusive evidence of permanent disfigurement, it is not error to refuse instruction permitting conviction of the lesser offense of assault, under Rev. Laws, 6418, which applies only if permanent disfigurement is not shown. State v. Enkhous, 40 Nev. 1; 160 P. 23.

(H) REQUESTS FOR INSTRUCTIONS

79. Necessity.

Failure to instruct on the maxim, "Falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus," was not error, where accused made no request for such instructions. State v. Blaha, 39 Nev. 115; 154 P. 78.

80. Further or more specific instructions.

Where the court defines the crime in the language of the statute, defendant desiring a more particular instruction should request it. State v. Switzer, 38 Nev. 108; 145 P. 925.

81. Instructions already given.

Under Comp. Laws, 4649 (Rev. Laws, 7165), providing that only the statutory definition of reasonable doubt shall be given, the court, having given such definition, did not err in refusing the accused's requested instruction on reasonable doubt. State v. Carey, 34 Nev. 310; 122 P. 868.

(J) CUSTODY, CONDUCT, AND DELIBERATIONS OF JURY

82. Urging or coercing agreement.

In a prosecution for homicide, action of the court in calling in the jury, which had been out some time, and ascertaining how they stood numerically, and in urging them to reach a verdict if they could conscientiously do so, stating that the trial had already been a great expense to the county, is not reversible error. State v. Clark, 36 Nev. 472; 135 P. 1083.

Where the guilt of accused charged with murder depended on whether there was a prior understanding between him and a third person who fired the fatal shot, and the state chiefly relied on the fact that accused raised his hand and said "All right," just prior to the shot, to establish concert of action, the action of the court in calling in the jury after deliberating for some time, and ascertaining that they stood numerically 11 to 1, then urging them to reach a verdict if they could conscientiously do so, stating that the trial had been a great expense to the county, and in the presence of the jury denying accused an exception and threatening accused's counsel with punishment for contempt, was prejudicial error. State v. Clark, 38 Nev. 304; 149 P. 185.

(K) VERDICT

83. Form and language.

A verdict will not be held void for uncertainty if its meaning can be determined by reference to the record. Ex Parte Booth, 39 Nev. 183; 154 P. 933; L. R. A. 1916F, 960.

XIII. MOTIONS FOR NEW TRIAL AND IN ARREST

84. Misconduct of counsel for prosecution.

The remarks of the district attorney in his argument that accused on trial for assault with intent to murder was a resident of the tenderloin district, and resided with a prostitute, are improper, when not justified by the evidence, and, where exception was taken at the time, the court, satisfied that the jury was prejudiced thereby, may grant a new trial. State v. Orr, 34 Nev. 297; 122 P. 73.

85. Application for new trial—Bill of exceptions or statement of case.

A motion for a new trial may be heard by the trial court without a bill of exceptions, statement, or affidavit, when it is based on matters which transpired before, and are within the knowledge of the court. State v. Bauer, 34 Nev. 305; 122 P. 76.

XIV. JUDGMENT, SENTENCE, AND FINAL COMMITMENT

86. Jurisdiction.

Where, on trial for a criminal offense, the evidence without conflict shows that defendant is exempted from the penal provisions of the act (Stats. 1903, c. 114), the court is without power to render a judgment of conviction. Ex Parte Davis, 33 Nev. 309; 110 P. 1131.

there is a real contest, the amount in controversy, which ordinarily controls in determining the jurisdiction of the courts, may be considered to be the same in a mandamus proceeding preliminary and incidental to an action on the bonds that it would be in a suit to recover judgment upon them, which is their face value. In suits upon notes and bonds and in actions for damages it is not necessary to prove the value of the claim in advance of the trial. State ex rel. White v. Dickerson, 33 Nev. 540; 113 P. 105.

IV. COURTS OF LIMITED OR INFERIOR JURISDICTION

8. Jurisdiction.

When a cause or matter is properly before a court for determination upon the merits, an order to dismiss or to strike is an act in excess of jurisdiction. Radovich v. W. U. Tel. Co., 36 Nev. 341; 135 P. 920; 138 P. 704.

Const. art. 6, sec. 6, gives to district courts original jurisdiction in cases involving the legality of any tax, assessment or municipal fine, etc.; section 8 requires the legislature to determine the number of justices of the peace in each city, etc., and provides that justice's courts shall not have jurisdiction of cases conflicting with the jurisdiction of the courts of record; and section 9 requires the legislature to fix by law the jurisdiction of municipal courts. The charter of the city of Reno (art. 14, sec. 1) created a municipal court, by section 3 gave it jurisdiction as then provided for justices of the peace as to civil or criminal cases for the violation of any ordinance, and by section 6 provided that it should be treated as a justice's court. In case its proceedings should be questioned. Rev. Laws, 5721, relating to transfer of causes from justice's court, provides that the parties cannot give evidence on questions involving the legality of any tax, municipal fine, etc. An ordinance imposed a certain license upon every attorney practicing his profession in the city, payable quarterly in accordance with the gross receipts, and thereunder petitioner was convicted in the municipal court and committed. Held, where the issue involved the legality of a tax and the constitutionality of the ordinance imposing the tax, the municipal court had no jurisdiction, and was bound to transfer the proceedings to the district court. In Re Dixon, 40 Nev. 228; 161 P. 737.

9. Municipal court—Procedure.

No plea by a defendant in a justice's court need be verified, and such rule applies with equal force to the municipal court. Id.

VI. COURTS OF APPELLATE JURISDICTION

(A) GROUNDS OF JURISDICTION

10. Issuance of prerogative or remedial writs.

In an action for the possession of personal property, where the sheriff redelivered it to defendant, although defendant's sureties had not justified in accordance with the statute, and the trial court refused to issue a writ of mandamus compelling the sheriff to deliver the property to the plaintiff, plaintiff is entitled to petition the supreme court for the issuance of an original writ of mandamus, having exhausted his remedies below. State v. Lamb, 37 Nev. 19; 138 P. 907.

By Const. art. 6, sec. 4, conferring jurisdiction upon the supreme court to issue writs of prohibition, the intention of the framers was undoubtedly to confer the right to issue the writ as it had been recognized at common law. O'Brien v. Commissioners, 41 Nev. 91; 167 P. 1007.

VII. UNITED STATES COURTS

(A) JURISDICTION AND POWERS

11. Powers of state legislatures as to United States courts.

Despite Judicial Code (Act March 3, 1911, c. 231), sec. 267, 36 Stat. 1163 (Comp. St. 1913, sec. 1244), providing that suits in equity shall not be sustained in any court of the United States where a plain, adequate, and complete remedy at law may be had, the several states cannot, save in so far as the federal courts apply their remedies, restrict the equitable jurisdiction of the federal courts, which, unless abridged by Congress, is coextensive with that of the English court of chancery at the time of the Revolution. Nev.-Cal. Power Co. v. Hamilton, 235 F. 319.

12. Jurisdiction of entire controversy.

In a suit within the jurisdiction of the district court, on the ground of diverse citizenship, to secure a division of community property and an accounting against a husband, where it was determined that the community property must be divided, and where a master found that the wife was entitled to an additional money judgment sufficient to exhaust the husband's estate, creditors of the husband, deceased insolvent, some of whose claims were superior to any judgment that might be rendered in favor of plaintiff, might intervene and present their claims; whereupon the court, without surrendering any of the property to the administrator of the deceased husband appointed by the state court, was required to ascertain how much of the fund might equitably be applied to plaintiff's judgment, and administer complete justice in the controversy. Johnson v. Johnson, 225 F. 413.

After jurisdiction on the ground of diverse citizenship attached to a wife's suit for an accounting and for a division of community property, the court was bound to consider all issues properly presented, and thereafter render a judgment and decree, and its duty to enforce its decrees is as binding as its duty to render them; "jurisdiction" being the power to 96. Bill of exceptions—Necessity.

The state appealing from an order granting a new trial must present a bill of exceptions or statement on appeal to show wherein the order of the trial court was erroneous, or otherwise the verdict will be affirmed. State v. Orr, 34 Nev. 297; 122 P. 73.

An order granting a new trial for improper remarks of the district attorney in his argument will be affirmed, in the absence of a bill of exceptions showing error in the ruling. Id.

A motion for a new trial under Rev. Laws, 7234, authorizing a new trial on the ground that the verdict is contrary to law or evidence, may be determined without any bill of exceptions, or statement or affidavit. Id.

97. Bill of exceptions—Settlement, signing and filing.

Defendant having been convicted on June 26, 1909, of making and forging an indorsement on an obligation of the United States, after a trial in which he introduced no evidence, but relied entirely on a novel question of law, sentence was delayed that he might prepare a motion for new trial, and was not pronounced until July 10, 1909. Defendant asked for twenty days in which to prepare and present a bill of exceptions, and an order to that effect was granted. The official stenographer, during all of the ten days and up to July 10, was engaged almost continually in court in reporting other cases, and, as the necessary data for the bill of exceptions could only be obtained from her, the preparation of the bill was not delayed by the inadvertence of counsel in failing to prepare the same. On July 13 they applied for an order, to be entered nunc pro tunc as of July 6, granting them forty days from that date within which to prepare, serve, and file a bill of exceptions, and that defendant be relieved from the consequences of delay and default in failing to ask for additional time within ten days after verdict. Held, that rule 22, providing that a bill of exceptions must be prepared in form and presented to the judge within ten days after verdict, and in default thereof the exceptions will be deemed waived, was merely directory, and did not preclude the court, under the circumstances stated, from granting additional time after the original time had expired. United States v. Walte, 193 F. 258.

98. Conduct of trial.

Where the bill of exceptions does not contain in full the motion of the defendant to strike out certain remarks of the prosecuting attorney, nor the ruling of the court, nor the evidence in the case, the refusal of the motion cannot be considered as reversible error. State v. Vertrees, 33 Nev. 509; 112 P. 42.

(E) ASSIGNMENT OF ERRORS AND BRIEFS99. Briefs.

The supreme court need not pass on an assignment to rulings on evidence, where the questions objected to are not quoted in the brief, nor reference made to the place in the bill of exceptions where the questions and rulings appear. State v. Milosovich, 42 Nev. 263; 175 P. 139.

(F) DISMISSAL, HEARING AND REHEARING100. Dismissal.

A rule similar to that adopted by the California courts, under statutes similar to those of this state, of dismissing appeals taken by a defendant who thereafter escaped and who does not return to custody within a time specified ought to be and, in future, doubtless will be applied. State v. Skinner, 37 Nev. 107; 139 P. 773.

(G) REVIEW101. Facts or proceedings not shown by record.

In the absence of a showing in the record of the grounds on which jurors impaneled were excused, it will be presumed on appeal that the court properly exercised its discretion. State v. Switzer, 38 Nev. 108; 145 P. 925.

Where record does not purport to contain all the evidence given at the trial, appellate court will not presume that the district attorney discussed matters not covered by the evidence. State v. Sella, 42 Nev. 467; 168 P. 278; 180 P. 980.

102. Amendments and rulings as to indictment or pleas.

The decision of the trial court on motion to withdraw a plea to the merits of an information for the purpose of interposing a plea in abatement will not be disturbed, where its discretion has been exercised without effecting a manifest injustice, and where there is no improper assumption of jurisdiction. State v. Wells, 39 Nev. 432; 159 P. 520.

103. Discretion of lower court—Reception of evidence.

The court has wide latitude as to allowing state's counsel on cross-examination of accused to go into matters as to his prior life, and a conviction will not be reversed, except for abuse of discretion. State v. Milosovich, 42 Nev. 264; 175 P. 139.

104. Discretion of lower court—New trial.

An order granting accused a new trial for insufficiency of evidence to support a conviction will not be disturbed on appeal except in case of abuse of discretion. State v. Bauer, 34 Nev. 305; 122 P. 76.

105. Conclusiveness of verdict.

A finding of a jury as to whether one was an accessory is conclusive. State v. Smith, 33 Nev. 438; 117 P. 19.

Judgment in a criminal case will not be reversed for insufficiency of evidence where the verdict is supported by substantial evidence. State v. Whitaker, 39 Nev. 159; 154 P. 927.

106. Harmless error—Presumptions as to effect of.

Where the court gives several instructions on the same subject, some being correct and others erroneous, injury must be presumed, unless the record clearly shows otherwise. State v. Scott, 37 Nev. 412; 142 P. 1053.

By the express provisions of section 589 of the criminal practice act (Comp. Laws, 4554) no error in criminal proceedings shall render them invalid, unless it actually prejudices the accused in a substantial right. State v. Smith, 33 Nev. 438; 117 P. 19.

107. Harmless error—Preliminary proceedings.

Since the state could have prosecuted the offense of horse stealing by information, special injury will not result to accused by trying him upon an indictment, though one of the grand jurors who found it was a nonresident. McComb v. District Court, 36 Nev. 417; 136 P. 563.

108. Harmless error—Conduct of trial.

In a prosecution for felony, where a witness was examined by the state for a few moments before accused was brought in, neither the court nor the prosecution noting his absence, and his attorneys, who were present, not objecting on account of his absence, the error will be considered harmless where the testimony was stricken out and later reintroduced without objection, particularly as the prosecution was had before the enactment of Rev. Laws, 7123, which requires the defendant's presence at a trial for felony, under the old laws which did not contain any such requirement. State v. Clark, 36 Nev. 472; 135 P. 1083.

Where a juror, on voir dire, disclosed bias on the ground of hereditary insanity, but showed no bias to the legal defense of insanity, the refusal to appoint triers to determine his bias on the ground of hereditary insanity was not prejudicial. State v. Casey, 34 Nev. 154; 117 P. 5.

During the cross-examination of the complainant, a dispute arose whether the witness had testified to more than one attempt on the accused's part to commit the offense, and following a statement of counsel for defendant as to the testimony of the witness on direct examination, to which objection was made that the same was not in accordance with the testimony of the witness, the judge interposed the remark that he did not believe that the court, counsel, or jury had that impression of the evidence. What the witness actually testified was read by the reporter in the presence of the jury. Held, that the court's remarks were not prejudicial to accused. State v. Carey, 34 Nev. 309; 122 P. 868.

In a prosecution for homicide, where the court, after the case was submitted, urged the jury to reach a verdict, denied accused an exception thereto, and threatened the accused's counsel with punishment for contempt because of his persistence in demanding an exception, the action of the court, though improper, cannot be complained of by accused, where the objection was considered without exception. State v. Clark, 36 Nev. 472; 135 P. 1083.

109. Harmless error—Rulings as to evidence.

The refusal of the court to require the district attorney to produce the confession of the accomplice for use by defendant on cross-examination of the accomplice is not ground for reversal; there being nothing in the record showing that defendant was prejudiced by the refusal. State v. Bachman, 41 Nev. 198; 168 P. 733.

110. Harmless error—Admission of evidence.

In a criminal prosecution, the improper admission of evidence of the description of the criminal, given to the arresting officer by a third person, was harmless, where it appeared that the officer received and acted on the description given directly to him by the prosecutrix. State v. Nelson, 36 Nev. 403; 136 P. 377.

Error in admitting evidence of a fact which was apparently conceded, and to which other witnesses testified, was harmless to accused. State v. Smith, 33 Nev. 438; 117 P. 19.

Error in admitting a statement of a coconspirator, in a prosecution for larceny by conspiring with others, that another conspirator was foolish, or he would not have been caught, and that if he had done as the speaker wished he would not have gone there, was harmless to accused, because he was not mentioned in the statement. Id.

Any error in admitting an alleged confession in evidence could not have prejudiced the accused where he testified to substantially the same facts stated in the confession. State v. Urle, 35 Nev. 268; 129 P. 305.

Admission of improper evidence is not as a rule prejudicial, where subsequently withdrawn, with directions to the jury to disregard it. Id.

Where accused, on trial for murder perpetrated in the commission of a robbery, admitted that he was in possession of a watch of decedent, and sought to excuse his possession, the error, if any, in admitting evidence as to the number of the watch of decedent, was harmless. State v. Mangana, 33 Nev. 511; 112 P. 693.

Error, if any, in permitting witnesses to testify to conclusions relative to statements made by accused to officers while he was under arrest, was harmless, where the whole conversation between the defendant and the officers was detailed, and it clearly appeared that the statements were freely and voluntarily made. State v. Blaha, 39 Nev. 115; 154 P. 78.

The court admitted accused's alleged confession in evidence, and afterwards, upon it appearing that it was made after the sheriff had told accused that it would be better for him to tell the truth, ordered the confession stricken and directed the jury to disregard it, and also instructed that the jury must not consider any evidence stricken by order of the court, but must decide the case solely upon the evidence actually given and allowed. Held, that any error in admitting the confession in evidence was cured by the court's action. State v. Urie, 35 Nev. 268; 129 P. 305.

If there was error in the admission of the transcript of certain testimony in a habeas corpus proceeding in which accused resisted extradition in another case, it was cured by his testimony relating to the same facts. State v. Bachman, 41 Nev. 197; 168 P. 733.

In a homicide case, it is not reversible error to admit the testimony of a coconspirator concerning statements of defendant prior to prima facie proof of conspiracy where the conspiracy was thereafter proven. State v. Beck, 42 Nev. 209; 174 P. 714.

The testimony of a coconspirator, that defendant stated that a third conspirator, who was not present, had committed the murder, was not prejudicial to the defendant, since it tended to connect him with the crime. Id.

111. Harmless error—Examination of witnesses.

On a trial for murder, where a joint principal in the crime with accused who had been previously convicted and sentenced to death is called as a witness by the state, it is reversible error to allow the state, for the purpose of influencing the jury to inflict the death penalty on accused, to ask the witness if he is in the state's prison under sentence of death. State v. Tranmer, 39 Nev. 142; 154 P. 80.

Where, on a murder trial, a witness was allowed to refresh his memory as to a statement made by accused, by reading his testimony at the coroner's inquest, and his testimony given after such refreshing was substantially the same as before, there was no reversible error, since accused was not prejudiced thereby. Id.

Refusing to permit one accused of homicide to cross-examine witnesses as to whether they knew of certain acts of deceased showing that he was of turbulent spirit was harmful and substantial error. State v. Sella, 41 Nev. 114; 168 P. 278.

112. Harmless error—Arguments and conduct of counsel.

Remarks of prosecuting attorney in argument alluding to rumors being prevalent that the jury, because of personal association and friendships, would not have the courage to send accused to the penitentiary were reversible error. State v. Comisford, 41 Nev. 175; 168 P. 287.

113. Harmless error—Instructions.

That a misstatement of the law in the court's instructions in a murder case was due to a clerical error will not render the error harmless. State v. Scott, 37 Nev. 412; 142 P. 1053.

An instruction to convict if permanent disfigurement is shown, though incomplete, in failing to define permanent disfigurement, is not prejudicial, where the evidence is without conflict as to extent of the injury which manifestly was a permanent disfigurement, especially in the absence of request for further instruction. State v. Enkhhouse, 40 Nev. 1; 160 P. 23.

114. Harmless error—Failure or refusal to give instructions.

Where the information charging robbery did not allege the use of chloral hydrate or any drug to render unconscious the person robbed, but alleged the robbery was committed by force and violence, and the evidence showed that, while much chloral hydrate was found on defendants, some was in solution, and in one bottle a foreign substance, as sugar or digitalis, had been mixed with chloral hydrate, defendants were not prejudiced by an instruction that the state must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that a drug was actually administered to the person robbed, etc., instead of their request using the phrase "such chloral hydrate," instead of the phrase "a drug." State v. Bond, 41 Nev. 465; 172 P. 367.

115. Harmless error—Decision on motion for new trial.

The failure of counsel for accused to sign a motion for a new trial made in open court by him on the written grounds stated in the motion is not material error. State v. Orr, 34 Nev. 297; 122 P. 73.

116. Harmless error—Error waived in appellate court.

Where no briefs are filed, and counsel for accused fails to appear and argue the case after notice, the supreme court may, under Comp. Laws, 4449, affirm the judgment without reviewing the assignments of error. State v. Jorme, 34 Nev. 307; 122 P. 483.

Accused's counsel waived assignments of error not discussed in his brief. State v. Urie, 35 Nev. 268; 129 P. 305.

(H) DETERMINATION AND DISPOSITION OF CAUSE

117. Reversal.

Where evidence showed conclusively and was undisputed that the accused killed deceased with a knife, the admission of his statements as to his possession of the knife by which deceased was killed, even if erroneous because he was not warned that they might be used against him, did not require a reversal in view of Rev. Laws, 7302, requiring the court, after hearing the appeal, to give judgment without regard to technical error or defect not affecting the substantial rights of the parties, and section 7469 providing that no judgment shall be set aside or new trial granted on the ground of misdirection of the jury or improper admission or rejection of evidence or for error as to any matter of pleading or procedure, unless the court, after an examination of the entire case, is of the opinion that the error has resulted in a miscarriage of justice or has actually prejudiced the defendant in respect to a substantial right. State v. Mircovich, 35 Nev. 485; 130 P. 765.

Where, on a murder trial, the testimony of a witness went solely to the identity of accused, and his participation in the crime had been clearly shown, the remark of the trial judge, made while counsel for defense was reading questions and answers of the witness at a former trial for the purpose of impeaching him, that " * * * there is apparently no inconsistencies or contradictions," there being no substantial conflict between the two testimonies, was harmless error under the statute providing for the disregard of technical errors, where no substantial rights are denied. State v. Tranmer, 39 Nev. 142; 154 P. 80.

118. Reversal—Ordering new trial.

Where a crime was plainly committed, and on another trial evidence showing accused's guilt might be introduced, accused will not on reversal for insufficiency of the evidence be discharged. State v. Fronhofer, 38 Nev. 448; 150 P. 846.

XVII. PUNISHMENT AND PREVENTION OF CRIME

119. Extent of punishment.

Rev. Laws, 7260, provides that, when a person is convicted of any felony for which no fixed period of confinement is imposed by law, the court shall direct such person to be confined in the state prison for a term of not less than the minimum nor greater than the maximum term of imprisonment prescribed by law; section 7261 provides that the board of pardons may at any time after the expiration of the minimum term of imprisonment direct that such prisoner shall be released by parole; while section 6838 provides that any person convicted of grand larceny shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term not less than one nor more than fourteen years. Held, that under the first-mentioned statute, the court, upon conviction, could only impose an indeterminate sentence from one to fourteen years and could not fix a greater or lesser minimum than that provided by the statute, for the board of pardons may parole the prisoner at any time after the expiration of the minimum sentence. Ex Parte Melosevich, 36 Nev. 67; 133 P. 57.

III. GROUNDS AND SUBJECTS OF COMPENSATORY DAMAGES

1. Expenses incurred—Breach of contract.

A building contractor who is responsible under the contract for damages occasioned by the construction of an extra story is liable to the owner for an amount he was compelled to pay a tenant for damages occasioned by a defective roof put on by the contractor. Schuler v. Golden, 37 Nev. 281; 142 P. 221.

IV. LIQUIDATED DAMAGES AND PENALTIES

2. Certainty as to amount of actual damages.

A stipulation in a contract for excavation and for removal of the material excavated, and the construction of a stone foundation wall for $1,156, that for the performance of the covenants the parties bind themselves each, and to the other, in $800 liquidated damages to be paid by the failing party, provides for a penalty for breach and not for liquidated damages, for the damages for a breach are capable of ascertainment with reasonable accuracy. Golden v. McKim, 37 Nev. 205; 141 P. 676.

3. Questions for jury.

Though both parties to a contract sought to enforce a provision stipulating for a penalty as a stipulation for liquidated damages, the court must determine the nature of the stipulation, and, if it provides for a penalty only, will restrict both parties to actual damages sustained by a breach. Id.

V. EXEMPLARY DAMAGES

4. Injuries for which awarded.

Exemplary damages are allowable in proper cases, and may be recovered in an action for the tortious breach of a contract as well as for a tort unconnected with any contract. Forrester v. S. P. Co., 36 Nev. 248; 134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1.

5. Grounds for exemplary damages.

Punitive damages should be awarded only where the wrongdoer is unduly negligent or the acts are unnecessarily aggravated. Burrus v. N. C. O. Ry. Co., 38 Nev. 156; 145 P. 926; L. R. A. 1917D, 750.

Where injury to a railroad employee resulted from a broken tongue and a knuckle on a car not easily observable, or from the engineer backing his engine without signal, a verdict for punitive damages was unauthorized. Knock v. T. & G. R. R. Co., 38 Nev. 144; 145 P. 939; L. R. A. 1915F, 3.

VI. MEASURE OF DAMAGES

(C) BREACH OF CONTRACT

6. Prevention or obstruction of performance.

Where breach consists in preventing performance of contract without fault of other party, latter is entitled to compensation for what he has already expended toward performance, less materials in hand, and all profits that he would have realized by performing the whole contract. Bradley v. N. C. O., 42 Nev. 411; 178 P. 906.

VII. INADEQUATE OR EXCESSIVE DAMAGES

7. Personal injury—Permanent injuries.

Plaintiff came in contact with a live electric wire negligently maintained by defendant. He suffered the loss of one finger and electric burns about his hands and shoulder. His fingers were partially stiffened, as were also his arm and shoulder, but they were not shown to have been permanently injured, nor their usefulness even temporarily entirely impaired. Held, that a verdict in plaintiff's favor for $15,000 was excessive and should be reduced to $7,500. Cutler v. Pittsburg Silver Peak, 34 Nev. 45; 116 P. 418.

In an action for injuries to an employee 58 or 59 years old, who prior to the injury was earning between $80 and $90 a month, it appeared that the injuries were of a severe and painful nature, permanently affecting one side of his body and depriving him of the use of one arm, but it did not appear that he would be entirely deprived of ability to enter into lines of employment involving less laborious tasks than his former employment. It also appeared that he had suffered from malarial fever, pneumonia, and cerebrospinal fever, verging on cerebrospinal meningitis, which might or might not materially affect his expectancy of life. A physician's testimony that in his opinion a man in plaintiff's condition prior to the accident could perform labor for at least ten years longer was uncontradicted. Held, that a verdict for $15,000 was excessive, and required a new trial, unless plaintiff would consent to a modification of the judgment to $10,000. König v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 188; 135 P. 141.

A verdict for $25,500 for the loss of the right arm below the elbow of a man 29 years of age, with eleven years experience in railroading in various positions, and earning about $170 a month as conductor and brakeman, is excessive, and will be reduced to $15,000. Knock v. T. & G. R. R. Co., 38 Nev. 144; 145 P. 939; L. R. A. 1915F, 3.

VIII. PLEADING, EVIDENCE, AND ASSESSMENT

(A) PLEADING

8. Pecuniary losses.

In action against railroad for breach of fencing contract, plaintiff held entitled, under allegation of general damages, to recover loss of profits resulting from railroad's refusal to permit him to complete performance. Bradley v. N. C. O., 42 Nev. 412; 178 P. 906.

(B) EVIDENCE

9. Health and physical condition of person injured.

A witness may testify to the manifestations of pain he saw plaintiff exhibit while in a hospital because of the injury for which he sued. Sherman v. Southern Pacific Co., 33 Nev. 385; 111 P. 416; 115 P. 909; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 217.

(C) PROCEEDINGS FOR ASSESSMENT

10. Instructions.

In an employee's action for injuries, it was not error to charge that, if the jury found for plaintiff, they should assess his damages at a sum not greater than that claimed in the complaint; this not obligating the jury to find a verdict in that specific amount. König v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 186; 135 P. 141.

(E) Damages, Forfeiture, or Fine.

II. ACTIONS FOR CAUSING DEATH

(E) DAMAGES, FORFEITURE, OR FINE
1. Exemplary damages.

In an action against a corporation for decedent's wrongful death caused by the negligence of the manager in charge of its electrical appliances in permitting an electric high-tension wire to rest on an iron covered passageway, from which decedent received a shock which caused his death, plaintiff could not recover exemplary damages authorized in certain cases of wrongful death by Comp. Laws, Nev. 3984, by merely proving that defendant was not notified of the sagging wire, and that its agent promised to repair the same, in the absence of proof that defendant company in any way participated in the negligence of its agent, or of bad faith, evil intent, malice, or intentional wrong, or that defendant knowingly employed an unfit and incompetent servant. Benner v. T. R. G. E. Co., 193 F. 740.

Comp. Laws Nev. 3983, provides that whenever the death of a person shall be caused by wrongful act, neglect, or default, and the act, neglect, or default is such as would, if death had not ensued, have entitled the party injured to maintain an action and recover damages in respect thereof, then the persons who, or the corporation which, would have been liable if death had not ensued, shall be liable to an action for damages, and section 3894 provides that the jury may give such damages, pecuniary and exemplary, as they shall deem just and fair. Held that, while the jury has discretion to grant exemplary damages in such an action, it should be permitted to award them only when the injury is proved to have occurred under circumstances indicating fraud, malice, oppression, intentional wrong, wantonness, or a degree of recklessness amounting to indifference to the rights and welfare of others. Id.

DEDICATIONI. NATURE AND REQUISITES.

2. Designation in maps or plats, and sale of lots.
3. Revocation or lapse of dedication before acceptance.
4. Necessity of acceptance.

II. OPERATION AND EFFECT.

5. Abandonment or nonuser.
6. Reversion.

I. NATURE AND REQUISITES1. Nature and essentials.

A dedication of land for public purposes is simply a devotion of it, or an easement in it, to such purposes by the owner, manifested by some clear declaration of the fact. Shearer v. City of Reno, 36 Nev. 443; 136 P. 705.

2. Designation in maps or plats, and sale of lots.

By filing a plat as an addition to a town, and advertising and selling lots, the land shown on the map as streets, avenues, and public parks became dedicated for those purposes. Id.

3. Revocation or lapse of dedication before acceptance.

An acceptance completes the transfer of the property or the easement in it from the owner to the public, and, where there is nothing beyond the owner's declaration without acceptance by the public, the dedication may be revoked at the owner's pleasure. Id.

If nothing beyond a declaration is made, and no interest in the property is acquired by third persons, a dedication of property may be recalled at the pleasure of the owner; but, where contracts for a valuable consideration are made upon the supposed appropriation of the property to the uses indicated, the dedication becomes irrevocable, such contract estopping the owner from asserting any interest except in common with purchasers from him. Id.

The irrevocable character of a dedication, after sales made with reference thereto and induced thereby, is not affected because the property is not at once subjected to the uses designed. Id.

4. Necessity of acceptance.

Formal acceptance of a dedication by the public authorities is not necessary to complete the dedication and preclude the original owner from revoking it, although the formal acceptance by the public authorities may be necessary to impose upon them the duty of protecting the property, and keeping it in a condition to meet the uses intended. Id.

II. OPERATION AND EFFECT

5. Abandonment or nonuser.

Notwithstanding the city council might be bound by its order on petition of the property owners, changing the northerly boundary line of an avenue, such order in no way added anything to the alleged title of an intruder upon the land formerly included within and dedicated as the avenue. Id.

Where the owner of land dedicated part of it as an avenue by filing a map as an addition to a town, and by selling lots with reference thereto, a mere intruder upon land originally within the boundaries of an avenue who fenced and built thereon acquired no rights as against the public. Shearer v. City of Reno, 36 Nev. 444; 136 P. 705.

6. Reversion.

Where city authorities close an avenue dedicated as such, or release it from the public easement, the right to it reverts to the dedicator's estate, and not to an intruder thereon. Id.

III. CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION

(A) GENERAL RULES OF CONSTRUCTION

1. Extrinsic circumstances.

Where a deed is ambiguous, the court will generally consider the position of the parties and the circumstances, and interpret the language in the light thereof. Coppermines Co. v. Comins, 38 Nev. 359; 148 P. 349.

2. Construction by parties.

In suit to quiet title against a defendant who sought reformation of his deed to comply with plaintiff's agreement to convey, alleged in the answer, where the parties themselves had construed an ambiguous provision of the agreement, the trial court properly refused to sustain the defendant's contention contrary thereto. Carey v. Clark, 40 Nev. 151; 161 P. 713.

(B) PROPERTY CONVEYED

3. Construction.

In the construction of deeds, explanatory clauses and descriptive terms must be given weight, and, while they may go to the extent of passing title, yet before such effect should be given to them it should appear from the deed beyond all reasonable doubt that it was the intent of the parties to give them such significance. Coppermines Co. v. Comins, 38 Nev. 359; 148 P. 349.

4. Particular description.

Where a grantor conveys land by metes and bounds, the circumstances must be very strong to prove that he meant to convey any other lands than those described. Id.

A deed described the land conveyed as commonly called the "Comins Ranch" and by the government subdivisions. Fences were beyond the government subdivisions and so constructed as to clearly show that they did not follow the lines of government subdivisions. The abstract of title was limited to the government subdivisions, and the land between the government subdivisions and the fences was not assessed in the name of the grantee. Held, that the land conveyed was only the land described by government subdivisions. Coppermines Co. v. Comins, 38 Nev. 359, 360; 148 P. 349.

Under the rule that the particular description in a deed controls as against a general description, a particular description, setting forth the legal subdivisions, limits and defines the grant as against a general description denominating the estate conveyed as a designated ranch. Coppermines Co. v. Comins, 38 Nev. 359; 148 P. 349.

DEPOSITIONS

1. Examination of witness — Annexing exhibits.
2. Punishment of witness refusing to attend or testify.
3. Defects in objections—Right to object.
4. Time for objection.
1. Examination of witness—Annexing exhibits.
Rev. St. sec. 869 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p.

635), provides for the taking of a deposition of a witness in a federal district or territory other than that in which the suit is pending, declaring that if the witness after being served with subpoena fails to produce to the commissioner any paper, writing, written instrument, book, or other document being in his possession or power and described in the subpoena requiring such production, and such failure is proved to the satisfaction of the judge, he may proceed to enforce obedience of the subpoena or punish the disobedience in like manner as any court of the United States may proceed in case of disobedience to like process issued by the court, and that when any such paper, writing, etc., is produced to the commissioner, he shall at the cost of the party requiring the same cause to be made a correct copy thereof, or of so much thereof as may be required by either of the parties. Held, that such section exclusively defined the limitations of the powers of the commissioner appointed to take depositions in a federal district other than that in which the suit was pending, and hence, while the witness was bound to sign the deposition when completed, he was not required to surrender possession of a draft and letters of instruction concerning which the suit was brought, so that the original might be attached to the deposition; the party taking the deposition being at most only entitled to certified copies thereof. Smith v. National Bank, 193 F. 255.

2. Punishment of witness refusing to attend or testify.

Where plaintiff, in giving his deposition, refused under advice and command of his counsel to answer certain questions until the court had ruled that they should and must be answered, his refusal was not contumacious, nor was he a recalcitrant witness, and it was error, before ruling that the questions must be answered, to strike his complaint. Roberson v. Kilborn, 40 Nev. 423; 165 P. 220.

Conceding questions propounded in taking a deposition were legal and pertinent, it was an arbitrary exercise of authority to enter judgment against defendant before giving him an opportunity to answer the questions propounded and ruled to be proper. Id.

3. Defects in objections—Right to object.

Where testimony legally objectionable in substance was elicited from the plaintiff on cross-examination by his attorneys in his deposition taken by defendants, and the deposition was read in evidence by plaintiff as provided for by Comp. Laws, 3504, thereby making the deposition plaintiff's own evidence under the provision to that effect of section 3505, an objection made by defendants on the trial to the admission of such objectionable testimony should have been sustained, though the deposition was taken on defendant's motion, since, under a further provision of section 3504, the evidence taken in a deposition is subject to all legal exceptions. McLeod v. Miller & Lux, 40 Nev. 448; 153 P. 566; 167 P. 27.

4. Time for objection.

The objection to such substantially inadmissible evidence was properly made at the trial instead of at the taking of the deposition, under the provisions of Comp. Laws, 3504, that depositions may be used upon the trial subject to all legal exceptions. Id.

Property vests in the heirs of the decedent dying intestate, immediately upon the death of such decedent. Winters v. Winters, 34 Nev. 324; 123 P. 17, 1135.

2. Courts.

The district court has the power to determine an action between the heirs of a decedent dying intestate where the estate of such decedent has never been administered upon. Id.

III. RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF HEIRS AND DISTRIBUTEES

(A) NATURE AND ESTABLISHMENT OF RIGHT

3. Title of heirs or distributees—Real property and interest therein.

Under the statutory provisions and procedure relative to the estates of decedents, the title to real estate vests in the heirs and devisees at the moment of the death of the testator or intestate, subject only to the right of possession of the executor or administrator under Rev. Laws, 5950, for the payment of the debts and expenses of administration, with the right in the administrator to possession until the estate is settled or delivered over to the parties entitled by the order of the probate court. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 172; 161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064.

4. Actions relating to real property or interests therein.

Where an administrator or executor has been appointed, and the estate is in the course of probate, it is the right of the heirs to maintain an action as against third persons for the possession of the realty. Id.

II. INVOLUNTARY

1. Want of prosecution.

At common law the essential of a nonsuit was abandonment of the cause by the plaintiff. Danforth v. Danforth, 40 Nev. 435; 166 P. 927.

Where a complaint was filed April 9, 1904, defendants brought and filed demurrers May 20, 1904, and nothing more was done in the case until June, 1913, judgment dismissing the suit for want of prosecution, plaintiff making no offer to show excusable neglect, was not an abuse of discretion on the part of the trial court. Raine v. Ennor, 39 Nev. 365; 158 P. 133.

The fact that plaintiff obtained an injunction in his suit against defendants is of no importance on appeal from a judgment dismissing the suit for want of prosecution, since the obtaining of an injunction is not a move in the prosecution of a suit tending to bring it to issue or trial. Id.

2. Motion to dismiss—Affidavits and other proofs.

When a motion to dismiss for want of prosecution is made in a case in which no step has been taken by plaintiff for several years, the duty rests upon him to excuse his neglect. Id.

3. Order.

A judgment apparently on the merits dismissing the libel will not be considered one of nonsuit on motion of defendant, as authorized by Rev. Laws, 5237, subd. 5; it not appearing defendant made any such motion. Danforth v. Danforth, 40 Nev. 435; 106 P. 927.

I. NATURE AND FORM OF REMEDY

1. Origin and nature of remedy.

The right to a divorce is not a guaranteed privilege of the citizens, and the right to divorce is limited to the causes and subject to the requirements prescribed by state statute. Worthington v. District Court, 37 Nev. 214; 142 P. 230; Ann. Cas. 1916E, 1097; L. R. A. 1916A, 696.

II. GROUNDS

2. Desertion or absence.

Separation by consent of the parties is not "desertion," and will not be ground for divorce. Albee v. Albee, 38 Nev. 191; 147 P. 452.

When the husband gives up the domicile at one place and establishes another, and in good faith urges the wife to live with him there, her refusal to accept the invitation, if without sufficient reason, amounts to "desertion." Roberson v. Roberson, 41 Nev. 276; 169 P. 333.

IV. JURISDICTION, PROCEEDINGS, AND RELIEF

(A) JURISDICTION, VENUE, AND LIMITATIONS

3. Courts invested with jurisdiction.

The courts have no inherent power to grant a divorce; but such power must be conferred by statute. Worthington v. District Court, 37 Nev. 214; 142 P. 230; Ann. Cas. 1916E, 1097; L. R. A. 1916A, 696.

4. Domicile or residence of parties.

The courts of a state have no jurisdiction to grant a divorce, unless at least one of the parties has a domicile in the state, and the appearance of a nonresident defendant will not invest the court with jurisdiction of a suit brought by a person who has no bona-fide domicile in the state. Id.

A wife, having a cause of action for divorce, has a right to change her domicile from that of her husband, and, where the complaint states a cause of action, it will be assumed that the domicile of the wife is identical with that of her residence. Tiedemann v. Tiedemann, 36 Nev. 404; 137 P. 824.

Under the provisions of section 22 of the marriage and divorce act (Rev. Laws, 5838) a six-months' residence is essential only when the plaintiff relies alone on his or her residence. The act defining what shall constitute legal residence (Rev. Laws, 3609) only affects the character of residence where a residence is essential to jurisdiction. Id.

While it may be essential that one of the parties to the action for divorce must be a resident of the state, it does not follow that residence for any particular length of time is in every case essential. By statute a nonresident plaintiff may have a right of action against a resident defendant. Id.

Where neither of the parties have a residence or domicile within the state and one of the parties takes up a temporary abode for the purpose of procuring a divorce, and thereafter the other party, in collusion with the plaintiff, enters the state for the purpose of permitting service in the action, jurisdiction may not thus be conferred. Id.

There is no legal inhibition to the legislature giving to a resident plaintiff a right of action for divorce and in establishing jurisdiction over the subject-matter in the county where the defendant may be found. Id.

Under section 22 of the marriage and divorce act (Rev. Laws, 5838) providing that "Divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be obtained by complaint, under oath, to the district court of the county * * * in which defendant shall reside or be found," etc., a complaint alleging that the plaintiff is a resident of a certain county within this state and that the defendant "is now within and can be found in said county" alleges facts sufficient to invest the court with jurisdiction. (Fleming v. Fleming, 36 Nev. 135, distinguished.) Id.

Actual living in the county by plaintiff for the six months is necessary to give the court jurisdiction under Rev. Laws, 5838, providing that divorce may be obtained by complaint to the district court of the county in which plaintiff shall have "resided" six months before suit brought. "Resided" means permanency as well as continuity. Actual residence is the place of actual abode; of physical presence—the abiding-place. Legal residence may be merely ideal, but actual residence must be substantial. Where residence is made the basis of jurisdiction, parties who seek to invoke the power of the court to relieve them from the marriage tie must bring themselves clearly and affirmatively within the jurisdiction of the court. Fleming v. Fleming, 36 Nev. 135; 134 P. 445.

Under civil practice act, sec. 252 (Rev. Laws, 5194), providing that when the defendant interposes a counterclaim, his right to a provisional remedy is the same as though he were plaintiff, section 259 (Rev. Laws, 5201), providing that either party may, in the absence of the other, bring a cause to trial and proceed to judgment, and section 295 (Rev. Laws, 5237), providing that an action may be dismissed or a judgment of nonsuit entered when the plaintiff fails to appear on the trial or abandons the cause, in which case judgment shall be rendered upon the merits, where plaintiff, in an action for divorce, failed to appear at the trial, defendant, who had filed a cross-complaint for divorce and injunction, was entitled to proceed to judgment for the full relief asked in the cross-complaint, though plaintiff alone had acquired the requisite residence within the state for the maintenance of an action for divorce. State v. Moran, 37 Nev. 404; 142 P. 534.

The provisions of the act of February 20, 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 10) amending section 22 of the marriage and divorce act of 1861 (Stats. 1861, c. 33), as amended by the act of February 15, 1875 (Stats. 1875, c. 22), by declaring that the court shall not grant a divorce, unless either party shall have been a resident for not less than one year, relates merely to procedure, and not to cause of action, and applies to cases where the cause of action accrued before the act took effect. Worthington v. District Court, 37 Nev. 214; 142 P. 230; Ann. Cas. 1916E, 1097; L. R. A. 1916A, 696.

The word "found," as used in section 22 of the divorce act, supra, is used in the same sense that it is used in other provisions of the civil practice act relative to the service of process, and means the county in which service of summons may be had personally upon the defendant. Tiedemann v. Tiedemann, 36 Nev. 494; 137 P. 824.

Under Rev. Laws, 5838, providing that divorce may be obtained by complaint under oath to the district court of the county in which the cause shall have accrued, or in which defendant shall reside or be found, or in which plaintiff shall reside, if the latter be either the county in which the parties last cohabited, or in which plaintiff shall have resided six months before suit, for wilful desertion for a year, or for extreme cruelty, a district court had jurisdiction to grant divorce for extreme cruelty and desertion to a husband resident in the county for a year, though the acts complained of all occurred in another state, under whose statutes there was no cause of action for divorce on those grounds, since the law of the forum controls; it being the legislative intent that the district court have jurisdiction to determine the marriage status of parties whose residential qualifications meet the requirements of the statute, regardless of where the cause of action may have arisen; marriage, though a civil contract, constituting an exception to the rule of lex loci contractus. Blakeslee v. Blakeslee, 41 Nev. 235; 168 P. 950.

A complaint in divorce alleging plaintiff's residence in W. county, that defendant is within the jurisdiction of the court and can be served in W. county, gives the court jurisdiction under act of February 23, 1915 (Stats. 1915, c. 28), section 1, amending Stats. 1861, c. 33, sec. 22, giving jurisdiction if defendant can be found in the county. Merritt v. Merritt, 40 Nev. 385; 160 P. 22; 164 P. 644.

5. Acquisition of domicile for purpose of divorce.

The action was for divorce; defendant denying the jurisdictional allegation of the complaint of the plaintiff's residence for the statutory period of six months prior to the suit brought. Upon trial to a jury, special findings were made that plaintiff had established her residence solely for the purpose of obtaining a divorce. Rev. Laws, 5838, provides that divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be obtained, etc., in the county in which the plaintiff shall have resided six months before suit brought; while section 3610 provides that the "legal residence" of a person, with reference to his right of suffrage and eligibility to office, is that place where his habitation is fixed and permanent, and to which, whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning. Stats. 1911, c. 158, provides that the "legal residence" of a person "with reference to his or her * * * right to maintain or defend any suit at law or in equity" is that place where he or she shall have been actually, physically, and corporeally present within the state or county during all of the period for which residence is claimed by him or her. Held, that there is no necessary repugnancy between the provisions of the Revised Laws relating to residence and the act of 1911; the latter merely adding the requirement of physical presence to the former general requirement of the intention permanently to reside, so that the plaintiff, taking up her residence solely for the purpose of maintaining a divorce action, did not acquire such residence as was necessary to give the court jurisdiction of her suit. Presson v. Presson, 38 Nev. 203; 147 P. 1081.

(B) PARTIES, PROCESS AND INCIDENTAL PROCEEDINGS

6. Process or notice—Substituted service.

The order for substituted service directing the mailing of a copy of the summons to defendant at two addresses, mailing it addressed to her at one of those places, and instead of the other, at a third place, not being a full compliance with the order, does not give court jurisdiction. Miller v. Miller, 37 Nev. 257; 142 P. 218.

7. Process or notice—Service by publication.

Affidavit, in husband's divorce action, that wife's address was unknown to him, and that, after due diligence, she could not be found in state, so that summons could not be served upon her there, did not contain statement of facts contemplated by Rev. Laws, 5026, authorizing service by publication. Perry v. District Court, 42 Nev. 284; 174 P. 1058.

Where husband suing for divorce knew wife was nonresident when he filed affidavit for order of publication, wherein he did not say she was or was not, or that he did not know her residence, court, in view of Rev. Laws, 5027, acquired no jurisdiction to order publication of summons and decree. Id.

(C) PLEADING

8. Complaint—Residence of parties.

Under Stats. 1915, c. 28, sec. 1, providing that divorce may be obtained by complaint to the court of the county in which the cause therefor accrued, or in which defendant shall reside or be found, or in which plaintiff resides, if the parties last cohabited there, or in which plaintiff shall have resided for six months, the complaint of a husband, not alleging his residence in the county, but merely that he is now therein, does not bring his status within the jurisdiction of the court, the matrimonial domicile of the parties being in another state, and the marital offenses complained of being such as might have been determined by the courts of the matrimonial domicile, though the complaint alleges that defendant can be found in and is a resident of the county, the right of the wife to acquire another domicile separate from him, where their unity is dissolved, not availing him. Aspinwall v. Aspinwall, 40 Nev. 55; 160 P. 253.

9. Complaint—Grounds for divorce.

A husband's complaint alleging the wife's persistent gross uncleanness, both as to her person and in the performance of her household duties, her vituperation of him upon his remonstrance with her, because of her conduct, that against his protest, she persistently exposed her person to the view of neighbors and to men servants in a manner grossly immodest, if not indecent, and used profane and vulgar language and told vulgar, obscene, and licentious stories in the presence of the children, so that he felt compelled to remove his daughter from her influence, and deprive himself of her society, to give her an opportunity to properly develop her character, that such cruelty was inflicted daily, and frequently several times a day, and extended continuously through their married life, that it was wholly unprovoked, that it destroyed his happiness, wrecked his home life, impaired his health, and caused great and grievous mental worry and torment, that it was unendurable, and had turned his feeling for her into repulsion and disgust, and that he had ceased to live with her, sufficiently stated a cause of action for divorce upon the ground of extreme cruelty. McAllister v. McAllister, 37 Nev. 92; 139 P. 781.

(D) EVIDENCE

10. Admissibility—Residence of parties.

Defendant, in such case, was entitled to prove the residence of the plaintiff in order to support the jurisdiction of the court to proceed to judgment. State v. Moran, 37 Nev. 404; 142 P. 534.

11. Weight and sufficiency of evidence.

Evidence in a suit for divorce held sufficient to establish plaintiff's bona-fide residence within the state, though she admitted she was living at a hotel and owned no property within the state. Merritt v. Merritt, 40 Nev. 385; 160 P. 22; 164 P. 644.

12. Weight and sufficiency of evidence—Desertion or absence.

In suit by husband, who was first guilty of desertion, for divorce on the ground of desertion of the wife, evidence held insufficient to show that husband's invitation to the wife to come and live with him was made in good faith. Roberson v. Roberson, 41 Nev. 276; 169 P. 333.

(E) DISMISSAL, TRIAL OR HEARING AND NEW TRIAL

13. Questions for court and jury.

In a husband's divorce suit, the question of his residence was one of fact to be determined by the trial court. Blakeslee v. Blakeslee, 41 Nev. 235; 168 P. 950.

14. New trial or rehearing.

The fact that plaintiff moved from the state after the rendition of a judgment of divorce in his favor could not be considered as newly discovered evidence affecting the material issues in an action for divorce for cruelty. Whise v. Whise, 36 Nev. 16; 131 P. 967; 44 L. R. A. (N.S.) 689.

(F) JUDGMENT OR DECREE

15. Nature and essentials.

An answer in divorce is not necessary for a judgment on the merits against plaintiff. Danforth v. Danforth, 40 Nev. 436; 166 P. 927.

That affidavit of mailing of a copy of the summons to defendant in divorce, as required by the order for substituted service, was not filed when default was entered or when trial was had and the decree granted, should preclude granting of the decree; and a decree granted without affirmative proof of substantial compliance with an order for substituted service is, at least, voidable. Miller v. Miller, 37 Nev. 257; 142 P. 218.

If wife, in husband's divorce action, was not served with summons, decree of divorce was void ab initio for lack of jurisdiction in court to enter it. Perry v. District Court, 42 Nev. 284; 174 P. 1058.

16. By default—Opening or setting aside.

Even if copies of the summons and complaint were mailed defendant, as directed by the order for substituted process, yet her default can be set aside, if she moves to vacate it within six months of entry of the decree, and it is found that through no fault of hers she had failed to receive either such copies or notice of pendency of the action. Miller v. Miller, 37 Nev. 258; 142 P. 218.

done so at the first opportunity at which the regular judge, who granted and signed the decree, was present, though, at his request, a judge of another district had been sitting. Id.

Aside from the question of fraud, the affidavit of mailing, disclosing that the copies of the summons and complaint, if mailed at all, were mailed to defendant at a different address from that directed by the order for substituted process, warrants the granting of an order vacating the default. Miller v. Miller, 37 Nev. 257; 142 P. 218.

17. Opening or vacating.

That since the decree of divorce granted plaintiff he has remarried is no ground for refusing to set aside the decree, if it was obtained through fraud on the court and defendant. Id.

The court, on application to vacate a divorce decree on the ground of fraud, may not grant relief based on a private letter addressed to him and the contents of which are unknown to the opposing party or his counsel until it is filed as a basis of the order, and the court, if deeming the matters stated in the letter of sufficient importance, should direct counsel of the parties to investigate the same and present the matter by affidavits. Blundin v. Blundin, 38 Nev. 212; 147 P. 1083.

In a suit to set aside a divorce decree, a complaint alleging that the decree was void, because plaintiff therein was not a bona-fide resident of the county wherein the decree was granted, was insufficient, since under Stats. 1915, c. 28, relating to jurisdiction of divorce actions, jurisdiction might have been obtained on another ground than that of the residence of the plaintiff, and it was not alleged that jurisdiction was not dependent on such other grounds. Wade v. Wade, 41 Nev. 533; 173 P. 553.

In a suit to set aside a decree of divorce, on the ground that it was obtained by a conspiracy between plaintiff's husband and her attorney, a complaint, alleging such conspiracy by way of conclusion merely, and failing to set out facts showing that by reason of such conspiracy the plaintiff was prevented from making her defense, is insufficient. Id.

(G) APPEAL

18. Nature and form of remedy.

The question raised by the defendant in divorce as to the sufficiency of the evidence to establish residence on the part of the complainant can be reviewed only by appeal, and not by original proceedings in the supreme court, seeking to obtain an order requiring the judge of the trial court to show cause why defendant in the divorce should not be permitted to file his plea in abatement. McKim v. District Court, 33 Nev. 44; 110 P. 4.

19. Effect of appeal.

On the husband's appeal from a judgment of divorce, where it appeared that he was a man of considerable means, that all of his property was outside the state, and that after trial and before judgment he left the state and cannot be located by respondent, who is without means, an order requiring appellant to pay a sufficient sum to compensate respondent's attorney for appearing in her behalf will be made. Buehler v. Buehler, 38 Nev. 500; 151 P. 44.

On the appeal of a divorce action, the appellate court has power to make an allowance of suit money to the wife for the purpose of appeal. Id.

20. Review.

Whether fraud was committed on the court, whereby a decree of divorce was obtained, is a question of fact for the determination of the trial court, on motion to vacate, from all the evidence; and its determination, on a substantial conflict in the evidence, cannot be disturbed on appeal. Miller v. Miller, 37 Nev. 258; 142 P. 218.

V. ALIMONY, ALLOWANCES AND DISPOSITION OF PROPERTY

21. Permanent alimony—Modification of judgment or decree.

A decree of divorce a vinculo matrimonii is final, and the jurisdiction of the court over the parties after the expiration of the term is at an end, and as there can be no grant of alimony after such a divorce, there can be no change in the award of alimony, unless the right is reserved in the decree or given by statute. Sweeney v. Sweeney, 42 Nev. 431; 179 P. 638.

22. Disposition of property—Rights.

The power of the court given by Rev. Laws, 5841, to make such disposition of the property of the parties as shall appear just and equitable in granting a decree of divorce, is limited by Const. art. 4, sec. 31, Stats. 1864-65, c. 76, and Stats. 1873, c. 119, determining the property rights of husband and wife. Walker v. Walker, 41 Nev. 4; 164 P. 653.

Where a husband whose wife was granted a divorce for his misconduct had settled on her at the time of the marriage property of the value previously agreed on, which had in the meantime enormously increased in value, and which left the husband without property of his own, the court can, under the power to dispose of the property as shall appear just and equitable given by Rev. Laws, 5841, protect any equity of the husband in such property notwithstanding his guilt, which is only one of the factors to be considered in determining the property rights. Id.

The declaration of Rev. Laws, 2172, that neither husband nor wife has any interest in the property of the other, is subject to the exceptions of section 2173, allowing either to enter into any contract with the other subject to the general rules which control the actions of parties occupying relations of confidence and trust towards each other, and under the latter provision, one spouse may acquire an interest, legal or equitable, in the separate property of other which the court, in granting a divorce, can protect under section 5841. Id.

23. Disposition of property—Division of property.

Rev. Laws, 2166, determines the rights of the parties to the community property on dissolution of the marriage, though the earlier statute, section 5941, empowering the court to dispose of the property on granting a divorce, has not been amended or repealed in terms. Id.

24. Enforcement of order, judgment or decree—Dismissal—Striking out or stay on nonpayment.

On the appeal of a divorce action, the appellant cannot be required, under penalty of dismissal of the appeal on refusal, to pay amounts awarded respondent in the judgment appealed from, since to compel appellant to pay such amounts would be to nullify the purpose of the appeal. Buehler v. Buehler, 38 Nev. 500; 151 P. 44.

On appeal from a judgment of divorce, attorney's fees pending the appeal may be ordered to be paid by appellant within a specified time on penalty of dismissal of the appeal. Id.

25. Enforcement of order, judgment or decree—Contempt proceedings.

On order to show cause why defendant should not be punished as for contempt for failure to pay alimony, an order directing him to pay certain alimony, which was futile as a process either for the enforcement of the original order or for the execution of its own mandate, will not be vacated, even though the court did not have jurisdiction of its first place to award alimony. Phillips v. Phillips, 42 Nev. 460; 180 P. 907.

26. Appeal—Review.

Whether or not a divorced husband is able to pay alimony is a matter left entirely with the lower court. Id.

VI. CUSTODY AND SUPPORT OF CHILDREN

27. Modification of judgment, order or decree as to support.

Final judgment of divorce providing for support of children of marriage cannot, after term, when court has lost jurisdiction of parties, be changed as to such provisions, unless right is reserved by the decree or given by statute. Sweeney v. Sweeney, 42 Nev. 432; 179 P. 638.

28. Property not disposed of by judgment or decree.

Under Const., art. 4, sec. 31, Stats. 1864-65, c. 76, and Stats. 1873, c. 119, fixing the property rights of husband and wife, the dissolution of the marriage does not of itself operate to change the property rights. Walker v. Walker, 41 Nev. 4; 164 P. 653.

29. Foreign divorces—Construction and operation.

In a suit instituted in a foreign state other than the state of her husband's residence and in which he had no property, a wife secured a decree of divorce. Held, that such decree, though treated as one in rem, dissolving the bonds of matrimony, has no binding effect in personam against the defendant husband, though he was personally served with process in the state of his residence, for such service did not bring him within the jurisdiction of the foreign court. Keenan v. Keenan, 40 Nev. 351; 164 P. 351.

30. Foreign divorces—Alimony and disposition of property.

Where a wife procured a judgment of divorce in a foreign state other than Nevada, of which her husband was a resident, she cannot, on the ground of the liberality of the Nevada divorce laws, maintain an action for the division of community property situated in Nevada, for she might properly have maintained her suit in Nevada. Keenan v. Keenan, 40 Nev. 352; 164 P. 351.

Rev. Laws, 2166, declares that in case of the dissolution of the marriage the community property must be equally divided between the parties, and the court granting the decree must make such division as the nature of the case may require, provided that when the decree is rendered, on the ground of adultery or extreme cruelty, the party found guilty is entitled only to such portion of the community property as the court granting the decree may, in its discretion, deem just and allow. A wife secured in a foreign state a decree divorcing her from her husband, who was a resident of the State of Nevada, in which state the community property of the parties was situated. Held, that she could not thereafter maintain an independent action in the Nevada courts to secure a division of the community property pursuant to the statute; the statute having reference only to the court granting the divorce. Keenan v. Keenan, 40 Nev. 351; 104 P. 351.

1. Domicile distinguished from residence.

"Residence" is a settled or fixed abode of a character indicating permanency, or at least an intention to remain for an indefinite time, being made up of the physical fact of abode and the intention of remaining. Presson v. Presson, 38 Nev. 203; 147 P. 1081.

2. Domicile of origin.

A wife may acquire and maintain a domicile separate from that of her husband. Merritt v. Merritt, 40 Nev. 385; 160 P. 22; 164 P. 644.

3. Domicile of choice and change of domicile.

Residence is a matter of intention. Whise v. Whise, 36 Nev. 16; 131 P. 967; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 689.

4. Domicile by operation of law.

At common law, it was a well-founded rule that a woman on her marriage lost her own domicile and acquired that of her husband. Merritt v. Merritt, 40 Nev. 385; 160 P. 22; 164 P. 644.

EASEMENTSI. CREATION, EXISTENCE, AND TERMINATION.

1. Prescription—Adverse character of use.

2. Evidence.

I. CREATION, EXISTENCE, AND TERMINATION

1. Prescription—Adverse character of use.

No adverse right can exist in a way used by the owner of the land over which it passes. Howard v. Wright, 38 Nev. 25; 143 P. 1184.

Where not only the adjoining owner, but the owner of the land over which a way was established, used the way, the act of the adjoining owner in constructing and maintaining bridges and in doing grading did not make his use adverse, so that it could ripen into an easement by prescription. Id.

Where a land owner opens and keeps open a road across his land for his own use, the fact that an adjoining owner makes use of the road under circumstances not interfering with the former's use creates no presumption that the latter's use of the road is adverse so that it can ripen into an easement by prescription. Id.

The act of the owners of land in leaving a gate across a way of which they themselves made use tended to rebut the presumption that the use of the way by an adjoining owner was adverse. Id.

Where the owner of premises uses a way, its enjoyment and use by another in common with the public generally must be regarded as being by permission and under an implied license, and not adverse, unless there be some decisive act on the part of that other to indicate a separate and exclusive use under claim of right. Howard v. Wright, 38 Nev. 26; 143 P. 1184.

2. Evidence.

Evidence in an action to enjoin defendants from trespassing on plaintiff's land held to show that defendant's use of the right of way claimed over such land was permissive, and hence could not ripen into an easement by prescription. Howard v. Wright, 38 Nev. 25; 143 P. 1184.

The presumption of a right arising from the unexplained use of a way across another's land for five years is negated by proof that claimant used the way in common with others. Howard v. Wright, 38 Nev. 26; 143 P. 1184.

1. Causes of action and remedies subject to election.

Where the agent of plaintiff wrongfully deposited money collected to the credit of the agent's account in a bank, and the bank, with knowledge of plaintiff's ownership, credited the money on the agent's debt to it, the plaintiff could either sue the bank in equity for an accounting or else treat the funds as converted, and sue for damages at law. McStay Supply Co. v. Stoddard, 35 Nev. 284; 132 P. 545.

I. RIGHT OF SUFFRAGE AND REGULATION THEREOF

1. Statutory provisions—Constitutionality and validity.

Stats. 1917, c. 197, providing for taking of votes of electors in the military service of the United States, is a compliance with Const. art. 2, sec. 3, and is not void for discrimination against electors in the naval service, or conscripted men in the military service, since "military service" includes every branch of service in either the army or the navy of the United States. Maclean v. Brodigan, 41 Nev. 468; 172 P. 375.

2. Statutory provisions—Construction and operation.

Election laws are to be liberally construed to enable the largest participation of qualified electors in all elections. Turner v. Fogg, 39 Nev. 406; 150 P. 56.

V. REGISTRATION OF VOTERS

3. Constitutional and statutory provisions.

Stats. 1915, c. 283, secs. 12 and 14, requiring electors to register their party affiliation as a prerequisite to the right to vote at primary election, is a reasonable regulation and valid exercise of the legislative power. Id.

As used in the election laws of 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 284, subc. 3, sec. 18) providing that an elector shall not be entitled to vote at a primary election "unless he has heretofore designated to the registry agent his politics," the word "heretofore" relates to the time in which an elector may lawfully be registered for the primary election. State v. Keith, 37 Nev. 452; 142 P. 532; Ann. Cas. 1917A, 1276.

4. Correction of lists.

Under the election laws of 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 284, subc. 3, sec. 18), relating to primary elections, and subchapter 2, secs. 4, 5, relating to registration, where an elector has registered, but has failed to indicate his politics or party designation, he may, prior to the time fixed for closing registration, apply to the registry agent and have an entry made on the registry of his politics or party designation so as to entitle him to vote at a primary election. Id.

Under the election laws of 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 284, subc. 3, sec. 18), relating to primary elections, and subchapter 2, secs. 4, 5, relating to registration, an elector who has registered so as to be entitled to vote at a primary election, by designating his political party and having same entered on the registry, cannot subsequently require the registry agent to change such designation. Id.

VI. NOMINATIONS AND PRIMARY ELECTIONS

5. Constitutional and statutory provisions.

The original primary election law (Stats. 1908, c. 198), sec. 2, which declared that the act should "not apply to special elections to fill vacancies to the nomination of party candidates for presidential electors," and that it should not be construed as affecting the right of political parties to hold conventions for the selection of delegates to national conventions, was amended by Stats. 1911, c. 165, to provide that the act should "not apply to special elections to fill vacancies to the nomination of party candidates for presidential electors," thus omitting the comma after the word "vacancies" shown in the original act. Section 27 of the original act provided that vacancies occurring after the holding of any primary election should be filled by the party committee of the city, county, or state, as the case might be. The omission of the comma must be regarded as the result of a clerical error, otherwise two methods of selecting candidates to fill vacancies in the office of presidential electors, and hence electors chosen by a convention of a political party were the only names entitled to go upon the official ballot. State v. Brodigan, 34 Nev. 486; 125 P. 699.

The primary law (Stats. 1908-09, c. 198), having made a radical change in the manner of making nominations for election, the provisions therein which preclude the withdrawal of a candidate after nomination supersede any provisions in earlier statutes permitting officers to resign, even if a candidate after nomination and before election were an officer within such former statutes. State ex rel. Donnelly v. Hamilton, 33 Nev. 418; 111 P. 1026.

6. Nomination by primary election.

One who files nomination papers under the election law of 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 284), subc. 3, sec. 9, providing that the candidate filing such papers "shall pay" to the secretary of state "a fee for such filing," is not entitled to a return of such fee on his withdrawal as a candidate prior to the primary election, though such fee is required to be paid into the state treasury. State v. Brodigan, 37 Nev. 458; 142 P. 520.

Under election law of 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 284), subc. 3, sec. 7, providing that a candidate at a primary election shall declare in his nomination papers that he intends to support the principles of the party of which he is a candidate, and that he voted for a majority of the candidates of such party at the last election, one who has filed nomination papers as a candidate of a designated party at the primary election cannot file another nomination paper designating himself as a candidate of another party for the same office. Id.

The primary election law (Stats. 1900, c.

198) provides in section 12, subd. 7, that under each group of names of candidates shall be printed as many blank spaces as there are to be candidates nominated for such office. Section 12, subd. 8, directs that at the bottom of the last column on a primary ballot there shall be left a space preceded by the words "county committeeman." Other sections of the act provide for the counting and certification of the vote for county committeeman, but the act nowhere provides for an elector's writing in of the names of candidates, and makes no provision for the certification of the vote cast by the writing in of names for candidates other than county committeeman. Held, that an elector may not vote for one whose name does not appear on the primary ballot by writing in his name and putting a cross thereafter, except in the case of a county committeeman. In Re Primary Ballots, 33 Nev. 125; 126 P. 643.

In spite of the provisions of primary election law (Stats. 1909, c. 198) par. 12, subd. 7, for blank spaces under the group of names of candidates, no such blank spaces need be left on the printed ballot either where there are candidates under a designated office, or where no candidates have filed therefor. Id.

Where, in such case, one of two opposing nominees withdrew after the time for filing nomination papers, but before the primary election, the other nominee became the candidate by operation of Stats. 1913, c. 284, subc. 3, sec. 14, subd. 9, and the secretary of state must certify his name as the candidate of his party, though he filed withdrawal papers before the primary election, but after the withdrawal of the other candidate for nomination. State v. Brodigan, 37 Nev. 458; 142 P. 520.

Election law of 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 284), subc. 3, sec. 7, requiring a candidate filing nomination papers for the primary election to make affidavit that he will not withdraw, does not prevent a candidate who has filed his papers from withdrawing prior to the election, but he cannot withdraw where he is without opposition and becomes the nominated candidate by virtue of Stats. 1913, c. 284, subc. 3, sec. 14, subd. 9, providing that the names of candidates who are without opposition shall not be printed on the primary ballot, but shall be certified as the party nominees. Id.

Under Stats. 1915, c. 283, secs. 12 and 14, which was not repealed by Stats. 1915, c. 285, sec. 8, the names of electors which appear upon the certified registration list as copied from the register of the last general election, together with the names that appear on the supplemental list, constitute the list of electors qualified to vote at the primary election. Turner v. Fogg, 39 Nev. 406; 159 P. 56.

7. Nomination by electors.

Under the act of March 13, 1891 (Stats. 1891, p. 40, sec. 4; Rev. Laws, 1836), which provides for nomination of candidates for public office by filing a certificate signed by electors, and under section 6 (Rev. Laws, 1838) which provides that no one shall join in nominating more than one nominee for each office to be filled, a certificate signed by the requisite number of electors is not vitiated by signers subsequently signing another certificate nominating another person for the same office, but duplicate signatures are invalid as to the subsequent certificate. State v. Harmon, 35 Nev. 189; 127 P. 221; Ann. Cas. 1914C, 891.

8. Acceptance, declination or withdrawal.

Under the primary act (Stats. 1908-09, c. 198, sec. 5, subd. 4) requiring each candidate on filing his nomination papers to make an affidavit, that if nominated he will accept the nomination and not withdraw, and that he will qualify as such officer, if nominated and elected, and section 24, providing that the person receiving the highest number of votes at a primary as the candidate for the nomination of a political party shall be placed on the official ballot, and section 27, providing that vacancies occurring after a primary shall be filled by the party committee, one nominated at a primary election as the candidate of a political party for a public office cannot have his name omitted from the general election ballot, though he has since the primary become incapacitated from making an active campaign. State v. Hamilton, 33 Nev. 418; 111 P. 1026.

A candidate nominated at a primary election for a public office is not an officer within the statute allowing officers to resign. Id.

The question whether a candidate nominated at a primary election may have his name omitted from the general election ballot is a matter of policy for the legislature, and, where the legislature forbids the withdrawal of candidates nominated at a primary, the court cannot allow candidates to withdraw even for deserving reasons. Id.

9. Nominations to fill vacancies.

Stats. 1915, c. 285, sec. 44, the general election law, provides that, should a vacancy occur in the nominees for any office, it may be filled before election day by the committee to which such power has been delegated, and Stats. 1915, c. 283, regulating nominations for public office by primaries, conventions, petitions, etc., by section 26 provides that vacancies in nominations occurring after any party convention shall be filled by the party committee, etc. The Democratic county convention nominated a candidate for clerk and treasurer, and on his declination took no further action and left the place blank in the certificate of nomination, and adjourned without delegating any authority to its committee, but the executive board of the committee filed a certificate of nomination. Held, that the filing of such certificate was unauthorized, and that mandamus would issue to compel the county clerk to exclude from the ballot at a coming general election the name of the candidate contained in such certificate. State v. Wilson, 40 Nev. 131; 161 P. 306.

One purporting to act as a member of a county central committee of a political party, and who held proxies of other members, is at least a de facto officer, although disqualified by Stats. 1913, c. 282, sec. 18, because the holder of an appointive public office; a "de facto officer" being one whose acts, though not those of a lawful officer, the law upon principles of policy and justice will hold valid, because of the circumstances under which he acts or for the benefit of third persons. State v. Harmon, 38 Nev. 5; 143 P. 1183.

10. Objection and contests—Trial and determination by courts.

Rev. Laws, 1764, providing that any candidate at a primary election desiring to contest the nomination of another candidate for the same office may proceed by affidavit, etc., was a special law relating to primary election contests, which control as to them, the provisions of the civil practice act requiring that there shall be but one form of action and for the requisites of a complaint therein. Brown v. Dunn, 35 Nev. 167; 127 P. 81.

An affidavit initiating a primary election contest, alleging that the petitioner had reason to believe, and did believe, that mistakes had occurred in counting ballots in specified precincts sufficient to change the result of the election, was sufficient to secure a recount before a judge of the district court. Id.

Rev. Laws, 1513, provides that the board of county commissioners shall act as a board of canvassers and declare the general election returns, and that, when it shall appear from such canvass that any legislator, county or township officer voted for at such election has received a majority of ten votes or less, in such case, on the application of the defeated candidate, setting forth under oath that he has reason to believe that a mistake or mistakes have occurred on the part of the inspectors of the election in any election precinct or precincts, sufficient to change the result so far as the particular office is concerned, it shall be the duty of the board of county commissioners to immediately recount the ballots. This section was made applicable to primary elections by the primary election law of 1911, c. 167, sec. 14, amending Stats. 1909, c. 198, sec. 31. Held, that section 1513 did not authorize a recount before the courts, but left the parties free without a recount by the board to initiate such contests in the courts as might otherwise be prescribed by law. Brown v. Dunn, 35 Nev. 166; 127 P. 81.

An affidavit initiating a primary election contest was not fatally defective because it did not name the parties to the contest in a title or heading, where the body of the affidavit clearly showed who were the parties in interest. Brown v. Dunn, 35 Nev. 167; 127 P. 81.

Where a primary election contestant attacks the returns in more precincts than can be recounted within the period limited under the primary law, the original returns will stand under the presumption that they are correct, in precincts where the ballots are not recounted. Id.

An affidavit for a primary election contest before a judge of a district court, praying that all the ballots cast in the precincts objected to for the particular office might be recounted, and for such further relief as the court might seem meet and proper, was sufficient. Id.

Rev. Laws, 1763, provides that whenever it shall be made to appear by affidavit to any justice of the supreme court or judge of the district court of the proper county that an error or omission has occurred or is about to occur in the placing of any name on an official primary election ballot, or that any wrongful act has been or is about to be done by any officer or board charged with any duty concerning a primary election, etc., such justice or judge shall order the officer or person charged with the error to desist from the wrongful act or perform the duty or forthwith show cause why he should not do so. Section 1764 declares that any candidate at a primary election desiring to contest the nomination of another candidate for the same office may proceed by affidavit within five days after the completion of the canvass and the contestees shall be required to appear and abide the further order of the court. Held, that where a contestant for the nomination for justice of the peace in a township claimed that he was deprived of the nomination by mistakes in counting the ballots in certain precincts, he was entitled to initiate a contest by affidavit before the district court under such sections, regardless of his right to a recount by the board of county commissioners as is provided for by section 1513. Id.

11. Irregularities and defects.

Mere irregularity of the election officers in canvassing the ballots at a place other than the polling place will be disregarded under primary election law (Stats. 1909, c. 198), section 1 providing that the law shall be liberally construed so that the will of the electors shall not be defeated by any informality or failure to comply with its provisions in respect to conducting the election or certifying its results. Nicholson v. Comins, 33 Nev. 381; 111 P. 289.

VII. BALLOTS

12. Form and contents of ballots.

A ballot from which the number has not been torn off by the election officers is valid. State v. Baker and Josephs, 35 Nev. 302; 126 P. 345; 129 P. 452.

13. Form and contents of ballots — Party names.

Under Rev. Laws, 1737, providing for the nomination of candidates for public offices by direct vote or by nominating positions, and sections 1835, 1836, providing that nominations made by any convention shall be certified by a certificate containing the name of each person nominated, and the designation of the party or principle which the convention represents, and providing that a certificate of nomination shall contain the name of the candidate to be nominated with the other information required in the certificate of nominating conventions, the names of candidates nominated by petition are entitled to go on the official ballot with the designation of the party named in the certificate of nomination, and where a certificate of nomination for state offices, United States senator, representative in Congress, and presidential electors designates the candidates as the nominees of the Progressive party, the secretary of state may not certify the candidates as independent, but must certify them as the candidates of the Progressive party. State v. Brodigan, 35 Nev. 35; 126 P. 680.

14. Indication of choice by voter.

Under Rev. Laws, 1852, which provides that in case of a constitutional amendment submitted the cross shall be placed after the answer which the voter desires to give, the cross in voting for or against a constitutional amendment need not be placed in the square, and a ballot with a cross before the square and after the word "Yes" or "No" in voting on a constitutional amendment is valid, as is also a ballot in which a single cross is placed in the square. State v. Baker and Josephs, 35 Nev. 301; 126 P. 345; 129 P. 452.

15. Irregularities, errors and omissions.

Under Rev. Laws, 1858, providing that when a voter marks more names than there are persons to be elected to office, or where it is impossible to determine his choice for any office, his vote for the office shall not be counted, a ballot containing a cross after the names of the candidates for the same office cannot be counted for either. Id.

16. Illegality—Distinguishing marks.

A ballot containing an erasure destroying the texture of the paper, or containing holes rubbed or torn through the paper by the voter, must be rejected. State v. Baker and Josephs, 35 Nev. 302; 126 P. 345; 129 P. 452.

A ballot containing marks other than those required for voting, apparently designed for identification, or which may be readily used for that purpose, will not be counted. Id.

Ballots containing crosses made with lead pencil or pen, or by marking with the wrong end of the stamp, must be rejected. Id.

Under Rev. Laws, 1858, providing that any ballot on which appears names or marks excepting as provided for shall not be counted, a ballot containing a cross in the square following a blank space left for filling in the name of a candidate for an office for which no candidate has been nominated, or containing the name of a candidate written by the voter, must be rejected. Id.

A ballot containing a cross placed in the square and another cross placed before the square and after the word "Yes" or "No" in voting on a constitutional amendment must be rejected because of the extra cross. Id.

Under Rev. Laws, 1852, which provides that the voter shall prepare his ballot by stamping a cross in the square, and in no other place, after the name of the person for whom he intends to vote, the cross must be in the square after the name of the candidate, and a ballot with a cross after the name of the candidate and before the square is invalid. State v. Baker and Josephs, 35 Nev. 301; 126 P. 345; 129 P. 452.

IX. COUNT OF VOTES, RETURNS, AND CANVASS

17. Constitutional and statutory provisions.

Rev. Laws, 1795, providing for the deposit of ballots and election returns in the office of the clerk of county commissioners, and that they shall not be subject to the inspection of any one except in cases of contested elections, and then only by the judge or body before whom the election is contested, is not repealed by a subsequent statute embodied in section 5409, providing that a public record in a public office may be admitted in evidence by the certificate of the custodian, and ballots must remain in the custody fixed by law except when their removal is authorized by some court, and ballots are not admissible in evidence in an election contest under the certificate of the clerk when they have been out of his official custody subsequent to the making of the certificate, at least in the absence of a proper foundation for their admission having been laid. State v. Baker and Josephs, 35 Nev. 2; 126 P. 345; 129 P. 452.

Rev. Laws, 1513, providing for recount of votes by the board of county commissioners, was not repealed by Stats. 1913, c. 284, the general election law, under Const. art. 4, sec. 21, providing that, where a general law can be made applicable, all laws shall be general and uniform in operation; since a general statute will not repeal particular provisions of a former act unless the two conflict irreconcilably. McBride v. Griswold, 38 Nev. 56; 146 P. 756.

18. Canvass of returns—Recount of votes.

Under Rev. Laws, 1513, defining election duties of the boards of county commissioners, such a board may reconvene after adjournment as a board of canvassers to conduct a recount, even in the absence of express authority in the statute; the imposition of a specific duty always implying power and function to perform it in a reasonable manner. Id.

X. CONTESTS

19. Constitutional and statutory provisions.

Where various remedies as to election contests were afforded, at common law, under the code of civil procedure, and the general election law (Stats. 1913, c. 284), and under Rev. Laws, 1513, concerning the powers of boards of county commissioners in regard to elections, these remedies are concurrent, not being incompatible, and the party seeking relief may use any. Id.

20. Evidence—Admissibility.

A certificate of the county clerk of a county attached to a ballot box of a precinct in the county, which recites that he certifies that to the best of his knowledge and belief there are within the ballot box, so inclosed that it cannot be opened without destroying the certificate, the ballots cast at an election and the election returns, and that to the best of his knowledge and belief the ballots and returns are genuine, does not comply with the statutory requirements because it fails to show that the box and its contents were in his custody and in his office, or that the box and its contents are the genuine and authentic election records and documents of the precinct, and the ballot box is inadmissible in an election contest. State v. Baker and Josephs, 35 Nev. 1; 126 P. 345; 129 P. 452.

Under Rev. Laws, 1795, providing for the deposit of ballots and election returns in the office of the clerk of county commissioners, and declaring that ballots so deposited shall not be subject to the inspection of any one except in cases of contested elections, and then only by the judge or body before whom the election is contested, ballots and election returns duly deposited are public documents within section 5409, providing that a public document in the custody of a public officer may be admitted in evidence by the certificate of the custodian thereof that it is genuine and authentic. State v. Baker and Josephs, 35 Nev. 2; 126 P. 345; 129 P. 452.

A party to an election contest may attach all ballots in the same precinct to which he objects and have them filed as one exhibit, but the ballots of each precinct should be kept entirely separate. State v. Baker and Josephs, 35 Nev. 301; 126 P. 345; 129 P. 452.

Rev. Laws, 5409, which provides that a public record in the custody of a public officer in a public office may be admitted in evidence by the certificate of the custodian that it is genuine, affects the admissibility of the specified character of evidence, but not the method of the production thereof in court, and the supreme court in quo warranto involving an election contest has no authority to direct the county clerk of a county to certify to the court the ballots and election returns of the precincts of the county for the election. State v. Baker and Josephs, 35 Nev. 1; 126 P. 345; 129 P. 452.

21. Costs.

The compensation due the commissioner, appointed by the supreme court in an election contest to count the ballots which are undisputed and report the actual ballots in dispute, may be taxed as costs against the defeated party; but the court may not order relator to pay the costs in advance, though the commissioner may withhold his report until payment is made by the party calling for it, and any compensation advanced by either party to receive and use the report will be recovered as other costs from the losing party. State v. Baker and Josephs, 35 Nev. 300; 126 P. 345; 129 P. 452.

XI. VIOLATION OF ELECTION LAWS

22. Illegal expenditures and corrupt practices.

Stats. 1913, c. 284, subc. 3, sec. 9, imposing upon candidates for state offices a fee of $100 as a condition to filing nomination papers so that their names will go on the ballot, is valid, being a regulation, and not an additional qualification, and it being within the scope of the legislature's power to impose a substantial fee to prevent persons from placing their names on the ballots for fraudulent purposes, such as to draw strength in small localities from one candidate to benefit another. State v. Brodigan, 37 Nev. 492; 143 P. 306.

The primary election law (Stats. 1913, c. 282), sec. 8, provides that every candidate for nomination or election to a state office shall, five days before and fifteen days after the election at which he was a candidate, file with the secretary of state a sworn statement setting forth all the moneys contributed by him to aid his nomination or election. Late on the last day for filing nomination papers M. and G. each filed his nomination paper for the Republican nomination for attorney-general and paid the filing fee. On the second day thereafter G. filed with the secretary of state his purported withdrawal from the nomination. About half an hour later M. filed his purported withdrawal, which it was held could not be accepted, because on G.'s withdrawal M. became the Republican nominee by operation of law. Held, that, under such circumstances, M. was not a candidate for the nomination for the office at a primary election, and his failure to file a statement of his primary election expenses was no objection to his right to have his name printed on the ballot. State v. Brodigan, 37 Nev. 488; 143 P. 306.

1. Indictment or information—Capacity or character in which property received or held.

An information alleging that defendant was manager of a county-owned telephone system, and as such manager came into possession of certain money for transmission to the county treasurer, and feloniously converted it to his own use, sufficiently charged embezzlement under Rev. Laws, 6653, as to misappropriation of corporation money by agent, manager, or clerk thereof. State v. McFarlin, 41 Nev. 486; 172 P. 371.

2. Admissibility of evidence.

In prosecution of county official for embezzlement, it was improper to admit evidence that he played slot machines for trade checks to a limited extent. Id.

I. NATURE, EXTENT, AND DELEGATION OF POWER

1. Distinction between eminent domain and other powers.

The water law (Stats. 1913, c. 140), as amended by Stats. 1915, c. 253, providing that, subject to existing rights, the water of all sources of supply belongs to the public, providing for the appointment of a state engineer, to whom application may be made to appropriate any unappropriated water in a public stream, etc., and providing that the state engineer, on his own initiative, or on application of one or more of the users of water of any stream, may make an order for the determination of the relative rights of the water users, there being provision for notice, etc., is not violative of Const. art. 6, sec. 1, providing that private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation, since the law does not contemplate or suggest the taking of private property for any public or any other use. Vineyard L. & S. Co. v. District Court, 42 Nev. 3; 171 P. 166.

2. Particular uses or purposes—Development or working of mines.

Rev. Laws, 2456, provides that mining for gold, silver, etc., and other valuable mineral, is the paramount interest of this state, and is hereby declared to be a public use. Section 2458 authorizes any citizen to enter upon private unfenced and unimproved land and prospect thereon for precious metals. Section 5606 provides that the right of eminent domain shall be exercised for the public uses therein specified, including roads, railroads, etc., and dumping places to facilitate the milling, smelting, or other reduction of ores. Held, that the use of land as a place upon which to deposit tailings from an ore mill is a public use and land may be condemned therefor. Goldfield Con. v. O. S. A. Co., 38 Nev. 427; 150 P. 313.

3. Property subject to appropriation.

Where property sought to be condemned as a place for the deposit of tailings from an ore mill, though located and patented as mining ground, had not been worked for several years, the mere possibility that it might be used in the future for mining purposes did not prevent condemnation, especially where the party seeking to condemn was willing that the order of condemnation should provide that defendants might carry on mining operations so far as such use of the land did not interfere with its operations, and it appeared likely that the tailings, after being re-treated, would be carried away by the flood waters and a large portion of the land thereby freed from such tailings. Goldfield Con. v. O. S. A. Co., 38 Nev. 428; 150 P. 313.

4. Exercise of delegated power—Necessity for appropriation.

An absolute necessity for the identical lands sought to be condemned is not necessary to authorize their condemnation. Id.

That there were other lands further away available for the purpose did not prevent the condemnation of land as a place for the deposit of tailings from an ore mill, since it is the general rule that, when a corporation seeks to exercise the right of eminent domain, its discretion in the selection of land will not be questioned if it acts in good faith and not capriciously. Id.

Rev. Laws, 5607, provides that the estates and rights in land therein specified are subject to be taken for a public use, including a fee simple when taken for public buildings, etc., or for an outlet for a place for the deposit of debris or tailings of a mine, mill, smelter, or other place for the reduction of ores. Held, that only such an interest in land desired as a place for the deposit of tailings as is necessary can be taken, as the statute does not say that a fee simple shall be taken, but only that it is subject to be taken. Id.

II. COMPENSATION

(B) TAKING OR INJURING PROPERTY AS GROUND FOR COMPENSATION

5. Property and rights subject of compensation—Water right.

The use of a water-distributing plant is itself "property" and is protected against confiscation by the constitution. Goldfield Con. Water Co. v. Public Service Comm., 236 F. 979.

6. Easements and other rights in real property.

Under Rev. Laws, 5616, providing that the tribunal entertaining condemnation proceedings must ascertain and assess the value of each and every separate interest in the realty, where there was a leasehold interest in defendant's ranch, a right of way over which plaintiff was seeking to condemn, it was unnecessary for the jury to assess such interest where the plaintiff had purchased the interest from the lessee. T. R. G. E. Co. v. Durham, 38 Nev. 311; 149 P. 61.

(C) MEASURE AND AMOUNT

7. Improvements and fixtures.

Where a corporation, invested with the power to condemn land as a place upon which to deposit tailings from its ore mill, placed such tailings upon land of another without the consent of the owner, and subsequently instituted proceedings to condemn such land, the common-law rule that a structure erected by a tort-feasor becomes a part of the land did not apply. Goldfield Con. v. O. S. A. Co., 38 Nev. 427; 150 P. 313.

(D) PERSONS ENTITLED AND PAYMENT

8. Persons entitled.

The owner of a valid, subsisting, but unpatented, lode mining claim, is entitled to an award for condemnation of a portion of the surface for a railroad right of way. L. V. & T. R. R. v. Summerfield, 35 Nev. 229; 129 P. 303.

III. PROCEEDINGS TO TAKE PROPERTY AND ASSESS COMPENSATION

9. Statutory provisions and remedies.

The legislature may delegate to a jury the power to fix compensation and damages in condemnation proceedings; the constitution being silent as to the method of determining such matters. T. R. G. E. Co. v. Durham, 38 Nev. 311; 149 P. 61.

Where condemnation proceedings were instituted when Stats. 1907, c. 128, regulated the subject, and provided that compensation and damages should be assessed by commissioners, the assessment of damages in such proceedings by a jury was permissible after the enactment of Rev. Laws, 5606-5629, which regulated the subject of eminent domain, and expressly repealed the former act; since the general rule that a special statute enacted for a special purpose, when complete in itself, is not repealed, modified, or amended by a subsequent general statute, has no application where the later general statute expressly repeals the former act. Id.

In condemnation proceedings to assess the damages for a right of way taken by a power company, the complaint and answer contained names of commissioners to assess compensation and damages, as provided by Stats. 1907, c. 128, the act governing at the time. Rev. Laws, 5606-5629, relating to the subject of eminent domain, enacted after institution of the proceedings, provided in section 5624 that the provisions of the Revised Laws relative to civil actions should constitute the rules of practice in proceedings under said chapter. Section 5199 provided that an issue of fact should be tried by a jury, unless a jury trial was waived, and section 5818 provided that the repeal of a law by the act should not affect any action or proceeding commenced in a civil case before the repeal took effect, but the proceedings in such case shall, as far as practicable, conform to the provisions of the Revised Laws. Held, that the action of the trial court in calling a jury was justified; since the general rule against the retrospective construction of a statute does not apply to statutes relating only to remedies. Id.

10. Parties—Intervention or substitution.

Persons claiming interest in land sought to be condemned, and for that reason claiming an interest in the award made, were expressly authorized to intervene by Stats. 1907, c. 128, sec. 8, providing that all persons in occupation of or having or claiming an interest in any of the property described in the complaint, or in the damages for the taking thereof, though not named, may appear, plead, and defend, each in respect to his own property or interest or that claimed by him, in like manner as if named in the complaint. L. V. & T. R. R. v. Summerfield, 35 Nev. 229; 129 P. 303.

11. Hearing and determination as to right to take.

In proceeding to condemn land as a place for the deposit of tailings from an ore mill, evidence held to show that such land was necessary for that purpose. Goldfield Con. v. O. S. A. Co., 38 Nev. 427; 150 P. 313.

In a proceeding to condemn certain patented mining claims upon which to deposit tailings from an ore mill, defendants moved to set the cause down for hearing on the questions of whether the use was one authorized by law, and whether the condemnation was necessary. On the hearing they objected to the court disposing of the further question whether the use to which the property was to be applied was a more necessary public use than that to which the land was already appropriated. Held, that this question was so interwoven with the other two questions that the rule against splitting causes of action applied, and the court properly determined such question. Goldfield Con. v. O. S. A. Co., 38 Nev. 426; 150 P. 313.

12. Evidence as to compensation—Weight and sufficiency.

In condemnation proceedings for an electric power line, where the evidence of defendant's witnesses as to damages was shown by cross-examination to have been based upon the erroneous assumption that the plaintiff would have the right to fence the right of way sought to be condemned, and to do with it as it pleased, such evidence was insufficient as a basis to fix damages. T. R. G. E. Co. v. Durham, 38 Nev. 313; 149 P. 61.

13. Mode of assessment—Trial by jury.

Under Rev. Laws, 5226, providing that trial by jury may be waived by failure to demand the same at or before the time for trial, where condemnation proceedings were set for hearing on defendant's motion, and he did not demand a jury, and the case was continued until the order setting it for hearing was vacated, application being thereafter made by plaintiff for an order appointing commissioners to fix damages, at which time defendant requested that a jury be called to determine compensation, whereupon the court entered an order that a jury be called, its action was proper, since, when the order vacating the setting of the case for trial was entered, the case was left in the status in which it was before set for trial, and defendant's right to a jury was revived. T. R. G. E. Co. v. Durham, 38 Nev. 312; 149 P. 61.

14. Assessment by jury—Instructions.

In condemnation proceedings for a right of way for electric power line, an instruction alluding to the "severance" of the land sought to be condemned from that not sought to be condemned was improper, as conveying to the jury the erroneous idea that the right of way could be fenced, and the defendant deprived of its use. T. R. G. E. Co. v. Durham, 38 Nev. 313; 149 P. 61.

In condemnation proceedings to take a right of way for an electric power line, an instruction that the property sought to be taken was an easement was proper where the prayer of the complaint designated the right sought to be acquired as an easement, and statute defined it as such. T. R. G. E. Co. v. Durham, 38 Nev. 312; 149 P. 61.

15. Appeal—Right of Review.

In condemnation proceedings, where the jury assessed the compensation for the land taken at $11, and the damages at $600, plaintiff paying the $11 into court, such payment of such part of the judgment did not estop it to appeal from the assessment of damages. T. R. G. E. Co. v. Durham, 38 Nev. 313; 149 P. 61.

16. Costs, fees and expenses.

In condemnation proceedings, where the defendant's demand of damages in his answer is so unreasonable as to justify a fair-minded plaintiff in litigating the question, the court should not grant defendant's request for judgment for costs accruing after the filing of the answer. Id.

V. TITLE OR RIGHTS ACQUIRED

17. Evidence—Offer for property.

In condemnation proceedings, testimony of a mere offer for the land was inadmissible on issue of damage; since such testimony can be easily fabricated. Id.

6. Nature and essentials.

I. JURISDICTION, PRINCIPLES, AND MAXIMS(A) NATURE, GROUNDS, SUBJECTS, AND EXTENT OF JURISDICTION*1. Retention of jurisdiction acquired—Complete relief.

A court of equity, having jurisdiction of a suit by a divorced wife to recover her interest in the community property, will retain jurisdiction of the proceeding to do complete justice; other parties having intervened and set up claims to such property, and the husband having died. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 751.

2. Aids the vigilant.

Though equity considers that done which should have been done, it does not follow that an equitable right once existing will always exist; but, to avail oneself of such right, it must be asserted in apt time and diligently prosecuted. Daly v. Lahontan Mines Co., 39 Nev. 15; 151 P. 514; 158 P. 285.

II. LACHES AND STALE DEMANDS3. Grounds and essentials of bar—Prejudice from delay.

If it appears that an adverse party has lost any advantage which he might have retained if plaintiff's claim had been asserted with reasonable promptness, or is exposed to any injury through inexcusable delay, a court of equity will not interfere to grant relief to the dilatory claimant. Miller v. Walser, 42 Nev. 499; 181 P. 437.

Some of the circumstances, in addition to the lapse of time, which will in equity constitute laches, are destruction of the monuments of title, the death or removal of the parties, the number of innocent purchasers who may be affected, radical changes in the condition or value of the property, and its speculative character. Id.

Strictly speaking, laches implies more than mere lapse of time in asserting a right, requiring some actual or presumable change of circumstances rendering it inequitable to grant relief. Id.

4. Grounds and essentials of bar—Loss of evidence.

Any circumstances tending to obscure the truth of a matter, as a loss of witnesses through the efflux of time, may prompt a court of equity to apply the doctrine of laches. Id.

5. Following statute of limitations.

Where the statute of limitations has not run, strong circumstances must exist to require the application of the doctrine of laches. Id.

X. DECREE AND ENFORCEMENT THEREOF6. Nature and essentials.

In a stockholder's suit for the winding up of a mining corporation, the sale of its property, and distribution of the proceeds, on the alleged ground of insolvency and fraudulent conduct of its officers and directors, on all of which allegations issue was joined and full proofs taken, the entry of an order appointing a receiver, with instructions to sell all of the property of the corporation, without determining any of the issues so tried and submitted, held, unauthorized and erroneous. *Tenabo M. & S. I. BY RECORD

1. Pleadings.

A party to an action is not in position to assert an estoppel against the other party by reason of allegations in pleadings in a former action in which neither the party asserting the estoppel nor his grantors nor predecessors in interest were parties. An estoppel should be pleaded. Round Mt. v. Ild. Mountain Spinx, 36 Nev. 543; 138 P. 71.

III. EQUITABLE ESTOPPEL

2. Claim under written instrument.

Where one has an election either to ratify or disaffirm a conveyance, he can either claim under or against it, but he cannot do both, and, having adopted one course, he cannot afterwards pursue the other. Moore v. Rochester W. M. Co., 42 Nev. 164; 174 P. 1017.

3. Claim or position in judicial proceedings.

Rev. Laws, 1350, provides that every foreign corporation having failed to comply with the preceding sections prescribing conditions on which it might do business within the state shall not be allowed to commence or defend any action in any court in the state until it shall have fully complied with the act. Held that, where plaintiff instituted suit against a foreign corporation which had not so complied, seeking a decree depriving defendant of title to a mining claim which it claimed to own within the state, plaintiff was estopped to deny defendant's right to make a defense and have the answer of defendant stricken and judgment rendered by default. Scott v. Day-Bristol M. Co., 37 Nev. 290; 142 P. 625.

4. Failure to assert title or right.

Where purchasers by defendants and their predecessors were intended to include a strip of land and a house thereon, their continued, open, and notorious possession of the strip and the house was notice of their claim to plaintiffs or their predecessors subsequently obtaining their deeds to the lot; and in equity the subsequent purchasers, with such notice, were estopped, by long acquiescence in the complete acts of ownership exercised by the prior purchasers, from recovering the strip. Quinn v. Small, 38 Nev. 8; 143 P. 1053.

5. Admission and receipts.

Where a storage company, after repeated fruitless demands for the total amount due and upon being pressed for cash, made an unaccepted offer to accept a less amount in settlement, it was not estopped thereby from maintaining an action for the full amount. McLean v. Mackenzie, 34 Nev. 341; 124 P. 577.

6. Permitting sale or mortgage of property.

Where one without title or authority from real owner assumes to sell and convey land in fee, and true owner, knowing facts, consents to and accepts proceeds of sale in satisfaction of his interest, he cannot thereafter assert his legal title as against buyer. Moore v. Rochester Weaver M. Co., 42 Nev. 164; 174 P. 1017.

(E) PLEADING, EVIDENCE, TRIAL AND REVIEW

7. Pleading as defense—Necessity.

To be relied on, an equitable estoppel must be pleaded. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 759.

8. Weight and sufficiency of evidence.

In action to quiet title to undivided interest in mining claims, evidence held to show plaintiffs were prevented from asserting legal title as against title of defendant company after having ratified their grantor's acts in conveying to defendant by accepting from him half of proceeds of sale of property by him. Moore v. Rochester W. M. Co., 42 Nev. 164; 174 P. 1017.

1. Matters of art and skill.

The courts of Nevada will take judicial knowledge of the fact that processes of crushing, amalgamating, and cyaniding ores will not effect an extraction of 100 per cent of the metallic contents. Richardson v. National Ore Co., 34 Nev. 455; 124 P. 779.

2. Management and conduct of occupations.

Courts cannot take judicial notice of what percentage of mineral can be extracted from a particular class of ore, which is a matter of proof in each particular case, where material. Dixon v. Southern Pacific, 42 Nev. 73; 172 P. 368; 177 P. 14.

3. Political divisions and bodies.

Courts take judicial notice of the general conditions in a state. State v. Brodigan, 37 Nev. 245; 141 P. 988.

II. PRESUMPTIONS

4. Judicial proceedings.

The presumption in favor of regularity of proceedings in a court of general jurisdiction, necessary to authorize it to act, does not apply in a proceeding not according to the common law. Danforth v. Danforth, 40 Nev. 436; 166 P. 927.

An action for absolute divorce is a proceeding not according to common law, to which the presumption in favor of regularity of proceedings in a court of general jurisdiction, necessary to authorize it to act, does not apply. Id.

5. Official proceedings and acts.

It will be presumed that the secretary of state will do his duty in filing and accepting certificates of nomination when presented at the proper time. State v. Brodigan, 34 Nev. 486; 125 P. 699.

The law presumes the regularity of official acts of public officers, except where it is sought by such presumption to take away personal rights of a citizen, or deprive him of his property or place a charge or lien thereon. Knox v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 394; 142 P. 526.

IV. RELEVANCY, MATERIALITY, AND COMPETENCY

(B) RES GESTÆ

6. Facts forming part of same transaction.

Declarations made by a train agent while ejecting a passenger, such as that "We put them off here, and they sleep in box cars," and similar statements, are admissible as part of the res gestæ in an action to recover damages for wrongful ejection. Forrester v. S. P. Co., 36 Nev. 249; 134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1.

VII. ADMISSIONS

(A) NATURE, FORM, AND INCIDENTS

7. Nature and grounds for admission.

What a party voluntarily admits to be true may be reasonably taken to be true, notwithstanding that the admission is contrary to his interest. Peterson v. Silver Peak, 37 Nev. 118; 140 P. 519.

8. Offers of compromise or settlement.

A resolution adopted by the board of directors of a corporation reciting that an officer of the corporation had in the past performed certain services outside of the duties of his office for which he was entitled to compensation is competent evidence in a subsequent suit by the officer to recover for such services as an admission of fact by the corporation, although the resolution was passed in an effort to compromise the claim. Montana Tonopah M. Co. v. Dunlap, 190 F. 612; 116 C. C. A. 286.

Where the vice-president of a corporation was claiming compensation for extra services rendered for it, and the corporation in an effort to compromise passed a resolution admitting the rendition of the services and instructing the secretary and treasurer to pay him $1,000 out of the funds of the company, such resolution was admissible in action against the corporation for such services as an admission, under the rule that the admission of any distinct fact made eo animo is competent though made in the course of proceedings for compromise. Dunlap v. Montana-Tonopah M. Co., 192 F. 714; aff. 196 F. 612.

(B) BY PARTIES OR OTHERS INTERESTED IN EVENT

9. Parties of record.

Every prior statement of a party inconsistent with his present claim tends to throw doubt upon it, and is admissible in evidence as an admission against interest, regardless whether, when the statement was made, it was in his own favor or against his interest. Peterson v. Silver Peak, 37 Nev. 118; 140 P. 519.

The voluntary statement of one injured, made after the accident, and relating thereto, is admissible, if relevant, for consideration by the jury in connection with the other evidence. Id.

Where plaintiffs claimed to own a building which they constructed on defendant's right of way, partly out of materials owned by defendant, evidence that, in a prosecution for the theft of such materials, plaintiff's counsel had in their presence stated that the building and materials belonged to defendant, and that it had not been deprived of its ownership, was admissible as an admission. Mirodlias v. S. P. Co., 38 Nev. 119; 145 P. 912.

(E) PROOF AND EFFECT

10. Conclusiveness and effect.

The weight to be given to an admission or declaration against interest is for the jury. Id.

VIII. DECLARATIONS

(A) NATURE, FORM, AND INCIDENTS

11. Self-serving declarations.

The fact that field notes of a group patent contain exclusions of the conflict area between the respective claims, which exclusions are made at the suggestion of the applicant for patent, cannot properly be said to be the self-serving declarations of the applicant, for, no matter at whose suggestion made, when the exclusions are embodied in the field notes of the deputy mineral surveyor and are approved by the surveyor-general, they become the exclusions made by the officers of the government upon whom the duty is imposed to make the same. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 545; 138 P. 71.

12. Declarations as to boundaries.

In an equitable action to quiet title to a mining claim, field notes made by plaintiff's surveyors, containing an exclusion of conflict area from one claim in favor of another, were properly excluded as self-serving acts by an agent of the plaintiff which could not be binding on the defendant. Round Mt. Co. v. Sphinx Co., 35 Nev. 393; 129 P. 308.

XI. PAROL OR EXTRINSIC EVIDENCE AFFECTING WRITINGS

(A) CONTRADICTING, VARYING, OR ADDING TO TERMS OF WRITTEN INSTRUMENT

13. Grounds for exclusion of.

Where the oral testimony of witnesses as to events transpiring many years before is in conflict with documentary evidence made at the time, the latter is controlling. Gamble v. Silver Peak, 34 Nev. 351; 126 P. 111.

14. Writing incomplete on its face.

The order was on its face incomplete, so that parol evidence was admissible to supply the missing terms. H. H. M. Safe Co. v. Baillet, 38 Nev. 164; 145 P. 941.

(C) SEPARATE OR SUBSEQUENT ORAL AGREEMENT

15. Subsequent agreements.

An executed oral agreement to deliver the possession of mortgaged property is valid, and such agreement, whether made at the time of the execution of the mortgage or subsequent thereto, is an agreement independent of the mortgage, and cannot be regarded as an oral agreement, varying or contradictory to the terms of a contract in writing. Douglass v. Thompson, 35 Nev. 196; 127 P. 561; Ann. Cas. 1914C. 920.

(D) CONSTRUCTION OR APPLICATION OF LANGUAGE OF WRITTEN INSTRUMENT

16. Nature of ambiguity or uncertainty.

A lease authorizing the lessee to purchase "any part" of certain premises held too indefinite to be aided by parol evidence, and to afford the lessee no defense in a forcible entry and detainer action. De Remer v. Anderson, 41 Nev. 287; 169 P. 737.

17. Identification of subject-matter.

Land covered by a lease may be identified by parol evidence, but such evidence cannot supply an entire absence of description. Id.

XII. OPINION EVIDENCE

(A) CONCLUSIONS AND OPINIONS OF WITNESSES

18. Conclusions and matters of opinion or facts.

In an action for the overflow of plaintiff's ranch from defendants' dam, it was error to allow a witness to give his opinion as to the extent of the damage done; the proper method being to have the witness testify to the value of the ranch before and after the overflow. McLeod v. Miller & Lux, 40 Nev. 447; 153 P. 566; 167 P. 27.

19. Matters directly in issue.

In an employee's action for injuries caused by defects in a saw, witnesses could testify as to its condition and the circumstances which came under their observation, but could not draw inferences and conclusions as to the danger or safety; these matters being for the jury. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 184; 135 P. 141.

20. Rate of speed.

A nonexpert may testify to the speed of a train. Sherman v. S. P. Co., 33 Nev. 385; 111 P. 416; 115 P. 909; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 217.

21. Cause and effect.

In an action for the overflow of plaintiff's ranch by defendants' dam, where nonexpert witnesses testified in detail to the facts as to previous overflows, and the location of various dams and ditches was minutely described by them, the opinions of such witnesses as to whether defendants' dam caused the overflow should have been excluded, as witnesses cannot testify to matters of ultimate fact, except where it is impossible for them to detail the evidentiary facts so as to enable the jury to draw a conclusion. McLeod v. Miller & Lux, 40 Nev. 448; 153 P. 566; 167 P. 27.

Where, in an action for the overflow of plaintiff's ranch by defendants' dam, nonexpert witnesses testified in detail to the facts as to previous overflows, and the location of various dams and ditches was minutely described by them, the opinion of such witnesses as to whether defendants' dam caused the overflow should have been excluded, since witnesses cannot testify to matters of ultimate fact, except where it is impossible for them to detail the evidentiary facts so as to enable the jury to draw a conclusion. McLeod v. Miller & Lux, 40 Nev. 447; 153 P. 566; 167 P. 27.

(B) SUBJECTS OF EXPERT TESTIMONY

22. Matters directly in issue.

Where, because they are unknown, it is impossible to apply fixed natural laws to the solution of an issue, expert testimony may be considered as well as facts established by the testimony of other witnesses as the best means available of determining the truth. Id.

XIV. WEIGHT AND SUFFICIENCY

23. Positive and negative evidence.

The testimony of one claiming a mechanic's lien for work performed upon a building that he worked on the building, that at the time he looked for a notice signed by the owner that he would not be responsible for the repairs, and that there was no such notice at any time while he was doing the work is not negative testimony such as may be disregarded in the face of positive testimony that the notice was posted. Gaston v. Avansino, 39 Nev. 128; 154 P. 85.

24. Circumstantial evidence.

When circumstantial evidence is relied on to prove a fact, the circumstances must be proved and not themselves presumed. Horgan v. Indart, 41 Nev. 228; 168 P. 953.

25. Credibility of witnesses.

Physical facts will control testimony. Carey v. Clark, 40 Nev. 151; 161 P. 713.

Undisputed physical facts, which necessarily point to but one conclusion, cannot be overcome by contradictory oral testimony. Weck v. Reno Traction Co., 38 Nev. 285; 149 P. 65.

26. Inferences from evidence.

Though intent is a matter of fact that ordinarily may be testified to by the person whose intent is in question, if the reason for the motive is equivocal, it is not conclusive as against presumptions and inferences equally as credible. Moore v. Rochester W. M. Co., 42 Nev. 164; 174 P. 1017.

27. Degree of proof.

To maintain an affirmative defense it must be established by a preponderance of the evidence. Gault v. Grose, 39 Nev. 274; 155 P. 1098.

EXCEPTIONS, BILL OF

- I. NATURE, FORM AND CONTENTS.
 1. Scope and contents of bill.
 2. Form and arrangement of bill.
- II. SETTLEMENT, SIGNING, AND FILING.
 3. Settlement—Statutes.
 4. Allowance and settlement by judge.
 5. Proceedings to establish exceptions.

I. NATURE, FORM AND CONTENTS

1. Scope and contents of bill.
The exceptions which may be contained in a bill of exceptions under Comp. Laws, 3860, authorizing the taking of a bill of exceptions to the rulings on testimony or points of law, are governed by section 3285, limiting the exceptions which may be included in a bill of exceptions to the objections as to matters of law taken before verdict or the decision, and a bill of exceptions based on an order of a referee denying a motion to set aside his conclusions of law, and the specifications of error relating thereto, made two or three weeks after the filing of his decision and order directing judgment and in the absence of and without service on or notice to the adverse party, cannot be considered. Western Engineering and Construction Co. v. Nevada Amusement Co., 33 Nev. 203; 110 P. 1129.

2. Form and arrangement of bill.

Though improperly labeled a memorandum of exceptions, an instrument is a bill of exceptions on which appeal may be taken, if properly settled as such. Ward v. Silver Peak, 37 Nev. 470; 143 P. 119.

II. SETTLEMENT, SIGNING, AND FILING

3. Settlement—Statutes.

Under the statutes relating to the making of records on which the rulings of the trial court may be reviewed, both parties to the litigation may participate in the making of the record, and the supreme court ought not to rely on statements that the adverse party has not had an opportunity to amend or correct. Western Engineering and Construction Co. v. Nevada Amusement Co., 33 Nev. 203; 110 P. 1129.

4. Allowance and settlement by judge.

The bill of exceptions under which, in some instances, an appeal may be taken, is to be settled by the court, and, unlike a memorandum of exceptions for motion for new trial for errors of law at the trial, need not contain a statement of counsel that in his judgment the exceptions are well taken. Ward v. Silver Peak, 37 Nev. 470; 143 P. 119.

5. Proceedings to establish exceptions.

An application to the supreme court, under the provisions of section 374 of the civil practice act (Rev. Laws, 5316), to have exceptions settled according to the facts, upon the ground that the trial judge has refused to so settle the same, to be sufficient should specifically set forth: First, the exception during the trial or proceeding to a ruling actually made; second, the facts supporting the exception; third, that such exception and the facts supporting it were in truth and in fact presented to the trial judge for settlement and allowance; fourth, the actual settlement by the trial judge, or judicial officer, of the statement; fifth, that on the settlement of the statement or bill the trial judge, or judicial officer, has failed or refused to allow the exception as stated; and, sixth, that the exception refused by the trial judge, and which the applicant seeks to prove, is material to and affects the substantial rights of the parties. Miller v. Miller, 36 Nev. 115; 134 P. 100; 136 P. 978.

If a trial judge, having had a statement or bill of exceptions presented to him, refuses to settle the same, the aggrieved party may proceed in the supreme court under section 392 of the civil practice act (Rev. Laws, 5334). Id.

An application to the supreme court to have settled certain alleged exceptions according to the fact, is premature if made before actual settlement made by the trial judge. Id.

V. STAY, QUASHING, VACATING, AND RELIEF

1. Injunction—Grounds.

An owner whose property is wrongfully seized under execution against another has, ordinarily, an adequate remedy at law for damages, except where his business and credit will be so affected as to make it difficult or impossible to estimate the injury in damages, in which case he may seek injunctive relief. Marshall v. Toohey, 38 Nev. 248; 148 P. 357.

VII. SALE

(A) MANNER, CONDUCT, VALIDITY, AND CONFIRMING OR VACATING

2. Collateral attack on sale.

(C) REDEMPTION

3. Amount required to redeem.

Where property sold at execution was bought in by the judgment creditor, the amount of the sheriff's fees which had to be paid by the creditor, together with the amount of the judgment, becomes a charge against the redemptioner. *Roberts v. XIII. LIABILITIES ON ADMINISTRATION BOND.

12. Nature and extent.

II. APPOINTMENT, QUALIFICATION AND TENURE

1. Jurisdiction of courts—Existence of assets.

Where the plaintiff, in an action to recover damages for the wrongful expulsion from a train, who was a nonresident and had no other property in the state, died while the action was pending, his right of action was property upon which letters of administration might issue in the county in which the case was pending, even though the action might also have been instituted in the state of his residence. Forrester v. S. P. Co., 36 Nev. 247; 134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1.

2. Operation and effect of appointment.

The appointment of an administratrix cannot be attacked collaterally, in an action instituted by a decedent before his death and continued by the administratrix, where the court appointing her had jurisdiction to make the appointment. Id.

IV. COLLECTION AND MANAGEMENT OF ESTATE

(A) IN GENERAL.

3. Interest on funds of estate.

Where the estate at all times had sufficient money on deposit under certificates of deposit to pay indebtedness, but the administrator made no accounting for nearly seven years, he was chargeable with interest on the moneys, although there was a sult to establish heirship. In Re Delaney's Estate, 41 Nev. 384; 171 P. 383; L. R. A. 1918D, 1022.

Where money of an estate is held by an administrator after the time when by proper accounting and other administrative acts in conformity with the statutory requirements, he could have paid out and distributed the same by court order, he should be chargeable with interest on the money thus held. Id.

4. Expenditures.

Where an estate was administered in a judicial district consisting of two counties where sessions of the district court might occur at the judge's direction, the administrator's failure to secure an order for expenditure of moneys in assessment work on mining claims for one year would not necessarily charge him with such amount when the investment proved to be speculative and worthless. Id.

(B) REAL PROPERTY AND INTERESTS THEREIN

5. Title and authority.

Where an estate had few debts, and consisted largely of cash and four mining claims, and the administrator, without court order, paid out $1,600 for assessment work on the claims, when adjoining claims gave promise of profit, and later abandoned the claims, the venture was so speculative as to surcharge the administrator with such sums. Id.

(C) PERSONAL PROPERTY

6. Property acquired by executor or administrator.

No matter how many fraudulent acts an administrator is guilty of, he is not divested of contractual rights under a valid mortgage which he has purchased. Guisti v. Guisti, 41 Nev. 349; 171 P. 161.

VI. ALLOWANCE AND PAYMENT OF CLAIMS

(B) PRESENTATION OF ALLOWANCE

7. Time for presentation.

A claim which is to be paid at a future date, and is so contingent that it is uncertain whether or not any demand will accrue, is not such a claim as is required to be filed within three months after the date of the first publication of notice to creditors under Rev. Laws, 5964. Pruett v. Caddigan, 42 Nev. 329; 176 P. 787.

8. Distribution of estate — "Contingent claim."

The obligation of a surety on a guardian's bond, being a subsisting one, is not a "contingent claim" referred to in Rev. Laws, 6057, providing for payment into court of amount that would be payable if the whole were established as absolute. Id.

X. ACTIONS

9. Set-off and counterclaim.

Rev. Laws, 5965, providing for the support by affidavits of claims against decedents' estates, contemplates that offsets in favor of the decedent and known to the claimant be credited upon the claim. Hibbard v. Clark, 39 Nev. 230; 156 P. 447.

10. Pleading.

In a complaint on a rejected claim against a decedent's estate, the facts constituting an offset or counterclaim in favor of the estate must be alleged; the general rule of pleading that a complaint need not allege facts constituting an offset or counterclaim being inapplicable by reason of the provisions of Rev. Laws, 5965, which contemplates the credit of offsets upon such claims. Id.

Where plaintiff's rejected claim against decedent's estate admitted a set-off in favor of decedent for several loans made on the security of real estate and contracts to purchase real estate, the complaint in an action on such rejected claim was insufficient for uncertainty where it failed to specifically set out the loans made, and the property transferred and contracts assigned as security with sufficient fullness to acquaint the defendant administrator and the court therewith. Id.

XI. ACCOUNTING AND SETTLEMENT

(A) DUTY TO ACCOUNT

11. Time for accounting.

Under Rev. Laws, 5963, 5964, 5967, 6041, as to duties of an administrator, expedient administration is required, and where an estate had cash on hand to meet all indebtedness, and everything was present to facilitate a speedy discharge of the trust, but the administrator permitted the estate to drag on for nearly seven years without an accounting and without any attempt to secure an order for expenditure of money, he was guilty of a breach of his duties. In Re Delaney's Estate, 41 Nev. 384; 171 P. 383; L. R. A. 1918D, 1022.

XIII. LIABILITIES ON ADMINISTRATION BOND

12. Nature and extent.

An administrator is bound to the exercise of care and diligence, such as prudent and judicious men ordinarily bestow upon their own important affairs, and it is his duty to settle and distribute the estate with as little delay as practicable; and whenever he does what the law prohibits, or fails to exercise reasonable care and diligence in the endeavor to do what the law enjoins, he and his sureties are liable for the damage consequent upon such act or omission. Id.

EXTRADITIONII. INTERSTATE.

1. Person subject to extradition—Fugitive from justice.
2. Indictment or affidavit charging offense.
3. Warrant for arrest and delivery.
4. Examination, determination, and review of proceedings.

II. INTERSTATE

1. Person subject to extradition—Fugitive from justice.

A person who was not within the demanding state at the time the crime is alleged to have been committed, unless an accessory, is not a fugitive from justice. In Re

Kuhns, 36 Nev. 487; 137 P. 83; 50 L. R. A. (N.S.) 507.

A person, though not within a foreign state at the time he is charged in extradition papers with the commission of a crime therein, may nevertheless be a fugitive from justice of such foreign state if he was an accessory to such crime or the same was committed through his agent. Under such a state of facts he will be deemed to have had a constructive presence within such foreign state at the time of the commission of the crime. Id.

A person held upon an executive warrant may upon habeas corpus proceedings show that he is not a fugitive from justice and upon such showing is entitled to be discharged. Id.

Petitioner in habeas corpus was married in the state to which he was sought to be extradited. He was a minor and was dependent upon his father for support. After the marriage defendant and his wife separated voluntarily, the wife going back to live with her mother. When petitioner left the state he had no intention of separating from his wife, or of abandoning her. Held, that he was not a fugitive from justice within the law of extradition upon the charge of wife abandonment in the state of his marriage. In Re Roberson, 38 Nev. 326; 149 P. 182; L. R. A. 1915E, 691.

A person must be within the state at the time of the commission of the acts constituting the offense for which he is sought to be extradited in order to become a fugitive from justice. Id.

2. Indictment or affidavit charging offense.

The indictment under which petitioner was sought to be extradited to Ohio to be tried was properly entitled, and alleged that the grand jurors of H. County present that petitioner on the date stated "with force and arms 'at' the county of H. aforesaid," and thence continually to the finding of the indictment, being the father of F., a child of five years, did unlawfully neglect and refuse to provide such child with the necessary and proper home, care, etc., said petitioner being able to provide the child with a necessary proper home, etc., contrary to the form of the statute, etc., and against the peace of the state. The Ohio act of April 28, 1908 (99 Ohio Laws, p. 228), provides that the father of a child under 16, living in the state, who, being able, etc., shall neglect or refuse to provide a necessary and proper home, care, etc., shall be guilty of a felony, and that the offense shall be held to have been committed where the child may be when complaint is made, and that citizenship acquired by the father shall continue until the child has reached 16. If a child lives so long in the state. Petitioner claimed on habeas corpus that the indictment did not authorize his extradition for failure to allege the child's whereabouts at the time of neglect, or that the neglect was wilful, or the dependency or destitution of the child. Held, that the indictment was not so faulty in substance, as to prevent the execution of the writ, but sufficiently alleged for that purpose that the child was in the jurisdiction of the court finding the indictment when it was returned. Ex Parte Lewis, 34 Nev. 28; 115 P. 729.

Extradition cannot be properly granted unless the indictment against the accused contains every substantial element of the crime charged. Ex Parte Rovnianek, 41 Nev. 141; 168 P. 327.

3. Warrant for arrest and delivery.

Where a certified copy of an original information, on which extradition proceedings in the demanding state were based, was attached to the requisition, and charged petitioner with having separated himself from his wife and minor child, they being destitute and dependent wholly upon their earnings for adequate support, contrary to the statute, etc., and throughout the papers such offense was designated as "desertion," and was made a misdemeanor by the Pennsylvania act of March 13, 1903 (P. L. 26), a warrant for the arrest and return of petitioner to answer for the crime of "desertion" was not objectionable as failing to set out an offense known to the laws of the demanding state. Ex Parte Hose, 34 Nev. 87; 116 P. 417.

4. Examination, determination, and review of proceedings.

The guilt or innocence of one held under extradition as a fugitive from the justice of another state is a matter exclusively for the courts of the demanding state where the evidence is conflicting. Ex Parte La Vere, 30 Nev. 214; 156 P. 446.

2. Nature and elements—Illegality of detention after arrest.

I. CIVIL LIABILITY

(A) ACTS CONSTITUTING FALSE IMPRISONMENT AND LIABILITY THEREFOR

1. Nature and elements—Illegality of arrest.

Under Comp. Laws, 4780, providing that every one who shall wilfully and unlawfully injure any property belonging to another shall be punished, a complaint sufficiently avers ownership by another than accused, as against collateral attack in false imprisonment against a justice of the peace, where it charges the severance and removal of the property from the possession of the complaining witness; possession being prima facie evidence of ownership. Gordon v. District Court, 36 Nev. 1; 131 P. 134; 44 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1078.

Where a justice of the peace had jurisdiction a party prejudiced by his decision or acts in committing him to jail has no recourse in a civil action for damages against the justice and his sureties, even though the latter acted with malice. Id.

2. Nature and elements—Illegality of detention after arrest.

Where a justice of the peace fixed the bond of one charged with a misdemeanor at $1,000 cash, the erroneous requirement of cash bail did not deprive the justice of jurisdiction so as to render him liable for the improper order; it appearing that the accused made no offer of any sort of bail. Id.

FALSE PRETENSES

1. Acts constituting other offense.
2. Indictment and information—Requisites and sufficiency.

1. Acts constituting other offense.

General incorporation laws, sec. 73 (Rev. Laws, 1174), making it a misdemeanor for officer of any corporation to make false representations, does not affect the crime of obtaining money under false pretenses defined by Rev. Laws, 6704. In Re Crane, 40 Nev. 338; 163 P. 246.

2. Indictment and information—Requisites and sufficiency.

Indictment charging the president of an insurance corporation with obtaining money by selling stock under false pretenses stated a felony under Rev. Laws, 6704, defining crime of obtaining money under false pretenses, and not a misdemeanor, under section 1174, prohibiting officer of any corporation from making false representations, the fact that the accused received the money as president being immaterial. Id.

In view of the constitution (art. 5, sec. 14) providing that the governor, justices of the supreme court, and attorney-general, or a majority of them, of whom the governor shall be one, may remit fines and forfeitures, commute punishments, and grant pardons, section 13, providing that the governor can suspend the collection of fines and forfeitures and grant reprieves for not exceeding sixty days dating from the time of conviction, authorizes the governor to suspend the collection of fines for only sixty days, and not indefinitely, as this would create a conflict between the two sections. Ex Parte Shelor, 33 Nev. 361; 111 P. 291.

In an action to recover damages for forcible entry, plaintiff must prove his title or right to possession of the property where the pleadings raise that issue. Glock v. Elges, 39 Nev. 415; 159 P. 629.

2. Damages.

Rev. Laws, 5508, providing that in forcible entry cases, judgment "may" be entered for treble the actual damages, permits, but does not require, such penalty to be imposed. Id.

3. Review—Appeal and trial de novo.

The supreme court will not modify a judgment to allow treble damages in a forcible entry case, under Rev. Laws, 5508, where the facts are not before it. Id.

4. Costs.

Rev. Laws, 5377, allowing plaintiff costs upon a favorable judgment in an action involving the title or possession of real estate, applies to recovery of damages for forcible entry, where plaintiff's title or right of possession was disputed. Id.

GRAND JURY

1. Number of jurors.
2. Who may serve—"Qualified electors."
3. Selection of jurors.
4. Competency of jurors.
5. Challenge to panel.
6. Waiver of objections to jurors.
7. Powers and duties—Public officers and institutions.
8. Conduct of proceedings.

1. Number of jurors.

Twelve qualified grand jurors are a legal body, and may return an indictment. State v. Casey, 34 Nev. 154; 117 P. 5.

That the grand jury was selected from twenty-three instead of twenty-four persons is not ground for challenge. State v. Bachman, 41 Nev. 197; 168 P. 733.

2. Who may serve—"Qualified electors."

Under Const. art. 1, sec. 8, art. 2, sec. 1, as amended in 1877, art. 4, sec. 27, Rev. Laws, 4929, 4931, 4937, women, being "qualified electors," may serve on the grand jury. Parus v. District Court, 42 Nev. 229; 174 P. 706.

3. Selection of jurors.

The fact that a county commissioner who was blind assisted in selecting the members of the grand jury is not a ground for setting aside an indictment. As with officers, the presumption is that he did his duty, and, in the absence of any showing to the contrary, it must be assumed that the clerk and judge in drawing and certifying to the grand jury did theirs. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 85; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

Where in drawing, summoning, and impaneling the grand jury there is a substantial compliance with Rev. Laws, 4931, on the part of the designated officers, and where this compliance indicates freedom from bias or prejudice, an indictment will not be set aside for any technical defect. Parus v. District Court, 42 Nev. 229; 174 P. 706.

4. Competency of jurors.

One who bases an opinion as to a crime merely upon rumors and current publications is not disqualified from serving on grand jury, returning an indictment, as to such crime, under Rev. Laws, 7005, subd. 6. Id.

Rev. Laws, 7005, provides that a grand juror may be disqualified when a state of mind exists on his part with reference to the case, or to either party, which will prevent him from acting without prejudice to the rights of the challenging party, but that no person is disqualified as a grand juror by reason of having formed or expressed an opinion on the matter submitted, founded on public rumor, statements in the public journals, or common notoriety, provided that it appears by his oath or otherwise that he will, notwithstanding such opinion, act impartially on the matters submitted to him. Held, that a grand juror, who had formed a belief or opinion from statements made to him that defendants were keeping a gambling place, was not disqualified where he further testified that his opinion was not such as would justify him in making a charge against accused. State v. Williams, 35 Nev. 276; 129 P. 317.

5. Challenge to panel.

On resubmission of an indictment to the grand jury, accused was "held to answer" within Rev. Laws, 7003, giving a person so held the right to challenge the panel or an individual grand juror. In view of section 7003, providing for retention of custody of accused on resubmission. State v. Bachman, 41 Nev. 197; 168 P. 733.

Accused's right to challenge the panel or any individual grand juror was a substantial right. Id.

6. Waiver of objections to jurors.

Under Rev. Laws, 7005, permitting an individual grand juror to be challenged on the ground that he is an alien, and section 7010 providing that an accused can take advantage of any objection to the panel or to an individual grand juror "in no other mode than by challenge," an accused waived his right to object that one of the jurors was a resident of another state by waiting until time for pleading to the indictment, more than two weeks after the impaneling of the grand jury, when opportunity was given his counsel to challenge, though accused was not then present. McComb v. District Court, 36 Nev. 417; 136 P. 563.

Accused cannot complain of the court's refusal to consider the challenges before the grand jury was sworn, where he failed to take advantage of the ruling of the court that all points that could be raised then might be raised at the proper stage of the proceedings. In view of Rev. Laws, 7000, providing that indictments may be set aside on motion for any of the grounds which would have been good as challenges either to the panel or to any individual grand juror. State v. Bachman, 41 Nev. 197; 168 P. 733.

One held to answer to the grand jury was bound to know the provisions of the code relating to the time challenges must be interposed to the grand jury. McComb v. District Court, 36 Nev. 417; 136 P. 563.

7. Powers and duties—Public officers and institutions.

The grand jury being without statutory authority to hire an accountant to audit the books of county officers, the district judge, though required by Rev. Laws, 4924, to charge grand juries as to their duties, part of which section 7028 provides shall be an inquiry into the wilful and corrupt misconduct of public officers, has no inherent authority to engage a private accountant to examine and audit the books of all county officers; it not appearing that there was any reasonable ground to believe that such officers were guilty of misconduct. Stone v. Bell, 35 Nev. 240; 129 P. 458.

Rev. Laws, 7028 and 7029, respectively, require the grand jury to inquire into the wilful and corrupt misconduct of public officers, and provide that they may examine all public records, while section 1508 imposes on the board of county commissioners the duty of auditing the accounts of all officers. Sections 4148 and 4153 provide for the appointment of a state auditor who shall at the direction of the governor examine the books and accounts of all county officials. Held that, there being a presumption that public officers performed the duties required of them by law, the grand jury cannot hire an accountant to examine the books of county officials; it being their duty, in case there is reason to believe that the books of the county should be audited, to request either the board of county commissioners or the governor to provide for such audit. Id.

8. Conduct of proceedings.

Bringing new indictments after the petitioners have been discharged on habeas corpus, and adding or omitting words in the charging part which cannot be supported by any evidence, does not bring the accused within the jurisdiction of the court. If evidence be heard as directed by the statute and the undisputed facts show that petitioners were not within the jurisdiction of the court and committed no act which the legislature has made punishable. Alleging that they received deposits when the evidence is clear that they were not in the county, nor at the bank, does not give the court jurisdiction to try them, when the statute provides no penalty for their acting as directors and officers of the bank, even if it was insolvent, and when the habeas corpus act directs that testimony be heard and petitioners discharged if it is sought to hold them in a case not provided by law. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 84; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

It is the commission of an offense within the county which gives the grand jury authority to indict. Under Rev. Laws, 7020, "the grand jury must inquire into all public offenses committed and triable in the jurisdiction of the court." Under sections 7012 and 7013 the foreman and members of the grand jury are required to take an oath to present all offenses "committed and triable within this county of which you shall have or can obtain legal evidence"; and under section 7026, indictment should be found "when all the evidence * * * taken together is such as * * * would, if unexplained or uncontradicted, warrant a conviction by the trial jury." Under these statutory provisions the grand jury has not power to indict without evidence of commission of an act constituting a criminal offense in the county, which would sustain a conviction by a trial jury. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 82; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

IV. SALES AND CONVEYANCES UNDER ORDER OF COURT

1. Mortgage.

Where guardian of an infant gave a mortgage upon the common property of the infant and the guardian, in order to pay off a mortgage about to be foreclosed, such mortgage was not valid; there being at the time no statute conferring on the court the power to allow the guardian to execute such mortgage. Laffranchini v. Clark, 39 Nev. 48; 153 P. 250.

By a divorce decree and also by agreement of the parties, community property of husband and wife—a house and lot—was "set aside for the use, support, maintenance, and education of the minor children." Held, that the purposes of the trust included any disposition necessary for the support and education of the children, and hence the execution of a mortgage by the guardian for $3,000 for the purpose of paying off a prior mortgage and saving the property as a home for the children was within the purposes of the trust and authorized. *Schmitt v. 14. Determination of particular issues or questions—Custody of infants.

15. Determination of particular issues or questions—Arrest and commitment on criminal charges before indictment.
16. Determination of particular issues or questions—Extradition.

I. NATURE AND GROUNDS OF REMEDY

1. Existence of remedy by appeal or writ of error.

Defendant, convicted of obtaining money under false pretenses, having had objections to indictment overruled, was protected by his remedy of appeal, and habeas corpus for his discharge would not lie. In Re Crane, 40 Nev. 338; 163 P. 246.

A writ of habeas corpus cannot be used to perform the functions of an appeal or writ of error, but can only review questions going to the jurisdiction of the court to enter the particular judgment, and not as to whether the court erred in the exercise of such jurisdiction. Ex Parte Davis, 33 Nev. 309; 110 P. 1131.

The writ of habeas corpus is not designed to interfere with the jurisdiction of any court, nor with the functions of committing magistrates or trial judges in determining as to the guilt of persons charged against whom there is evidence indicating that they have broken the law, nor is it designed to take the place of an appeal. It will seldom issue, but under the constitutional provisions guaranteeing liberty to the citizens and giving the right to the writ, it ought to issue in every case for the discharge of persons accused when it is clear and undisputed that the acts for which they are held are not criminal. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 82; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

2. Nature of restraint or detention—Voluntary surrender or remaining in custody.

A petitioner for habeas corpus could surrender himself to a sheriff of a county of the state to protect himself from being summarily removed from the state on the requisition of the governor of another state by an agent of such other state without opportunity to appeal to the courts for review of the matters of law pertaining to the extradition, the agent of the other state to petitioner's knowledge having the intent so to remove him; therefore such petitioner was properly in the custody of the sheriff. In Re Overfield, 39 Nev. 30; 152 P. 568.

3. Proceedings reviewable—Arrest and commitment on criminal charges.

The indictment is strong presumptive evidence of the truth of the allegations, but it is not conclusive against the objection that the court is without jurisdiction; and the court may consider the evidence and the real facts, the burden of showing which, clearly, in order to overcome the indictment, is upon the petitioners. Unless it appears that no evidence for the consideration of the trial jury can be supplied, indicating that the accused committed the crimes for which they are charged, or if the state can produce any evidence which would support the material allegations of the indictments and sustain a conviction, the indictments would be conclusive to the extent of requiring remanding to custody of the accused for trial, no matter how much evidence the accused may have tending to prove innocence. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 81; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

Under the clear provisions of the habeas corpus act (Rev. Laws, 6239, 6241, 6242, 6243, 6245), directing that the judge before whom a writ of habeas corpus is returned, shall "proceed to hear and examine the return, and such other matters as may be properly submitted," and "in a summary way to hear such allegations and proof as may be produced against such imprisonment or detention, or in favor of the same, and to dispose of such parties as the justice of the case may require"; and that "such judge shall have full power and authority to require and compel the attendance of witnesses by process of subpoena and attachment, and to do and perform all other acts and things necessary to a full and fair hearing and determination of the case," and "to discharge such party if no legal cause be shown"; that "If it appears on the return of the writ that the prisoner is in custody by virtue of process from any court * * *, or judge or officer thereof, such prisoner may be discharged, * * * first, when the jurisdiction of such court or officer has been exceeded * * * ; fourth, when the process, though proper in form, has been issued in a case not allowed by law * * * ; sixth, where a party has been committed on a criminal charge without reasonable or probable cause," the warrant of a committing magistrate and the bench warrant under an indictment are not final judgments, nor conclusive, and the judge or court hearing an application for a writ of habeas corpus may take or hear evidence against the warrants and indictment, and may discharge the accused when the magistrate, grand jury or court have exceeded their jurisdiction, when the process has been issued in a case not allowed by law, or when the party has been committed on a criminal charge without reasonable or probable cause. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 80; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

The provision in Rev. Laws, 6244, that it shall be the duty of the "judge to remand the party if it shall appear that he is detained in custody by virtue of a final judgment or decree of any competent court of criminal jurisdiction," implies that he may be discharged in other cases if it appears from the evidence that there is no ground for detaining him. The warrant of the committing magistrate and the bench warrants issued under the indictment are not final judgments, nor conclusive under the provisions of the habeas corpus act. Id.

Under the provisions of the habeas corpus act, persons held under an indictment and bench warrant issued under it, are entitled to be released when it is undisputed and clearly appears that they have committed no act which the law declares to be criminal, or if they are held in a case not allowed by law. Id.

It is a well-recognized rule that any person charged with felony and bound over by a committing magistrate will be discharged when there is no probable cause for believing that he is guilty of any offense. Id.

Acts which the law declares to be criminal are the only ones which constitute crime, or for which a criminal court has jurisdiction to try an accused person. Prosecuting officers and law-abiding citizens cannot properly demand the conviction or prosecution of persons for the commission of other acts. If they could, no citizen, not even the law-abiding, would be safe. The district court is without original jurisdiction of misdemeanors triable only in the justice's court, and the justice's court is without jurisdiction to try felonies which are triable only in the district court, and both are without jurisdiction to try an accused person for acts which are neither felonies nor misdemeanors, and which do not constitute crime. When a court attempts to punish for the commission of acts which are not criminal by law it goes beyond its jurisdiction into the domain of legislation, which is committed exclusively to another department of government. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 82; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

4. Grounds for relief—Want of jurisdiction.

Under Rev. Laws, 4926, which provides that when any justice of the peace, through ill health or other cause, is prevented from discharging his duties, he may invite another justice of the same county to attend to such duties, where a justice deemed himself disqualified to try a criminal case and called in another justice, and all parties assumed the request was lawfully made, the latter justice was at least a de facto officer, rendering a judgment of conviction valid and not subject to collateral attack on habeas corpus. Ex Parte Simmons, 34 Nev. 493; 125 P. 697.

Where petitioner was arrested for violating the initiative prohibition act, and the district attorney elected to have the justice hold a preliminary hearing to bind over, on an original application for writ of habeas corpus to the supreme court, such court will not pass upon the objection that the proceedings were void as conferring upon the district court jurisdiction of a misdemeanor until a court without jurisdiction proceeds to exercise it, since until such time the question is moot. Ex Parte Ming, 42 Nev. 472; 181 P. 319.

5. Grounds for relief—Excess of jurisdiction.

Where the evidence without conflict establishes that the defendant belongs to a class not within a penal statute, habeas corpus is available to bring up for determination the court's jurisdiction to render judgment of conviction and to obtain defendant's discharge. Ex Parte Davis, 33 Nev. 309; 110 P. 1131.

6. Grounds for relief—Invalidity of proceedings.

The court is without jurisdiction to hold for trial and convict the accused under the provision of an act which has been repealed, and when held for an act which is no longer criminal they are entitled to be discharged upon habeas corpus. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 85; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

Although no expense, however great, ought to prevent the trial of persons properly charged, against whom there is evidence to sustain a conviction, if it is clear that there is no evidence to sustain a conviction for any offense within the jurisdiction of the court, the accused ought to be discharged before trial to prevent injustice, hardship and expense to them and to the county. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 84; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

7. Grounds for relief—Errors and irregularities.

The charge of a complaint that accused "did keep and manage the Big Meadow Hotel, a house of public resort, in a disorderly manner," is a sufficient charge, at least against collateral attack of the judgment by habeas corpus, of the offense denounced by Comp. Laws, 4920, of keeping an "inn" in a disorderly manner, as it must be assumed that a "hotel" is an "inn." Ex Parte Breckenridge, 34 Nev. 275; 118 P. 687; Ann. Cas. 1914B, 871.

Though a verdict may be so erroneous as to warrant reversal without being entirely void, it will not authorize discharge on habeas corpus of one sentenced thereunder. Ex Parte Booth, 39 Nev. 183; 154 P. 933; L. R. A. 1916F, 900.

8. Grounds for relief—Invalidity of statute or ordinance.

In a proceeding in habeas corpus where petitioner seeks to be discharged from arrest on an executive warrant issued by the governor of this state upon extradition papers from the governor of a sister state, the fact that petitioner has been previously discharged by a district court from arrest based upon a mere copy of an alleged indictment found in a foreign state, which copy through clerical error shows that the offense charged is barred by the state of limitations, is of no avail to the petitioner when the extradition papers do not contain such clerical error, but properly charge a public offense committed within the demanding state. In Re Kuhns, 36 Nev. 487; 137 P. 83; 50 L. R. A. (N.S.) 507.

II. JURISDICTION, PROCEEDINGS, AND RELIEF

9. Hearing on petition.

In proceedings in habeas corpus disputed questions of fact will not be regarded as controlling. Id.

10. Evidence.

On appeal or habeas corpus the supreme court must assume that the magistrate, when committing one accused of crime on preliminary examination, gave credence to any testimony supporting his decision. In Re Oxley and Mulvaney, 38 Nev. 380; 149 P. 992.

In habeas corpus for the custody of a minor child held under an agreement by respondents, who were not his parents, with his father, evidence held to show that it is for the benefit of the minor to enforce the agreement. In Re Swall, 36 Nev. 171; 134 P. 96; Ann. Cas. 1915B, 1015.

On the application for habeas corpus by persons held on the charge of burglary, evidence by the sole witness against them held not sufficient to show that he was an accomplice. In Re Bowman and Best, 38 Nev. 484; 151 P. 517.

Upon a petition for discharge from arrest on a warrant of extradition, evidence as to petitioner's identity with the person wanted in another state held to preponderate in favor of petitioner, and to require his discharge. Ex Parte Spencer, 34 Nev. 240; 117 P. 1.

On habeas corpus to secure the release of one convicted of a misdemeanor in district court on appeal from justice court, it will be presumed that the proceedings in the district court were in every way regular until the contrary is made affirmatively to appear. Ex Parte Murray, 30 Nev. 351; 157 P. 647.

Where alleged deserted wife by deposition admitted receipt of moneys from husband after date of the desertion and failure to support alleged in the indictment, returned in a foreign state, the husband was entitled to discharge, on writ of habeas corpus, from detention for extradition, since there was no crime as alleged, and he could not be a "fugitive from justice." Ex Parte Twyeffort, 42 Nev. 259; 174 P. 431.

The voluntary statement of the petitioner standing in the record uncontradicted, together with other evidence tending to connect him with the death of deceased, held sufficient to warrant the court in denying bail, within Const. art. 1, sec. 7, denying bail in capital cases when the proof is evident or the presumption great. Ex Parte Nagel, 41 Nev. 86; 167 P. 689.

11. Dismissal on return—Legal custody.

Though a habeas corpus proceeding is civil in nature, and civil actions are subject to voluntary dismissal, and petitioner for a writ of habeas corpus can dismiss the controversy, he cannot dismiss the proceeding without an order of the court in which the proceeding is pending in regard to their custody or bail. In Re Smith, 35 Nev. 30; 126 P. 679.

12. Hearing on writ and return.

After an order in a habeas corpus proceeding discharging the prisoner, a rehearing will not be granted, since this would suspend the former order and result in the rearrest of the prisoner, contrary to the express provisions of the habeas corpus act, sec. 29 (Rev. Laws, 6254). Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 86; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

13. Scope of inquiry and powers of court.

In hearing an application for habeas corpus seeking the petitioner's release from the custody of an agent of another state requisitioning the petitioner as a criminal, the court will go behind the executive warrant of such other state and inquire into the sufficiency of the papers constituting the requisition. In Re Overfield, 30 Nev. 30; 152 P. 568.

A person sought to be extradited may show upon a proceeding in habeas corpus that he is not a fugitive from justice. In Re Roberson, 38 Nev. 326; 149 P. 182; L. R. A. 1915E, 691.

The presumption that the allegations of an indictment and of a second indictment, are correct, in the absence of any testimony, may be overcome by clear proof on the part of the accused, uncontradicted by the state, indicating that there is not evidence to sustain the material allegations. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 84; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

Where by habeas corpus a petitioner seeks release from an executive warrant issued upon the requisition for extradition of the governor of a demanding state, on the ground that he is not a fugitive from justice of the demanding state, the court will inquire into the existence of the facts determinative of that issue. Ex Parte La Vere, 30 Nev. 214; 156 P. 446.

14. Determination of particular issues or questions—Custody of infants.

An oral agreement entered into by the father of a minor in California, giving its custody to a third person, is valid and binding on the mother, where the parents had separated by agreement; the custody of the minor having been given to the father. In Re Swall, 36 Nev. 171; 134 P. 96; Ann. Cas. 1915B, 1015.

An oral agreement whereby the father of a minor child surrendered its custody to a third person is not void as against public policy, but will be enforced for the benefit of the minor. Id.

A writ of habeas corpus for the custody of a minor child held by persons other than his parents will not be denied because it is not held by actual force, but remains with the respondents because of natural inclination. Id.

15. Determination of particular issues or questions—Arrest and commitment on criminal charges before indictment.

When on the hearing of the application for writ of habeas corpus the prosecuting witness testifies that he does not know that certain of the petitioners were in Eureka County, and there is positive evidence on their behalf, uncontradicted, that they were not there, and the attorney for the state declined to make any admission, a failure to deny or offer any testimony against the evidence submitted by the petitioners, or to claim that the state could produce any contrary evidence upon a trial, is equivalent to an admission. In view of this, and other undisputed evidence that the petitioners committed no act which is made criminal and punishable in Eureka County, they are entitled to be restored to liberty under the constitutional right to the writ of habeas corpus. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 83; 128 P. 855; 129 P. 308.

In a habeas corpus proceeding it is not the province of the supreme court to determine to what extent the direct evidence of the witness given before the examining magistrate was weakened or modified by the cross-examination, since that was the province of the examining magistrate. Ex Parte Molino, 39 Nev. 360; 157 P. 1012.

16. Determination of particular issues or questions—Extradition.

Where in habeas corpus proceedings brought by one held for extradition as a fugitive from the justice of another state the evidence, including that of the complaining witness, shows conclusively that the crime charged could not have been committed, and hence that petitioner could not have been a fugitive from justice, the petitioner will be discharged. Ex Parte La Vere, 39 Nev. 214; 156 P. 446.

I. NATURE, ACQUISITION, AND EXTENT

(A) NATURE, CREATION, AND DURATION OF ESTATE OR RIGHT

1. Nature of estate or right.

If a declaration of homestead is filed on community property by either spouse, the homestead vests in the survivor on the death of either, and the court must set aside the homestead in community property, even though it was not declared during the life of a deceased spouse; the property being exempt from debts of the surviving spouse or sale under execution. In Re Cook's Estate, 34 Nev. 217; 117 P. 27.

The homestead right is purely statutory, not existing at common law. Id.

(C) ACQUISITION AND ESTABLISHMENT

2. Declaration or certificate—Necessity.

Occupancy by the family is prima facie evidence to third parties of the homestead nature of the premises. First Nat. Bank v. Meyers, 40 Nev. 284; 150 P. 308; 161 P. 920.

Const. art. 4, sec. 30, declares that a homestead as provided by law shall be exempt from forced sale, and shall not be alienated without the joint consent of the husband and wife, and that laws shall be enacted providing for the recording of such homestead. Stats. 1864-65, c. 72, provides that a selected homestead shall be exempt from forced sale, and that the selection shall be made by recording intention in writing. Amending act, Stats. 1897, c. 20, provides that no deed or mortgage of a homestead, whether a declaration has been filed or not, shall be valid, unless both the husband and wife executed and acknowledged the same. Held, that although a homestead was not registered as required by law, the husband's sole conveyance or incumbrance of it did not affect the wife's right in the homestead, which could not be alienated unless the instrument was executed and given by both. Id.

II. TRANSFER OR INCUMBRANCE

3. Joinder of husband and wife in deed or mortgage.

Const. art. 4, sec. 30, declares that a homestead shall be exempt from forced sale and shall not be alienated without the joint consent of the husband and wife. Stats. 1865, c. 72, sec. 1, passed pursuant to the constitution, provides that a homestead selected by the husband and wife shall be exempt from forced sale, and that the selection shall be made by the recordation of a declaration of intent. Const. art. 4, sec. 31, declares that all property of the wife owned before marriage shall be her separate property. The act of 1873, passed pursuant to the constitution, provides in section 1 (Rev. Laws, 2155) that all property of the wife owned before marriage and acquired thereafter by gift, bequest, devise, or descent is her separate property, and that property similarly acquired by the husband should be his separate property, while section 2 (section 2156) declares that all other property acquired during the marriage shall be the community property. Section 6, as amended in 1897 (section 2160), declares that the husband has entire control over the community property, with absolute power of disposition, but that no deed of conveyance or mortgage of a homestead, regardless of whether a declaration has been filed or not, shall be valid for any purpose, unless both the husband and wife execute and acknowledge it. Held, that though the homestead was not registered as required by law, the husband's sole conveyance or incumbrance of it cannot pass title. Nat. Bank v. Meyers, 39 Nev. 235; 150 P. 308.

III. RIGHTS OF SURVIVING HUSBAND, WIFE, CHILDREN, OR HEIRS

4. Continuance or transmission of estate or right.

If a declaration of homestead is filed on community property by either spouse, the homestead vests in the survivor on the death of either, and the court must set aside the homestead in community property, even though it was not declared during the life of a deceased spouse; the property being exempt from debts of the surviving spouse or sale under execution. In Re Cook's Estate, 34 Nev. 217; 117 P. 27.

Stats. 1861, c. 55, regulating the settlement of estates, provided in section 123 for the setting aside of the homestead to the widow and minor children, and section 126 provided that if there was no law in force exempting property from execution certain property shall be set aside, including the homestead, as defined in that section. The homestead act of 1865 (Stats. 1864-1865, c. 72), sec. 1, as amended in 1879 (Stats. 1879, c. 131; Comp. Laws, 550), provided that if property declared a homestead be separate property both must join in the declaration, and if it remain separate property until the death of one spouse, homestead rights therein shall cease, and it shall belong to the party or his heirs to whom it belonged when filed upon; and section 4 (Stats. 1879, c. 131; Comp. Laws, 553) provided that no exemption to the surviving spouse should be allowed, where the homestead declaration had been filed upon the separate property of either spouse, as provided in section 1. The act of 1897, sec. 101 (Stats. 1897, c. 106; Comp. Laws, 2886), authorizes the court, upon the return of the inventory, to set apart for use of decedent's family the homestead as designated by the general homestead law "now in force," whether designated as required by said law or not; and further provides that if the property declared upon be separate property both spouses must join in the declaration, and if it remain separate property until the death of one of them the homestead rights shall cease, and it shall belong to the party to whom it belonged when filed upon. Section 126 of the act of 1861 was omitted from the act of 1897, and section 123, corresponding to section 101 of the latter act, was modified. Held, under section 101, construed with the other statutes, that a widow cannot have set apart to her as a homestead land which was her husband's separate property at his death, and had not been declared on as a homestead; there being other heirs. Id.

II. MURDER

1. Malice.

While malice and passion may coexist, and a homicide be the result of both, express malice and irresistible passion, as defined in the statute, cannot coexist; premeditation and deliberation being in express malice, and wanting in irresistible passion. State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 413; 150 P. 764.

An instruction was given reading: "And if the jury should find from the evidence the existence of facts and circumstances establishing beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant had such a reckless disregard of human life as necessarily includes a formed design against the life of Bessie Andy, the killing, if it amounts to murder, would be on express malice, and consequently would be murder of the first degree." Held, erroneous where the facts in evidence showing the manner of the killing are not such of themselves as to establish necessarily a formed design, so as to preclude every other consideration except that of first-degree murder. State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 66; 145 P. 919; 150 P. 764.

An instruction which is the equivalent of saying to the jury: "Nor will the fact that the killing was done without due deliberation, if proven so to have been done, be sufficient to reduce the degree of the offense if the killing was done with deliberate intention," is confusing, contradictory, and erroneous. State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 65; 145 P. 919; 150 P. 764.

An instruction was given defining "irresistible passion" as meaning "that at the time of the act the reason is disturbed or obscured by passion to an extent which might render ordinary men of fair average disposition liable to act rashly, or without due deliberation or reflection, and from passion rather than judgment," followed with the statement: "Nor will irresistible passion, if proved to have existed, be sufficient to reduce the degree of the offense where the killing was done with express malice, as heretofore defined; under our statute express malice necessarily renders any murder murder of the first degree," express malice having previously been defined in the language of the statute as "that deliberate intention unlawfully to take away the life of a fellow creature which is manifested by external circumstances capable of proof"; held, error, for the reason that the instruction assumes that "irresistible passion" and "express malice" could have coexisted in the case. Id.

An instruction erroneously assuming that irresistible passion and express malice may coexist, and, if found to coexist, the element of express malice renders the killing murder in the first degree, is confusing, contradictory, erroneous and prejudicial. Id.

Implied malice and sudden passion may coexist, in which case the offense is not reduced to the grade of manslaughter, but is murder of the first or second degree, depending upon the degree of passion. State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 66; 145 P. 919; 150 P. 764.

If irresistible passion is proven to have existed, the homicide could not have been committed with express malice, and would not constitute murder of the first degree. Id.

Where it appears from the evidence to the satisfaction of the jury that there are sufficient facts to cause in the defendant a heat of passion insufficient to reduce the crime to manslaughter, but sufficient to prevent the killing from being with that deliberate premeditation required to constitute murder in the first degree, it would be the duty of the jury to bring in a verdict of murder in the second degree. Id.

2. Homicide in commission or intent to commit other offense.

A killing committed in the perpetration of a robbery is presumed to have been wilful, deliberate and premeditated. State v. Mangana, 33 Nev. 511; 112 P. 693.

Section 17 of the crimes and punishments act (Comp. Laws, 4672), making all murder by poison, lying in wait, or torture, or any other kind of wilful, deliberate, and premeditated killing, or committed in the perpetration or attempt to perpetrate any arson, rape, robbery, or burglary, murder in the first degree, does not create separate statutory homicides, but the killing of a human being in either one of the methods described is "murder in the first degree," and a felony and a homicide committed in perpetrating or attempting to perpetrate a felony constitute together the one crime of murder in the first degree. Id.

3. Degrees.

Deliberation under Rev. Laws, 6384, and Stats. 1915, c. 48, does not of itself constitute an element of either degree of murder.

but simply enters into consideration in determining whether the crime was committed with or without express malice. State v. Milosovich, 42 Nev. 264; 175 P. 139.

4. Persons liable.

All persons who are involved in the conspiracy to rob are guilty of murder, if murder is committed by one of the coconspirators in the perpetration of the crime of robbery. State v. Beck, 42 Nev. 209; 174 P. 714.

V. EXCUSABLE OR JUSTIFIABLE HOMICIDE

5. Self-defense—Aggression or provocation of attack.

If one makes an attack upon another for the purpose of committing a felony and wreaking his malice upon the person attacked, and the person so attacked makes a counter attack and is slain, the plea of self-defense is not available; but, where the original attack by accused was not with felonious intent, he may plead self-defense. State v. Huber, 38 Nev. 253; 148 P. 562.

6. Self-defense—Apprehension of danger.

One attacked by another has the right to use his own judgment in determining what is necessary to repel the attack, and his right to kill his assailant in self-defense cannot be limited by what may appear to the jury to have been absolutely necessary. State v. Scott, 37 Nev. 412; 142 P. 1053.

7. Self-defense—Duty to retreat.

Where one, without voluntarily seeking, provoking, inviting, or willingly engaging in a difficulty, is attacked by an assailant, and it is necessary for him to kill the assailant to protect his own life, he need not flee for safety, but may stand his ground and kill the assailant. State v. Grimmett, 33 Nev. 531; 112 P. 273.

VI. INDICTMENT AND INFORMATION

8. Assault with intent to kill.

Rev. Laws, 6412, defines an assault as an unlawful attempt, coupled with the present ability, to commit a violent injury. Section 7050 provides that the indictment must contain a statement of the acts constituting the offense, in ordinary language so that a person of common understanding would know what was intended. Held, that an information, alleging that accused on a certain day, "he having the ability then and there so to do, did wilfully, unlawfully, and feloniously" assault another, sufficiently alleged present ability. State v. MacKinnon, 41 Nev. 182; 168 P. 330.

9. Issues, proof, and variance.

Under section 17 of the crimes and punishments act (Comp. Laws, 4672), making all murder by poison, lying in wait, or torture, or any other kind of wilful, deliberate and premeditated killing, or that committed in the perpetration or attempt to perpetrate any robbery or other enumerated felony, murder in the first degree, and, under an indictment charging a killing with malice aforethought, accused may be convicted of either wilful, deliberate, and premeditated killing, or of a killing committed in the perpetration of a robbery, whether wilful, deliberate, and premeditated or not; but if the indictment should allege that a killing was committed in the perpetration of a robbery, and the evidence should indicate that the killing was premeditated, but not in the perpetration of robbery, the variance would be fatal. State v. Mangana, 33 Nev. 511; 112 P. 693.

An indictment for murder committed in the perpetration of a robbery may be charged in the same manner as ordinary murders are charged, and it need not be alleged that the murder was committed in the perpetration of a robbery in order to admit testimony showing that a robbery was committed in addition to the killing. Id.

VII. EVIDENCE

(A) PRESUMPTIONS AND BURDEN OF PROOF

10. Intent.

In a prosecution for assault with intent to kill, the specific intent being an element of the offense, no presumption of law can arise which will decide that question; hence a charge that, if accused assaulted another with a deadly weapon in a manner calculated to produce death, the law presumes such was his intention, is erroneous. State v. Pappas, 39 Nev. 40; 152 P. 571.

(B) ADMISSIBILITY

11. Character and habits of parties.

The character or reputation of the deceased in homicide cases is to be proven rather by evidence of general reputation of the deceased in the community in which he lived than by particular acts or instances which were not a part of the res gestae, nor connected therewith. State v. Sella, 41 Nev. 113; 168 P. 278.

12. Circumstances preceding act.

In a prosecution for murder, exclusion of evidence tending to show that deceased had the reputation of being of a violent, turbulent, and dangerous disposition was erroneous, where defendant had made no assault upon deceased, and where consequently the plea of self-defense was available. State v. Huber, 38 Nev. 253; 148 P. 562.

13. Means or instrument used.

In a prosecution for killing by stabbing, evidence that defendant had had in his possession a knife similar to the one found in close proximity to the scene of the stabbing was admissible; objection thereto going rather to its weight than its admissibility. State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 65; 145 P. 919; 150 P. 764.

14. Subsequent incriminating or exculpatory circumstances.

A statement by accused a very short time after the stabbing, which he was seen to do, that he had no knife and had not cut decedent, was admissible as showing a consciousness of guilt. State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 64; 145 P. 919; 150 P. 764.

15. Self-defense—Declarations of deceased.

In a prosecution for homicide, where the defendant, who was the only witness to the shooting, testified that he shot deceased, with whom he was living in adultery, in self-defense, a letter written to him by the deceased a short time before, in which she manifested the strongest affection for him, was admissible as tending to show the improbability of her attacking him. State v. Skinner, 37 Nev. 107; 139 P. 773.

Where there is no witness to a homicide other than the defendant who becomes a witness in his own behalf and asserts self-defense and that deceased was the assailant, his version of the killing is subject to be tested by all the physical facts and such evidentiary facts and circumstances as would reasonably tend to throw any light upon the question, such as the relationship and the degree of affection and regard which the parties bore toward each other as bearing upon the question of the probability of who made the first assault. Id.

16. Self-defense—Character and habits of person killed or assaulted.

In a prosecution for murder, evidence that the deceased sent the witness an order upon defendant for a certain amount, which the defendant had not paid, was erroneously admitted; since it was immaterial, and tended to prejudice the jury against defendant. State v. Huber, 38 Nev. 253; 148 P. 562.

(C) DYING DECLARATIONS17. Determination of question of admissibility.

Where the admission of a dying declaration is sought, it is not the province of the court to determine from the preliminary proof whether such declaration has been made, but whether the preliminary evidence warrants its submission to the jury, who are to judge whether the declaration is entitled to weight as a dying declaration. State v. Scott, 37 Nev. 412; 142 P. 1053.

(E) WEIGHT AND SUFFICIENCY18. Corpus delicti.

The corpus delicti of a murder may be established by inference from facts as well as from positive testimony. State v. Tranmer, 39 Nev. 142; 154 P. 80.

In a trial for murder, evidence held sufficient to establish the corpus delicti. Id.

19. Malice.

Evidence held sufficient to show malice under Rev. Laws, 6384, and Stats. 1915, c. 48, in a homicide case, although accused had known deceased only a few hours. State v. Milosovich, 42 Nev. 264; 175 P. 139.

20. Deliberation and premeditation.

Where death is produced by the common methods of stabbing or shooting, unless accompanied by other peculiar circumstances, the mere fact of stabbing or shooting would not of itself preclude other circumstances negating a formed design against the life of the deceased. State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 466; 145 P. 919; 150 P. 764.

Where death is produced by stabbing, unless accompanied by other peculiar circumstances, the mere fact of stabbing will not preclude other considerations negating a formed design against deceased's life. State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 413; 150 P. 764.

21. Commission of or participation in act by accused.

Deceased was shot by a man nearly 200 feet away, and the witness who was with him jumped and ran to cover. The only evidence that accused was the guilty person was an identification by the witness of a hat which the murderer was wearing. Held, that such evidence was insufficient to support a conviction. State v. Fronhofer, 38 Nev. 448; 150 P. 846.

In view of declarations by defendant to a codefendant, evidence held to show that the defendant was a party to a conspiracy to rob the stage, that the stage was robbed, and that in perpetrating the robbery the driver was killed. State v. Beck, 42 Nev. 209; 174 P. 714.

22. Self-defense.

Evidence held to show that a killing was committed in self-defense. State v. Grimmer, 33 Nev. 531; 112 P. 213.

23. Degree of murder—First degree.

Evidence held to justify a conviction of murder in the first degree either on the ground that the killing was done wilfully, deliberately, and premeditatedly, or on the ground that it was committed in the perpetration of a robbery. State v. Mangana, 33 Nev. 511; 112 P. 693.

In a prosecution for homicide, evidence held insufficient to sustain a conviction of murder in the first degree. State v. Scott, 37 Nev. 412; 142 P. 1053.

VIII. TRIAL(C) INSTRUCTIONS*24. Intent, malice, deliberation, and premeditation.

In prosecution for assault with a deadly weapon, instruction that the law presumes that accused intended to do that which he voluntarily and wilfully did was erroneous. State v. MacKinnon, 41 Nev. 182; 168 P. 330.

25. Passion and provocation.

An instruction: "That no provocation can justify or excuse homicide, but may reduce the offense to manslaughter. Words or actions, or gestures, however grievous or provoking, unaccompanied by an assault, will not justify or excuse murder"—was proper, the word "provoke" meaning only to irritate, excite, or enrage. State v. Milosovich, 42 Nev. 264; 175 P. 139.

26. Self-defense.

An instruction that self-defense is an affirmative defense and that before the jury can "acquit" on that ground it must appear that the killing of the deceased was "not" in necessary self-defense, is a clear misstatement of the law. State v. Scott, 37 Nev. 412; 142 P. 1053.

Self-defense is the right to exercise judgment as a reasonable man in determining.

at the time, whether, from all the attendant circumstances, it was necessary to kill for the protection of one's own life, and it was error to instruct, "Necessity is not for the defendant, but for the jury" to decide. State v. Combsford, 41 Nev. 175; 168 P. 287.

X. APPEAL AND ERROR

27. Harmless error—Admission of evidence.

In a prosecution for homicide, where the age of the deceased girl was not a material issue in the case, error, if any, in allowing a witness for the state to answer a question calling for her apparent age, was harmless. State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 64; 145 P. 919; 150 P. 764.

28. Harmless error—Instructions.

Where the evidence was insufficient to justify accused's conviction of murder in the first degree and the court erroneously charged on his contention of self-defense, a conviction of murder in the first degree shows that the charge was prejudicial. State v. Scott, 37 Nev. 412; 142 P. 1053.

The evidence in homicide being such as to make important the giving of correct instructions on first- and second-degree murder, instructing that irresistible passion, if proved, will not reduce the offense from first-degree murder, where the killing was done with express malice, was prejudicial. State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 413; 150 P. 764.

Inconsistency of instructions as to the difference between first- and second-degree murder is harmless, where accused is convicted of murder in the second degree. State v. Milosovich, 42 Nev. 264; 175 P. 139.

VII. COMMUNITY PROPERTY

1. Property acquired during marriage.

A conveyance of property to a wife, consummated before the adoption of the constitution or the enactment of the community estate law (Stats. 1864-65, c. 76), which changed the common law so as to provide that estates acquired by a husband or wife shall be community property, is governed by the rule of the common law, and not affected by the statute. Winters v. Winters, 34 Nev. 323; 123 P. 17, 1135.

2. Property acquired by gift.

Where, before the enactment of community estate law (Stats. 1864-65, c. 76), land was purchased by a husband, and by his direction the deed was made to his wife, it is regarded as a gift, and becomes part of the wife's separate estate. Id.

Where, before the enactment of the community estate law (Stats. 1864-65, c. 76), a wife purchased land with her money, or land was granted to her by a third person by way of gift, such land becomes a part of her separate estate, subject only to the husband's common-law marital rights. Id.

3. Rights of husband and wife during existence of community.

The use of the expression "goes to" the wife in Rev. Laws, 2165, different from the expression "belongs to" the husband in sec. 2164, does not show an intention of the legislature that the interest of the wife in the community should vest only after the husband's death, in view of Const. art. 4, sec. 31, requiring laws to be passed defining the rights of wife to property held in common with her husband, since "held" does not convey the idea of mere expectancy, but imports ownership. In Re Williams, 40 Nev. 241; 161 P. 741; L. R. A. 1917C, 802.

4. Sales, conveyances, and incumbrances.

As a general proposition, by reason of the husband's sole right to control the community property, he may alienate during the coverture, without the consent of the wife, any property belonging to the community. Nat. Bank v. Meyers, 39 Nev. 235; 150 P. 308.

5. Community and separate debts.

A note, on which a husband became individually liable, given to protect his interest in a mine, is a community obligation, enforceable against the community estate. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 760.

6. Dissolution of community.

After divorce, the husband, who during the existence of the marriage could incur and manage the community estate, has no further right to incur the community property. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 759.

The Nevada constitution adopted in 1864 defines, in article 4, section 31, what shall constitute the separate property of the wife, and provides that laws shall be passed more clearly defining the rights of the wife to the community as well as to her separate property. Thereafter was enacted Stats. Nev. 1864-65, c. 76, sec. 12, declaring that, in case of dissolution of the marriage by decree of any court of competent jurisdiction, the common property shall be equally divided between the parties, and the court granting the decree shall make such order for the division of the common property as the nature of the case may require, provided that, when the decree is rendered on the ground of adultery or extreme cruelty, the party found guilty shall be entitled to such portion of the common property as the court granting the decree may deem just and allow. In 1873 this act was repealed, but section 12 was continued, and now appears as Rev. Laws Nev. 2166, declaring that, in case of the dissolution of the marriage, the community property must be equally divided between the parties, and the court granting the decree must make such order for the division of the community property as the nature of the case may require, while that portion of the act of 1873 appearing as section 2188 declares that the rights of husband and wife are governed by the act, unless there is a marriage contract or settlement. Rev. Laws Nev. 5841, enacted in 1861, declares that in granting a divorce the court shall make such disposition of the property of the parties as shall seem just and equitable for the benefit of the children, and that all property and pecuniary rights and interests, and all rights touching the children, their custody and guardianship, not otherwise disposed of, shall, by such divorce, be divested out of the guilty party, and vested in the party at whose instance the divorce was granted. Held, in view of another section of the same act appearing as Rev. Laws Nev. 5843, and declaring that when the marriage shall be dissolved by the husband being sentenced to imprisonment, and when a divorce shall be ordered for the cause of adultery committed by the husband, the wife shall be entitled to the same proportion of his lands and property as if he were dead, but in other cases the court shall set apart such portion for her support and the support of their children as shall be deemed just, and, as the act of 1861 was passed before the creation of community property, effect cannot be given to it, particularly in view of the construction by the California courts of the later statutes, which must be deemed to have been adopted when the statutes were adopted from that state; hence a decree of divorce in favor of the husband for desertion does not, though there was no adjudication as to property rights, deprive the wife of her rights in the community property. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 756.

A divorce terminates the community estate of the spouses, and thereafter they are tenants in common of such community property, rather than copartners. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 757.

Before marriage, a husband, to protect community interests in a mining venture, executed a note on which he was personally liable. After divorce, the note was surrendered and the husband executed a new note. The wife was not a party to a judgment recovered by the holder of the notes against the husband. Held that, as the husband's right to bind the community estate ended with the dissolution of the marriage, and as the old note was surrendered and limitations against its enforcement had run before judgment was recovered on the second note, the wife's share of the community property, which was retained by the husband was not subject to the payment of the second note, though her share of the community was once liable for satisfaction of the original. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 759.

One who did not make loans to a husband until after divorce is not a community creditor. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 760.

Where, after divorce, the husband retained control of the property which had been community, expenditures made by him in enhancing the value of the community should be allowed, in the suit by the wife to obtain her share. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 758.

In such case, though the wife did not assert her rights in the community property for a number of years, yet as the bank, which held both notes, made no attempt to enforce the original note, and received no payments for a number of years, and then accepted the second note, surrendering the original, the wife was not estopped from asserting her rights in the community estate against the bank, for an estoppel cannot arise by reason of mere silence, there being nothing to show that the wife's delay misled the bank. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 759.

One who made loans to a husband, who was in possession of the entire community estate, after divorce, cannot assert any estoppel against the claim of the divorced wife to her share, where no misrepresentations were made by the wife, and the lender, from the facts in her possession, might have discovered the wife's right; it not appearing that the wife delayed asserting her rights to mislead the lender. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 760.

Where, to facilitate a divorce, a husband and wife made a settlement which for that reason was void, payments made by the husband under such settlement will be credited against the wife's share of the community estate, not against the whole property. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 757.

Where, after divorce, the property which had belonged to the community of the spouses was greatly enhanced in value by the efforts of the husband, the husband is entitled to reasonable compensation for his services. Id.

7. Rights and liabilities of survivor.

Stats. 1915, c. 130, does not affect or repeal Rev. Laws, 2164, 2165, relating to descent of community property, and where spouse dies intestate all the community property goes to the surviving spouse. In Re Kattenhorn's Estate, 41 Nev. 375: 171 P. 164.

8. Administration.

Though a suit by a divorced wife to recover her share of the property which had composed the community of herself and her former husband was begun first, creditors of the husband, who died pending suit, cannot, having in his lifetime, and after institution of suit by wife, reduced their claims to judgment in the state court, be deprived of the benefit of Rev. Laws Nev. 6052, giving judgments rendered against deceased in his lifetime priority over ordinary demands. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 758.

Rev. Laws Nev. 6052, declares that the debts of the estate shall be paid: First, the funeral expenses; second, the expenses of the last sickness; third, debts preferred by federal laws; fourth, judgments rendered against the deceased in his lifetime; and, fifth, all other demands against the estate. A husband secured a divorce against his wife, and, there being no adjudication as to the rights of the former spouses with respect to the community property, the husband retained it and also converted to his own use the profits from such community estate. Held, that as the term "debt," used in the statute, signifies no more than a sum of money owing on a contract, express or implied, only the profits of the community estate converted by the husband can be deemed debts, but the husband must be treated as a trustee of the wife's interest in the community property, and as to such she takes priority over creditors who reduced their claims to judgment during the husband's lifetime, while as to the debt for the profits withheld she does not. Id.

VIII. SEPARATION AND SEPARATE MAINTENANCE

9. Separation agreements.

Where husband and wife are living separate and apart under a written agreement of separation, there can be no abandonment of the latter by the former. In Re Kuhns, 36 Nev. 487; 137 P. 83; 50 L. R. A. (N.S.) 507.

XI. CRIMINAL CONVERSATION

10. Right of action.

In a husband's action for criminal conversation, the issue is whether the wife has been guilty of adultery without his consent or connivance. Rehling v. Brainard, 38 Nev. 16; 144 P. 167; Ann. Cas. 1917C, 656.

11. Evidence.

Evidence in a husband's action for criminal conversation, tried without a jury, held to sustain a judgment for plaintiff. Id.

12. Damages.

In a husband's action for criminal conversation, lack of consortium is an element of the damages, but the fact that the breaking up of the home or the destruction of the marital relation has been only partial, and that there has been a reconciliation, may be considered in mitigation of damages. Id.

A justice of the peace has jurisdiction of a prosecution for violating Stats. 1913, c. 270, sec. 9, making it unlawful to catch or have in one's possession more than a certain amount of fish on any calendar day, although the offense is committed by a white person within the limits of an Indian reservation; the state having control of the fish and game within its boundaries. Ex Parte Crosby, 38 Nev. 389; 149 P. 989.

The rule that state courts have jurisdiction over offenses committed by parties other than Indians on Indian reservations is not affected by a provision in the enabling act for taking account of Indian lands or Indian reservations within the territory, or providing that such Indian lands shall remain under the absolute jurisdiction and control of Congress. 10. Waiver—Objections to indictment or information.

II. FINDING AND FILING OF INDICTMENT OR PRESENTMENT

1. Failure to find and resubmission.

A qualified grand jury can only consist of members in whose mind there exists no bias or prejudice against either of the parties to the case. State v. Towers, 37 Nev. 94; 139 P. 776; Ann. Cas. 1916D, 269.

Rev. Laws, 7005, subd. 6, allows grand jurors to be challenged because of a state of mind which would prevent them from acting without prejudice to the substantial rights of the challenging party. Section 7399 provides that the court may dismiss an action after indictment, and section 7401 declares that such a dismissal shall not bar another prosecution for the same felony. Section 7044 provides that the dismissal of a charge shall not prevent the same charge from being submitted to a grand jury as often as the court may direct. Section 7101 provides that, if a demurrer to an indictment is allowed, the judgment is a bar to another prosecution, unless the court thinks that the defect may be avoided in a new indictment, and directs a resubmission to the same or another grand jury; and section 7024 limits evidence receivable by the grand jury to sworn witnesses, legal documentary evidence, and depositions. Defendant was indicted for obtaining money under false pretenses, a felony, and pleaded not guilty, and thereafter the indictment was dismissed, and the matter resubmitted to the same grand jury, who reported "No bill." Subsequently the matter was again resubmitted to the same grand jury, who returned an indictment for felony. Held, that as a reconsideration of the charge or the evidence would be necessary, it could not be resubmitted to the same grand jury, which, having already formed an opinion on the merits, was subject to the challenge that their state of mind prevented them from acting impartially, but that the resubmission must be to another grand jury. Id.

V. REQUISITES AND SUFFICIENCY OF ACCUSATION

2. Subject-matter of allegations—Designation of offense or grade or degree thereof

Whether the offense charged be a felony or misdemeanor is to be determined by the indictment's statement of facts and language employed. In Re Crane, 40 Nev. 338; 163 P. 246.

3. Statutory offenses—Language of statute.

An indictment charging robbery in the language of the statute is sufficient. State v. Switzer, 38 Nev. 108; 145 P. 925.

Embezzlement is a statutory crime, and all that is necessary in charging the offense is to follow the statute. State v. McFarlin, 41 Nev. 486; 172 P. 371.

An indictment charging an offense in the language of the statute on which it is based is sufficient, where the statute sets forth, without uncertainty, the elements necessary to constitute the offense. State v. King, 35 Nev. 153; 126 P. 880.

In view of Comp. Laws, 4208, providing that the offense charged shall be distinctly set forth in ordinary and concise language, so as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended, and the general rule that an indictment charging an offense in the words of the statute is sufficient, an indictment for forgery under Comp. Laws, 4734, providing that every person who shall make, pass, utter, or publish with intent to defraud, any fictitious note, bill or check, shall be deemed guilty of forgery, sufficiently charged the offense by the averment that defendant did "attempt to pass a fictitious check" particularly when the sufficiency of the indictment was not raised until after verdict. State v. Raymond, 34 Nev. 198; 117 P. 17.

An information charging mayhem in the language of Rev. Laws, 6416, defining the offense as unlawfully depriving a human being of a member of his body, or disfiguring or rendering it useless, such as slitting the ear, without charging permanent disfigurement, which, under section 6418, is necessary to conviction, is nevertheless good in the absence of demurrer. State v. Enkhouse, 40 Nev. 1; 160 P. 23.

4. Statutory offenses—Exceptions and provisos.

In an indictment or criminal complaint it is not necessary to allege that defendant is not within an exception specified in the statute. Ex Parte Davis, 33 Nev. 309; 110 P. 1131.

5. Surplusage and unnecessary matter.

In view of Rev. Laws, 7052, providing that evidence tending to prove charge need not be stated in the indictment, such allegation will be rejected as mere surplusage. In Re Crane, 40 Nev. 338; 163 P. 246.

VI. JOINDER OF PARTIES, OFFENSES, AND COUNTS, DUPLICITY, AND ELECTION

6. Joinder of parties.

Where two persons are jointly charged with grand larceny in preliminary examination, and subsequent to such examination grand jury investigates charge, separate indictments may be filed against the parties. State v. District Court, 42 Nev. 219; 174 P. 1023.

VII. MOTION TO QUASH OR DISMISS, AND DEMURRER

7. Motion to quash or set aside—Grounds.

Under the contention that denunciation at a public meeting, in the public press, and in court, of the officers of a bank, by the district judge who ordered and assisted in drawing the members of the grand jury and presided at the time the indictments were found is cause for setting them aside: Held, that generally the prejudice of the judge or bias of the grand jury is not ground for setting aside indictments by writ of habeas corpus. Whether the bias of a judge may be so extreme in any case as to warrant the setting aside of an indictment or discharge on habeas corpus of indicted persons on the theory that the constitution entitles the citizen to release in such a case, not determined. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 86; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

In extreme cases, when the court can see that the finding of an indictment is based upon such insufficient evidence as to indicate that the indictment resulted from prejudice, or was found in wilful disregard of the rights of the accused, the court should quash the indictment. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 85; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

Upon a motion to quash, a court can go behind an indictment regular upon its face and determine that it is void for any latent defect. Id.

Under sections 7000 and 7005 of the Revised Laws, the indictment may be set aside by the court in which the defendant is arraigned, upon motion, when the defendant has not been held to answer before the finding of the indictment, on the ground that a state of mind exists upon the part of the grand juror which would prevent him from acting impartially and without prejudice. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 86; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

8. Motion to quash or set aside—Hearing and determination.

Where accused, in support of his motion to quash the indictment for nonresidence of a grand juror, presented an affidavit on information and belief averring that fact, he could not complain of the presentation by the state of an affidavit of the juror averring his residence and the disposition by the court of the motion on the affidavits, and accused, if desiring the presence of the grand juror, should have subpoenaed him, or taken his testimony by deposition. State v. Casey, 34 Nev. 154; 117 P. 5.

Where accused, in support of his motion to quash the indictment for nonresidence of a grand juror, presented an affidavit on information and belief averring that fact, he could not complain of the presentation by the state of an affidavit of the juror averring his residence and the disposition by the court of the motion on the affidavits, and accused, if desiring the presence of the grand juror, should have subpoenaed him, or taken his testimony by deposition. Id.

9. Motions to dismiss.

As on the dismissal of an indictment on motion of the district attorney because of a clerical error therein, the failure to order a resubmission of the case to the grand jury did not bar a new prosecution, an order directing the district attorney to take such steps, by indictment and information, as he might deem advisable was not void as divesting the court of its discretion in the premises and imposing such discretion upon the district attorney. In Re Hironymous, 38 Nev. 194; 147 P. 453.

XI. WAIVER OF DEFECTS AND OBJECTIONS, AND AIDEE BY VERDICT

10. Waiver—Objections to indictment or information.

A judgment entered upon a plea of guilty of petit larceny under an indictment charging grand larceny is void as in excess of the jurisdiction of the court to enter. Ex Parte Dickson, 36 Nev. 94; 133 P. 393.

The defect that a complaint, charging the relator with a misdemeanor, was insufficient because purporting to be made upon information and belief, instead of upon positive knowledge, was not jurisdictional, and was waived by relator by pleading to the complaint without making an objection upon the ground assigned. Ex Parte Murray, 39 Nev. 351; 157 P. 647.

II. SUBJECTS OF PROTECTION AND RELIEF(B) PROPERTY, CONVEYANCES, AND INCUMBRANCES*1. Property and rights protected.

The right to operate a mine and carry on the business of mining therein is a property right whether one owns the mine or not, and he may invoke the powers of a court of equity to protect such right, in a proper case, even though he is not the owner of the mine, or even a stockholder in the company which does own it. Goldfield Con. Mines Co. v. Goldfield Miners' Union, 159 F. 501.

(G) PERSONAL RIGHTS AND DUTIES2. Boycotts and other combinations.

An important element to be considered in determining whether injurious conduct is to be apprehended from a labor union during a strike, which ought to be restrained by injunction, is the character of the dominant faction in such union. Goldfield Con. Mines Co. v. Goldfield Miners' Union, 159 F. 502.

Striking workmen, who assail nonunion men with threats, ridicule, or insult, or who follow them to or from their work with vile language and abusive epithets, in order to compel them to quit work, or to refrain from offering to work, are guilty of unlawful conduct. Goldfield Con. Mines Co. v. Goldfield Miners' Union, 159 F. 501.

Nonunion men have a right to seek employment, to come and go from their work, or to go where they please on the public thoroughfare, without molestation, threats, violence, or insults of any kind, and without being picketed or compelled against their will to listen to persuasion. Id.

Workmen, when free from contract obligations, have a legal right, singly, collectively, or as a union, to quit work—that is, to strike—and they have the further right to use such lawful means to make the strike effective as are not inconsistent with the rights of others, and they may endeavor by peaceful argument and persuasion to secure the cooperation of any nonunion men, provided the persuasion is of such a character as to leave the person solicited free to do as he pleases, and he is not persuaded to do that which it would be unlawful for him to do. Id.

If, after the miners' union became aware of the fact that the pickets were carrying out a common purpose to intimidate nonunion men in order to compel them to quit work, it still continued to cooperate with and supervise the pickets, it must be held that there was an agreement between the union and the pickets to do an unlawful act. Goldfield Con. Mines Co. v. Goldfield Miners' Union, 159 F. 502.

Picketing, if confined strictly and in good faith to gaining information and to peaceful persuasion and argument, is not forbidden by law; but when it is used for the purpose of intimidation it is unlawful. The massing of unnecessary numbers of pickets at a point which must be passed by nonunion men, whom the strikers desire to influence, is in itself an act of intimidation. Goldfield Con. Mines Co. v. Goldfield Miners' Union, 159 F. 501.

Any attempt to intimidate a man in order to compel him to refrain from exercising a legal right is unlawful. Goldfield Con. Mines Co. v. Goldfield Miners' Union, 159 F. 502.

(H) CRIMINAL ACTS, CONSPIRACIES AND PROSECUTIONS3. Criminal acts affecting rights of property.

Where defendants, who pretended to be assayers in a mining district, had purchased large quantities of ore which had been taken from complainant's mines through innumerable thefts committed by their employees with such secret and cunning as to outwit all watching and precaution, complainants had no adequate remedy at law, and were entitled to maintain a suit in equity to restrain defendants from continuing to purchase ore so stolen, notwithstanding such purchase constituted a crime. Goldfield Con. Mines Co. v. Richardson, 194 F. 198.

III. ACTIONS FOR INJUNCTIONS4. Parties.

Where complainants, who were owners of mines in severalty in a certain district, had long suffered from petty thefts of ore by their employees who had sold the same to defendants, who pretended to be assayers in the district, and a suit to restrain defendants' further purchase of ores, under such circumstances, involved the same question as against all the defendants, complainants were all entitled to join in a single complaint against all the defendants so charged, though there was no concert of action among the defendants in their various purchases, each acting separately for his own benefit. Id.

5. Pleading—Demurrer.

A complaint for an injunction is not demurrable where, on any state of proof which its allegations would justify, the court could grant an injunction. Knox v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 304; 142 P. 526.

The complaint in an injunction suit was not demurrable, where it set forth a prior vested right, and interference with such right and the injury attendant thereon. Id.

6. Evidence—Weight and sufficiency.

Defendant, a miners' union, declared a strike against complainant, which was a mining company, and appointed a committee, with full power to regulate the conduct of the strike. With the knowledge and acquiescence of such committee, if not by its orders, members of the union, to the number of from 30 to 75, or more, gathered each time shifts were changed at complainant's mine, where its employees were compelled to pass, and there was evidence tending to show that they followed such employees, and used abusive and threatening language toward them. It was also shown that complainant was unable to obtain sufficient men because of their fear of the strikers, and that it employed 50 guards at an expense of $250 per day to protect its property and workmen. It also appeared, from the constitution of the union and from its prior acts, that it was dominated by men who were not inclined to cultivate friendly relations with employers, but rather to promote strife. Held, that such evidence was sufficient to show a conspiracy to subject complainant to unlawful picketing and interference with its business and property by intimidating its workmen, which the union either originated or became party to, and which entitled complainant to relief by injunction against the union and its members. Goldfield Con. Mines Co. v. Goldfield Miners' Union, 159 F. 502.

IV. PRELIMINARY AND INTERLOCUTORY INJUNCTIONS(A) GROUNDS AND PROCEEDINGS TO PROCURE*7. Nature and scope of provisional remedy.

An injunction pendente lite should not usurp the place of a final decree, neither should it reach out any further than is absolutely necessary to protect the rights of property of the complainant from injuries which are not only irreparable, but which may be expected before the suit can be heard on its merits. It is not necessary that the complainant's rights be clearly established, but it is sufficient if it appears that there is a real and substantial question between parties proper to be investigated in a court of equity, and that in order to prevent irremediable injury to the complainant before his claims can be investigated, it is necessary to prohibit any change in the conditions and relations of the property and of the parties during the litigation. Goldfield Con. Mines Co. v. Goldfield Miners' Union, 159 F. 500.

8. Grounds for denial of temporary injunction.

The operation of an order of a governing body charged with the duty of fixing water rates for municipal corporations should not be suspended by the issuance of a temporary injunction, unless complainant furnishes substantial evidence that the rate fixed is confiscatory. Water Co. of Tonopah v. Public Service Comm., 250 F. 304.

9. Use and effect of answer.

Where an answer under oath, denying the equities of a bill, is filed, a temporary injunction cannot be granted on the bill, for the sworn answer is evidence on behalf of the defendant, and rebuts the allegations contained in the bill. Id.

III. GUARDIANSHIP

1. Appointment, qualification, and tenure of guardian—Proceedings for appointment.

Const. art. 6, sec. 4, vests the supreme court with appellate jurisdiction in all cases in equity. Rev. Laws, 4832, is to the same effect. Section 4833 empowers the supreme court to review on appeal a judgment in a proceeding commenced in a district court when the matter in dispute is embraced in the general jurisdiction of the supreme court. Section 5329 provides that an appeal may be taken from a final judgment or special proceeding commenced in the court in which the judgment is rendered. Section 6162 provides for petition for the appointment of a guardian for insane persons. Held, that such proceeding is equitable, and the judgment appointing the guardian for a mentally enfeebled person is final, so that an appeal lies. O'Donnell v. District Court, 40 Nev. 428; 165 P. 759.

As procedure under Rev. Laws, 6162, is not a case provided for in civil practice act, secs. 404, 405, 408, and 409 (Rev. Laws, 5346, 5347, 5350, and 5351), the perfection of an appeal by giving the undertaking as prescribed by section 404 stays proceedings in the court below upon the judgment and order appealed from, under specific provision of Rev. Laws, 5355. Id.

IX. ACTIONS

2. Appointment of guardian ad litem.

Under Rev. Laws, 4992, as to appointment of guardian ad litem, such appointment may be made for an insane defendant in any case where jurisdiction of the subject-matter has been acquired. McKibbin v. District Court, 41 Nev. 431; 171 P. 374.

Under Rev. Laws, 4992, the court may appoint a guardian ad litem for a non-resident insane defendant in a divorce suit; the action being substantially in rem. Id.

XVIII. ACTIONS ON POLICIES

1. Presumptions and burden of proof.

There is a presumption against murder or the intentional taking of the life of another as well as against suicide, and if the evidence be such as to warrant the inference either of suicide, murder, or accident, in an action on an insurance policy, the presumption must always be in favor of accident. Neasham v. New York Life Ins. Co., 244 F. 556.

Primarily the presumption is against self-destruction, and it is one of the strongest presumptions with which courts have to deal, and, while it will not prevail against clear and definite proof, suicide will never be inferred if the circumstances are consistent with any other reasonable theory. Id.

2. Weight and sufficiency of evidence.

The absence of motive by an insured person for committing suicide, while not conclusive, is a consideration which enters strongly into the sum of the evidence in determining the cause of death. Id.

In an action on a life insurance policy defended on the ground that insured committed suicide, verdict of plaintiff held supported by the evidence. Id.

3. Questions for jury.

If the circumstances surrounding the death of an insured person are consistent with either murder or suicide, the question must be left to the jury to determine as between the two conflicting causes. Id.

Prohibition.

The power exercised through appropriate legislation by the legislature, or people acting in a legislative capacity, to suppress nonintoxicating liquors, is established beyond question, such power being incidental to the power to entirely prohibit traffic in and consumption of, intoxicating liquors. State v. Reno Brewing Co., 42 Nev. 306; 178 P. 902.

Prohibition law, sec. 1, providing that "all malt or brewed drinks, whether intoxicating or not, shall be deemed malt liquors within the meaning of this act," does not contravene the state or federal constitution. Id.

Prohibition act, sec. 7, held not violative of guaranties of Const. U. S. Amend. 14, sec. 1, as to abridging privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States, due process, and equal protection. Ex Parte Zwissig, 42 Nev. 360; 178 P. 20.

IV. LICENSES AND TAXES2. Subjects of license tax—Clubs and associations.

A bona-fide social club, which disposes, at its clubhouse, of liquors to members and guests at a fixed charge as an incident to the general purposes of the club, the profit on sales going to pay the general expenses of the organization, is not required to take out a license by Rev. Laws, 3377-3785, approved March 15, 1905, which provides for a license upon the business of disposing of intoxicating liquors; the term "business" in such statute meaning business in the trade or commercial sense. State v. University Club, 35 Nev. 475; 130 P. 468; 44 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1026.

3. Fees and taxes—Disposition of moneys collected.

Under Revenue Act of 1915 (Stats. 1915, c. 178), sec. 3, requiring persons disposing of liquor "in less quantities than a quart," in a city, to take out a county license from the sheriff; section 6, requiring persons selling liquor either at retail or wholesale, in addition to other licenses, to take out a state license, section 8 providing for the sheriff, as ex officio collector, issuing and collecting for, a retail liquor license to one engaged in selling liquor in quantities less than five gallons, section 9, requiring one selling liquor in quantities in excess of five gallons to take out a wholesale state liquor license, section 10, providing that monthly the sheriff shall pay to the county treasurer "all" money received by him for state liquor licenses, "in like manner and form as is hereinafter provided for the payment of county license moneys," and that in a county having a city therein he shall pay to it one-half of the "amount" of license moneys collected for disposition of liquors in less quantities than a quart, within its limits, half of the amount from state as well as county licenses for such disposition in quantities less than a quart is to be paid the city, and the balance only to the county treasurer, so that such half payable to the city is not included in "all moneys received" by the county treasurer for state liquor licenses "in accordance with the provisions of this act," for which section 11 requires him to account to the state treasurer, the word "amount" in section 10, referring to the total of two sums (citing Words and Phrases, Second Series, Amount). State v. Hill, 40 Nev. 110; 160 P. 772.

VI. OFFENSES

4. Liquors prohibited—Description and properties.

The sentence, "and all malt or brewed drinks, whether intoxicating or not, shall be deemed malt liquors within the meaning of this act," in prohibition law, sec. 1, cannot be adjudged out of the act, or restricted or enlarged in its plain signification, unless, after exhausting every legitimate method of construction, it is found irreconcilable with the scope and purpose of the act or void for constitutional reasons. State v. Reno Brewing Co., 42 Nev. 397; 178 P. 902.

"Sierra Beverage," containing malt and one-tenth per cent alcohol, is, whether intoxicating or not, a liquor, within prohibition law, sec. 1, providing that "all malt or brewed drinks, whether intoxicating or not, shall be deemed malt liquors within the meaning of this act." Id.

The phrase, "any other intoxicating drink, mixture or preparation of like nature," which follows the specific enumeration of certain named liquors in prohibition law, sec. 1, instead of limiting the class of liquor enumerated, described another merely by their intoxicating quality. State v. Reno Brewing Co., 42 Nev. 398; 178 P. 902.

The phrase, "any other intoxicating drink, mixture or preparation of like nature," which follows the specific enumeration of certain named liquors in prohibition law, sec. 1, is not controlled or qualified by the last clause of said section with reference to beverages containing one-half per cent alcohol being spirituous liquors. Id.

5. Illegal possession.

Prohibition act, sec. 7, was intended to prevent a person from having intoxicating liquor upon the street for personal or any other use other than contemplated by the act itself. Ex Parte Zwissig, 42 Nev. 360; 178 P. 20.

X. ABATEMENT AND INJUNCTION

6. Nuisance or business subject to abatement or injunction.

The term "intoxicating liquors," as used in prohibition law, sec. 14, making places where such liquors are manufactured, stored, sold, etc., public nuisances, is, when said section is considered together with sections 6 and 17, to be taken as used interchangeably with the word "liquors" in section 1, and district court had jurisdiction to enjoin defendant brewing company from manufacturing and selling "Sierra Beverage," although said beverage is not intoxicating. State v. Reno Brewing Co., 42 Nev. 398; 178 P. 902.

XII. RIGHTS OF PROPERTY AND CONTRACTS

7. Validity of conveyances and contracts.

A note for balance of indebtedness for liquors sold and delivered to the maker, engaged in conducting a house of ill-fame within the restricted distance from a church, was not invalid, though the seller knew the liquors would be resold upon the premises; there being nothing unlawful in the sale nor any law prohibiting sale of liquors at such house, since the buyer had a license to sell liquor there. Loose v. Larsen, 40 Nev. 157; 161 P. 514; L. R. A. 1917B, 1166.

JOINT ADVENTURES

1. Nature, creation and existence of relation.
2. Mutual rights, duties and liabilities of parties.
3. Mutual rights, duties and liabilities of parties—Actions between parties.

1. Nature, creation, and existence of relation.

A contract of joint adventure is sufficiently supported by a consideration growing out of the mutual promises of the parties. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 497; 181 P. 437.

Where parties agreed to use their joint efforts to acquire mining property in equal interest and to convey the title thereto to a corporation to be formed by them for the purpose of taking over the property, the acquirement of the claims being the primary purpose of the agreement, there was a contract of joint adventure, consummated when the minds of the parties met and they made mutual promises to contribute certain money and services. Id.

The furnishing of capital by the parties to a joint adventure is not essential to the validity of the contract if the original agreement is carried out. Botsford v. Van Riper, 33 Nev. 156; 110 P. 705.

Plaintiff's suggestion to defendant of a scheme for merging properties and advice and counsel to him, and the mutual promise of assistance in promoting the venture, were sufficient consideration to sustain an agreement for an equal division of the profits of the venture, though defendant agreed to do all the other work. Id.

The legal principles governing partnerships apply generally to joint adventures. Id.

The profits of a joint adventure may consist of the unsold portion of the property which was the subject of the venture, or property received as compensation for services rendered in connection with the venture, as well as money. Id.

2. Mutual rights, duties, and liabilities of parties.

A party to a joint adventure holding the profits may be compelled to account to his associates for their share of the property representing such profits in kind. Id.

Advances by one party to a joint adventure are loans to the venture for which he is entitled to reimbursement from the proceeds of the venture, but they give him no other superior rights against his associates. Id.

In the absence of an express agreement to the contrary, equal division of the profits of a joint adventure is implied, regardless of inequality of contribution. Id.

Even though W. believed that he had a right to terminate the agreement and thereafter to acquire for himself interests which he had examined on the trip, equity will not permit him to deprive his associates of their share of whatever he acquired as a result of that trip. Lind v. Webber, 36 Nev. 623; 134 P. 461; 135 P. 139; 141 P. 458; 50 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1046.

Four individuals entered into an agreement to send W., one of their number, to examine a new mining district and locate any valuable rights; the expenses of the trip to be shared equally by the parties. W. located four claims in the name of one of the other parties to the agreement. On the trip he met other miners, and after his return he terminated the agreement, and on the same day and without consideration he secured for himself and one of the other parties to the joint agreement, from those whom he had met on the trip, interests in some claims which they had located while all were together. Held, that the other two parties to the joint agreement were entitled to share in the profits from the claims so acquired through the examination and trip made under the joint agreement. Id.

The relation between the parties to a joint adventure is fiduciary, and the utmost good faith is required of the trustee to whom matters may be intrusted; he not being entitled to any advantage over his associate on account of possession of property or profits. Botsford v. Van Riper, 33 Nev. 157; 110 P. 705.

That plaintiffs and defendant agreed to use their joint efforts to secure an option on certain property and to sell the same, defendant to be the active agent of the venture, that plaintiffs assisted in furthering the venture by counsel, introductions, and personal efforts, that it was agreed that the parties should share equally in the profits, that the venture was successful and defendant was to receive stock of a specified value as compensation, that he was attempting to get possession of all the stock and refused to recognize plaintiffs' rights to any interest in the proceeds of the venture, and that he was outside the state and insolvent, shows plaintiffs' right to recover equal interests in the proceeds under the doctrine of joint adventure. Id.

That the active agent of a joint adventure did not call upon his associates for the aid they agreed to give does not affect their right to share in the profits. Id.

Where, except for temporary advances, the proceeds from the claims acquired by W., as a result of his trip under the joint agreement, were sufficient to acquire adverse interests and develop the property, the other parties to the joint agreement did not lose their right to share in the profits by their failure to contribute to such advances for which no demand was ever made upon them. Lind v. Webber, 36 Nev. 623; 134 P. 461; 135 P. 139; 141 P. 458; 50 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1046.

Since the joint agreement specified no time for its continuance, W. had a right to terminate it upon his return from the trip, and any rights acquired as a result of the subsequent trips would be his alone; but the termination did not affect rights acquired as a result of the trip made under the joint agreement. Id.

Where property or profits are acquired under a joint adventure, a party holding title to the same is a trustee for his associates as to their proportionate shares. Botsford v. Van Riper, 33 Nev. 156; 110 P. 705.

Where several parties entered into an agreement to acquire mining property in equal interest and to convey the title thereto to a corporation to be formed by them for the purpose of taking over the claims, one party to furnish certain amount of money and another to examine the claims and ascertain as to whether or not they had any value, the relation created laid upon the one examining the claims a strict duty to deal fairly with the other members, and to give the other members a chance to perform upon having discovered that the claims were of great value, and he could not foreclose their rights to share in the property and profits by advancing the necessary money himself. Miller v. Walser, 42 Nev. 498; 181 P. 437.

Where an agreement was entered into to acquire mining claims in equal interest, one party to furnish money and another party to contribute his services and experience in inspecting the claims, money advanced by the one inspecting the claims to purchase the same, not giving the person who was to contribute the money a chance to participate, will be considered in the nature of a loan to the joint adventure, and for the benefit of all the joint adventurers. Id.

3. Mutual rights, duties, and liabilities of parties—Actions between parties.

Where the other parties knew in a general way that W. was interested in some other claims in that mining district, but did not know the circumstances under which he had acquired that interest, their delay in instituting a suit for an accounting did not amount to laches. Lind v. Webber, 36 Nev. 623; 134 P. 461; 135 P. 139; 141 P. 458; 50 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1046.

Associates of the trustee of a joint adventure can recover from him for any breach of his trust. Botsford v. Van Riper, 33 Nev. 156; 110 P. 705.

While a party to a joint adventure may sue his associate at law for breach of the contract or a share of the profits or losses, or contribution for advances in excess of his share, such remedies do not preclude a suit in equity for an accounting. Id.

One party to a joint adventure may set off against the demand of another advances or payments in behalf of claimant, and hence, in an action to recover an interest in the proceeds of a venture, expenditures by defendant were properly deducted from recovery awarded against him. Id.

Mere fact that mining property has advanced considerably in value should not bar recovery, under the doctrine of laches, by a member of a contract of joint adventure, where the plaintiff was prevented from contributing his share through the fraud and concealment of the other members, and is seeking an accounting. Miller v. Walser, 42 Nev. 499; 181 P. 437.

One member to a contract of joint adventure may sue the other at law for a breach of the contract, or he may bring suit in equity for an accounting. Miller v. Walser, 42 Nev. 498; 181 P. 437.

1. Compensation and fees.

III. RIGHTS, POWERS, DUTIES, AND LIABILITIES

1. Compensation and fees.

Though a townsite trustee became such by virtue of his office as district judge, the compensation allowed under the statute for his services as trustee is not a fee or perquisite of the office of district judge within section 10, article 6, of the constitution, forbidding a judicial officer, other than justices of the peace or city recorders, from receiving to his own use any fees or perquisites of office. Jennett v. Stevens, 34 Nev. 128; 116 P. 601.

Since the duties of township trustee do not naturally belong to the office of district judge, and it is not incumbent upon a district judge to accept such trust, he may accept compensation for his services as trustee. Id.

General revenue act (Rev. Laws, 3623), section 7, provides that the board of county commissioners of each county shall cause to be prepared suitable books for the use of the assessor, in which he shall enter his tax list and assessment roll as thereafter provided, and in that list and roll shall be assessed and included all taxes levied by authority of law for county purposes, the book to contain suitable printed heads and be ruled to conform with the form of the assessment roll as provided by the act. Section 4902 declares that each county in each district in the state shall contribute annually to the fund required to pay the salary of the district judge its proportionate share of the money necessary to pay such salary, based on the assessment roll of each county for the previous year. Held, that the term "assessment roll," as used in section 4902, means the whole roll for the assessment of taxes, including not only the assessment of real and personal property mentioned in Rev. Laws, 3633, but the assessment of the proceeds of mines mentioned in Rev. Laws, 3696, as well. Esmeralda County v. Mineral County, 37 Nev. 180; 141 P. 73.

XXII. PLEADING AND EVIDENCE OF JUDGMENT AS ESTOPPEL OR DEFENSE.

35. Allegations, admissions, and denials.
36. Issues, proof and variance.
37. Trial and review.

I. NATURE AND ESSENTIALS

1. Process or notice to sustain judgment.

Process cannot run beyond the borders of the state, and a constructive service by publication or personal service on a non-resident will not support a decree in personam, though it may support a decree affecting property within the state where process is issued. Keenan v. Keenan, 40 Nev. 352; 164 P. 351.

As a general rule a valid judgment in personam cannot be rendered against a defendant, except after his voluntary appearance or the personal service of process within the territorial jurisdiction of the court. King Tonopah M. Co. v. Lynch, 232 F. 486.

2. Evidence to sustain judgment.

Judgment cannot be based upon assumptions or upon conclusions reached by "guess," but must be sustained by facts shown by the evidence or admitted by the party to be bound. Richards v. Vermilyea, 42 Nev. 204; 175 P. 188; 180 P. 121.

3. Effect of invalidity—Partial invalidity.

That counsel for a mortgagee, who was a director of the defendant mortgagor, took a judgment in favor of himself for counsel fees against the mortgagor, did not invalidate the foreclosure judgment, though the judgment for counsel fees was void. Nev. Con. M. Co. v. Lewis, 34 Nev. 500; 126 P. 105.

IV. BY DEFAULT

(A) REQUISITES AND VALIDITY

4. Default in pleading—Failure to plead.

Under Rev. Laws, 5236, providing that, in an action upon contract for the recovery of money or damages only, if no answer has been filed within the time specified in the summons or such further time as may have been granted, the clerk on plaintiff's application shall enter defendant's default and immediately thereafter enter judgment against defendant, and that the word "answer" as used therein shall include any pleading that raises an issue of law or fact, whether it be by general or special appearance, while the filing of a demurrer is equivalent to the filing of an answer in preventing a default, where a demurrer to the complaint was sustained and a demurrer to an amended complaint was overruled, the demurrers had served their purpose and had no further effect, and upon defendant's failure to answer within the time allowed by the court the clerk could enter judgment by default. Esden v. May, 36 Nev. 611; 135 P. 1185.

5. Taking or entry of default.

Where a married woman sued to recover property held by her husband in trust for her from persons who had obtained it from her husband at a gambling game while he was intoxicated, the action being one on implied contract and not for a tort or for an uncertain sum or for relief requiring the exercise of judicial discretion, a default judgment was properly entered by the clerk. Esden v. May, 37 Nev. 305; 142 P. 530.

Rev. Laws, 5236, subd. 3, providing that, in actions where service is by publication, the plaintiff upon the expiration of the time within which the defendant is required to answer may apply for judgment, and the court shall thereafter require proof of publication, does not govern in actions where personal service is had upon a non-resident, even though the statute declares such service equivalent to publication, for there could be no proof as in case of publication, and the obvious intent of the statute was to protect the rights of nonresidents; hence a default in such case may be entered by the clerk. Long v. Tighe, 36 Nev. 129; 133 P. 60.

(B) OPENING OR SETTING ASIDE DEFAULT

6. Discretion of court.

While the granting or denying of a motion to open a default on the ground of inadvertence or excusable neglect is within the discretion of the trial court, it is a legal discretion to be exercised liberally in the interest of justice. Esden v. May, 36 Nev. 612; 135 P. 1185.

7. Invalidity of judgment.

An action in equity will lie to set aside a judgment which is procured by fraud. Boyce v. Third Chance M. Co., 36 Nev. 53; 133 P. 397.

A president of a corporation cannot take advantage of his position to gain a private benefit. Equity will decree a benefit gained by such fiduciary relation to inure to the benefit of the corporation or its stockholders. Id.

8. Meritorious cause of action or defense.

Under Rev. Laws, 5084, providing that the court may "in furtherance of justice" amend any pleading, etc., and that it may, upon such terms as may be just, relieve a party from a judgment taken against him through his mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, a default judgment cannot be set aside on the ground of excusable neglect unless a meritorious defense be shown. Esden v. May, 36 Nev. 612; 135 P. 1185.

Where proper service was had, equity will not set aside a default judgment for fraud in obtaining it, in the absence of a showing of a meritorious defense. Nev. Con. M. Co. v. Lewis, 34 Nev. 500; 126 P. 105.

A court of equity may set aside a default judgment where fraud was practiced in the very matter of obtaining the judgment, although no meritorious defense to the original action was shown; since in such case the fraud is regarded as having been practiced on the court as well as on the injured party. Id.

A court of equity will not, as a general rule, set aside a judgment regularly obtained by default, in the absence of a showing of a good and meritorious defense to the original action. Id.

That counsel for a mortgagee, who was a director of the defendant mortgagor, took a judgment in favor of himself for counsel fees against the mortgagor, did not invalidate the foreclosure judgment, though the judgment for counsel fees was void. Id.

9. Time for application.

Rev. Laws, 5048, providing that when summons and copy of complaint have not been personally served, court may allow defendant within six months to answer to merits, was made to cover cases only in which there was valid service by publication. Perry v. District Court, 42 Nev. 284; 174 P. 1058.

10. Affidavits on application and merits.

The affidavit of defendant's counsel to open a default and set aside the judgment, that he is familiar with the defense to be interposed in this action and believes it to be good and meritorious, is an insufficient showing. Sherwin v. Sherwin, 33 Nev. 321; 111 P. 286; 122 P. 481; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 108.

11. Counter affidavits and other evidence.

On an application to set aside a default judgment on the ground of excusable neglect, the affidavit and testimony of defendant's counsel that in his opinion a good and meritorious defense existed was not a sufficient showing of a meritorious defense, especially where the action was by a married woman to recover property held by her husband in trust for her from persons who obtained it from the husband at a gambling game while he was intoxicated, since the nature of the action was such as to require a clear showing of merits. Esden v. May, 36 Nev. 612; 135 P. 1185.

12. Conditions on granting application.

B., as plaintiff, brought action against defendant corporation, of which he was the president, and recovered judgment. B., as judgment creditor, then redeemed property of defendant corporation sold upon execution under a judgment previously obtained against defendant corporation in favor of A. M. A., father of A., and other stockholders of defendant corporation, intervened and moved to set aside the judgment in favor of B., upon the ground of fraud in its procurement. B., consenting thereto, and interveners not objecting, the court made an order, that the judgment in favor of B. would be set aside providing the property sold upon A.'s judgment was redeemed in favor of the corporation prior to the expiration of the last day for such redemption, and continued the hearing until such last day. No redemption in favor of the corporation from the A. judgment having been made within the time prescribed in the order and it appearing that no such redemption would be made, the motion to set aside the judgment in favor of B. was denied, and further hearing upon the motion to set aside was also denied. Held, that the orders of the court were not erroneous. Boyce v. Third Chance M. Co., 36 Nev. 53; 133 P. 397.

13. Dismissal of action, nonsuit, or direction of verdict.

Judgment reading. "And now all and singular in the premises being seen, heard and fully understood, and the material facts alleged in the libel not sufficiently proved to the satisfaction of the court, said libel is denied." Indicates, not an abandonment of the cause by plaintiff, the essential at common law of a nonsuit, but that the cause was submitted and determined on the merits. Dunforth v. Danforth, 40 Nev. 435; 166 P. 927.

VI. ON TRIAL OF ISSUES

(B) PARTIES

14. Joint or several judgment.

In view of Rev. Laws, 5004, 5240, and 5241, a joint and several judgment in action on bond against the executor of deceased surety and the surviving surety was not erroneous because against one de bonis propriis, and against the other de bonis testatoris. Pruett v. Caddigan, 42 Nev. 329; 176 P. 787.

(C) CONFORMITY TO PROCESS. PLEADINGS, PROOFS, AND VER- DICT OR FINDINGS

15. Conformity to pleadings and proofs— Prayer for relief.

Where, in an action to recover certain mines, plaintiffs sought to have the contract under which they claimed specifically enforced, and also asked for general relief, the court had jurisdiction to decree an accounting under a statute providing that, where parties appear, the court may grant any relief consistent with the case made by the complaint and embraced within the issue. Silver Peak Mines v. District Court, 33 Nev. 97; 110 P. 503; 29 Ann. Cas. 587.

VII. ENTRY, RECORD, AND DOCKETING

16. Entry nunc pro tunc.

The object and purpose of a nunc pro tunc order is to make the record speak the truth concerning acts already done, and not to supply an omitted action. Talbot v. Mack, 41 Nev. 245; 169 P. 25.

17. Judgment roll or record—Matters in- cluded.

A judgment roll includes the pleadings and judgment. Glock v. Elges, 39 Nev. 415; 159 P. 629.

VIII. AMENDMENT, CORRECTION AND REVIEW IN SAME COURT

18. Authority of court, judge or judicial officer.

Since terms of court are abolished, a judgment can be set aside or amended only as provided by Rev. Laws, 5084, except for fraud, etc. Sweeney v. Sweeney, 42 Nev. 431; 179 P. 638.

IX. OPENING OR VACATING

19. Statutory provisions.

Comp. Laws, 3163, permitting the court, in furtherance of justice, upon just terms, to relieve a party from a judgment, order, or other proceeding taken against him through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, should be very liberally construed in furtherance of its purpose. Whise v. Whise, 36 Nev. 16; 131 P. 967; 44 L. R. A. (N.S.) 689.

X. EQUITABLE RELIEF

(B) JURISDICTION AND PROCEEDINGS

20. Evidence.

Evidence, in an action to set aside a default judgment foreclosing a mortgage given by plaintiff company to defendant, on the ground of fraud in obtaining the judgment, held sufficient to support a finding that the summons and complaint were duly and regularly served upon the company in the foreclosure suit; that the judgment was regularly and legally obtained; and that defendant had no good or meritorious defense thereto. Nev. Con. M. Co. v. Lewis, 34 Nev. 500; 126 P. 105.

XI. COLLATERAL ATTACK

(B) GROUNDS

21. Invalidity of judgment.

A void judgment may be collaterally attacked. Long v. Tighe, 36 Nev. 129; 133 P. 60.

22. Want of jurisdiction—Presumptions as to special, limited, or inferior jurisdiction.

Plaintiff in an action to foreclose a mortgage failed to file any affidavit that all taxes on the money or debts secured had been paid, as required by Rev. Laws, 3756, which also provided that on motion of defendant the court should stay proceedings until such affidavit was filed or proof of payment of such taxes made, and that the court, before entering judgment should require such affidavit or proof. Held, in the absence of a provision making a judgment void for failure to comply with the statute, that its purpose was only to aid in the enforcement of other tax laws, and that, as the objection went neither to a question of fraud upon the court nor the defendant mortgagor, it was not ground for setting aside a default judgment therein. Nev. Con. M. Co. v. Lewis, 34 Nev. 501; 126 P. 105.

23. Errors and irregularities—Irregularities in proceedings.

A collateral attack upon a judgment is only permissible when the judgment is void for want of jurisdiction, and not if the court merely errs in some ruling. Daly v. Lahontan Mines Co., 39 Nev. 14; 151 P. 514; 158 P. 285.

Where the court had jurisdiction both over the subject-matter and the defendant in a mechanic's lien suit, its failure to enter an order consolidating with the suit a subsequent suit against the same defendant was merely an error in the exercise of jurisdiction, if it was the duty of the court so to consolidate, which could be asserted on appeal only, and not in an independent action. Daly v. Lahontan Mines Co., 39 Nev. 15; 151 P. 514; 158 P. 285.

XIII. MERGER AND BAR OF CAUSES OF ACTION AND DEFENSES

(A) JUDGMENTS OPERATIVE AS BAR

24. Judgment on motion or summary proceeding.

A default judgment entered by the clerk without authority was void, and the court of its own motion could set it aside and should do so, although a motion to set it aside on the ground of excusable neglect had previously been denied, notwithstanding district court rule 36 providing that no motion once heard and disposed of shall be renewed in the same cause, nor shall the same matters therein embraced be reheard, unless by leave of the court granted upon motion after notice to the adverse parties. Esden v. May, 36 Nev. 611; 135 P. 1185.

25. Judgment on discontinuance, dismissal or nonsuit.

An order for the nonsuit and dismissal of an action is not a judgment on the merits, and does not bar subsequent proceedings on the same cause of action. Clow v. West, 37 Nev. 267; 142 P. 226.

XIV. CONCLUSIVENESS OF ADJUDICATION

(B) PERSONS CONCLUDED

26. Identity of persons.

A judgment obtained in a federal court is not binding on parties litigant in a state court who were not made parties to the action in such federal court and whose rights were not subordinate to rights of a party or parties therein, and if deemed erroneous may be disregarded. Gamble v. Silver Peak, 34 Nev. 352; 126 P. 111.

27. Privity.

Under the rule that judgments are conclusive and binding not only on the parties to the action in which it was rendered, but on persons in privity with them in respect to the subject-matter of the litigation, where after possession of a car had passed from P. to C., and in an action by B. against C. it had been attached and judgment rendered for B., a bill of sale of the car was given by P. to I., the judgment is admissible to show title and right of possession in B. in replevin for the car by I. against B. Bank of Italy v. Burns, 39 Nev. 326; 156 P. 932.

The purchaser who acquires property after suit brought in which title to the property is involved is privity to the judgment; but, on the other hand, a purchaser of property before such suit is brought is not privity to the judgment. Id.

28. Successive estates or interests.

Where W. assigned an option in his name to H.; requested S., the owner of the property optioned, to deal with H.; accepted whatever interest he retained as subordinate to H.—a judgment obtained by S. cutting off all rights of H., under such option is binding on W. Gamble v. Silver Peak, 34 Nev. 351; 126 P. 111.

Where plaintiff's rights in mining property under contracts were subordinate to those of another, they were cut off by judgments cutting off such persons' rights. Id.

29. Persons not parties or privies.

One not a party to a judgment is not bound thereby. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 759.

(C) MATTERS CONCLUDED

30. Scope and extent of estoppel.

Where plaintiff was a party to a former action, and the matter adjudicated therein was the same as that sought to be presently adjudicated, plaintiff is bound by the judgment in the former action, and cannot seek relief, against the successors to the beneficiaries of the former judgment inconsistent with it. Bernard v. Metropolis L. Co., 40 Nev. 89; 160 P. 811.

31. Matters not in issue.

Where a judgment debtor instituted interpleader proceedings upon being garnished, but the right of a claimant to recover attorney's fees was not made an issue nor decided in such suit, the question is not rendered res judicata so as to prevent recovery of such fees in an action by the claimant for the wrongful garnishment of such judgment. McIntosh v. Knox, 40 Nev. 403; 165 P. 337.

XVII. FOREIGN JUDGMENTS

32. Judgments of state courts—Want of jurisdiction.

While an action may be maintained in one state on a judgment or decree rendered in another, such judgment must be valid, and it will support no action where rendered against a nonresident, who was not served within the state and did not appear. Keenan v. Keenan, 40 Nev. 352; 164 P. 351.

33. Judgments of state courts—Enforcement in other states.

A judgment on substituted service of summons is enforceable only on the property within the state out of which summons is issued. Id.

XIX. SUSPENSION, ENFORCEMENT, AND REVIVAL

34. Proceedings to revive judgment.

Despite Rev. Laws, 5843, where a divorce decree provides for installment payments of alimony and for support of child, former wife cannot nearly three years after judgment, and after husband's death, revive cause, and, under guise of making his representatives parties defendant, retry issue of alimony and child support and recover judgment for lump sum instead of monthly payments, and declare it a prior lien on the husband's estate, a judgment entirely different from original judgment. Sweeney v. Sweeney, 42 Nev. 432; 179 P. 638.

XXII. PLEADING AND EVIDENCE OF JUDGMENT AS ESTOPPEL OR DEFENSE

35. Allegations, admissions, and denials.

In an action to restrain the diversion of water, allegations of defendant's affirmative answer setting forth the court, the jurisdiction, the subject-matter, and the scope and effect of a former action, and plaintiff's connection with the subject-matter, the final judgment bearing upon and having to do with that matter, the common and general interest of plaintiff in that subject-matter, and his connection with the force and effect of the former judgment, was sufficient to constitute a proper pleading of former judgment affecting the parties. Bernard v. Metropolis L. Co., 40 Nev. 89; 160 P. 811.

If a judgment of another state, pleaded as res judicata, could under a rule of that state be merely one of nonsuit, which it could not be under the laws of this state, such rule must be pleaded and proven. Danforth v. Danforth, 40 Nev. 435; 166 P. 927.

36. Issues, proof and variance.

While under Rev. Laws, 5070, the answer pleading as res judicata a judgment of a court of another state, denying divorce, as to which no presumption of regularity of proceedings obtains, need not plead the jurisdictional facts, yet, the reply denying the rendering of the judgment, they must be proven, except those admitted by the reply. Danforth v. Danforth, 40 Nev. 436; 166 P. 927.

37. Trial and review.

The truth of a sufficiently alleged plea of former judgment affecting the same parties and the same subject-matter as involved in the present case was for the trial court, if the plea was denied. Bernard v. Metropolis L. Co., 40 Nev. 90; 160 P. 811.

JURY

- II. RIGHT TO TRIAL BY JURY.
 1. Civil proceedings other than actions.
 2. Waiver of right—In civil cases.
- IV. SUMMONING, ATTENDANCE, DISCHARGE, AND COMPENSATION.
 3. Jury list.
 4. Selection and drawing of regular panel.
 5. Excusing and discharging jurors from attendance.
- V. COMPETENCY OF JURORS, CHALLENGES AND OBJECTIONS.
 6. Business connection or transaction with party or attorney.
 7. Bias or prejudice.
 8. Formation and expression of opinion as to cause.
 9. Challenges for cause—Making and sufficiency.
 10. Challenges for cause—Examination of jurors.
 11. Formation and expression of opinion as to cause—From rumor and newspaper reports.
 12. Challenge to panel or array, and motion to quash venire—Grounds.
 13. Challenge to panel or array, and motion to quash venire—Time.
 14. Challenge for cause—Trial and determination.

II. RIGHT TO TRIAL BY JURY

1. Civil proceedings other than actions.

In a proceeding to condemn land as a place for the keeping of tailings from an ore mill, defendants contended that tailings already placed on their lands were abandoned by plaintiff and had become their property, and that there was therefore no necessity for condemning the land as a place to store such tailings. Held, that defendants were not entitled to a jury trial on this question of ownership of the tailings, as it was an incident of the determination of the right of condemnation which was a question solely for the court. Goldfield Con. v. O. S. A. Co., 38 Nev. 428; 150 P. 313.

2. Waiver of right—In civil cases.

The trial court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to set aside a waiver of jury trial made in open court, where the application was not made until the trial. De Remer v. Anderson, 41 Nev. 288; 169 P. 737.

Where the right to a jury trial is waived by oral consent in open court, entered in the minutes pursuant to Rev. Laws, 5226, setting aside such waiver rests in the trial court's discretion. Id.

IV. SUMMONING, ATTENDANCE, DISCHARGE, AND COMPENSATION

3. Jury list.

That the names of the trial jurors were deposited by the commissioners in a jury box which contained names of trial jurors selected for the previous year, which had not been withdrawn therefrom, did not prejudice accused. State v. Bachman, 41 Nev. 197; 168 P. 733.

4. Selection and drawing of regular panel.

The drawing of the panel of jurors in the courtroom, instead of the office of the county clerk, as provided for by Rev. Laws, 4930, was not error; such statute being merely directory. State v. Sella, 42 Nev. 467; 168 P. 278; 180 P. 980.

In the absence of bad faith or corruption on the part of the board of county commissioners in selecting jurors for the year, the presence of the district attorney and his offering suggestions as to qualifications would not vitiate the panel. State v. Bachman, 41 Nev. 197; 168 P. 733.

5. Excusing and discharging jurors from attendance.

Under Rev. Laws, 4903, providing that the two judges of the district court shall have concurrent and coextensive jurisdiction, one judge of the district court has power to excuse jurors and to issue a second venire to fill out the panel. State v. Switzer, 38 Nev. 108; 145 P. 925.

V. COMPETENCY OF JURORS, CHALLENGES AND OBJECTIONS

6. Business connection or transaction with party or attorney.

The relation of landlord and tenant between a juror and a party authorizes the sustaining of a challenge to a juror under Comp. Laws, 3259, subsec. 3, making it ground for challenge for cause to a juror that he is "united in business" with either party. Sherman v. Southern Pacific Co., 33 Nev. 385; 111 P. 416; 115 P. 909; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 217.

7. Bias or prejudice.

A juror in a trial for murder who, from what he had read and heard, had formed and expressed an opinion going to the merits of the case, and had talked about it with several persons, none of whom had witnessed the homicide, and who on inquiry stated that he had an opinion as to defendant's guilt which would require testimony to remove, but that he would lay such opinion aside and try the case on the evidence, was not incompetent on the ground of actual bias. State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 64; 145 P. 919; 150 P. 764.

A challenge to a juror, who on voir dire testified that he entertained an opinion which he could lay aside without any evidence, and that he could determine the case according to the evidence and the instructions, and that he had not expressed any opinion, but that he had at the present time some belief on the guilt or innocence of the accused, based on what he had heard, was properly denied. State v. Casey, 34 Nev. 154; 117 P. 5.

8. Formation and expression of opinion as to cause.

The existence of a mere abstract opinion of a juror, in which no element of malice or unnecessary prejudice enters, does not form a just ground for the rejection of the juror, though he admits that the defense of insanity, owing to its abuse, raises a feeling of hostility to accused, and where the evidence shows that, notwithstanding his feelings against the defense, the juror will be guided by the testimony, uninfluenced by any bias, he is competent. State v. Casey, 34 Nev. 155; 117 P. 5.

A challenge to a juror, who on voir dire admitted that he entertained a prejudice against the defense of hereditary insanity and acute alcoholic insanity, and did not believe in their existence, but who stated that if legal insanity was shown by the evidence and the instructions he would give proper credit to the defense, was properly denied. Id.

9. Challenges for cause—Making and sufficiency.

Rev. Laws, 7145-7146, allow a challenge for cause on the general ground that a juror is disqualified for want of any qualification prescribed by law, and on the particular ground that he is disqualified from serving in an action on trial. Section 7147 allows a challenge for such a state of mind on the part of the juror as leads to a just inference that he will not act with entire impartiality, designated "actual bias." Section 7150 provides that in a challenge for actual bias it must be alleged that the juror is biased against the party challenging him, but that no one shall be disqualified by reason of a formed or expressed opinion on the matter in issue, provided that it appears to the court that he can act impartially in the trial. Held, that a challenge "for actual bias," not stating any ground upon which the challenge rested or any reason on which it was made or the party against whom the jury was biased, was in form insufficient. (Norcross, J., dissenting.) State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 64; 145 P. 919; 150 P. 764.

10. Challenges for cause—Examination of jurors.

Court did not err, in a homicide case, in asking jurors on their voir dire whether they had any conscientious scruples against the infliction of the death penalty; there being nothing to indicate that the evidence would not sustain such a verdict. State v. Milosovich, 42 Nev. 263; 175 P. 139.

11. Formation and expression of opinion as to cause—From rumor and newspaper reports.

An opinion based merely on rumors and newspaper reports does not disqualify a juror. Id.

12. Challenge to panel or array, and motion to quash venire—Grounds.

Under Rev. Laws, 7133, providing that a challenge to the panel can be founded only on a material departure from the forms prescribed by statute in respect to the drawing and return of the jury, or on the intentional omission of the proper officer to summon one or more of the jurors, an objection to the panel, on the ground that the court having summoned a panel of jurors excused a portion of them and issued a second venire is not well taken. State v. Switzer, 38 Nev. 108; 145 P. 925.

13. Challenge to panel or array, and motion to quash venire—Time.

Under Rev. Laws, 7134, providing that a challenge to the panel must be taken before a juror is sworn, an objection to the panel, first made after the jury was sworn, on the ground that the court had issued a second venire after excusing a portion of the first venire, came too late. Id.

14. Challenge for cause—Trial and determination.

It is not error to fail to appoint triers to determine a challenge for actual bias, where there has been no demand for the appointment of triers. State v. Casey, 34 Nev. 155; 117 P. 5.

In determining the condition of a juror's mind as to his qualifications, all of his examination on voir dire should be considered and doubts as to his qualification resolved in favor of accused. State v. Casey, 34 Nev. 154; 117 P. 5.

JURY VERDICT ADVISORY IN EQUITY CAUSES

III. CIVIL JURISDICTION AND AUTHORITY

1. Character of parties.

Under Const. art. 6, secs. 6-8, providing that district courts shall have jurisdiction in all cases where the demand exceeds $300 and all cases relating to the persons and estates of minors and insane persons, and giving the legislature power to fix the powers of justices of the peace, provided they shall not have jurisdiction conflicting with that of courts of record, and Rev. Laws, 5714, 5726, conferring jurisdiction upon justices' courts in actions on contract for the recovery of money only where the demand is not over $300, and providing for appearance by general guardian or guardian ad litem of an infant or insane person in justice's court, a justice's court has jurisdiction in actions at law brought by the guardian of a minor where the amount involved does not exceed $300. Killgrove v. Morriss, 39 Nev. 224; 156 P. 686.

2. Amount or value in controversy—Determination of amount or value.

Const. art. 6, sec. 8, enacted while Stats. 1861, c. 15, was in force in the territory, providing for the foreclosing of all liens in one action, requires the legislature to fix the powers of justices of the peace, and authorizes it to confer jurisdiction upon them, concurrent with the district courts, of actions to enforce mechanics' liens wherein the amount does not exceed $300. Rev. Laws, 5714, is to the same effect, and section 2224 allows any number of lien claimants to join in the same action and the court to consolidate separate actions; and section 2227 provides that such liens may be enforced by an action in any court of competent jurisdiction, and, as amended by Stats. 1907, c. 90, applied to mechanics' lien proceeding in justice's court where the sum involved does not exceed $300. Held, that the words "sum involved" mean the sum involved in the several liens embraced in a suit, and that a justice's court had no jurisdiction of an action to foreclose mechanics' liens, where the total amount of the liens exceeds $300 notwithstanding each of the liens is for a less amount. Phillips v. Snowden Placer Co., 40 Nev. 66; 160 P. 786.

3. Jurisdiction to be shown by record.

Justice courts being of special, limited, and inferior jurisdiction, proceedings therein must show such facts as constitute a case within the jurisdiction, and otherwise the law regards the whole proceeding as coram non iudice and void. State v. Breen, 41 Nev. 516; 173 P. 555.

IV. PROCEDURE IN CIVIL CASES

4. Process—Service.

Under Rev. Laws, 5732, providing that summons may be served by a sheriff or constable of the state or by any other person of the age of 21 years or over, not a party to the action, personal service upon a nonresident defendant made by a nonresident whose affidavit recited that he was over the age of 18 years was ineffectual, and could not give the justice court jurisdiction to render judgment. Lawson v. Dunseath, 41 Nev. 321; 170 P. 19.

5. Process—Defects, objections, and amendment.

Where the summons issued out of justice court and served upon defendant was not signed by the justice, it is voidable, and may be set aside upon appropriate motion. Wong Kee v. Lillis, 37 Nev. 5; 138 P. 900.

6. Appearance and representation by attorney.

The answer of a defendant in an action before a justice's court stated that defendant objected that no copy of the complaint was served upon him, and prayed that service of summons be set aside as void, and further stated that defendant, without waiving his objection to want of service of a copy of the complaint, for answer thereto denied each allegation thereof. Held, that the justice's court acquired jurisdiction of defendant's person. Bancroft v. Pike, 33 Nev. 53; 110 P. 1.

7. Pleading—Mode and form.

The same technical pleadings are not required in a civil action in the justice's court as is required in a criminal complaint, or in pleadings in the district court. State v. Langan, 36 Nev. 577; 137 P. 517.

8. Pleading—Declaration, complaint, or statement of demand.

A complaint in a justice's court alleging, in effect, that defendant undertook the collection of a lien on certain mining property for one S. and thereafter recovered the full amount of the lien claim; that after suit was instituted, but prior to judgment, S. assigned to plaintiff all interest in said lien claim subject to the payment of costs and expenses of collection; that, after paying such costs and expenses, defendant had remaining in his possession $154.55; that plaintiff was the owner of said lien and entitled to an accounting from defendant of the amount realized; that defendant owes plaintiff $154.55 and demands judgment therefor, states a cause of action sufficiently to invest the justice's court with jurisdiction to try the action originally and the district court to try the same de novo on appeal. Id.

9. Judgment—By default.

Since the civil practice act, section 294 (Rev. Laws, 5236), providing for entry of judgment for the plaintiff where defendant fails to answer, and that an answer shall include any pleading that raises an issue of law or fact, whether by general or special appearance, is not made applicable to justices' courts by reason of civil practice act, sec. 873 (Rev. Laws, 5815), providing that only the provisions of the act which are in their nature, or which have been made, applicable, are applicable to justices' courts and the proceedings therein, because civil practice act, sec. 812 (Rev. Laws, 5754), sets forth a separate and complete system governing trials and judgments in the justice court, similar to the system prescribed by section 294; and when a separate and independent section is found in the practice act covering the matter of pleading in the justice court, it must be construed that the legislative intent was to limit the provisions of section 294 to the district court; the relator's special appearance challenging the jurisdiction of the justice court was not affected by the provisions of section 294 and was not an answer. Regan v. King, 39 Nev. 216; 156 P. 688.

Under civil practice act, section 812, governing trials and judgments in the justice court, and providing that where the defendant fails to answer within the time specified in the summons, the court may render judgment in favor of the plaintiff, where the plaintiff appeared specially and filed a motion to dismiss the complaint, but did not answer, the justice did not exceed his jurisdiction in entering a default against a defendant and denying him time to answer after the time prescribed by law had expired. Id.

V. REVIEW OF PROCEEDINGS(A) APPEAL AND ERROR*10. Nature and form of remedy.

In the absence of a statute, a justice of the peace cannot certify a case to another court. State v. Breen, 41 Nev. 516; 173 P. 555.

11. Appellate jurisdiction.

If a justice's court did not acquire jurisdiction of defendant's person, the district court would not have jurisdiction of an appeal from its judgment, and should dismiss the appeal. Bancroft v. Pike, 33 Nev. 53; 110 P. 1.

The district court has final appellate jurisdiction over justice's court, so that where defendant, having suffered adverse judgment in justice's court, brought certiorari to the district court, which dismissed the writ, the supreme court had no jurisdiction over an appeal under the title of the cause followed in the justice's court; a different title having been used in the district court. Mazade v. Justice Court, 41 Nev. 481; 172 P. 378.

The jurisdiction of an appellate court on appeal from a justice's court is entirely derivative, and such court acquires no jurisdiction to try a case on appeal from a justice's court where the latter is without jurisdiction to entertain the case and render judgment therein. State v. Breen, 41 Nev. 516; 173 P. 555.

The general rule is that the district court acquires no jurisdiction to try a cause on appeal from a justice's court, where the justice's court was without jurisdiction to entertain the case and render judgment therein. Phillips v. Snowden Placer Co., 40 Nev. 66; 160 P. 786.

Where the justice's court had no jurisdiction of a suit to enforce mechanics' liens wherein the aggregate amount involved exceeded $300, but where the district court had original concurrent jurisdiction of the subject-matter, without such limitation as to amount, and where the defendant therein, after judgment for the plaintiff and the intervening claimants, appealed to the district court, where trial was had without any question being raised as to its jurisdiction, he was estopped to thereafter question the district court's jurisdiction on the ground that it had no greater jurisdiction on appeal than the justice's court. Id.

12. Requisites and proceedings for transfer of cause—Bonds or other securities.

The Nevada statute (Comp. Laws, 3679), provides that an appeal from a justice's court shall not be effectual unless an undertaking be filed in the sum of $100 in gold coin, for the payment of the costs on appeal, and further provides that a deposit of the amount of the judgment appealed from, including all costs, "shall be equivalent to the filing of the undertaking in this section mentioned." Held, that a deposit with a justice of a sum equal to the amount of the judgment appealed from, including costs, is equivalent to the filing of an undertaking for the payment of the costs on appeal. Whether such deposit is sufficient to also stay execution, not determined. Floyd v. District Court, 36 Nev. 349; 135 P. 922.

Where the sureties' sufficiency is not excepted to within five days, as required by Rev. Laws, 5792, the district court acquires jurisdiction, notwithstanding that two days later appellant admits due service of such exceptions before the justice has certified the case. Yowell v. District Court, 39 Nev. 423; 159 P. 632.

Under Rev. Laws, 5792, providing that an appeal from a justice to a district court will be regarded as if no undertaking was given, unless the sureties, when challenged, justify after notice, etc., held that their justification in the prescribed manner is essential to the district court's jurisdiction, where their sufficiency was properly challenged. Id.

13. Determination and disposition of cause—Remand and proceedings before justice.

The district court may either dismiss an appeal from a justice's court, or may try the case de novo, but cannot refuse to do either, so that if the justice's court had jurisdiction to enter its judgment, the district court could not on appeal to it remand the case and compel the justice's court to again assume jurisdiction. Bancroft v. Pike, 33 Nev. 53; 110 P. 1.

(B) CERTIORARI14. Review.

On certiorari to review a judgment of the justice court because of a defect in the summons, the judgment should be vacated where the docket of the justice did not affirmatively show a sufficient service of summons. Wong Kee v. Lillis, 37 Nev. 5; 138 P. 900.

Facts essential to establish the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace must affirmatively appear. A recital in a justice's docket that summons was "duly served" or that the attorney "came into court and made return on summons as by law provided," is insufficient. Id.

9. Actions for unlawful detainer — Right of action and defense.

10. Actions for unlawful detainer — Jurisdiction and proceedings.

III. LANDLORD'S TITLE AND REVERSION(A) RIGHTS AND POWERS OF LANDLORD*1. Assignment of rent.

The lessor's assignment of "all rents due and to become due under" a certain lease was not an assignment in itself of the lease, and did not create an estate or interest in the lands within Rev. Laws, 1038, 1039, 1069, stating the requisites of an instrument affecting the estates or interests in lands and of recordation in order to constitute notice. Washoe Co. Bank v. Campbell, 41 Nev. 153; 167 P. 643.

Such an assignment does not, when recorded, constitute notice to the lessees of the assignment. Id.

In the absence of actual or constructive notice to the lessees of an assignment of the rent due or to become due, they could interpose against the assignee any defenses maintainable against the lessor. Id.

(B) ESTOPPEL OF TENANT2. Leases and agreements as ground of estoppel.

The rule that a tenant cannot dispute his landlord's title does not apply to a defendant in unlawful detainer, seeking to show the nonexistence of the relation of landlord and tenant. Yori v. Phenix, 38 Nev. 277; 149 P. 180.

IV. TERMS FOR YEARS(C) EXTENSIONS, RENEWALS, AND OPTIONS TO PURCHASE OR SELL*3. Renewal leases.

Evidence that lessee worked the demised premises from the date of the lease, although the landlord's horses were pastured on it for several weeks from such date, held not to establish a consideration for an agreement extending the lease two weeks. De Remer v. Anderson, 41 Nev. 287; 169 P. 737.

A rental receipt for a period longer than that named in the lease is only evidence of money paid, and does not establish a new consideration necessary to a modification of the lease. Id.

V. TENANCIES FROM YEAR TO YEAR AND MONTH TO MONTH4. Creation of tenancy from month to month.

A lease for an indefinite term, with monthly rental reserved, creates a tenancy from month to month, unless certain special circumstances alter the rule. Proskey v. Colonial Hotel Co., 36 Nev. 76; 133 P. 390.

VIII. RENT AND ADVANCES(A) RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES*5. Surrender.

Where a landlord grants a new lease to a stranger with the assent of the tenant during the existence of an outstanding lease, and the tenant gives up his own possession to the stranger, who thereafter pays rent, or where in any other way a new tenant is by agreement of the tenant and the landlord substituted and accepted in place of the old, there is a surrender by operation of law. Washoe Co. Bank v. Campbell, 41 Nev. 153; 167 P. 643.

Where the landlord and his assignee of rents after lessees failed to pay the rents negotiated with other parties who subsequently went on the premises and paid the rent after the assignee was told by the lessees that a third person would assume the lease and made no objection, the landlord and the assignee were estopped to sue the lessees for the rent. Id.

6. Payment.

A complaint alleging that respondent had entered into a contract with appellant to lease him a certain apartment in respondent's hotel, appellant to have the sole and exclusive control, use and occupancy of said apartment for the safe keeping of his personal effects and papers, during a contemplated absence of several months, at an agreed rental per month until his return, which rental was paid as agreed; that the sole inducement and consideration for making such contract was the safe keeping and security of appellant's personal effects and papers; that during the absence of appellant and without his knowledge or consent, respondent rented said apartment to divers and sundry persons, thus permitting them to have access to appellant's said papers and effects, if such persons so desired—fails to state a cause of action for total failure of consideration, it not appearing from the complaint that the personal effects of appellant were not safely kept, or that any person did view, observe, or in any way molest his effects or papers or gained any knowledge therefrom, and that part of the amount sued for was for time when appellant was in actual personal occupancy of the leased apartment. Proskey v. Colonial Hotel Co., 36 Nev. 76; 133 P. 390.

(B) ACTIONS

7. Evidence.

In action of the landlord's assignee for rent, it is proper for the trial court to consider the occupancy of the premises and payment of the rentals by other parties than the original lessee when such facts were known and acknowledged by the lessor. Washoe Co. Bank v. Campbell, 41 Nev. 153; 167 P. 643.

Where the lessees in an action by the landlord's assignee for rent claimed a release by operation of law, it was proper for the trial court to consider occupation of premises and payment of rentals by third persons with the knowledge of the landlord. Washoe Co. Bank v. Campbell, 41 Nev. 154; 167 P. 643.

Evidence held to sustain finding that the lessees delivered up possession of the premises to a third person, notifying the person to whom they had been accustomed to pay rentals, and that the third person continued in possession and made at least one rent payment to such agent. Id.

IX. REENTRY AND RECOVERY OF POSSESSION BY LANDLORD

8. Actions for unlawful detainer—Nature and form.

The purpose of the unlawful detainer statutes is to afford a summary remedy to landlords where the relationship of landlord and tenant exists, and a mere prima facie showing of the existence of the relation does not preclude defendant from showing facts establishing the nonexistence of the relation. Yori v. Phenix, 38 Nev. 277; 149 P. 180.

9. Actions for unlawful detainer—Right of action and defenses.

Under Const. art. 6, sec. 14, declaring that there shall be but one form of civil action, in which law and equity may be administered, and civil practice act, sec. 1 (Rev. Laws, 4943), providing that there shall be but one form of civil action for the enforcement or protection of private rights, and section 559 (section 5501), providing that there shall be but one action for the recovery of any debt or the enforcement of any right secured by a mortgage or lien, and section 576 (section 5518), declaring that a mortgage shall not be deemed a conveyance, and section 601 (section 5603), declaring that the provisions of this act relative to civil actions, appeals, and new trials shall apply to proceedings in forcible entry and detainer, a defendant in an action under section 646 (section 5588), for unlawful detainer may show the nonexistence of the relation of landlord and tenant essential to the maintenance of the action, and may show that an instrument in form a lease was a part of another instrument, and that the two constituted a mortgage, and thereby defeat the action. Id.

10. Actions for unlawful detainer—Jurisdiction and proceedings.

Rev. Laws, 5590, concerning unlawful detainer and providing that "judgment shall be rendered against the defendant * * * for the rent and for three times the amount of damages assessed," does not clearly authorize the trebling of the amount of rent found due, as the statute mentions other elements of damage, such as waste, and while the legislature has used language to indicate that in some way treble damages are to be recovered from tenants holding over, the statute having failed to show what damages should be trebled, as penalties and forfeitures will not be extended by implication and doubtful construction, no such judgment can be rendered against a tenant holding over. Regan v. King, 39 Nev. 216; 156 P. 688.

1. Property subject of larceny—Nature.

Rev. Laws, 6640 (Crimes and Punishment Act, sec. 375), which defines the stealing of "cattle" as grand larceny, embraces cows, bulls, and steers of the domesticated bovine genus. State v. District Court, 42 Nev. 218; 174 P. 1023.

2. Taking—Consent of owner.

The watchman of an ore-milling company was directed by a deputy sheriff, who was in the employ of the company, to apparently agree to permit accused to extract and conceal ore, inducing accused to believe that he would act as an accomplice, but not to actually assist him in taking the ore; and the watchman made an arrangement with accused by which he was to give a signal when accused could safely take the ore, but refused to actually assist in taking and disposing of it. Held, that there was no consent by the company's agents to the taking of the ore, so as to prevent its taking from being larceny. State v. Smith, 33 Nev. 438; 117 P. 19.

3. Grand or petit larceny and degrees.

Petit larceny as defined by statute is a generic offense and is not an offense included within the crime of grand larceny. Ex Parte Dickson, 36 Nev. 94; 133 P. 393.

I. WORDS AND ACTS ACTIONABLE AND LIABILITY THEREFOR1. Actionable words.

Any false and malicious writing published of another is "libelous per se" when its tendency is to render the party contemptible or ridiculous in public estimation or expose him to public hatred or contempt. Talbot v. Mack, 41 Nev. 245; 169 P. 25.

Words or expressions are "actionable per se" when their injurious character is a fact of common notoriety and generally so understood where the utterance is published, and words or expressions "libelous per quod" are such as require that their injurious character or effect be established by allegation and proof. Talbot v. Mack, 41 Nev. 246; 169 P. 25.

2. Words tending to injure in profession or business.

While words which directly tend to the prejudice of any one in his office, profession, trade, or business are actionable per se, all words disparaging persons in such matters are not, without proof of damage, actionable in themselves. Id.

Statement in a letter to stockholders in an insurance company, that the company is overloaded with salaries and traveling expenses, without making reference to the plaintiff, is not libelous per se. Talbot v. Mack, 41 Nev. 245; 169 P. 25.

The term "overload," used in a letter stating that an insurance business was overloaded, means bearing too heavy a burden or too heavily loaded, but implies nothing defamatory on its face in the sense of imputing dishonesty, lack of fair dealing, want of fidelity, integrity, or business ability. Id.

3. Words actionable as causing special damage—Nature and meaning.

In action for libel by words not actionable per se, special damages must be alleged and proved. Talbot v. Mack, 41 Nev. 246; 169 P. 25.

4. Construction of language used.

In determining whether words charged are libelous per se, they are to be taken in their plain and natural import according to the ideas they convey to those to whom they are addressed, reference being had not only to the words themselves but also to the circumstances under which they were used. Talbot v. Mack, 41 Nev. 245; 169 P. 25.

5. Certainty—Person defamed.

In action for libel there can be no recovery unless the actionable words or assertions referred to the plaintiff at least with reasonable certainty. Talbot v. Mack, 41 Nev. 246; 169 P. 25.

6. Declaration, complaint or petition—Innuendoes.

Language or terms, which are not libelous per se, when viewed in the light of their general acceptance and understanding in the community or vicinity in which they are used cannot be made so through the function or force of an innuendo. Talbot v. Mack, 41 Nev. 245; 169 P. 25.

The innuendo will not introduce new matter, nor will it be permitted to aid to the extent of enlarging the meaning of the words or expressions used. Id.

In an action for libel, if the words or expressions complained of are ambiguous or equivocal, the innuendo may assign the true meaning the plaintiff believes them to bear; but if the words alone, or the words limited by circumstances duly pleaded, are not defamatory, the innuendo cannot make them so. Talbot v. Mack, 41 Nev. 246; 169 P. 25.

7. Declaration, complaint or petition—Special damages.

In action for damages by words not actionable per se, the allegation that "by means of said false, libelous and defamatory publication or publications the plaintiff herein was injured in his reputation and good name and standing to his damage in the sum of $50,000," is insufficient as an allegation of special damages. Id.

V. SLANDER OF PROPERTY OR TITLE8. Nature and elements.

While the original term "slander" was applied more to words or utterances, the nature of which were defamatory of individuals, the term is applicable to utterances with reference to property, whether real or personal; but, in order to maintain an action for slander of title to property, it is necessary to show that the words spoken were false, that they were maliciously spoken, and that plaintiff suffered a pecuniary injury. Potosi Zinc Co. v. Mahoney, 36 Nev. 390; 135 P. 1078.

In slander of title it must appear that the defamation complained of was published, and the rule existing in libel cases that they are not deemed to be published where the manuscript comes directly and unread into the possession and control of the plaintiff is applicable; the defendant not being liable where plaintiff, having received it, displays it to third persons. Id.

9. Injury from slander.

In general, in actions for slander of title to property, there can be no recovery except for damages, and a party is hardly entitled to the extension of an option because of the grantor's slander of the option. Id.

10. Actions.

In an action by the grantees of an option, where they sought an extension of the same because of the grantor's slander of the option, evidence held insufficient to establish such slander. Id.

VI. CRIMINAL RESPONSIBILITY

(A) OFFENSES

11. Nature and elements.

Rev. Laws, 6428, declaring that every person convicted of libel shall be fined in a sum not exceeding $5,000 or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year, or in the state prison not exceeding five years, divides the crime of libel into two offenses, one a felony, and the other a misdemeanor. Ex Parte Booth, 39 Nev. 183; 154 P. 933; L. R. A. 1916F, 960.

(B) PROSECUTION AND PUNISHMENT

12. Questions for jury.

Under Rev. Laws, 6428, declaring that every person convicted of libel shall be fined in a sum not exceeding $5,000, or imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding one year, or in the state prison not exceeding five years, and that the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the fact, together with section 7196, also declaring that the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the fact, the determination whether a libel is a felony or a misdemeanor is for the jury. Id.

13. Verdict.

Rev. Laws, 6428, declares that the punishment for libel shall be fine and imprisonment in the county jail, or imprisonment in the penitentiary, and that the jury shall be the judge of the law and the fact. Section 7196 makes similar provision. Sections 7216 and 7218 declare that a verdict on a plea of not guilty shall be either guilty or not guilty, and that, if a crime is distinguished into degrees, the jury must find the degree, while sections 7221 and 7222 provide for the reconsideration of an informal verdict, and that no judgment of conviction shall be given unless the jury find expressly against the defendant. In a prosecution for libel the verdict was: "We, the jury * * * find the defendant * * * guilty of a gross misdemeanor." Held that, as the jury were entitled to find the grade of the offense, and as the whole record might be looked to, the verdict was not so indefinite that a judgment entered thereon was void; such verdict indicating the degree of the offense of which accused was convicted. Id.

LICENSES

I. FOR OCCUPATIONS AND PRIVILEGES.

1. Power to license or tax.
2. Power to license or tax—Delegation of power.
3. Constitutionality and validity of acts and ordinances.
4. Subjects of license or tax—Mercantile business.
5. Proceedings to secure license or certificate.

II. IN RESPECT OF REAL PROPERTY.

6. Revocation—Licenses revocable.

I. FOR OCCUPATIONS AND PRIVILEGES

1. Power to license or tax.

The proviso to Stats. 1881, c. 48, added by Stats. 1889, c. 43, reading that in all unincorporated cities and towns the board of county commissioners shall have power to fix and collect a tax upon certain businesses and amusements, and none other, does not apply to towns which established their form of government after the unincorporated town act (Stats. 1879, c. 98) had been repealed by Stats. 1887, c. 43, or to towns which, by reason of their having a voting population of 600 or more, ipso facto come under the general town government act, the term "unincorporated towns" not referring to all towns within the state not incorporated; as to give it such interpretation would nullify the grant by the legislature in the body of the act of power to boards of county commissioners to levy and collect a license tax upon numerous specific businesses, but referring specifically to towns which have assumed a form of town government under the act of 1879 entitled "An act to provide for the government of unincorporated towns in this state." Nye County v. Schmidt, 39 Nev. 456; 157 P. 1073.

2. Power to license or tax—Delegation of power.

Under Reno City Charter, art. 12, sec. 10, subd. 12, as amended by Stats. 1915, c. 184, giving the city council power to impose a license tax on and regulate hacks, hackney coaches, and "all other vehicles used for hire," the city council had authority to pass an ordinance licensing and regulating the operation of jitney busses. Ex Parte Counts, 39 Nev. 61; 153 P. 93.

3. Constitutionality and validity of acts and ordinances.

A city ordinance, licensing jitney busses and regulating the tax according to the seating capacity, was not invalid as failing to comply with the charter provision that all licenses should be graduated according to the amount of business done. Id.

4. Subjects of license or tax—Mercantile business.

Drummers and traveling salesmen representing mercantile houses in other states are exempt from license within this state under the provisions of the federal constitution relative to interstate commerce, and the purpose of Rev. Laws, 3879, was to place drummers and salesmen representing mercantile houses within the state upon the same equality. Byran v. City of Sparks, 36 Nev. 573; 137 P. 522.

Under a city ordinance providing that "Every person engaged in the business of selling at retail, or any manner other than at a fixed place of business within the city, any goods, wares, or merchandise shall obtain a quarterly license and shall pay therefor $15 per quarter," a person owning a place of business outside the city limits where he manufactured and compounded certain articles used in the grocery trade, and, acting as his own salesman, solicited orders in the city and sold to restaurants, hotels, bakeries, and confectioners other kinds of groceries than manufactured and compounded by him, in both small and large quantities and in broken and unbroken packages, and filled orders given to him by such customers, is a retailer and liable for the license mentioned in the ordinance and is not exempt therefrom under the provisions of Rev. Laws, 3879, exempting drummers and traveling salesmen representing a factory or store located in this state. Id.

A person who, in addition to other lines of business, purchases and sells groceries in small quantities and broken packages, differently from wholesalers, is a retailer, and is required to pay a license as such. Id.

5. Proceedings to secure license or certificate.

As used in act approved February 20, 1909 (Rev. Laws, 4453), section 9, providing that the state board of embalmers shall recognize licenses issued in another state, and on presentation thereof shall issue the regular license to the holders, the word "shall" is not equivalent to "may," but is mandatory. Eddy v. Board of Embalmers, 40 Nev. 329; 163 P. 245.

II. IN RESPECT OF REAL PROPERTY

6. Revocation—Licenses revocable.

An executed parol license, though without consideration, is irrevocable. Sheehan v. Kasper, 41 Nev. 28; 165 P. 632.

IV. OPERATION AND EFFECT OF BAR BY LIMITATION.

12. Bar of debt as affecting security.

13. Persons barred.

I. STATUTES OF LIMITATION(A) NATURE, VALIDITY AND CONSTRUCTION*1. Construction of limitation laws.

The statute of limitations, like any other statute, is to be construed according to the manifest intention of the legislature, and, in ascertaining such intention, the language used should be construed, if possible, according to the usual meaning of the words used. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 172; 161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064.

(B) LIMITATIONS APPLICABLE TO PARTICULAR ACTIONS2. Actions or proceedings not specially provided for.

Action, by one claiming to be member of joint adventure, to establish his interest in the property acquired by the adventure and for an accounting, was founded upon the agreement creating the trust relation between the parties, and therefore governed by the four-year statute of limitation (Rev. Laws, 4970), and not by the three-year statute applicable to actions based on fraud; an allegation in the complaint, that plaintiff was prevented from complying with his agreement to contribute to the adventure by the concealment by defendants of information, not changing the character of the action to one of fraud, but being a mere excuse for nonperformance by plaintiff. Miller v. Walser, 42 Nev. 498; 181 P. 437.

II. COMPUTATION OF PERIOD OF LIMITATION(A) ACCRUAL OF RIGHT OF ACTION OR DEFENSE*3. Title to or possession of real property.

Where plaintiff to whom deceased had agreed to leave specified real property in consideration of her remaining with and caring for him during his declining years, was in possession, claiming to own the property, limitations did not run against her right of action against the administrator of the deceased to compel specific performance of the contract, notwithstanding his denials of her ownership, for plaintiff had an equitable title. Clow v. West, 37 Nev. 267; 142 P. 226.

4. Contracts.

An action by a party to a contract of joint adventure for a division of property and an accounting of profits accrued upon breach of the contract by the other members. Miller v. Walser, 42 Nev. 499; 181 P. 437.

5. Continuing contracts.

Where, by an attorney's contract, he was entitled to $100 per year for general legal services, he had a cause of action for each year's services so rendered, and recovery by him for more than four years prior to action was barred. Warren v. Glasgow Exploration Co., 40 Nev. 103; 160 P. 793.

(B) PERFORMANCE OF CONDITION, DEMAND OR NOTICE6. Conditions precedent.

Where a corporation promised to pay for extra nonofficial services rendered by an officer as soon as it should be out of debt, limitation did not begin to run against an action to recover for such services until the happening of that event. Montana-Tonopah M. Co., v. Dunlap, 196 F. 612; 116 C. C. A. 286.

(C) PERSONAL DISABILITIES AND PRIVILEGES7. Infancy.

Minor heirs of one who had duly patented mining claim were entitled to notice of the hostile character of defendant's possession, which notice could not be given them until they were capable in law of receiving it; so that, under the statute (Rev. Laws, 4951, et seq.) they might commence an action to recover it within two years after majority, when they were chargeable with notice. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 173; 161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064.

Rev. Laws, 4946, provides that civil actions can only be commenced within the periods prescribed in the act, after the cause of action has accrued, except where different limitation is prescribed by statute. Section 4951 provides that no action to recover a mining claim shall be maintained unless plaintiff was seized or possessed thereof within two years before the commencement of such action, defining occupation and adverse possession, and extending the provisions of the act applicable to other real estate to mining claims, provided that in such application "two years" shall be intended when "five years" is used, and section 4952 provides that no cause of action to recover real property shall be effectual, unless the person prosecuting the action was seized or possessed of the premises within "five years" before action was commenced, and section 4966 provides that, if one entitled to commence an action to recover real property shall be a minor, the time of disability is no part of the time limited for the commencement of such actions, which may be commenced within two years after the removal of disability. Held, that by interpolation, section 4951 was to be read as if providing that, if a person to whom an action to recover a mining claim accrues is a minor, the period of disability shall not be part of the time limited for the commencement of such action, which may be commenced within two years after the disability ceases. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 171; 161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064.

(E) ABSENCE, NONRESIDENCE, AND CONCEALMENT OF PERSON OR PROPERTY8. Nonresidence.

In action to recover personal property, where defendant was a nonresident and rarely visited the state, the plea of the statute of limitations was not available, though property was situated in state. McCone v. Eccles, 42 Nev. 451; 181 P. 134.

(F) IGNORANCE, MISTAKE, TRUST, FRAUD, AND CONCEALMENT OF CAUSE OF ACTION

9. Existence of trust.

While it is not competent for a trustee to assert a legal title by adverse possession or to plead limitations against a cestui que trust, when the trusteeship is terminated, or when the trustee denies the trust and asserts ownership of the trust property in such a manner that the cestui que trust has actual or constructive notice of the repudiation of the trust, the statute attaches and runs from that time. Boydston v. Jacobs, 38 Nev. 175; 147 P. 447.

10. Existence of trust, or violation of trust.

Where plaintiff, after accepting a deed from a trustee not including land to which she claimed she was entitled under the terms of the trust, never received or demanded the rents and profits of such real estate, and the trustee collected and retained them without any question as to his right to do so being raised for about nine years, she could not deny that the position taken by the trustee was an assertion of an adverse title to the property. Id.

Where an act is done by a trustee which purports to be an execution of a trust, he is thenceforth regarded as standing at arm's length from the cestui que trust, who must assert his claim at the hazard of being barred by limitations. Id.

III. ACKNOWLEDGMENT, NEW PROMISE, AND PART PAYMENT

11. Part payment—Sufficiency.

Though the mortgage given by a guardian for herself and on behalf of her minor ward was invalid for the reason that the order of the probate court, directing the execution of the mortgage, was without statutory authority, the proceeds of the mortgage having been applied to the satisfaction of a valid existing mortgage, a payment of interest on the invalid mortgage will be applied on the former mortgage for the purpose of tolling the statute of limitations in favor of the right of the second mortgagee to enforce the prior mortgage by way of subrogation. Laffranchini v. Clark, 39 Nev. 48; 153 P. 250.

IV. OPERATION AND EFFECT OF BAR BY LIMITATION

12. Bar of debt as affecting security.

A mortgage being a mere incident to the debt secured, an action to foreclose the mortgage is barred at the expiration of six years from the maturity of the note secured under Comp. Laws, 3718, providing that actions upon contracts and obligations founded upon instruments in writing must be brought within six years. Id.

13. Persons barred.

Whenever a right of action in a trustee with the legal title is barred by limitations, the right of the cestui que trust is also barred, but, if the legal title in the cestui que trust, the statute of limitations which might run against the trustee will not constitute a bar against the cestui if he be under disability. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 172; 161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064.

Under Rev. Laws, 5911, providing that every person to whom letters testamentary or of administration shall have issued shall execute a bond with a penalty not less than the value of the personal property, including rents and profits, and may be required to give an additional bond whenever the sale of realty is ordered, the relationship of trustee and cestui que trust between the executor or administrators and the heirs is not created in so far as the same might apply to the realty of an estate, so that the rule that a statute of limitations running against a trustee holding the legal title to realty runs also against the cestui does not apply. Id.

19. Demurrer to petition or complaint, or to alternative writ.

III. JURISDICTION, PROCEEDINGS, RELIEF—Contd.

20. Scope of inquiry and powers of court.
21. Performance and enforcement of command.

I. NATURE AND GROUNDS1. Nature and scope of remedy.

Mandamus will not issue when the ordinary legal remedies will give adequate relief. Mighels v. Eggers, 36 Nev. 364; 136 P. 104.

Mandamus will not issue to compel the state controller to draw a warrant in favor of an unliquidated demand against the state approved by the board of examiners, as an adequate remedy exists by civil suit under the provisions of sec. 5653 of the Revised Laws. Abel v. Eggers, 36 Nev. 373; 136 P. 100.

Mandamus is not the proper remedy to compel the industrial commission to award an injured workman compensation, under Stats. 1913, c. 111, as amended by Stats. 1915, c. 190, since such workman has a speedy and adequate remedy at law in an action at law against the commission. State v. Nev. Ind. Comm., 40 Nev. 220; 161 P. 516.

2. Remedy by appeal or writ of error.

Writ of mandamus will not assume the function of a writ of error, nor will it serve to require an inferior tribunal to act in any particular manner or to enter any particular judgment or order. State v. District Court, 40 Nev. 163; 161 P. 510.

Where a petition was presented in the district court for removal of an administrator, setting up his alleged wrongful acts, and, after hearing both petitioner and respondent, decision was rendered dismissing the petition, such action was not reviewable by mandamus, since the court exercised jurisdiction and discretion in hearing and deciding the case and the petitioner had a plain, speedy and adequate remedy at law by appeal from such decision under Rev. Laws, 6112, providing for appeal from decisions in probate matters. Id.

3. Discretion as to grant of writ.

If the court has any jurisdiction to refuse the writ of mandate relating to a matter concerning the public interest, where a party is clearly entitled to it, it ought not to exercise that discretion by refusing the writ when such refusal would abrogate the plain language of the statute. State v. Dickerson, 33 Nev. 540; 113 P. 105.

4. Nature and existence of rights to be protected or enforced.

Mandamus will not issue to compel a city council to submit to a vote of the electors of such city a proposed ordinance that would be void even if approved by a majority of electors under the initiative and referendum provisions of the city charter. State v. Reno City Council, 36 Nev. 334; 136 P. 110; 50 L. R. A. (N.S.) 195.

Mandamus will issue only where the right to be protected is clear. Mighels v. Eggers, 36 Nev. 364; 136 P. 104.

5. Abatement of proceedings—Termination or devolution of right or office.

A proceeding in mandamus against a county officer does not abate upon the expiration of his term of office; but, the duty being a public one, his successor may be substituted. Stone v. Bell, 35 Nev. 240; 129 P. 458.

II. SUBJECTS AND PURPOSES OF RELIEF

(A) ACTS AND PROCEEDINGS OF COURTS, JUDGES, AND JUDICIAL OFFICERS

6. Exercise of judicial powers and functions.

A district judge who acts as trustee of a town site, under Rev. St. U. S. 2387 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1457), acts by virtue of his office as judge, and he is not an inferior officer to his associate judge of the district, and such associate judge cannot by mandamus compel the judge acting as such trustee to convey a lot to a purchaser offering to pay $4.50 therefor, while such trustee demands the right under Comp. Laws, 345, to charge the purchaser $9.50. Jennett v. Stevens, 33 Nev. 527; 111 P. 1025.

7. Matters of discretion.

Mandamus will lie to compel a certain prescribed duty to be assumed by a tribunal, board, or officer, but will not operate beyond a point where that tribunal, board, or officer has the right to exercise discretion. State v. District Court, 40 Nev. 163; 161 P. 510.

8. Entertaining and proceeding with cause.

Where a district court wrongfully or erroneously divests itself of jurisdiction, or refuses to assume jurisdiction, mandamus is the proper remedy. State v. Moran, 37 Nev. 404; 142 P. 534.

While errors committed in the exercise of a judicial discretion cannot be reviewed or corrected by mandamus, if the district court erroneously decides that it has no jurisdiction and refuses to hear an appeal from a justice's court pursuant to the constitution, art. 6, sec. 6, as by dismissing the appeal, mandamus is the proper remedy to compel it to assume jurisdiction and proceed. Floyd v. District Court, 36 Nev. 349; 135 P. 922.

An inferior court which erroneously refuses to entertain jurisdiction on a matter preliminary to a hearing on the merits, may be required to proceed by mandamus. Id.

(B) ACTS AND PROCEEDINGS OF PUBLIC OFFICERS AND BOARDS AND MUNICIPALITIES

9. Ministerial acts.

Performance of a duty, enjoined upon an officer by law without leaving him any discretion in its performance, may be compelled by mandamus, if there be no other adequate remedy. Mighels v. Eggers, 36 Nev. 364; 136 P. 104.

The governor may be required to comply with an act of the legislature, approved by the chief executive at the time of its passage, which directs him to perform a ministerial duty which could have been enjoined upon any other officer or agent of the state, and which is in no way limited by or relates to the gubernatorial powers or privileges specified in the constitution. State ex rel. White v. Dickerson, 33 Nev. 540; 113 P. 105.

10. Specific acts.

In an action for the possession of personal property, the sheriff, after seizing it, redelivered it to the defendant, although defendant's sureties on his undertaking had not justified themselves before the clerk or the court as required by statute. The property still remained within the county. Held that, as Rev. Laws, 5127, requires the sheriff, upon receipt of the affidavit, notice, and written undertaking executed by the plaintiff, to take the property and retain it in his custody until delivery to plaintiff or redelivery to the defendant after justification of the latter's sureties, the sheriff will by an appropriate writ of mandamus be compelled to retake the property and deliver it to plaintiff; the defendant having waived exceptions to plaintiff's sureties and not having established his own right to a return. State v. Lamb, 37 Nev. 19; 138 P. 907.

11. Performance of ministerial duties.

As the supreme court is authorized to finally construe the laws, and is empowered by the constitution and statute to issue writs of mandamus, "to compel the performance of an act which the law specifically enjoins as a duty resulting from an office, trust or station," and as the lieutenant- and acting governor is in no way excepted from these provisions or empowered to abrogate the statute, a writ of mandamus will issue directing him to comply with the requirements of the act of the legislature and accept the bonds, the same as a writ would issue requiring any other officer or person to perform in compliance with the statute, a ministerial act, where no discretion is imposed and no constitutional provision is infringed. Otherwise, he could refuse, contrary to the statute, and merely for reasons of his own, to accept cash, or United States or other bonds, of the value of hundreds of thousands or millions of dollars, tendered for the benefit of the university, or schools, or charities of the state, or could decline to observe or obey any other act of the legislature, notwithstanding he is especially obligated by his oath and by the constitution to faithfully execute the laws. State ex rel. White v. Dickerson, 33 Nev. 540; 113 P. 105.

12. Proceedings relating to public lands.

Though a writ of mandate would lie to compel a townsite trustee to make a deed to a claimant, as required by Comp. Laws, 345, on payment of the maximum amount which the trustee could impose, where the tender is of a less amount, the writ will not lie. Jennett v. Stevens, 34 Nev. 128; 111 P. 601.

13. Issue of warrants or orders for payment.

Where the state controller refused to draw his warrant for the salary of a superintendent, employed by the board of directors for the Panama-Pacific and Panama-California expositions, pursuant to Stats. 1913, c. 128, he could not be compelled to do so by mandamus, the remedy being by action, notwithstanding section 6 of such act, making appropriations for the state's exhibits at such expositions, and providing that all disbursements from such appropriations should be on certificates of the exposition commissioner, approved by a majority of the directors and by the state board of examiners, when the state controller should draw his warrant and the state treasurer pay the same, as the controller is a constitutional officer and his duty to audit all claims against the state, except obligations fixed by law, is a constitutional one, and cannot be infringed upon by legislative enactment. State v. Cole, 38 Nev. 215; 148 P. 551.

14. Payment of debts and claims.

If a claim against the state for services authorized by law is presented, the amount of which has been fixed by law and an appropriation made therefor, the claim may be enforced by mandamus. Mighels v. Eggers, 36 Nev. 364; 136 P. 104.

15. Payment of debts and claims—Judgment.

Mandamus is an appropriate remedy to compel the industrial commission to pay a final judgment of compensation obtained by an injured workman in an action at law against the commission, where it refuses to pay such final judgment. State v. Nev. Ind. Comm., 40 Nev. 220; 161 P. 516.

III. JURISDICTION, PROCEEDINGS, RELIEF

16. Time to sue, limitations, and laches.

Mandamus would not issue to compel county revenue officers to transmit the county assessment rolls and tax lists to the state tax commission for use at its session, commencing on the second Monday in October, until such time arrived, since such revenue officers were not in default until that time, and mandamus will not issue in anticipation of an officer's failure to perform a duty. Tax Commission v. Douglas County, 36 Nev. 319; 135 P. 609.

An application for mandamus to compel the secretary of state to accept and file certificates of nomination of presidential electors chosen at a Democratic party convention, brought before the expiration of the time provided for filing with the secretary of state certificates of nomination by convention, is premature and must be denied. State v. Brodigan, 34 Nev. 486; 125 P. 699.

17. Parties defendant or respondents.

In mandamus proceedings by the board of county commissioners to compel the county auditor to make the joint report required by Rev. Laws, 3746, requiring the county auditor, jointly with the county treasurer, to make a report of the amount of collections, etc., the county treasurer was not a necessary party, where it appeared that he was willing to perform his part in making the report. State v. Bonnifield, 37 Nev. 44; 138 P. 906.

18. Petition or complaint, or other application.

Where, in a mandamus proceeding by the state tax commission to compel county revenue officers to deliver or transmit to the commission the assessment rolls and tax lists of the county, the petition did not allege a demand upon the respondents, it would not be presumed that such a lawful demand would be refused. Tax Commission v. Douglas County, 36 Nev. 319; 135 P. 609.

19. Demurrer to petition or complaint, or to alternative writ.

In view of civil practice act, c. 73 (Rev. Laws, 5694-5707), prescribing the proceedings and practice in mandamus, and making the code provisions relative to civil actions applicable thereto, where a demurrer to a petition for mandamus is overruled, the defendant may answer to the merits. Flaughan v. Burritt, 41 Nev. 504; 173 P. 352.

20. Scope of inquiry and powers of court.

Doubtful questions relating to the legality or validity of, or right of recovery upon, bonds, or to their repudiation, or the statute of limitations, and which may be properly tried and adjudicated in an action between the holder and the obligor, need not be determined in the absence of the obligor in a proceeding for a writ of mandate requiring their acceptance by the chief executive preliminary to the bringing of a suit for the recovery of a judgment upon them against the obligor. It is not the duty of the chief executive nor of the courts upon application for writ of mandate to determine these questions in advance and possibly adversely to the acceptance of the bonds by the state and to their validity so as to set aside the statute and will of the legislature, prevent a suit, and deprive the proper tribunal, the Supreme Court of the United States, passing upon the objections made to the legality of the bonds. State v. Dickerson, 33 Nev. 540; 113 P. 105.

21. Performance and enforcement of command.

The lieutenant- and acting governor, having refused to accept, pursuant to the terms of the statute, repudiated bonds of the State of North Carolina, of the face value of over $400,000, upon the ground, among others, that their acceptance would tend to disturb the friendly relations existing between the states and a writ of mandate requiring such acceptance having been ordered upon the eve of the convening of the legislature, the execution of the writ will be stayed in order to give that body, which has sole control of the legislative policy of the state regarding matters of such public interest, an opportunity to determine whether it will, for the reasons advanced by the executive, or for other considerations, amend the law so that the acceptance of the bonds by the state will not be required. Id.

MARRIAGE

1. Power to regulate and control.
2. Marriage by mutual agreement.
3. Presumptions and burden of proof.
4. Question for jury.
5. Annulment—Alimony and allowance.

1. Power to regulate and control.

States have the right to deal with the marriage status of their own citizens. Blakeslee v. Blakeslee, 41 Nev. 235; 168 P. 950.

2. Marriage by mutual agreement.

As the common law prevails in Nevada with reference to the marriage relation, that relation may be formed by words of present assent, and without the interposition of any person lawfully authorized to solemnize marriage, or to join persons in marriage. Parker v. De Bernardi, 40 Nev. 361; 164 P. 645.

3. Presumptions and burden of proof.

Where cohabitation between man and woman was illicit in the beginning, though burden of proof is upon those asserting a valid marriage, there is no presumption that the relationship continued to be illicit, it being a matter of proof, and not of presumption, and a valid marriage under the common law may be shown by proof that the parties sustained toward each other the relation of husband and wife after the impediment of their marriage had been removed; the only presumption to be indulged in being in favor of a valid marriage, which may be based upon continuous cohabitation alone. Id.

4. Question for jury.

While prostitution or immorality might militate against the presumption of a legitimate common-law marriage, such facts are for the jury to consider under proper instructions, since, even though the woman were a prostitute, if a marriage of the highest and most sacramental order had been performed between the parties it would have had no more binding effect than a common-law marriage per verba de presenti, actually consummated. Id.

5. Annulment—Alimony and allowance.

Stats. 1861, c. 33, secs. 1, 18-21 (Rev. Laws, 2328, 2354-2357), respectively provide that marriage is a civil contract to which the consent of the parties is essential, and that, when fraud shall be proved, the marriage shall be void from the time when it is so adjudged by a court of competent jurisdiction, and that, when a marriage is supposed to be void or the validity is disputed, either party may file a complaint, and proceedings shall be had thereon as in proceedings for divorce. Stats. 1861, c. 33, sec. 27, as amended by Stats. 1864-65, c. 14 (Rev. Laws, 5843), provides that in any suit for divorce the court may in its discretion at any time after the filing of the complaint require the husband to pay such sum as may be necessary to enable the wife to carry on and defend the suit, and for her support and that of her children during its pendency. An action was brought by a husband to annul a marriage for fraud, and the wife filed an affidavit denying its invalidity, and praying an allowance of alimony pendente lite. Held, that, though alimony cannot be allowed if the marriage in fact be void, the district court had jurisdiction to award temporary alimony. Poupart v. District Court, 34 Nev. 336; 123 P. 709.

MARSHALING ASSETS

1. Liens or claims against property or funds of different persons.
2. Release, assignment, or loss of rights.

1. Liens or claims against property or funds of different persons.

A bank, which held shares of stock in a mining company belonging to its president as collateral security for loans and advances to the company and such president, assigned the notes and indebtedness to another company and transferred the collateral. Upon the issuance of new notes, secured by the deed of trust of the mining company, the transferee delivered the stock held as collateral to the company, having previously refused to honor an assignment of a portion of the shares and an order for their delivery, executed by the owner of the shares. The mining company held the number of shares claimed by such assignee as security for the debt of its president, and released the remainder, which was about five times that of the number held, to such president. Held, that, as assignee of the former creditors, the company had the right to hold the collateral transferred to it for the payment of the notes, but as it was bound to first exhaust the security belonging to the principal debtor, which, being greater than that retained, must be considered to have been sufficient, the retention of the stock belonging to the person to whom it had been transferred was improper. Elgan v. Keane Wonder Co., 34 Nev. 469; 125 P. 693.

2. Release, assignment, or loss of rights.

The doctrine of marshaling of assets, to the effect that a creditor cannot assert a lien on the property of a third person, where by his own negligence he has allowed other property in which the third person has no interest to become valueless, has no application, where a bank by its by-laws had a lien on corporate stock for debts due by an apparent stockholder, who had borrowed money and put up security, which the bank allowed to become valueless, where the bank had no knowledge that a third person was the actual owner of the stock. Wright v. Washoe County Bank, 251 F. 819; 163 C. C. A. 653.

35. Defense to claims for compensation—Satisfaction or release.

(C) Proceedings.

36. Pleading.

II. SERVICES AND COMPENSATION

(B) WAGES AND OTHER REMUNERATION

1. Actions for wages.

Where an employee was, by his contract of employment, to receive as compensation a percentage of the profits of the business, a bill in equity for an accounting is not necessary, but an action of assumpsit at law will lie to enforce payment. Goodin v. Pitt, 36 Nev. 156; 134 P. 459.

III. MASTER'S LIABILITY FOR INJURIES TO SERVANT

(A) NATURE AND EXTENT

2. Contracts limiting or releasing liability.

Under Rev. Laws, 5652, providing that no contract of employment, insurance, relief benefit, or indemnity for injury or death entered into by or on behalf of any employee, nor acceptance of any insurance, relief benefit, or indemnity by the person entitled thereto, shall constitute a defense to an action for personal injuries or death, a release of an employer from liability for personal damages, damaging an employee in the sum of about $1,200, in consideration of the payment of $36, did not prevent a recovery of such damages, since the statute invalidates defenses based, not only on contracts made to cover future injuries, but defenses based upon acceptance of insurance, relief benefit, or indemnity by a person already injured, and the word "indemnity" means protection or exemption from loss or damage, past or to come, or immunity from punishment for past offenses. Lawson v. Halifax-Tonopah M. Co., 36 Nev. 591; 135 P. 611; 138 P. 261.

(B) TOOLS, MACHINERY, APPLIANCES AND PLACES FOR WORK

3. Nature of master's duty and liability and care required.

An employer is only required to exercise reasonable care to furnish an employee a reasonably safe place in which to work and reasonably safe appliances with which to work, and to maintain this condition. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 185; 135 P. 141.

The master must furnish a reasonably safe place to work. Peterson v. Silver Peak, 37 Nev. 118; 140 P. 510.

A mining company must exercise reasonable care in providing an employee with reasonably safe appliances and machinery for his work. Jones v. West End Con. M. Co., 36 Nev. 149; 134 P. 104.

4. Delegation of duty.

An employer, whose attention had been drawn to a defect in a machine operated by an employee, could not avoid the obligation to repair the defect by any rule imposing the duty of repair on the employee. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 184; 135 P. 141.

5. Custom and usage.

That it was customary to work through and sink in vertical mining shafts by means of a crosshead and bucket for raising and lowering employees did not justify a violation of Rev. Laws, 6799, requiring the use of an iron-bonneted safety cage; it not appearing that the apparatus used was generally and customarily regarded as better or safer than that provided by the statute. Ryan v. Manhattan M. Co., 38 Nev. 92; 145 P. 907.

6. Mines, quarries and excavations.

A bucket and crosshead used in a mine for lowering and raising employees did not comply with Rev. Laws, 6799, requiring an iron-bonneted safety cage where a shaft is deeper than 350 feet, in view of sec. 4222, which provides that cages in shafts over 350 feet in depth shall be provided with sheet-iron or steel casing not less than one-eighth inch thick, or with a netting composed of wire not less than one-eighth in diameter, and with doors of the same material, provided, that when the cage is used for sinking only it need not be equipped with the required doors, as this completely describes what is termed in sec. 6799 an "iron-bonneted safety cage." Id.

Rev. Laws, 6799, making it unlawful to sink or work through any vertical mining shaft at a greater depth than 350 feet unless the shaft is provided with an iron-bonneted safety cage to be used in lowering and hoisting employees, was not complied with by having such a cage somewhere about the workings of the mine without using it, though the employees did not demand its use. Id.

7. Electric apparatus and structures.

Because of the tremendous potency and danger of electricity, an employer is held to extraordinary precaution for the safety of employees in the construction of machinery and appliances for its transmission. Pacific Power Co. v. Sheaff, 234 F. 553; 148 C. C. A. 319.

8. Inspection and test.

That a high voltage electric wire strung over a building was intended for a temporary purpose only, did not relieve the defendant from the duty of inspecting it, where it was so strung that workmen would be likely to receive injury from coming in contact therewith. Cutler v. Pittsburg Silver Peak, 34 Nev. 46; 116 P. 418.

9. Proximate cause of injury.

An employer's noncompliance with Rev. Laws, 6799, requiring the use of iron-bonneted safety cages in mining shafts more than 350 feet deep, did not entitle an injured employee to damages, unless such noncompliance was the proximate cause of his injuries, and unless a compliance therewith would have avoided the accident and prevented the injuries. Ryan v. Manhattan M. Co., 38 Nev. 92; 145 P. 907.

The failure of a mining company to provide an iron-bonneted safety cage for raising and lowering employees as required by Rev. Laws, 6799, was the proximate cause of injuries to an employee thrown from the bucket on which he was riding, though the swinging of the bucket against the sides of the shaft or its entanglement with a bell-cord were intervening agencies, as the culminating catastrophe would not have happened in the absence of either the omission of the safety appliance or the intervening agencies, and hence they operated concurrently. Id.

(E) FELLOW SERVANTS

10. Nature of act and performance of duties.

Under Workmen's Compensation Act, Nev. March 15, 1913 (St. 1913, c. 111), creating a presumption of negligence in cases of personal injuries to an employee in the course of his employment, and placing upon an employer declining to come within the act the burden of proof to rebut this presumption, there was no error in charging that, in determining whether the presumption had been overcome, the jury might properly consider all the evidence, both that of plaintiff and that of defendant. O'Brien v. L. V. & T. R. Co., 242 F. 850; 155 C. C. A. 438.

(F) RISKS ASSUMED BY SERVANT

11. Nature and extent.

Where a servant is employed in performing labor which necessarily changes the character of the place for safety as the work progresses, and is consequently likely to become dangerous at any time, he assumes the risk. Zelavin v. Tonopah Belmont, 39 Nev. 1; 149 P. 188.

In an action brought in Nevada for personal injuries to an employee received in California, the provisions of the California statute abolishing the defenses of assumption of risk and contributory negligence can be applied. Keane Wonder M. Co. v. Cunningham, 222 F. 821; 138 C. C. A. 247.

12. Statutory provision.

An employee in a mine did not assume the risk of injury from an employer's failure to provide an iron-bonneted safety cage for lowering and raising employees as required by statute, though the same equipment was used for that purpose when he applied for and accepted employment as at the time of the accident. Ryan v. Manhattan M. Co., 38 Nev. 92; 145 P. 907.

If a mining company's failure to provide an iron-bonneted safety cage for raising and lowering employees as required by statute was found by the jury to be the proximate cause of injuries to an employee thrown from the hoist in use, assumption of risk and contributory negligence were out of the case, except that contributory negligence might be considered in mitigation of damages. Id.

In brakeman's action based on federal employers' liability act (U. S. Comp. St., secs. 8657-8665) for injuries by reason of railroad's use of defective coupler in violation of federal safety appliance act (U. S. Comp. St., secs. 8605-8612), the defense of assumption of risk held not available to railroad under federal employers' liability act, sec. 4 (U. S. Comp. St., sec. 8660). Potter v. L. A. & S. L. R. R., 42 Nev. 370; 177 P. 933.

13. Knowledge by servant of defect or danger.

A miner assumes all the ordinary risks incident to his employment; but he does not assume any risks from danger resulting from defective hoisting machinery, over which he had no control, and of which he was ignorant. Jones v. West End Con. M. Co., 36 Nev. 149; 134 P. 104.

While a miner must use reasonable care for his own safety, he does not assume the risk of a hidden danger created in his place of employment by other employees, over whom he has no control, and of which he has no warning or notice, so that a miner would not assume the risk of injury from drilling into an unexploded hole, left in that condition by a previous shift of workmen, of which he had no notice. Peterson v. Silver Peak, 37 Nev. 118; 140 P. 519.

14. Promise to remedy defect or remove danger.

Where an employee, noting a defect in machinery, complains thereof to the employer, who promises to remedy the defect, the employee, in reliance upon such promise, may continue in the service for a reasonable time without assuming the risk, unless the danger is so imminent and immediate that a person of ordinary prudence would refuse to continue in the service; but continuance in the service for a period of time beyond which it would be reasonable to expect that the promise would be kept defeats the employer's liability. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 184; 135 P. 141.

(G) CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE OF SERVANT

15. Statutory provisions.

Brakeman, injured in jumping from car after the uncoupling of car because of a defective coupler used in violation of federal safety appliance act (U. S. Comp. St., secs. 8605-8612), can recover against railroad notwithstanding his contributory negligence in jumping from car, under federal employers' liability act, sec. 3 (U. S. Comp. St., sec. 8659). Potter v. L. A. & S. L. R. R., 42 Nev. 370; 177 P. 933.

16. Care required of servant.

In determining whether an employee recklessly exposed himself to danger, or exercised the care that a prudent person would exercise for his own personal safety, the imperfections of human reasoning and the peculiar conditions surrounding each particular case and each particular individual must be given consideration. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 183; 135 P. 141.

An employee is only required to exercise ordinary, and not extraordinary, diligence for his own safety. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 184; 135 P. 141.

17. Tools, machinery, appliances, or places for work—Knowledge of defects or dangers.

An employee cannot recover for injuries brought about by his own negligence in performing an act, the danger of which was so obvious and threatening that a reasonably prudent man under similar circumstances would have avoided them, if in his power to do so; he being deemed to have assumed the risks involved in such a reckless exposure of himself to danger. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry. Co., 36 Nev. 183; 135 P. 141.

The law imputes no such knowledge of electricity to an electrician's helper that he is barred by contributory negligence from recovering for injury from high-tension electricity jumping to him from its conductor which he had nearly approached but had not touched. Pacific Power Co. v. Sheaff, 234 F. 553; 148 C. C. A. 319.

18. Tools, machinery, appliances, or places for work—Duty to discover or remedy defects or dangers.

A railroad employee's failure to discover that the tongue in the knuckle on a car was broken was not contributory negligence, where the tongue was broken on the previous day and the inspector failed to detect it. Knock v. T. & G. R. R. Co., 38 Nev. 143; 145 P. 939; L. R. A. 1915F. 3.

19. Proximate cause of injury.

The rip-saw operated by plaintiff had become dished and would not run straight, as the result of which the material which was being sawed had a tendency to jump away from the saw. While plaintiff was sawing a buffer block, the saw started to buckle and tried to throw the block off. Plaintiff tried to push the block through, whereupon the saw pulled it from his hand, throwing it against him and injuring him. Held, that the defect in the saw, and not plaintiff's act in attempting to force the block against it, was the proximate cause of the accident. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 183; 135 P. 141.

In brakeman's action for injuries from use of defective coupler in violation of federal safety appliance act (U. S. Comp. St., secs. 8605-8612), causing brakeman to jump upon uncoupling of car because of the excessive speed, the brakeman's contributory negligence in jumping was only a concurring cause of the injury. Potter v. L. A. & N. L. R. R., 42 Nev. 370; 177 P. 933.

(H) ACTIONS

20. Declaration, complaint—Negligence on part of master.

In brakeman's action for injuries based on federal safety appliance act (U. S. Comp. St., secs. 8605-8612) and federal employers' liability act (U. S. Comp. St., secs. 8657-8665), complaint held to base plaintiff's right of recovery on railroad's negligence in having defective automatic coupler, and not on operation of cars at an excessive speed; the allegation of speed showing necessity of jumping from car after it became uncoupled. Id.

21. Plea or answer.

In an employee's action for injuries, assumed risk, if relied upon by defendant, must be specially pleaded. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 188; 135 P. 141.

22. Admissibility of evidence.

In an action against defendant zinc mining company for injuries to one employed as a mucker by an explosion, the court struck out an answer of the mine superintendent that plaintiff set off his shots about half an hour before the rest of the men, in answer to a question as to what occurred with regard to plaintiff's appointment as a miner on the sixth day of his employment. Held, that the court's ruling did not prevent defendant from directly asking witness why plaintiff's employment was changed on the sixth day after he was employed from that of miner to mucker; and hence was not erroneous as preventing it from showing such fact. Hochschultz v. Potosi Zinc Co., 33 Nev. 198; 110 P. 713.

23. Admissibility of evidence—Negligence on part of master.

In an action for injuries to an employee in a mine caused by the failure to provide an iron-bonneted safety cage as required by Rev. Laws, 6799, evidence that the employer was unaware of the existence of such statute was not admissible. Ryan v. Manhattan M. Co., 38 Nev. 92; 145 P. 907.

In an action for injuries to one employed as a mucker in a zinc mine by the explosion of a "missed shot," a question as to how many accidents occurred in the mine during a period of three years was properly excluded, where defendant was permitted to show that missed shots frequently happened in the mine; accidents from other causes being immaterial. Hochschultz v. Potosi Zinc Co., 33 Nev. 198; 110 P. 713.

In a miner's action for injuries, rules posted at the mine, several months after the injury, by the state mining inspector, were not admissible in evidence by the mere fact that they were similar to the ones posted by defendant before the time of the injury. Zelavin v. Tonopah Belmont, 39 Nev. 1; 149 P. 188.

In an action for injuries to a driver of a gasoline motor car, sustained in endeavoring to close a drain cock, which was permitting the gasoline to escape and ignite, evidence that some eight or ten days after the accident the drain cock was defective, permitting gasoline to escape and ignite, should have been admitted, although plaintiff, not having possession of the machine or access thereto in the meantime, could not prove that there had been no intermediate change in the drain cock, as it was within defendant's power to produce evidence of any change in its condition, and the question of admissibility must be governed largely by the circumstances, the nature of the appliance, the material of which it is constructed, and the use to which it is devoted. O'Brien v. L. V. & T. R. R. Co., 242 F. 850; 155 C. C. A. 438.

Plaintiff should also have been permitted to prove that when the car was turned over to a witness eight or ten days after the accident the drain cock was wired, since, while evidence of repairs or changes subsequent to the injury and precautions to prevent recurrence of like injuries is not admissible to show negligence, it is admissible as tending to show the condition of the appliance at the time of the accident. Id.

24. Admissibility of evidence—Contributory negligence of servant injured.

Contributory negligence on the part of an employee could not be proved by testimony as to what other persons did, might do, or were in the habit of doing under like conditions. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 185; 135 P. 141.

25. Weight and sufficiency of evidence—Negligence on part of master.

In an action for personal injuries received by a miner, evidence held sufficient to warrant the jury in finding that the owner was negligent in not making the place of work safe by knocking down loose ore hanging on the roof of a stope before the miner was put to work thereunder. Kenne Wonder M. Co. v. Cunningham, 222 F. 821; 138 C. C. A. 247.

26. Weight and sufficiency of evidence—Assumption of risk by servant injured.

The facts that a rip saw used by an employee was in a defective condition, which was known to the employee up to and including the time of the injury, and that he was injured as a result of the defective condition, did not in themselves prove that the rip saw was so openly and obviously dangerous that a reasonably prudent person would not have used it. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 186; 135 P. 141.

In an action by employee for injuries from electric shock from defectively constructed lightning arrester near which he was put to work without warning, evidence that he had some electrical experience, but that, although he knew of danger of direct contact with a live wire, he did not know of danger that high-tension current would jump to a person approaching near it, that the lightning arrester was charged with a high current of electricity and its arms extended to within about 5 feet 9 inches of the ground, and that this height was improper and unsafe construction, supported verdict for plaintiff, as against claim of his assumption of risk and contributory negligence; a live wire not disclosing, by its appearance, its dangerous nature. Pacific Power Co. v. Sheaff, 234 F. 533; 148 C. C. A. 319.

27. Weight and sufficiency of evidence—Contributory negligence of servant injured.

Evidence in an action against a mining company for an injury to an employee, caused by the falling of a hoist bucket on which he was mounted, held to warrant a finding that the employee was not guilty of contributory negligence. Jones v. West End Con. M. Co., 36 Nev. 149; 134 P. 104.

28. Questions for jury—Nature and cause of injury.

In an action for injuries claimed to have been caused by a defective rip saw binding and heating, and throwing the block which plaintiff was sawing against him, evidence held sufficient to make a question for the jury as to whether the accident occurred in the manner claimed. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 185; 135 P. 141.

29. Questions for jury—Negligence on part of master.

In an employee's action for injuries caused by the defective condition of the saw which he was operating, evidence held to make a question for the jury as to whether the defect had been called to the employer's attention. Konig v. N. C. O., 36 Nev. 184; 135 P. 141.

30. Questions for jury—Assumption of risk by servant injured.

In an employee's action for injuries caused by the dished condition of a rip saw, evidence held sufficient to make a question for the jury as to whether the danger from such condition was so imminent and immediate that a reasonably prudent man should have refused to continue in the service in reliance on the employer's promise to repair. Id.

Where plaintiff, a carpenter, was not injured because of any dangerous place he made for himself in which to work, but by coming in contact with a defective electric wire, negligently maintained by defendant in the place in which defendant was directed to work, the place being already dangerous by reason of defendant's negligence, against which danger plaintiff had not been warned, he cannot be held to have assumed the risk as a matter of law. Cutler v. Pittsburg Silver Peak, 34 Nev. 46; 116 P. 418.

31. Questions for jury—Contributory negligence of servant injured.

In an employee's action for injuries caused by a rip saw binding and heating, and throwing the block which he was sawing against him, evidence held to make a question for the jury as to whether he was negligent in attempting to push the block through, instead of drawing it back or turning off the power. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 183; 135 P. 141.

In an employee's action for injuries caused by a defective rip saw which he was operating, evidence held sufficient to make a question for the jury as to whether it was his duty to set and file the saws used by him. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 184; 135 P. 141.

In a miner's action for injuries from a falling rock, evidence held to make the question as to whether he himself loosened it one for the jury. Zelavin v. Tonopah Belmont, 39 Nev. 2; 149 P. 188.

32. Instructions.

In an employee's action for injuries, where defendant failed to plead contributory negligence or assumed risk, and therefore could rely thereon only so far as they might appear from plaintiff's case, an instruction that, where defendant relied on the defense that plaintiff assumed the risk by reason of the rip saw operated by plaintiff being so imminently and immediately dangerous that a reasonably prudent person, situated as the plaintiff was, would not have used it, this was an affirmative defense, the burden of establishing which by a preponderance of the evidence rested on the defendant, was sufficient so far as it went, although the court might properly have stated that if it appeared that plaintiff was the proximate cause of his own injuries, and had so conducted himself as to assume the risk, defendant was entitled to take advantage of that fact. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 186; 135 P. 141.

An instruction that, if plaintiff was in defendant's employ as a carpenter, and while using ordinary care in the discharge of his duty it became necessary for him to tear down a piece of corrugated iron sheeting from defendant's compressor house, and while so engaged, without negligence on his part, he was shocked and burned by a current of electricity which reached him, because of a defect in the insulation of an electric wire and the negligent placing of the wire, then under defendant's control, which broken and defective condition of the insulation of the wire and the negligent placing thereof was due to the defendant's negligent failure to maintain the wire in reasonably safe and proper condition, and same was known or might have been discovered by ordinary care and plaintiff warned of the danger but defendant negligently failed to make such inspection and warn plaintiff of the danger, and defendant's negligence was the proximate cause of the plaintiff's injury, he was entitled to recover, was proper. Cutler v. Pittsburg Silver Peak, 34 Nev. 45; 116 P. 418.

33. Instructions—Negligence on part of master.

In an employee's action for injuries, an instruction defining "ordinary care" as such care as a person of ordinary prudence usually exercised about his own affairs of ordinary importance was correct in the abstract and not misleading. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 187; 135 P. 141.

An instruction that it was the duty of an employer to use due care in providing an employee with safe machinery and in keeping and maintaining the machinery in such condition as to be reasonably and adequately safe for use was not erroneous, as requiring the employer to do more than to exercise reasonable care to furnish reasonably safe appliances, especially in view of a further instruction that an employer was not required to use more than ordinary care or diligence for the protection of employees, that he was not bound to provide the very best materials, implements, or accommodations which could be procured, nor those which are absolutely the most convenient or most safe, that his duty was sufficiently discharged by providing those which were reasonably safe and fit, and that he performed his whole duty by using as much care in furnishing instrumentalities for the use of his servants as a man of ordinary prudence in the same line of business, acting with a prudent regard for his own safety, would do in supplying similar things for himself, if he were doing the work. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 185; 135 P. 141.

34. Instructions—Assumption of risk by servant injured.

An instruction that if a servant, having the right to abandon the service, refrained from doing so in consequence of assurances that a danger would be removed, such assurance removed all ground for the argument that the servant, by continuing in the employment, engaged to assume the risks, was too narrow, since it failed to take into consideration the period of time during which the servant might reasonably rely on the promise to repair, and failed to make any mention of the servant's duty, where he knew that an accident was liable to occur. Id.

In an employee's action for injuries, an instruction that by "risks incident to the employment" was meant such risks as existed after the master had performed his full duty to his servant in furnishing instrumentalities, machinery, and appliances reasonably safe for the purpose for which they were intended, that this included keeping them in reasonably safe repair, that by the assumption of risk incident to the employment was not meant any additional or extra hazard, occasioned by the master's negligence in failing to keep his tools, machinery, and appliances in reasonably safe repair, was not erroneous or misleading. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 187; 135 P. 141.

In an employee's action for injuries, an instruction that it was for the jury to determine whether a defect in a saw was such that no one but a reckless millman, careless of his safety, would have operated it without it being repaired, was not objectionable because of the use of the word "reckless," as the court might have used the word "heedless," "careless," or "indifferent" with the same force and effect. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 186; 135 P. 141.

VI. WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACTS(A) NATURE AND GROUNDS OF MASTER'S LIABILITY*35. Defense to claims for compensation—Satisfaction or release.

Under the workmen's compensation act (Act of March 24, 1911, Stats. 1911, c. 183), sec. 11, allowing workmen to elect any other remedy at law, where a servant, a citizen and resident of California, executed in California a full and fair release of his master from liability for injuries received in his employment in Nevada, which was valid in California, it was a valid defense to action by him in Nevada for such injuries, notwithstanding Rev. Laws, 5652, providing that no acceptance of any insurance, relief benefit, or indemnity by the person entitled thereto shall constitute any bar to any personal injury action, for, the cause of action being transitory, and being completely barred in California, it was completely extinguished everywhere. Leach v. Mason Valley M. Co., 40 Nev. 143; 161 P. 513.

(C) PROCEEDINGS36. Pleading.

A county cannot defeat the state industrial commission's action for moneys to compensate an injured employee of the county, on the theory that there is no money in the county treasury available, in the absence of an answer pleading such fact. Nevada Ind. Comm. v. Washoe Co., 41 Nev. 437; 171 P. 511.

MAYHEM

1. Indictment and information.
2. Evidence.
3. Sentence and punishment.

1. Indictment and information.

Under Rev. Laws, 6416, defining mayhem to include slitting the ear of a human being, and in view of section 6417, stating that it is immaterial how the injury is inflicted, an information charging that accused bit off a portion of an ear of one C. is sufficient, though "slit" may be broader than "bite." State v. Enkhhouse, 40 Nev. 1; 160 P. 23.

2. Evidence.

Evidence held to show permanent disfigurement so as to support conviction of mayhem. Id.

3. Sentence and punishment.

Since Rev. Laws, 6416, providing a maximum punishment for mayhem of fourteen years, does not provide a minimum, the judge may fix the minimum at five years, under section 7200, as amended by Stats. 1915, c. 157, providing that if no minimum is fixed, the court may fix it at one to five years. State v. Enkhhouse, 40 Nev. 2; 160 P. 23.

12. Evidence—Weight and sufficiency.
13. Sale, redemption.
14. Deficiency and personal liability—Personal judgment against owner.

I. NATURE, GROUNDS AND SUBJECT-MATTER1. Nature of lien.

The general theory upon which all labor liens are based is that they are remedial in their nature and intended to assist the laborer to obtain a just price for his services. Lamb v. Lucky Boy M. Co., 37 Nev. 9; 138 P. 902.

Mechanics' liens are purely statutory. Id.

The object of the lien law is to secure payment to those who perform labor upon mining property, or who perform labor upon or furnish material for the construction of other works specified in the statute, for such labor performed or material furnished. Ferro v. Bargo M. Co., 37 Nev. 139; 140 P. 527.

2. Construction of lien law.

While the mechanics' lien law should be liberally construed, it is a creature of statute; and, to enable one to acquire and enforce a right under it, there must be a substantial compliance with the statute. Daly v. Lahontan Mines Co., 39 Nev. 15; 151 P. 514; 158 P. 285.

II. RIGHT TO LIEN(C) AGREEMENT OR CONSENT OF OWNER*3. Ownership or possession of land.

The fact that an estate is in the course of administration will not prevent a lien claimant from obtaining a valid lien against the interest of an heir, as the property vested in the heirs at law on the death of their ancestor. Riverside Fixture Co. v. Quigley, 35 Nev. 18; 126 P. 545.

4. Notice by owner to prevent lien.

Rev. Laws, 2213, provides for a lien, whether work is done or material furnished at the instance of the owner or his agent, and that every contractor, subcontractor, architect, builder, etc., in control shall be held to be the owner's agent. Sec. 2221 provides that every building or other improvement constructed with the knowledge of the owner shall be held to have been constructed at his instance, and his interest shall be subject to lien, unless within three days after he shall have obtained knowledge of the construction he shall give notice that he will not be responsible, by posting notice in writing on the land or building. Alterations were made on a building, and the contractors for the work with the owner ordered lumber. After work had been commenced, the owners posted a notice of non-liability. Held, that such notice could not affect the lien under sec. 2213, since sec. 2221 merely imposes an active duty upon the owner to repudiate liability for improvements made or materials furnished without his consent, and not to the case where the order is given by his agent. Verdi Lumber Co. v. Bartlett, 40 Nev. 317; 161 P. 933.

III. PROCEEDINGS TO PERFECT

5. Time for filing claim or statement.

Under the act of March 2, 1875 (Stats. 1875, c. 64), sec. 5, as amended March 6, 1903 (Stats. 1903, c. 32), which prior to the amendment of 1911 (Rev. Laws, 2217) provided that every original contractor, within sixty days, and every other person wishing to claim a lien thereon, within fifty days, after the completion of a building, improvement, or structure, should file for record a claim containing a statement of his demand, a claim, filed before the completion of a building by a subcontractor who furnished material and labor in the erection of the building, is valid and enforceable. Self & Sellman Co. v. Savage, 34 Nev. 332; 123 P. 333.

Where the original contract for the alteration and repair of a building under which a mechanics' lien was sought to be foreclosed contemplated only certain repairs, but there was no time limit during which they should be done, and other and additional repairs were made at various times, continuing for several months, a notice of mechanic's lien filed within six months of the completion of the last work of repair was filed in time; the contract being a continuing contract, although during the time there were several times at which the plaintiff was not actively engaged in the repairs. Gaston v. Avansino, 39 Nev. 128; 154 P. 85.

6. Form and contents of claim or statement—Description of property.

Though in a claim for lien filed the property on which the building stood for which materials were furnished was insufficiently described, where the rights of no third persons had intervened and the description was the same as that used by the owner in his lease to the present holder, it was sufficient to charge the premises with the lien. Riverside Fixture Co. v. Quigley, 35 Nev. 17; 126 P. 545.

7. Form and contents of claim or statement—Ownership or possession of property.

Rev. Laws, 2217, provides that a lien claim shall recite the name of the owner or reputed owner, if known. Sec. 2215 provides that, if a person owns less than a fee simple estate, only his interest shall be subject to lien. Sec. 2221 provides that the interest of an owner of property, or one having an interest, may be subjected to a lien, where a building or improvement was constructed with his knowledge. A lien claim recited "that the above-mentioned 'L.' is the owner and reputed owner of said premises." The heirs of the former owner were minors, other than 'L.', who assumed not only to have an interest in the property, but to exercise control over the same. Held, the designation of such heir is sufficient to charge his interest for the entire lien. Id.

8. Form and contents of claim or statement—Statement as to terms of contract.

A lien for materials and labor furnished which contains a general statement as to their nature and the time of furnishing, together with a general statement of the sum due, sufficiently states the "terms, time given, or conditions of the contract." Riverside Fixture Co. v. Quigley, 35 Nev. 18; 126 P. 545.

IV. OPERATION AND EFFECT

(C) PRIORITY

9. Mechanics' liens on same property—Classification and order of preference.

By Rev. Laws, 2223, labor liens are preferred claims, and entitled to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of the property in advance of other classes of lien claimants. Daly v. Lahontan M. Co., 39 Nev. 15; 151 P. 514; 158 P. 285.

Rev. Laws, 2223, provides that, wherever liens are asserted against any property, the court in the judgment must declare their rank, placing liens for labor first. Sec. 2227 provides that, at the time of filing the complaint and issuing the summons in a lien action, the plaintiff shall notify all persons claiming liens on the premises to exhibit proof of their liens to the court. A mechanics' lienor for labor failed to exhibit his lien in a prior lien suit. Held that, so far as the plaintiffs in such suit and those who did exhibit their liens were concerned, he had waived his right under the statute to priority as a labor lienor. Daly v. Lahontan M. Co., 39 Nev. 14; 151 P. 514; 158 P. 285.

VII. ENFORCEMENT

10. Nature and form of remedy.

The procedure under the mechanics' lien statute should be liberal to the end of protecting the rights of all lien claimants. Daly v. Lahontan M. Co., 39 Nev. 16; 151 P. 514; 158 P. 285.

11. Joinder of liens in same proceeding.

Under Rev. Laws, 2224, relating to consolidation of lien claims, a lien suit instituted by a labor lien claimant, in which others joined, should have been consolidated with other and prior suits against the same defendant. Daly v. Lahontan M. Co., 39 Nev. 15; 151 P. 514; 158 P. 285.

In a suit to foreclose liens, the court, of its own motion, could have consolidated all lien actions pending, heard the proofs in the first action, and granted reasonable continuance for hearing of proofs in the others. Daly v. Lahontan M. Co., 39 Nev. 16; 151 P. 514; 158 P. 285.

Trial courts, in actions to foreclose liens, where it appears that there are other lien claimants, and particularly that other suits are pending for the foreclosure of such other liens, should endeavor to protect the rights of all claimants in one judgment. Id.

Under Rev. Laws, 2227, providing that, at the time of filing the complaint and issuing the summons in a lien action, the plaintiff shall notify all persons claiming liens to exhibit proof, and that all liens not exhibited shall be deemed to be waived in favor of those exhibited, in an original lien suit, where no proofs were offered of liens involved in another and subsequent lien suit, no request made for consolidation of suits, and no appeal taken from the order refusing a continuance to the other lien claimants for the presentation of proofs, there was a waiver in favor of the liens involved in the original suit. Id.

12. Evidence—Weight and sufficiency.

In such case evidence held not to show fraudulent intent in making the final repairs so as to permit filing of lien after it should have expired. Gaston v. Avansino, 39 Nev. 128; 154 P. 85.

Evidence held insufficient to show that the contract was performed in a certain month, so as to make invalid a notice filed more than six months thereafter. Id.

Under the rule that one holding a lien will not be held to have waived it by an ambiguous agreement, evidence held insufficient to show a waiver of a mechanic's lien. Id.

13. Sale, redemption.

Two judgments were entered against a corporation in separate mechanics' lien actions, and the property sold under each judgment. The successor of the purchaser under the second judgment lost his right to the property as a redemptioner, when he failed to redeem from the first judgment within the statutory time, and before the issuance of the sheriff's deed to the purchaser thereunder. Daly v. Lahontan M. Co., 39 Nev. 14; 151 P. 514; 158 P. 285.

14. Deficiency and personal liability—Personal judgment against owner.

In view of Rev. Laws, 2226, providing that the mechanics' lien statutes shall not affect the right to a personal judgment in an action brought to enforce a mechanic's lien, a personal judgment may be rendered against a person, personally liable if the complaint contains all necessary facts constituting both grounds of relief, and all the necessary allegations of an action in assumpsit. State v. Breen, 41 Nev. 516; 173 P. 555.

In view of Rev. Laws, 2226, providing that the mechanic's lien statute shall not affect the right to a personal judgment in a mechanic's lien suit, such judgment may be rendered against one personally liable if the complaint contains all necessary facts constituting both kinds of relief, and all the necessary allegations of an action in assumpsit. State v. Moran, 42 Nev. 356; 176 P. 413.

I. PUBLIC MINERAL LANDS(B) LOCATION AND ACQUISITION OF CLAIMS

1. Lands open to location and acquisition.
Land legally segregated from occupancy or appropriation may be conveyed by the United States government as a mining claim. Round Mt. Co. v. Sphinx Co., 35 Nev. 392; 129 P. 308.

Where a claim to land legally segregated from occupancy or appropriation is conveyed, the government has no further right to patent a claim located wholly within its boundaries, since it cannot convey the same tract of land twice. Round Mt. Co. v. Sphinx Co., 35 Nev. 393; 129 P. 308.

Every competent locator has the right to initiate a lawful claim to unoccupied public land by a peaceable adverse entry upon it while it is in the possession of those who have no superior right to acquire title or hold possession. Nelson v. Smith, 42 Nev. 302; 178 P. 261; 178 P. 625.

2. Requisites and validity of location proceedings.

Mining claim location which is invalid under act of Congress, May 10, 1872, secs. 2, 5 (U. S. Comp. St. 1916, secs. 4615, 4620), is also invalid under Rev. Laws, 2442. Id.

3. Requisites and validity of location proceedings—Discovery.

Under Comp. Laws, 209, as amended by Stats. 1901, c. 93, requiring the locator of a mining claim to sink a discovery shaft thereon, and providing that a cut equivalent in size to a shaft ten feet deep, is equivalent to a discovery shaft, and sec. 214, providing that relocation of abandoned claims shall be by sinking a new discovery shaft, or the relocater may sink the discovery shaft ten feet deeper than it was at the time of abandonment, etc., a locator of a mining claim on which an old tunnel had been run many years before, who cleaned out the tunnel for a distance of about thirty feet, and who drove the tunnel ahead five or six feet, and who thereby removed several times the quantity of earth or rock necessary to do work in new ground for the construction of a shaft or cut equivalent to a shaft, performed the statutory discovery work. Murray v. Osborne, 33 Nev. 267; 111 P. 31.

4. Requisites and validity of location proceedings—Extent and boundaries of claim.

The right to extend the lines of a mining claim over and across ground belonging to a prior location, and to hold segregated pieces of ground within the exterior boundaries of the location, not exceeding the maximum area of 1,500 by 600 feet allowed by law, appears to be settled. Hornsilver Cases, 35 Nev. 464; 130 P. 760, 764; 134 P. 448, 449.

Generally, where a claim is excessive in length, the claim is valid if the error is innocently made, but the excess is void. Nelson v. Smith, 42 Nev. 302; 176 P. 261; 178 P. 625.

5. Requisites and validity of location proceedings—Posting notice.

A certificate of location of a mining claim duly recorded is prima facie evidence only of such facts as are required by law to be stated therein, provided they are sufficiently stated. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 546; 138 P. 71.

A certificate of location is not evidence of the fact of a discovery, and such certificate setting forth the date of location is not evidence of a discovery either upon that or any other date. Id.

The basis of a valid mining location is discovery, and the mere posting of a notice without discovery is of no force or effect so far as rendering invalid another subsequent location covering a portion of the same ground and based upon a valid discovery. Id.

6. Requisites and validity of location proceedings—Certificate or declaratory statement.

The description of a mining claim in a location certificate read: "To SW corner; thence northerly 500 ft. to N. side center post, 1,350 ft. to place of beginning." Held, that the failure to carry the boundary to the northwest corner was an apparent omission or clerical mistake if the claim was properly monumented at that corner. Hornsilver Cases, 35 Nev. 465; 130 P. 700, 704; 134 P. 448, 449.

A location certificate is not required to be strictly exact, and an apparent clerical mistake in describing courses and boundaries will be corrected or ignored. Id.

7. Requisites and validity of location proceedings—Record.

Failure to properly file a certificate or amended certificate of location does not affect the rights thereunder, but merely changes the burden of proof. Indiana M. Co. v. Gold Hills M. Co., 35 Nev. 158; 126 P. 965.

8. Requisites and validity of location proceedings—Abandonment.

Abandonment of a location is largely, if not entirely, a question of intent. Id.

9. Requisites and validity of location proceedings—Forfeiture.

Forfeitures are not favored by the law, and are held to exist only when the facts clearly justify, so that the forfeiture of a mining location will not be declared merely because of the removal of the location monument where there was no intention to abandon. Id.

10. Requisites and validity of location proceedings—Relocation.

The location on ground, knowing it to be excess ground, within the staked boundaries of another claim initiated prior thereto, because law governing manner of making location had not been complied with, so that location covers the workings of the prior locators, is what in mining circles is known as "claim jumping." Nelson v. Smith, 42 Nev. 303; 176 P. 261; 178 P. 625.

Where public mineral land is open to location at the time a claim is initiated, the location is valid, though the land is excess ground within staked boundaries of another claim, and though persons initiating claim had knowledge thereof. Nelson v. Smith, 42 Nev. 302; 176 P. 261; 178 P. 625.

11. Requisites and validity of location proceedings—Conflicting locations.

Vacant ground, formerly a portion of a location which has been extinguished by having its location monument and shaft included within the exterior boundaries of a patented claim, may not be held as an amended location of the original extinguished claim, but such an amended location or relocation of the original claim will be regarded as a new and independent location, and no rights can attach thereto by virtue of the extinguished location. Indiana M. Co. v. Gold Hills M. Co., 35 Nev. 158; 126 P. 965.

Patenting of a mining claim containing within its surface boundaries, as patented, the location monument and shaft of another claim extinguishes the latter. Id.

A valid location of a mining claim cannot be made upon ground covered by a prior existing location or locations. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 546; 138 P. 71.

Where prior to the patent survey of a second mining claim and the moving of its line, the end of the line of the original claim was, on the making of the patent survey for that claim, moved so as to correspond with the call in the location notice and certificate, the owners of that claim have priority. Indiana M. Co. v. Gold Hills M. Co., 35 Nev. 158; 126 P. 965.

The discovery point of a mining claim must be upon free territory. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 545; 138 P. 71.

The location of a mining claim, based upon a discovery of mineral within the limits of a valid existing claim, was void. Round Mt. Co. v. Sphinx Co., 35 Nev. 392; 129 P. 308.

12. Rights acquired.

Where there is no valid location, there can be no right of possession under it. Nelson v. Smith, 42 Nev. 303; 176 P. 261; 178 P. 625.

13. Rights acquired—Extralateral rights under vein or lode location.

Where a mining claim containing the apex of a cross lode, lying entirely within the surface boundary of a prior claim or group owned by same party, is held invalid, the side-lines of the prior claim constitute end-lines in determining the extralateral rights on the cross vein, across which, as they extend vertically downward, the lode cannot be followed. Round Mt. Co. v. Sphinx Co., 35 Nev. 392; 129 P. 308.

Rev. Stats. U. S. 2322, limiting extralateral rights to the part of a vein between vertical planes drawn downward through the end-lines, continued "in their own direction," does not negative extralateral rights in opposite directions; the end-lines having two directions. Jim Butler Co. v. West End Co., 39 Nev. 375; 158 P. 876; 1 Am. Law Rep. 405.

Within Rev. Stats. U. S. 2322, giving extralateral rights as to veins the tops or apexes of which are within the surface lines of the located claim, the crest of a vein in the form of anticlinal fold is the apex; a terminal edge not being necessary for an apex. Id.

As regards extralateral rights under Rev. Stats. U. S. 2322 (U. S. Comp. Stats. 1913, 4618) where a patented mining location is in the form of a parallelogram, except for the exclusion, for conflict, of a triangular piece at a corner, the remainder of what would have been the end-lines but for such exclusion is the end-line; the interior line of the excluded triangle being one, or a part of one, of the side-lines, and not part of a broken end-line. Id.

14. Actions to determine and establish rights.

In determining priority of mining claims, the declarations contained in the record, by which the subsequent patent was obtained, were admissible in the absence of proof that the record did not state the truth. Round Mt. Co. v. Sphinx Co., 35 Nev. 392; 129 P. 308.

Where the location certificate of a junior mining claim recited that the claim was wholly within the boundaries of another claim, such certificate was sufficiently ambiguous or conflicting to cast upon the subsequent locator the burden of showing that the prior claim was invalid. Id.

In an equitable action to quiet title to a lode or vein, where the land department did not determine the question of priority of claims in the same group, but made a double grant of the conflicting area, appearing upon the face of the later patent, the district court had no jurisdiction to determine such priority. Round Mt. Co. v. Sphinx Co., 35 Nev. 398; 129 P. 308.

Equity has the inherent power to order, in a pending case, a survey of the boundaries and underground workings of mines constituting the subject-matter of the suit. National M. Co. v. District Court, 34 Nev. 67; 116 P. 996.

In an equitable action to determine rights to mining claims, the invalidity of plaintiff's patent may be pleaded as a defense and tried upon the same principles as an original bill in equity. Round Mt. Co. v. Sphinx Co., 35 Nev. 393; 129 P. 308.

A statute, empowering a court of equity, on a proper showing, to order, in the absence of a pending suit, a survey of the boundaries and underground workings of adjacent mines, is not unconstitutional. National M. Co. v. District Court, 34 Nev. 67; 116 P. 996.

In an equitable action to quiet title to a lode or vein which involves questions of extralateral rights not involved in the proceedings for patent, defendant, who filed no adverse thereto, is not estopped from questioning the validity of the location of the claim under which the plaintiff seeks to enforce such extralateral rights as against him. Round Mt. Co. v. Sphinx Co., 35 Nev. 393; 129 P. 308.

In a suit to determine complainant's extralateral rights with reference to certain mining locations, evidence held to require a finding that the north vein at its apex and on its strike traversed complainant's West Virginia location from end to end, crossing both end-lines, dipping in a westerly direction, and in its downward course passed beyond the west side-line of that claim and beneath the surface of complainant's Charleston Fraction location to and across the west side-line thereof, and continuing in its downward course passed beneath the surface of defendant's West Virginia No. 1 location and Charleston No. 1 and the West Virginia Fraction, and that complainant was therefore entitled to extralateral rights along the vein under such claims. National Mines Co. v. Charleston Hill Nat. Mining Syndicate, 205 F. 787.

In actions begun in the state court, pursuant to Rev. St. secs. 2325, 2326 (Comp. St. 1916, secs. 4622, 4623), to determine contests over Nevada mining claims, which were removed to the federal court and consolidated, the refusal of instructions, requested by defendant, submitting the issue of adverse possession, which was raised by the evidence, was prejudicial error; limitations being a defense under the Nevada statutes applicable to actions to recover mining claims. Ralph v. Cole, 249 F. 81; 161 C. C. A. 133.

(C) PATENTS

15. Application and proceedings thereon.

Where the record does not contain the application for the patent nor a copy of the published notice, it will not be presumed, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, that such application or published notice is in conflict with the exclusions made in the field-notes of the deputy mineral surveyor. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 545; 138 P. 71.

Under section 38 of the regulations of the general land office providing that "The field-notes and plat are made a part of the application for patent," and section 130 of the same regulations providing that "The survey of a mining claim may consist of several contiguous locations, but such survey must * * * distinguish the several locations, and exhibit the boundaries of each," and section 153 of the same regulations providing that "When locations embraced in one survey conflict with each other, such conflicts should only be stated in connection with the location from which the conflict area is excluded." It is the duty of the deputy mineral surveyor to set forth in his field-notes the exclusions of the conflict area, and in favor of the claim or claims such exclusions are made. Id.

A patent to a group of mining claims does not simply describe the exterior boundaries of the land which is embraced by the group, but each location is described and each embraces a separate portion of the ground, to the exclusion of every other claim the same as if a separate patent issued for each particular location, and all conflicts are determined by the patent. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 547; 138 P. 71.

16. Adverse claims, and proceedings thereon.

When the general land office issued a group patent comprising five mining locations, and it appeared from the face of the patent that one of these claims, the Los Gazabo, was in conflict with each of the other claims known as the Sunnyside Nos. 1, 2, and 3, and the Sunnyside Fraction, the land office having full knowledge of the situation of these claims when it issued a patent to the group, including the Los Gazabo, the effect of the issuance of such patent was an adjudication of the validity of the location of the Los Gazabo. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 544; 138 P. 71.

Where the general land office issued a patent to a group of mining claims, one of which was entirely within the exterior boundaries of the other claims, except for a very small portion, about five one-hundredths of an acre in one corner, the fact that there is such portion outside the exterior boundaries of the other claims is evidentiary that the land office adjudicated such location to be valid, for otherwise this small portion of land included within the patent could find no support in the law. Id.

It will be assumed that patents to mining claims are issued upon surveys made under the direction of the United States surveyor-general. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 545; 138 P. 71.

The land department has jurisdiction to determine questions of priority as between conflicting lode locations embraced in the same group application. Round Mt. Co. v. Sphinx Co., 35 Nev. 393; 129 P. 308.

17. Construction and operation.

Where a patent to a group of conflicting mining claims upon its face contains no express exclusions and where the total area granted by the patent accounts for the area in conflict but once, it is manifest that there is not a double grant of the conflict area, but such patent does not disclose upon its face which of the claims takes such conflict area. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 544; 138 P. 71.

Where a group patent to several claims in conflict discloses that the location point of one of the claims is within the conflict area, it will be conclusively presumed from the patent that the claim having its location point in conflict with another claim takes the conflict area as between two such claims. Id.

When construing a patent to a group of mining claims for the purpose of determining which claim, or claims, takes the conflict area, reference may be made to the field-notes of the deputy mineral surveyor referred to in the patent. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 546; 138 P. 71.

When a patent issues to a group of mining claims and therein refers to the field-notes, the exclusions contained in such field-notes become the exclusions of the government itself. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 545; 138 P. 71.

A patent to a mining claim relates back to the original location. L. V. & T. R. R. v. Summerfield, 35 Nev. 229; 129 P. 303.

The federal land office may make a valid grant of a mining claim in two noncontiguous pieces of ground, separated by a prior location. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 546; 138 P. 71.

18. Conclusiveness.

When an owner of a lode claim makes application for a patent and the owner of the claim in conflict seeks to challenge the former's priority of right on account of the date of discovery, he must bring an adverse suit, or the question, after patent, will be as to him concluded. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 544; 138 P. 71.

An entry, sustained by a patent, is conclusive evidence that at the time of the entry there had been a valid location. Id.

As the validity of a mining location granted by a patent from the general land office depends upon priority of discovery, and as it is incumbent upon such land office to determine all facts necessary to support the validity of the location patented, it must be conclusively presumed that such question was determined in favor of the patented location. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 546; 138 P. 71.

Failure to file an adverse claim within the time fixed by law operates as a waiver of all rights which were the proper subject of such a claim. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 543; 138 P. 71.

A mining patent is conclusive upon all matters which might have been the subject of an adverse claim. Id.

Upon the issuance of a patent to a mining claim, all matters which might have been tried under adverse proceedings are treated as adjudicated in favor of the patentee as fully as though judgment had been regularly rendered in his favor. Id.

Where there is any surface conflict whatever and there is a failure to adverse, after the patent has been issued to the applicant, the question of priority of title is conclusively determined in favor of the patentee. Id.

Notwithstanding a failure to assert adverse rights, an adverse claimant will not be estopped from making a protest in the federal land office, bringing to the notice of the department any facts which tend to show noncompliance with the requirements of law. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 544; 138 P. 71.

The issuance of a patent by the land department after adjudication by the proper tribunal is conclusive and not subject to collateral attack as to all matters before the tribunal for adjudication and as to all persons who were parties to such adjudication, and hence, where the owner of a mining claim did not file an adverse to a subsequent application for patent, the land department's patent to the applicant is conclusive as to the rights of the parties to the surface ground included in the application. Round Mt. Co. v. Sphinx Co., 35 Nev. 392; 129 P. 308.

An owner of a conflicting mining claim, who fails to institute adverse proceedings when another party has applied for patent for the conflicting area, or to protest in the land office against the granting of such patent, cannot be heard to contest questions of fact upon which the patent is based. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 547; 138 P. 71.

19. Existence and enforcement of trust.

Where under an agreement by defendant with plaintiff to relocate a mining claim in their joint names, defendant relocates the claim but omits plaintiff's name, defendant, in an action by plaintiff to recover his share of claim under the agreement, is estopped to deny the plaintiff's rights in the claim and cannot question the validity of the location. Hornsilver Cases, 35 Nev. 447; 130 P. 760, 764; 134 P. 448, 449.

Where a plaintiff, one of two coowners and locators of a mining claim, contracted with a defendant, whereby such defendant agreed to do the annual assessment work on the claim for the year 1909, and thus prevent a forfeiture, a trust relation was created; and when such defendant, in violation of his agreement, failed to do the work, and permitted a forfeiture, and then relocated the claim in the names of himself and two others, not including plaintiffs, plaintiffs could recover the relocated claim. Hornsilver Cases, 35 Nev. 464; 130 P. 760, 764; 134 P. 448, 449.

Where there is an oral agreement between plaintiff, a part owner of a mining claim, and one defendant, by which the latter was to perform the assessment work on the claim for 1909, and plaintiff was to convey to him an undivided one-fourth of the claim, and defendant was also to relocate another claim in the joint names of plaintiff and defendant in consideration of plaintiff's refraining from performing assessment work on the claim, a trust relation is created, and if defendant fails to perform the assessment work, and the first claim reverts to the public, and in relocating the second one he does not include plaintiff as one of the relocators, plaintiff can enforce the trust and recover the share which he would have received had the defendant performed the contract. Hornsilver Cases, 35 Nev. 447; 130 P. 760, 764; 134 P. 448, 449.

II. TITLE, CONVEYANCES AND CONTRACTS

(A) RIGHTS AND REMEDIES OF OWNERS

20. Recovery of possession of lands or mines.

Under act of Congress July 26, 1866, c. 262, 14 Stat. 252, providing for the patenting of mining claims, Rev. Laws, 4951, providing that no action to recover mining claims shall be maintained unless plaintiff or those under whom he claims was seized or possessed of such claim within two years before the commencement of such action, and sec. 4952, providing that no cause of action upon title to real property shall be effectual unless the person prosecuting the action was seized or possessed of the premises in question within five years before the commission of the act in respect to which the action is prosecuted, and sec. 4953, referring to mining claims as such, enacted subsequent to the federal statute, applied to patented as well as unpatented mining claims, and an action to recover a patented claim must be commenced within two years from the time when plaintiff was seized or possessed of such claim. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 172; 161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064.

(B) CONVEYANCES

21. Grants and reservations of minerals and mining rights.

In an action to recover interests in the mining property under options, evidence held insufficient to sustain recovery on a theory of fraud, of continuing options, of the existence of a partnership, or of knowledge by defendants of the existence of such partnership. Gamble v. Silver Peak, 34 Nev. 351; 128 P. 111.

Reference to a mining claim as a placer instead of a lode claim, in an agreement for the sale of a portion of the surface, was immaterial where the property was otherwise so described as to leave no doubt as to what was intended. L. V. & T. R. R. v. Summerfield, 35 Nev. 229; 129 P. 303.

Grantees of a portion of the surface of a mining claim under mesne conveyances from the original locator are entitled to the possession of the surface so conveyed, under the rule that equity will control the patent title in favor of party holding the equitable title. Id.

If property has been acquired by fraud, or in utter disregard of the rights of others, and such property subsequently becomes of great value, the person defrauded would not for that reason alone be debarred from recovering possession, even though he reaped an increment entirely disproportionate to any efforts put forth by himself. Gamble v. Silver Peak, 34 Nev. 351; 126 P. 111.

Facts reviewed and are held to constitute laches. Id.

The doctrine of laches is not particularly applicable to mining transactions. As to such properties, parties interested are required to be active and vigilant in asserting their rights. Id.

Persons claiming an equitable interest in mining property under options after it has been made immensely valuable by the efforts of others must show good faith on their part, ability and readiness to perform their contract within the time fixed, and absence of laches. Id.

(C) LEASES, LICENSES, AND CON-TRACTS

22. Requisites and validity.

An assignment of a one-third interest in a mining lease was a sufficient consideration for an agreement to bear one-third of expenses of developing mine, though the lease proved of no value. Girton v. Daniels, 35 Nev. 438; 129 P. 555.

23. Construction and operation of mining leases—Surrender, abandonment or forfeiture.

Under the common form of lease of undeveloped lode mining property, wherein the lessor seeks to have his property developed at lessee's expense, and the latter assumes such burden, the lessee, after discovering that future expenditures would be useless, may abandon the lease. Id.

24. Construction and operation of mining leases—Testing or working.

The act of December 17, 1862 (Stats. 1862, c. 37), authorizing any owner of any mine to sue for damages for improper mining by one in possession under a lease and for trespass to his mine, and providing for an application for an order for a survey of mines, and declaring that the costs of the order and survey shall be paid by the persons making the application unless they shall subsequently maintain an action and recover damages by reason of a trespass threatened prior to such survey, does not permit a survey of the boundaries and underground workings of the adjacent mines unless there is a pending suit involving such mines. National M. Co. v. District Court, 34 Nev. 67; 116 P. 996.

III. OPERATION OF MINES, QUARRIES AND WELLS

(C) RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES INCIDENT TO WORKING

25. Actions for labor or materials.

In an action to recover a balance claimed to be due on account of ore treated at defendant's mill, evidence held insufficient to sustain judgment for plaintiffs. Richardson v. National Ore Co., 34 Nev. 455; 124 P. 779.

26. Liens—Nature, grounds, and subject-matter.

The lien law for securing payment for labor on mining property is not to be construed strictly, as in derogation of common law, but liberally, as remedial. Ferro v. Bargo M. Co., 37 Nev. 139; 140 P. 527.

While there must be a substantial compliance with the essential requisites of the statute in order to claim a laborer's lien, such pleadings and notices as the statute requires should be liberally construed to promote the object to be effected, and the statute in that respect should not be construed so technically as to destroy claimant's right to a lien. Lamb v. Lucky Boy M. Co., 37 Nev. 9; 138 P. 902.

Persons performing labor in the development of mining property or to facilitate the extracting of ore have a lien upon the interest of the lessee and the owner. Id.

Rev. Laws, 2213, provides that all laborers and others who work upon any mine in an amount of $5 or more, or furnish material, whether done or furnished at the instance of the owner or his agent, shall have a lien upon the mine for the value of the work or materials and that every contractor, subcontractor, or other person in charge of any mining claim shall be held to be the agent of the owner for the purposes of the chapter. Held, that one who furnished labor in developing a mine at the instance of a lessee was entitled to a lien on the property for his services, whether the lessee was a contractor working on the property in the interest of the owner, or whether, under the lease, the lessee and owner were both to share the benefits of the lessee's work. Lamb v. Lucky Boy M. Co., 37 Nev. 10; 138 P. 902.

27. Liens—Right to lien.

Under Rev. Laws, 2221, providing that an improvement on land with the owner's knowledge shall subject the owner to a lien unless, within three days after his knowledge of the improvement, he gives notice that he will not be responsible therefor by posting a notice in writing to that effect in some conspicuous place upon the land, etc., a notice posted at the collar of a mine shaft, which the owner, when he entered into an agreement with the contractor, knew would necessarily be destroyed in preparing the shaft for mining operation, and which was so destroyed prior to the contractor's employment of the claimants, was not binding upon the claimants, as a notice must be so posted as, under ordinary conditions, it will remain a reasonable length of time, though a written notice in lead pencil would be as good as any other notice. Phillips v. Snowden Co., 40 Nev. 67; 160 P. 786.

28. Liens—Proceedings to perfect.

The statute giving right of lien to both contractors and laborers, a lien claim against mining property is not void for joinder of a claim of lien under a contract of employment by the day with one under a contract of employment for a specified amount of work at an agreed price per foot; the work being continuous and of the same character under both contracts. Ferro v. Bargo M. Co., 37 Nev. 139; 140 P. 527.

Where under a joint contract of two for work on mining property, half the contract price is to be paid each severally, they need not join in a lien claim, but one of them may alone file such a claim for half the amount. Id.

29. Liens—Enforcement.

In a suit to foreclose mechanics' liens for work done under a contractor for mining work, brought in a justice's court, the allowance of costs to the plaintiff and intervening claimants in that court was erroneous. Phillips v. Snowden Co., 40 Nev. 67; 160 P. 786.

Where the complaint, in an action to enforce a lien as against the owner upon mining property for services performed for the lessee, alleged that lease was executed by owner for purpose of developing and extracting ore from property, it must be presumed that owner had knowledge that laborers were being employed and materials furnished in developing the property under the lease. Lamb v. Lucky Boy M. Co., 37 Nev. 9; 138 P. 902.

A complaint, alleging that plaintiff "contributed" money to erection of a building, does not allege a loan. Guisti v. Guisti, 41 Nev. 349; 171 P. 161.

7. Parties.

I. REQUISITES AND VALIDITY

(A) NATURE AND ESSENTIALS OF CONVEYANCES AS SECURITY

1. Absolute deed as mortgage.

Under civil practice act, sec. 576 (Rev. Laws, 5518), providing that a mortgage shall not be deemed a conveyance, so as to enable the owner of the mortgage to take possession without foreclosure and sale, a deed absolute in form, but given as security for a debt, is a mortgage, and will be regarded in equity as such; a "mortgage" not being an alienation, but mere security for a debt. Yori v. Phenix, 38 Nev. 277; 149 P. 180.

Where absolute deeds of certain real estate were executed solely to secure repayment of certain loans made by the grantee to the grantors, the property to be held by the grantee as his own until the loans were repaid to him, the deeds were mortgages. Alter v. Clark, 193 F. 153.

(D) VALIDITY

2. Evidence.

Evidence held insufficient to show that a mortgagor was mentally incapacitated by intoxication at the time of drawing a mortgage. Seeley v. Goodwin, 39 Nev. 315; 156 P. 934.

The mere fact that signatures to a note and mortgage were poorly made is insufficient to show that the maker was intoxicated. Id.

Assuming that a subsequent purchaser of a mortgagor may assert the mortgagor's incapacity owing to intoxication at the time of drawing the mortgage, the degree of proof required to show such incapacity on his part is at least equal to that required from one asserting his own incapacity. Id.

III. CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION

(C) PROPERTY MORTGAGED, AND ESTATES OF PARTIES THEREIN

3. Acquisition of outstanding title or claim.

A purchaser of mortgaged land from the mortgagor cannot acquire title as against the mortgagee by failing to pay the taxes and bidding in the property at the resulting tax sale. U. S. E. & G. Co. v. Marks, 37 Nev. 306; 142 P. 524.

IV. RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF PARTIES

4. Possession or control of property—Before default.

In a mortgage legal title is in the mortgagor, and the mortgagee holds only an equitable lien. S. P. Co. v. Miller, 39 Nev. 160; 154 P. 929.

5. Rents and profits.

A complaint for the collection of rents alleged that a deed, absolute in form, was given to plaintiff by a bank, and that plaintiff gave back to the grantor a written declaration that the premises were held as security for the repayment of money deposited in the bank by plaintiff and by another depositor; that, as part of the arrangement, it was agreed that plaintiff should have possession of the premises and the rentals thereof; and that the plaintiff thereafter took possession and notified the defendants of the transfer. Held, that complaint was based on the theory that plaintiff was a mortgagee in possession, not by virtue of the conveyance, but under an independent agreement therefor which had been executed, so that evidence of plaintiff's entry into possession after the date of the deed and the defeasance was improperly rejected. Douglass v. Thompson, 35 Nev. 196; 127 P. 561; Ann. Cas. 1914C, 920.

X. FORECLOSURE BY ACTION

(I) JUDGMENT OR DECREE AND EXECUTION

6. Opening or vacating judgment or decree.

Plaintiff in an action to foreclose a mortgage failed to file any affidavit that all taxes on the money or debts secured had been paid, as required by Rev. Laws, 3756, which also provided that on motion of defendant the court should stay proceedings until such affidavit was filed or proof of payment of such taxes made, and that the court, before entering judgment, should require such affidavit or proof. Held, in the absence of a provision making a judgment void for failure to comply with the statute, that its purpose was only to aid in the enforcement of other tax laws, and that, as the objection went neither to a question of fraud upon the court nor the defendant mortgagor, it was not ground for setting aside a default judgment therein. Nev. Con. M. Co. v. Lewis, 34 Nev. 500; 126 P. 105.

(M) REVIEW

7. Parties.

In suit to foreclose a mortgage, a subsequent purchaser, whose right was defeated by execution sale, and the execution purchaser and his grantee, who had deeded the land to one defendant, were not necessary parties to an appeal, which would not be dismissed on that ground. Seeley v. Goodwin, 39 Nev. 315; 156 P. 934.

If the statute does not provide for notice of a motion by publication, it would not be any notice, and the order made thereon would be ex parte. State v. Wildes, 37 Nev. 55; 139 P. 505; 142 P. 627.

Publication of notice of a motion for ten days is not a service, and could not cut off or affect the rights of any party in interest unless such publication is authorized by statute. State v. Wildes, 37 Nev. 56; 139 P. 505; 142 P. 627.

2. Vacating or setting aside orders.

In a condemnation proceeding, defendant moved to set the proceeding down for hearing on the questions of whether the use to which the property was to be applied was one authorized by law and whether the taking of the property was necessary. The court evidently made an order setting the matter for hearing on January 21, and on that day defendants made an application to dismiss their former motion to set the matter for hearing. Held, that the court properly denied this application, as the motion to set the matter for hearing had been acted upon, and all that the court could have done would have been to vacate the order setting the matter for hearing, which it was not asked to do. Goldfield Con. v. O. S. A. Co., 38 Nev. 426; 150 P. 313.

Civil practice act (Rev. Laws, 5367), sec. 425, providing that written notices and other papers, when required to be served on a party or his attorney, shall be served in the manner prescribed in the next three sections, when not otherwise provided, and district court rule 10, relating to service of notice, and rule 45, providing that motions to vacate orders may be made within six months on notice to the adverse party, are applicable to chancery proceedings. State v. Wildes, 37 Nev. 57; 139 P. 505; 142 P. 627.

Cities are mere instrumentalities of the state for the convenient administration of government, and their powers may be qualified, enlarged, or withdrawn at the pleasure of the legislature. City of Reno v. Stoddard, 40 Nev. 537; 167 P. 317.

2. Municipal taxes and other revenue.

The revenues of a city raised by taxation, though levied for specific public purposes, may be applied by the legislature to other municipal uses, subject to constitutional limitations. Id.

IV. PROCEEDINGS OF COUNCIL OR OTHER GOVERNING BODY(B) ORDINANCES AND BY-LAWS*3. Validity.

An ordinance violative of the provisions of a city charter, or of the general law, is void. State v. Reno City Council, 36 Nev. 334; 136 P. 110; 50 L. R. A. (N.S.) 195.

4. Construction and operation.

The fact that a proposed ordinance has been initiated by the electorate of a city adds no additional validity to such proposed ordinance. If it would not be valid if adopted by the city council, its infirmity would not be cured by an affirmative vote of the electors of the city. Id.

IX. PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS(A) POWER TO MAKE IMPROVEMENTS OR GRANT AID THEREFOR*5. Constitutional and statutory provisions.

Stats. 1915, c. 184, sec. 5, amending charter of city of Reno of March 16, 1903 (Stats. 1903, c. 102, as amended by Stats. 1905, c. 71), art. 12, sec. 10, by empowering the city council to levy and collect for general purposes a certain tax on the assessed value of real and personal property, 15 per cent of which should be set aside in a special fund to provide for a sewage-disposal plant or system for the city, was, as to such special fund, repealed by Stats. 1917, c. 76, amending sec. 5 "to read as follows," and omitting the provision for such special fund. City of Reno v. Stoddard, 40 Nev. 537; 167 P. 317.

X. POLICE POWER AND REGULATIONS6. Concurrent and conflicting exercise of power.

Stats. 1913, c. 206, regulating automobiles or motor vehicles on the public roads and streets, providing a license for the operation thereof, and in sec. 15 providing that the act shall in no wise affect any statute now existent nor that may thereafter be enacted providing for the licensing of automobiles for hire, does not interfere with the power of a city to license and regulate the use of jitney busses. Ex Parte Counts, 30 Nev. 61; 153 P. 93.

XII. TORTS(C) DEFECTS OR OBSTRUCTIONS IN STREET AND OTHER PUBLIC WAYS*7. Nature and grounds of liability.

In an action against a city for personal injuries resulting from plaintiff's falling into an excavation made in a street, although the act of incorporation of the city may have given to the city trustees exclusive power to regulate its streets, drains, etc., yet where it appeared that for some years the city had paid the bills which were approved by the city trustees for street work done by the city marshal and had permitted him to do such work, it must be presumed that it authorized him to make the excavation in question rendering the city liable for his negligence. Barnes v. City of Carson, 33 Nev. 17; 110 P. 3.

XIII. FISCAL MANAGEMENT, PUBLIC DEBT, SECURITIES, AND TAXATION(A) POWER TO INCUR INDEBTEDNESS AND EXPENDITURES*8. Borrowing money.

Rev. Laws, 978, providing that in cases of great necessity or emergency, the governing body of a town or city may, by unanimous vote and with the approval of the state board of revenue, authorize a temporary loan to meet such necessity or emergency, does not authorize a city organized under a special charter, which as amended by Stats. 1907, c. 29, 146, gave the trustees power to improve its streets and to issue bonds subject to the right of the voters to petition for a special election on the question, to make a temporary loan to pay for the paving of street intersections on its main street, since "great necessity or emergency" means something greatly out of the ordinary, which could not be met by the usual machinery of the government, immediately indispensable, and does not include what is merely essential in the sense of being convenient. Chartz v. Carson City, 39 Nev. 285; 156 P. 925.

(D) TAXES AND OTHER REVENUE AND APPLICATION THEREOF9. Disposition for municipal purposes of taxes and other revenue.

The provision of the last amendatory act that all moneys held in any special fund might be transferred to the city's general fund authorized the transfer of the special sewage-disposal fund created by Stats. 1915.

c. 184, sec. 5, to the city's general fund.

I. ACTS OR OMISSIONS CONSTITUTING NEGLIGENCE

(C) CONDITION AND USE OF LAND, BUILDINGS AND OTHER STRUCTURES

1. Care as to licensees or persons invited.

In an action for injuries from being struck by lumber thrown from a car by a lurch due to a defect in the track belonging to defendant and used by plaintiff's employer, that plaintiff was in the employ of a person sustaining the relation of an independent contractor to defendant constituted no defense. Flodin v. Verdi Lumber Co., 37 Nev. 204; 142 P. 531.

Where a lumber company owning a defective railroad track furnishes same to an independent contractor to enable him to carry out his contract, and the defective condition is, or, in the exercise of ordinary care, might have been known to the company, and where an employee of the independent contractor is injured, as a proximate result of such defect, while he is in the discharge of his duty and in the exercise of ordinary care for his own safety, the company is liable for such injury. Id.

II. PROXIMATE CAUSE OF INJURY

2. Nature and probable consequences.

Where a succession of events are so linked together as to make a natural whole, and all so connected with the first event as to be in legal contemplation, the natural result thereof, the first negligent act is the proximate cause of the resulting catastrophe, although there may be intervening agencies, one of which is the act of the party injured. König v. N. C. O. Ry., 30 Nev. 183; 135 P. 141.

3. Nature and probable consequences—Consequences that should have been foreseen.

Where the first wrong done is the probable cause of an injury or accident, and the final injurious consequences are such as might have been foreseen, the consequence, as well as every intervening result, is the proximate result of the first wrongful cause. Id.

Where a new cause intervenes between the first wrongful cause and the final injurious consequences, which is not under the control of the first wrongdoer, and which he could not with reasonable diligence have foreseen, and except for which the final catastrophe could not have happened, the final result is too remote to furnish the basis of an action. Id.

III. CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE

(A) PERSONS INJURED

4. Acts in emergencies.

One exposed to sudden danger is not chargeable with negligence simply because he does not adopt the safest course to avoid the injury. Vascacillas v. S. P. Co., 247 F. 8; 159 C. C. A. 226.

(D) COMPARATIVE NEGLIGENCE

5. Relative degrees of negligence of parties.

Rev. Laws, 5651, providing that, in actions against a mine owner for damages for injuries to an employee, the employee's contributory negligence shall not bar a recovery, where it was slight and the employer's negligence was gross in comparison, substitutes for the common-law rule of contributory negligence the rule of relative or comparative negligence. Peterson v. Silver Peak, 37 Nev. 118; 140 P. 519.

IV. ACTIONS

(A) RIGHT OF ACTION, PARTIES, PRELIMINARY PROCEEDINGS, AND PLEADINGS

6. Declaration, complaint or petition—Negating contributory negligence or other fault.

In an action for damages for personal injuries, contributory negligence is a matter of defense, and plaintiff need not allege that the injury was caused without his fault, unless in stating his cause of action he details facts disclosing prima facie that he was guilty of contributory negligence or that his acts were the proximate cause of the injury, in which case he must allege that the injuries occurred without his fault. König v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 182; 135 P. 141.

7. Issues, proof and variance.

Where plaintiff's evidence discloses contributory negligence, defendant may take advantage thereof by a motion for a nonsuit or a directed verdict, or in the argument to the jury, even though contributory negligence has not been pleaded; but if plaintiff's evidence does not show contributory negligence as a matter of law, defendant cannot introduce additional evidence to show such negligence. Id.

Contributory negligence must be specially pleaded as an affirmative defense, and cannot be proved under a general denial, and a denial that plaintiff was exercising ordinary care and diligence, or any care and diligence, or that he was without fault or negligence, as unnecessarily alleged by him, did not raise such issue. Id.

(B) EVIDENCE

8. Admissibility.

In an employee's action against one to whom the employer sustained the relation of an independent contractor, evidence that the defective track causing plaintiff's injury was used by defendant was not objectionable as leading the jury to believe that such use placed on defendant the duty to keep the track in a safe condition, where defendant was liable for furnishing a defective track for the contractor's use, even though it had not used the track at the same time. Flodin v. Verdi Lumber Co., 37 Nev. 294; 142 P. 531.

9. Admissibility—Similar facts or transactions.

Where the evidence in an employee's action for injuries showed that the injury resulted from being struck by lumber thrown from a car due to a defective track, evidence that lumber had slipped from the car because of insecure loading at other times was properly excluded. Id.

(C) TRIAL, JUDGMENT, AND REVIEW

10. Questions for jury.

Where plaintiff's evidence shows contributory negligence without any dispute, or so conclusively that the court, in the exercise of a sound judicial discretion, would be compelled to set aside a verdict for plaintiff, a verdict for defendant should be directed; but where it only tends to show contributory negligence, or only raises an inference thereof, the question should be submitted to the jury. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 182; 135 P. 141.

11. Instructions—Negligence.

In an employee's action for injuries, an instruction that "negligence" was the want of such attention to the nature or the probable consequence of an act or omission as a reasonably prudent person ordinarily bestowed in acting in his concerns of like importance, although it might have been differently worded, was not erroneous or misleading, or open to the construction that, if plaintiff's injuries were the consequence of defendant's omission, then a want of attention to such injuries constituted negligence. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 187; 135 P. 141.

12. Verdict and findings.

Special finding that defendant's conduct was "careless disregard" for plaintiff's safety rebuts assumption that its act was "wilful," "wanton," or "aggravated misconduct" or "reckless disregard" of his safety. Crosman v. Southern Pacific Co., 42 Nev. 92; 173 P. 223.

11. Determination.

12. Ground not urged.

II. GROUNDS

(D) DISQUALIFICATION OR MISCONDUCT OF OR AFFECTING JURY

1. Misconduct of others affecting jury—Parties or counsel.

That the attorney for the successful parties dined at the same table with a juror in a hotel does not alone justify the setting aside of the verdict. Knock v. T. & G. R. R. Co., 38 Nev. 143; 145 P. 939; L. R. A. 1915F, 3.

(H) NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE

2. Diligence in procuring evidence.

Where the alleged newly discovered evidence would consist of the testimony of witnesses who resided at the place of trial and were present at the trial to the knowledge of the moving party, or who testified as witnesses in the case, sufficient showing of diligence is not made out. Robinson M. Co. v. Riepe, 37 Nev. 28; 138 P. 910.

It is not abusive of discretion to refuse a new trial upon alleged newly discovered evidence where such new evidence is only of an impeaching character. Id.

3. Relevancy, materiality, and competency.

Newly discovered evidence on a matter collateral to the issues is seldom ground for a new trial. Whise v. Whise, 36 Nev. 16; 131 P. 967; 44 L. R. A. (N.S.) 689.

The alleged newly discovered evidence must be material or important to the party seeking a new trial. Id.

4. Sufficiency, and probable effect.

Newly discovered evidence, which could only be used by way of impeachment, is not ground for granting a new trial, unless evidence of the witness sought to be impeached was so important, and the impeaching evidence so convincing, that a different result would necessarily follow the admission of the impeaching evidence. Id.

In order to compel the granting of a new trial, the newly discovered evidence must be so strong as to make it probable that a different result would be obtained in another trial; it not being sufficient that it "might" change the result. Id.

III. PROCEEDINGS TO PROCURE NEW TRIAL

5. Time for application—Stipulation as to time and waiver of objections to delay.

Though the provisions of Cutting's Compilation, sec. 3292, authorizing an enlargement of the time for service and filing of a motion for a new trial by stipulation of the parties, or on good cause shown, by the court or judge before whom the cause was tried, was not carried forward into the Revised Laws, yet where the parties stipulated for an extension of time beyond the ten days specified in Rev. Laws, 5323, within which the defendant might serve and file his notice of intention to move for a new trial, such stipulation was a waiver of plaintiff's right to object that the motion was not in time. Torp v. Clemons, 37 Nev. 474; 142 P. 1115.

Where respondents became a party to an order of the trial court extending the time in which plaintiff might file his notice of intention to move for a new trial, they thereby waived any objection on the ground that such notice was not served within the time prescribed by law. Green v. Hooper, 41 Nev. 13; 167 P. 23.

A party may waive his right to object to any of the proceedings preliminary to a motion for a new trial, or that they have not been taken, filed, or served within the time prescribed by rule or statute. Id.

6. Statement of grounds.

Rev. Laws, 5323, provides that the party intending to move for a new trial must, within five days after any verdict, or within ten days after a decision of the court or referee, file with the clerk, and serve upon the adverse party, a notice of his intention, designating the grounds upon which the motion will be made and whether upon affidavits or upon the minutes. Section 5320 provides that the former verdict or other decision may be vacated, and a new trial granted, for "insufficiency of the evidence to justify a verdict or other decision, or that it is against law." Section 5321 provides that in an application for a new trial it shall be sufficient to state one or more grounds as specified in the preceding section, provided that, when the application is made upon subdivisions 1, 2, 3, or 4 of the preceding section, it must be supported by affidavit. In all other cases it must be made upon the minutes of the court. Held that, as motion for a new trial for insufficiency of evidence can be made only on the minutes of the court, a motion for new trial "on the ground of insufficiency of the evidence to justify the decision, judgment, and findings of fact and conclusions of law" is sufficient, although it failed to state that the motion would be made on the court minutes. Saval v. Blume, 41 Nev. 212; 168 P. 909.

7. Bill of exceptions, or statement of facts.

An ex parte order, extending, as authorized by Rev. Laws, 5322, the time within which the mover for a new trial shall serve on the adverse party a memorandum of exceptions and errors, though properly granted, is without effect until notice thereof has been given the adverse party, as required by district court rule 36. Beco v. Tonopah Ext. M. Co., 37 Nev. 199; 141 P. 453.

8. Notice of motion.

Upon a proper showing, held, that the court might have permitted an amendment to the notice of motion for a new trial. Whise v. Whise, 36 Nev. 16; 131 P. 967; 44 L. R. A. (N.S.) 689.

9. Affidavits as to newly discovered evidence—Necessity and sufficiency.

Where, on motion for new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence, the affidavit of the moving party merely stated conclusions as to exercise of diligence, without setting out the facts, so that the court could draw its own conclusions, it was insufficient. Robinson M. Co. v. Riepe, 37 Nev. 27; 138 P. 910.

10. Hearing.

On defendant's motion for new trial for insufficiency of the evidence, the evidence given by defendant will be considered as well as that given for plaintiff. Hochschultz v. Potosi Zinc Co., 33 Nev. 198; 110 P. 713.

11. Determination.

Under the statute making insufficiency of the evidence to justify the verdict ground for a new trial, the refusal of the trial judge to pass on such ground in support of a motion for new trial is error. Goldfield Mohawk M. Co. v. Frances-Mohawk M. Co., 33 Nev. 491; 112 P. 42.

12. Ground not urged.

A ground of motion for a new trial not urged will not be considered. Dunlap v. Montana-Tonopah M. Co., 192 F. 715; aff. 196 F. 612; 116 C. C. A. 286.

Where, before divorce, a husband signed a note to obtain funds to protect his interest in a mining venture, and after divorce, though no payments were made on the note for a number of years, it was surrendered and a new note received by the bank, the second note cannot be regarded as a renewal of the first as against the divorced wife's interest in the community estate, for at the time of execution of the second note the husband could not bind the community, as it no longer existed, and the wife did not consent to be bound by such obligation. *Johnson v. I. APPOINTMENT, QUALIFICATION, AND TENURE(A) OFFICES, AND POWER TO APPOINT TO AND REMOVE FROM OFFICE

1. Nature of public office.

At common law a citizen could be required to perform the duties of an office. State v. Hamilton, 33 Nev. 418; 111 P. 1026.

2. Abolition of office.

The legislature, in the absence of special authorization in the constitution, may not abolish a constitutional office, or change, alter, or modify its constitutional powers and functions. State v. Douglass, 33 Nev. 82; 110 P. 177.

(C) ELIGIBILITY AND QUALIFICATION3. Holding other office or employment.

The position of townsite trustee is not an office within the provision of the constitution prohibiting a judge from accepting any office other than a judicial office during the term for which he is elected. Jennett v. Stevens, 34 Nev. 128; 116 P. 601.

(G) RESIGNATION, SUSPENSION, OR REMOVAL4. Special judicial proceedings for removal.

A proceeding for removal of a county officer need not be brought in the name of the state, under Stats. 1908-09, c. 200, secs. 21, 22 (Rev. Laws, 2851, 2852), giving procedure for removal of officers. Gay v. District Court, 41 Nev. 330; 171 P. 156.

III. RIGHTS, POWERS, DUTIES, AND LIABILITIES5. Compensation and fees—Right.

Words in a statute simply specifying that an officer shall receive a designated compensation have no retroactive effect, unless there is something in the language indicating it. State ex rel. Fowler v. Eggers, 33 Nev. 535; 112 P. 699.

6. Compensation and fees—Form and amount of compensation.

Under the provisions of an act of the legislature fixing the salary of the justices of the peace of certain townships at "not to exceed $1,800 per year," the salary is not fixed at such maximum sum, and the justice is not entitled to such maximum salary unless the same is fixed by some board or power authorized by law. *Heywood v. I. PLAINTIFFS

- (A) PERSONS WHO MAY OR MUST SUE
1. Real party in interest.

The purpose of practice act, sec. 44 (Rev. Laws, 4986), providing that every action shall be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, is, in view of sections 45, 56, 57, and 59, to relax the strict rules of the common law, so as to enable those directly interested in the subject-matter of the litigation to maintain the action. Winemucca S. B. & T. Co. v. Corbell, 42 Nev. 378; 178 P. 23.

III. NEW PARTIES AND CHANGE OF PARTIES

2. Intervention—Application and proceedings thereon.

IV. DESIGNATION AND DESCRIPTION

3. Parties in particular capacity.

The indorsement and delivery of a note, whether negotiable or non-negotiable, as collateral for the payment of a debt, enables the pledgee, upon default of pledgor, to maintain an action thereon in its own name, the pledgee, if not the real party in interest within practice act, sec. 44 (Rev. Laws, 4986), being at least a trustee of an express trust, within section 45. Winemucca S. B. & T. Co. v. Corbell, 42 Nev. 378; 178 P. 23.

I. THE RELATION

- (A) CREATION AND REQUISITES

1. Community of interest in profits and losses—Sharing profits as compensation for services.

A contract provided that plaintiff was to work for defendant in the business of flour manufacturing, and was to receive a salary of $125 per month, and, in addition thereto, one-half of the profits over $3,000. Held, that though the compensation was measured in part by the profits, the contract did not create the partnership relation, but one of employment. Goodin v. Pitt, 36 Nev. 156; 134 P. 459.

(C) EVIDENCE

2. Admissibility—As between partners.

In case of doubt as to the existence of a partnership in a suit for an accounting, the court may look to the conduct of the parties at the time of and subsequent to the date of the contract to ascertain what they understood and agreed on. Wright v. Amann, 192 F. 849.

3. Weight and sufficiency—As between partners.

Evidence held to require a finding that a contemplated partnership between plaintiff and defendant was never actually launched, but that the defendant proceeded to conduct the enterprise in his own name and for his exclusive benefit, and hence plaintiff could not maintain a suit for an accounting, but only an action at law for breach of the agreement to form a partnership. Id.

IV. RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES AS TO THIRD PERSONS

(D) ACTIONS BY OR AGAINST FIRMS OR PARTNERS

4. Judgment.

Under Rev. Laws, 5239, providing that judgment may be given for or against one or more of several plaintiffs, and for or against one or more of several defendants, and sec. 5240, providing that, in an action against several defendants, the court may, in its discretion, render judgment against one or more of them, leaving the action to proceed against the others whenever a several judgment is proper, in an action against partners, the court did not exceed its jurisdiction by rendering judgment against one of them. *Conway v. III. OPERATION AND EFFECT.

3. Admission of liability.

IV. PLEADING, EVIDENCE, TRIAL, AND REVIEW.

4. Presumptions and burden of proof.

V. RECOVERY OF PAYMENTS.

5. Mistake of fact.

I. REQUISITES AND SUFFICIENCY

1. Payment by checks.

A debt cannot be discharged with an unpaid check, except upon a clear showing that the creditor at the time accepted such check absolutely and unconditionally. Jensen v. Wilslef, 36 Nev. 37; 132 P. 16; Ann. Cas. 1914D, 1220.

2. Payment by checks—Of debtor.

An offer by a debtor to send a draft on a bank which had suspended payment in payment of his debt to the creditor was met with a draft drawn by the creditor on the debtor for the cash, and the draft was returned unpaid. Later, the creditor placed the claim in the hands of an agent for collection, without authority to receive checks. The debtor sent checks drawn on the bank to the agent. The creditor received the checks and credited the debtor with the amount thereof, subject to collection, and the checks were forwarded for collection, but returned unpaid, and immediately charged back to the debtor's account. Held, not to show payment by the debtor. Roberts Shoe Co. v. McKim, 34 Nev. 191; 117 P. 13.

III. OPERATION AND EFFECT

3. Admission of liability.

Plaintiff performed services in attempting to procure a purchaser for corporate stock for which he claimed he was entitled to $3,000 from defendants. In an interview with defendants one of them said he was entitled to something, and they offered him $500, which he refused. He offered to settle for $1,500, but defendants offered him $750, stating that they would pay him more later, and he accordingly accepted the $750. Held, that there was no recognition by defendants of any legal liability to plaintiff by virtue of the former contractual relations, and the payment of $750 did not change their moral obligation to plaintiff into a legal debt. Christensen v. Duborg, 38 Nev. 404; 150 P. 306.

IV. PLEADING, EVIDENCE, TRIAL, AND REVIEW

4. Presumptions and burden of proof.

A debtor who seeks to establish a settlement of the account other than by a payment in cash has the burden of showing that fact. Roberts Shoe Co. v. McKim, 34 Nev. 191; 117 P. 13.

The mere fact that defendant got $600 from deceased raises the presumption of law that he received it in payment of a debt. Horgan v. Indart, 41 Nev. 228; 168 P. 953.

V. RECOVERY OF PAYMENTS

5. Mistake of fact.

Where money is deposited with a county clerk under the mistaken belief that it belongs to the estate of a decedent, upon whose estate no application for administration has been made, such money remains subject to the control of the person making deposit, and may be withdrawn by him. State v. Langan, 36 Nev. 578; 137 P. 517.

I. FORM AND ALLEGATIONS

1. Nature and mode of pleading.

The only source of authority for any pleading and the rules for the construction thereof are drawn from the practice act. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 111; 173 P. 1149; 180 P. 492.

2. Matters of fact or conclusions.

An allegation in the complaint, in an action to enjoin the state engineer and a district water commissioner from preventing the water appropriated by plaintiffs from flowing into their irrigation ditch, that defendants had, without authority of law therefor and without right, closed the headgate of plaintiff's ditch was not objectionable as a mere conclusion of law, where another section of the complaint set forth plaintiffs' appropriation of the water prior to the passage of the first comprehensive water act, and alleged the consummation of its diversion and application to a beneficial use on or before the year 1890, and that prior thereto no other person had acquired any right to the water thus appropriated. Knox v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 393; 142 P. 528.

An allegation "that the said plaintiff has no right, claim, or title to the said painting or picture, and is not entitled to the ownership or possession of the same," is a conclusion of law. Clark Co. v. Francovich, 42 Nev. 321; 176 P. 259.

In a suit for specific performance of an employment contract for services rendered, an allegation in the bill that defendant corporation ratified the acts of D., who employed plaintiff, and ratified the contract of employment between plaintiff and D., was a mere conclusion of law, and insufficient to show that the corporation was bound by the contract, under the rule that, if the corporation ratified the contract of the promoter, the facts constituting such ratification must be pleaded. Eckley v. Daniel, 193 F. 279.

3. Consistency or repugnancy.

Plaintiff in equity action will not be permitted to rescind a contract for fraud, and, failing in this, to recover damages for breach, and relief for violation of fiduciary obligation created by the contract; such relief being inconsistent. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 112; 173 P. 1149; 180 P. 492.

The rule that inconsistent causes of action cannot be pleaded is based upon the theory that one or the other must be false, and that pleader ought to know which is true and which is false, and should be compelled to choose between them. Nelson v. Smith, 42 Nev. 302; 176 P. 261; 178 P. 625.

4. Construction.

In an action to enjoin the state engineer from shutting off water from an irrigation ditch, the presumption that since the engineer is a public official his acts were legal is not available in support of a demurrer to the complaint. Knox v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 393; 142 P. 526.

Where it did not appear from the complaint, in an action to enjoin the state engineer and a district water commissioner from shutting off the water from plaintiffs' irrigation ditch, that there were other users of the water constituting the source of supply, or others having a right to use all or part of the water which plaintiffs claimed to have appropriated, the existence of other appropriators could not be presumed in support of a demurrer to the complaint. Id.

II. DECLARATION, COMPLAINT, PETITION OR STATEMENT5. Statement of cause of action.

Plaintiff is required to state in his complaint facts which constitute his cause of action and nothing more. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 112; 173 P. 1149; 180 P. 492.

However strong grievances or wrongs may appeal to the conscience of the chancellor for correction and relief, averments and allegations thereof, however varied they may be, make a sufficient complaint only when squaring with the rules of the civil practice act. Id.

6. Admissions.

Allegation of plaintiff, a divorced wife, suing executors of a deceased husband's will to alter judgment to make alimony awarded her on husband's estate, that no provision was made and no specific property of husband set aside by original decree to secure monthly alimony payments, was admission on part of wife that judgment rendered in connection with decree, standing alone, could not be construed as charge on husband's estate. Sweeney v. Sweeney, 42 Nev. 431; 179 P. 638.

III. PLEA OR ANSWER, CROSS-COMPLAINT, AND AFFIDAVITS OR DEFENSE(A) DEFENSES*7. Nature and scope of defense.

It is not the office of an answer to raise an issue of law, where such issue should be determined on demurrer. Dixon v. Pruett, 42 Nev. 346; 177 P. 11.

8. Necessity for defense.

If the illegality of a contract sued on appears on the face of the complaint counting on it, its illegality is left a live question, to be dealt with by the trial court without a formal plea showing its illegality. Id.

9. Mode of pleading defenses.

Under civil practice act, sec. 39 (Comp. Laws, 3133), providing that the only pleadings on the part of the defendant shall be a demurrer or an answer, and section 44 (section 3139), providing that when any of the matters enumerated in section 40 (section 3135) as grounds of demurrer do not appear on the face of the complaint, the objection may be taken by answer, matters in abatement or bar can only be set up in the answer. McKlim v. District Court, 33 Nev. 44; 110 P. 4.

10. Pleading different pleas or defenses together.

A party may plead inconsistent defenses provided they are not so incompatible as to render either one or the other false. Nelson v. Smith, 42 Nev. 303; 176 P. 261; 178 P. 625.

(D) MATTERS IN AVOIDANCE11. Statement of new matter constituting defense under codes and procedure.

Under practice act, sec. 104, a defendant claiming affirmative relief must plead as fully as plaintiff. Dixon v. Pruett, 42 Nev. 345; 177 P. 11.

Under practice act, sec. 104, "new matter" constituting a defense means some facts which plaintiff is not bound to prove, and which go in avoidance or discharge. Id.

Under practice act, sec. 104, the sufficiency of a defense is tested by whether the new matter constitutes a defense, taking the complaint as true. Id.

12. Matters available under general issue or general denial.

In action against administrator to charge certain assets of estate with a claim for legal services rendered deceased, affirmative defenses pleaded by defendant held demurrable, in that they amounted to nothing more than special denials of facts incumbent upon plaintiff to prove. Id.

IV. REPLICATION OR REPLY AND SUBSEQUENT PLEADINGS13. Admissions.

Under Stats. 1915, c. 158, providing that each material allegation of new matter in the answer, uncontroverted by the reply, must be taken as true, an allegation of the answer, undenied by the replication, must be taken as true. Bernard v. Metropolis L. Co., 40 Nev. 89; 160 P. 811.

V. DEMURRER OR EXCEPTION14. Grounds for demurrer.

That a pleading may contain inferences of law does not render it demurrable, where it alleges facts sufficient to show a cause of action. Knox v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 394; 142 P. 528.

15. Grounds for demurrer to complaint.

On demurrer to complaint, on ground that it shows that plaintiff was guilty of laches, it must appear from averments in complaint that plaintiff was guilty of laches. Miller v. Walser, 42 Nev. 500; 181 P. 437.

Defense of laches may be raised by demurrer, where it appears on the face of the complaint. Dixon v. Pruett, 42 Nev. 346; 177 P. 11.

16. Demurrer to part of pleading or to pleading good in part.

A demurrer may be made to a whole pleading, or to the statement of any of the grounds embodied therein. Bernard v. Metropolis L. Co., 40 Nev. 89; 160 P. 811.

Where a demurrer is filed to the whole pleading, it may be overruled if any of the statements are held to be good in furtherance of the purpose of the pleading, whether establishing a cause of action or interposing a defense; the rule applying not only as to a complaint, but equally to the answer and its affirmative allegations. Id.

A demurrer directed to an entire plea or entire answer, which plea or answer contains several separable parts, must be overruled if any of the parts is in itself good. Id.

17. Admissions by demurrer.

In determining points of law raised by a demurrer, facts pleaded in a complaint are considered as true. Knox v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 393; 142 P. 528.

On demurrer to the complaint, allegations in the complaint are to be taken as true. Miller v. Walser, 42 Nev. 499; 181 P. 437.

A demurrer to a complaint for misjoinder of causes of action concedes that the complaint states two or more good causes of action. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 112; 173 P. 1149; 180 P. 492.

VI. AMENDED AND SUPPLEMENTAL PLEADINGS AND REPLEADER

18. Leave of court to amend—Amendment to conform to proofs.

Plaintiff, in an action to compel the surrender of shares of stock, was properly permitted, after decision, but before judgment, to amend and supplement his complaint by setting forth undisputed facts shown on the trial to have existed at the time thereof. Elgan v. Keane Wonder M. Co., 34 Nev. 469; 125 P. 693.

Where, in an action to compel the surrender of shares of stock, a motion of the defendant for a nonsuit and consent thereto by the plaintiff were withdrawn by stipulation, and defendant given leave to amend its answer to show facts in evidence occurring subsequent to the institution of the suit, defendant could not object to the amendment of the plaintiff's complaint, after decision and before judgment, to conform to such facts. Id.

Under Rev. Laws, 5081, providing that where the variance is not material a finding according to the evidence or an immediate amendment may be ordered, amendment of prayer of the complaint may be allowed at conclusion of plaintiff's case. Miller v. Thompson, 40 Nev. 35; 160 P. 775.

19. Amendment of complaint—New or different cause of action.

In an action for wrongful death from decedent coming in contact with the lining of a mine entry that had become charged with electricity through the negligent maintenance of defendant's wire outside the entry, the court permitted plaintiff to amend so as to allege that for more than four years prior to decedent's death plaintiff, his father, had emancipated him and surrendered to him all rights to his earnings, and that for more than a year decedent had contributed large sums of money to the support of his brothers and sister, and had he lived he would have continued such contributions. Held, that such amendments were not objectionable as setting forth a new and different cause of action. Truckee R. G. E. Co. v. Benner, 211 F. 79; 127 C. C. A. 503.

20. Amendment of plea or answer—Condition of cause and time for amendment.

Where a railroad company, when sued for a breach of contract for a special interstate train, filed a demurrer which was overruled, and a motion to strike out parts of the complaint, which was denied, and then filed an answer, refusal to permit amendment of the answer during the trial many months after the filing of the complaint, by setting up a failure to comply with the interstate commerce act in the establishment of rates for special trains, and to plead the invalidity of the contract by reason thereof, was proper. Burrus v. N. C. O. Ry., 38 Nev. 156; 145 P. 926; L. R. A. 1917D, 750.

X. FILING, SERVICE AND WITHDRAWAL

21. Requisites and sufficiency of filing.

Where plaintiff in a suit in support of an adverse claim to a mining location lodged his complaint in the hands of the clerk, paid the fees, and directed that it be filed, it was filed in contemplation of law, though the clerk at that time failed to put file marks on it; such marks being mere evidence of the fact of filing. Emmons v. Marbelite Plaster Co., 193 F. 181.

22. Sufficiency of service and proof thereof.

Since an original complaint could not be impeached because of the absence of file marks thereon, defendant was not prejudiced because the copy of the complaint served did not contain the file marks appearing on the original. Emmons v. Marbelite Plaster Co., 193 F. 182.

XI. MOTIONS23. Election between causes of action, counts or defenses.

Where there was no inconsistency in the evidence offered in support of validity of two locations pleaded by plaintiffs, the court properly refused to compel them to elect. Nelson v. Smith, 42 Nev. 303; 176 P. 261; 178 P. 625.

24. Matters to be proved—Admissions.

Where defendant's answer admitted a fact, proof of that fact was wholly unnecessary. Frances-Mohawk v. McKay, 37 Nev. 191; 141 P. 456.

Where, in an action to recover real property, the answer alleging title by adverse possession was verified and alleged payment of taxes by defendant, and such allegation was not denied by the replication, no evidence on this point was necessary. Boyd-stun v. Jacobs, 38 Nev. 176; 147 P. 447.

XIII. DEFECTS AND OBJECTIONS, WAIVER, AND AID BY VERDICT OR JUDGMENT25. Cure by subsequent pleading—Pleading of adverse party.

Though a complaint in an action to foreclose a materialman's lien did not properly describe the premises on which the lien was claimed, where the answer set up the true description which was agreed to by stipulation of the parties, it will be considered in aid of the complaint so as to support a judgment entered. Riverside Fixture Co. v. Quigley, 35 Nev. 17; 126 P. 545.

26. Objections to rulings on demurrer—Waiver by pleading over.

A defendant by filing an answer to a complaint within the time allowed by order of court waived all the grounds of the demurrer, except that it did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Jones v. West End Con. M. Co., 36 Nev. 149; 134 P. 104.

PLEDGES

1. Title to property pledged.

In case of a note of a third party pledged as collateral security, the general property remains in the pledgor, and a special property in the note passes to the pledgee, and whatever special interest is necessary to enable pledgee to exercise the rights guaranteed to him or discharged the obligations imposed upon him by contract vests in him. Winnemucca S. B. & T. Co. v. Corbell, 42 Nev. 378; 178 P. 23.

Plaintiff, by taking from debtor payee defendant's note, expressly as collateral security, undertook to account to debtor, and became the holder of the legal title under an express trust to hold the beneficial interest or the money collected primarily for itself and secondarily for debtor. Winnemucca S. B. & T. Co. v. Corbell, 42 Nev. 379; 178 P. 23.

2. Enforcement of right of action pledged and failure to collect or fix liability.

The general rule is that the pledgor cannot maintain an action on the collateral while the condition is not performed, and the pledgee of a collateral, where the condition has not been performed, is held to be the party in interest to maintain an action thereon. Winnemucca S. B. & T. Co. v. Corbell, 42 Nev. 378; 178 P. 23.

(C) Unauthorized and Wrongful Acts.

8. Effect of exceeding authority.
9. Negligence or wrongful acts of agent.

(E) Notice to Agent.

10. Imputation to principal.

I. THE RELATION

(A) CREATION AND EXISTENCE

1. Evidence of agency—Weight and sufficiency.

Agency may be shown by circumstances and the course of dealing. H. H. M. Safe Co. v. Baillet, 38 Nev. 164; 145 P. 941.

2. Questions for jury.

The existence or nonexistence of an agency is a question of fact for the jury. Id.

II. MUTUAL RIGHTS, DUTIES AND LIABILITIES

(A) EXECUTION OF AGENCY

3. Individual interest of agent.

An undisclosed agreement between the superintendent of a mining company, who acted as its agent with respect to all workings within the ground of the company, and inspected the works of lessees, etc., and a lessee of the company, whereby the superintendent was to receive a percentage of the profits of the lessee, is in its very nature a fraud upon the mining company because it would tend to place the superintendent in a position antagonistic to his principal. Frances-Mohawk v. McKay, 37 Nev. 191; 141 P. 456.

Though, where an agent fully discloses the facts, his principal cannot require him to account for any sum which the agent may receive from a third person as consideration for an agreement with such third person which places him in a position antagonistic to his principal, yet, if the agent fails to disclose all of the facts pertaining to the transaction, the principal may recover any sum received by the agent. Frances-Mohawk v. McKay, 37 Nev. 192; 141 P. 456.

Where an agent enters into a contract with one who has dealings with his principal which gives him an interest antagonistic to his duty towards his principal, the principal may recover from the agent any sum so received. Id.

4. Actions for accounting.

In an action by a mining company to recover from its agent sums received from a lessee under an agreement which caused the agent to assume a position antagonistic to the company, evidence held sufficient to show that the mining company was not fully informed as to the agreement. Id.

An agent can be brought to account with his principal for moneys and property received in transaction arising out of agency relationship. Waiser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 112; 173 P. 1149; 180 P. 492.

III. RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES AS TO THIRD PERSONS

(A) POWERS OF AGENT

5. Implied and apparent authority—Collection of debts due principal.

An agent intrusted with a claim for collection is, in the absence of express authority to that effect, without power to accept anything in payment but lawful money, and where he accepts checks in payment, the creditor is not bound thereby in the absence of a ratification. Roberts Shoe Co. v. McKim, 34 Nev. 191; 117 P. 13.

6. Evidence as to authority—Weight and sufficiency.

In an action for the purchase price of a safe, evidence held sufficient to warrant the jury in finding that the salesman of the seller had authority to rescind the contract. H. H. M. Safe Co. v. Balliet, 38 Nev. 164; 145 P. 941.

(B) UNDISCLOSED AGENCY

7. Liabilities of undisclosed principal.

Where an undisclosed principal denied all liability for goods sold to his agent, without asserting that the seller should elect whether to hold the agent or the undisclosed principal, he waived his right to compel an election, and could not complain of a prior default judgment against the agent, rendered in the same action. Nesbitt v. Cherry Creek I. Co., 38 Nev. 150; 145 P. 929.

Where a seller brought an action against the agent and the undisclosed principal, and obtained a default judgment against both, which was set aside as to the undisclosed principal, who denied all liability, the seller, prosecuting the action against the principal, elected to hold him responsible, and he could not complain of the judgment against the agent. Id.

A seller, who sued an agent and his undisclosed principal, without knowledge that the agent acted as agent, did not elect to hold the agent alone, and the principal could not escape liability. Id.

(C) UNAUTHORIZED AND WRONGFUL ACTS

8. Effect of exceeding authority.

A creditor placing his claim in the hands of an agent for collection is not bound by the acts or declarations of the agent except such as he authorized or subsequently ratified. Roberts Shoe Co. v. McKim, 34 Nev. 191; 117 P. 13.

9. Negligence or wrongful acts of agent.

A principal or master is liable for exemplary damages for the wrongful, wanton, and oppressive acts of his agents or servants when acting within the scope of his employment, although the particular acts were not authorized or ratified. Forrester v. S. P. Co., 36 Nev. 248; 134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1.

(E) NOTICE TO AGENT

10. Imputation to principal.

Under an agreement between plaintiff and defendant M., by which the latter was to relocate a mining claim, in their joint names, defendant M. relocated the claim but omitted plaintiff's name as a relocater and included the name of defendant S. Held, that ignorance of S. as to agreement will not affect right of plaintiff to enforce the agreement, as the location was made by M., and notice to an agent is notice to the principal. Hornsilver Cases, 35 Nev. 464; 130 P. 760, 764; 134 P. 448, 449.

PROCESS

I. NATURE, ISSUANCE, REQUISITES AND VALIDITY.

1. Date.
2. Alias and pluries writs.

II. SERVICE.

(B) Substituted Service.

3. Mode and sufficiency of service—Service on attorney or agent.

(C) Publication or Other Notice.

4. Statutory provisions.
5. Application for order for publication—Affidavits.
6. Personal service out of jurisdiction in lieu of publication.

II. SERVICE—Contd.(D) Privileges and Exemptions.

7. Attendance at court—Parties.

(E) Return and Proof of Service.

8. Form and requisites of affidavit of service.

9. Evidence as to service—Presumptions and burden of proof.

I. NATURE, ISSUANCE, REQUISITES AND VALIDITY1. Date.

Comp. Laws Nev. 3118, provides that, at any time within a year after complaint filed, plaintiff may cause summons to be issued by the court. Sections 3119 and 3121 provide what the summons shall contain, but neither require it to be dated. Held that, since the defendant is required to appear within a specified time from the date of service and not from the date of summons, the summons was not fatally defective, though it contained an incorrect date or no date at all. Emmons v. Marbellite Plaster Co., 193 F. 182.

2. Alias and pluries writs.

Stats. Nev. 1907, c. 169, provides that whenever any summons shall be returned not executed as to any defendant, or shall have been lost or destroyed, the plaintiff shall be entitled to another summons against such defendant if he shall require it until due service shall be made. Held that, where a complaint was filed February 26, 1908, the clerk, had power on March 2 following to issue a summons thereon, and, the first summons having been returned and destroyed unexecuted, plaintiff was entitled to the issuance of another, and the fact that the issuance of the alias summons was authorized by a prior order of the court neither added to nor subtracted from the clerk's authority conferred by statute. Id.

II. SERVICE(B) SUBSTITUTED SERVICE*3. Mode and sufficiency of service—Service on attorney or agent.

Service of process on an agent otherwise competent, whose relations to plaintiff or to the claim are such as to make it to his interest to suppress the fact of service, is insufficient. King Tonopah M. Co. v. Lynch, 232 F. 487.

(C) PUBLICATION OR OTHER NOTICE4. Statutory provisions.

There must be strict compliance with the statutes as to constructive service, which, under our practice, apply to both law and equity cases. State v. Wildes, 37 Nev. 56; 139 P. 505; 142 P. 627.

Statutes providing for service by publication, whether in court of record or justice court, being in derogation of common law, must be strictly construed and followed to give court jurisdiction over person. Perry v. District Court, 42 Nev. 284; 174 P. 1058.

While a state has no power over a non-resident and absent owner, it has complete jurisdiction over his property within its borders, subject to the constitutional restriction that property cannot be taken from its owner except after due process of law, and hence may provide for constructive service by means of which judgment may be obtained and satisfied out of the property in the state belonging to an absent defendant. King Tonopah M. Co. v. Lynch, 232 F. 486.

5. Application for order for publication—Affidavits.

An affidavit for publication of a summons does not require the same detailed statement of a cause of action as is required in a complaint. Statements well-nigh being conclusions of law may, in some instances, suffice for the affidavit. Veith v. Nevada Reduction Co., 36 Nev. 586; 137 P. 520.

The provisions of Rev. Laws. 5026, are in the alternative and it is sufficient either that the affidavit for publication of summons shows the existence of a cause of action or shows that the defendant is a necessary or proper party. Id.

An affidavit stating, "That said W. M. Stokes, trustee, is a necessary party defendant in this cause of action and that a cause of action exists against him, the said W. M. Stokes, trustee, by the plaintiff, and the cause of action is that plaintiff is a lien claimant and assignee of other lien claimants against the property of the Nevada Reduction Company, a corporation, and that the defendant, W. M. Stokes, trustee, claims to have some right, title or interest in said property and this suit is brought to have whatever interest, if any, the said Stokes may have in and to the property of the Nevada Reduction Company to be declared subject to the claims of plaintiff," states facts sufficient to show that said Stokes is a necessary or proper party to the action, and is sufficient to support an order for publication under the provisions of Rev. Laws, 5026. Id.

Under Rev. Laws, 5026, 5027 (Civ. Prac. Act, secs. 84, 85), relating to service by publication, it is jurisdictional that the affidavit for order of publication state either the residence of the defendant, whether person or corporation, or that the affiant does not know the residence. Wildes v. Lou Dillon M. Co., 41 Nev. 364; 170 P. 1046.

6. Personal service out of jurisdiction in lieu of publication.

Civil practice act, sec. 31 (Comp. Laws, 3126), prior to the amendment of 1909, provided that, when service by publication is ordered personal service of a copy of the summons and complaint out of the state shall be equivalent to publication and deposit in the postoffice, and that the service of summons shall be deemed complete in cases of publication at the expiration of six weeks from the first publication, and that in cases when a deposit of a copy of the summons and complaint in the post-office is also required, at the expiration of six weeks from such deposit. Held, that when personal service without the state is made in lieu of publication, or in lieu of publication and deposit in the postoffice, the service is not complete until the expiration of six weeks from such personal service, and, where such service was made November 10, defendant had forty-two days after the service in addition to the statutory period of forty days in which to answer, and a default entered December 21 and a decree thereon entered December 28 were premature, and plaintiff could have them set aside. Sherwin v. Sherwin, 33 Nev. 321; 111 P. 286; 122 P. 481; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 108.

Under section 31 of the civil practice act (Comp. Laws, 3126), providing, prior to the amendment of 1909 (Stats. 1909, c. 69), that when service by publication is ordered personal service of a copy of the summons and complaint out of the state shall be equivalent to publication and deposit in the postoffice, such a personal service is equivalent to a completed service by publication, as regards the time for answer. Id.

(D) PRIVILEGES AND EXEMPTIONS

7. Attendance at court—Parties.

Where a nonresident brought habeas corpus within the state against his wife for the possession of their minor child, he was not immune, while in the state for such purpose, from service of summons in a divorce suit; Rev. Laws, 5445, exonerating persons from arrest in a civil action while attending court as a witness, not protecting him from being served with a summons or applying to him while voluntarily in the state maintaining his own suit. Tiedemann v. Tiedemann, 35 Nev. 259; 129 P. 313.

(E) RETURN AND PROOF OF SERVICE

8. Form and requisites of affidavit of service.

Where personal service was had upon a nonresident, a certificate of the notary who administered the affidavit to the person making the service is prima facie proof of official character, and cannot be overturned in the absence of rebutting evidence. Long v. Tighe, 36 Nev. 129; 133 P. 60.

9. Evidence as to service—Presumptions and burden of proof.

The one by whom summons was served was, presumptively, a citizen of the United States over 21 years, and so authorized by section 31 of the civil practice act (Comp. Laws, 3123), to serve it; the return reciting that he was a constable and deputy sheriff of a county of California. Sherwin v. Sherwin, 33 Nev. 321; 111 P. 286; 122 P. 481; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 108.

PROHIBITION

I. NATURE AND GROUNDS.

1. Nature and scope of remedy.
2. Existence and adequacy of other remedies.
3. Discretion as to grant of writ.
4. Acts and proceedings of courts, judges and judicial officers.
5. Acts and proceedings of public officers and boards.
6. Grounds for relief.
7. Grounds for relief—Want or excess of jurisdiction.
8. Grounds for relief—Errors and irregularities.

II. JURISDICTION, PROCEEDINGS AND RELIEF.

9. Parties.

I. NATURE AND GROUNDS

1. Nature and scope of remedy.

Prohibition will not issue to restrain the enforcement of an ordinance not in effect, since there must be a cause pending before the writ will issue. O'Brien v. Commrs., 41 Nev. 90; 167 P. 1007.

2. Existence and adequacy of other remedies.

Where a townsite trustee on the refusal of a lot claimant to pay excessive charges imposed, proceeds to sell the lot, there is no other adequate remedy affecting the right to the remedy by writ of prohibition; individual suits to settle the rights of the claimant not being an adequate remedy. State v. Stevens, 34 Nev. 146; 116 P. 605.

Where a district court had granted a temporary injunction against taxing officers of the county and state, and had overruled an attorney-general's demurrer to the complaint, the latter had an adequate remedy under Rev. Laws, 5143, authorizing a motion to set aside the temporary injunction, and Rev. Laws, 5329, giving an immediate appeal from an order refusing such motion so that he cannot maintain prohibition, even though the public interests are so great that he cannot rest on his demurrer and appeal from the judgment thereon, thereby losing his right to plead to the merits. State v. District Court, 38 Nev. 323; 149 P. 178.

Where an action was brought to recover possession of certain mining ground on an agreement containing a provision for plaintiff's taking possession of and working the mines, and the court had original jurisdiction to hear and determine the issues, if it erred in ordering judgment for plaintiff for possession, and for an accounting, or for damages for defendant's refusal to deliver possession under the agreement, its decision was reviewable by appeal only, and not on a writ of prohibition. Silver Peak

Mines v. District Court, 33 Nev. 97; 110 P. 503; 29 Ann. Cas. 587.

Where defendants, in an action to recover a mining claim, contended that a provision of the decree in favor of plaintiff and directing an accounting was not within the issues, whether the court had jurisdiction to decree such an accounting was reviewable by appeal, and not by a writ of prohibition. Id.

Prohibition is an extraordinary remedy which is available only in cases of extreme necessity to restrain a court from proceeding in a matter over which it has no jurisdiction, and where there appears no adequate remedy by appeal. State v. District Court, 38 Nev. 323; 149 P. 178.

A writ of prohibition cannot ordinarily be used to correct errors by inferior tribunals, and will not issue either in civil or criminal proceedings, where there is an adequate remedy by appeal or writ of certiorari. Silver Peak Mines v. District Court, 33 Nev. 97; 110 P. 503; 29 Ann. Cas. 587.

3. Discretion as to grant of writ.

The writ of prohibition is not a writ of right, but one of sound judicial discretion, to be issued or refused according to the facts of each particular case. O'Brien v. Commissioners, 41 Nev. 90; 167 P. 1007.

4. Acts and proceedings of courts, judges and judicial officers.

Under Comp. Laws, 346, providing that, if all the lots in a town site are not legally conveyed to the proper owners within one year after they have been passed upon by the district judge as townsite trustee, or in case of contest, within thirty days after the contest shall have been finally determined, they shall be sold to the highest bidders, prohibition is a proper remedy to prevent the sale of the lots where the failure to legally convey to the proper owners is due to the imposition of excessive charges by the townsite trustee as a condition precedent thereto. State v. Stevens, 34 Nev. 146; 116 P. 605.

When it is sought to prevent enforcement of void judgment upon which an execution is about to be levied, prohibition is the proper remedy, for an appeal from an order denying a motion to quash the summons and set aside the judgment does not afford sufficient relief; there being no provision for a stay pending the appeal. Gordon v. District Court, 36 Nev. 1; 131 P. 134; 44 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1078.

5. Acts and proceedings of public officers and boards.

Where a board of county commissioners has no legal power to act in the matter of an election recount, writ of prohibition, issuing on petition of presumably successful candidate, is a proper remedy. McBride v. Griswold, 38 Nev. 56; 146 P. 756.

Prohibition will not lie to restrain the county clerk from placing upon the official ballot the name of a nominee for justice of the peace selected by the county central committee to fill the vacancy upon the death of the original nominee, because the chairman of the committee, who held three proxies, was disqualified under Stats. 1913, c. 282, sec. 18, being the holder of an appointive public office, for the chairman was at least a de facto officer, and his right to the office cannot be tested by prohibition against another officer. State v. Harmon, 38 Nev. 5; 143 P. 1183.

Rev. Laws, 5708, providing that the writ of prohibition arrests the proceedings of any tribunal, etc., whether exercising functions judicial or ministerial, when such proceedings are without or in excess of jurisdiction, does not enlarge the writ so as to reach proceedings not of a judicial character, and it will not issue to prohibit county commissioners and county sheriff from enforcing an ordinance requiring licenses for selling, etc., liquors in restaurants, etc. O'Brien v. Commrs., 41 Nev. 90; 167 P. 1007.

6. Grounds for relief.

Under Rev. Laws, 5708, which provides that the writ of prohibition arrests the proceedings of any tribunal which are without or in excess of its jurisdiction, the writ will only issue where there is an exercise of functions without or in excess of the jurisdiction of the prohibited tribunal. McComb v. District Court, 36 Nev. 417; 136 P. 563.

7. Grounds for relief—Want or excess of jurisdiction.

Where a statute has imposed restrictions under which a court may act in matters otherwise within its jurisdiction, and those restrictions are disregarded, the party aggrieved may have a remedy by prohibition. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 111; 173 P. 1149; 180 P. 492.

Where a stay of proceedings is had, and the court undertakes to exercise an unauthorized jurisdiction pending the stay, prohibition is a proper remedy. O'Donnell v. District Court, 40 Nev. 428; 165 P. 759.

8. Grounds for relief—Errors and irregularities.

There is no remedy by prohibition for the correction of errors or a mere irregularity in the exercise of an authority inherent in a court. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 111; 173 P. 1149; 180 P. 492.

The office of the writ of prohibition is not to correct errors, but to prevent courts from transcending the limitation of their jurisdiction in exercise of judicial power. Id.

II. JURISDICTION, PROCEEDINGS AND RELIEF

9. Parties.

Where prohibition is sought to restrain enforcement of a judgment, a sheriff seeking to levy execution is a proper party; for, if the judgment be void for want of jurisdiction, then the sheriff, who draws all of his authority from the court, has no right to enforce the execution. Gordon v. District

PROPERTY

1. Evidence as to title.

1. Evidence as to title.

While presumption of ownership which flows from possession may be overcome by showing that some person other than the one in possession is the real owner, the mere introduction in evidence of an alleged bill of sale by a claimant of the property not in possession does not tend to give such claimant a stronger title than could have been asserted by the original consignor of the property who executed the bill of sale. Bank of Italy v. Burns, 39 Nev. 326; 156 P. 932.

The circumstances surrounding the passing of possession of a car from consignor to consignee not being disclosed, a presumption of law is raised, under the rule that possession of property is prima facie proof of ownership. Id.

In the absence of any showing of a better title or right, the bare possession of property is sufficient to indicate ownership, and to warrant a recovery by the occupant against a mere intruder. Shearer v. City of Reno, 36 Nev. 444; 136 P. 705.

PROSTITUTION

1. Indictment or information.
2. Trial and review.

1. Indictment or information.

An indictment charging that the defendant permitted his wife to be in a house of prostitution, is sufficient to charge an offense under Rev. Laws, 6445, making it a felony for a person to connive at, consent to, or permit his wife being in any house of prostitution, the word "permit" in such indictment and statute meaning not merely failure to prevent, but requiring an active wish or at least willingness in defendant's mind that his wife remain in such house after knowledge that she is there. In Re Jackson, 37 Nev. 167; 140 P. 719.

2. Trial and review.

Courts judicially know that both the husband and wife usually have a powerful moral suasion over the actions of each other, and it is in this sense that the word "permit" is used in Rev. Laws, 6445. Id.

I. GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP1. Inclosure.

The enforcement of a decree for the removal or destruction of an unlawful inclosure of public lands rendered under act of February 25, 1885, c. 149, sec. 2, 23 Stat. 321 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1524), is within the police power of the United States to protect its property and is not an infringement of the constitutional rights of the owner of the inclosure. Golconda Cattle Co. v. United States, 201 F. 281; 119 C. A. 519.

Inside an inclosure maintained by defendant cattle company were 26,000 acres of government land and 11,000 acres of privately owned lands, nearly all of which belonged to defendant. The 11,000 acres were for the most part bottom lands, and almost completely surrounded the tract owned by the government. The tract was inclosed by a post-and-wire fence about 44 miles in length, none of which was on government land. There were some openings or gaps in the fence, but they were in most cases at and toward the east end of the field and were separated by long distances, so that they were not sufficient to afford reasonable and proper access to the government land. Held, that the inclosure as maintained was a violation of the act of Congress of February 25, 1885, c. 149, 23 Stat. 321 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1524), prohibiting the inclosure of government lands by a party having no claim or color of title thereto in good faith, so as to prevent the public use thereof, and therefore should be abated as a nuisance in the absence of the opening of further gaps therein not less than 100 feet long, nor more than 1½ miles apart. United States v. Golconda Cattle Co., 196 F. 240.

Defendant cattle company maintained a post-and-wire fence 44 miles long around 37,000 acres of land, 26,000 of which was public land and 11,000 privately owned, the most of it by defendant. It was for the most part bottom land and practically surrounded that owned by the government. No part of the fence was on public land. There were about nine openings in the fence each 100 feet or more in length, but separated by long distances and somewhere the ground was very rough and almost inaccessible. Held, that it constituted an unlawful inclosure within the meaning of the act of February 25, 1885, c. 149, sec. 1, 23 Stat. 321 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1524), the maintenance of which was properly enjoined under section 2 of the act. Golconda Cattle Co. v. United States, 201 F. 281; 119 C. C. A. 519.

The act of February 25, 1885, c. 149, sec. 1, 23 Stat. 321 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1524), prohibiting inclosure of public lands to any of which land included within the inclosure the person or corporation making or controlling the inclosure has no claim or color of title made or acquired in good faith, in view of the conditions which led to its enactment, should receive a construction which will give effect to its broad purpose. The word "inclosure" as used herein cannot be restricted to meaning a complete encircling of the land with a fence without openings, but applies to any means whereby there is effected practical separation of public lands from the body thereof. Id.

Inclosure of any of the public land or maintaining such an inclosure, except by one making claim to the land in good faith, is made unlawful by the act of February 25, 1885, c. 149, sec. 1, 23 Stat. 321 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1524), and the intent with which the inclosure was made or is maintained is immaterial in a suit in equity for an injunction under section 2. Id.

Defendant cattle company constructed and maintained a fence about forty miles long around 37,000 acres of land, 26,000 acres of which was public land. The remainder was mostly owned by defendant and practically surrounded that owned by the government. The fence was built entirely on such land, no part of it being on the government land, and there were nine openings in it, varying from 90 feet to 3,400 feet in length. It appeared from the evidence that the fence was not built with any intent to inclose the government land, nor to exclude the public from entering upon it for purposes of settlement, grazing, or other uses, but for the bona-fide protection of defendant's own lands. Held that, under such facts, the fence did not constitute an "unlawful inclosure of public lands," within the meaning and intent of act of February 25, 1885, c. 149, sec. 1, 23 Stat. 321 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1524), and the United States was not entitled to an injunction to restrain its maintenance under section 2 of the act. Golconda Cattle Co. v. United States, 214 F. 903; 131 C. C. A. 199.

2. Offenses incident to disposal of public lands.

After inclosure by a corporation of public domain, the act of Congress of February 25, 1885, c. 149, sec. 4, 23 Stat. 322 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1525), which prescribed as punishment for unlawful inclosure a fine not exceeding $1,000 "and" imprisonment not exceeding one year, was amended (Act March 10, 1908, c. 75, 35 Stat. 40 [U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1909, p. 570]), so as to provide a fine "or" imprisonment, or both fine and imprisonment. Held, that a corporation cannot escape punishment on the theory that the act as amended operates retroactively as against it, and that punishment cannot be imposed under the original act because imprisonment is required as part of the punishment. United States v. Pacific Live Stock Co., 192 F. 443.

Under the act of Congress of February 25, 1885, c. 149, sec. 4, 23 Stat. 322 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1525), which prescribes a fine or imprisonment or both for unlawfully inclosing public lands, the maximum penalty should not be assessed against a corporation, and a fine of $500 is adequate, where it appears that corporation's inclosure included about 2,695 acres, of which but 650 acres were public land, and where it appears that the inclosure was not solely intended to exclude settlers; the fence having been erected on the particular line thereof to save expense. Id.

II. SURVEY AND DISPOSAL OF LANDS OF UNITED STATES

(A) SURVEYS

3. Method and sufficiency.

The commissioner of the general land office held not justified in refusing to approve a survey of public land made by a deputy surveyor under a contract because of resurveys and retracements of prior lines made without express authority required by the contract and the manual of instructions made a part thereof, or because of the manner in which the field-notes were kept, where the manual expressly made it the duty of the surveyor-general to give specific instructions as to such matters on request, and the surveyor repeatedly asked for such instructions, and where, although both the commissioner and the surveyor-general were kept at all times advised of the work he was doing and the arrangement of the field-notes, no objection was made thereto until all had been completed. Scully v. United States, 197 F. 328.

The commissioner of the general land office is so far a representative of the government in respect to contracts for surveys of public lands as to be to all intents and purposes a party to the contract and bound by its terms as fully as the contractor, and, where his approval of the work is made necessary by the contract before the contractor is entitled to payment, he, as well as the surveyor-general under whose direct supervision the work is done, is bound to exercise the utmost good faith, and cannot refuse to approve the work because the contractor stopped before completing the survey of all land embraced in the contract, where he was advised to do so by the surveyor-general on the ground that the cost of the work already done reached the estimated amount of the contract. Scully v. United States, 197 F. 327.

Surveys of public lands made by plaintiff as a deputy surveyor under a contract with the United States held to have been correctly executed in the field on evidence showing that they were approved by the field examiner appointed by the surveyor-general for the state as authorized by Rev. St. sec. 2223 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1362), and where, as shown by the plats, they did not differ from subsequent surveys made by others employed for the purpose by the government which were approved, although plaintiff's plats had been rejected. Id.

(B) ENTRIES, SALES AND POSSESSORY RIGHT

4. Town sites.

Under Comp. Laws, 349, requiring a fee of cents for each lot to be paid to the trustee to defray the expenses of the survey of the town site, the maximum fee for each lot is $1. Jennett v. Stevens, 34 Nev. 128; 116 P. 601.

In Comp. Laws, 349, relating to the disposal of town sites, on the public lands of the United States providing that, where it shall become necessary in the opinion of the citizens of the town to make a survey of any town site to identify or locate the lots, streets or alleys, or squares, a fee shall be paid to the trustee to defray the expenses of the survey, there being no provision for obtaining an expression of opinion on the part of the citizens as to necessity for a survey, a claimant, who not only fails to show that the charge made by the trustee for a survey is illegal, but who relies on the survey made by him, will not be heard to question its validity as affecting the right of the trustee to compensation therefor. Id.

Under Comp. Laws, 345, authorizing a townsite trustee before issuing a deed of lots to receive for counsel fees, and for moneys expended in the acquisition of the title and for the administration of the trust, including reasonable charges for time and services while employed in such trust, not exceeding the sum of $1 for each lot, the word "including" shows that the charges for time and services of the trustee were to be embraced within the maximum charge, which was also to be inclusive of counsel fees and for moneys expended in the acquisition of the title and the administration of the trust. Id.

Under Comp. Laws, 341, providing that the townsite trustee within ninety days of the receipt of a patent for the town site shall give public notice thereof in a newspaper in the county in which the town shall be situated, it is not open to a lot claimant who files application for a lot in pursuance of a notice published on the receipt of a receiver's duplicate receipt from the federal land office before the issuance of the patent to question the sufficiency and regularity of the notice. Id.

Under Comp Laws, 345, providing that, after the issuance of a patent on townsite land, the corporate authorities or judge to whom the patent shall issue shall execute to the persons entitled thereto, a deed in fee simple for such lots on payment of their due proportion of the purchase money, together with their proportion of such sum as may be necessary to pay for the streets, alleys, squares, and public grounds, not to exceed 50 cents for each lot, etc., the words "together with" show that the limitation of 50 cents was the maximum that could be apportioned to buy all the land within the town site, inclusive of that within the streets, alleys, squares, and public grounds, and does not apply merely to the amount for the streets, alleys, squares, and public grounds. Id.

5. Rules of land office—Force of.

The rules and regulations of the land office, in so far as they are not in conflict with statutory provisions, have the force and effect of law. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 545; 138 P. 71.

6. Decisions of federal land office conclusive.

The decisions of the federal land office upon matters of fact, cognizable by it, in the absence of fraud or imposition, is conclusive everywhere else. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 543; 138 P. 71.

(E) SCHOOL AND UNIVERSITY LANDS

7. Effect of reservation and grant to state.

By act of June 16, 1880, c. 245, 21 Stat. 287, Congress granted to the State of Nevada 2,000,000 acres of land for school purposes, the act providing that the lands should be selected by the state authorities "from any unappropriated, nonmineral public land in said state—and when selected in conformity with the terms of this act the same shall be duly certified to said state by the commissioner of the general land office and approved by the secretary of the interior." The lands were selected by the state and the lists duly approved, and certified by the land department with the approval of the secretary. In 1883 the state sold and patented certain tracts which were afterward acquired by complainant. In 1908 defendant and his grantors located mining claims on the land in conformity with the mining laws of the United States. Held that, under the act, the duty of determining the character of the land selected, as to being mineral or nonmineral, devolved upon the land department as a condition precedent to the certification of the lists; that, when such certification was made, an unconditional title passed to the state; and that defendant could not show to defeat such title that the determination was erroneous as to such tract, and that it was in fact mineral. Southern Development Co. v. Enderson, 200 F. 272.

Rev. St. sec. 2449 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 1516), which gives to a list of lands selected by a state under a grant, when approved and certified by the land department, the force and effect of a patent where the lands "are of the character contemplated by such act of Congress and intended to be granted thereby," but provides that, where they are not of such character, "the lists, so far as those lands are concerned, shall be perfectly null and void, and no right, title, claim or interest shall be conveyed thereby," cannot be construed as leaving the title to lands so conveyed under a grant of nonmineral lands subject to perpetual doubt and to be defeated by a subsequent discovery of mineral thereon, but in all such cases it is the duty of the land department to ascertain the character of the land before certifying the lists, and its determination of that fact, where the land is public land of the United States, and has not been reserved or otherwise disposed of, and is therefore within the jurisdiction of the department is conclusive against collateral attack and against direct attack, unless on the ground of fraud, etc. Id.

(I) PROCEEDINGS IN LAND OFFICE

8. Conclusiveness and effect of decision.

The determination by the federal land department of the character of public lands is conclusive, except in certain direct proceedings to set aside a patent for fraud, imposition, mistake, or the like. Earl v. Morrison, 39 Nev. 120; 154 P. 75.

(J) PATENTS

9. Construction and operation.

A reference in a patent to the official plat and survey makes such plat and field-notes of such survey a part of the description of the land granted, as fully as if they were incorporated at length in the patent. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 546; 138 P. 71.

10. Conclusiveness.

A patent to land issued by the general land office is the highest evidence of title, and is conclusive against the government and all claiming under junior patents or titles until set aside or annulled. It is not open to collateral attack except upon a showing that the land department had no jurisdiction to dispose of the land. Round Mt. v. Round Mt. Sphinx, 36 Nev. 543; 138 P. 71.

Courts are bound to presume, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, that a patent has been issued upon due and regular application. Id.

I. RIGHT OF ACTION AND DEFENSES

1. Title of plaintiff.

Plaintiff, not claiming any title to realty, but seeking a decree directing that a sheriff convey to him real property sold under a judgment, the plaintiff being the purchaser's successor, cannot maintain an action to quiet title, which is based on the presumption that plaintiff has title. Daly v. Lahontan Mines Co., 39 Nev. 14; 151 P. 514; 158 P. 285.

II. PROCEEDINGS AND RELIEF

2. Pleading—Bill, complaint or petition.

Neither under Rev Laws, 5514, nor independently of it, does a complaint state a cause of action to quiet title, if not alleging that defendants claim an interest in the property adverse to plaintiffs. Clay v. Scheeline B. & T. Co., 40 Nev. 9; 159 P. 1081.

3. Evidence.

Where one comes into equity seeking equitable relief in aid of a legal title, he must first establish such legal title; and where it is doubtful the court will not grant the relief. Moore v. Rochester W. M. Co., 42 Nev. 164; 174 P. 1017.

2. Scope of inquiry and powers of court.

Under Comp. Laws, 3279, 3280, authorizing the court to direct a reference when necessary for the information of the court, etc., the court, in quo warranto to contest an election to a state office, has jurisdiction to appoint a commissioner to count the undisputed ballots and report to the court for its information the actual ballots in dispute as well as the fact and number of undisputed ballots. Id.

(G) Injuries to Persons on or near Tracks.

5. Defects in roadbeds, tracks or equipment.
6. Actions for injuries—Instructions.

II. RAILROAD COMPANIES1. Officers and agents.

The authority of an agent cannot be inferred from his conduct and the fact that a station agent and section foreman of a railroad assume to generally manage the company's business in the vicinity warrants no inference of authority to lease or permit the construction of private dwellings on the right of way or to give away materials belonging to the company. Mirodias v. S. P. Co. 38 Nev. 119; 145 P. 912.

Railroad's contract for construction of fences along right of way, entered into by its vice-president, was valid, though contract was unauthorized by board of directors, the vice-president, as the managing agent of railroad, having apparent authority to bind railroad, notwithstanding Rev. Laws, 3520 (Stats. 1865, p. 427), providing for management of railroad by board of directors. Bradley v. N. C. O., 42 Nev. 411; 178 P. 906.

2. Actions by or against companies—Trial.

As there was no evidence of the authority of such agents, the instruction, which did not define what was meant by reasonably general control, was misleading. Mirodias v. S. P. Co., 38 Nev. 119; 145 P. 912.

X. OPERATION(F) ACCIDENTS AT CROSSINGS*3. Contributory negligence of person injured—Reliance on precautions on part of railroad company.

Ordinarily, where the safety gates maintained by a railroad company are open, there is an implied invitation to persons traveling the street to enter upon the crossing, and, while such persons are not relieved from the duty of taking reasonable precautions to avoid injury by moving trains, they may reasonably presume that the railroad company's servants have performed their duty in ascertaining that the crossing is safe, and hence, where the safety gates were open and plaintiff's view was obstructed, he was warranted in driving upon tracks, assuming that defendant's servant had discharged his duty and that crossing was clear for his passage. Vascacillas v. Southern Pacific Co., 247 F. 8; 159 C. C. A. 226.

4. Actions for injuries—Questions for jury.

Where plaintiff, who drove onto defendant's tracks when safety gates were raised, saw a train approaching on the track in front of him, but, as it was a considerable distance away, drove across the track, and was caught when the gates toward which he was driving were lowered, the question whether plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence in so driving on the tracks, and whether he was negligent in alighting from his vehicle, it appearing that he was injured when his team, frightened by the train, began to run after the gates were raised, held for the jury. Id.

It is not "negligence per se" to cross in front of a moving train, when the distance and speed of the train are such as not to render the crossing unsafe. Id.

(G) INJURIES TO PERSONS ON OR NEAR TRACKS5. Defects in roadbeds, tracks or equipment.

In the absence of wantonness, negligence of railroad company in backing its switch engine without a rear light, and in not keeping a lookout, will not make it liable for injury to a person running his velocipede car after dark, contrary to instructions, and using the track which he knew was regularly used for trains running in the opposite direction. Crosman v. Southern Pacific Co., 42 Nev. 92; 173 P. 223.

6. Actions for injuries—Instructions.

A general instruction, leaving it to the jury to apply the same standard of duty in the management of trains towards one on the track, whether rightfully or wrongfully there, is erroneous. Id.

III. TITLE TO AND POSSESSION OF PROPERTY

1. Effect of appointment and qualification of receivers.

One securing the appointment of a receiver to take possession of the property of defendant and an injunction against alienation does not for that reason obtain a lien or preference over other interested parties. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 760.

A receivership does not operate as an attachment or execution, but is no more than a sequestration of property for safe keeping, leaving the question as to who is entitled thereto for subsequent determination. Id.

2. Remedies of general creditors as against property.

A divorced wife, seeking to assert rights in the property which had composed the community estate of herself and her former husband, secured the appointment of a receiver and an injunction against disposal. Thereafter creditors of the husband, in the state courts, reduced their claims against him to judgment before his death. After the death of the husband, the federal court in which suit was brought determined to distribute the estate. Held that, while ordinarily the existence of a receivership suspends the power of creditors to obtain any lien or advantage over other interested parties, yet as this rule does not apply to a receiver pendente lite, where the sole object is to preserve the property for the purpose of the decree as between the parties to the suit, those creditors who reduced their claims to judgment before the death of the husband are entitled to that priority over the ordinary debts given by Rev. Laws Nev. sec. 6052, notwithstanding the federal court subsequently decided to distribute the entire estate. Id.

IV. MANAGEMENT AND DISPOSITION OF PROPERTY

(A) ADMINISTRATION

3. Representation by receiver of court and of parties.

It is the duty of a receiver to carefully and faithfully collect, protect, and enhance the assets of the institution of which he is receiver, and to administer its affairs to the end that its creditors and owners may receive what is justly due them. He is entitled to proper compensation for his services and an equitable allowance for administrative expenses. His duty is to all the parties in common, and he should not become an advocate of one creditor, or class of creditors, as against another creditor or creditors. Esmeralda County v. Wildes, 36 Nev. 526; 137 P. 400, 405.

VII. ACCOUNTING AND COMPENSATION

4. Allowance and payment or recovery of compensation and expenses.

The act of 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 204), authorized the attorney-general to institute an investigation of all the affairs of a certain bank and trust company and of the receivership thereof, and to take necessary legal proceedings in any action then pending in any court affecting the affairs of the receivership of the bank, etc. Held that, where orders were entered in the receivership proceeding prior to the passage of such act allowing compensation to the receiver and his attorneys without notice served on the attorney-general otherwise than by publication, such orders were ex parte as to him, and he was authorized by the act to appear on behalf of the state and contest their validity. State v. Wildes, 37 Nev. 57; 139 P. 505; 142 P. 627.

A party or person interested in an action wherein a receiver is appointed must be served, as provided by statute, with notice of a motion to fix his compensation, or the order is made ex parte. State v. Wildes, 37 Nev. 55; 139 P. 505; 142 P. 627.

5. Settlement of account.

The court, on hearing the final account of a receiver and the objections thereto, should specifically approve those portions of the account which it deems proper, and specifically disallow the items which in its opinion are illegal. Martin & Co. v. Kirby, 34 Nev. 205; 117 P. 2.

IX. LIABILITIES ON BONDS OR UNDERTAKINGS

6. Conclusiveness of adjudication against receiver.

An order in receivership proceedings, which directs the payment by the receiver of a specific sum to a designated creditor, and which authorizes the creditor to sue the receiver and his surety for the failure of the receiver to pay the claim within a specified time, cannot be collaterally attacked in an action by the creditor against a receiver and his surety. Id.

An order in receivership proceedings, which is binding on the receiver failing to appeal therefrom, is binding on his surety who, when sued on the bond, may not collaterally attack the order. Id.

Where a referee's report recited that the amount due from defendant to plaintiff was $1,396.56, but expressly stated that he did not report on the issue as to whether this was due at the institution of the action, as that was a question of law, and the court "in all things allowed, approved, and confirmed" the report, and rendered judgment for the amount reported, the adjudication by the court of the amount found was, in effect, an adjudication by the court that the amount was due at the institution of the suit. *Goodin v. In suit to quiet title against defendant claiming under a conveyance which he prayed to have reformed to comply with plaintiff's agreement to convey, alleged in the answer, the burden of proof was on the defendant to establish his contention as to the description of the property intended to be conveyed by virtue of the original agreement. *Carey v. 3. Controversies between a state and foreign states.

4. Controversies between a state or citizens thereof and foreign states or citizens.

(B) Separable Controversies.

5. Separate interests or claims in subject-matter or part thereof.

II. ORIGIN, NATURE, AND SUBJECT OF CONTROVERSY

1. Allegations in pleadings.

An action instituted in the state courts cannot be removed to the federal courts, on the ground that a question arising under the constitution or laws of the United States is involved, unless the complaint necessarily shows that such questions are involved; it being insufficient that they be raised by the other pleadings, or in anticipation of defenses. Nev.-Cal. Power Co. v. Hamilton, 235 F. 319.

III. CITIZENSHIP OR ALIENAGE OF PARTIES

(A) DIVERSE CITIZENSHIP OR ALIENAGE

2. Citizenship of parties.

Plaintiff, having been injured in Nevada by the operation of defendant's railroad train, brought suit in that state under a law of Nevada requiring prosecution of the action for damages against defendant in a Nevada state court, alleging that he was a citizen of Idaho, and that defendant was a Kentucky corporation. Defendant, believing the allegation of residence to be true, proceeded to trial, and at the close of plaintiff's case removed the cause on the theory that the evidence showed that plaintiff was a resident and citizen of Nevada. The proof showed that plaintiff in 1903 went to Idaho and remained there three years, after which he wandered around in search of work, without definite plans, intending, however, to return to Idaho in case he could not find work, and at the time of the accident he was on his way to Tonopah, Nevada, in search of work. He had no home in Nevada or fixed intention to make a home there, but was only remaining for the prosecution of the action. Held, that plaintiff was not a resident of Nevada, but of Idaho as alleged, and that the suit was not therefore removable. Sherman v. S. P. Co., 192 F. 711.

3. Controversies between a state and foreign states.

Quo warranto proceeding by the state, on the relation of a city against a foreign corporation, for failure to comply with its franchise, instituted by the attorney-general, under Rev. Laws, 5656-5659, 5663, as to quo warranto, held, an action by the state, and not the city, preventing removal for diversity of citizenship; a state not being a citizen. State v. Reno Traction Co., 41 Nev. 405; 171 P. 375; L. R. A. 1918D, 847.

4. Controversies between a state or citizens thereof and foreign states or citizens.

An action by the state, under Rev. Laws, Nev. secs. 3657-3664, to collect taxes, cannot, though the defendant be a foreign corporation, be removed to the federal courts on the grounds of diversity of citizenship, because the state is not a citizen. Nev.-Cal. Power Co. v. Hamilton, 235 F. 319.

(B) SEPARABLE CONTROVERSIES

5. Separate interests or claims in subject-matter or part thereof.

Plaintiff sued to quiet title to the use of a portion of the waters of a creek, making defendants a cattle company and nine others arranged in groups. The cattle company was a nonresident. The complaint contained no allegation indicating that its use or appropriation of the water, or its claim of title thereto was in any way connected with the use, claim, or appropriation of any other defendant or defendants except that each defendant was interested in the same stream, the waters of which were insufficient to answer the aggregate demands of all, nor did it appear that the cattle company used any ditch or dam or irrigated any land in connection with any other defendant or defendants. Held, that there was a separable controversy between plaintiff and the cattle company, and that the suit was removable as to it. McMullen v. Halleck Cattle Co., 193 F. 282.

5. Judgment—Recovery of value of property.
6. Costs.

I. RIGHT OF ACTION AND DEFENSES1. Title and right to possession of plaintiff.

Deed whereby heir conveyed all the interest "he may now hold" or "may now have" in the estate was insufficient to establish ownership in grantees of his interest in a picture which constituted part of estate, where prior thereto he had conveyed to third party all his right, title, and interest to all property which he had received, or which he was to receive, from the estate. Clark Company v. Francovich, 42 Nev. 321; 176 P. 259.

2. Defenses.

In an action in claim and delivery to recover possession of personalty, which defendants held as warehousemen, proof that whatever interest they had as such had been transferred to a corporation which succeeded to the business is a good defense. Fapp v. McQuillan, 38 Nev. 117; 145 P. 962.

II. JURISDICTION, VENUE, AND PARTIES3. Parties defendant.

In claim and delivery to recover personalty held by warehousemen, the successors to the business, as well as the one whom the warehousemen asserted was the owner, are necessary parties. Id.

III. PROCEEDINGS FOR TAKING AND REDELIVERY OF PROPERTY4. Proceedings for redelivery of property to defendant—Bonds or undertakings.

Rev. Laws, 5128, relating to actions to recover possession of personal property, declares that the defendant may, within two days after the service of a copy of the affidavit and the undertaking, give notice to the sheriff, who has seized the property, that he excepts to the sureties, and, if he fails to do so, he shall be deemed to have waived all objections to the sureties. Section 5129 declares that, at any time before the delivery of the property to the plaintiff, the defendant, if he does not except to the sureties, may claim the property upon giving to the sheriff a written undertaking executed by two or more sureties, and section 5130 declares that defendant's sureties, upon notice to the plaintiff of not less than two or more than five days, shall justify before the clerk or judge in the same manner as upon bail on arrest, and upon justification the sheriff shall deliver the property to the defendant. Held, that justification by defendant's sureties upon notice to plaintiff was a condition precedent to the delivery of the property to him: the plaintiff not being required to justify his sureties unless called upon by the defendant. State v. Lamb, 37 Nev. 19; 138 P. 907.

VI. TRIAL, JUDGMENT, ENFORCEMENT OF JUDGMENT AND REVIEW5. Judgment—Recovery of value of property.

Where, in replevin, there was no proof that the property had any rental value or that the plaintiff had sustained any special damage because deprived of its use, a judgment for plaintiff should be for the value of the property, with interest thereon from the date of its wrongful seizure until the date of the judgment. Dillon v. Grutt, 38 Nev. 46; 144 P. 741.

6. Costs.

A plaintiff in replevin who obtains a judgment is not entitled to recover attorney's fees or expenses incidental to the action other than the costs properly accruing to the prevailing party in any action. Id.

Under Rev. Laws, 5133, the sheriff may retain possession of property taken in claim and delivery until his fees and expenses are paid. State v. Lamb, 37 Nev. 20; 138 P. 907.

ROBBERY

1. Force.
2. Indictment and information—Requisites and sufficiency.
3. Evidence—Admissibility.
4. Evidence—Weight and sufficiency.

1. Force.

Where defendant administered poison to produce unconsciousness and took money from cash register in saloon of which the unconscious person had charge, he was guilty of "robbery," defined by statute to be the unlawful taking of personal property from person of another or in his presence against his will by means of force or violence or fear of injury, since the administration of the poison constituted "force." State v. Snyder, 41 Nev. 453; 172 P. 364; L. R. A. 1918E, 933.

2. Indictment and information — Requisites and sufficiency.

An information, substantially following the form of the statute, charging that defendant wilfully, unlawfully, and feloniously took from a person certain goods and chattels of such person, was not defective because not specifically charging a taking with an intent to commit a larceny; the word "feloniously" being a sufficient averment of the intent necessary to constitute the offense. State v. Switzer, 38 Nev. 108; 145 P. 925.

3. Evidence—Admissibility.

Evidence that defendant, a few days prior to the alleged robbery, had in his possession a revolver similar in appearance to that used in the commission of the robbery and found on his person on his arrest a few days after the offense was committed was admissible. Id.

4. Evidence—Weight and sufficiency.

In a prosecution for robbery by administering chloral hydrate to render unconscious the barkeeper whose cash register was robbed, evidence connecting defendant with the crime, alleged to have been committed by himself and two others, held to sustain conviction. State v. Snyder, 41 Nev. 453; 172 P. 364; L. R. A. 1918E, 933.

In a prosecution for robbery by administering chloral hydrate to produce unconsciousness, evidence held not to show that the condition in which the person robbed was found could not have been so caused. Id.

I. REQUISITES AND VALIDITY OF CONTRACT

1. Offer to sell, and acceptance thereof.

Seller, having offered to transfer title upon receipt of buyer's notes for unpaid purchase price, has the right to revoke such offer at any time prior to receiving such notes. McCone v. Eccles, 42 Nev. 451; 181 P. 134.

Seller's offer to transfer title upon receipt of buyer's notes for unpaid purchase price did not ripen into a complete contract until receipt by seller of buyer's notes. Id.

2. Contracts by correspondence.

Defendant wrote the S. Company that it would like to contract for 1,000,000 feet of lumber and would close a contract at that time, the lumber to be cut during the following season and delivered when dry, and prices to be based on a specified price-list then in vogue, and that, if this was satisfactory, it would consider the matter closed until the cutting started, when it would forward a cutting list. The company replied that it would furnish the quantity specified to be cut that season and shipped when dry, the prices to be based on the specified list. Thereafter plaintiff wrote defendant asking for a cutting order, and defendant replied asking if plaintiff would be in a position to furnish 1,000,000 feet. In response plaintiff wrote defendant referring to the previous correspondence and stating that it had succeeded the S. Company. Defendant thereafter sent a cutting order for 700,000 feet. Held, that these letters created a contract between the parties, as they evidenced a meeting of the minds as to the amount of lumber, the season in which it was to be cut, and the time of delivery. Turner L. Co. v. Tonopah L. Co., 38 Nev. 338; 145 P. 914.

3. Illegality.

Generally where the vendor of goods merely has knowledge that the purchaser intends to use them for an immoral or illegal purpose, and does nothing to aid in carrying out such purpose, he is entitled to recover therefor. Loose v. Larsen, 40 Nev. 157; 161 P. 514; L. R. A. 1917B, 1166.

Generally where goods are sold for the express purpose of enabling the buyer to accomplish an unlawful or immoral purpose, there can be no recovery for their price. Id.

II. CONSTRUCTION OF CONTRACT

1. Subject-matter—Quantity, and ascertainment thereof.

A contract for the sale of narrow-gage ties used by a road prior to standard-gaging the same, which provides for the sale of all narrow-gage ties distributed at various places along the line, the agreement to remain in force until the company has delivered all of such ties, covers all the narrow-gage ties which the company removed in standard-gaging the track, or which it had on hand at the time the agreement was made, and the company could not exempt any ties it needed to build platforms, etc. Henningsen v. T. & G. R. R. Co., 33 Nev. 208; 111 P. 36; 119 P. 774; 29 Ann. Cas. 1008.

5. Price, expenses, and costs of transportation—Amount agreed on.

Where a buyer of ties removed from a track in the construction of a standard gage contracted to accept a specified price for the ties which had been ordered by a third person, the buyer need not let the third person have ties at that price without limit as to time or number, when no definite number or period to cover further orders from the third person had been agreed on, but could charge a higher price, or refuse to make subsequent deliveries. Id.

6. Time of delivery.

Under a contract for the sale of lumber to be cut during the season of 1907 and delivered when dry, the seller might justifiably have shipped the lumber to the buyer when the lumber was dry without further shipping orders. Turner L. Co. v. Tonopah L. Co., 38 Nev. 338; 145 P. 914.

IV. PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACT

(C) DELIVERY AND ACCEPTANCE OF GOODS

7. Effect of default or delay in delivery.

Defendant having repudiated the contract and refused to take the specified quantity of lumber, to save itself from loss plaintiff was compelled to dispose of the lumber at the best market price obtainable. Held, that damages should be computed on the basis of the difference between the contract price and the market price for lumber at or about the date of the repudiation of the contract. Id.

Defendant contracted to purchase from plaintiff 1,000,000 feet of lumber to be cut during the season of 1907 and delivered when dry, and sent plaintiff a cutting order for 700,000 feet. Plaintiff milled and manufactured all of the lumber of which the cutting order was given. There was some evidence that plaintiff was unable to make prompt delivery of specific shipping orders due to climatic conditions and scarcity of transportation facilities on a railroad; but no complaint as to this was made by defendant, and it never gave notice of a rescission or cancelation of the contract or did any acts from which a rescission could be inferred. By reason of defendant's delay in furnishing plaintiff with specifications as to surfacing and sizing the lumber and to its acts in canceling shipping orders previously given and not reviving such orders owing to unsettled conditions, plaintiff was delayed in making deliveries, and, to meet the convenience of defendant, all of the lumber was not delivered during 1907. In 1908, plaintiff wrote defendant insisting that it take the lumber, and defendant replied stating that plaintiff was unable to take care of the orders offered it by defendant and that for that reason defendant would ignore plaintiff's letter and that plaintiff might take any action it might deem fit. Held, that plaintiff did not break the contract by failing to deliver the lumber during 1907, especially as there was nothing from which a failure to deliver the lumber when dry could be inferred, while defendant repudiated the contract by its letter mentioned. Id.

(D) PAYMENT OF PRICE

8. Installments and deferred payments.

Where a seller of property for delivery in installments failed to collect the price at the time of delivery, and accepted payments at varying times later, and continued to make deliveries, and did not present bills, other than those for which payments were made and accepted, and thereby allowed the delay in making payments to grow into a practice, until there was uncertainty as to the balance due, the seller could not cancel the contract without presenting a statement of the amount claimed to be due, or making some demand and giving the buyer an opportunity to pay. Henningsen v. T. & G. R. R. Co., 33 Nev. 208; 111 P. 36; 119 P. 774; 29 Ann. Cas. 1008.

Where a seller of property for delivery in installments made deliveries without rendering statements or demanding payment at the time of delivery, and accepted payment later, he waived payment at the time of making deliveries, though entitled thereto under the contract. Id.

V. OPERATION AND EFFECT

(A) TRANSFER OF TITLES AS BETWEEN PARTIES

9. Specific articles or goods—Acts to be done before passage of title.

Where buyers enter into contract whereby title is to pass upon compliance with certain conditions imposed by seller, the conditions must be fully complied with before title passes. McCone v. Eccles, 42 Nev. 451; 181 P. 134.

VII. REMEDIES OF SELLER

(E) ACTIONS FOR PRICE OR VALUE

10. Nature and form.

Where the buyer refuses to accept goods manufactured on his order, the seller, not being at fault in the matter, may store or retain the goods for the buyer and sue for the entire purchase price, or he may sell the goods, and recover the difference between the contract price and the price obtained on resale, or he may retain the goods as his own, and recover the difference between the market value at the time and place of delivery and the contract price. Leyner Engineering Works v. Mohawk Con. Leasing Co., 193 F. 745.

11. Evidence—Weight and sufficiency.

In an action for the purchase price of a safe which, after being rejected by the buyer, was delivered by order of the salesman to a firm in which the original buyer was a partner, evidence held sufficient to warrant the jury in finding that there had been a mutual rescission of the original contract of sale if the salesman had authority to make such rescission. H. H. M. Safe Co. v. Balliet, 39 Nev. 164; 145 P. 941.

12. Trial—Questions for jury.

Where a written order for the purchase of a safe had a question mark in the place left in the order for the lettering to be put on the safe, and no designation as to the interior arrangement of the safe, it was a question of fact whether the order was conditioned, as claimed by the buyer, upon his future determination as to the lettering and the interior arrangement. Id.

VIII. REMEDIES OF BUYER

(C) ACTIONS FOR BREACH OF CONTRACT

13. Trial—Question for jury.

Where the facts on the issue of waiver of a provision in a contract of sale are admitted, or clearly established, the issue is one of law. Henningsen v. T. & G. R. R. Co., 33 Nev. 208; 111 P. 36; 119 P. 774; 29 Ann. Cas. 1008.

IX. CONDITIONAL SALES

14. Construction and operation of conditions as between parties.

A conditional contract for the sale of mining machinery bound the buyer to deposit with a third person all bullion extracted from his mining properties until the price was paid, and provided that the title should remain in the seller until the price was paid. The buyer deposited bullion in excess of the price, under an agreement that the third person should apply the same in payment of labor claims, royalties on ore produced, and supplies furnished to the buyer for the operation of the property. Held, that the deposit of the bullion was not a payment of the price because the original contract was modified by the subsequent agreement. Dillon v. Grutt, 38 Nev. 46; 144 P. 741.

Under a conditional sale contract which stipulates that the chattels shall remain the property of the seller until paid for, title does not pass to the buyer obtaining and retaining possession, but not paying the price. Id.

15. Effect of assignment of contract.

Where a seller in a conditional sale contract reserving title until the price was paid assigned the contract, the assignee succeeded to the rights of ownership of the seller until the price was paid. Id.

16. Waiver of condition or of forfeiture for breach.

A conditional contract of sale which reserved the title in the seller until the price was paid was assigned by the seller, and thereafter the buyer gave a chattel mortgage of corporate stock to secure the price and for other claims due the assignee. The mortgage recited that the buyer had possession, but no title. Attached to the mortgage was an exhibit of the original contract which was also made a part of the mortgage. Held, that the mortgage reserved the title as against an execution creditor of the buyer. Id.

17. Remedies of creditors.

A conditional sale contract of mining machinery stipulated that the title should remain in the seller until the price was paid, and recited that the buyer had deposited 50,000 shares of the capital stock as security. The seller assigned the contract and thereafter the buyer executed to the assignee a chattel mortgage on 71,000 shares of stock including the 50,000 shares as security for the payment of the price and other debts due him. The mortgage expressly recognized that the conditional sale was in force and that the title remained vested in the assignee. Held, that the mortgage did not operate as a waiver of the original conditional sale, and the assignee was not bound to exhaust his mortgage security before asserting title to the machinery to recover the price as against an execution creditor of the buyer levying on the machinery. Id.

Stats. 1911, c. 133, sec. 13, provides that claims for traveling expenses of deputy superintendent of public instruction, etc., shall be paid from the general fund. Stats. 1915, c. 177, sec. 28, provides for the actual traveling and office expenses of deputy superintendent of public instruction, district No. 3, $1,750. Held, that the deputy superintendent of public instruction for such district could not recover under the first act cited for traveling expenses incurred during the year 1916; such act being superseded or suspended by the appropriation of the act of 1915. McCracken v. State, 41 Nev. 49; 167 P. 1001.

Const. art. 4, sec. 19, provides: "No money shall be drawn from the treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law." Stats. 1915, c. 76, provides: "No warrant shall be drawn on the treasury, except there be an unexhausted specific appropriation, by law, to meet the same." Held, that Stats. 1911, c. 133, sec. 13, was sufficient to make appropriation for claims arising under it, and that, as the legislature made no appropriation in 1917, respondent's deputy superintendent of public instruction could recover under section 13 for expenses for the year 1917. Id.

2. Boards and officers.

Sections 66-70 of the general appropriation act of 1913, making provisions "for actual traveling expenses" for each of the five deputy superintendents of public instruction for the years 1913 and 1914, should be read in connection with section 13 of the general act relating to public schools (Rev. Laws, 3251), providing that "all claims for traveling expenses, including the cost of transportation and cost of living * * * while absent from their places of residence, * * * shall be paid from the general fund of the state." The fact that the word "actual" was used in the general appropriation act of 1913, in contradistinction to provisions of previous general appropriation acts, will not be deemed sufficient to manifest an intent upon the part of the legislature to limit the purpose of such appropriation while the amount appropriated is the same as made in previous appropriation bills and as recommended to the legislature by the state controller as required by law. Abel v. Eggers, 36 Nev. 373; 136 P. 100.

(D) DISTRICT PROPERTY, CONTRACTS AND LIABILITIES

3. School buildings—Authority and duty to provide.

The act approved March 22, 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 157), authorizing Elko County to issue bonds for, and to construct and equip, a high-school building in the town of Wells, was not repealed or amended by the act approved March 25, 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 244), relative to the construction of county high-school buildings. Dotta v. Hesson, 38 Nev. 1; 143 P. 305.

4. Contracts—Making, requisites and validity.

Where defendant, after obtaining a contract to build a schoolhouse, obtained labor and materials from plaintiff, who was one of the trustees, defendant could not successfully claim that the contract was valid as between himself and the school district and invalid as between himself and the trustee, under Stats. 1907, c. 182, providing that no trustee shall be peculiarly interested in any contract made by the board of which he is a member. Worrell v. Jurden, 36 Nev. 85; 132 P. 1158.

Stats. 1907, c. 182, provide that no school trustee shall be peculiarly interested in any contract made by the board of trustees of which he is a member. Held, that where plaintiff, a school trustee, had no pecuniary interest or understanding with defendant at the time defendant's bid for the construction of a schoolhouse was accepted by the board, the fact that plaintiff was a trustee did not deprive him of the right to lawfully contract thereafter to furnish defendant materials to be used in the performance of his contract, nor afford defendant a defense to an action for the price. Id.

(E) DISTRICT DEBT, SECURITIES, AND TAXATION

5. Constitutional and statutory provisions.

The act of March 18, 1911 (Stats. 1911, c. 90, sec. 1), Rev. Laws, 3617, imposing a tax of 6 cents on the $100 for the general school fund, was impliedly repealed by the act of March 20, 1911 (Stats. 1911, c. 133, sec. 135), Rev. Laws, 3374, imposing a tax of 10 cents on the $100 for school purposes; the statutes being irreconcilably in conflict. State v. Esser, 35 Nev. 429; 129 P. 557.

6. School taxes—Levy and assessment.

Where the board of county commissioners had complied with Rev. Laws, 3618, requiring them, on or before the first Monday of March of each year, to fix the rate of county taxes for such year, designating the number of cents on each hundred dollars, and levy the state and county taxes on the taxable property, it was an ultimate act in pursuance of that section and sections 3762, 3763, relating to their duties "to levy annually," such statutes contemplating but one annual tax levy; consequently mandamus would not lie to compel a levy under the subsequently enacted statute of March 9, 1915 (Stats. 1915, c. 78), permitting the county commissioners, in counties in which no high school is located, to a levy a county tax for high-school purposes for the benefit of any district high schools complying with certain conditions, the proper construction of such act being that the levy should be made at the time when the county levy is regularly made. State v. Washoe Co. Comm., 38 Nev. 269; 149 P. 191.

SHERIFFS AND CONSTABLESII. COMPENSATION.

1. Agreement as to fees.
2. Custody and care of property.
3. Collection and payment of money—Commissions.

III. POWERS, DUTIES AND LIABILITIES.

4. Authority of deputies.
5. Liabilities for acts or omissions of deputies or assistants.

II. COMPENSATION1. Agreement as to fees.

The constable of a town, who performs services, the fees for which are fixed by statute, may not accept a greater sum, nor may the county commissioners tender a less sum; and an agreement to accept a greater is illegal, and an agreement to accept a less sum is void, as contrary to public policy. Wolf v. Humboldt County, 36 Nev. 26; 131 P. 964; 45 L. R. A. (N.S.) 762.

2. Custody and care of property.

A sheriff, incurring expenses in preserving attached property, may recover from plaintiff in attachment or from the trustee in bankruptcy of the debtor, adjudged a bankrupt after the attachment, and he must look to one or both for reimbursement. Allen v. Ingalls, 33 Nev. 281; 111 P. 34; 114 P. 758; 30 Ann. Cas. 755.

3. Collection and payment of money—Commissions.

Under Comp. Laws, 2472, fixing the sheriff's commission for receiving and paying over money on execution where lands or personal property have been sold at three-fourths of 1 per cent, on all sums over $1,500, and allowing only one-half per cent for receiving and paying over money on execution without levy, a sheriff who sells land under execution is entitled to his commission, even if it is bought in by the judgment creditor for the amount of the judgment. Roberts v. Ingalls, 36 Nev. 325; 135 P. 927; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 542; Ann. Cas. 1915C, 1119.

Although Comp. Laws, 2472, fixing the fees of sheriffs, provides that the fees shall be collected from the defendant by virtue of the execution, the sheriff is not required to look to the judgment debtor personally, but rather to property held under execution, and so can make the payment of his fees a condition precedent to the execution of a certificate of sale, even though the property is bought in by the judgment creditor for the amount of the judgment. Id.

III. POWERS, DUTIES AND LIABILITIES4. Authority of deputies.

Where a sheriff gave to his deputy an attachment to execute, without saying anything as to the employment of a keeper, and the writ could not be executed without taking possession of personal property, the deputy, empowered by Comp. Laws, 2242, to perform the duties devolving on the sheriff, could employ, if necessary, a keeper of the attached property. Allen v. Ingalls, 33 Nev. 281; 111 P. 34; 114 P. 758; 30 Ann. Cas. 755.

5. Liabilities for acts or omissions of deputies or assistants.

A deputy, receiving from the sheriff a writ of attachment to execute, remained in charge of the personal property attached for a time, and then employed a third person as keeper, and notified the sheriff, who expressed approval. The attached property thereafter remained in the possession of the third person with the sheriff's knowledge, and was finally delivered by the third person to another on the sheriff's order. Held, that the sheriff ratified the deputy's employment of the third person as keeper, and was liable for the third person's services, if such ratification was necessary to bind him. Id.

2. Indictment and information.

Rev. Laws, 6459, punishing the "infamous crime against nature" either with man or beast, includes all unnatural acts in whatever form or by whatever means they are perpetrated, and an indictment charging that accused did unlawfully commit "the infamous crime against nature" with a man, stating the manner of the act, was sufficient. Id.

Where a bill for specific performance of a contract for the sale of mining stock did not show that the stock could not be purchased in the market, and that its pecuniary value was not readily ascertainable, or that it had a peculiar value to plaintiff, it did not state a case for specific performance. Eckley v. Daniel, 193 F. 279.

III. GOOD FAITH AND DILIGENCE

2. Payment of consideration or tender thereof.

Where vendors by placing a mortgage on property and by conveying it to another had put it out of their power to perform their contract of sale, the vendees were not bound to tender the remainder of the purchase price or to allege such tender as a condition precedent to its right to maintain a suit for specific performance, and this though a demand was made for the deeds. English v. Mound House Plaster Co., 192 F. 717.

IV. PROCEEDINGS AND RELIEF3. Pleading—Bill or complaint.

In a suit by the assignee of a contract for the sale of real property for specific performance, it was not necessary that the bill should allege that the assignment was in writing. Id.

4. Evidence—Presumptions and burden of proof.

One seeking specific performance of a contract whereby he was to inherit the property of others has the burden of proof, and specific performance will be denied unless the contract is established by clear and satisfactory evidence. Forsyth v. Heward, 41 Nev. 306; 170 P. 21.

5. Evidence—Weight and sufficiency.

In an action for specific performance of an agreement to leave plaintiff real property in consideration of her remaining with and caring for deceased during his declining years, evidence held sufficient to warrant specific performance, showing that possession was given to plaintiff, and that, in reliance upon the agreement, she had changed her position in such a manner that she could not be made whole by damages. *Clow v. II. GOVERNMENT AND OFFICERS1. Eligibility to office.

Under Stats. 1913, c. 128, sec. 1, creating the office of exposition commissioner of the state for the Panama-Pacific and the Panama-California expositions, and authorizing the governor to appoint an exposition commissioner, and section 2, creating the board of directors for the state for such expositions, whose duty it shall be to employ superintendents, clerks, and other persons upon such terms as may be deemed just and equitable to carry out the provisions of that act, and to cooperate and advise with the exposition commissioner, the position occupied by a superintendent so employed was not an "office" within Const. art. 4, sec. 8, providing that no senator or member of assembly shall, during the term for which he shall have been elected, nor for one year thereafter, be appointed to any civil office of profit under the state, which shall have been created or the emoluments of which shall have been increased during his term, except such office as may be filled by election by the people, as the term "office" embraces the ideas of continued duration, fees, or emoluments and duties, and such superintendent was intrusted with none of the sovereign power of the state, his compensation, period of employment, and the details of his duties being all matters of contract with the board of directors, especially as he was not required to take an oath as required by Const. art. 15, sec. 2. In the case of officers, indicating that the state officers did not consider him an officer. State v. Cole, 38 Nev. 215; 148 P. 551.

2. Compensation of officers, agents, and employees—Compensation of particular agents or employees.

The act of March 29, 1907 (Stats. 1907, c. 185), sec. 3, provides that the chairman of the state industrial and publicity commission shall receive, as compensation for his services, to be paid out of the state treasury, the sum stated, and the other two members shall serve without compensation. Section 4 provides that the commission may appoint a secretary "at a salary of not more than $1,800 per annum, and may employ such other experts as may be necessary to perform any service that may be required of them, and shall fix their compensation payable out of such contributions" as may be made by the various counties and private individuals. Section 6 permits the commission to solicit private contributions, but prohibits them from receiving money in payment for specific services. Section 8 permits the various counties to allow a certain sum to the commission. Section 9 requires the expenditures for necessary office supplies, etc., to be audited and paid for as other state expenses are paid for, and section 10 requires the commission to report every six months a detailed statement of all sums received, showing from what source received, and for what purpose expended. Held, that the salary of a secretary of the commission, appointed at a fixed salary, was payable only out of the contributions received, and not from the state treasury, so that the state controller could not be compelled to draw warrants for such salary. Mighels v. Eggers, 36 Nev. 364; 136 P. 104.

3. Individual interest of officer.

Rev. Laws, 2827, making it unlawful for any member of the legislature to become a contractor under any contract authorized by the legislature of which he is a member, does not prohibit a member of the legislature from entering into a contract for the construction of highways, which contract grew out of a legislative enactment passed by a former legislature of which he was not a member. Berney v. Highway Dept., 42 Nev. 423; 178 P. 978.

IV. FISCAL MANAGEMENT. PUBLIC DEBT. AND SECURITIES

4. General funds.

All moneys coming into the state treasury constitute a part of the general fund, unless the placing thereof in a special fund is specifically authorized by the constitution or a statute. State v. McMillan, 34 Nev. 264; 117 P. 506.

Neither the act of March 20, 1900 (Stats. 1908-09, c. 131), sec. 7, an act for construction of a state prison, providing that for the purpose of carrying out the act $100,000 is appropriated out of the general fund in the state treasury, to be transferred to the state prison building fund, on warrants drawn by the state controller after all claims and demands therefor have been audited and allowed by the state board of prison commissioners and the state board of examiners, nor the act of March 23, 1900 (Stats. 1908-09, c. 153), sec. 1, an act for a state loan, appropriating the sum of $105,000 for the purpose of enabling the state board of prison commissioners to carry out the provisions of said prior act, authorizes the transfer of any money from the general fund of the state into the state prison building fund, in excess of claims audited and allowed by said boards of prison commissioners and examiners; so that an attempted transfer in excess thereof is void. Id.

5. Appropriations—Necessity.

Before the state controller is bound to draw a warrant for official salaries, it must appear by statute that an appropriation has been made, and that the state has obligated itself to pay such salaries from the state treasury. Mighels v. Eggers, 36 Nev. 364; 136 P. 104.

6. Appropriations—Making and requisites.

In the absence of anything to the contrary in the statute, the act of March 17, 1911, sec. 6 (Rev. Laws, 4491), fixing the salary of the commissioner of industry, agriculture, and irrigation, and directing that it be payable in equal monthly installments by the state treasurer on warrants drawn by the state controller, is a sufficient appropriation out of the state general fund. State v. Eggers, 35 Nev. 250; 128 P. 986.

No particular form of words is necessary for the purpose of an appropriation, and an appropriation may be made in one year of the revenues to accrue in another or future year. McCracken v. State, 41 Nev. 40; 167 P. 1001.

The act of March 17, 1911, sec. 7, part of the act (Rev. Laws, 4486-4494) creating the state bureau, and the office of commissioner of industry, agriculture, and irrigation, and defining its objects and purposes, does not, by section 7, appropriating $25,000 to carry out "the purposes of this act," and providing that all disbursements from it shall be on certificate of the commissioner, approved by the state board of examiners, indicate that such appropriation includes the salary of the commissioner, which section 6 fixes and declares payable in equal monthly installments by the state treasurer on warrants drawn by the state controller; Const. art. 5, sec. 21, expressly excluding salaries of officers "fixed by law" from the claims against the state which the board of examiners shall pass on, and "purposes" indicating something to be accomplished rather than an existing fact, so that the bureau and office of commissioner were but means for the subsequent accomplishment of the purposes of the act. State v. Eggers, 35 Nev. 250; 128 P. 986.

7. Appropriations—Operation and effect.

The setting apart in a general appropriation bill of various funds to cover payment of salaries and other expenses of the state government, while it may reserve the money for that purpose, does not, in itself, authorize the payment of the money from the fund. State ex rel. Fowler v. Eggers, 33 Nev. 535; 112 P. 699.

V. CLAIMS AGAINST STATE

8. Nature of claims required to be presented.

The constitution, art. 5, sec. 21, constitutes the governor, secretary of state, and attorney-general a board of examiners to examine claims against the state, except the compensation of officers fixed by law. Article 4, section 19, provides that no money shall be drawn from the state treasury except to meet appropriations made by law. Article 5, section 22, provides that the state treasurer and state controller shall perform duties prescribed by law. Rev. Laws, 4459, requires all claims against the state, provided for by appropriation, but not liquidated, to be presented to the board of examiners for approval, and that the controller shall not allow them unless so approved. Section 4157 defines the general duties of the state controller, section 4158 requires him to audit all claims against the state for which appropriation has been made, of which the amount has not been definitely fixed by law, and which have been examined and approved by the board, and to allow claims as provided by law, and section 4159 requires him to draw all warrants upon the treasury and to account therefor. The act relating to the compensation of workmen (Stats. 1913, c. 111), receiving injuries in the course of their employment resulting in death, creates an industrial insurance commission, composed of the governor, state mining inspector, attorney-general and two others named by them, and a state insurance fund derived from premiums paid by such employers as accept the terms of the act, and by section 24 provides that all premiums shall be paid to the state treasurer, and by section 40 that the state shall not be liable for any compensation under the act except from such funds. Held, that the "state treasury" did not include the state insurance fund, which was a special fund given to the treasurer in trust, as distinguished from the general taxes and revenues of the state, and that the requirement for presentation of claims to the board of examiners and the issuance of warrants by the controller did not apply. State v. McMillan, 36 Nev. 383; 136 P. 108.

2. Possibility of discharge or other termination without performance.

VI. REAL PROPERTY AND ESTATES.

3. Creation of estates or interests.

IX. OPERATION AND EFFECT OF STATUTE.

4. Contracts implied by law on part performance.

V. AGREEMENTS NOT TO BE PERFORMED WITHIN ONE YEAR

1. Intent of parties.

An oral agreement to bear one-third of the expenses of developing a mining claim covered by a two-year lease in consideration of an assignment of a one-third interest is not void under the statute of frauds, where the parties contemplate that the development work shall be completed within a year. Girton v. Daniels, 35 Nev. 438; 129 P. 555.

2. Possibility of discharge or other termination without performance.

An oral agreement to bear one-third of the expenses of developing a mining claim covered by a two-year lease was not void under the statute of frauds, where the lease could have been terminated by the act of the parties within one year according to its specific provisions. Id.

VI. REAL PROPERTY AND ESTATES

3. Creation of estates or interests.

An oral agreement between the plaintiff, a part owner of a mining claim, and one defendant, by which the latter was to perform assessment work on the claim for 1909, and the plaintiff was to convey to him an undivided one-fourth of the claim, and the defendant was also to relocate another claim in the joint names of plaintiff and defendant in consideration of plaintiff's refraining from performing assessment work on the claim, is not void under Rev. Laws, 1083, providing that no interest in lands shall hereafter be created, granted, or assigned unless by act or operation of law, or by deed or conveyance in writing. Hornsilver Cases, 35 Nev. 447; 130 P. 760, 764; 134 P. 448, 449.

IX. OPERATION AND EFFECT OF STATUTE

4. Contracts implied by law on part performance.

Where a one-third interest in a mining lease is assigned in consideration of an oral agreement to bear one-third of the expense of development, and the other contracting party pursuant to the agreement thereafter does the development work and advances money to pay such expense, the assignee is liable on quantum meruit for his share of the work and expense, though their agreement be void under the statute of frauds. Girton v. Daniels, 35 Nev. 438; 129 P. 555.

(B) Particular Classes of Statutes.

42. Penal statutes.

(C) Time of Taking Effect.

43. Date fixed in act.

I. ENACTMENT, REQUISITES, AND VALIDITY

1. Validity and sufficiency of provisions—Certainty and definiteness.

Criminal laws must be plainly written, so that every person may have an opportunity to know with certainty what acts or omissions constitute crime. Eureka Bank Cases, 35 Nev. 82; 126 P. 655; 129 P. 308.

2. Determination of validity of enactment—Presumptions and construction in favor of validity.

All acts of the legislature are presumed to be valid until it is clearly shown that they are unconstitutional. State v. Brodigan, 37 Nev. 492; 143 P. 306.

3. Effect of partial invalidity.

Where a part of a section of a statute is unconstitutional, such invalidity will not necessarily prevent the enforcement of the remainder. Ormsby County v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 316; 142 P. 803.

The unconstitutionality of one section of a law does not destroy the validity of other provisions which can stand independent of such section. Turner v. Fogg, 39 Nev. 406; 159 P. 56.

II. GENERAL AND SPECIAL OR LOCAL LAWS

4. Laws of general or public nature.

The act of December 17, 1862 (Stats. 1862, c. 37), authorizing any owner of any mine to sue for damages for improper mining by one in possession under a lease and for trespass to his mine, and providing for an application for an order for a survey of mines, and declaring that the costs of the order and survey shall be paid by the persons making the application unless they shall subsequently maintain an action and recover damages by reason of a trespass threatened prior to such survey, does not permit a survey of the boundaries and underground workings of adjacent mines unless there is a pending suit involving such mines. National M. Co. v. District Court, 34 Nev. 67; 116 P. 996.

5. Uniformity of operation of general laws—Subject-matter.

The provision in the act of February 20, 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 10), amending section 22 of the marriage and divorce act of 1861 (Stats. 1861, c. 33), as amended in 1875 (Stats. 1875, c. 22), by declaring that when, at the time of the accrual of a cause for divorce, the parties shall not both be bona-fide residents of the state, no court shall grant divorce, unless either party shall have been a bona-fide resident for not less than one year next preceding the commencement of the action, is of general uniform operation throughout the state, and applies the same in every part of the state, and to all persons under similar circumstances, and is not a local or special law within Const. art. 4, sec. 20, prohibiting any local or special law granting a divorce. Worthington v. District Court, 37 Nev. 213; 142 P. 230; Ann. Cas. 1916E, 1097; L. R. A. 1916A, 696.

6. Applicability of general law as affecting validity of special or local law.

An act of the legislature provided that after May 1, 1911, the county commissioners of Lyon County should remove the offices and archives and other movable property from Dayton to Yerington. The general act of 1877 (Stats. 1877, c. 84), provides for the removal of county-seats by the majority of the voters at an election called on petition of three-fifths of the taxpayers who are electors. Section 21 of article 4 of the state constitution provides that in all cases enumerated in section 20, and in all other cases where a general law can be made applicable, all laws shall be general and of uniform application throughout the state. Prior to the last general election the courthouse at Dayton was destroyed by fire. Held, that the special act was justified on the ground that an emergency existed, calling for prompt action. Quillel v. Strosnider, 34 Nev. 9; 115 P. 177.

In locating a county-seat, it will depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case whether a special law is applicable. Id.

If a special act be passed for a particular case, the presumption of the applicability of the general law is overcome by the presumption in favor of the special act that the general act was not applicable in that case. Id.

7. Laws of special, local, or private nature.

Reasonable classifications in a legislative act are not prohibited by the constitution prohibiting the passage of local or special laws. Worthington v. District Court, 37 Nev. 213; 142 P. 230; Ann. Cas. 1916E, 1097; L. R. A. 1916A, 696.

8. Regulation of personal status, rights, and relations.

The constitution, prohibiting any special laws granting divorce, renders void any special act granting divorce, as divorces were granted by parliament and state legislatures prior to the constitutional provision. Id.

9. Establishment and regulation of schools.

The act approved March 22, 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 157), authorizing the county of Elko to issue bonds for, and to construct and equip, a high-school building in the town of Wells, is not a special law violative of Const. art. 4, sec. 21, providing that where a general law can be made applicable, all laws shall be of general operation throughout the state. Dotta v. Hesson, 38 Nev. 1; 143 P. 305.

III. SUBJECTS AND TITLES OF ACTS

10. Expression in title of subject of act.

Notwithstanding Const. art. 4, sec. 17, providing that each law shall embrace but one subject and matters properly connected therewith, a statute may contain several provisions, provided they relate to the subject expressed in the title, or are properly connected therewith. Worthington v. District Court, 37 Nev. 212; 142 P. 230; Ann. Cas. 1916E, 1097; L. R. A. 1916A, 696.

11. Titles and provisions of acts relating to particular subjects—Civil remedies and proceedings.

The title of an act entitled "An act relating to marriage and divorce" is sufficient, within Const. art. 4, sec. 17, providing that each law shall embrace but one subject and matters properly connected therewith, to justify provisions in the body of the act prescribing the length of residence required before parties may apply for a divorce. Id.

12. Titles and provisions of acts relating to particular subjects—Crimes and criminal prosecutions and punishments.

Stats. 1911, c. 133, secs. 217, 218 (Rev. Laws, 3457, 3458), making it unlawful to keep a house of ill-fame within 800 yards of a schoolhouse, etc., is not unconstitutional, under Const. art. 4, sec. 17, as embracing matter not covered by the title, "An act concerning public schools and repealing certain acts relating thereto." Ex Parte Ah Pah, 34 Nev. 283; 119 P. 770.

13. Titles and provisions of acts relating to particular subjects—State government and administration thereof.

Provisions in a general appropriation act for the support of the state government, providing for repeals or amendments of the existing general laws of the state, would be unconstitutional and void as contrary to the provisions of section 17 of article 4 of the constitution, and are not germane to the title. Abel v. Eggers, 36 Nev. 372; 136 P. 100.

14. Titles and provisions of acts relating to particular subjects—Counties, towns, and municipal corporations.

The act of March 13, 1903 (Stats. 1903, c. 78), secs. 6, 7 (Rev. Laws, 3831, 3832), authorizing county commissioners, in case of great necessity or emergency, to make a temporary loan, and requiring them at the next tax levy to make a levy for its payment, does not, in violation of Const. art. 14, sec. 17, relate to a subject not embraced in the title, "An act relating to county government and the reduction of the rate of county taxation." First Nat. Bank v. Nye Co., 38 Nev. 123; 145 P. 932; Ann. Cas. 1917C, 1195.

Stats. 1913, c. 111, entitled "An act relating to the compensation of injured workmen in the industries of this state and the compensation to their dependents where such injuries result in death, creating an industrial insurance commission, providing for the creating and disbursement of funds for the compensation and care of workmen injured in the course of employment, and defining and regulating the liability of employers to their employees, and repealing all acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act," sufficiently embraces within its title the purpose expressed by section 1, subd. b, thereof, making counties and other municipal corporations subject to the act, and therefore does not offend Const. art. 4, sec. 17, providing that every law shall embrace but one subject which shall be briefly expressed in its title. Nevada Ind. Com. v. Washoe Co., 41 Nev. 437; 171 P. 511.

15. Titles and provisions of acts relating to particular subjects—Schools and school districts.

Stats. 1911, c. 133, entitled "An act concerning public schools," section 135 of which provided for a tax for the support of the public schools, was not void for embracing a subject not included in the title, contrary to Const. art. 4, sec. 17 (Rev. Laws, 275). State v. Esser, 35 Nev. 429; 129 P. 557.

16. Titles and provisions of acts relating to particular subjects—Public officers.

Under Const. art. 4, sec. 17, providing that each law enacted shall embrace but one subject, which shall be briefly expressed in the title, Rev. Laws, 1513, which is section 13 of an act entitled "An act to create a board of county commissioners in the several counties of the state, and to define their duties and powers," and establishing the duties of boards of county commissioners as election officers, was constitutional. McBride v. Griswold, 38 Nev. 56; 146 P. 756.

The title to Stats. 1908-09, c. 200, relates to only the one subject of removal of officers, although it provides several independent methods for removing them. Gay v. District Court, 41 Nev. 330; 171 P. 156.

The act of March 29, 1915 (Stats. 1915, c. 283), entitled "An act regulating the nomination of candidates by political parties, providing for the holding of primaries and conventions, and regulating the manner of nominating candidates by petition," does not contravene the constitution, art. 4, sec. 17, providing that each law shall embrace but one subject and matters properly connected therewith, which subject shall be embraced in the title. Turner v. Fogg, 39 Nev. 406; 159 P. 56.

IV. AMENDMENT, REVISION, AND CODIFICATION

17. Title of amending act.

An amendment of a city charter was not invalid because the title of the act purported to amend an act theretofore repealed. Ex Parte Counts, 39 Nev. 61; 153 P. 93.

18. Reference to and identification of act amended.

The intention of the legislature to amend a specified section of the statute must govern, and a clerical mistake as to the section amended must be disregarded. Worthington v. District Court, 37 Nev. 213; 142 P. 230; Ann. Cas. 1916E, 1097; L. R. A. 1916A, 696.

The provision of Const. art. 4, sec. 17, that no law shall be revised or amended by reference to its title only, does not render invalid the provision of Stats. 1917, c. 197, that electors in the military service of the United States may vote in accordance with Stats. 1899, c. 94, which was repealed by Stats. 1913, c. 284; revival by title not being prohibited; for an "amendment" is an alteration effecting a change in the draft, or form, or substance, of a law already enacted, or of a bill proposed for enactment, but, when the legislative body attempts to revise, it thereby assumes to make additions or changes or corrections to alter or reform something then in force and effect, and "revision" in a legislative sense applies only to a measure, bill, or law then having existence, life, and force, and cannot, in the nature of things, apply to a nullified or repealed act; and the term "revive," as applied to legislative proceedings, signifies the reconference of validity, force, and effect, at least the reconference of validity, force, and effect as the revived measure, law, or bill formerly possessed. Maclean v. Brodigan, 41 Nev. 468; 172 P. 375.

19. Setting forth provision as altered or amended.

By direct provision of Const. art. 4, sec. 17, the legislature cannot amend an act by reference to its title only, but must reenact and publish at length the act as revised or amended. State v. Cole, 38 Nev. 488; 151 P. 944.

Rev. Laws, 1912, p. 1283, entitled "An act making the railroad commission * * * ex officio a public service commission for the regulation and control of certain public utilities," etc., in section 16 provides that the commission shall have authority to employ an expert engineer at a salary of $3,600 per annum and traveling expenses. Relator was so employed, but after the enactment of Stats. 1913, c. 261, entitled "An act regulating the salaries of certain state officers," and providing that the annual salary of the chief engineer of the public service commission shall be $2,500, the state controller refused to draw his warrant in relator's favor at the rate of $3,600 a year, but only at the rate of $2,500. Relator sought mandamus, contending that the act of 1913, as an act amending the public service act, violated Const. art. 4, sec. 17, providing that each law enacted by the legislature shall embrace but one subject and matter properly connected therewith, which shall be briefly expressed in the title, and that no law shall be revised or amended by reference to its title only, but in such case the act as revised or section as amended shall be reenacted and published at length. Held, that the act of 1913 was valid, it not purporting to be an amendatory act, but clearly an independent act complete in itself, which was not embraced in the constitutional requirement and might alter the prior statute without referring to it. Id.

The act of February 15, 1875 (Stats. 1875, c. 22), entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act relating to marriage and divorce,' approved November 28, 1861," and containing only three sections, purports, by section 1, to amend section 22 of the original act by reenacting the section as changed. Sections 2 and 3 are the ordinary repeal of inconsistent laws, and a provision as to when it shall take effect. The act of February 20, 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 101), entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to amend an act relating to marriage and divorce,' approved November 28, 1861," purports to amend "section 22" by reenacting

It with the changes effected by the amendment and repealing conflicting acts. Held, that, in view of Const. art. 4, sec. 19, providing that no law shall be revised or amended by reference, but the act or section as amended shall be reenacted and published, the act of 1875 did not repeal section 22 of the original act, and the act of 1913 was not void as attempting to amend section 22, after such repeal, but the unchanged part of the section as originally enacted continued in force, notwithstanding the amendments, so that the title of the act of 1913 is sufficient. Worthington v. District Court, 37 Nev. 212; 142 P. 230; Ann. Cas. 1916E, 1097; L. R. A. 1916A, 696.

V. REPEAL, SUSPENSION, EXPIRATION AND REVIVAL

20. Implied repeal.

Repeals by implication are not favored. State v. Ducker, 35 Nev. 214; 127 P. 990.

Repeals by implication are not favored and occur only where there is such an irreconcilable repugnancy that the two acts cannot stand together. Abel v. Eggers, 36 Nev. 372; 136 P. 100.

Repeals of statutes by implication are not favored. Dotta v. Hesson, 38 Nev. 1; 143 P. 305.

In the absence of a clear showing, the repeal or modification of a statute is not presumed, and, when there is a general and special statutory provision relating to the same subject, the special provision will control. State v. Boerlin, 38 Nev. 39; 144 P. 738.

21. Implied repeal by inconsistent or repugnant act.

If two statutes are irreconcilably conflicting, the last enacted controls. State v. Esser, 35 Nev. 429; 129 P. 557.

22. Implied repeal by act relating to same subject.

Where the language of a statute is susceptible of two constructions, that construction should be applied which will make it effective. Abel v. Eggers, 36 Nev. 373; 136 P. 100.

Statutes relating to the same subject-matter will, if possible, be so construed as to give effect to both. Id.

23. Reenactment or revival of act repealed.

Where one act of the legislature specifically adopts the provisions of another act upon the same general subject, the effect is to incorporate the adopted act, making it effective for the designated purpose, and that the adopted act has been repealed is immaterial. Maclean v. Brodigan, 41 Nev. 468; 172 P. 375.

VI. CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION

(A) GENERAL RULES OF CONSTRUCTION

24. Intention of legislature.

The intention of the legislature, when not in conflict with the constitution, is to govern in the construction of statutes. State v. Boerlin, 38 Nev. 39; 144 P. 738.

The legislative intent in enacting statutes must control, and rules of construction are but aids in ascertaining such intent. State v. Ducker, 35 Nev. 214; 127 P. 990.

The legislative intent in enacting a statute must govern if ascertainable. Mighels v. Eggers, 36 Nev. 364; 136 P. 104.

In the construction of statutes, the intention of the legislature controls the courts, and should be ascertained and followed. Ex Parte Smith, 33 Nev. 466; 111 P. 930.

The intention of the legislature controls the courts in the construction of statutes, and such intention must be gathered from the language used and from the mischiefs intended to be suppressed or benefits to be attained. State v. Hamilton, 33 Nev. 418; 111 P. 1026.

Courts in interpreting statutes will so construe them as to carry out the manifest purpose of the legislature, even though it may be necessary to disregard the literal meaning of certain of the language used. Abel v. Eggers, 36 Nev. 373; 136 P. 100.

In construing a statute the court must avoid an interpretation which will result in absurd consequences. Nye County v. Schmidt, 39 Nev. 456; 157 P. 1073.

25. Intention of legislature—Policy and purpose of act.

In construing or applying the provisions of any statute, the purpose or object of the statute should ever be kept in mind, and a construction or application should be avoided which sacrifices substance to a mere matter of form. Ferro v. Bargo M. Co., 37 Nev. 139; 140 P. 527.

In the construction of statutes, courts may consider the purpose of the change sought to be effected as it may be deduced from a consideration of the whole subject-matter. State v. Brodigan, 37 Nev. 245; 141 P. 988.

26. Meaning of language.

In construing a statute, words shall be given their plain meaning, unless to do so would clearly violate evident spirit of act. Ex Parte Zwissig, 42 Nev. 360; 178 P. 20.

27. Meaning of language—Existence of ambiguity.

The unambiguous language of a statute cannot be construed contrary to its clear meaning. Eddy v. Board of Embalmers, 40 Nev. 329; 163 P. 245.

28. Meaning of language—Technical terms.

Technical words and phrases having peculiar and appropriate meaning in law are to be understood according to their technical import; but to such rule there is an exception where words are used to express convertible terms in a statute, and where a court, seeking to carry out the legislative will, applied to the terms the meaning that will give the most unrestricted scope to the enactment. In Re Estate of Lewis, 39 Nev. 446; 159 P. 961.

29. Meaning of language—General and specific words.

One section of a statute treating specifically of a matter will prevail over other sections in which incidental or general reference is made to the same matter. State v. Hamilton, 33 Nev. 418; 111 P. 1026.

30. Meaning of language—Particular words and phrases.

The word "maintain" in a statute in reference to actions comprehends the institution as well as the support of the action, though it may be used to express a meaning corresponding to its more restricted definition. National M. Co. v. District Court, 34 Nev. 67; 116 P. 996.

31. Meaning of language—Mistakes in writing, grammar, spelling or punctuation.

In construing statutes rendered uncertain by punctuation, the courts properly regard such marks only as an aid in arriving at the correct meaning of the words of a statute, not as having a controlling influence; and courts should not hesitate to repunctuate a statute where it is necessary to arrive at the true legislative intent or where punctuation or omission thereof is caused by clerical error or inadvertence, or where it is evident that the punctuation gives to the statute an absurd or meaningless interpretation. State v. Brodigan, 34 Nev. 486; 125 P. 699.

32. Meaning of language—Words omitted.

Stats. 1913, c. 144, sec. 1, divided the state into ten judicial districts and provided that for each of them judges should be elected at the general election in 1914, and, as compiled, that "for each of said districts except the Second judicial district there shall be selected one judge. For the Second judicial district there shall be two judges elected"—the words in brackets being omitted from the enrolled bill. Section 3 fixed the salary of the judges in the different districts, referring to "the judge" of different districts mentioned, and section 4 provided that the Second judicial district should have two district judges, with concurrent jurisdiction and power to make rules and regulations for the transaction of business in that district. Held, that the manifest intent was to provide for the election of but one judge in other than the Second district; and hence that the words in brackets, necessary to give it that effect, would be read into the act in order that it might express the true legislative intent. State v. Brodigan, 37 Nev. 245; 141 P. 988.

33. Statute as a whole and intrinsic aids to construction.

Legislative acts should be construed so as to make all parts thereof harmonious, if a reasonable construction can accomplish the result. Nye Co. v. Schmidt, 39 Nev. 456; 157 P. 1073.

The whole act should be construed together to remove or explain any ambiguity in a particular statute. Mighels v. Eggers, 36 Nev. 364; 136 P. 104.

34. Statute as a whole and intrinsic aids to construction—Giving effect to entire statute.

Instead of construing one section of an act as repealing another section in part, courts rather seek to harmonize the different parts of the act, or different acts in pari materia, so as to enable them all to stand. Verdi Lumber Co. v. Bartlett, 40 Nev. 317; 161 P. 933.

Courts have no authority to eliminate language used in a statute or to change its obvious meaning, but are bound to give effect, where possible, to all the language used. Heywood v. Nye County, 36 Nev. 568; 137 P. 515.

A statute should be so construed, if possible, as to give it effect rather than to nullify it. Id.

Statutes should be construed so that, as far as possible, effect may be given to all the language of an act. Ex Parte Smith, 33 Nev. 466; 111 P. 930.

The presumption that the framers of an act intended not only to give effect to the main legislative intent, but also to its several parts, words, clauses, and sentences, is removed only when it appears that effect cannot be given to the paramount purpose unless particular words or clauses are rejected or without limiting or expanding their literal import. State v. Reno Brewing Co., 42 Nev. 397; 178 P. 902.

The presumption is that the framers of an act intended to give force and effect not only to the main legislative intent, but also to its several parts, words, clauses, and sentences. Id.

35. Statute as a whole and intrinsic aids to construction—Conflicting provisions.

When two provisions of a statute are not reconcilable, the last one controls, as being the latest expression of the legislative will. Ex Parte Smith, 33 Nev. 466; 111 P. 930.

In the construction of statutes, a special provision will control as against a general one. Ex Parte Smith, 33 Nev. 466; 111 P. 930.

In the construction of statutes, courts should harmonize inconsistent parts of acts bearing upon the same question when it is possible to arrive at the true legislative intent thereby, and should avoid a construction which creates inconsistent positions whenever it can possibly be done without doing violence to the legislative intent. State v. Brodigan, 34 Nev. 486; 125 P. 699.

36. Statute as a whole and intrinsic aids to construction—Same or different language relating to same subject-matter.

Where the same word is used in different parts of a statute, it will be presumed to be used in the same sense throughout, and, where its meaning in one instance is clear, such meaning will be attached to it elsewhere, unless it clearly appears that it was the intention of the legislature to use it in different senses. National M. Co. v. District Court, 34 Nev. 67; 116 P. 996.

37. Presumptions to aid construction.

In construing statutes courts must presume a legislative intentment of reasonable operation of all parts of the act. Nye County v. Schmidt, 39 Nev. 456; 157 P. 1073.

It will not be assumed that one part of a legislative act will make inoperative or nullify another part of the same act, if a different and more reasonable construction can be applied. Id.

Where the legislative body manifests a definite purpose in an act, it will be presumed that in furtherance of such purpose the lawmaking power formulated the subsidiary provisions in harmony therewith. Id.

Where a statute uses a word which is well known and has a definite sense at common law, without specific definition, it will be presumed to be used in its common-law sense, unless it clearly appears that it was not so intended. In Re Estate of Lewis, 39 Nev. 445; 159 P. 961.

Where a statute is equally susceptible of two constructions, the court will presume that the legislature did not intend a radical change in existing procedure, and will construe the statute in harmony therewith. National M. Co. v. District Court, 34 Nev. 67; 116 P. 996.

38. Extrinsic aids to construction.

The court, in construing an ambiguous statute, may consider the law as it existed prior to the statute. Id.

The court will not look beyond the enrolled bill in the office of the secretary of state to ascertain the terms of a law. State v. Brodigan, 37 Nev. 245; 141 P. 988.

39. Construction with reference to other statutes—Statutes relating to same subject-matter.

Two statutes relating to the same subject-matter are to be read and construed together, with a view to harmonizing them, if possible, to give effect to both, unless the later act expressly repeals the earlier, or is so repugnant to it as to repeal it by necessary implication; "repugnancy" being inconsistency or conflict with something else. Presson v. Presson, 38 Nev. 203; 147 P. 1081.

Two statutes on the same subject must be construed together, so as to give effect to the language of both, as far as consistent, and where a conflict is apparent, the later statute controls. State v. Tax Commission, 38 Nev. 112; 145 P. 905.

Separate acts covering the same subject-matter should be so construed, if possible, as to allow both to stand, where the language is consistent and plain. Ex Parte Ah Pah, 34 Nev. 283; 119 P. 770.

Statutes which relate to the same subject-matter are in pari materia and should be construed together. State v. Esser, 35 Nev. 429; 129 P. 557.

In the construction of statutes, courts may consider prior existing law upon the subject under consideration. State v. Brodigan, 37 Nev. 245; 141 P. 988.

General appropriation bills, as indicated by their titles, are passed for the support of the state government as the same is established by the constitution and general laws, and, as the life of such acts is limited to two years, it is not to be assumed that the legislature intended by such appropriation acts to accomplish changes or amendments in the general laws of the state. Abel v. Eggers, 36 Nev. 372; 136 P. 100.

The provisions in general appropriation acts are in pari materia with the general acts controlling the purposes for which the appropriation is made and are to be construed in connection therewith. Unless there is such a manifest repugnance as to leave no room for reasonable construction otherwise, they will be construed so as to carry out the provisions of the general law. Id.

40. Construction of statutes adopted from other states.

Where the legislature of one state adopts the statute of another, the act of adoption raises the presumption that the legislature of the adopting state enacted the statute in the light of the construction that had been placed upon it in the parent state. O'Brien v. Commissioners, 41 Nev. 91; 167 P. 1007.

As the groundwork of the civil practice act of this state was the code of civil procedure of the State of New York, decisions of New York courts construing their procedure are especially in point in construing similar provisions of the practice act in this state. Ex Parte Boyd, 36 Nev. 162; 134 P. 455; Ann. Cas. 1915A, 1277.

Courts of a state which have adopted a statute from another state, after it has been construed by the courts of that state, are not bound by such construction, where the organic laws of the two states differ in essential particulars affecting the law in question, or where the laws are not identical, or where the circumstances of the people of the adopting state are essentially different. Held, also, that the Nevada water law of 1913 differs in essential particulars from the water laws of Wyoming and Nebraska, and that the constitutions of those states also differ in material particulars, hence, this court is not bound by the decisions of the highest courts of those states construing the provisions of their water laws. Ormsby County v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 316; 142 P. 803.

Where the legislature of one state adopts a statute already in force in another state, it is presumed that the construction given such statute is also adopted. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 756.

41. Construction as mandatory or directory.

Where an existing right or privilege is subject to regulation by a statute in negative words, the mode so prescribed is imperative. Walser v. Moran, 42 Nev. 111; 173 P. 1149; 180 P. 492.

(B) PARTICULAR CLASSES OF STATUTES

42. Penal statutes.

Penal statutes must be liberally construed in favor of the accused, and it must appear that he committed acts which are clearly made an offense by the statute. Ex Parte Smith, 33 Nev. 466; 111 P. 930.

Penalties and forfeitures are not favored, and will not be imposed unless the statute so clearly directs. State v. Brodigan, 37 Nev. 488; 143 P. 306.

Penalties or forfeitures in addition to those stated in a statute should not be implied or imposed by the court. U. S. F. & G. Co. v. Marks, 37 Nev. 306; 142 P. 524.

(C) TIME OF TAKING EFFECT

43. Date fixed in act.

Crimes and punishments act, effective January 1, 1912, prohibiting the keeping of a house of ill-fame within 400 yards of a school, etc. (Rev. Laws, 6510), did not, until January 1, 1912, supersede Stats. 1911, c. 133, secs. 217, 218, enacted the same day as the other act, and fixing an 800-yard limit. Ex Parte Ah Pah, 34 Nev. 283; 119 P. 770.

In the absence of constitutional restriction, the legislature is free to fix in each act the time it is to take effect. Id.

II. REGULATION AND OPERATION

1. Acts of employees for which company is liable.

A motorman operating defendant street-railroad company's car was a servant of such company, whose negligence in the scope of his duties was imputable to defendant. Weck v. Reno Traction Co., 38 Nev. 286; 149 P. 65.

2. Injury to persons on or near tracks—Drivers of vehicles and persons therein.

The duty which rests upon one about to cross the track of a steam railroad to look and listen does not rest upon one about to cross that of a street railroad, owing to the different conditions; the question of negligence of both parties in case of a collision between a street car and one lawfully using the street being of fact to be determined upon all the circumstances. Weck v. Reno Traction Co., 38 Nev. 285; 149 P. 65.

One who finds himself in a perilous position on a street-car track is not required to exercise the soundest judgment under penalty of being found guilty of contributory negligence. Id.

3. Injury avoidable notwithstanding contributory negligence.

Where plaintiff, in his automobile, in turning from the side of the road around obstructing vehicles onto the street-car track, discovered a car coming toward him at an excessive speed, and exercised reasonably good judgment in trying to extricate himself from danger, his negligence in going upon the track, if any, stopped at such point, and having stopped, and not continued until the moment of the accident, defendant's negligence in running the car at an excessive speed was the proximate cause of the injury to plaintiff's automobile by the collision, under the doctrine of last clear chance. Id.

4. Actions for injuries—Questions for jury.

In an action against a street railroad for injuries sustained by an automobile in collision with one of its cars, evidence held to take case to jury. Id.

CONSTITUTIONAL REQUIREMENTS AND RESTRICTIONS*1. Equality and uniformity.

A basic principle of all property taxation is that it shall be uniform and equal regardless of the method adopted to arrive at the result. Goldfield Con. M. Co. v. State, 35 Nev. 178; 127 P. 77.

Stats. 1911, c. 133, sec. 135 (Rev. Laws, 3374), imposing a tax on all taxable property in the state for school purposes, and requiring the county commissioners to add such amount to the other taxes, could take effect during the fiscal year 1911, without violating the constitutional requirement of equality and uniformity, though it resulted in two different levies during the same fiscal year. State v. Esser, 35 Nev. 429; 129 P. 557.

III. LIABILITY OF PERSONS AND PROPERTY(A) PRIVATE PERSONS AND PROPERTY*2. Nature of property—Mines, mining rights and minerals.

Article 10 of the constitution, as amended and ratified at the general election in 1906, provides (section 1) that the legislature shall provide for uniform and equal taxation and for a just valuation for taxation of all property, except mines and mining claims, when not patented, the proceeds alone of which shall be assessed and taxed; and, when patented, each patented mine shall be assessed at not less than $500, except when $100 in labor has been actually performed thereon during the year, in addition to the tax on the net proceeds, etc. Rev. Laws, 3621, provides that all property within the state shall be subject to taxation, except: "Second—Unpatented mines and mining claims; provided," etc. Held, that where $100 worth or more of labor has been expended on a patented mining claim during any one year and prior to the time of assessment, the mine is exempt from taxation, except on the proceeds thereof. Goldfield Con. M. Co. v. State, 35 Nev. 178; 127 P. 77.

(B) CORPORATIONS AND CORPORATE STOCK AND PROPERTY

3. Express and other transportation companies.

Where the statutes define the different species of property subject to taxation and provide that every species shall be assessed at its actual cash value, but are silent as to the mode of ascertaining the cash value, the revenue officers may assess the intangible property of an express company as against the objection that the legislature has failed to adopt any rule governing the manner of determining the value of the property. State v. Wells Fargo & Co., 38 Nev. 505; 150 P. 836.

Const. art. 10 (as amended by Stats. 1913, c. 83), requiring the legislature to provide by law for a uniform and equal rate of assessment and taxation and exempt from taxation enumerated property, and Rev. Laws, 3621, 3622, declaring that all property shall be subject to taxation, except exempt property, defining real estate, and declaring that the term "personal property" shall include all capital, loaned, invested, or employed in trade, commerce or business, the capital stock of corporations doing business within the state, and all property not included in the term "real estate," authorize and direct that all property of every kind, character, and nature not specifically exempted shall be subject to taxation, and authorize a tax on the intangible property of an express company engaged in interstate and intrastate business. Id.

IV. PLACE OF TAXATION

4. Corporations and corporate property, franchises, and capital.

The property of an express company doing an interstate and an intrastate business is in character tangible and intangible, and the property is subject to assessment and taxation, and the situs of the intangible property is distributed where its tangible property is located and its work done. Id.

V. LEVY AND ASSESSMENT

(B) ASSESSORS AND PROCEEDINGS FOR ASSESSMENT

5. Powers and proceedings in making assessments.

In the absence of a showing to the contrary, it will be presumed that assessing officers performed their duty in making an assessment of property for taxation. State v. Wells Fargo & Co., 38 Nev. 506; 150 P. 836.

(C) MODE OF ASSESSMENT

6. Valuation.

Where the valuation of property for taxation was not excessive, the fact that an erroneous method was used in good faith in determining the valuation was immaterial. State v. Wells Fargo & Co., 38 Nev. 507; 150 P. 836.

7. Valuation—Real property.

Rev. Laws, 3624, directing the assessor to determine the true cash value of the property, does not control section 3838, subsequently enacted, which provides that no patented or state contract land shall be assessed for less than $1.25 per acre. State v. Tax Commission, 38 Nev. 112; 154 P. 905.

Stats. 1913, c. 134, creating a state tax commission with power to district the state geographically in assessment districts according to relative uniformity of land valuation, and establish minimum acreage valuations for the classes in each district, and that if, in the opinion of the commission, any tract, by reason of special conditions, would be improperly assessed by the application of the classified acreage valuations, the tract may be excluded therefrom and specially appraised, and providing that property shall be assessed at its true full "cash value," defined to mean the valuation in money which an investor in such character of property would be reasonably willing to pay therefor, implies that the commission may fix the valuation lower than the minimum of $1.25 per acre, as fixed by Rev. Laws, 3838, and an owner feeling aggrieved on the ground that the minimum is too high, may appear before the commission and prove that the cash valuation is less than the minimum, and, on the commission so finding, they must make a deduction in the valuation accordingly, and to this extent section 3838 is superseded, but it still applies to county assessors making the original assessment. Id.

Under Const. art. 10, sec. 1, as amended in 1906 (Stats. 1907, p. 501), to provide that, as to unpatented mines and mining claims, the proceeds alone should be assessed and taxed, and that patented claims shall be assessed at not less than $500, except when $100 in labor has been actually performed thereon during the year, in addition to the tax upon the net proceeds, a patented mine cannot be assessed at less than $500 if no labor has been performed, and a patented mine on which labor has been performed is exempt from taxation except on the proceeds thereof, and, in the absence of any saving clause, an assessment at $10 per acre under Stats. 1905, c. 58, pursuant to article 10, section 1, prior to the amendment of 1906, was invalid. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 170; 161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064.

8. Notice of assessment.

Where a statute does not provide for notice of assessment of property for taxation, the giving of notice is not essential to make an assessment valid. State v. Wells Fargo & Co., 38 Nev. 506; 150 P. 836.

(D) MODE OF ASSESSMENT OF CORPORATE STOCK, PROPERTY, OR RECEIPTS

9. Valuation of franchises and privileges.

A corporation, whose power plant and water rights were located in California, but the greater part of whose transmission lines were in Nevada, where most of the current was sold, cannot be taxed in Nevada on an assessed valuation in the ratio of its transmission lines in Nevada to its transmission lines in California, on the theory that that proportion of its income was derived from its property in Nevada, even though California has assessed its valuation only in the ratio of its California transmission lines to its total transmission lines. Nev.-Cal. Power Co. v. Hamilton, 240 F. 485.

A hydro-electric power company can be assessed on its franchise value, or on its value as a going concern, provided the value of the whole property, as determined by capitalizing its net earnings, is in excess of the sum of the values of its constituent units. Such a valuation may be obtained by subtracting the sum of the values of its several parts from its capitalized value. In determining what is a reasonable return on the property, the court should take into consideration the hazards of the business, taxes, operating expenses, and depreciation. No allowance can be made for depreciation in the case of water rights which are appreciating in value. Id.

10. Express and other transportation companies.

An express company was assessed at a mileage valuation of $300 per mile on 140.14 miles of railroad, over which it transacted business in the state. The net operative earnings of the company were over $3,000,000, which would be a 10 per cent net earnings on property of the value of over $30,000,000. The operative mileage of the company was 65,474 miles, including nearly 15,000 miles of steamship lines. Excluding from a capitalization of the net earnings on a 10 per cent basis the value of all the property of the company outside the state used in its operative business, there would be net earnings of over $40 per mile for the entire system, or a valuation of over $400 per mile for the system as a whole. Excluding the steamship mileage, and assuming that 8 per cent was a fair interest on which to estimate the value of its property, subject to assessment basis, a resulting valuation of over $750 per operative mile would be shown. Held, that the assessment was not excessive, though the steamship mileage was not included. State v. Wells Fargo & Co., 38 Nev. 507; 150 P. 836.

Rev. Laws, 3797, requiring county assessors to meet annually and establish a valuation through the state of property for taxation, when considered in connection with sections 3624, 3800, relating to the assessment of property at its actual cash value, does not delegate legislative power to the assessors acting collectively or severally in determining whether property is subject to taxation, but the only discretion conferred on the board of assessors is to determine whether other kinds of property than those enumerated by statute can be valued and assessed more uniformly by the board than by the county assessors acting separately, and the tangible and intangible property of an express company may be assessed. State v. Wells Fargo & Co., 38 Nev. 506; 150 P. 836.

11. Foreign corporations.

In assessing the property of an interstate corporation, engaged in the sale of electric power and water, it is improper to capitalize the earnings of the whole property and ascribe the total value to the distributing lines as a mode of assessing such lines for taxation. Nev.-Cal. Power Co. v. Hamilton, 235 F. 318.

Complainant, whose power plant and water rights are located in California, owns transmission lines extending into southern Nevada, where the greater part of its electric current is sold. Though the more valuable part of plaintiff's property was located in California, that state taxed it on about 15 per cent of the value of its entire property. Held, that the State of Nevada could not, on the theory that practically 85 per cent of its income was derived from Nevada, tax plaintiff on a valuation made from capitalizing such income at 10 per cent, for, as the income necessarily resulted from current generated in California, the State of Nevada could not, though the State of California had not taxed plaintiff on all its property, impose taxes on property not located in Nevada. Nev.-Cal. Power Co. v. Hamilton, 235 F. 317.

The most valuable portion of complainant's property is permanently located in California, and 85 per cent of its transmission lines are in Nevada. If the value of the entire property for the purpose of taxation is ascertained by capitalizing its net earnings, and 85 per cent of this valuation is assessed as the value of the company's property in Nevada, simply because 85 per cent of the company's transmission-line mileage is in Nevada, the assessment is bad. Nev.-Cal. Power Co. v. Hamilton, 235 F. 318.

Where an interstate corporation, as a carrier or irrigation company, owns property in several states, each state, for purposes of taxation, may value the entire property and impute a fair proportion of the aggregate value to that portion lying within its borders. Id.

(E) ASSESSMENT ROLLS OR BOOKS

12. Description of property—Corporate property, stock and securities.

The state board of assessors, at an annual meeting, fixed the mileage valuation on the property of an express company doing intrastate and interstate business, after considering the fact that interstate business was not subject to taxation. The county assessor, in fixing the assessment of the property of the company, described it as the right to carry express over railroad mileage operated by enumerated railroads, and stated that the company operated its business on 140.14 miles of railroad at a valuation for the business of $300 per mile. The company had furnished a statement of its property, and the county assessor sought to assess the intangible property of the company. Held, that the assessment sufficiently described the property. State v. Wells Fargo & Co., 38 Nev. 506; 150 P. 836.

(F) EQUALIZATION OF ASSESSMENTS

13. State boards of equalization.

The act of March 20, 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 134), sec. 4, authorizing the state tax commission to exercise general supervision and control over the entire revenue system of the state, does not trespass upon any inherent right of county revenue officers; their duties being within the control of the legislature. Tax Commission v. Douglas County, 36 Nev. 319; 135 P. 609.

The act of March 20, 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 134), sec. 3, requires the state tax commission to hold a regular session on the second Monday in October, at which session it shall equalize property valuations as provided in section 6. Section 4 provides that the commission shall have power to exercise general supervision and control over the entire revenue system of the state, in pursuance whereof it shall possess special power, among others, to require assessors, sheriffs, as ex officio collectors of licenses, and the clerks of county boards of equalization, to furnish such information in relation to assessments, licenses or the equalization of valuations as it may demand. Section 6 provides that at its regular session in October it shall review the tax rolls of the various counties, and may raise or lower, for the purpose of state equalization, the valuations therein. Held, that while there is no express provision requiring revenue officers of the several counties to deliver or transmit to the commission the assessment roll, where the commission determines that, for the performance of its duties, it is convenient or necessary to have such rolls and makes demand therefor, it is the duty of the county revenue officers to comply with such demand. Id.

14. Equalization among counties or other municipalities by state boards or officers.

Stats. 1913, c. 134, creating the Nevada tax commission, and empowering it to exercise general supervision and control over the entire revenue system of the state, with special enumerated powers, including the power to advise and direct assessors, sheriffs, and county boards of equalization, and also providing that the enumeration of the special powers shall not exclude the commissioners of any needful and proper power, does not empower the commission to order a board of county commissioners to reduce its rate of county taxation after the commission has increased the valuation. State v. Boerlin, 38 Nev. 39; 144 P. 738.

(G) REVIEW, CORRECTION, OR SETTING ASIDE OF ASSESSMENT

15. Proceedings by and before board or officer—Conclusiveness and effect of decision.

An assessment imposed by the Nevada tax commission, created by act Nev. March 20, 1913, is conclusive, and has the effect of a judgment, in the absence of fraud. Nev.-Cal. Power Co. v. Hamilton, 235 F. 320.

VII. PAYMENT AND REFUNDING OR RECOVERY OF TAX PAID

16. Right of recovery of taxes paid—Protest.

Where an assessment of taxes on real property was not wholly void, but was excessive, the taxes, if paid, cannot be recovered in an action against the taxing officials, the payment, though made under protest, being presumed to be voluntary. Nev.-Cal. Power Co. v. Hamilton, 235 F. 318.

VIII. COLLECTION AND ENFORCEMENT AGAINST PERSONS OR PERSONAL PROPERTY

(B) SUMMARY REMEDIES AND ACTIONS

17. Actions for unpaid taxes—Evidence.

Under Rev. Laws, 3664, authorizing defendant, in an action for delinquent taxes, to show that the assessment is out of proportion and above the actual cash value of the property assessed, defendant, in an action for delinquent taxes, has the burden of establishing excessive valuation on his property. State v. Wells Fargo & Co., 38 Nev. 506; 150 P. 836.

(C) REMEDIES FOR WRONGFUL ENFORCEMENT

18. Injunction—Grounds of relief.

Where taxing officials assess in a manner which they must know will produce inequalities and unjust assessments, their acts are to be treated as arbitrary or fraudulent. Nev.-Cal. Power Co. v. Hamilton, 235 F. 318.

Judicial code, sec. 267, declares that suits in equity shall not be sustained in any court in the United States where a plain, adequate, and complete remedy may be had at law. The property of plaintiff, a foreign corporation, which was located in Nevada, was assessed at an excessive rate. Rev. Laws Nev., sec. 3664, enumerating the defenses against tax suits, which enumerates fraud in the assessment, or failure to comply with the provisions of the act, provides that the defense that the assessment is out of proportion to the actual value of the property assessed shall be effectual only as to the excess. Held, that as a tax suit by the State of Nevada against plaintiff could not be removed by plaintiff to the federal court on the ground of diversity of citizenship, though plaintiff was a foreign corporation, as the defense against an excessive assessment, which could be interposed at law, was not available in the federal courts, and as a state cannot restrict the jurisdiction of the federal courts, the federal district court had jurisdiction to entertain a suit by plaintiff to enjoin enforcement of an excessive assessment; it having no plain and adequate remedy at law. Nev.-Cal. Power Co. v. Hamilton, 235 F. 320.

Act Nev. March 20, 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 134) sec. 7, declares that any property owner who has instituted court proceedings for redress from any increased valuation of his property, and who shall have paid his December installment of taxes in full, may, on filing with the treasurer of the county a certificate of the clerk of any court that such issue is pending, pay his June installment in two separate payments, one payment in a sum which, when added to the December installment, will represent the amount of taxes payable if computed on the valuation of the preceding fiscal year, plus the valuation of any improvement, and the other for the balance required to make up the full June installment, which sum shall be held to be disposed of according to the result of the litigation. Plaintiff's assessment was so raised in 1914 that payment of the December installment would result in payment of a sum in excess of the taxes payable under the prior valuation; the taxes being payable in two equal installments. Held, that section 7 did not afford plaintiff an adequate remedy at law, and so plaintiff might, being a foreign corporation, sue in the federal courts to enjoin the collection of the illegal assessment. Nev.-Cal. Power Co. v. Hamilton, 235 F. 319.

Under Rev. Laws Nev., sec. 3666, making a tax deed conclusive evidence of title, except against actual fraud or payment of taxes by one not a party, enforcement of an illegal tax assessment, under which proceedings were about to be brought to sell land for taxes, will be enjoined, for a tax deed based on such proceedings would constitute a cloud on the title. Nev.-Cal. Power Co. v. Hamilton, 235 F. 318.

IX. SALE OF LAND FOR NONPAYMENT OF TAX

19. Taxes and charges for which land may be sold—Validity of tax.

Where an assessment on a patented mining claim at $10 per acre under Stats. 1905, c. 58, expressly following Const. art. 10, sec. 1, as amended in 1902 (Stats. 1901, p. 136), was void under the amendment of that section in 1906 (Stats. 1907, p. 501), providing for an assessment of such claims at $500, with certain exceptions as to labor performed, etc., the tax sale under the assessment was void. Wren v. Dixon, 40 Nev. 171; 161 P. 722; 167 P. 324; Ann. Cas. 1918D, 1064.

XIII. LEGACY, INHERITANCE, AND TRANSFER TAXES

20. Property liable—Particular estates or interests.

Under Rev. Laws, 2156, defining community property, and section 2165, providing that upon the death of the husband one-half of the community property goes to the surviving wife, the right of the wife in the community property during her husband's life is not a mere expectancy, but is a property interest, though subject to the husband's control, and at the husband's death it is merely freed from his control, and does not pass under the inheritance laws, and therefore is not subject to taxation under Stats. 1913, c. 266, sec. 1, imposing a tax on all property passing by will or statutes of inheritance. In Re Williams, 40 Nev. 241; 161 P. 741; L. R. A. 1917C, 602.

XIV. DISPOSITION OF TAXES COLLECTED, AND FAILURE OF LOCAL AUTHORITIES TO COLLECT

21. General taxes collected by county, city, or other municipality—Rights of state.

Rev. Laws, 3748, declares that the county auditors shall on the first Monday of each month furnish the controller a statement of all moneys in the respective county treasuries, that the treasurers shall always hold themselves ready to pay all moneys in their hands belonging to the state whenever required to do so by order of the state controller and state treasurer, and that on making payments into the state treasury the county treasurer shall furnish the controller with a statement. Stats. 1913, c. 134, sec. 7, declares that any property owner who has initiated a court proceeding for redress from any increased valuation, and who shall have paid his December installment of taxes, may pay his June installment in two payments, one payment in a sum which, when added to the December installment, shall represent the amount of taxes payable if computed on the old valuation, plus any improvements, and the other the balance of the full June installment, which sum shall be kept as a special deposit until the court by its findings shall award it, and from which, if the property owner be successful, he shall be entitled to a refund. Taxpayers paid their taxes under protest, but did not commence any court action. Held, that they were entitled to relief only upon complying with the terms of the statute, and the county treasurer could not withhold settlement from the state treasurer on the ground that the taxes had been paid under protest. State v. Miller, 38 Nev. 494; 151 P. 943.

22. Proceedings for apportionment, accounting and settlement.

In an action by one county against another county for taxes collected by defendant county on property claimed to be in plaintiff county, evidence held to sustain a finding for plaintiff. Lyon County v. Storey County, 34 Nev. 243; 117 P. 827.

II. ACTIONS

(A) RIGHT OF ACTION AND DEFENSE

1. Title to support action.

Where plaintiff had a license to cut and remove timber from a third person's land, he is not entitled to damages for injuries to the herbage on such land caused by defendant's trespassing sheep, for only the owner entitled to the herbage could maintain such action. Anderson v. Berrum, 36 Nev. 463; 136 P. 973.

Where plaintiff had a license to cut timber on another's land, and to flume it or carry it out, he may maintain an action for injuries caused by defendant's trespassing sheep to the roads and the flume. Id.

(B) JURISDICTION, PARTIES, PRELIMINARY PROCEEDINGS, AND PLEADING

2. Issues, proof and variance.

sheep, where it appeared that plaintiff had only a license to cut timber on the lands of a third person, he cannot, under a complaint alleging damages to the herbage on that land and other land owned by him, recover anything for injury to the verdure; the complaint not designating how much damage was done on the different lands. Id.

32. Sufficiency.

I. NOTICE OF TRIAL AND PRELIMINARY PROCEEDINGS

1. Order of trial of separate issues.

Where the answer raises a question preliminary to the right of the court to determine the merits, it is proper for the court to first determine such matter before considering the issues going to the merits. McKlin v. District Court, 33 Nev. 44; 110 P. 4.

III. COURSE AND CONDUCT OF TRIAL

2. Right to open and close.

The party who has the burden of proof is universally allowed to open and close, and such burden, in condemnation proceedings to assess damages, was upon the defendant; moreover, under Rev. Laws, 5210, providing that, unless the judge for special reasons otherwise directs, the plaintiff must commence and may conclude the argument, and matter was within the discretion of the court, and, in the absence of showing of abuse, its ruling permitting the defendant to open and close should not be disturbed. T. R. G. E. Co. v. Durham, 38 Nev. 312; 149 P. 61.

3. Remarks and conduct of judge.

Remarks by the trial judge which are calculated to mislead the jury or prejudice the rights of either party are reversible. Peterson v. Silver Peak, 37 Nev. 117; 140 P. 519.

In ruling on the admissibility of evidence, the trial judge should confine his remarks strictly to that question, and not make unnecessary statements, such as that the evidence will do no harm, or as to one of the attorneys being a good fellow, etc. Id.

IV. RECEPTION OF EVIDENCE

(A) INTRODUCTION, OFFER, AND ADMISSION OF EVIDENCE

4. Offer of proof—Necessity and sufficiency.

In a miner's action for personal injuries, defendant offered in evidence a conversation between witness and plaintiff some time after the accident to show, as stated by counsel, that the action was instituted in bad faith, with knowledge by the plaintiff that he knew that the shift boss and defendant were not responsible for his injury, and that he alone was responsible, and to contradict any evidence of negligence by defendant, and to prove its claim that the accident was not caused by its negligence, and to contradict plaintiff's evidence tending to show negligence by the defendant. Held that the offer was sufficient to warrant admission of a declaration against interest by the plaintiff. Peterson v. Silver Peak, 37 Nev. 118; 140 P. 519.

5. Effect of admission of evidence—Restriction to special purpose.

In a trial, without a jury, of a husband's action for criminal conversation, the admission in evidence of letters to plaintiff from his wife containing matters competent and matters incompetent was not error, where the court stated that the letters were admitted merely to contradict any inference that the husband and wife were living together, and there was other and competent evidence relative to the adultery relied on as the basis of the action. Rehling v. Brainard, 38 Nev. 16; 144 P. 167; Ann. Cas. 1917C, 656.

(C) OBJECTIONS, MOTIONS TO STRIKE OUT AND EXCEPTIONS

6. Effect of failure to object or except.

That the defendant insurer, sued on a life policy, consented that the testimony of other witnesses taken before the coroner might be read in evidence, was no waiver of defendant's right to object to the admission of a transcript of the testimony of another witness, given at the coroner's inquest and offered to impeach his testimony at the trial. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Neasham, 250 F. 787; 163 C. C. A. 119.

V. ARGUMENTS AND CONDUCT OF COUNSEL

7. Comments on failure to produce evidence or call witness.

Permitting counsel for plaintiff in an action for injury to a passenger from derailment of a train to draw an inference in his argument that because the engineer and conductor of the train were not called or their absence explained their testimony would have been adverse to defendant was not error. Sherman v. S. P. Co., 33 Nev. 385; 111 P. 416; 115 P. 909; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 217.

8. Withdrawal or correction of objectionable matter.

Where, on the trial of an action against a railroad for injuries to a passenger by collision, plaintiff's attorney in his argument inadvertently referred to the nonattendance of witnesses for defendant, when, in fact, they were present and testified, it is no ground for reversal, where the statement is withdrawn and defendant failed to account for the accident to the satisfaction of the jury, and to overcome the prima facie presumption of negligence which arises from the derailment of the car in which plaintiff is riding. Id.

9. Action of court.

Counsel's improper criticism of defendant by statements outside of the evidence, in view of the court's direction to disregard them and of the refusal to grant a new trial after verdict for plaintiff, held not to warrant a remand for a new trial. Leete v. S. P. Co., 37 Nev. 49; 139 P. 29.

VI. TAKING CASE OR QUESTION FROM JURY

(A) QUESTIONS OF LAW OR OF FACT

10. Questions of law or of fact—Weight and sufficiency of evidence.

Where reasonable men might fairly differ on the conclusions to be drawn from the evidence, the case should not be taken from the jury on motion for nonsuit. Week v. Reno Traction Co., 38 Nev. 285; 149 P. 65.

11. Effect of failure to question sufficiency of evidence.

Where the defendant waived its motion for a nonsuit by offering evidence, the only manner of testing the sufficiency of plaintiff's evidence is by motion for new trial upon the ground of insufficiency. Hochschultz v. Potosi Zinc Co., 33 Nev. 198; 110 P. 713.

(C) DISMISSAL AND NONSUIT

12. Hearing and determination of motion.

On motion for nonsuit, the trial court must construe the evidence most favorably to the plaintiff. Week v. Reno Traction Co., 38 Nev. 285; 149 P. 65.

On a motion for a nonsuit, the evidence should be construed in favor of the plaintiff. Su Lee v. Peck, 40 Nev. 20; 160 P. 18.

VII. INSTRUCTIONS TO JURY

(A) PROVINCE OF COURT AND JURY

13. Assumption by judge as to facts.

In an employee's action for injuries, an instruction that the mere facts that prior to the injury the rip saw used by him was in a defective condition, which was known to him up to and including the time of injury, and that he was actually injured as a result of such defective condition, did not in themselves establish that the rip saw was so openly and obviously dangerous on account of such defects that a reasonably prudent person would not have used it, was not erroneous or misleading, as assuming the facts therein stated to have been proved or admitted. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 187; 135 P. 141.

14. Assumption by judge as to facts—Uncontroverted facts or evidence.

Where plaintiff was injured by coming in contact with a live wire and defendants admitted in answer and evidence that the voltage was at least 440, the court did not err in assuming that the wire carried a current of 440 volts. Cutler v. Pittsburg Silver Peak, 34 Nev. 46; 116 P. 418.

15. Weight and sufficiency of evidence.

An instruction that if the jury found certain facts it would be their duty to find a verdict for plaintiff in a sum not greater than $15,000 was not objectionable, as charging them that it was their duty to return a verdict for plaintiff in that specific amount. Cutler v. Pittsburg Silver Peak G. M. Co., 34 Nev. 45; 116 P. 418.

(B) NECESSITY AND SUBJECT-MATTER

16. Issues and theories of case.

Where the parties on trial each proceeded on a different theory of the case, the court must give instructions applicable to both theories upon request. Zelavin v. Tonopah Belmont, 39 Nev. 2; 149 P. 188.

The parties having different theories of the case, and there being evidence tending to support each, instructions should be given on both. Crosman v. Southern Pacific Co., 42 Nev. 92; 173 P. 223.

(C) FORM, REQUISITES AND SUFFICIENCY

17. Form and language.

The practice of capitalizing a portion of an instruction should not be indulged in. Week v. Reno Traction Co., 38 Nev. 286; 149 P. 65.

18. Confused or misleading instructions.

The giving of an instruction, although embodying a correct rule of law, is reversible error, where it has a tendency to mislead the jury. Zelavin v. Tonopah Belmont, 39 Nev. 1; 149 P. 188.

A requested instruction, which is misleading, is properly refused. Zelavin v. Tonopah Belmont, 39 Nev. 2; 149 P. 188.

(D) APPLICABILITY TO PLEADINGS AND EVIDENCE

19. Application of instructions to case—Pleadings and issues.

In an action for injuries to a servant while making certain alterations in a building, by being shocked by a high voltage electric wire from which the insulation had been removed, certain instructions given held applicable to the issues. Cutler v. Pittsburg Silver Peak, 34 Nev. 46; 116 P. 418.

20. Application of instructions to case—Facts and evidence.

The giving of an instruction not applicable to the evidence is erroneous, though abstractly correct. Week v. Reno Traction Co., 38 Nev. 286; 149 P. 65.

Where the plaintiffs contended that the defendant railroad company had converted a building which they had constructed on its right of way with the permission of the company's station agent and section foreman, an instruction that in such case the company was estopped to claim the building if the agents had a reasonably general control of its affairs at that point was not warranted, where there was no testimony that such agents exercised a reasonably general control. Mirodilas v. S. P. Co., 38 Nev. 119; 145 P. 912.

The speed of defendant street-railroad company's car after it struck and injured plaintiff's automobile was a matter immaterial to the issues, in an action for injuries sustained by such automobile in collision, where it threw no light on what preceded, and an instruction touching it was properly stricken; the matter being improper for instruction except to the effect that it be disregarded. Week v. Reno Traction Co., 38 Nev. 287; 149 P. 65.

In a miner's action for injuries by a falling rock, an instruction upon the fellow-servant doctrine is erroneous, where there is no evidence to support it. Zelavin v. Tonopah Belmont, 39 Nev. 2; 149 P. 188.

21. Instructions excluding or ignoring issues, defenses, or evidence.

An instruction which takes from the consideration of the jury defendant's theory of the case is erroneous. Id.

In an action for restitution of real property, in which the defendant alleged that he was the plaintiff's husband and that the property was community property, an instruction that, as the relationship existing between the parties in another state prior to their taking up their abode in Nevada was illicit and meretricious, that relationship must be by the jury presumed to continue illicit and meretricious throughout all the time plaintiff and defendant continued to live together, unless by a preponderance of proof a valid marriage contract was actually made and actually entered into between the parties within Nevada, was erroneous, as taking all force and effect from evidence in the case tending to establish a marital relation between the parties during their residence in Nevada. Parker v. De Bernardi, 40 Nev. 361; 164 P. 645.

(E) REQUESTS OR PRAYERS

22. Necessity.

Since the defense of contributory negligence may be abandoned at any time during the trial, it is not obligatory upon the court to give instructions thereon, in absence of request. Zelavin v. Tonopah Belmont, 39 Nev. 2; 149 P. 188.

If a defendant in a personal injury action desired an instruction on the question of contributory negligence, he must request it. Id.

23. Instructions already given.

It was not error to refuse an instruction, the subject-matter of which was covered by an instruction given. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry. Co., 36 Nev. 188; 135 P. 141.

24. Modification or substitution by court.

It is better practice to rewrite an instruction when modifying it than to strike out a portion with a pen, leaving it in such condition as to be easily read. Weck v. Reno Traction Co., 38 Nev. 286; 149 P. 65.

(F) OBJECTIONS AND EXCEPTIONS

25. Sufficiency and scope of objections or exceptions to instructions given—General or specific.

Where an objection and exception were taken to an instruction a portion only of which was abstract, but did not point out that such portion was not based on evidence, error could not be predicated on the giving of the charge, for only where a charge is erroneous as a whole or asserts but a single proposition is a general exception available. Id.

(G) CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION

26. Construction and effect of charge as a whole.

All instructions should be read in the light of each other and considered in their entirety, when determining whether a portion of the instructions is erroneous, or, by reason of a conflict, or otherwise, is calculated to mislead the jury; and where separate instructions are sound in law, even though they may not be as complete as they might have been, but if read together they are consistent and state correct principles of law, and are not calculated to deceive, they will not be reversible error. Cutler v. Pittsburg Silver Peak, 34 Nev. 46; 116 P. 418.

27. Error in instructions cured by withdrawal or giving other instructions.

An instruction that the jury were at liberty to and should take into consideration all of the facts and circumstances surrounding the testimony of the witnesses in determining the weight, credit, and value to be given such testimony, that if their statements were contradicted by other witnesses the jury should give their testimony only such credit as they might believe it was entitled to under all the circumstances detailed in evidence, and that if they believed that any witness had wilfully sworn falsely to any material fact they might disregard the whole or any part of such witness's testimony, "except in so far as the same is corroborated by some other credible witness or witnesses," was not erroneous, notwithstanding the failure of the quoted portion to take into account circumstantial evidence, or the circumstantial features of the case; the first part of the instruction having taken these elements into consideration. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 187; 135 P. 141.

An instruction that the refusal of the agents of a carrier to honor a ticket properly issued renders the company liable, even though the agent was honestly mistaken concerning its validity, is not erroneous as authorizing a recovery of exemplary damages for such an honest mistake, even though the court had ruled that under the testimony exemplary damages might be recovered, where the jury was also instructed that if the ejection of a passenger was in good faith and without malice or unnecessary force on the part of the railroad servants, the company was not liable beyond the actual damage. Forrester v. S. P. Co., 36 Nev. 249; 134 P. 753; 48 L. R. A. (N.S.) 1.

An instruction that an assurance by an employer that a danger would be remedied removed all ground for the argument that the employee by continuing in the employment engaged to assume the risk, was cured by other instructions that under such conditions the employee might continue in the service without assuming the risk, provided the danger was not of so imminent a character that a person of ordinary prudence would refuse to continue in the service, and that, where an employer had expressly promised to repair a defect, the employee could recover for an injury occurring by reason thereof, within such period of time after the promise as it would be reasonable to allow for its performance. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 185; 135 P. 141.

Where, in an action for injuries to a servant, the court had specifically referred to the elements of negligence and charged that the jury must find such elements to have existed, and that such negligence was the proximate cause of the injury, before they could return a verdict against defendants, defendants could not complain that another instruction was erroneous, as assuming that plaintiff had been damaged. Cutler v. Pittsburg Silver Peak, 34 Nev. 46; 116 P. 418.

IX. VERDICT

(B) SPECIAL INTERROGATORIES AND FINDINGS

28. Failure to answer interrogatories or make findings.

Under Rev. Laws, 5222, providing that where a special finding of facts is inconsistent with the general verdict the former controls, and the court must give judgment accordingly, if a finding in defendant's favor on special interrogatories would not be inconsistent with a general verdict for plaintiff, a failure to find at all on such interrogatories cannot control such general verdict. Weck v. Reno Traction Co., 38 Nev. 287; 149 P. 65.

29. Findings—Inconsistency with verdict.

The inconsistency between special findings and the general verdict which, under Stats. 1915, c. 92, makes the former controlling, must be irreconcilable; one that no reasonable hypothesis or inference under the pleadings can remove. Crosman v. Southern Pacific Co., 42 Nev. 92; 173 P. 223.

X. TRIAL BY COURT

(A) HEARING AND DETERMINATION OF CAUSE

30. Power and duty of court.

When an indisputable fact appears upon a hearing in any case that makes necessary or proper the making of a certain order or the imposing of a certain condition, the court has the discretion to make the order or impose the condition at once without waiting for counsel to conclude. Boyce v. Third Chance M. Co., 36 Nev. 53; 133 P. 397.

(B) FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

31. Preparation and form.

Though a party is entitled to specific findings regarding material issues on which a judgment is based, if he prepares and submits them to the court with a request therefor, the court is not required to draw them. Thompson v. Tonopah L. Co., 37 Nev. 183; 141 P. 69.

32. Sufficiency.

On the issue whether a claimant to mining claims had performed the necessary discovery work, the findings and opinion of the trial court showing facts on which the court could determine whether the discovery work was sufficient were sufficient statements of fact. Murray v. Osborne, 33 Nev. 267; 111 P. 31.

2. Assertion of ownership or control.
3. Detention of property—Demand and refusal.

II. ACTIONS.

(B) Jurisdiction, Parties, Preliminary Proceedings, and Pleading.

4. Issues, proof and variance.

(D) Damages.

5. Value of property—Measure of damages.
6. Value of property—Property of fluctuating value.
7. Value of property—Title deeds and other documents.

I. ACTS CONSTITUTING CONVERSION AND LIABILITY THEREFOR

1. Nature and elements.

As a general rule, it is a conversion to receive property from one wrongfully in possession, and thereafter to exercise control of it against the wish of the person entitled. Dixon v. Southern Pacific Co., 42 Nev. 73; 172 P. 368; 177 P. 14.

2. Assertion of ownership or control.

Where a corporation's refusal to issue new stock certificates in smaller denominations for old certificates presented by a shareholder for that purpose is based upon its wrongful assertion of ownership of the stock, the corporation is liable to the shareholder for conversion of the stock. Robinson M. Co. v. Riepe, 40 Nev. 121; 161 P. 304.

3. Detention of property—Demand and refusal.

Where the secretary of a corporation refused to register a transfer of stock when presented by the transferee, no formal demand was necessary before bringing an action for conversion since the refusal was an assertion of ownership by the corporation. Robinson M. Co. v. Riepe, 37 Nev. 27; 138 P. 910.

II. ACTIONS

(B) JURISDICTION, PARTIES, PRELIMINARY PROCEEDINGS, AND PLEADING

4. Issues, proof and variance.

In an action against a corporation for conversion of stock in refusing to register its transfer on its books, it was not necessary that the proof should be in strict conformity with the averment as to the date of conversion. Id.

(D) DAMAGES

5. Value of property—Measure of damages.

The measure of damages for a conversion of property is its value at the time of the conversion, with legal interest from the date to that of rendering judgment, though special and exemplary damages may be allowed in certain cases. Dixon v. Southern Pacific Co., 42 Nev. 73; 172 P. 368; 177 P. 14.

6. Value of property—Property of fluctuating value.

In an action against a corporation for the conversion of stock in refusing to register its transfer on its books, the measure of damages was the value of the stock at the date of conversion, with legal interest from the conversion to judgment. Robinson M. Co. v. Riepe, 37 Nev. 27; 138 P. 910.

7. Value of property—Title deeds and other documents.

In a suit to compel an alleged trustee to account for the value of corporate stock alleged to have been converted by him, plaintiff's measure of damages was the market value of the stock at the time of the conversion, and evidence of its value at a subsequent time, more than two years thereafter, was inadmissible and insufficient on which to predicate judgment. Torp v. Clemons, 37 Nev. 474; 142 P. 1115.

I. CREATION, EXISTENCE, AND VALIDITY(B) RESULTING TRUSTS

1. Evidence to establish trust—Weight and sufficiency.

In a suit to establish a resulting trust in corporate stock, evidence held insufficient to sustain a finding that the trust existed as to more than fifty shares of stock. Torp v. Clemons, 37 Nev. 474; 142 P. 1115.

(C) CONSTRUCTIVE TRUSTS

2. Statute of frauds and statutes prohibiting parol trusts.

Where an implied trust is effectuated by breach of contract, contract on which it was based, notwithstanding it was made for the purpose of acquiring an estate or interest in land, need not be in writing. Miller v. Walser, 42 Nev. 499; 181 P. 437.

3. Contracts and transactions between persons in confidential relations.

Where several persons entered into an agreement to acquire mining property in equal interests, one party to contribute experience and service in inspecting the mining property, a corporation to be formed if he approved the mining property, and the person inspecting the property, in violation of his agreement, withheld from the one agreeing to furnish the money the fact that property was of great value, appropriating the interest of such person by advancing the purchase price himself, an implied trust resulted as effectually as if the absent member had actually furnished the consideration to purchase the property. Miller v. Walser, 42 Nev. 498; 181 P. 437.

II. CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION(B) ESTATE OR INTEREST OF TRUSTEE AND OF CESTUI QUE TRUST*4. Adverse possession of trustee.

Where though plaintiff, at the time she accepted a deed from a trustee which did not include land to which she believed herself entitled under the terms of the trust, was the trustee's wife, she procured a divorce about one year later, she could not thereafter assert that she was under the trustee's influence to defeat his claim of title by adverse possession. Boydston v. Jacobs, 38 Nev. 176; 147 P. 447.

VII. ESTABLISHMENT AND ENFORCEMENT OF TRUST(B) RIGHT TO FOLLOW TRUST PROPERTY OR PROCEEDS THEREOF*5. Trust property transferred to third persons.

Where a wife died, leaving her husband and several children as heirs of her separate estate, and these children, in order to enable their father to make advantageous terms with one holding an incumbrance on the property, deeded their interest to him, with the understanding that he should then reconvey it, the father held the various shares in trust for the children, and his conveyance of the entire estate to part of his children, excluding others, will not defeat the rights of those excluded; for, having knowledge of the arrangements, the grantees take no greater title than their grantor, and hold the share of the excluded children in trust. *Winters v. II. CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION OF CONTRACT1. Options.

An option contract must so describe the property that it can be identified from the instrument itself, although parol evidence is admissible to show the description's application. De Remer v. Anderson, 41 Nev. 287; 169 P. 737.

III. MODIFICATION OR RESCISSION OF CONTRACT(D) PAYMENT OF PURCHASE MONEY*2. Excuses for default or delay.

Where a contract for the sale of an interest in real and personal property provided that, if the title to any part thereof not conveyed by quit-claim deed should be found defective, the vendors should perfect the same as soon as possible, and that all payments thereafter to be made as well as the delivery of certain stock should be delayed until such titles were perfected, the vendee was excused from a failure to tender the purchase price, etc., by the fact that there was an apparent defect in the title to certain mining claims comprising a part of the property due to a failure to perform or failure to furnish proof of performance of the annual labor on the claims required by law. English v. Mound House Plaster Co., 192 F. 717.

V. RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF PARTIES(B) AS TO THIRD PERSONS*3. Assignees of contracts or bond for title.

Where land was sold under contract providing that the agreement should bind the successors, heirs, and assigns of the parties, an assignee of the purchasers, who was not a party to the contract and did not execute, sign, or receive it, was not liable to the vendor for the unpaid balance of the price, since the promise of a purchaser of land to pay therefor cannot be enforced against his assignee, either in an action for specific performance or for damages, in the absence of agreement to that effect by the assignee. Southern Pacific Co. v. Butterfield, 39 Nev. 177; 154 P. 932.

VI. REMEDIES OF VENDOR(A) LIEN AND RECOVERY OF LAND*4. Creation of lien.

While a vendor ordinarily has a lien on the land for the unpaid purchase money, his right to hold and maintain such lien must be determined from the nature of the transaction, the circumstances surrounding the conveyance, and the intention of the parties at the time of making the contract, for the right of a vendor cannot be determined by subsequent acts of either party. Jensen v. Wilslef, 36 Nev. 37; 132 P. 16; Ann. Cas. 1914D, 1220.

5. Waiver, loss or discharge of lien.

It requires no express waiver on the part of a vendor to destroy his vendor's lien for the unpaid purchase price; the law presuming a waiver whenever the vendor accepts any independent security. Id.

Though vendor ordinarily has a lien for unpaid purchase price, such lien cannot be claimed where vendor has accepted other security for payment of the price, such as a promissory note or a mortgage. Id.

Where a vendor of land accepted a certificate of deposit in payment of the purchase price, or at least as security for that portion of the purchase money indicated by the face of the certificate of deposit, and there was nothing to show that the vendor was imposed upon by artifice or trick, his right to a vendor's lien was waived. Id.

(B) ACTIONS FOR PURCHASE MONEY6. Right of action.

Under Rev. Laws, 5501, limiting the remedy of a mortgagee to an action in foreclosure where plaintiff, by executory contract, agreed to sell land, retaining title and reserving the right to maintain a suit for the foreclosure of the agreement and any equity of redemption of the purchasers, although, pursuant to the contract, the purchasers went into possession, plaintiff could recover in a personal action for the unpaid balance of the purchase price, not being restricted to an action for foreclosure, as it was not a mortgagee, because a mortgagor holds legal title, and a mortgagee only an equitable lien. Southern Pacific Co. v. Miller, 39 Nev. 169; 154 P. 929.

7. Conditions precedent.

In an action by the agreed vendor of realty for the unpaid balance of the price, the averment in the complaint that plaintiff was and had been ready to convey, as agreed, upon performance of the contract by defendants, with an offer to deliver conveyance into court, was a sufficient tender. Id.

8. Defenses.

A vendee who is the real purchaser is liable for the purchase price, even though he directs that the title be transferred to another. Jensen v. Wilslef, 36 Nev. 38; 132 P. 16; Ann. Cas. 1914D, 1220.

I. APPROPRIATION OF RIGHTS IN PUBLIC LANDS1. Constitutional and statutory provisions.

Due process of law is not limited to judicial proceedings, but also comprehends determinations by administrative officers or boards, where notice and hearing are provided. Ormsby County v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 314; 142 P. 803.

The provisions generally of sections 18 to 51, inclusive, of the water law of 1913, considered for purposes of administration, are not violative of article 3 of the state constitution, dividing the state government into three coordinate departments. Ormsby County v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 315; 142 P. 803.

The provisions of sections 18 to 51, inclusive, are not violative of section 6 of article 6 of the constitution, fixing the appellate and original jurisdiction of district courts, in that the determinations made by the state engineer of the relative rights of water users are not made in "cases in equity" or "cases at law," as those terms are used in said section. Id.

Questions presented in certain of the provisions of sections 18 to 51, inclusive, such as whether the determinations made by the state engineer have any force other than as being controlling for purposes of the administration of the law, until modified, suspended, or set aside by some order or decree of the court, or whether the methods prescribed for appeal from the decisions of the state engineer in cases of contest are valid, are unnecessary to be determined in this case, and will not be considered under the rule that constitutional questions not essential to a determination of the case will not usually be determined. Id.

The state, within its police power, may regulate the distribution of the waters of the state. The state is not only interested in protecting prior appropriators in their rights, but is also interested in the conservation of the waters to the end that the greatest possible amount of land may be brought under cultivation through an economical diversion and use of such waters. To accomplish this object the state has a right to exercise a superintending control. Ormsby County v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 316; 142 P. 803.

Assuming the establishment of the relative rights of water users on a stream-system, no constitutional right is infringed by a system of state control such as is provided in sections 52 to 56 of the water law of 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 140). Ormsby County v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 314; 142 P. 803.

The constitutionality of sections 18 to 51 of the act of 1913, providing a method of determining the relative rights of water users upon a stream-system by the state engineer, should be viewed with reference to the purpose designed to be accomplished in sections 52 to 56 of said act, which latter sections are clearly administrative in character. Id.

The provisions of sections 18 to 51, inclusive, do not contemplate the deprivation of property without due process of law; they contemplate the securing to water users their rights, not the taking of the same away. For purposes of administration the enjoyment of such rights may be affected, but only after notice and hearing, and the right to adjudication by the courts is not taken away. Id.

It is not an unlawful interference with the vested rights of water appropriators to so control those rights that each may have what belongs to him, but that he may not voluntarily interfere with the rights of others. Ormsby County v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 316; 142 P. 803.

The state, in the exercise of its police power to prescribe laws for the general welfare, may provide for inspection, regulation, and exercise a superintending control over the waters and watercourses of the state, and Stats. 1913, c. 140, known as the water act, and giving the state engineer the right to institute proceedings to determine the rights of the owners and persons controlling water rights in the state, if construed as administrative only and not to impair vested rights, is valid. Ormsby County v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 314; 142 P. 803.

It was the purpose of the legislature, particularly emphasized by section 84 of the water law of 1913, to recognize appropriations made under former laws or legislative acts and to keep those appropriations free from being affected or impaired by anything contained in the water law of 1913. Ormsby County v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 317; 142 P. 803.

2. Waters open to appropriation.

Where the waters of a spring flow in a natural watercourse, they are the subject of a beneficial appropriation. Campbell v. Goldfield W. Co., 36 Nev. 458; 136 P. 976.

3. Effect of appropriation as against subsequent grants, entries and patents.

The location of a mining claim on land in which a spring arose will give the locator no claim to the water flowing from the spring in a natural channel, as against an appropriator; for a title to such flow can only be acquired by appropriation and application to a beneficial use. Id.

4. Nature and extent of rights—Rights of way and other interests in lands.

The federal government, having passed title to plaintiff to a right of way for a canal by statute, could convey no title thereto when it conveyed title to a mill site; and the patentee of the land embraced in the mill site took title subject to the right of way for the canal, and the purchaser of the mill site acquired no greater right. Sheehan v. Kasper, 41 Nev. 27; 165 P. 632.

5. Change in place, manner, or purpose of diversion or use.

One having no right to the waters of a spring which flow in a natural watercourse cannot object that a prior appropriator has changed his use of the stream. Campbell v. Goldfield W. Co., 36 Nev. 458; 136 P. 976.

VI. APPROPRIATION AND PRESCRIPTION

6. Appropriation and prescription in general.

There is no absolute property in the waters of a natural stream, and the only right one may acquire thereto is by diverting the waters for a usufructuary purpose, and a water right, to be available, must be attached to the land and become in a sense appurtenant thereto by actual application. Prosole v. Steamboat Canal Co., 37 Nev. 154; 140 P. 720; 144 P. 744.

7. Constitutional and statutory provisions.

Stats. 1913, c. 140, making water for beneficial purposes appurtenant to the place of use, unless it becomes impracticable to beneficially use water at the place, in which case the right may be severed and transferred, and become appurtenant to another place, does not affect the rights acquired by one obtaining, for several years prior to the act, water for irrigation from a water company engaged in selling water for irrigation. Id.

Water law (Stats. 1913, c. 140), sec. 33, as amended by Stats. 1915, c. 253, sec. 3, providing that from and after the filing of the state engineer's order of determination with the clerk of the district court, and during the hearing thereon, the waters of the stream in question may be distributed as indicated in the order of determination, unless a stay bond be given, is not unconstitutional. Vineyard L. & S. Co. v. District Court, 42 Nev. 3; 171 P. 166.

The appropriation for use of water from a stream, although the rights acquired thereby are recognized by both federal and state governments, is subject to regulation and control by the state, which in the exercise of its police power may provide efficient regulations covering the distribution and use of such water. Bergman v. Kearney, 241 F. 884.

8. Waters and rights subject to appropriation.

Surplus or waste waters while on land of an individual are not subject to appropriation by others, and they cannot go on the land of the individual and cut and interfere with ditches thereof and divert the waters without becoming trespassers. Bidleman v. Short, 38 Nev. 467; 150 P. 834.

9. Proceedings to effect and character and elements of appropriation.

One who obtains water for irrigation from a water company, diverting water from a stream into an artificial waterway for sale, is an appropriator of water within the rule that a prior appropriation is a prior right, and the company is but his agent, and the right of user is equivalent to an easement in the artificial way of the company to the extent of the amount of water delivered by the company, which right is contingent only on the acts of the actual appropriator in paying a reasonable compensation for the water obtained. Prosole v. Steamboat Canal Co., 37 Nev. 154; 140 P. 720; 144 P. 744.

Where, before the adoption of the present statute, an appropriator of waters of a creek constructed dams in the creek within his lands and constructed ditches and irrigated his lands and raised crops by irrigation, and removed a portion of an existing dam above his lands so as to let a part of the water continue in its regular course down the creek, his acts were a sufficient appropriation. Doherty v. Pratt, 34 Nev. 343; 124 P. 574.

10. Excessive appropriation and use.

Where an appropriator of water for irrigation removed a portion of a dam constructed upon public land by a prior appropriator in such a manner as to divert the entire stream, and by such removal allowed a portion of the stream to continue in its natural course, his act was not a trespass and did not render his appropriation invalid; the rights of the owners of the dam being commensurate with their rights to the water, and they having no right to divert the entire stream to the injury of a subsequent appropriator, especially where they did not economically use all the water appropriated. Id.

11. Nature and extent of rights acquired.

The right of an actual appropriator of water for beneficial use, whether he obtains the water by diverting it from a natural watercourse or by purchase from a water company, is a part of the freehold. Prosole v. Steamboat Canal Co., 37 Nev. 154; 140 P. 720; 144 P. 744.

A company owning and operating an artificial waterway and diverting water from a natural stream solely for gain by the sale of water to others, who actually apply it for irrigation, acquires no right to the water except the right to dispose of it for a reasonable compensation, and when water is once disposed of to a landowner applying the water for irrigation the control of the company over the water terminates. Id.

12. Nature and extent of rights acquired—Quantity of water.

Where a prior appropriator of water for irrigation was entitled to a certain amount at the point where it entered his land, the amount to which he was entitled at the point of diversion was such as by a reasonable and economical method of diversion would supply him at his land with the amount to which he was there entitled. Doherty v. Pratt, 34 Nev. 343; 124 P. 574.

A prior appropriator of water for irrigation did not employ a reasonable and economical method of diverting it where he permitted two-thirds of the water diverted to become lost in a swamp without any good excuse therefor. Id.

13. Actions to determine, establish and protect rights.

Rev. Laws, 4677, and the water law (Stats. 1913, c. 140), provide that in all measurements of water a cubic foot of water per second of time shall be the standard of measurement. Plaintiff sued the defendant to have it adjudged that he was the owner of three-eighths of the water of a creek, and the court so decreed and enjoined defendant from diverting such three-eighths of the water or any part thereof from the stream. Held, that the decree was too uncertain as to the quantity of water to which plaintiff was entitled, but should use the standard of measurement described by the statute or some measurement readily translatable therein. Ramelli v. Sorgl, 38 Nev. 552; 149 P. 71.

In an action to have it adjudged that plaintiff was the owner of three-eighths of the water of such stream, it being an admitted fact from the pleadings that he and defendant had rights to certain of the water, equal in time, the court should have determined the rights of both parties, and should have specifically designated some point on the stream where plaintiff's rights might be measured. Id.

The predecessors of plaintiff and defendant and a third person appropriated water from a stream for irrigation purposes, the appropriation purporting to include all the waters of the stream. By a partition deed, the other parties conveyed to plaintiff's predecessor three-eighths of the water of such stream. Held, that in an action to determine plaintiff's rights, though the deed had some evidentiary value, it was not conclusive as to the quantum of such right, as the right to water in a natural stream must rest on proof of actual appropriation and application to a beneficial use, and a description of a water right in a deed is not ordinarily conclusive. Id.

In an action to determine water rights, where defendant's answer set up at least one allegation, which, uncontroverted and to be taken as true, established priority of appropriation in favor of defendant, plaintiff failing to establish the allegations of his complaint, the court properly dismissed the action on defendant's motion. Bernard v. Metropolis L. Co., 40 Nev. 89; 160 P. 811.

VII. CONVEYANCES AND CONTRACTS

14. Conveyances of land.

Where a firm was in open and notorious possession and enjoyment of a ditch and power line for three or four years before defendant, who had lived in the vicinity of the property off and on for ten years, and continuously for one year, bought a mill site through which the right of way for the ditch passed, the firm's possession was sufficient to put defendant on notice. Sheehan v. Kasper, 41 Nev. 28; 165 P. 632.

15. Contracts.

Defendant, who made oral contract giving plaintiff's predecessor of title right to use overflow waters in consideration of his permitting overflow on his land, could not, after forty years of such use and expenditure of money in development of orchards, etc., cut off the water during irrigation season without becoming liable for consequent damages. Bright v. Virginia and Gold Hill Water Co., 234 F. 839; 148 C. C. A. 437.

16. Remedies of parties.

Complaint alleging oral contract of plaintiff's predecessor in title to permit overflow of irrigation waters in consideration of right to use such waters, acted upon for over forty years by expenditure of money in orchards, etc., and breach thereof by defendant who cut off the overflow when such waters were not needed elsewhere, is good as against demurrer, being based on cutting off overflow and not failure to divert waters so as to create an overflow. Id.

VIII. ARTIFICIAL PONDS, RESERVOIRS, CHANNELS AND DAMS

17. Injuries by flowage.

Where the dam of other parties in conjunction with that of defendants caused the overflow of plaintiff's ranch, defendants were not liable for the whole damage, since, when two or more parties act each for himself introducing the result complained of, they cannot be held liable for the acts of each other. McLeod v. Miller & Lux, 40 Nev. 447; 153 P. 566; 167 P. 27.

18. Actions for injuries—Injunction.

A subsequent appropriator should not interfere with the dam of a prior appropriator unless such interference is reasonably necessary, and then it should not injure the rights of the prior appropriator. Doherty v. Pratt, 34 Nev. 343; 124 P. 574.

To entitle plaintiffs to judgment restraining defendant from destroying a canal, ditch and power line, the canal must have had a valid existence, must have been owned by plaintiffs, who must have acquired a license to construct, maintain, and operate the branch ditch and power line irrevocable at defendant's will, and defendant must have been threatening to fill in and destroy the ditch and power line. Sheehan v. Kasper, 41 Nev. 27; 165 P. 632.

In suit to restrain the defendant from destroying a canal, ditch, and power line, where the superintendent of the exploration company from which plaintiffs claimed a license to construct the ditch and power line knew of the construction from the beginning of operations, and no protest was made, the court will presume that plaintiffs had a license from the exploration company. Id.

19. Actions for injuries—Proceedings and review.

In an action for injury to plaintiff's ranch caused by an overflow from defendant's dam, it was error to allow testimony of a mere prophecy made by a third person to the witness several years before the action that the dam if constructed higher would ruin plaintiff's land. McLeod v. Miller & Lux, 40 Nev. 447; 153 P. 566; 167 P. 27.

IX. PUBLIC WATER SUPPLY

(A) DOMESTIC AND MUNICIPAL PURPOSES

20. Water rents and other charges.

A provision in the franchise company that free water should be supplied a county courthouse, and that the water company might furnish water for municipal and irrigation purposes and charge rental therefor, did not obligate the water company to furnish free water for use in sprinkling the courthouse grounds. Ely Water Co. v. White Pine County, 38 Nev. 472; 151 P. 335; L. R. A. 1916D, 431.

The franchise of a water company provided that it should furnish free water for the use of a courthouse and certain other public buildings, and also that it might furnish water for municipal and irrigation purposes and charge rental therefor. The county authorities used the water furnished by the water company to sprinkle the courthouse grounds, but refused to pay therefor, on the ground that the franchise failed to fix an applicable rate. The rate charged for water for sprinkling purposes in the city was based upon lots as laid out on the official town plat, but the courthouse grounds were not so laid out. Held, that the water company was entitled to recover from the city the fair value of the water furnished. Id.

Evidence considered, and held insufficient to warrant a finding that rates fixed by a state commission to be charged by a water company were confiscating in advance of an actual test. Goldfield Con. Water Co. v. Public Service Comm., 236 F. 980.

Unless in exceptional cases, depreciation in value of the property of a water company already accrued should not be charged upon future consumers. Id.

What a water company is entitled to demand in order that it may have a just compensation is a fair return upon the reasonable value of the property at the time it is being used for the public service, provided no more is exacted than its services are reasonably worth. Goldfield Con. Water Co. v. Public Service Comm., 236 F. 979.

The original cost of the plant of a water company, the value fixed for taxation, the aggregate value of the company's issued bonds and capital stock, and the amount honestly and prudently invested, cannot any one of them alone be regarded as invariably or necessarily equivalent to present value for rate-fixing purposes; the fact that the plant is in operation and circumstances and conditions which indicate the future increase, diminution, or entire loss of its business are also factors to be considered. Id.

(B) IRRIGATION AND OTHER AGRICULTURAL PURPOSES

21. Nature and extent of right to water.

An owner of land on which surplus or waste waters exist is the owner of the waters, and may consent to others acquiring rights therein on his property and in ditches thereon to convey the waters to the lands of the others. Bidleman v. Short, 38 Nev. 467; 150 P. 834.

22. Actions to establish and protect water rights.

Injunction will lie to restrain the state engineer and a district water commissioner from unjustly and unreasonably depriving appropriators of water for irrigating their lands; no redress being afforded the appropriators by the water law of 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 140), inasmuch as the district court cannot take cognizance of the proceedings of the state engineer by way of appeal as therein prescribed, since the constitution restricts the appellate jurisdiction of such court to cases appealed from justice courts and municipal tribunals. Knox v. Kearney, 37 Nev. 393; 142 P. 526.

Evidence in an action to enjoin defendant's use of a ditch to conduct water to his ranch, in which defendant claimed an irrevocable license to use the ditch, held to justify a judgment for the plaintiff. Gault v. Grose, 39 Nev. 274; 155 P. 1098.

23. Sale of water and supply and use for irrigation.

Where a consumer of water for irrigation obtained the water from a company engaged in the business of diverting water from a natural stream and delivering the same to lands by means of a canal for a valuable consideration, and the company delivered to the consumer annually for several years a specified quantity of water, all used to irrigate the land of the consumer, who improved his property on the faith that the company would continue to deliver water, he obtained an implied contract to obtain water from the company for a reasonable compensation. Prosolo v. Steamboat Canal Co., 37 Nev. 154; 140 P. 720; 144 P. 744.

Whether or not the appellant, as owner of the canal, has a property interest in the right to furnish water, is not an issue in the case at bar, and observations made in the opinion are not to be considered decisive of this question. Id.

24. Injuries incident to supply or use.

Where several parties, acting independently, contribute to the injury, the party injured may proceed severally against the parties contributing to the injury. Ramelli v. Sorgl, 38 Nev. 552; 149 P. 71.

The fact that waste water from defendant's lands flowed without interruption across the lands of a third party, would not affect the right of plaintiff to enjoin defendant from flowing such waste water upon plaintiff's lands. Id.

25. Injuries incident to supply or use—Overflow or leakage.

The injury to plaintiff's premises from water being from percolation near the surface, regardless of defendant's irrigation ditch, and from overflow caused by plaintiff decreasing the size of the ditch and lowering its banks, defendant is not liable. Malmstrom v. People's D. Co., 37 Nev. 469; 143 P. 238.

26. Injuries incident to supply or use—Actions.

In a suit for partial loss of growing crops alleged to have been occasioned by defendant's refusal to deliver to plaintiffs the amount of water for irrigation which they claimed, and to establish their rights, evidence held not to establish plaintiffs' contentions as to the amount of water claimed, and to necessitate a reversal of judgment in their favor which awarded damages and provided for an injunction. Pincolini v. Steamboat Canal Co., 41 Nev. 37; 167 P. 314.

Where defendants have gone on the lands of plaintiffs and cut and interfered with ditches thereon and asserted right so to do and to divert surplus or waste waters of plaintiffs and threatened to continue so to do, plaintiffs were entitled to relief by injunction. Bidleman v. Short, 38 Nev. 467; 150 P. 834.

27. Offenses incident to supply or use of water.

The mere opening, breaking into, tapping or connecting with any pipe, flume, ditch, or reservoir does not constitute crime, defined by crimes and punishments act, sec. 468, subd. 1 (Rev. Laws, 6733), the taking or removing therefrom of water belonging to another or allowing the same to be taken being essential element of the crime. In Re Schultz, 42 Nev. 254; 174 P. 431.

See Constitutional Law, 20, 26, 42, 45; Eminent Domain, 1.

1. Statutes—Construction—Exceptions.

The act (Stats. 1903, c. 114) regulating and prohibiting the carrying of concealed weapons declares (section 4) that it shall not apply to peace officers in the discharge of their duties, nor to persons acting or engaged in the business of common carriers in the state, or to persons traveling through the state. Held, that the words "acting or engaged in the business of common carriers" did not limit the exemption to persons engaged "in common carrying," but that the exemption included persons acting or engaged in other business of common carriers than the actual transportation of freight or passengers, such as the guarding of trains, depots, or property of common carriers, and that watchmen employed by a railroad company, though not engaged in train service, were within the exception. Ex Parte Davis, 33 Nev. 309; 110 P. 1131.

III. CONTRACTS TO DEVISE OR BEQUEATH

1. Making, requisites, and validity.

In a suit to specifically enforce a contract that plaintiff who was adopted by testatrix and her husband should inherit whatever property they might die possessed of, evidence held insufficient to show more than the adoption of plaintiff, and not to establish the agreement as to the inheriting of property. Forsyth v. Heward, 41 Nev. 306; 170 P. 21.

IV. REQUISITES AND VALIDITY

(C) EXECUTION

2. Signature or subscription by or for testator.

Under Stats. 1915, c. 35, providing that no will shall be valid unless it be in writing and signed by the testator or by some person in his presence and by his express direction, a signature to a will by having another aid or steady the hand of the testator, at his request, is valid, if the testator possessed testamentary capacity, was acting under no undue influence, and realized the force and effect of the provisions of the will he was signing. In Re Gordon, 40 Nev. 300; 161 P. 717.

V. PROBATE, ESTABLISHMENT, AND ANNULMENT

(H) EVIDENCE

3. Weight and sufficiency.

Evidence in a will contest, held to sustain a finding that, when the testator's aided signature was made, he did not know that the instrument he was signing contained provisions as to the distribution of his estate which he had formerly discussed with the draftsman, or ordered him to prepare. Id.

VI. CONSTRUCTION

(A) GENERAL RULES

4. Intention of testator.

The cardinal rule in the interpretation of wills is to ascertain the intention of the testator. In Re Hartung's Estate, 39 Nev. 200; 155 P. 353.

5. Intention of testator—Situation of testator and circumstances of making of will.

Although the intention of the testator must appear from a perusal of the will, although not necessarily articulated in formal language, the court may take into consideration, in determining such intention, the subject-matter, chief aim of the testator, and all the surrounding circumstances. In Re Hartung, 40 Nev. 263; 160 P. 782; 161 P. 715.

6. Language of instrument—Technical words.

The word "bequeath" is generally used to express a gift of personalty made in a last will, and the word "devise" is a term generally used to express a gift of realty made by will. In Re Estate of Lewis, 39 Nev. 445; 159 P. 961.

(D) DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY

7. Interest, income, or produce of personal property.

Under a will devising the residue of an estate to the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, the income therefrom to be paid over by the executors and trustees annually, if within five years from testator's death the order established a home for orphans in a certain place, to be known by a certain name, with devises of the estate over in the contingency that the order should not accept such condition, it was the testator's intention that the order, if it established such a home within such time, should receive only the income of the estate. In Re Hartung's Estate, 39 Nev. 200; 155 P. 353.

Under such will, in which the devise was unlimited as to time, the rule that a gift of the income of a fund without limit as to time will pass the fund itself did not apply, as it was the testator's intention, in case the order did not build the home, to create an active trust, the trustees to manage the corpus of the trust fund and pay over the proceeds thereof annually to the order as long as it maintained the home. Id.

8. Residuary clause—General residue.

Under such will, the order was not a "residuary legatee," as the term "residuary bequest" means that the residue of an estate is bequeathed to a person absolutely, and as there can be but one "residue" of an estate, meaning what is left after the payment of the debts and general legacies and the satisfaction of other specific gifts. Id.

A residuary bequest contingent in terms generally carries the intermediate income, which is not disposed of, but accumulates. Id.

VII. RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF DEVISEES AND LEGATEES

(C) ADVANCEMENTS, ADEMPION, SATISFACTION AND LAPSE

9. Lapse—Death, disqualification, or failure of devisee or legatee.

Under Rev. Laws, 6219, continued practically in the form in which it was enacted in 1862, providing that when any estate shall be devised to any relative of the testator and the devisee shall die before the testator, leaving lineal descendants, they shall take such estate as the devisee would have taken had he survived the testator, and in view of the specific use of the terms "devises," "legacies," etc., in section 6205, and the specific and correct use of the words "devisee" and "devisor" in section 6220, and in the absence of an interchangeable or indiscriminate use of such terms in the statute, the words "devisee" and "devise" are not to be given the scope of "legatee" and "legacy," and do not comprehend the disposition of personal property; so that, where a will gave and bequeathed the residue of all the property of the testatrix to a relative and her daughter, and the devisee predeceased the testatrix, the daughter was entitled to all the residue of the realty, and to one-half the residue of the personal property, but as to the other half of the residue of the personal property, the testatrix died intestate. In Re Estate of Lewis, 39 Nev. 445; 159 P. 961.

18. Oral statements and examination of impeaching witnesses.
19. Former testimony of witness.

II. COMPETENCY

(A) CAPACITY AND QUALIFICATIONS

1. Husband and wife—Consent of husband or wife to admission of testimony by other.

Under Rev. Laws, 5424, providing that a wife cannot testify for or against her husband "without his consent," a wife was competent to testify for her husband in his action for criminal conversation, where the husband and wife had each consented in open court that the other might testify to anything existing between them having a bearing on the case. Rehling v. Brainard, 38 Nev. 16; 144 P. 167; Ann. Cas. 1917C, 656.

(C) TESTIMONY OF PARTIES OR PERSONS INTERESTED

2. Parties and other persons whose testimony is excluded.

Where one of the parties to a transaction was dead, a witness, who was really an adversary party to decedent, is incompetent to testify. Johnson v. Garner, 233 F. 759.

Under Rev. Laws Nev. 5419, declaring no person shall be allowed to testify when the other party to the transaction is dead, one party to an arrangement with a corporation cannot testify thereto after death of the corporate representative, for such representative was the other party to the transaction. Bright v. Virginia and Gold Hill Water Co., 254 F. 175.

3. Parties as against whom testimony is excluded.

In a suit to declare and enforce a resulting trust as to corporate stock alleged to be held by defendant as trustee for plaintiff's testator, defendant was precluded by Rev. Laws, 5419, from testifying as to any transactions between himself and testator. Torp v. Clemons, 37 Nev. 474; 142 P. 1115.

4. Subject-matter of testimony — Transactions with persons since deceased.

Rev. Laws, 5419, disqualifying a witness to testify to any transactions between himself and a person since deceased, does not disqualify the witness to testify as to matters brought out by opposing witnesses outside the transaction and out of the presence and hearing of the person who had since died. Id.

Under Rev. Laws, 5419, declaring that no person shall be allowed to testify when the other party to the transaction is dead, or when the opposite party to the action or the person for whose immediate benefit the action or proceeding is prosecuted or defended, is the representative of a deceased person when the facts to be proven transpired before the death of such deceased person, testimony of the mother of plaintiff who was adopted by the testatrix and her husband, in a suit against the testatrix's executor to enforce specific performance of alleged contracts by which plaintiff was to inherit any property of which testatrix and her husband might die possessed, it appearing that testatrix's husband conveyed all his property to her, as to matters relative to the alleged agreement transpiring before the death of the testatrix, all of which tended to establish the alleged contract of adoption, is inadmissible. Forsyth v. Heward, 41 Nev. 305; 170 P. 21.

In such case testimony by plaintiff's own father concerning acts and conduct of testatrix and her husband when they went to his house to get plaintiff is also inadmissible under Rev. Laws, 5419; for it would be a mere evasion to allow testimony as to acts when testimony as to transactions with deceased persons is inadmissible. Id.

III. EXAMINATION

(A) TAKING TESTIMONY

5. Questions assuming facts.

The rule that an interrogation assuming the existence of a fact not in evidence is not admissible does not prevent the answering of questions testing the knowledge of general reputation of a character witness by inquiry as to his having heard of specific acts. State v. Sella, 41 Nev. 113; 168 P. 278.

6. Leading questions.

The allowance of leading questions is a matter principally within the discretion of the trial court. Anderson v. Berrum, 36 Nev. 463; 136 P. 973.

7. Use of document, etc., to explain testimony.

In a homicide case, a projectoscope was properly used to illustrate the testimony of experts. State v. Kuhl, 42 Nev. 185; 175 P. 190.

(B) CROSS-EXAMINATION AND REEXAMINATION

8. Scope and extent of cross-examination.

A conductor of defendant who in an action for injury to a passenger from derailment of a train has testified for the carrier that, immediately after the accident, he made an investigation of the railroad bed, cars, etc., and was unable to come to a conclusion as to the cause of the accident, may, to test his knowledge as to how thorough an examination he made, be asked as to whether or not the smoker was more broken or its occupants more frequently injured than in any other cars. Sherman v. S. P. Co., 33 Nev. 385; 111 P. 416; 115 P. 909; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 217.

The cross-examination must be limited to matters stated in the examination in chief and questions to test the accuracy, veracity, and credibility of the witness, though it is, of course, competent to call out anything tending to modify or rebut the conclusion or inference resulting from the facts stated by the witness in his direct examination. Anderson v. Berrum, 36 Nev. 463; 136 P. 973.

The rule limiting the cross-examination to matters stated in the examination in chief does not prevent the cross-examining party from making the witness his own after the adverse party has concluded his case in chief, nor does it prevent the court from allowing a rigid examination if the witness be hostile. Id.

In a personal injury action, wherein one element of plaintiff's damages was inability to work, exclusion of evidence as to the name of a person from whom he borrowed a certain sum of money was erroneous. Zelavin v. Tonopah Belmont, 39 Nev. 1; 149 P. 188.

9. Limitation of cross-examination to subjects of direct examination.

The roadmaster who, in an action against a carrier for injury to a passenger from derailment of a train, had testified for defendant as to the perfect condition of the road, and gone into detail with reference to the amount of work done on the road-bed, the material used, and when the rails were put down, was properly allowed on cross-examination to be asked why it was necessary to put heavier rails down in a certain year, to which he answered that it was on account of the increase of weight of the rolling stock and the loads; plaintiff who contended the improvements had not kept pace with increase of business, having the right, if he could, to shake witness's testimony by cross-examination so long as he confined it to the subject-matter brought out in the direct examination. Sherman v. S. P. Co., 33 Nev. 385; 111 P. 416; 115 P. 1009; Ann. Cas. 1914A, 217.

10. Cross-examination of witness to character of party.

In prosecution for murder, wherein the accused claimed self-defense, witnesses as to character of deceased for peace and quiet were properly cross-examined by questions asking whether they knew certain persons and remembered whether the deceased had assaulted them; the form of the questions being unobjectionable. State v. Sella, 41 Nev. 114; 168 P. 278.

In prosecution for homicide, where defendant introduced evidence of deceased's bad character, and the state introduced witnesses in rebuttal thereof, defendant should have been allowed to cross-examine the witnesses as to the particular facts upon which they based their statement of reputation, and even to inquire whether they had heard of specific brawls in which deceased had engaged. State v. Sella, 41 Nev. 113; 168 P. 278.

11. Redirect examination—Scope and extent.

Where plaintiff was cross-examined as to why, in his former suit, he did not claim as great damage as in the present one, those questions were proper, and will not authorize his attorney on his redirect examination in asking him leading questions suggesting the answer. Anderson v. Berrum, 36 Nev. 463; 136 P. 973.

On a murder trial, where, on cross-examination of a witness who had been previously convicted as joint principal in the crime on a separate trial, the defense asked him whether he had talked with the county officers, including the district attorney, it was a proper exercise of the court's discretion to allow the state on redirect examination to ask the witness whether he had not been informed that no clemency would be extended to him for testifying in the case, since the inference that offers of clemency had been made might have arisen from such previous question by the defense. State v. Tranmer, 39 Nev. 142; 154 P. 80.

(C) PRIVILEGE OF WITNESS

12. Privilege of accused.

Under Rev. Laws, 7451, a person charged with larceny may refuse, on the ground of incrimination, to testify at the trial of an accomplice against whom a separate information has been filed. State v. District Court, 42 Nev. 218; 174 P. 1023.

13. Waiver of privilege.

When accused waives his constitutional privilege not to testify, and becomes a witness for himself, he cannot testify to that part of the transaction favorable to himself and claim his privilege as to the remainder. State v. Urle, 35 Nev. 268; 129 P. 305.

IV. CREDIBILITY, IMPEACHMENT, CONTRADICTION, AND CORROBORATION

(A) IN GENERAL

14. Falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus.

If the jury believe from the evidence that a witness has wilfully sworn falsely as to the material matters, they are at liberty to disregard his entire testimony, except as corroborated by other credible evidence. Zelavin v. Tonopah Belmont, 39 Nev. 2; 149 P. 188.

(B) CHARACTER AND CONDUCT OF WITNESS

15. Particular traits of character or habits.

It may be proper to offer evidence to show that at a particular time a witness was in such an intoxicated state that he could not comprehend what transpired, but it does not follow that a hard drinker is untruthful. State v. Milosovich, 42 Nev. 263; 175 P. 139.

(C) INTEREST AND BIAS OF WITNESS

16. Cross-examination to show interest or bias.

Where accused was charged with killing another with a syphon bottle, it was error to overrule objection to a question asked accused's witness on cross-examination, as to whether another girl had not said that accused "asked us girls not to say anything about the syphon bottle," although asked for purpose of showing bias of the witness, since defendant should have first been connected with such statement. State v. Milosovich, 42 Nev. 264; 175 P. 139.

(D) INCONSISTENT STATEMENTS BY WITNESS

17. Inconsistency of statements as grounds of impeachment.

One accused of crime who takes the stand as a witness cannot be impeached by proof of a confession which would be inadmissible as direct evidence because made while under arrest, and not shown to have been voluntary. State v. Wilson, 39 Nev. 208; 156 P. 929.

18. Oral statements and examination of impeaching witnesses.

If statement on a former occasion was brought home to witness on cross-examination, with elements of impeachment incorporated therein, as to time, place, and party to whom made, which she denied, it was proper for state, on rebuttal, to present party to whom former statement was made, and to propound, after fixing time and place, exact language of witness sought to be impeached. State v. Kuhl, 42 Nev. 185; 175 P. 190.

19. Former testimony of witness.

Where the testimony of a witness at a coroner's inquest was reduced to writing in accordance with Rev. Laws, Nev., sec. 7550, but the record was not read by or to the witness, and was not signed by him, a transcript thereof is not admissible to impeach the testimony of such witness in a subsequent case growing out of the death investigated by the coroner. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Neasham, 250 F. 787; 163 C. C. A. 119.

WORDS OR EXPRESSIONS USED

See Libel and Slander, 6.

WORDS, PHRASES AND DEFINITIONS

Accomplice.

One who feigned participation in a larceny of ore which he was employed to watch, in order to assist in the detection of the accused, was not an "accomplice," so as to make his testimony subject to the rules regarding accomplices' testimony. State v. Smith, 33 Nev. 438.

Where it does not appear that a person knowingly, voluntarily, and with common intent with the alleged principal offender, united in the commission of the crime charged, such person is not an "accomplice." In Re Bowman and Best, 38 Nev. 484.

Acting or Engaged in the Business of Common Carriers.

The act (Stats. 1903, c. 114) regulating and prohibiting the carrying of concealed weapons declares (section 4) that it shall not apply to peace officers in the discharge of their duties nor to persons acting or engaged in the business of common carriers in the state, or to persons traveling through the state. Held, that the words "acting or engaged in the business of common carriers" did not limit the exemption to persons engaged "in common carrying," but that the exemption included persons acting or engaged in other business of common carriers than actual transportation of freight or passengers, such as the guarding of trains, depots or property of common carriers, and that watchmen employed by a railroad company, though not engaged in train service, were within the exception. Ex Parte Davis, 33 Nev. 309.

Actual Bias.

Rev. Laws, 7145, 7146, allow a challenge for cause on the general ground that a juror is disqualified for want of any qualification prescribed by law, and on the particular ground that he is disqualified from serving in the action on trial. Section 7147 allows a challenge for such a state of mind on the part of the juror as leads to a just inference that he will not act with entire impartiality, designated "actual bias." Section 7150 provides that in a challenge for actual bias it must be alleged that the juror is biased against the party challenging him, but that no one shall be disqualified by reason of a formed or expressed opinion on the matter in issue, provided that it appears to the court that he can act impartially in the trial. Held, that a challenge "for actual bias," not stating any ground upon which the challenge rested or any reason on which it was made by the party against whom the jury was biased, was in form insufficient. State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 64.

Adverse User.

To constitute the "adverse user" which is essential to the acquisition of an estate by prescription, it is essential that the possession be by actual, open, and notorious occupation, hostile to the title of the owner of the servient estate, and that it be under an exclusive claim of right, and be continuous and uninterrupted for five years prior to the commencement of the action. Howard v. Wright, 38 Nev. 25.

Agent.

See "Agent or Other Head."

Agent or Other Head.

Comp. Laws, 3124, provides that service of process against a foreign corporation doing business within the state may be made on an agent, cashier, secretary, president, or other head thereof. Section 899 provides that every foreign corporation doing business in the state shall appoint an agent upon whom all legal process may also be served. In an action to enforce a mechanic's lien against a foreign corporation, service was made on its manager, who had not been appointed its agent therefor. Held, that such service was valid under section 3124, which was in force at the passage of section 899, since the manager of a corporation is such an agent or "other head" of a company as is contemplated by the statute; an "agent" being one who has authority to act for another. Daly v. Lahontan Mines Co., 39 Nev. 14.

Aggrieved.

Under the provisions of Rev. Laws, 5327, providing that "any party aggrieved may appeal," etc., the word "aggrieved" refers to a substantial grievance. The imposition of some injustice, or illegal obligation or burden, or the denial of some equitable or legal right, would constitute a grievance in the contemplation of the statute. Esmeralda County v. Wildes, 36 Nev. 526.

Amendment.

The provision of Const. art. 4, sec. 17, that no law shall be revised or amended by reference to its title only, does not render invalid the provision of Stats. 1917, c. 197, that electors in the military service of the United States may vote in accordance with Stats. 1899, c. 94, which was repealed by Stats. 1913, c. 284; revival by title not being prohibited; for an "amendment" is an alteration effecting a change in the draft, or form, or substance, of a law already enacted, or of a bill proposed for enactment, but, when the legislative body attempts to revise, it thereby assumes to make additions or changes or corrections to alter or reform something then in force and effect, and "revision" in a legislative sense applies only to a measure, bill, or law then having existence, life, and force, and cannot, in the nature of things, apply to a nullified or repealed act; and the term "revive," as applied to legislative proceedings, signifies the reconference of validity, force, and effect, at least the reconference of such validity, force, and effect as the revived measure, law, or bill formerly possessed. Maclean v. Brodigan, 41 Nev. 468.

Amount.

Under revenue act of 1915 (Stats. 1915, c. 178), sec. 3, requiring persons disposing of liquor "in less quantities than a quart," in a city, to take out a county license from the sheriff; section 6, requiring persons selling liquor either at retail or wholesale, in addition to other licenses, to take out a state license, section 8, providing for the sheriff, as ex officio collector, issuing and collecting for a retail liquor license to one engaged in selling liquor in quantities less than five gallons, section 9, requiring one selling liquor in quantities in excess of five gallons to take out a wholesale state liquor license, section 10, providing that monthly the sheriff shall pay to the county treasurer "all" money received by him for state liquor licenses, "in like manner and form as is hereinafter provided for the payment of county license moneys," and that in a county having a city therein he shall pay to it one-half of the "amount" of license moneys collected for disposition of liquors in less quantities than a quart, within its limits, half of the amount from state as well as county license for such disposition in quantities less than a quart is to be paid to the city, and the balance only to the county treasurer, so that such half payable to the city is not included in "all moneys received" by the county treasurer for state liquor licenses "in accordance with the provisions of this act," for which section 11 requires him to account to the state treasurer, the word "amount," in section 10, referring to the total of two sums (citing Words and Phrases, Second Series, "Amount"). State v. Hill, 40 Nev. 110.

Answer.

Under Rev. Laws, 5236, providing that, in an action upon contract for the recovery of money or damages only, if no answer has been filed within the time specified in the summons or such further time as may have been granted, the clerk on plaintiff's application shall enter defendant's default and immediately thereafter enter judgment against the defendant, and that the word "answer" as used therein shall include any pleading that raises an issue of law or fact, whether it be by general or special appearance, while the filing of a demurrer is equivalent to the filing of an answer in preventing a default, where a demurrer to the complaint was sustained and a demurrer to an amended complaint was overruled, the demurrers had served their purpose and had no further effect, and upon defendant's failure to answer within the time allowed by the court the clerk could enter judgment by default. Esdén v. May, 36 Nev. 611.

Any Part.

A lease authorizing the lessee to purchase "any part" of certain premises held too indefinite to be aided by parol evidence, and to afford the lessee no defense in a forcible entry and detainer action. De Remer v. Anderson, 41 Nev. 287.

Apex.

Within Rev. Stats. U. S. 2322, giving extralateral rights as to veins the tops or apexes of which are within the surface lines of the located claim, the crest of a vein in the form of anticlinal fold is the apex; a terminal edge not being necessary for an apex. Jim Butler Co. v. West End Co., 39 Nev. 375.

Appropriator.

One who obtains water for irrigation from a water company, diverting water from a stream into an artificial waterway for sale, is an appropriator of water within the rule that a prior appropriation is a prior right, and the company is but his agent, and the right of user is equivalent to an easement in the artificial way of the company to the extent of the amount of water delivered by the company, which right is contingent only on the acts of the actual appropriator in paying a reasonable compensation for the water obtained. Prosser v. Steamboat Canal Co., 37 Nev. 154.

Assault.

In a prosecution for murder, evidence held not to show that defendant made the first assault upon deceased; an "assault" requiring an attempt to carry the intent to assault into execution by an overt act. State v. Huber, 38 Nev. 253.

Rev. Laws, 6412, defines an assault as an unlawful attempt, coupled with the present ability, to commit a violent injury. Section 7050 provides that the indictment must contain a statement of the acts constituting the offense, in ordinary language so that a person of common understanding would know what was intended. Held, that an information, alleging that accused on a certain day, "he, having the ability then and there so to do, did wilfully, unlawfully, and feloniously" assault another, sufficiently alleged present ability. State v. MacKinnon, 41 Nev. 182.

Assent.

An indictment charging the accused with assenting to the receipt of bank deposits was framed under the act of March 13, 1909 (Stats. 1909, c. 92), which by section 1 makes it a crime for a bank officer to receive deposits or to assent to the receipt of deposits when the bank is known to be insolvent, and by section 2 provides that any officer of an incorporated bank, having authority to close the bank or to prevent the receipt of deposits, who shall not exercise such authority when he knows that the bank is insolvent, shall be deemed to have assented to the receipts of deposits. The indictment contained no allegations that the accused had any authority to close the bank, or to prevent the receipt of deposits, or that the accused personally received deposits knowing the bank to be insolvent. Held, that, under section 2, considered with the direct definition of section 1 as to the offense of assenting to the receipt of deposits, the "assent" required by the statute implied permission, and presupposed some inherent power to withhold assent. Ex Parte Smith, 33 Nev. 466.

Assessment Roll.

General revenue act (Rev. Laws, 3623), section 7, provides that the board of county commissioners of each county shall cause to be prepared suitable books for the use of the assessor, in which he shall enter his tax list and assessment roll as thereafter provided, and in that list and roll shall be assessed and included all taxes levied by authority of law for county purposes, the book to contain suitable printed heads and be ruled to conform with the form of the assessment roll as provided by the act. Section 4902 declares that each county in each district in the state shall contribute annually to the fund required to pay the salary of the district judge its proportionate share of the money necessary to pay such salary, based on the assessment roll of each county for the previous year. Held, that the term "assessment roll," as used in section 4902, means the whole roll for the assessment of taxes, including not only the assessment of real and personal property mentioned in Rev. Laws, 3633, but the assessment of the proceeds of mines mentioned in Rev. Laws, 3696, as well. Esmeralda Co. v. Mineral Co., 37 Nev. 180.

Attempt to Commit Crime.

An act done with intent to commit a crime, and tending, but failing, to accomplish it, is an attempt to commit that crime (citing 1 Words and Phrases, "Attempt to Commit Crime"). State v. Huber, 38 Nev. 253.

Belongs To.

See "Held."

Bequeath.

The word "bequeath" is generally used to express a gift of personalty made in a last will, and the word "devise" is a term generally used to express a gift of realty made by will. In Re Estate of Lewis, 39 Nev. 445.

Bovine.

The term "bovine" is taken from the Latin "bos," which means cow or bull. "Neat cattle" are animals belonging to the genus "bos," term not embracing horses, sheep, goats, or swine. "Cattle," as generally used in Western America or the western states, means "neat cattle" straight-backed, domesticated animals of the bovine genus regardless of sex, and is not generally, but may be, taken to mean calves, or animals younger than yearlings. It includes cows, bulls, and steers, but not horses, mares, geldings, colts, mules, jacks, or jennies, goats, hogs, sheep, shoats, or pigs. State v. District Court, 42 Nev. 218.

Business.

A bona-fide social club, which disposes, at its clubhouse, of liquors to members and guests at a fixed charge as an incident to the general purposes of the club, the profit on sales going to pay the general expenses of the organization, is not required to take out a license by Rev. Laws, 3777-3785, approved March 15, 1905, which provides for a license upon the business of disposing of intoxicating liquors; the term "business" in such statute meaning business in the trade or commercial sense. State v. University Club, 35 Nev. 475.

Bite.

See "Slit."

Candidate.

The primary election law (Stats. 1913, c. 282), sec. 8, provides that every candidate for nomination or election to a state office shall, five days before and fifteen days after the election at which he was a candidate, file with the secretary of state a sworn statement setting forth all the moneys contributed by him to aid his nomination or election. Late in the last day for filing nomination papers M. and G. each filed his nomination paper for the Republican nomination for attorney-general and paid the filing fee. On the second day thereafter G. filed with the secretary of state his purported withdrawal from the nomination. About half an hour later M. filed his purported withdrawal, which it was held could not be accepted, because on G.'s withdrawal M. became the Republican nominee by operation of law. Held that, under such circumstance M. was not a candidate for the nomination for the office at a primary election, and his failure to file a statement of his primary election expenses was no objection to his right to have his name printed on the ballot. State v. Brodigan, 37 Nev. 488.

Cases at Law.

The penalty which a city under its charter (Stats. 1915, c. 184; Stats. 1917, c. 76).

may prescribe for violation of an ordinance being such that the offense under the definition of Rev. Laws, 6266, is a misdemeanor, the supreme court has no jurisdiction of appeal from conviction thereof, its appellate jurisdiction in criminal cases being by Const. art. 6, sec. 4, limited to felony, and it being immaterial that the case was transferred from the police court to the district court because the validity of the tax imposed by the ordinance was attacked; "cases at law" in which is involved the legality of a tax, of which the supreme court is given appellate jurisdiction, not including a criminal case. City of Reno v. Dixon, 42 Nev. 67.

Cash Value.

Stats. 1913, c. 134, creating a state tax commission with power to district the state geographically into assessment districts according to relative uniformity of land valuation, and establish minimum acreage valuations for the classes in each district, and that if, in the opinion of the commission, any tract, by reason of special conditions, would be improperly assessed by the application of the classified acreage valuations, the tract may be excluded therefrom and specially appraised, and providing that property shall be assessed at its true full "cash value," defined to mean the valuation in money which an investor in such character of property would be reasonably willing to pay therefor, implies that the commission may fix the valuation lower than the minimum of $1.25 per acre, as fixed by Rev. Laws, 3838, and an owner feeling aggrieved on the ground that the minimum is too high, may appear before the commission and prove that the cash valuation is less than the minimum, and, on the commission so finding, they must make a deduction in the valuation accordingly, and to this extent section 3838 is superseded, but it still applies to county assessors making the original assessment. State v. Tax Commission, 38 Nev. 112.

Cattle.

See "Bovine."

Rev. Laws, 6640 (Crimes and Punishments Act, sec. 375), which defines the stealing of "cattle" as grand larceny, embraces cows, bulls, and steers of the domesticated bovine genus. State v. District Court, 42 Nev. 218.

Under Stats. 1913, c. 209, sec. 4, requiring charge to be clearly set forth, etc., an information, charging theft of "cattle," is not bad, the word "cattle," as used in Rev. Laws, 6440 (Crimes and Punishments Act, sec. 375), embracing cows, bulls, and steers of domesticated bovine genus. Id.

Citizen.

Quo warranto proceeding by the state, on the relation of a city against a foreign corporation, for failure to comply with its franchise, instituted by the attorney-general under Rev. Laws, 5656-5659, 5663, as to quo warranto, held, an action by the state, and not the city, preventing removal for diversity of citizenship; a state not being a citizen. State v. Reno Traction Co., 41 Nev. 405.

Claim Jumping.

The location on ground, knowing it to be excess ground, within the staked boundaries of another claim initiated prior thereto, because law governing manner of making location had not been complied with, so that location covers the workings of the prior locators, is what in mining circles is known as "claim jumping." Nelson v. Smith, 42 Nev. 302.

Contingent Claim.

The obligation of a surety on a guardian's bond, being a subsisting one, is not a "contingent claim" referred to in Rev. Laws, 6057, providing for payment into court of amount that would be payable if the whole were established as absolute. Pruett v. Caddigan, 42 Nev. 329.

Contributed.

A complaint, alleging that plaintiff "contributed" money to the erection of a building, does not allege a loan. Guisti v. Guisti, 41 Nev. 349.

Creditor.

An unrecorded bill of sale of undelivered personalty, executed by a deceased, is not void as to an order of court setting aside a monthly allowance to wife of deceased, the wife not being a "creditor" within Rev. Laws, 1078 (Comp. Laws, 2703), making sales and assignments of personalty without delivery fraudulent as to creditors. Guisti v. Guisti, 41 Nev. 349.

Deemed.

The title of the act of March 13, 1900 (Stats. 1909, c. 92), in addition to referring to the offenses declared, states that its purpose is to establish a rule of evidence in connection therewith. Section 2 makes the failure of a bank within thirty days after the receipt of deposits prima facie evidence of the officers' knowledge of its insolvency, and in a previous part it is provided that any officer having authority to close the bank or to prevent the receipt of deposits, who does not exercise such authority, shall be "deemed" to have assented to the receipt of deposits. Held, that only the part of the section relating to the knowledge imputed from the bank's failure is evidential in character, while the word "deemed," as used in the section, means "adjudged," in the sense of constituting a crime, instead of a rule of evidence. Ex Parte Smith, 33 Nev. 466.

De Facto Officer.

One purporting to act as a member of a county central committee of a political party, and who held proxies of other members, is at least a de facto officer, although disqualified by Stats. 1913, c. 282, sec. 18, because the holder of an appointive public office; a "de facto officer" being one whose acts, though not those of a lawful officer, the law upon principles of policy and justice will hold valid, because of the circumstances under which he acts or for the benefit of third persons. State v. Harmon, 38 Nev. 5.

Dependent and Neglected Children.

See "Reformatory."

Desertion.

Separation by consent of the parties is not "desertion," and will not be ground for divorce. Albee v. Albee, 38 Nev. 191.

When the husband gives up the domicile at one place and establishes another, and in good faith urges the wife to live with him there, her refusal to accept the invitation, if without sufficient reason, amounts to "desertion." Roberson v. Roberson, 41 Nev. 276.

Devise.

See "Bequeath"; "Devisee."

Devisee.

Under Rev. Laws, 6219, continued practically in the form in which it was enacted in 1862, providing that when any estate shall be devised to any relative of the testator and the devisee shall die before the testator, leaving lineal descendants, they shall take such estate as the devisee would have taken had he survived the testator, and in view of the specific use of the terms "devises," "legacies," etc., in section 6205, and the specific and correct use of the words "devisee" and "devisor" in section 6220, and in the absence of an interchangeable or indiscriminate use of such terms in the statute, the words "devisee" and "devise" are not to be given the scope of "legatee" and "legacy," and do not comprehend the disposition of personal property; so that, where a will gave and bequeathed the residue of all property of testatrix to a relative and her daughter and the devisee predeceased the testatrix, the daughter was entitled to all the residue of the realty, and to one-half the residue of the personal property, but as to the other half of the residue of the personal property, the testatrix died intestate. In Re Estate of Lewis, 39 Nev. 445.

Entire Contents.

Under a tariff fixing freight rates on ore at a valuation of not less than $100 per ton, determined from the gross assay value of the entire contents according to the market price of the metal product at destination after deducting the charges for assay, smelting, and handling at the smelter, and then fixing the actual rate at certain figures based on the value per ton, ore on which the assay value per ton, exclusive of moisture, was $57.88 as against $63.96, per ton for dry ore was properly valued for the purpose of determining the freight rate at its valuation per ton including the moisture content; moisture being included in the words "entire contents." M. S. M. Co. v. L. V. & T. R. R. Co., 36 Nev. 62.

Estate or Interest in Land.

The lessor's assignment of "all rents due and to become due under" a certain lease was not an assignment in itself of the lease, and did not create an estate or interest in the lands within Rev. Laws, 1038, 1039, 1069, stating the requisites of an instrument affecting the estate or interest in lands and of recordation in order to constitute notice. Washoe County Bank v. Campbell, 41 Nev. 153.

Feloniously.

An information, substantially following the form of the statute, charging that the defendant wilfully, unlawfully, and feloniously took from a person certain goods and chattels of such person, was not defective because not specifically charging a taking with an intent to commit a larceny; the word "feloniously" being a sufficient averment of the intent necessary to constitute the offense. State v. Switzer, 38 Nev. 108.

Fee or Perquisite of the Office of District Judge.

Though a townsit trustee became such by virtue of his office as district judge, the compensation allowed under the statute for his services as trustee is not a fee or perquisite of the office of district judge within section 10, article 6, of the constitution, forbidding a judicial officer, other than justices of the peace or city recorders, from receiving to his own use any fees or perquisites of office. Jennett v. Stevens, 34 Nev. 128.

Force.

Where defendant administered poison to produce unconsciousness and took money from cash register in saloon of which unconscious person had charge, he was guilty of "robbery," defined by statute to be unlawful taking of personal property from person of another or in his presence against his will by means of force or violence or fear of injury, since the administration of the poison constituted "force." State v. Snyder, 41 Nev. 453.

Found.

The word "found," as used in section 22 of the divorce act, supra, is used in the same sense that it is used in other provisions of the civil practice act relative to the service of process, and means the county in which service of summons may be had personally upon the defendant. Tiedemann v. Tiedemann, 36 Nev. 494.

Fugitive from Justice.

Where alleged deserted wife by deposition admitted receipt of moneys from husband after date of the desertion and failure to support alleged in the indictment, returned in a foreign state, the husband was entitled to discharge, on writ of habeas corpus, from detention for extradition, since there was no crime as alleged, and he could not be a "fugitive from justice." Ex Parte Twyeffort, 42 Nev. 250.

Great Necessity or Emergency.

Rev. Laws, 978, providing that in cases of great necessity or emergency, the governing body of a town or city may, by unanimous vote and with the approval of the state board of revenue, authorize a temporary loan to meet such necessity or emergency, does not authorize a city organized under a special charter, which as amended by Stats. 1907, cc. 29, 146, gave the trustees power to improve its streets and to issue bonds subject to the right of the voters to petition for a special election on the question, to make a temporary loan to pay for the paving of street intersections on its main street, since "great necessity or emergency" means something greatly out of the ordinary, which could not be met by the usual machinery of the government, immediately indispensable, and does not include what is merely essential in the sense of being convenient. Chartz v. Carson City, 39 Nev. 285.

Harbor and Protect.

Under Pen. Code Utah, sec. 4075, providing that persons who, after full knowledge that a felony has been committed, conceal it from the magistrate, or harbor or protect the person charged therewith or convicted thereof, are accessories, where petitioner for habeas corpus, after a third person in Utah procured certain bonds from another by false pretenses, induced the defrauded person to delay the institution of criminal proceedings against the third person for a few days, during which the latter left the State of Utah, petitioner was not an accessory after the fact to the crime, since the words "harbor and protect" of the statute imply more than mere withholding of knowledge as to the whereabouts of the party charged, and necessarily contemplate some affirmative act or acts of concealment or assistance rendered to the principal personally; mere words of inducement or persuasion intended to cause a third party to delay filing a criminal charge not being enough to bring the party within the statute. In Re Overfield, 30 Nev. 30.

Held.

The use of the expression "goes to" the wife in Rev. Laws, 2165, different from the expression "belongs to" the husband in sec. 2164, does not show an intention of the legislature that the interest of the wife in the community should vest only after the husband's death, in view of Const. art. 4, sec. 31, requiring laws to be passed defining the rights of the wife to property held in common with her husband, since "held" does not convey the idea of mere expectancy, but imports ownership. In Re Williams, 40 Nev. 241.

Held to Answer.

On resubmission of an indictment to the grand jury, accused was "held to answer" within Rev. Laws, 7003, giving a person so held the right to challenge the panel or an individual grand juror, in view of section 7003, providing for retention of custody of accused on resubmission. State v. Bachman, 41 Nev. 197.

Heretofore.

As used in the election laws of 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 284, subc. 3, sec. 18), providing that an elector shall not be entitled to vote at a primary election "unless he has heretofore designated to the registry agent his politics," the word "heretofore" relates to the time in which an elector may lawfully be registered for the primary election. State v. Keith, 37 Nev. 452.

Hotel.

See "Inn."

Including.

Under Comp. Laws, 345, authorizing a townsite trustee before issuing a deed of lots to receive for counsel fees, and for moneys expended in the acquisition of the title and for the administration of the trust, including reasonable charges for time and services while employed in such trust, not exceeding the sum of $1 for each lot, the word "including" shows that the charges for time and services of the trustee were to be embraced within the maximum charge, which was also to be inclusive of counsel fees and for moneys expended in the acquisition of the title and the administration of the trust. Jennett v. Stevens, 34 Nev. 128.

Indemnity.

Under Rev. Laws, 5652, providing that no contract of employment, insurance, relief benefit, or indemnity for injury or death entered into by or on behalf of any employee, nor acceptance of any insurance, relief benefit, or indemnity by the person entitled thereto, shall constitute a defense to an action for personal injuries or death, a release of an employer from liability for personal injuries, damaging an employee in the sum of about $1,200, in consideration of the payment of $36, did not prevent a recovery of such damages, since the statute invalidates defenses based, not only on contracts made to cover future injuries, but defenses based upon acceptance of insurance, relief benefit, or indemnity by a person already injured, and the word "indemnity" means protection or exemption from loss or damage, past or to come, or immunity from punishment for past offenses. Lawson v. Halifax-Tonopah M. Co., 36 Nev. 591.

Inn.

The charge of a complaint that accused "did keep and manage the Big Meadow Hotel, a house of public resort, in a disorderly manner," is a sufficient charge, at least against collateral attack of the judgment by habeas corpus, of the offense denounced by Comp. Laws, 4920, of keeping an "inn" in a disorderly manner, as it must be assumed that a "hotel" is an "inn." Ex Parte Breckenridge, 34 Nev. 275.

Instruction.

In a prosecution for homicide, where the state offered a purported dying declaration, oral statements by the court as to the nature of dying declarations and as to the weight of the one offered, made in the presence of the jury upon admitting the declaration in evidence, must be considered as an uncalled-for instruction. State v. Scott, 37 Nev. 412.

Intermeddler.

Where a guardian executed a mortgage upon land owned by herself and her minor ward to obtain money to prevent foreclosure under another mortgage running to a third party, the mortgagee was subrogated to the rights of the original mortgagee, where his mortgage was invalid, and the fact that he had no previous interest in the property did not make him a volunteer or intermeddler, a volunteer and intermeddler being a person who thrusts himself into a situation on his own initiative, and not one who becomes a party to a transaction upon the urgent petition of a person who is vitally interested therein, and whose rights would otherwise be sacrificed. Laf-franchini v. Clark, 39 Nev. 48.

Irresistible Passion.

While malice and passion may coexist, and a homicide be the result of both, express malice and irresistible passion, as defined in the statute, cannot coexist; premeditation and deliberation being in express malice, and wanting in irresistible passion. State v. Salgado, 38 Nev. 413.

Itinerant Merchant.

Rev. Laws, 3890-3894, inclusive (Act approved March 24, 1905, sec. 1; Stats. 1905, c. 153), makes it unlawful for any itinerant merchant or peddler to offer goods for sale without first obtaining a license. Section 2 defines an itinerant merchant, etc., as one having no permanent place of business within the state, which is not regularly located and taxed. Section 3 fixes the amount of the license required. Section 4 provides that the act shall not apply to drummers representing wholesale houses; and section 5 provides that it shall not apply to the sale of farm products. Held, that the act violated art. 1, sec. 8, of the constitution of the United States, relating to interstate commerce. Ex Parte Taylor and Rounds, 35 Nev. 504.

Jigger Boss.

See "Pusher."

Judgment Roll.

Though section 340 of the civil practice act (Comp. Laws, 3435) provides, among other things, that if any written opinion be placed on file, in entering judgment or making an order below, a copy shall be furnished, certified in like manner, etc., a written opinion and findings of the lower court do not constitute any part of the "judgment roll," but are only intended to aid the appellate court in the determination of an appeal. Werner v. Babcock, 34 Nev. 42.

Where demurrer to complaint for libel was sustained, all the matters pertaining to the proceedings in the trial court so far as affecting the plaintiff's rights are embraced in the "judgment roll" within Rev. Laws, 5273, subd. 2, stating what constitutes the judgment roll, so that under Stats. 1915, c. 142, sec. 11, permitting an appeal on the judgment roll alone, it was unnecessary to file assignments of error as required by section 13 of such act. Talbot v. Mack, 41 Nev. 245.

Laches.

Strictly speaking, laches implies more than mere lapse of time in asserting a right, requiring some actual or presumable change of circumstances rendering it inequitable to grant relief. Miller v. Walser, 42 Nev. 497.

Law of the Road.

The "law of the road" in the United States is that vehicles, when passing, should turn to the right. Weck v. Reno Traction Co., 38 Nev. 285.

Legacy.

See "Devisee."

Legal Residence.

The action was for divorce; defendant denying the jurisdictional allegation of the complaint of the plaintiff's residence for the statutory period of six months prior to the suit brought. Upon trial to a jury, special findings were made, that plaintiff had established her residence solely for the purpose of obtaining a divorce. Rev. Laws, 5838, provides that divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be obtained, etc., in the county in which the plaintiff shall have resided six months before suit brought; while section 3610 provides that the "legal residence" of a person with reference to his right of suffrage and eligibility to office, is that place where his habitation is fixed and permanent, and to which, whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning. Stats. 1911, c. 158, provides that the "legal residence" of a person "with reference to his or her right to maintain or defend any suit at law or in equity" is that place where he or she shall have been actually, physically, and corporeally present within the state or county during all of the period for which residence is claimed by him or her. Held, that there is no necessary repugnancy between the provisions of the Revised Laws relating to residence and the act of 1911: the latter merely adding the requirement of physical presence to the former general requirements of the intention permanently to reside, so that the plaintiff, taking up her residence solely for the purpose of maintaining a divorce action, did not acquire such residence as was necessary to give the court jurisdiction of her suit. Presson v. Presson, 38 Nev. 203.

Legatee.

See "Devisee."

Libelous Per Quod.

See "Libelous Per Se."

Libelous Per Se.

Words or expressions are "actionable per se" when their injurious character is a fact of common notoriety, and generally so understood where the utterance is published, and words or expressions "libelous per quod" are such as require that their injurious character or effect be established by allegation and proof. Talbot v. Mack, 41 Nev. 245.

Any false and malicious writing published of another is "libelous per se" when its tendency is to render the party contemptible or ridiculous in public estimation or expose him to public hatred or contempt. Id.

While words which directly tend to the prejudice of any one in his office, profession, trade, or business are actionable per se, all words disparaging persons in such matters are not, without proof of damage, actionable in themselves. Id.

Liquors.

The term "intoxicating liquors," as used in prohibition law, sec. 14, making place where such liquors are manufactured, stored, sold, etc., public nuisances, is, when said section is considered together with sections 6 and 7, to be taken as used interchangeably with the word "liquors" in section 1. And district court had jurisdiction to enjoin defendant brewing company from manufacturing and selling "Sierra Beverage," although said beverage is not intoxicating. State v. Reno Brewing Co., 42 Nev. 397.

Maintain.

The word "maintain" in a statute in reference to actions comprehends the institution as well as the support of the action, though it may be used to express a meaning corresponding to its more restricted definition. National M. Co. v. District Court, 34 Nev. 67.

Malt Liquor.

"Sierra Beverage," containing malt and one-tenth per cent alcohol, is, whether intoxicating or not, a liquor, within prohibition law, sec. 1, providing that "all malt or brewed drinks, whether intoxicating or not, shall be deemed malt liquors within the meaning of this act." State v. Reno Brewing Co., 42 Nev. 397.

May.

Rev. Laws, 5508, providing that in forcible entry cases, judgment "may" be entered for treble the actual damages, permits, but does not require such penalty to be imposed. Glock v. Elges, 39 Nev. 415.

Military Service.

Stats. 1917, c. 197, providing for taking of votes of electors in the military service of the United States, is a compliance with Const. art. 2, sec. 3, and is not void for discrimination against electors in the naval service, or conscripted men in the military service, since "military service" includes every branch of service in either the army or the navy of the United States. Maclean v. Brodigan, 41 Nev. 468.

Misconduct.

For an attorney to publish and advertise a pamphlet the purpose of which is to attract nonresidents to the state to apply to its courts for divorce, through his agency as an attorney, that he may profit financially thereby, is "misconduct," within Comp. Laws, 2025, providing for removal or suspension of attorneys for misconduct. In Re Schnitzer, 33 Nev. 581.

Monument.

A will gave the residue of the testator's estate to defendant fraternal order if, within five years from the date of his death, the fraternal order should establish a home for orphans and foundlings to be named after the testator's son, and providing, as an alternative, if the order should not accept, a similar gift of the income of the residue to a school district on condition it build an industrial school named after testator's son, or, in default of the district's acceptance, a similar gift to the state university to establish an industrial school fund named after testator's son. Held that, the intention of the testator being to provide a "monument" or artificial structure for the purpose of preserving the memory of his son, the fraternal order was not entitled to the annual income of the estate in any event, but only so long as it maintained the home. In Re Hartung, 40 Nev. 262.

Moot Case.

Where, pending appeal from judgment sustaining demurrer to the complaint in an action to enjoin a nuisance, defendant built its plant and operated it for three years, without any perceptible harm to plaintiff's lands, the appeal would be dismissed as embodying a "moot case," one seeking to determine an abstract question which does not rest upon existing facts or rights, since the cause of action of plaintiff's complaint, if any was alleged, was based upon a threatened injury to its lands from proposed action which did not in fact follow such action. Pacific L. Co. v. Mason Valley Mines Co., 39 Nev. 105.

Murder in the First Degree.

Section 17 of the crimes and punishments act (Comp. Laws, 4672), making all murder by poison, lying in wait, or torture, or any other kind of wilful, deliberate, and premeditated killing, or committed in the perpetration or attempt to perpetrate any arson, rape, robbery, or burglary, murder in the first degree, does not create separate statutory homicides, but the killing of a human being in either one of the methods described is "murder in the first degree," and a felony and a homicide committed in perpetrating or attempting to perpetrate a felony constitute together the one crime of murder in the first degree. State v. Mangana, 33 Nev. 511.

Near.

A devise conditioned on the establishment of an orphans' home "near" a city was satisfied by its establishment within the city corporate limits; the apparent intention by such direction being to confine the location of the home to the vicinity of the city, and not to exclude it from the city limits. In Re Hartung, 40 Nev. 262.

Negative Testimony.

The testimony of one claiming a mechanic's lien for work performed upon a building that he worked on the building, that at the time he looked for a notice signed by the owner that he would not be responsible for the repairs and that there was no such notice at any time while he was doing the work is not negative testimony such as may be disregarded in the face of positive testimony that the notice was posted. Gaston v. Avansino, 39 Nev. 128.

Neat Cattle.

See "Bovine."

New Matter.

Under practice act, sec. 104, "new matter" constituting a defense means some facts which plaintiff is not bound to prove, and which go in avoidance or discharge. Dixon v. Pruett, 42 Nev. 345.

Office.

The position of townsite trustee is not an office within the provision of the constitution prohibiting a judge from accepting any office other than a judicial office during the term for which he is elected. Jennett v. Stevens, 34 Nev. 128.

Under Stats. 1913, c. 128, sec. 1, creating the office of exposition commissioner of the state for the Panama-Pacific and the Panama-California expositions, and authorizing the governor to appoint an exposition commissioner, and section 2, creating the board of directors for the state for such expositions, whose duty it shall be to employ superintendents, clerks, and other persons upon such terms as may be deemed just and equitable to carry out the provisions of that act, and to cooperate and advise with the exposition commissioner, the position occupied by a superintendent so employed was not an "office" within Const. art. 4, sec. 8, providing that no senator or member of assembly shall, during the term for which he shall have been elected, nor for one year thereafter, be appointed to any civil office of profit under the state, which shall have been created or the emoluments of which shall have been increased during his term, except such office as may be filled by election by the people, as the term "office" embraces the ideas of continued duration, fees, or emoluments and duties, and such superintendent was intrusted with none of the sovereign power of the state, his compensation, period of employment, and the details of his duties being all matters of contract with the board of directors, especially as he was not required to take an oath as required by Const. art. 15, sec. 2, in the case of officers, indicating that the state officers did not consider him an officer. State v. Cole, 38 Nev. 215.

Order Made and Entered.

An order refusing or granting a motion for a new trial is made and entered, within Rev. Laws, 5329, requiring an appeal from such order to be taken within sixty days after the order has been "made and entered in the case," at the time the order is entered in the minutes of the court, and not at the date of filing of a decision upon the merits of the motion. Nelson v. Smith, 42 Nev. 302.

Ordinary Care.

In an employee's action for injuries, an instruction defining "ordinary care" as such care as a person of ordinary prudence usually exercised about his own affairs of ordinary importance was correct in the abstract and not misleading. Konig v. N. C. O., 36 Nev. 181.

Overload.

The term "overload," used in a letter stating that an insurance business was overloaded, means bearing too heavy a burden or too heavily loaded, but implies nothing defamatory on its face in the sense of imputing dishonesty, lack of fair dealing, want of fidelity, integrity, or business ability. Talbot v. Mack, 41 Nev. 245.

Overloaded.

Statement in letter to stockholders in insurance company, that the company is overloaded with salaries and traveling expenses, without making reference to the plaintiff, is not libelous per se. Talbot v. Mack, 41 Nev. 245.

Permanent Monument.

It is a fundamental rule in construing conveyances that courses and distances give way to permanent monuments, and the northerly side-line of a street, extended, is in effect a "permanent monument." Carey v. Clark, 40 Nev. 151.

Permit.

An indictment charging that the defendant permitted his wife to be in a house of prostitution, is sufficient to charge an offense under Rev. Laws, 6445, making it a felony for a person to connive at, consent to, or permit his wife being in any house of prostitution, the word "permit" in such indictment and statute meaning not merely failure to prevent, but requiring an active wish, or at least willingness in defendant's mind that his wife remain in such house after knowledge that she is there. In Re Jackson, 37 Nev. 167.

Personal Property.

Const. art. 10 (as amended by Stats. 1913, c. 83), requiring the legislature to provide by law for a uniform and equal rate of assessment and taxation and exempt from taxation enumerated property, and Rev. Laws, 3621, 3622, declaring that all property shall be subject to taxation, except exempt property, defining real estate, and declaring that the term "personal property" shall include all capital loaned, invested or employed in trade, commerce, or business, the capital stock of corporations doing business within the state, and all property not included in the term "real estate," authorize and direct that all property of every kind, character, and nature not specifically exempted shall be subject to taxation, and authorize a tax on the intangible property of an express company engaged in interstate and intrastate business. State v. Wells Fargo & Co., 38 Nev. 505.

Process.

Under Rev. Laws, 5387, providing that the party prevailing must deliver to the clerk a memorandum of the items of his costs, and serve a copy upon the adverse party, and section 5375, providing that where a party has an attorney the service of papers shall be upon the attorney with certain exceptions, service of a cost bill should be made upon the attorneys for the adverse party, since their authority is not terminated so long as the amount of costs remains open to settlement, and service of the cost bill upon the resident agent of a foreign corporation was irregular, if not void, since under section 5024, requiring foreign corporations to keep in the state an agent upon whom all legal process may be served, only papers in the nature of process may be served upon resident agent, and under section 5475, providing that, unless otherwise apparent from the context, the word "process" means a writ or summons issued in the course of judicial proceedings, the cost bill is not a process. Radovich v. Western Union Tel. Co., 36 Nev. 341.

Provoke.

An instruction: "That no provocation can justify or excuse homicide, but may reduce the offense to manslaughter. Words or actions, or gestures, however grievous or provoking, unaccompanied by an assault, will not justify or excuse murder"—was proper, the word "provoke" meaning only to irritate, excite, or enrage. State v. Milosovich, 42 Nev. 263.

Public Charity.

A bequest of the income of the residue of an estate to a fraternal order if the order established an orphans' home as provided therein, did not violate the common-law rule against perpetuities, such home being a public charity, since its use was not confined to any privileged or special class of orphans. In Re Hartung, 40 Nev. 262.

Public Documents.

Under Rev. Laws, 1795, providing for the deposit of ballots and election returns in the office of the clerk of county commissioners, and declaring that ballots so deposited shall not be subject to the inspection of any one except in cases of contested elections, and then only by the judge or body before whom the election is contested, ballots and election returns duly deposited are public documents within section 5409, providing that a public document in the custody of a public officer may be admitted in evidence by the certificate of the custodian thereof that it is genuine and authentic. State v. Baker and Josephs, 35 Nev. 1.

Purposes.

The act of March 17, 1911, sec. 7, part of the act (Rev. Laws, 4486-4494) creating the state bureau, and the office of commissioner of industry, agriculture, and irrigation, and defining its objects and purposes, does not, by section 7, appropriating $25,000 to carry out "the purposes of this act," and providing that all disbursements from it shall be on certificate of the commissioner, approved by the state board of examiners, indicate that such appropriation includes the salary of the commissioner, which section 6 fixes and declares payable in equal monthly installments by the state treasurer on warrants drawn by the state controller; Const. art. 5, sec. 21, expressly excluding salaries of officers "fixed by law" from the claims against the state which the board of examiners shall pass on, and "purposes" indicating something to be accomplished rather than an existing fact, so that the bureau and office of commissioner were but means for the subsequent accomplishment of the purposes of the act. State v. Eggers, 35 Nev. 250.

Pusher.

In mining parlance a "pusher" or "jigger boss" is one engaged for the purpose of encouraging or hastening the men. Ryan v. Manhattan M. Co., 38 Nev. 92.

Qualified Elector.

Under Const. art. 1, sec. 8, art. 2, sec. 1, as amended in 1877, art. 4, sec. 27, Rev. Laws, 4929, 4931, 4937, women, being "qualified electors," may serve on the grand jury. Parus v. District Court, 42 Nev. 229.

Real Party in Interest.

See "Trustee of Express Trust."

Reckless.

In an employee's action for injuries, an instruction that it was for the jury to determine whether a defect in a saw was such that no one but a reckless millman, careless of his safety, would have operated it without it being repaired, was not objectionable because of the use of the word "reckless," as the court might have used the word "heedless," "careless," or "indifferent" with the same force and effect. Konig v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 181.

Reformatory.

Under the act of 1873 (Stats. 1873, c. 45), as amended by Stats. 1903, c. 41 (Rev. Laws, 4099) relative to the state orphans' home, providing that any district judge upon a showing that an orphan is the child of parents one or both of whom were at the time of their decease residents of the state, and that the condition of the orphan is such that it would be for his best interest to be admitted to such home, may commit the orphan to the home at the expense of the county, and that the directors at their discretion may receive any child from a living resident parent or guardian and require such parent or guardian to contribute to its support, but that no child shall be so of the home to the vicinity of the city, and not to exclude it from the city limits. In Re Hartung, 40 Nev. 262.

Negative Testimony.

The testimony of one claiming a mechanic's lien for work performed upon a building that he worked on the building, that at the time he looked for a notice signed by the owner that he would not be responsible for the repairs and that there was no such notice at any time while he was doing the work is not negative testimony such as may be disregarded in the face of positive testimony that the notice was posted. *Gaston v. Permit.

An indictment charging that the defendant permitted his wife to be in a house of prostitution, is sufficient to charge an offense under Rev. Laws, 6445, making it a felony for a person to connive at, consent to, or permit his wife being in any house of prostitution, the word "permit" in such indictment and statute meaning not merely failure to prevent, but requiring an active wish, or at least willingness in defendant's mind that his wife remain in such house after knowledge that she is there. In Re Jackson, 37 Nev. 167.

Personal Property.

Const. art. 10 (as amended by Stats. 1913, c. 83), requiring the legislature to provide by law for a uniform and equal rate of assessment and taxation and exempt from taxation enumerated property, and Rev. Laws, 3621, 3622, declaring that all property shall be subject to taxation, except exempt property, defining real estate, and declaring that the term "personal property" shall include all capital loaned, invested or employed in trade, commerce, or business, the capital stock of corporations doing business within the state, and all property not included in the term "real estate," authorize and direct that all property of every kind, character, and nature not specifically exempted shall be subject to taxation, and authorize a tax on the intangible property of an express company engaged in interstate and intrastate business. State v. Wells Fargo & Co., 38 Nev. 505.

Process.

Under Rev. Laws, 5387, providing that the party prevailing must deliver to the clerk a memorandum of the items of his costs, and serve a copy upon the adverse party, and section 5375, providing that where a party has an attorney the service of papers shall be upon the attorney with certain exceptions, service of a cost bill should be made upon the attorneys for the adverse party, since their authority is not terminated so long as the amount of costs remains open to settlement, and service of the cost bill upon the resident agent of a foreign corporation was irregular, if not void, since under section 5024, requiring foreign corporations to keep in the state an agent upon whom all legal process may be served, only papers in the nature of process may be served upon resident agent, and under section 5475, providing that, unless otherwise apparent from the context, the word "process" means a writ or summons issued in the course of judicial proceedings, the cost bill is not a process. Radovich v. Western Union Tel. Co., 36 Nev. 341.

Provoke.

An instruction: "That no provocation can justify or excuse homicide, but may reduce the offense to manslaughter. Words or actions, or gestures, however grievous or provoking, unaccompanied by an assault, will not justify or excuse murder"—was proper, the word "provoke" meaning only to irritate, excite, or enrage. State v. Milosovich, 42 Nev. 263.

Public Charity.

A bequest of the income of the residue of an estate to a fraternal order if the order established an orphans' home as provided therein, did not violate the common-law rule against perpetuities, such home being a public charity, since its use was not confined to any privileged or special class of orphans. In Re Hartung, 40 Nev. 262.

Public Documents.

Under Rev. Laws, 1795, providing for the deposit of ballots and election returns in the office of the clerk of county commissioners, and declaring that ballots so deposited shall not be subject to the inspection of any one except in cases of contested elections, and then only by the judge or body before whom the election is contested, ballots and election returns duly deposited are public documents within section 5400, providing that a public document in the custody of a public officer may be admitted in evidence by the certificate of the custodian thereof that it is genuine and authentic. State v. Baker and Josephs, 35 Nev. 1.

Purposes.

The act of March 17, 1911, sec. 7, part of the act (Rev. Laws, 4486-4494) creating the state bureau, and the office of commissioner of industry, agriculture, and irrigation, and defining its objects and purposes, does not, by section 7, appropriating $25,000 to carry out "the purposes of this act," and providing that all disbursements from it shall be on certificate of the commissioner, approved by the state board of examiners, indicate that such appropriation includes the salary of the commissioner, which section 6 fixes and declares payable in equal monthly installments by the state treasurer on warrants drawn by the state controller; Const. art. 5, sec. 21, expressly excluding salaries of officers "fixed by law" from the claims against the state which the board of examiners shall pass on, and "purposes" indicating something to be accomplished rather than an existing fact, so that the bureau and office of commissioner were but means for the subsequent accomplishment of the purposes of the act. State v. Eggers, 35 Nev. 250.

Pusher.

In mining parlance a "pusher" or "jigger boss" is one engaged for the purpose of encouraging or hastening the men. Ryan v. Manhattan M. Co., 38 Nev. 92.

Qualified Elector.

Under Const. art. 1, sec. 8, art. 2, sec. 1, as amended in 1877, art. 4, sec. 27, Rev. Laws, 4929, 4931, 4937, women, being "qualified electors," may serve on the grand jury. Parus v. District Court, 42 Nev. 229.

Real Party in Interest.

See "Trustee of Express Trust."

Reckless.

In an employee's action for injuries, an instruction that it was for the jury to determine whether a defect in a saw was such that no one but a reckless millman, careless of his safety, would have operated it without it being repaired, was not objectionable because of the use of the word "reckless," as the court might have used the word "heedless," "careless," or "indifferent" with the same force and effect. Konlg v. N. C. O. Ry., 36 Nev. 181.

Reformatory.

Under the act of 1873 (Stats. 1873, c. 45), as amended by Stats. 1903, c. 41 (Rev. Laws, 4099) relative to the state orphans' home, providing that any district judge upon a showing that an orphan is the child of parents one or both of whom were at the time of their decease residents of the state, and that the condition of the orphan is such that it would be for his best interest to be admitted to such home, may commit the orphan to the home at the expense of the county, and that the directors at their discretion may receive any child from a living resident parent or guardian and require such parent or guardian to contribute to its support, but that no child shall be so received unless sent by the county commissioners of the county in which the child resides, who shall agree to pay for its maintenance, and juvenile court law March 24, 1909 (Stats. 1909, c. 180, sec. 7), as amended by Stats. 1911, c. 197 (Rev. Laws, 734), providing for the commission of dependent and neglected children to any suitable state institution organized for the care of dependent or neglected children, and section 1, under which "dependent and neglected children" include those having immoral, evil, or incorrigible tendencies, the court could not commit to the state orphans' home a dependent or neglected child who was not an orphan, since an "orphans' home" is an institution or home for the care of destitute orphans, and not a "reformatory" or institution in which young offenders are confined and instructed with a view to their reformation. McKinnon v. Harwood, 35 Nev. 494.

Repugnancy.

Two statutes relating to the same subject-matter are to be read and construed together, with a view to harmonizing them, if possible, to give effect to both, unless the later act expressly repeals the earlier, or is so repugnant to it as to repeal it by necessary implication; "repugnancy" being inconsistency or conflict with something else. Presson v. Presson, 38 Nev. 203.

Resided.

Actual living in the county by plaintiff for the six months is necessary to give the court jurisdiction under Rev. Laws, 5838, providing that divorce may be obtained by complaint to the district court of the county in which plaintiff shall have "resided" six months before suit brought.

"Resided" means permanency as well as continuity. Actual residence is the place of actual abode; of physical presence—the abiding-place.

Legal residence may be merely ideal, but actual residence must be substantial.

Where residence is made the basis of jurisdiction, parties who seek to invoke the power of the court to relieve them from the marriage tie must bring themselves clearly and affirmatively within the jurisdiction of the court. Fleming v. Fleming, 36 Nev. 135.

Residence.

"Residence" is a settled or fixed abode of a character indicating permanency, or at least an intention to remain for an indefinite time, being made up of the physical fact of abode and the intention of remaining. Presson v. Presson, 38 Nev. 203.

Residuary Bequest.

See "Residue."

Residuary Legatee.

See "Residue."

Residue.

Under such will, the order was not a "residuary legatee," as the term "residuary bequest" means that the residue of an estate is bequeathed to a person absolutely, and as there can be but one "residue" of an estate, meaning what is left after the payment of the debts and general legacies and the satisfaction of other specific gifts. In Re Hartung's Estate, 39 Nev. 200.

Risks Incident to the Employment.

In an employee's action for injuries, an instruction that by "risks incident to the employment" was meant such risks as existed after the master had performed his full duty to his servant in furnishing instrumentalities, machinery, and appliances reasonably safe for the purpose for which they were intended, that this included keeping them in reasonably safe repair, that by the assumption of risk incident to the employment was not meant any additional or extra hazard, occasioned by the master's negligence in failing to keep his tools, machinery, and appliances in reasonably safe repair, was not erroneous or misleading. Konig v. N. C. O., 36 Nev. 181.

Shall.

As used in act approved February 20, 1909 (Rev. Laws, 4453), section 9, providing that the state board of embalmers shall recognize licenses issued in another state, and on presentation thereof shall issue the regular license to the holders, the word "shall" is not equivalent to "may," but is mandatory. Eddy v. Board of Embalmers, 40 Nev. 329.

Slander.

While the original term "slander" was applied more to words or utterances, the nature of which was defamatory of individuals, the term is applicable to utterances with reference to property, whether real or personal; but, in order to maintain an action for slander of title to property, it is necessary to show that the words spoken were false, that they were maliciously spoken, and that plaintiff suffered a pecuniary injury. Potosi Zinc Co. v. Mahoney, 36 Nev. 390.

Slit.

Under Rev. Laws, 6416, defining mayhem to include slitting the ear of a human being, and in view of section 6417, stating that it is immaterial how the injury is inflicted, an information charging that accused bit off a portion of the ear of one C. is sufficient, though "slit" may be broader than "bite." State v. Enkhous, 40 Nev. 1.

Special Law.

The provision in the act of February 20, 1913 (Stats. 1913, c. 10), amending section 22 of the marriage and divorce act of 1861 (Stats. 1861, c. 33), as amended in 1875

(Stats. 1875, c. 22), by declaring that when, at the time of the accrual of a cause for divorce, the parties shall not both be bona-fide residents of the state, no court shall grant divorce, unless either party shall have been a bona-fide resident for not less than one year next preceding the commencement of the action, is a general uniform operation throughout the state, and applies the same in every part of the state, and to all persons under similar circumstances, and is not a local or special law within Const. art. 4, sec. 20, prohibiting any local or special law granting a divorce. Worthington v. District Court, 37 Nev. 212.

State Treasury.

The constitution, art. 5, sec. 21, constitutes the governor, secretary of state, and attorney-general a board of examiners to examine claims against the state, except the compensation of officers fixed by law. Article 4, section 19, provides that no money shall be drawn from the state treasury except to meet appropriations made by law. Article 5, section 22, provides that the state treasurer and state controller shall perform duties prescribed by law. Rev. Laws, 4459, requires all claims against the state, provided for by appropriation, but not liquidated, to be presented to the board of examiners for approval, and that the controller shall not allow them unless so approved. Section 4157 defines the general duties of the state controller, section 4158 requires him to audit all claims against the state for which appropriation has been made, of which the amount has not been definitely fixed by law, and which have been examined and approved by the board, and to allow claims as provided by law, and section 4159 requires him to draw all warrants upon the treasury and to account therefor. The act relating to the compensation of workmen (Stats. 1913, c. 111) receiving injuries in the course of their employment resulting in death, creates an industrial commission, composed of the governor, state mining inspector, attorney-general and two others named by them, and a state insurance fund derived from premiums paid by such employers as accept the terms of the act, and by section 24 provides that all premiums shall be paid to the state treasurer, and by section 40 that the state shall not be liable for any compensation under the act except from such funds. Held, that the "state treasury" did not include the state insurance fund, which was a special fund given to the treasurer in trust, as distinguished from the general taxes and revenues of the state, and that the requirement for presentation of claims to the board of examiners and the issuance of warrants by the controller did not apply. State v. McMillan, 36 Nev. 383.

Stock of Merchandise.

A sale of a saloon and dance-hall, without complying with bulk sales act (Rev. Laws, 3908-3912), regulating the sale of merchandise in bulk otherwise than in the usual course of trade is prima facie void as against creditors of the seller, and the stock of liquors sold and the money derived therefrom are subject to execution against the seller, while the glassware, bar fixtures, and furnishings of the dance-hall and saloon are not within the description of "portion of a stock of merchandise" within the statute, and these articles are not subject to execution against the seller. Marshon v. Toohey, 38 Nev. 248.

Strictly Necessary.

Giving negotiable notes for temporary loans made by county commissioners in case of great necessity or emergency, to be paid for from the next tax levy, under authority of the act of March 13, 1903 (Stats. 1903, c. 78), secs. 6, 7 (Rev. Laws, 3831, 3832), is not within the act of March 8, 1865 (Stats. 1864-65), sec. 8, subd. 13, empowering county commissioners to do things "strictly necessary" to the full discharge of their powers. First National Bank v. Nye County, 38 Nev. 123.

Sum Involved.

Const. art. 6, sec. 8, enacted while Stats. 1861, c. 15, was in force in the territory, providing for the foreclosing of all liens in one action, requires the legislature to fix the powers of justices of the peace, and authorizes it to confer jurisdiction upon them, concurrent with district courts, of actions to enforce mechanics' liens wherein the amount does not exceed $300. Rev. Laws, 5714, is to the same effect, and section 2224 allows any number of lien claimants to join in the same action and the court to consolidate separate actions; and section 2227 provides that such liens may be enforced by an action in any court of competent jurisdiction, and, as amended by Stats. 1907, c. 90, applies to mechanic's lien proceedings in justice's court where the sum involved does not exceed $300. Held, that the words "sum involved" mean the sum involved in the several liens embraced in a suit, and that a justice's court had no jurisdiction of an action to foreclose mechanic's liens, where the total amount of the liens exceeds $300, notwithstanding each of the liens is for a less amount. Phillips v. Snowden Placer Co., 40 Nev. 66.

To Be Selected.

Const. art. 4, sec. 30, declares that a homestead as provided by law shall be exempt from forced sale, and shall not be alienated without the joint consent of the husband and wife, and that laws shall be enacted providing for the recording of such homestead. Stats. 1864-65, c. 72, provides that a selected homestead shall be exempt from forced sale, and that the selection shall be made by recording intention in writing. Amendatory act, Stats. 1897, c. 20, provides that no deed or mortgage of a homestead, whether a declaration has been filed or not, shall be valid, unless both the husband and wife executed and acknowledged the same. Held, that although a homestead was not registered as required by law, the husband's sole conveyance or incumbrance of it did not affect the wife's right in the homestead, which could not be alienated unless the instrument was executed and given by both. First National Bank v. Meyers, 40 Nev. 284.

Together With.

Under Comp. Laws, 345, providing that, after the issuance of a patent on townsite land, the corporate authorities or judge to whom the patent shall issue shall execute, to the persons entitled thereto, a deed in fee simple for such lots on payment of their due proportion of the purchase money, together with their proportion of such sum as may be necessary to pay for the streets, alleys, squares, and public grounds, not to exceed 50 cents for each lot, etc., the words "together with" show that the limitation of 50 cents was the maximum that could be apportioned to buy all the land within the town site, inclusive of that within the streets, alleys, squares, and public grounds, and does not apply merely to the amount for the streets, alleys, squares, and public grounds. Jennett v. Stevens, 34 Nev. 128.

Trustee of Express Trust.

The indorsement and delivery of a note, whether negotiable or nonnegotiable, as collateral for the payment of a debt, enables the pledgee upon default of pledgor, to maintain an action thereon in its own name, the pledgee, if not the real party in interest within practice act, sec. 44 (Rev. Laws, 4986), being at least a trustee of an express trust, within section 45. W. B. and T. Co. v. Corbell, 42 Nev. 378.

Unincorporated Towns.

The proviso to Stats. 1881, c. 48, added by Stats. 1889, c. 43, reading that in all unincorporated cities and towns the board of county commissioners shall have power to fix and collect a tax upon certain businesses and amusements, and none other, does not apply to towns which established their form of government after the unincorporated town act (Stats. 1879, c. 98) had been repealed by Stats. 1887, c. 43, or to towns which, by reason of their having a voting population of 600 or more, ipso facto come under the general town government act, the term "unincorporated towns" not referring to all towns within the state not incorporated; as to give it such an interpretation would nullify the grant by the legislature in the body of the act of power to boards of county commissioners to levy and collect a license tax upon numerous specific businesses, but referring specifically to towns which have assumed a form of town government under the act of 1879 entitled "An act to provide for the government of unincorporated towns in this state." Nye County v. Schmidt, 39 Nev. 456.

United in Business.

The relation of landlord and tenant between a juror and a party authorizes the sustaining of a challenge to a juror under Comp. Laws, 3259, subsec. 3, making it ground for challenge for cause to a juror that he is "united in business" with either party. Sherman v. Southern Pacific Co., 33 Nev. 385.

Voluntary Confession.

Where the defendant with two others was indicted for arson, and the complaining witness and the sheriff advised him to protect himself, that it would be better for him if he told the truth, the theory of the prosecution being that his codefendants were the principals who had instigated him to burn the prosecuting witness's store, and the prosecuting witness told him that he only wanted the principals, and others told him that his statements to a detective while in jail were sufficient to send him to prison, a confession elicited under such circumstances is not voluntary; for to be voluntary a confession must be made without hope or inducement of reward. State v. Dye, 36 Nev. 143.

Worthy of Its Name.

A devise conditioned upon establishing by a fraternal order of an orphans' home "worthy of its name" was satisfied by the establishment of a home, which, considering the strength of the order in the state, the population of the state, and the general conditions existing therein, compared favorably with similar institutions of the order elsewhere. In Re Hartung, 40 Nev. 262.

Under a will devising the residue of an estate to a fraternal order, the income therefrom to be paid over to it annually, if within five years from testator's death the order established a home for orphans "worthy of its name," the words "worthy of its name" did not require the expenditure therefor of the sum of $25,000 as specified for a school building in another paragraph of the will, but the will made the order itself judge as to whether or not the home was worthy of its name, subject to the right of the courts to finally determine the question. In Re Hartung, 40 Nev. 262.

TABLE OF NEVADA AND FEDERAL CASES DIGESTED WITH DIGEST PAGING

For convenience, the abbreviation Nev. has been omitted in this table and a colon (:) substituted therefor. Thus, the first case below, Abel v. Breen, 41:516, 173 P. 555, means Abel v. Breen, 41 Nevada, 516, and that the same case is also reported in 173 Pacific Reporter, 555.

The figures in black-faced type refer to the page in the Digest where the case is digested. Reversed titles have no digest paging in this table.

The exact title appearing in the Reports has been given in every instance. For suits by or against counties, it would be well to look under "Commissioners of," "County of," as well as under the name of the particular county.

The book and page of Nevada cases which have been rereported in the Am. Dec., Am. Rep., Am. St. Rep., L. R. A., L. R. A. (N. S.), Ann. Cas. and Am. Law Rep. will be found after title of case.

Titles of certain cases, fully digested in the Nevada Digest, issued in 1912, are inserted herein without digest paging to show where rereported in annotated sets which rereport appeared after said Digest was issued.
